Lancaster, Sir James. d. at London, in May, 1618. English navigator. He sailed in command of the Edward Bonaventure with the first English expedition to the East Indies in 1591, returning to England, after many adventures, in May, 1594. He sailed with three ships against the Portuguese in 1594, capturing Pernambuco (now Recife) in 1595, and commanded the first fleet of the East India Company (1600–03). After him Baffin named Lancaster Sound.

Lancaster, John of. See John of Lancaster.

Lancaster, Joseph. b. at London, 1778; d. at New York, Oct. 24, 1838. English educator. He founded in 1801 a private school in the Borough Road, Southwark, London, in which he employed the monitorial system of instruction (using older students as monitors to drill the younger in fundamentals), which obtained great popularity. He emigrated to the U.S. in 1818. He published Improvements in Education (1803) and others.

Lancaster, Thomas of. See Thomas of Lancaster.

Lancaster, William. A pseudonym of Warren, John Byrne Leicester.

Lancaster Sound. Channel of the Arctic Ocean, in the north polar regions of the Arctic Archipelago, N of Canada, leading from Baffin Bay W to Barrow Strait, between Baffin Island and Devon Island. Discovered by Baffin in 1616 and first traversed by Parry in 1819, it was named for Sir James Lancaster. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Lance (lâns), George. b. at Little Easton, near Dunmow, Essex, England, March 24, 1802; d. near Birkenhead, Cheshire, England, June 18, 1864. English painter, chiefly known for his paintings of fruit and flowers.

Lancelot (lan′sę.lọt, -lot). See also Ladislaus.

Lancelot. Dramatic narrative in blank verse by Edwin Arlington Robinson, published in 1920. It is part of his Arthurian trilogy, which includes Merlin (1917) and Tristram (1927).

Lancelot du Lac (dŏ̇ lāk'). In the 13th-century French prose version, Sir Lancelot was the son of Ban, king of Brittany, and became one of the most famous knights of the Round Table. He received the name "du Lac" from the fact that he was educated at the castle of Vivian, known as the Dame du Lac or Lady of the Lake. The main features of the legend are his guilty love for Guinevere, the exploits he performed in her service, and the war with Arthur in which his passion involved him. Guinevere retired to a convent, and Lancelot became a monk and a holy man, and died saying masses for the souls of his old companions in arms. He was the father of Sir Galahad by Elaine, the daughter of King Pelles. Malory's Book of Arthur tells the story of Elaine's hopeless love for Lancelot. Chrestien de Troyes's metrical romance Le Chevalier de la Charette (c1170) gives some of Lancelot's adventures.

Lancereaux (läṅs.rō), Étienne. b. at Brécy Brières, Ardennes, France, Nov. 27, 1829; d. at Paris, in October, 1910. French physician. He made a number of original investigations (1861) of the disorders of the nervous system due to syphilis. One of his most important discoveries (1877) was the relationship between diabetes with marked emaciation (diabetes mellitus) and disease of the pancreas, which he called pancreatic diabetes.

Lancey (lān'si). See De Lancey.

Lanchester (lan'chęs.tėr, -ches"tėr), Elsa. b. at Lewisham, London, 1902—. English actress; wife of Charles Laughton, whom she married in 1929. In addition to her motion-picture work, which includes appearances in The Private Life of Henry VIII, The Bride of Frankenstein, Naughty Marietta, Ladies in Retirement, and others, she has been active in the Turnabout Theatre at Los Angeles.

Lanchow (lān'jō'). [Also: Kaolan, Lan-chau.] City in N central China, the capital of the province of Kansu, on the S bank of the Hwang Ho: an important trading center. Elevation, ab. 5,100 ft.; pop. 156,468 (1946).

Lanciani (lān.chä'nē), Rodolfo Amadeo. b. at Rome, Jan. 1, 1846; d. there, May 22, 1929. Italian archaeologist. He was professor of archaeology at the University of Rome, and director of excavations for the Italian government. He was an authority on the antiquities and the ancient topography of Rome.

Lanciano (lān.chä'nō). [Ancient name, Anxanum.] Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Abruzzi e Molise, in the province of Chieti, ab. 14 mi. SE of Chieti. In the Middle Ages one of the largest urban centers in the region, with wide commercial contacts, it is now only an agricultural market town. The cathedral, founded in 1389, is a largely neoclassical building of the late 18th century. Medieval churches include San Francesco, Santa Lucia, and Santa Maria Maggiore; there are remains of 11th-century walls. Only slight damage was suffered during World War II by the Duomo (cathedral) and the campanile. Pop. of commune, 23,367 (1936); of town, 10,654 (1936).

Land (land), Emory Scott. b. at Canon City, Colo., Jan. 9, 1879—. American naval officer. He was a member (1937–38) and chairman (1938–46) of the U.S. Maritime Commission, and was appointed (February, 1942) War Shipping Administrator. He has been president (1946 et seq.) of the Air Transport Association of America.

Land, The. Poem in four parts, "Winter," "Summer," "Spring" and "Autumn," by V. Sackville-West, published in 1926. It won the Hawthornden prize in 1927.

Landa (lān'dä), Diego de. b. March 17, 1524; d. at Mérida, Yucatán, Mexico, April 30, 1579. Spanish ecclesiastic of the Franciscan order in Yucatán. His measures for the extirpation of idolatry were excessively severe, and by his orders hundreds of Indian hieroglyphic writings were destroyed.

Landau (lān'dou). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhenish Palatinate, Bavaria, on the Queich River and the slopes of the Hardt Mountains, ab. 18 mi. SW of Speyer. The center of the wine and tobacco trade of the Palatinate, it is also the center of a considerable fruit and vegetable growing district, and has livestock markets, and shoe, textile, leather, and metalworking industries. The municipal museum contains Roman antiquities. There are remains of old fortifications; the Protestant church, in the Gothic style, dates from the 13th century, the Church of the Augustines from the 15th century. Landau became a free imperial city in 1274; in the Thirty Years' War it was taken and retaken by Imperialists, Swedes, and French, because it was considered the key to Alsace. In 1679 it passed to France and was fortified by Vauban. It was detached from Alsace in 1816 and given to Bavaria. The type of carriage called a Landau was first made here. 23,188 (1950).

Landau, Edmund. b. at Berlin, Feb. 14, 1877; d. there, Feb. 19, 1938. German mathematician, whose greatest contributions were in analytic number theory, especially on the distribution of prime numbers and prime ideals. He published over 250 mathematical papers and was the author of half a dozen books, including Vorlesungen über Zahlentheorie (3 vols., 1927) and Grundlagen der Analysis (1930).

Landberg (länd'bery'), Count Carlo. b. at Göteborg, Sweden, March 24, 1848; d. at Bern, Switzerland, July 20, 1924. Swedish Arabic scholar.

Landeck (län'dek). Town in W Austria, in the province of Tirol, on the Inn River W of Innsbruck. 5,406 (1946).

Landeck. German name of Ladek Zdrój.

Landells (lan'delz), Ebenezer. b. at Newcastle, England, April 13, 1808; d. at London, Oct. 1, 1860. English wood-engraver, remembered as the person who gave birth to (c1840) and promoted the idea for the magazine Punch. The first issue of the publication appeared in 1841.

Landen (län'dęn). Town in E central Belgium, in the province of Liége, ab. 23 mi. NW of Liége. It was the birthplace of Pepin. Pop. ab. 4,000.

Landen (lan'dęn), John. b. at Peakirk, near Peterborough, England, Jan. 23, 1719; d. at Milton, Northamptonshire, England, Jan. 15, 1790. English mathematician, author of A Discourse Concerning the Residual Analysis (1758), Residual Analysis (1764, of which only the first book was published), and others. He discovered Landen's theorem, expressing the arc of a hyperbola in terms of two elliptic arcs.

Lander (lan'dėr). Town in W Wyoming, county seat of Fremont County, on the Popo Agie River: tourist resort and trading center for the Popo Agie valley. It was made county seat in 1884. It is the W terminal point of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway. Elevation, ab. 5,370 ft.; pop. 3,394 (1950).

Lander, John. b. in Cornwall, England, 1807; d. at London, Nov. 16, 1839. English explorer in Africa (1830–31); younger brother of Richard L. Lander.

Lander, Richard Lemon. b. at Truro, Cornwall, England, Feb. 8, 1804; d. on the island of Fernando Po, Africa, in February, 1834. English explorer in Africa; brother of John Lander. He accompanied Hugh Clapperton to western Africa (1825–27), and explored the Niger (1830–31, 1832–34) with his brother John. He published his journal of Clapperton's expedition (1829), another account of the expedition (1830), and Journal of an Expedition to Explore the Course and Termination of the Niger (1832).

Landerneau (läṅ.der.nō). Town in W France, in the department of Finistère, on the Elorn River ab. 13 mi. NE of Brest. It has cloth manufactures and a fishing port. 10,975 (1946).

Landes (läṅd). Department in SW France, bounded by Gironde on the N, Lot-et-Garonne and Gers on the E, Basses-Pyrénées on the S, and the Bay of Biscay on the W. It was formed from parts of the old provinces of Guienne, Gascony, and Béarn. It has a mild, maritime climate, but poor, sandy soil. The coastal area is covered by dunes, and large stretches of the remainder (formerly a sandy and marshy wasteland) have been planted with pine woods. Forestry and the industrial utilization of forest products are the chief industries; there is also fishing and livestock farming. In area, it is the second largest department of France, but one of the least densely populated. Capital, Mont-de-Marsan; area, 3,604 sq. mi.; pop. 248,395 (1946).

Landes. [Also: Grandes Landes, Landes de Gascogne (dę gäs.kony'), Les Landes.] Plain largely in the department of Landes, SW France. It is largely composed of sands and marshes, and much of it is now covered with planted pine forests. Length, ab. 110 mi.

Landeshut (lan'des.hot). German name of Kamienna Góra.

Landi (län'dē), Gasparo. b. at Piacenza, Italy, 1756; d. at Rome, Feb. 24, 1830. Italian historical and portrait painter.

Landi Kotal (lun'di kō'tul). See under Khyber Pass.

Landino (län.dē'nō), Francesco. [Also, Franciscus Caeus.] b. at Florence, c1325; d. there, Sept. 2, 1397. Florentine blind organist and composer, notably of madrigals in the ars nova manner.

Landis (lan'dis), James McCauley. b. at Tokyo, Sept. 25, 1899—. American lawyer, educator, and government administrator. He was professor of law (1928–34) at Harvard, served as a member (1933–34) of the Federal Trade Commission, was a member (1934–37) and chairman (1935–37) of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and was dean (1937 et seq.) of Harvard Law School. He was appointed (1942) director of the Office of Civilian Defense, and served as chairman (1946–47) of the Civil Aeronautics Board. Author of Cases on Labor Law (1934), The Administrative Process (1938), and other books; co-author, with Felix Frankfurter, of The Business of the Supreme Court (1927).

Landis, Kenesaw Mountain. b. at Millville, Ohio, Nov. 20, 1866; d. at Chicago, Nov. 25, 1944. American judge, remembered as commissioner (1920–44) for the American and National baseball leagues, whose strict supervision notably improved the reputation of organized baseball after the bribery scandal involving the 1919 Chicago American League team had seriously damaged the public's faith in the sport. He was U.S. district judge (1905 et seq.) for the Northern District of Illinois, and presided at the trial (1907) of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which had been indicted on 1,462 counts concerning rebates; he imposed a fine of 29,240,000 dollars, payment of which was later set aside.

Land League, Irish. League formed in October, 1879, by the Irish Nationalist Party, led by Michael Davitt and C. S. Parnell, under which organized resistance was made to the payment of rent. It was "proclaimed" on Oct. 20, 1881, by Gladstone's Liberal government at London to be "an illegal and criminal association." It was nevertheless viewed by Irish nationalists, then and since, as a justifiable and necessary protest against absentee landlordism.

Landless (land'lęs), Helena. In Charles Dickens's The Mystery of Edwin Drood, an attractive young girl who becomes the close friend of Rosa Bud at Miss Twinkleton's School for Young Ladies in Cloisterham.

Landless, Neville. In Charles Dickens's The Mystery of Edwin Drood, a young man who is studying with the Reverend Septimus Crisparkle; twin brother of Helena Landless. He is suspected of the murder of Edwin Drood.

Landlord at Lion's Head (lī'ǫnz hed'), The. Novel by William Dean Howells, published in 1897.

Landnama Bók (länd'nä.mä bōk). [Eng. trans., "Book of the Taking of the Land."] Old Icelandic chronicle, by Sturla Thortharson, who died in 1284.

"Land of Cakes." Scotland: so named (in jest) on account of the general use of oatmeal cakes as an article of diet.

Land of Canaan (kā'nąn). See Canaan.

Land of Cinnamon. See Cinnamon, Land of.

Land of Cockaigne (ko.kān'). See Cockaigne.

"Land of Enchantment." Occasional nickname of New Mexico.

Land of Little Rain, The. Series of 14 sketches by Mary Austin, published in 1903, concerned with the region of California lying "between the high Sierras south from Yosemite—east and south . . . beyond Death Valley and on illimitably into the Mojave Desert."

Land of Promise. See Canaan.

"Land of Steady Habits." A nickname of Connecticut.

Landolt (län'dolt), Hans Heinrich. b. at Zurich, Switzerland, 1831; d. at Berlin, 1910. German physical chemist. He confirmed experimentally the law of the conservation of mass to within one part in 10^8 (1908).

Landon (lan'dǫn), Alfred Mossman. b. at West Middlesex, Pa., Sept. 9, 1887—. American politician and businessman. He served (1933–37) as governor of Kansas, and was Republican nominee (1936) for president of the U.S., losing to F. D. Roosevelt, who was campaigning for his second term, by 523 to 8 electoral votes, Landon winning only Maine and Vermont. He has long been an important figure in the Kansas petroleum industry.

Landon, Letitia Elizabeth. [Pseudonym, L. E. L.] b. at Chelsea, London, Aug. 14, 1802; d. at Cape Coast, Gold Coast, Africa, Oct. 15, 1838. English poet and novelist; married (June, 1838) George Maclean, governor of Cape Coast Castle (now Cape Coast). She was the author of poems (collected 1838; later editions 1850, 1873), and of the novels Romance and Reality (1831), Francesca Carrara (1834), Ethel Churchill (1837), and Lady Granard (1842).

Landor (lan'dǫr), Walter Savage. b. at Warwick, England, Jan. 30, 1775; d. at Florence, Sept. 17, 1864. English poet and prose writer. He entered Trinity College, Oxford, in 1793, became conspicuous for his advocacy of republican principles, and was rusticated (equivalent to suspension by an American college) in 1794 for firing a gun (without damage to anyone) at the windows of a Tory. He refused to return to college and for some years led an unsettled life, visiting Paris in 1802, and joining the Spaniards at La Coruña against the French in 1808. In 1809 he purchased Llanthony Abbey, in Monmouthshire, and in 1811 married Julia Thuillier, daughter of a banker. A combination of troubles drove him in 1814 to Jersey, then to Tours, and in 1815 to Italy. In 1821 he settled at Florence, where he resided until 1835, when, separating from his wife, he went to England. He returned to Florence in 1858. He published Poems (1795), Gebir (1798), Simonidea (1806; English and Latin poems), Count Julian (1812), Idyllia Heroica (1814, enlarged 1820), Imaginary Conversations (1824–48), The Citation and Examination of William Shakespeare . . . Touching Deer-stealing (1834), Pericles and Aspasia (1836), The Pentameron (1837), Andrea of Hungary (1839), Giovanna of Naples (1839), Fra Rupert (1840), Hellenics (1847, revised 1859), Poemata et Inscriptiones (Latin poems, 1847), Italics (1848), The Last Fruit off an Old Tree (1853), Dry Sticks Fagoted by W. S. Landor (1858), and Heroic Idylls (1863).

Land o' the Leal (land' ǫ ᴛʜę lēl'). In the folk literature of Scotland and the north of England, the land of happiness. Lady Carolina Nairne, in her poem of that name, used it for heaven, and the usage later became an accepted one.

Landouzy (läń.dō.zē), Louis Théophile Joseph. b. at Reims, France, March 27, 1845; d. at Paris, May 9 or 10, 1917. French physician. He described atrophy of the muscles of the face and of the scapulohumeral region (1885), infectious jaundice (1883), and neuralgia of the sciatic nerve with atrophy of the leg (1875; called Landouzy's sciatica). He stated (1879) deviation of the eyes in lesions of the brain and in spasticity, wrote a medical lexicography, and published a magnificent critical edition of Master Aldobrandino of Siena's Le Régime du corps.

Landowska (län.dôf'skä), Wanda. b. at Warsaw, Poland, July 5, 1877—. Polish pianist and harpsichordist, noted for her interpretation of keyboard music written before the era of romanticism. She was head (1912–19) of a harpsichord class created for her at the advanced music school at Berlin, and later founded a school of early-music study at Paris. She was largely responsible for the revival of interest in old instruments, especially in the harpsichord. Her compositions include songs, orchestral works, and piano selections.

Landowski (läń.dof.skē), Paul Maximilien. b. at Paris, June 1, 1875—. French sculptor. A pupil of Louis Ernest Barrias at the École des Beaux-Arts, Paris, he was a recipient (1900) of the Grand Prix de Rome. With Bouchard, he won the competition (1910) for the decoration of the monument to the Reformation at Geneva, Switzerland, which was completed in 1926. He served as director of the French Academy at Rome (1933–37) and of the École Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts at Paris (1937–42).

Landrecies (läń.drę.sē). [Also, Landrecy.] Town in N France, in the department of Nord, on the Sambre River ab. 17 mi. SE of Valenciennes. It was taken from the French by the emperor Charles V in 1543, passed several times from Spain to France and back again in the 17th century, and was besieged and taken by the Prussians in 1815. It was the birthplace of Joseph François Dupleix. 3,545 (1946).

Landreth (lan'drĕth), Olin Henry. b. at Addison, N.Y., July 21, 1852; d. Nov. 6, 1931. American civil engineer.

Landsberg (länts'berk). [Also, Landsberg am Lech (äm leċh).] Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Upper Bavaria, on the Lech River ab. 32 mi. SW of Munich: metallurgical, paper, and lumber industries. It is a picturesque old town, with two Gothic churches of the 14th and 15th centuries. Adolf Hitler wrote Mein Kampf while he was confined in the state prison here after his unsuccessful putsch in 1923. The prison was used as a concentration camp during the Nazi period. After 1945, Landsberg contained one of the largest D.P. camps in Bavaria. 11,733 (1950).

Landsberg or Landsberg an der Warthe (än dĕr vär'tę). German names of Gorzów Wielkopolski.

Landsberg, Otto. b. at Rybnik, Poland (in territory then part of Germany), Dec. 4, 1869—. German politician. He was a Social Democratic member (1912–18) of the Reichstag, a member (1919–20) of the Weimar constitutional assembly, German ambassador to Belgium (1920–24), and again served (1924–33) in the Reichstag. He went into exile in 1933, and settled in the Netherlands after 1945.

Landseer (land'sir, -syĕr), Charles. b. at London, 1799; d. there, July 22, 1879. English historical painter; elder brother of Sir Edwin Henry Landseer.

Landseer, Sir Edwin Henry. b. at London, March 7, 1802; d. there, Oct. 1, 1873. English animal painter; youngest son of John Landseer. He is best known as a painter, but his carved lions at the base of the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square, London, are the Landseer works which have probably been seen in the original by the greatest number of people. Among his more noted paintings are Fighting Dogs (1819), Cat's Paw (1824), Chevy Chase (1826), Return from Deerstalking (1827), Illicit Whiskey Still (1828), High Life and Low Life (1831), Jack in Office (1833), Sir Walter Scott and his Dogs (1833), Suspense (1840), Highland Shepherd's Chief Mourner (1837), Life's in the Old Dog Yet (1838), Dignity and Impudence (1839), Stag at Bay (1846), Monarch of the Glen (1851), Titania and Bottom (1851), and Flood in the Highlands (1860).

Landseer, John. b. at Lincoln, England, 1769; d. at London, Feb. 29, 1852. English painter, engraver, and writer on art; father of Thomas, Charles, and Sir Edwin Henry Landseer.

Landseer, Thomas. b. at London, 1795; d. there, Jan. 20, 1880. English engraver; eldest brother of Sir Edwin Henry Landseer. He executed many engravings and etchings after his brother's paintings.

Lands End or Land's End. [Ancient name, Belerium, Bolerium.] Granite promontory in SW England, in Cornwall. It is the southwesternmost extremity of England, terminating in a granite cliff. Height, ab. 60 ft.

Landshut (länts'höt). City in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Lower Bavaria, on the Isar River ab. 38 mi. NE of Munich. The center of a fertile grain-producing district, it has flour and lumber mills, bakeries and other foodstuff industries, a brewery, tobacco (snuff) manufactures, and metalworking, furniture, shoe, and textile factories. Above the city is Castle Trausnitz, started in 1180, enlarged in the 16th century. The Church of Saint Martin, erected in the period 1392–1432, is one of the more remarkable brick-Gothic church-buildings of Bavaria. Other churches date from the 15th and 17th centuries; Landshut was the seat of a university from 1800 to 1826. It received town privileges in 1279. The French under Napoleon defeated the Austrians led by Archduke Charles here in 1809. The population increase in the period 1939–46 was 39 percent. 45,281 (1945). 46,785 (1950).

Landskron (länts'krōn). German name of Lanškroun.

Landskrona (länts.krō'nä). City in S Sweden, in the län (county) of Malmohus, on the Öresund (The Sound), N of Malmö. A seaport, it has shipyards, chemical works, flour mills, and sugar refineries. It received town privileges in 1413. In 1677, the Swedes defeated the Danes near here in a naval engagement. 25,089 (1950).

Landsmaal (länsˊmôl). [Also, Landsmål.] Standard language of modern Norway, belonging to the Northern group of the Germanic subfamily of Indo-European languages. It is a composite standardization of all the spoken dialects of Norway, introduced during the 19th century by Ivar Aasen. It was intended to establish Norwegian proper as the national language as distinct from the former Rigsmaal, or Danish-Norwegian, spoken up to that time. Landsmaal is occasionally referred to as New Norwegian.

Landsteiner (land'stī"nĕr; German, länt'shtī"nĕr), Karl. b. at Vienna, June 14, 1868; d. at New York, June 26, 1943. American pathologist, internationally famous for his researches in immunology, bacteriology, and pathology. He was a member (1922–39) of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. He discovered that there were four main types of human blood, and that both donor and recipient in blood transfusions had to be of the same group. His work in immunology and serology was important in throwing light on resistance to disease and its mechanisms. With Alexander Wiener he discovered (1940) the Rh factor in blood. In 1930 he was awarded the Nobel prize for physiology and medicine.

Landsting or Landsthing (länsˊting). Upper house of the Danish Rigsdag or parliament. It consists of 76 members, of whom 19 (one quarter of the whole) are elected by the former Landsting on the basis of proportional representation. The others (except for one member elected in the Faeroe Islands) are chosen indirectly by Folketing voters of 35 years of age or over in each of the six Landsting districts in the country. All members of the Landsting serve an eight-year term.

Landstuhl (länt'shtōl). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhenish Palatinate, Bavaria, ab. 40 mi. W of Speyer: metal, knitwear, and ceramics manufactures. 6,281 (1947).

Landus (lan'dus). [Also, Lando (län'dō).] b. in Sabina, near Rome; d. in February, 914. Pope from 913 to 914. Nothing is known of his brief reign save that he was a worthy man, and granted a privilege to a church in Sabina.

Lane (lān), Edward William. b. at Hereford, England, Sept. 17, 1801; d. at Worthing, England, Aug. 10, 1876. English Orientalist and Egyptologist; brother of Sophia Lane. His works include An Account of the Manners and Customs of the Modern Egyptians (1836; fullest ed., 1860), a translation, with valuable notes, of the Arabian Nights (1838–40), an Arabic-English Lexicon (5 parts, 1863–74; and, under the editorship of S. Lane-Poole, 3 additional parts, 1877–92).

Lane, Franklin Knight. b. in Prince Edward Island, Canada, July 15, 1864; d. at Rochester, Minn., May 18, 1921. American lawyer and administrator, secretary of the interior (1913–20) under Wilson. He was corporation counsel for San Francisco (1897–1902), Democratic candidate for governor of California in 1902, and a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission (1905–13). As secretary of the interior, he promoted the development of Alaska, advocated conservation and improved irrigation methods, and sponsored greater independence for the Indians.

Lane, George Martin. b. at Charlestown, Mass., Dec. 24, 1823; d. June 30, 1897. American classical scholar and teacher. He became (1851) university professor of Latin at Harvard, where from 1869 to 1894 he served as Pope professor of Latin. His works include Latin Pronunciation (1871) and Latin Grammar for Schools and Colleges (1898).

Lane, Henry Smith. b. near Sharpsburg, Ky., Feb. 24, 1811; d. June 18, 1881. American politician. An anti-slavery Whig who took a moderate stand on the issue, he was chosen (1859) by the Republicans as U.S. senator from Indiana, but was refused his seat by the Democratic majority in the Senate. He was elected (1860) governor of Indiana, but resigned two days after his election to become a U.S. senator, serving in that post until 1867. He was appointed (1869) special Indian commissioner.

Lane, James Henry. b. at Lawrenceburg, Ind., June 22, 1814; committed suicide at Leavenworth, Kan., July 11, 1866. American politician, a leader of the Free-State party in Kansas. He was a Democratic member of Congress (1853–55) from Indiana, but after he voted for the Kansas-Nebraska bill he realized that his political future lay elsewhere and migrated (1855) to Kansas. There he threw himself, as an antislavery man, into the struggle over slavery that was then the single burning issue in the territory. In 1856 he was elected to the Senate under the Topeka constitution, but since that document was not recognized by the federal government he was not seated. He spent the next years recruiting troops for the intrastate wars and fighting in the battles. His party was in control when Kansas was admitted (1861) to the Union, and Lane went to the Senate. He was one of Lincoln's strong supporters, fought in the border battles against Missouri troops, and served as recruiting officer in Kansas. His support of Johnson's reconstruction program brought him under attack at home and he committed suicide in a fit of despondency.

Lane, John. b. at West Putford, North Devon, England, 1854; d. Feb. 2, 1925. English publisher. After some years as a London clerk he founded (1887) with Elkin Mathews (who withdrew in 1894) the Bodley Head publishing firm. He founded (1894) the Yellow Book, an illustrated quarterly that featured the work of Aubrey Beardsley and Max Beerbohm among others.

Lane, Joseph. b. in North Carolina, Dec. 14, 1801; d. there, April 19, 1881. American politician and general, unsuccessful candidate for the vice-presidency on the Breckenridge ticket in 1860. He served (1849–50) as governor of Oregon Territory, was its delegate to Congress (1851–59), and became senator (1859) when Oregon was admitted to the Union. He was in the Senate until 1861.

Lane, Margaret. b. June 23, 1907—. English journalist, biographer, and novelist. Her books include Faith, Hope, No Charity (1935), At Last the Island (1937), Walk into My Parlor (1941), Where Helen Lies (1944), and biographies of her father-in-law, Edgar Wallace (1938), and Beatrix Potter (1946).

Lane, Sir Ralph. d. at Dublin, in October, 1603. English adventurer, a companion of Sir Richard Grenville in his expedition to the coast of North America in 1585. He was the first (and only) governor of the unsuccessful colony founded in Virginia at that time. The settlers soon removed to Roanoke, and were all taken back to England by Drake, in July, 1586.

Lane, Ralph Norman Angell. Original name of Angell, Sir Norman.

Lane, Rose. [Maiden name, Wilder.] b. at De Smet, S.D., Dec. 5, 1887—. American writer. Her books include Diverging Roads (1919), He Was a Man (1925), Hill Billy (1926), Cindy (1928), Let the Hurricane Roar (1933), Give Me Liberty (1936), Free Land (1938), and The Discovery of Freedom (1943). With Frederick O'Brien, she wrote (1919) White Shadows in the South Seas.

Lane, Sophia. [Married name, Poole.] b. at Hereford, England, Jan. 16, 1804; d. at London, May 6, 1891. English traveler and author; sister of Edward William Lane. She married (1829) Edward Richard Poole, and was the mother of Edward Stanley Poole and Reginald Stuart Poole. With her sons and her brother she lived and traveled (July, 1842–October, 1849) in Egypt; the product of this period of observation and study was the work by which she is known, The Englishwoman in Egypt (3 vols., 1844–46). With her son Reginald she was co-author of the descriptive text of Frith's Photographic Views of Egypt, Sinai, and Palestine (1860–61).

Lane, William. b. at Bristol, England, Sept. 6, 1861; d. at Auckland, New Zealand, Aug. 26, 1917. Australian labor leader and journalist, probably the most effective journalist Australian labor has ever had. He subsequently visited England, and then went to New Zealand where, eventually, he became editor of the highly conservative New Zealand Herald.

Lane, Sir William Arbuthnot. b. at Fort George, Scotland, July 4, 1856; d. at London, Jan. 16, 1943. British surgeon, notable for pioneer work in plastic surgery. He was also known for operative treatment of fractures, cleft palate, and intestinal obstruction. Author of New Health for Everyman (1932).

Lane, William Coolidge. b. at Newton, Mass., July 29, 1859; d. March 18, 1931. American librarian. He was librarian (1898–1928) at Harvard.

Lane-Poole (lān'pōl'), Stanley. b. at London, Dec. 18, 1854; d. Dec. 29, 1931. English numismatist; grandson of Sophia Lane. He wrote the official Catalogue of the Oriental and Indian Coins for the British Museum. It appeared in 14 volumes in 1875–92. On the death of his great-uncle Edward William Lane in 1876, he continued the latter's Arabic lexicon, the last part appearing in 1887. Among his other works are Egypt (1881), Studies in a Mosque (1883), The Art of the Saracens in Egypt (1886), and Life of the Right Hon. Stratford Canning, Viscount de Redcliffe (1888).

Lanessan (là.ne.sän), Jean Marie Antoine de. b. at St.-André-de-Cubzac, Gironde, France, July 13, 1843; d. at Écouen, Seine-et-Oise, France, Nov. 7, 1919. French political leader, physician, and biologist, who as naval minister (1900 et seq.) supervised expansion of the French fleet. He served (1891–94) as governor general of Indochina, was naval minister in the Waldeck-Rousseau cabinet, and held the post of political director of the newspaper Le Siècle.

Lanett (la.net'). City in E Alabama, in Chambers County, on the Chattahoochee River ab. 75 mi. NE of Montgomery: cotton-textile industry. 7,434 (1950).

Lanfranc (lan'frangk). b. at Pavia, Italy, c1005; d. at Canterbury, England, May 24, 1089. Lombard prelate and scholar, archbishop of Canterbury (1070–89). He emigrated from Italy and established (c1039) a school at Avranches, France, entered the monastery of Bec in 1042, and became (c1045) its prior. He contended against his friend and former teacher Bérenger of Tours on the doctrine of transubstantiation, and succeeded in having his position maintained by Hildebrand and other influential churchmen. He opposed the marriage of William of Normandy (who was later to become William I of England) and Matilda, William's cousin, but regained the friendship of William (c1053) and obtained papal approval of the match. He was installed as abbot of Caen in 1066, and was called to England to become archbishop of Canterbury in 1070, after Archbishop Stigand had been deposed. As the chief counselor of William the Conqueror, he played an important part in English ecclesiastical and civil affairs. He replaced many of the native prelates with Norman churchmen. A controversy with the archbishop of York over the supremacy of the see of Canterbury was settled in Lanfranc's favor, and his use of forgeries to win his victory may be justified, from the standpoint of contemporary political necessity, in that it preserved the English church from a split in authority. He supported William II as successor to William I and crowned him (1087). He wrote De corpore et sanguine Domini and others.

Lanfrey (läṅ.frā), Pierre. b. at Chambéry, France, Oct. 26, 1828; d. at Pau, France, Nov. 15, 1877. French historian and politician. He published Histoire de Napoléon I (1867–75), a reëxamination of the history of the emperor in an attempt to destroy the legends that had grown up about him, and L'Église et les philosophes au XVIIIe siècle (1855).

Lang (lang), Andrew. b. at Selkirk, Scotland, March 31, 1844; d. at Banchory, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, July 20, 1912. Scottish poet, biographer, editor, essayist, and folklorist. A prolific writer in a variety of literary forms, he was the author of Ballads and Lyrics of Old France (1872), XXII Ballades in Blue China (1880), Helen of Troy (1882), and Grass of Parnassus (1888), poetry; The Mark of Cain (1884), A Monk of Fife (1896), and The Valet's Tragedy (1906), novels; J. G. Lockhart (1896), Prince Charles Edward (1900) John Knox and the Reformation (1906), Maid of France (1908), Sir George Mackenzie (1909), and Sir Walter Scott (1910), biography; Pickle the Spy (1897), The Companion of Pickle (1898), Scotland from the Roman Occupation to the Suppression of the Last Jacobite Uprising (1900), Mystery of Mary Stuart (1901), The Portraits and Jewels of Mary Stuart (1906), and History of English Literature (1912), political and literary history; Homer and the Epic (1893), Homer and His Age (1908), and The World of Homer (1910), criticism. He translated the Odyssey (1879, with S. H. Butcher) and the Iliad (with E. Myers and W. Leaf, 1883), both conservative prose versions. He edited Poe, the brothers Grimm, Scott, Burns, Dickens, the Compleat Angler of Walton, and a series of well-known and still popular fairy books beginning with The Blue Fairy Book (1889), followed by others published annually at Christmas between 1890 and 1910. A founder of the Society for Psychical Research, he was also interested in mythology and religion, and wrote authoritative works on Custom and Myth (1884), Myth, Ritual, and Religion and Modern Mythology (both 1887), The Making of Religion (1891), The Book of Dreams and Ghosts (1897), and Magic and Religion (1901). He was an opponent of the school of comparative mythology led by Max Müller and maintained the connection between custom and folklore and literary myth.

Lang (läng), Anton. b. at Oberammergau, Bavaria, Germany, 1875; d. there, 1938. German actor who played Christus in 1900, 1910, and 1922 in the traditional Oberammergau Passion Play that has been performed every ten years, as a rule, in the Bavarian town of Oberammergau since 1662.

Lang (lang), Benjamin Johnson. b. at Salem, Mass., Dec. 28, 1837; d. at Boston, April 3, 1909. American instrumentalist, composer, and conductor. Among his works are the oratorio David, symphonies, chamber works, religious music, songs, and piano pieces.

Lang, Cosmo Gordon. [Title, 1st Baron Lang of Lambeth.] b. at Aberdeen, Scotland, Oct. 31, 1864; d. 1945. Prelate of the Church of England. Ordained to the Anglican priesthood in 1890, he held a curacy at Leeds until 1893, and was subsequently dean of divinity at Magdalen College, Oxford, vicar of the university church of Saint Mary's, and vicar of Portsea, before becoming suffragan bishop of Stepney (London), and a canon of Saint Paul's Cathedral in 1901. In 1908 he was named archbishop of York, and in 1928 became archbishop of Canterbury. He was noted for his efforts toward amelioration of the deplorable living conditions of workers both at London and in other English industrial cities. As a member of the House of Lords he played a large part in securing the approval of that House for the revision of the Book of Common Prayer, a measure which failed in the House of Commons in 1927 and 1928. In the constitutional crisis of 1936, precipitated by the determination of Edward VIII to marry an American divorcée, Lang had much to do with bringing about the monarch's abdication, and in 1937 he officiated at the coronation of George VI. He retired from his archiepiscopal office in 1942, and in the same year was created 1st Baron Lang of Lambeth. He had been a privy councilor since 1910, and lord high almoner for the crown since 1933. In 1918 he visited the U.S. He was the author of The Miracles of Jesus, as Marks of the Way of Life (1900), The Parables of Jesus (1906), and The Opportunity of the Church of England (1906).

Lang (läng), Josephine. b. at Munich, March 14, 1815; d. at Tübingen, Germany, Dec. 2, 1880. German song composer.

Lang (lang), Margaret Ruthven. b. at Boston, Nov. 27, 1867—. American composer; daughter of Benjamin Johnson Lang. Among her compositions are Witichis (1893), an overture, and The Heavenly Noel, a choral selection. She also composed piano works, some 200 songs, and various orchestral works.

Langasuka (läng.gä.sö'ka). Ancient Chinese name for Kedah, a state in N Malaya with which the Chinese empire was in touch from the 6th century on and which at one time extended across the peninsula and controlled China's southernmost land route to India.

Langbaine (lang'bān), Gerard. b. at Barton, Westmorland, England, 1609; d. at Oxford, England, Feb. 10, 1658. English scholar.

Langbaine, Gerard. b. at Oxford, England, July 15, 1656; d. there, June 23, 1692. English critic and student of dramatic literature, noted as an enemy of Dryden; son of Gerard Langbaine (1609–58). He wrote Momus Triumphans, or the Plagiaries of the English Stage Exposed (1687, reissued as A New Catalogue of English Plays, 1688), and An Account of the English Dramatic Poets (1691).

Langdale (lang'dāl). Unincorporated community in E Alabama, in Chambers County, on the Chattahoochee River at the Alabama-Georgia border: manufactures of cotton textiles. 2,721 (1950).

Langdale, Baron. Title of Bickersteth, Henry.

Langdell (lang'del), Christopher Columbus. b. at New Boston, N.H., May 22, 1826; d. July 6, 1906. American lawyer, teacher, and writer, noted for his introduction at Harvard of the case method of teaching law. He became (1870) Dane professor at the Harvard Law School, of which he later (1870–95) was dean. He remodeled the curriculum and teaching methods, introducing a more systematic approach in legal instruction.

Langdon (lang'don), John. b. at Portsmouth, N.H., June 26, 1741; d. there, Sept. 18, 1819. American Revolutionary leader, merchant, and legislator. A prominent merchant at Portsmouth, N.H., he participated in the removal (1774) of munitions from the British fort at that town. He served (1775, 1777 et seq.) as speaker of the New Hampshire legislature and as agent (1776 et seq.) for Continental prizes in the state. He saw military service at Saratoga and in the Rhode Island campaign and was head (1785 et seq.) of the New Hampshire government. After serving (1789–1801) in the U.S. Senate, he being its first president pro tem, he became active in Republican politics in New Hampshire. Except for the election of 1809, he was a successful candidate for the governorship from 1805 until 1811.

Langdon, Samuel. b. at Boston, Jan. 12, 1723; d. Nov. 29, 1797. American Congregational clergyman, president (1774–80) of Harvard College. He was a member (1788) of the state convention for ratification of the federal constitution.

Langdon, Stephen Herbert. b. at Monroe, Mich., May 8, 1876; d. at Oxford, England, May 19, 1937. American Assyriologist. He was Shillito professor (1908) of Assyriology at Oxford University, and director (1923–32) of the Oxford and Field Museum expedition in Mesopotamia. His publications on Babylonian texts include Babylonia and Palestine (1906), Babylonian Liturgies (1912), and Semitic Mythology (1931).

Langdon-Davies (-dā'vis, -vēz), John. b. 1897—. English journalist and writer. He was a war correspondent in Spain (1937–38), and during the Russo-Finnish War (1940). Author of A Short History of Women (1928), Man and His Universe (1930), Inside the Atom (1934), A Short History of the Future (1936), Behind the Spanish Barricades (1937), British Achievement in the Art of Healing (1946), and other books.

Langdon Hills. See under Billericay.

Lange (läng'e, lang'ē), Alexis Frederick. b. in Lafayette County, Mo., April 23, 1862; d. Aug. 28, 1924. American educator. He served (1913–22) as the first director of the school of education at the University of California, and as its dean beginning in 1922.

Lange (läng'e), Carl George. b. at Vordingborg, Denmark, Dec. 14, 1834; d. at Copenhagen, May 29, 1900. Danish physician and psychologist, a specialist in organic nervous conditions. He described (1872) a variety of diseases with meningitis-like symptoms which he separated from chronic spinal meningitis representing syphilitic meningeal involvement. He enunciated, independently of but at the same time as William James, the theory known as the James-Lange theory of emotion, which holds that emotion is the result of and not the cause of specific body reactions; he is said to have abandoned this theory later. Author of The Emotions (1922).

Lange, Christian Louis. b. at Stavanger, Norway, Sept. 17, 1869; d. at Oslo, Dec. 11, 1938. Norwegian pacifist and historian, winner (1921) of the Nobel peace prize (with K. H. Branting). He served (1909 et seq.) as secretary general to the International Parliamentary Union, and represented (1920 et seq.) Norway at the League of Nations. Author of Histoire de l'internationalisme (1919), L'Union interparlementaire (1921), and many others.

Lange, Friedrich Albert. b. at Wald, near Solingen, Germany, Sept. 28, 1828; d. at Marburg, Germany, Nov. 21, 1875. German writer on philosophy and economics. A neo-Kantian, he rejected the possibility of knowledge of ideal truth, maintaining that only subjective materialistic knowledge is possible. His principal work is Geschichte des Materialismus und Kritik seiner Bedeutung in der Gegenwart (1866).

Lange, Helene. b. at Oldenburg, Germany, 1848; d. at Hamburg, Germany, May 13, 1930. German feminist. A worker for the legal, social, and educational advancement of women, she founded (1889) at Berlin the first German school to give university preparation for women and in 1895 launched a feminist monthly, Die Frau. She became (1908) a member of the Fortschrittliche Volkspartei (Progressive Party), and presided over the constitutional assembly of the state of Hamburg in 1919. Her chief works are Handbuch der Frauenbewegung (with Gertrud Bäumer), Lebenserinnerungen (1925), and Kampfzeiten (1928).

Lange, Johann Peter. b. at Sonnborn, near Elberfeld, Germany, April 10, 1802; d. at Bonn, Germany, July 9, 1884. German Protestant theologian.

Lange, Karl Ernst Philipp. [Pseudonym, Galen.] b. at Potsdam, Germany, Dec. 21, 1813; d. there, Feb. 20, 1899. German physician and popular novelist, who drew largely on his personal experiences for his stories. Among these are Der Inselkönig (1852), Der Irre von St. James (1854), Walther Lund. Aus dem Leben eines Schriftstellers (1855), and Nach zwanzig Jahren (1864).

Lange, Ludwig. b. at Hanover, Germany, March 4, 1825; d. at Leipzig, Germany, Aug. 18, 1885. German archaeologist. Author of Handbuch der römischen Altertümer (1856–71) and others.

Lange, Oscar. b. 1904—. Polish economist. He was a member of the Polish Socialist Party until 1934, was expelled from its ranks for his communistic leanings, and became (1943) the spokesman in the U.S. of the Russian-sponsored Union of Polish Patriots at Moscow. He gave up his American citizenship to become ambassador in Washington of the Warsaw regime (1945) and its representative in the United Nations Security Council (1946–47). Recalled to Poland, he was elected to the Polish parliament and appointed chairman of the central association of coöperatives. His works include On the Economic Theory of Socialism (1938), Price Flexibility and Employment (1944), and The Problem of Franco Spain (1946).

Lange, Samuel Gotthold. b. at Halle, Germany, March 22, 1711; d. at Laubingen, Germany, June 25, 1781. German poet and pastor. As a student he wrote with his friend J. I. Pyra Thirsis und Damons freundliche Lieder (1845) in unrhymed classical meters, thus starting a fashion which Klopstock followed. Lange called his poems in praise of Frederick the Great Horazische Oden (1747) and dedicated to that ruler his translation of Horace (1752). It was this faulty translation which Lessing criticized and which, when Lange answered contemptuously, called forth Lessing's scathing Vademecum für Herrn Samuel Gotthold Lange (1754).

Lange, Sven. b. at Copenhagen, June 22, 1868; d. there, Jan. 6, 1930. Danish author and critic. His early years were partly spent abroad, and included two years as editor of the German Simplicissimus (1896–98). He is noted for such realistic social studies of his contemporaries as Hjertets Gerninger (Deeds of the Heart, 1901).

Langeais (läⁿ.zhe). Town in W central France, in the department of Indre-et-Loire, on the N bank of the Loire River ab. 15 mi. W of Tours. It has a noted 15th-century chateau, where Charles VIII and Anne of Brittany were married in 1491. Pop. 3,511 (1946).

Langeland (läng'ə.län). Island of Denmark, SE of Fyn and W of Lolland. It belongs to the amt (county) of Svendborg. Chief town, Rudkøbing; area, ab. 110 sq. mi.; pop. 20,354 (1945).

Langenbeck (läng'ən.bek), Konrad Johann Martin. b. at Horneburg, Germany, Dec. 5, 1776; d. at Göttingen, Germany, Jan. 24, 1851. German anatomist and surgeon.

Langenbeck, Kurt. b. at Elberfeld, Germany, June 20, 1906—. German playwright. He has sought in his works to bring about a renewal of the classical tradition of the historical tragedy (Alexander, 1934; Heinrich VI., 1936; Der Hochverräter, 1938).

Langenberg (läng'ən.berk). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, ab. 29 mi. NE of Cologne; machinery, rubber, and paper industries; also ceramics and textile manufactures. 14,796 (1950).

Langenbielau (läng'ən.bē'lou). A German name of Bielawa.

Langendijk (läng'ən.dīk), Pieter. b. at Haarlem, Netherlands, 1683; d. there, 1756. Dutch dramatist and poet. He wrote the comedies Don Quichot (Don Quixote, 1711); De Zwetser (The Braggart) and Het wederzijds Huwelyks Bedrog (The Mutual Marriage Deception), both in 1712; Krelis Louwen and De Wiskonstenaars (The Mathematicians), both in 1715; De Windhandelaars and Arlequijn Actionist, both in 1720; Xantippe and Papirius; and, finally, the comedy not quite completed at his death, Spieghel der vaderlandsche Kooplieden (A Mirror of our Merchants).

Langeness (läng'ə.nes). Island in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, in the Wattenmeer, a shallow part of the North Sea, S of the island of Föhr. Area, ab. 3 sq. mi.; pop. 396 (1947).

Langenfeld (läng'ən.felt). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, ab. 5 mi. SE of Düsseldorf. It has metalworking, chemical, paper, and foodstuff industries. 23,215 (1950).

Langenhoven (läng'ən.hō.fən), C. J. b. 1873; d. 1932. South African poet, essayist, and senator. His first works are collected in Ons weg deur die Wêreld (Our Way through the World, 3 vols., 1914). Eerste skoffies op die Pad van Suid-Africa (Hoeing South Africa's Path, 1921) is a lyric-verse epic in 14 songs. Aan stille Waters (On Still Waters) was published in 1930. Popular essays are included in Ligte Leek-Prekies en Fantasieë (Light Layman's Sermons and Fantasies, 1921–33). Among his books of short stories is Sonde met die Bure (Sins with the Neighbors). He was also the author of a Biblical novel, Skaduwees van Nasaret (Shadows of Nazareth, 1927).

Langensalza (läng.ən.zäl'tsä). Town in C Germany, in the Land (state) of Thuringia, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Saxony, Prussia, on the Salza River ab. 19 mi. NW of Erfurt, in a market-gardening district: a health resort, with sulfurous thermal springs. Before World War II it had stone quarries, and textile and leather industries. It belonged successively to the archbishop of Mainz, the landgraves of Thuringia, and the house of Wettin, and passed to Prussia in 1815. The Hanoverian army was forced to surrender to the Prussians here on June 29, 1866. Pop. 16,013 (1946).

Langenschwalbach (läng.ən.shväl'bäch). [Also, Bad Schwalbach.] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hessen, American Zone, formerly in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, in the Taunus Mountains ab. 8 mi. NW of Wiesbaden: a health resort, with mineral springs. There are small industries. 4,982 (1946).

Langensee (läng'ən.zā). German name of Maggiore, Lago.

Langenthal (läng'ən.täl). Town in Switzerland, in the canton of Bern: textile, machinery, and tobacco industries; also a trading center for cheese and timber. 8,036 (1941).

Langeoog (läng'ə.ōk). Island in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, in the North Sea N of Aurich. Length, ab. 9 mi.; area, ab. 8 sq. mi.; pop. 746 (1947).

Langer (lang'ər), William. b. at Everest, Cass County, N.D., Sept. 30, 1886—. American politician. He was chosen attorney general of North Dakota, with the backing of the Nonpartisan League, in 1916. A member of the Republican Party, he was active in unsuccessful efforts to secure the nomination of Robert M. LaFollette as that party's presidential candidate in 1908 and 1912, and in 1924 stepped over the party line to support LaFollette on the Progressive Party ticket. After an unsuccessful bid for the Republican nomination to the governorship of North Dakota in 1920, he was out of public office for several years, but became governor in 1933, only to be removed in July, 1934, by the state supreme court, for allegedly soliciting political contributions from federal employees in violation of federal law. In 1935 the decision was reversed, and in 1936 Langer was again elected governor. In 1940 he was elected to the U.S. Senate, and was seated after that body rejected charges filed against him by certain citizens of his state.

Langevin (läṅzh.vaṅ), Sir Hector Louis. b. Aug. 25, 1826; d. June 11, 1906. Canadian minister of public works (1869–73, 1879–91). He was one of the principal proponents of the plan of confederation of Upper and Lower Canada carried through in 1867.

Langevin, Paul. b. at Paris, Jan. 23, 1872; d. there, Dec. 18, 1946. French physicist. He was known for his researches in x-rays, magnetism, and the theory of relativity.

Langey (läṅ.zhā), Guillaume du Bellay, Seigneur de. b. at Château de Glatigny, France, 1491; d. near Lyons, France, 1543. French general and diplomat.

Langfeld (lang'feld), Herbert Sidney. b. at Philadelphia, July 24, 1879—. American psychologist. Author of On the Psychophysiology of a Prolonged Fast (1914), The Aesthetic Attitude (1920), and other works; coauthor of A Manual of Psychological Experiments (1937) and other books.

Langgo (läng'gō). See Lango.

Langham (lang'ạm), Simon. d. July 22, 1376. English prelate, abbot of Westminster in 1349, treasurer of England in 1360, bishop of Ely in 1362, chancellor of England (1363–66), archbishop of Canterbury in 1366 (enthroned March 25, 1367), and cardinal in 1368. He resigned his archbishopric Nov. 27, 1368, and went to the papal court at Avignon in 1369. He filled a number of important places in England and in the papal service, was made cardinal-bishop of Preneste in 1373, and in 1374 was again chosen archbishop of Canterbury, but the Pope refused to confirm the election.

Langholm (lang'hōlm). Police burgh in S Scotland, in Dumfriesshire, on the river Esk, ab. 320 mi. N of London by rail. It has manufactures of tweeds and leather. The ruins of Langholm Castle are nearby. 2,372 (est. 1948).

Langhorne (lang'hôrn), John. b. at Winton, Westmorland, England, in March, 1735; d. at Blagdon, Somersetshire, England, April 1, 1779. English poet and prose writer. He is best known for his translation of Plutarch's Lives (1770), in collaboration with his brother. His poetical works were collected and published by his son in 1804.

Langhorne, Nancy Witcher. Maiden name of Astor, Viscountess.

Langhorne, Sir William. b. at London, 1629; d. at Charlton, Kent, England, Feb. 26, 1715. English merchant, governor of Madras (1670–77).

Langiewicz (läng.gye'vēch), Maryan. b. at Krotoszyn, Poland, Aug. 5, 1827; d. at Constantinople, May 11, 1887. Polish revolutionist, insurgent leader, and dictator in 1863. He fled to Austria after the rebellion was crushed, was imprisoned until 1865, and eventually took service in the Turkish army.

Langland (lang'lạnd) or Langley (lang'li), William. b. probably in S Shropshire, England, c1332; d. c1400. English poet, supposed author of The Vision of William concerning Piers the Plowman, and probably of a poem entitled by Skeat Richard the Redeless. Of his life very little is known; the name itself of the author is a conjecture. From passages in his poems it appears that his early years were spent in the western midland counties of England (Worcestershire, Shropshire); that he received a considerable education, and probably took minor orders; that he was married and had a daughter; that he lived as a mendicant singer; and that most of his later life was spent at London, where he lived in Cornhill.

Langlès (läṅ.gles), Louis Mathieu. b. at Perenne, near St.-Didier, France, Aug. 23, 1763; d. Jan. 28, 1824. French Orientalist. Author of Instituts politiques et militaires de Tamerlan, écrits par lui-même, en Mongol (1787) and Alphabet Tartare-Mandchou (1787).

Langley (lang'li). Unincorporated community in W South Carolina, in Aiken County; textile industry. Pop., including the adjoining community of Bath, 3,696 (1950).

Langley, Edmund de. [Title, 1st Duke of York.] b. at King's Langley, Hertfordshire, England, June 5, 1341; d. Aug. 1, 1402. Fifth son of Edward III of England, by Philippa of Hainault, created 1st Duke of York on Aug. 6, 1385. He became a member of the council of regency on the accession of Richard II, went in July, 1381, at the head of an expedition to aid the Portuguese against the king of Castile, returning in 1382, and was regent (1394–96) during the absence of the king. Through his second son, Richard, Earl of Cambridge, he was great-grandfather of Edward IV. The Yorkists in the civil strife known as the Wars of the Roses were called after him and his descendants, though their claim to the English throne came through the marriage of his second son, Richard, Earl of Cambridge (d. 1415), to Anne, daughter of Roger Mortimer and great-granddaughter of Lionel of Clarence, third son of Edward III. (The Lancastrians made their claim through John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, fourth son of Edward III.) In the person of Richard, 3rd Duke of York, the son of the Earl of Cambridge and Anne Mortimer, the lines of the third and fifth sons of Edward III were merged.

Langley, Samuel Pierpont. b. at Roxbury, Boston, Aug. 22, 1834; d. at Aiken, S.C., Feb. 27, 1906. American scientist. He became professor of astronomy in the Western University of Pennsylvania, at Pittsburgh, in 1867, and in 1887 was appointed secretary of the Smithsonian Institution. He published Researches on Solar Heat and its Absorption by the Earth's Atmosphere (1884) and The New Astronomy (1887). He was later engaged in experiments to demonstrate the possibility of mechanical flight, and as a result of these published Experiments in Aerodynamics (1891) and The Internal Work of the Wind (1894). He was the first to build a heavier-than-air flying machine which, supported and propelled by its own engine (but, unlike the Wright brothers' machine, not manned), made an independent flight on May 6, 1896.

Langlois (läṅ.glwà), Charles Victor. b. at Rouen, France, May 26, 1863; d. at Paris, 1929. French author of treatises on medieval French history. Author of Les Archives de l'histoire de France (The Archives of French History, 1893), and La Vie en France au moyen âge (Life in France in Medieval Times, 1908).

Langlois, Hippolyte. b. at Besançon, France, Aug. 3, 1839; d. at Paris, Feb. 11, 1912. French army commander.

Langlois, Jean Charles. b. July 22, 1789; d. March 24, 1870. French painter of battle scenes. He painted several panoramas, including The Battle of Navarino, Burning of Moscow, and Capture of the Malakoff.

Langlois de Motteville (dę mot.vēl), Madame. See Motteville, Madame Langlois de.

Langmann (läng'män), Philipp. b. at Brünn, Austria (now Brno, Czechoslovakia), Feb. 5, 1862; d. at Vienna, 1931. Austrian writer, one of the initiators of the proletarian drama and a novelist whose work encompassed a great variety of themes.

Langmuir (lang'mūr), Irving. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Jan. 31, 1881—. American chemist. He was associated with the General Electric Company Research Laboratory, Schenectady, N.Y., as research chemist (1909 et seq.) and research director (1932–50). He developed a gas-filled tungsten electric lamp, an electron discharge apparatus, a high-vacuum pump, and an atomic-hydrogen welding process. Working on an idea developed by Gilbert N. Lewis, he postulated a theory (the Lewis-Langmuir atomic theory) of atomic structure and thus explained many chemical phenomena. His work on monomolecular surface films resulted in important advances in the study of microörganisms. For this he was awarded the 1932 Nobel prize in chemistry.

Langnau (läng'nou). [Official name, Langnau im Emmental (im em'en.tal).] Town in W Switzerland, in the canton of Bern, the chief town in the Emmen Valley, on the Ilfis and Emme rivers; export center for Emmenthaler cheese. Elevation, ab. 2,260 ft.; pop. 8,726 (1941).

Lango (läng'gō). [Also: Atero, Bakedi, Miro, Langgo.] Nilotic-speaking people of E Africa, inhabiting a region in N central and N Uganda. Their population is estimated at ab. 275,000 (by M. A. Bryan, Distribution of Nilotic and Nilo-Hamitic Languages of Africa, 1948). They are not to be confused with the Teso, also known as Bakedi, a Bantu name for Nilotic peoples, nor with the Lango of S Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, who resemble the Lokuto in language and culture. They are divided into a number of independent villages, and they have exogamous patrilineal clans. They practice hoe agriculture and herding, with the cattle complex, and their principal food is millet.

Langobardi (lang.gō.bär'dī). Ancient people of northern Germany, first mentioned by Strabo; the Lombards. At the time of Tacitus they were situated south of the lower Elbe River, and according to him were a division of the Suevi. They were few in number, but violent and warlike. In the period 568–572, under Alboin, they conquered the part of northern Italy still called Lombardy, and founded the kingdom of that name.

Langon (läṅ.gôṅ). [Latin, Alingo.] Town in SW France, in the department of Gironde, on the Garonne River ab. 24 mi. SE of Bordeaux. It is a river port and a trade center. 5,177 (1946).

Langreo (läng.grā'ō). Commune, comprising 13 parishes, in NW Spain, in the province of Oviedo, ab. 15 mi. SE of Oviedo. The largest places are the market villages of La Felguera and Sama. It has a grain, hemp, and fruit trade, and important iron and coal mines. 49,140 (1950).

Langres (läṅgr). [Ancient names, Andematunnum, Lingones.] Town in E France, in the department of Haute-Marne, on a high plateau overlooking the Marne River, S of Chaumont. The town is surrounded by medieval ramparts. The 12th-century Cathedral of Saint Mammès and the 13th-century Church of Saint Martin are remarkable buildings in the Romanesque and early Gothic styles. The town is a trade center and has a cutlery industry. Part of the town suffered damage in World War II. 7,208 (1946).

Langres Plateau. Tableland in E France, around Langres. It lies on the watershed between the Saône and Marne rivers.

Langside (lang'sīd). Burgh ward of Glasgow, in S Scotland, in the S portion of the city. Langside was formerly a village where, on May 13, 1568, the troops of the regent Murray defeated the troops of Mary, Queen of Scots, after which the queen fled to England. 17,980 (1931).

Langsnek (langz'nek'). See Laing's Neck.

Langson (lang'son'). Town in Indochina, SE Asia, in Tonkin (North Viet-Nam) near the Chinese border, ab. 80 mi. NE of Hanoi.

Langstein (läng'shtīn), Leopold. b. at Vienna, April 13, 1867; d. at Berlin, June 7, 1933. German pediatrician, known for his studies in child welfare and of metabolism and nutrition in childhood.

Langston (lang'stọn), John Mercer. b. in Louisa County, Va., Dec. 14, 1829; d. Nov. 15, 1897. American lawyer, educator, and diplomat. The son of a slave and a plantation owner who gave him his freedom, he received degrees (1849, 1853) from Oberlin College. He studied law privately and was admitted (1854) to the bar in Ohio. Elected (1855) clerk of Brownhelm, Ohio, township, he may have been the first Negro so chosen for public office in the U.S. During the Civil War he was active in raising Negro regiments, and he was named (1868) inspector general of the Freedman's Bureau. He subsequently became professor of law at Howard University, served as its dean from 1869 to 1876, and was its vice-president and acting president (1872). He founded the law department at Howard University. He was appointed (1877) minister-resident to Haiti and chargé d'affaires to Santo Domingo (later Dominican Republic), and was a member of the diplomatic service until 1885. He later became president of the Virginia Normal and Collegiate Institute at Petersburg, Va., and became (1890) a member of Congress. Author of Freedom and Citizenship (1883) and From the Virginia Plantation to the National Capital (1894).

Langstone Harbour (lang'stọn). Small bay in S England, in Hampshire, immediately E of Portsmouth. The entrance is very narrow. Length, ab. 4 mi.; greatest width of harbor, ab. 3 mi.

Langstroth (lang'stroth), Lorenzo Lorraine. b. at Philadelphia, Dec. 25, 1810; d. at Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 6, 1895. American apiarist. In 1852 he settled at Oxford, Ohio, where he pursued his career as a beekeeper. He pioneered in evolving apiary management methods and is best remembered as the inventor of the movable-frame beehive. Author of Langstroth on the Hive and the Honeybee (1853), which reappeared in revised form as The Honey Bee (1888).

Langtoft (lang'toft), Peter of. b. probably at Langtoft, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, England; d. c1307. English chronicler, author of a history of England to the death of Edward I, in French verse. The latter part of it was translated into English by Robert Mannyng of Brunne.

Langton (lang'tọn), Bennet. b. in Lincolnshire, England, 1737; d. at Southampton, England, Dec. 18, 1801. English Greek scholar, an intimate friend of Samuel Johnson.

Langton, Simon. d. 1248. English ecclesiastic, archdeacon of Canterbury; brother of Stephen Langton. He was an active partisan of the barons against King John and the Pope, but under Henry III possessed great influence both at the court and in ecclesiastical affairs.

Langton, Stephen. d. at Slindon, Sussex, England, probably on July 9, 1228. English prelate and statesman, archbishop of Canterbury (1207 et seq.), and leader of the barons against King John; brother of Simon Langton. He was educated at the University of Paris, and lectured there on theology until 1206, when he was made cardinal. He was elected archbishop of Canterbury (as a compromise between the subprior Reginald, chosen by the monks, and John de Grey, supported by the king), and consecrated by Pope Innocent III on June 17, 1207, but prevented by the king (in a long struggle with the Pope) from admission to his see until 1213. Soon thereafter he became the leader of the contest with John. He was suspended in 1215 for refusing to obey the Pope and for siding with the barons, but after Innocent and John died he returned. On April 17, 1222, he opened a church council at Osney, the decrees of which (the "Constitutions of Stephen Langton") are the earliest provincial canons still recognized as binding in the English ecclesiastical courts. He was a voluminous writer, and was distinguished as a theologian, Biblical scholar, historian, and poet. His division of the Vulgate Old Testament into chapters remains.

"Lang Toun" (lang'tön''). See under Kirkcaldy.

Langtry (lang'tri), Lily. [Maiden name, Emily Charlotte Le Breton; called the "Jersey Lily."] b. at St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands, 1852; d. at Monte Carlo, Feb. 12, 1929. English actress. After gaining celebrity in English society as a beauty, she went on the stage in 1881. She visited the U.S. several times.

Languard (lang'gärd), Piz. See Piz Languard.

Languedoc (läṅg.dôk'; French, läṅg.dok). Region and former province of S France. It was bounded by Guienne, Auvergne, and Lyonnais on the N, the Rhone River on the E, the Mediterranean Sea and Roussillon on the S, and Foix, Gascony, and Guienne on the W, and was traversed by the Cévennes Mountains. It was named from the langue d'oc, or Provençal, the language of the South of France. The modern departments of Lozère, Ardèche, Gard, Hérault, Aude, Tarn, and parts of Haute-Loire and Haute-Garonne correspond to it. Haut-Languedoc was in the W, Bas-Languedoc in the E. Languedoc formed part of Gallia Narbonensis and of the West-Gothic kingdom. It was overrun by the Saracens in the 8th century. The chief powers were the marquisate of Septimania (which became in the 10th century the county of Toulouse) and Narbonne. Narbonne was annexed to France in 1229, and Toulouse in 1270 or 1271. The early capital was Montpellier, the later was Toulouse.

Languedoc, Canal du. See Midi, Canal du.

Languet (läṅ.ge), Hubert. b. at Viteaux, in Burgundy, France, 1518; d. at Antwerp, Belgium, Sept. 30, 1581. French Huguenot political writer and diplomat. Author of Vindiciae contra tyrannos . . . (1579) and others.

Languish (lang'gwish), Lydia. In Richard Brinsley Sheridan's comedy The Rivals, a romantic girl, unwilling to marry unless the affair is conducted on the most sentimental principles.

Lanham (lan'ạm), Edwin. b. at Weatherford, Tex., Oct. 11, 1904—. American novelist and short-story writer. He was a newspaperman (1930–44) at New York. His novels include The Wind Blew West (1935), Banner at Daybreak (1937), Another Ophelia (1938), The Stricklands (1939), Thunder in the Earth (1941), Slug It Slay (1946), and Politics Is Murder (1947).

Lanier (lạ.nir'), Sidney. b. at Macon, Ga., Feb. 3, 1842; d. at Lynn, N.C., Sept. 7, 1881. American poet, critic, and musician. He eked out a meager income by writing guidebooks, such as Florida (1875), and adapting chronicles of chivalry, such as The Boy's Froissart (1879). Despite precarious health, the result of his imprisonment after being captured in the Civil War, he carried on a number of activities of some social importance, including pioneer work in adult education, literary championship of the underprivileged, and preparation of articles like The New South (1880). He became, at Baltimore, first flutist in the Peabody Orchestra (1873) and lecturer in English literature at the Johns Hopkins University (1879). His critical insight, though too often hampered by his moral earnestness, was notably penetrating. His poetry, though mannered and sometimes too dependent on the technique of music, was distinguished by fresh observation, lofty spirit, and sustained rhythms. Included among his full-length works are the immature novel Tiger-Lilies (1867), The Science of English Verse (1880), The English Novel (1883), Poems (1884), Letters (1899), and Shakspere and His Forerunners (1902). Among his best-known poems are Corn, The Symphony, Song of the Chattahoochee, The Marshes of Glynn, A Ballad of Trees and the Master, and Sunrise.

Lanigan (lan'i.gan), George Thomas. b. at St. Charles, Canada, Dec. 10, 1845; d. Feb. 5, 1886. American journalist, author of the satirical verses Threnody for the Ahkoond of Swat and The Amateur Orlando. His poems, written while he was on the staff of the New York World (1874–82), are collected in Fables of G. Washington Æsop, Taken "Anywhere Out of the World" (1878).

Lanigan, John. b. at Cashel, County Tipperary, Ireland, 1758; d. at Finglas, County Dublin, Ireland, July 7, 1828. Irish Roman Catholic clergyman.

Lanjuinais (läṅ.zhwē.ne), Jean Denis, Comte. b. at Rennes, France, March 12, 1753; d. at Paris, Jan. 13, 1827. French politician and political writer, deputy to the National Assembly in 1789, and Girondist deputy to the Convention in 1792. He was consistently an independent, opposing the Mountain in the Convention and later the Consulate, the Empire, and Napoleon himself.

Lankester (lang'kęs.tėr), Edwin. b. at Melton, Suffolk, England, April 23, 1814; d. Oct. 30, 1874. English physician and man of science. He edited the work on natural history in the Penny and English encyclopedias, and published a Natural History of Plants yielding Food (1845), Memorials of John Ray (1845), and others.

Lankester, Sir Edwin Ray. b. at London, May 15, 1847; d. Aug. 15, 1929. English anatomist and zoölogist; eldest son of Edwin Lankester. He wrote Comparative Longevity (1871), Degeneration (1880), Spolia Maris (1889), The Advancement of Science (1889), A Treatise on Zoology (1900–05), Extinct Animals (1905), The Kingdom of Man (1907), and many special monographs; and he edited, with M. Foster, the Scientific Memoirs of Th. H. Huxley (1898–1902).

Lanman (lan'mạn), Charles Rockwell. b. at Norwich, Conn., July 8, 1850; d. at Boston, Feb. 20, 1941. American Oriental scholar, professor (1880 et seq.) of Sanskrit at Harvard. His publications include Noun-Inflection in the Veda (1880), Sanskrit Reader, Vocabulary, Notes (eight issues, 1884–1927), and Beginnings of Hindu Pantheism (1890).

Lanner (län'ėr), Josef Franz Karl. b. at Oberdöbling, Austria, in April, 1801; d. there, April 14, 1843. Austrian composer of dances. His works include waltzes, quadrilles, polkas, and other dance forms of his period.

Lannes (lán), Jean. [Titles: Duc de Montebello, Prince de Siévers.] b. at Lectoure, Gers, France, April 11, 1769; d. at Vienna, May 31, 1809. French marshal, Napoleon's favorite among his marshals. He served with distinction in Italy (1796–97) and in the Egyptian expedition (1798–99). He won the victory of Montebello in 1800, and served at Marengo (1800), Austerlitz (1805), Jena and Pułtusk (1806), and Friedland (1807). He won the victory of Tudela (1808), captured Saragossa (1809), and was mortally wounded at Aspern (May, 1809).

Lannes, Napoléon Auguste. [Title, Duc de Montebello.] b. July 30, 1801; d. July 19, 1874. French diplomat and politician; son of Jean Lannes.

Lannion (lá.nyôṅ). Town in NW France, in the department of Côtes-du-Nord, on the Léguer River, near the English Channel. It is a picturesque old Breton town and a tourist center. The region has woolen and linen manufactures. 7,220 (1946).

La Noue (lá nö), François de. [Called Bras de Fer, meaning "Iron Arm."] b. 1531; d. at Moncontour, France, Aug. 4, 1591. French Huguenot general. He was taken prisoner at Jarnac and Moncontour in 1569, lost his arm at Fontenay-le-Comte in 1570 (and replaced it with an artificial one of iron, whence his nickname), and commanded (1574–78) the forces of La Rochelle. He was imprisoned (1580–85) by the Spaniards, finally being exchanged for prisoners he had taken fighting in the Low Countries, and was mortally wounded (1591) at Lamballe. He wrote Discours politiques et militaires (1587).

Lansbury (lanz'bėr.i, -ber''i), George. b. at Halesworth, Suffolk, England, 1859; d. at London, May 7, 1940. English politician, editor, and author, a leader (1931–35) of the Labour Party. He joined (1890) the Socialist Party. He was a member (1905–09) of the Royal Commission on the Poor Law, and served (1910–12, 1922 et seq.) as a member of Parliament. He was editor (1913–22) of the Manchester Guardian. He was one of the leading British advocates of pacifism.

Lansch (länsh). Romansh name of Lenz.

Lansdale (lanz'dāl). Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Montgomery County, in an agricultural area: manufactures textiles, clothing, hosiery, machinery, stoves, and tiles. It was incorporated in 1872. Pop. 9,762 (1950).

Lansdown (lanz'doun). Ridge NW of Bath, England, where the Royalists under Sir Ralph Hopton defeated (July 5, 1643) the Parliamentarians under Sir William Waller.

Lansdowne (lanz'doun), 1st Marquis of. [Title of Sir William Petty; additional title, 2nd Earl of Shelburne; known as Malagrida.] b. at Dublin, May 20, 1737; d. May 7, 1805. English statesman, who strongly supported a policy of conciliation with the American colonies. After serving as president of the Board of Trade (1763) under George Grenville, he shifted his alliance to William Pitt. For opposing the government in regard to the expulsion of Wilkes from Parliament, he lost the privy councilorship and the king's favor (1763). A year later, he attacked the Stamp Act policy and helped Rockingham repeal it (1766). As Pitt's secretary of state (1766–68), he won the hatred of King George III and the denunciation of his colleagues for his conciliatory policy towards the American colonies, a policy which he continued to advocate, even against Lord North (1778), until 1782, when he became home secretary under Rockingham. Although he opposed recognition of American independence, as first lord of the treasury and prime minister (1782–83), he accepted the fact that failure to conciliate had made it inevitable. After concluding peace with France and Spain (1783), he was overthrown by Charles James Fox and North. Although Petty was one of the most unpopular statesmen of his time, Disraeli called him "the first great minister who comprehended the rising importance of the middle class." He was a generous patron of the fine arts.

Lansdowne, 3rd Marquis of. [Title of Sir Henry Petty-Fitzmaurice.] b. at London, July 2, 1780; d. at Bowood, England, Jan. 31, 1863. English statesman; son of William Petty, 1st Marquis of Lansdowne. He was a member of Parliament for Calne (1803), and for Cambridge (1805), where he was educated. As chancellor of the exchequer (1806) under William Wyndham Grenville, in the so-called All-the-Talents ministry, he raised the property tax from 6½ percent to 10 percent. For the next 20 years, he supported abolition of the slave trade and other liberal measures. He effected a coalition between the Whigs and George Canning's followers. He entered the cabinet without office (1827) and resigned a year later. He thereafter served, intermittently, as president of the council (1830–41) under Lord Grey, and again (1846–52) under Lord Russell. He remained in the cabinet without office for the next 11 years.

Lansdowne, 4th Marquis of. [Title of Sir Henry Thomas Petty-Fitzmaurice.] b. in London, 1816; d. there, 1866. English statesman; son of Henry Petty-Fitzmaurice, 3rd Marquis of Lansdowne. While a member of Parliament from Calne (1847–56), he served as junior lord of the treasury under Lord Russell (1847–49). He was undersecretary of state for foreign affairs under Palmerston (1856–58).

Lansdowne, 5th Marquis of. [Title of Henry Charles Keith Petty-Fitzmaurice.] b. 1845; d. 1927. English statesman; son of Henry Thomas Petty-Fitzmaurice, 4th Marquis of Lansdowne. He was a minor government official (1868–83) in two Gladstone administrations and a target of the "No Rent" campaigners in Ireland. His governor-generalship of Canada (1883–88) was marked by completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a dispute with the U.S. over Newfoundland fisheries, and the second rebellion of Louis Riel, leader of the half-breeds in NW Canada. As viceroy of India (1883–93) he was praised for the stabilization of the rupee, but as secretary of war (1895–1900) he was censured for early British failures in the Boer War. During the time he was foreign secretary (1900–05), he negotiated a treaty of alliance with Japan (1902) and one with France (1904). He entered into a dispute with the U.S. over the blockade of Venezuela and over the Alaskan boundary (1903). He was a leader in the great parliamentary struggle of 1910–11, but finally was forced to admit the Conservatives' defeat. He served as member of the Asquith coalition cabinet (1915–16). He was severely reproached as disloyal to the Allied cause for his letter to the Daily Telegraph (November, 1917) proposing peace terms (which terms he had discussed in a private memorandum to Lord Asquith in 1916), but his proposals for a negotiated peace were otherwise largely ignored.

Lansdowne. Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Delaware County: a western residential suburb of Philadelphia. 12,169 (1950).

Lansdowne, Baron. Title of Grenville, George.

L'Anse (lans). Village in the W part of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, county seat of Baraga County, on Keeweenaw Bay: a summer resort. 2,376 (1950).

Lansel (län'sel), Peider. b. at Pisa, Italy, 1863; d. at Geneva, Switzerland, 1943. Swiss poet writing in Romansh. His works include La Musa ladina (1910) and La Cullana d'ambras (1912).

Lansford (lans'fȯrd, lanz'-). Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Carbon County, ab. 27 mi. NW of Allentown: coal mining; manufactures of dresses. It was established in 1846. Pop. 7,487 (1950).

Lansing (lan'sing). Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County: a suburban residential village S of Chicago. 8,682 (1950).

Lansing. Capital city of Michigan, in the S central part, in Ingham County, on the Grand River: the chief manufactures are automobiles and automobile parts; others include agricultural implements, chemicals, concrete mixers, machinery, and beet sugar. Lansing was settled in 1837 and selected as the state capital in 1847. Pop. of city, 92,129 (1950); of urbanized area, 134,052 (1950).

Lansing, Robert. b. at Watertown, N.Y., Oct. 17, 1864; d. Oct. 30, 1928. American lawyer, secretary of state (1915–20) under Woodrow Wilson. He was graduated (1886) from Amherst College, read law in his father's office, was admitted to the bar in 1889, and joined the Watertown law firm of Lansing and Lansing as a junior partner. In 1892 he was appointed associate counsel for the U.S. in the fur-seal arbitration and from that time until 1914 served as a U.S. counsel on many occasions before international tribunals. He became (April 1, 1914) counselor for the Department of State, serving as acting secretary of state during the absences of Secretary William Jennings Bryan, many of whose official notes were written by Lansing. When Bryan resigned his post during the Lusitania crisis, Lansing became secretary of state ad interim and on June 23, 1915, received his official appointment as secretary. On Nov. 2, 1917, Lansing signed with a Japanese representative the declaration of policy known as the Lansing-Ishii Agreement, which recognized Japan's special interests in China. After the war he and Wilson drifted apart, and the gulf between them became even wider when Senate hearings on the Versailles Treaty revealed that Lansing had at one time opposed certain aspects of it. When Lansing called together the cabinet for occasional meetings after Wilson's illness, the latter used this pretext to demand Lansing's resignation, which was submitted on Feb. 12, 1920. Thereafter Lansing resumed the practice of law at Washington, D.C. He was a founder (1906) of the American Society of International Law and helped establish (1907) the American Journal of International Law, serving as one of its editors until his death. He was the author of Government: Its Origin, Growth, and Form in the United States, in collaboration with Gary M. Jones (1902), Notes on Sovereignty from the Standpoint of the State and of the World (1921), The Big Four and Others of the Peace Conference (1921), and The Peace Negotiations: A Personal Narrative (1921).

Lansing-Ishii Agreement (-ē'shē). Agreement covering Japanese-American relations in the Far East, negotiated by U.S. Secretary of State Robert Lansing and Viscount Kikujiro Ishii and concluded on Nov. 2, 1917. Although the agreement reaffirmed the Open Door Policy in China, it also recognized Japan's "special interests" in that country. When the Japanese government subsequently held that the agreement acknowledged Japan's position in Manchuria, the Chinese interpreted it as a betrayal of the Open Door Policy. However, the provisions of its secret protocol barring special privileges to U.S. or Japanese nationals in China were made part of the Nine-Power Treaty of 1922, and the agreement was annulled in 1923.

Lanškroun (länsh'krōn). [German, Landskron.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Pardubice, in E Bohemia, ab. 36 mi. NW of Olomouc. It is a summer resort and has textile and paper industries. 4,952 (1947).

Lanson (läṅ.sôṅ), Gustave. b. at Orléans, France, 1857; d. 1934. French literary historian and deviser of the research methods known as lansonisme, author of a standard Histoire de la littérature française (1894 and many supplemented later editions; 17th ed., 1922) and of many scholarly critical studies. Called to a chair at the Sorbonne in 1900, he recast academic literary study in France on a basis of careful historical study of texts and other documents, forming a whole generation of "scientific" students of literature.

Lanston (lan'stǫn), Tolbert. b. at Troy, Ohio, Feb. 3, 1844; d. at Washington, D.C., Feb. 18, 1913. American inventor, designer of the Monotype. He improved or invented a number of other devices, including a padlock (1870), a railroad car coupler (1871), a hydraulic dumbwaiter (1871), a locomotive smokestack (1874), and a sewing-machine chair (1878). He was granted (1887) a series of three patents for a type-composing machine and subsequently formed the Lanston Type Machine Company at Washington. In 1897 he brought out his Monotype, the result of continuous experimentation over a ten-year period. The plant of the Lanston Monotype Manufacturing Company was set up at Philadelphia.

Lan-tao (län'dou'). See under Hong Kong.

Lantern Festival. Festival held on the first full moon (13th–15th day) of the Chinese New Year. Lighted lanterns are hung at doorways and on graves, and processions impersonating dragons move along the streets. A special cake is consumed at this time.

Lantern Lane. Novel by Warwick Deeping, published in 1921.

"Lantern of England." See under Bath, England.

Lanterns, Feast of. See Bon.

Lantfred (lant'fred). [Also, Lamfrid.] English hagiographer of the 10th century.

Lanthorn Leatherhead (lan'thôrn leтн'èr.hed). See Leatherhead, Lanthorn.

Lanuvium (lą.nū'vi.um). [Modern village name, Lanuvio (lä.nō'vyō), formerly Civita Lavinia.] In ancient geography, a town in Latium, Italy, ab. 20 mi. SE of Rome. It was a center of the worship of Juno Sospita, the succoring goddess.

Lanza (län'tsä), Giovanni. b. at Vignale, near Casale Monferrato, Italy, c1810; d. at Rome, March 9, 1882. Italian statesman. He was premier from 1869 to 1873.

Lanzarote (län.thä.rō'tā). Northeasternmost of the Canary Islands, belonging to the Spanish province of Las Palmas, in the Atlantic Ocean ab. 110 mi. NE of Grand Canary island. The island, of volcanic origin, is very dry; its highest elevation reaches ab. 2,245 ft. The coastline is high and steep. The chief occupations of the inhabitants are the growing of early (winter) vegetables for export, and fishing. Capital, Puerto del Arrecife; area, ab. 310 sq. mi.; pop. 27,476 (1940).

Lanzi (län'tsē), Luigi. b. at Montolmo, near Macerata, Italy, June 13, 1732; d. at Florence, March 31, 1810. Italian antiquary and writer on art. His chief works are Saggio di lingua etrusca (Essay on the Etruscan Language, 1789) and Storia pittorica dell' Italia (History of Painting in Italy, 1792).

Lao (lä'ō). [Also, Laotians.] Hinayana Buddhist people living on either side of the Mekong River in N and E

Thailand (Siam) and in Laos, Indochina. In Thailand they constitute a part of the Siamese people. They live in houses on piles, usually in the lowlands, and cultivate rice on irrigated land. Their language, also called Lao, sometimes Laos, is a southeastern Thai dialect of the Thai group of the Indo-Chinese family of languages.

Laoag (lä.wäg'). Municipio (municipality) in NW Luzon, Philippine Islands: port and the capital of Ilocos Norte province. It is situated near the mouth of the Laoag River. 42,200 (1939).

Laoag River. River in NW Luzon, in Ilocos Norte province, Philippine Islands, flowing W to the China Sea.

Laocoön (lā.ok'ō.on). In Greek legend (post-Homeric), a priest of Apollo at Troy, who, because he had offended the god, was strangled with one of his sons by two serpents while he was offering a sacrifice to Poseidon. In Vergil's version of the story two of his sons are killed with him. Laocoön is the one who tried to prevent the Trojans from hauling the wooden horse inside the walls of Troy. The Trojans, seeing the serpents strangle their priest and his sons, took it as a sign that Laocoön was wrong, and took the wooden horse into the city.

Laocoön. Sculpture group in the Vatican, Rome, showing the Trojan priest of Apollo and his two young sons enveloped and bitten to death by serpents. It is a masterpiece of anatomical knowledge and skillful execution, probably done in the 1st century B.C. and discovered at Rome in 1506. It is attributed to Athenodorus, Agesander, and Polydorus, of the school of Rhodes. The outstretched arms of Laocoön and one son have been restored.

Laodamas (lā.od'ə.məs). In Greek legend, a son of Eteocles and grandson of Oedipus; king of Thebes after Eteocles.

Laodamia (lā.od.ə.mī'ə). In Greek legend, the daughter of Acastus and wife of Protesilaus, with whom she voluntarily died. Wordsworth published a poem with this title.

Laodicea (lā.od.i.sē'ə, lā''ō.di.sē'ə). [Full Latin name, Laodicea ad Lycum (ad lī'kum).] Ancient city in Phrygia, Asia Minor, in the valley of the Lycus, a tributary river of the Maeander (modern Menderes), ab. 50 mi. N of Aradus. It was founded under the Seleucids, by Antiochus II (c250 B.C.) and named after his wife, Laodicea. It was an important early Christian center, and in the Apocalypse is one of the congregations to which an epistle is addressed. It was destroyed (1402 A.D.) by Tamerlane, but its great heap of ruins still attest to its former splendor.

Laodicea or Laodicea ad Mare (ad mā'rē). Latin names of Latakia.

Laodikeia (lā.od.i.kī'ä). Greek name of Latakia.

Laodogant (lā.od'ō.gant). In the 13th-century Arthurian romance Arthour and Merlin, the father of Guinevere. The name is often seen as Leodegran of Carohaise. Geoffrey of Monmouth does not present this character, but says Guinevere is the ward of one Cador of Cornwall.

Laohokow (lou'hō'kō'). City in E central China, in the province of Hupeh, on the Han River: a large trading center. Pop. over 100,000.

Laoighis (lā'ish). [Also: Leix; former name, Queen's County.] Inland county of the Irish Republic, in Leinster province. It is bounded on the NW and N by County Offaly, on the E by County Kildare, on the SE by County Carlow, on the S by County Kilkenny, and on the SW by County Tipperary. The surface rises from a flat area in the C part to the Slieve Bloom Mountains in the NW, and to the Slieve Loogh and Dysart Hills in the SE part. In the C section there are numerous bogs, and extensive areas of farmland. The chief agricultural specialty is cattle raising. Coal, copper, manganese, marble, and fuller's earth all are found. Port Laoighise is the county seat; area, ab. 664 sq. mi.; pop. 48,423 (1951).

Laokoon (lā.ok'ō.on; German, lä.ō'ko.on). [Full title, Laokoon, oder über die Grenzen der Malerei und Poesie, meaning "Laokoon, or on the Limits of Painting and Poetry."] Critical treatise on art by Gotthold Ephraim Lessing, published in 1766, and deriving its inspiration from the Greek statue of Laocoon and his sons.

Laomedon (lā.om'ə.don). In Greek legend, the son of Ilus and Eurydice and father of Priam, founder and king of Troy. For refusing to pay Poseidon for building the walls of Troy, he was forced to offer his daughter Hesione to a sea monster. Hercules found her chained to a rock, and agreed to free her for a pair of magical horses which Zeus had given to Laomedon in exchange for Ganymede. Laomedon again failed to keep his promise, and Hercules captured his city and slew him and all his sons except Priam.

Laon (läṅ). [Latin, Laudunum, Lugdunum Clavatum.] City in N France, the capital of the department of Aisne, situated in a commanding position on a V-shaped hill, NE of Soissons. The cathedral is one of the finest Gothic monuments in France, ranking with the cathedrals of Amiens, Paris, and Reims; it was built between 1155 and 1225. The Church of Saint Martin dates from the 12th century. There are old ramparts, beautiful promenades, a citadel, an arsenal, and a museum. The town of Bibrax, or Bibracte, in which lived the Remi, in the Gallic period, is thought to have been at or near the site of Laon. Laon was the residence of the early Carolingian kings, was contested between France and England in the Middle Ages, and was fought over in the religious wars. It was occupied by the coalition armies against Napoleon in 1814 and 1815, by the Germans in 1870 and 1914. During World War II the lower town, around the railroad station, was extensively damaged, but the historic upper town suffered only slightly. It was the birthplace of Jacques Marquette. 17,401 (1946).

La Orotava (lä ō.rō.tä'bä). [Also: Orotava, Villa de Orotava.] Town in the Canary Islands, in the Spanish province of Santa Cruz de Tenerife, in a beautiful valley near the N coast of the island of Tenerife, ab. 20 mi. SW of the town of Santa Cruz de Tenerife: health resort; botanical garden founded in 1795. Pop. 17,682 (1940).

La Oroya (lä ō.rō'yä). [Also, Oroya.] City in W Peru, in Junín department: railway junction; ore smelters; copper refinery. Elevation, ab. 12,200 ft.; pop. 14,492 (1940).

Laos (lä'ōs). See also under Lao.

Laos (lā'os, lä'ōs). Kingdom and former French protectorate in Indochina, SE Asia, an associated state of the French Union. It lies in the mountainous region of the C Mekong River valley, and is bounded by China on the N, Burma and Thailand on the W, Cambodia on the S, and Viet-Nam on the E. The inhabitants are Buddhist in religion and culture. The most important crop is rice, followed by vegetables, coffee, tea, fruits, cotton, benzoin, and gum. The area is famous for its wild elephants and tigers. Capital, Vientiane; area, ab. 91,450 sq. mi.; pop. 1,208,000 (est. 1949).

Laos (lä'ōs), Felipe Barreda. See Barreda Laos, Felipe.

Laotians (lä.ō'shənz). See Lao.

Lao-tse (lou'dzu'). [Also: Lao-tsze, Lao-tzu.] b. c604 B.C. Chinese philosopher, said to have been the founder of the system of Taoism, and the reputed author of the book Tao-teh Ching, which embodies Taoist philosophy. Most modern scholars, however, are skeptical of the latter.

Laoyao (lou'you'). See Lienyun.

La Palata (lä pä.lä'tä), Duke of. Title of Navarra y Rocafull, Melchor de.

La Pallice (lä pä.lēs). Artificial harbor for large vessels, near La Rochelle, France.

La Palma (lä päl'mä). See Palma.

La Pampa (lä päm'pä). [Official name since 1952, Eva Perón Province.] Province (until 1952 a territory) in C Argentina, lying W of Buenos Aires province. Despite the light rainfall, about half its area supports a flourishing production of grains and stock. Capital, Santa Rosa; area, ab. 55,103 sq. mi.; pop. 169,480 (1947).

Laparra (lä.pä.rä), Raoul. b. at Bordeaux, France, May 13, 1876; d. 1943. French composer. His lyric drama La Habanera, completed in 1903, was produced at the Paris Opéra Comique in 1907. He also wrote orchestral, chamber, and piano music, and another opera, La Jota (1911).

La Pasionaria (lä pä.syō.nä'ryä). Pseudonym of Ibarruri, Dolores.

Lapauze (lä pōz'), Jeanne. See Lesueur, Daniel.

La Paz (lä pas'; Anglicized, lä paz'). Town in NE Argentina, in Entre Ríos province, ab. 280 mi. NW of Buenos Aires. 15,906 (1947).

La Paz. Department in W Bolivia, on the Peruvian border. Capital, La Paz; area, ab. 51,605 sq. mi.; pop. 948,446 (1950).

La Paz. [Original Spanish name, Pueblo Nuevo de Nuestra Señora de la Paz, changed (1825) to La Paz de Ayacucho.] City in Bolivia, its actual capital (Sucre is the legal capital), and capital of La Paz department, in the W part of the country; commercial and mining center; seat of a university. Founded by the Spaniards in 1548; the highest (12,400 ft.) national capital in the world. 321,063 (1950).

La Paz. Department in S El Salvador, on the Pacific coast. Capital, Zacatecoluca; area, ab. 909 sq. mi.; pop. 113,890 (est. 1942).

La Paz. Department in S Honduras. Capital, La Paz; area, ab. 883 sq. mi.; pop. 51,220 (1950).

La Paz. City in W Mexico, capital of the former territory of Baja California, Sur, on the Gulf of California. 10,401 (1940).

Lapeer (lą.pir'). City in SE Michigan, county seat of Lapeer County: manufactures of wood products. 6,143 (1950).

La Pérouse (lä pā.röz), Jean François de Galaup, Comte de. b. near Albi, France, Aug. 22, 1741; lost at sea, 1788. French navigator. He commanded an expedition to find a northwest passage, and he hoped to discover it by working eastward from the NE part of the Pacific to the Atlantic. He set sail from France in 1785 and arrived on the NE coast of Asia in 1787. He found no northwest passage, but he did discover (1787) what is now called La Pérouse Strait, between Sakhalin and Japan. In the following year he perished with his whole expedition in a shipwreck off the island of Vanikoro.

La Pérouse Strait (lä pę.röz'). [Japanese, Soya Kaikyo; Russian, Proliv Laperuza.] Sea passage N of Japan, separating the islands of Sakhalin, U.S.S.R., and Hokkaido, Japan, and connecting the Sea of Japan with the Sea of Okhotsk. Width, ab. 25 mi.

Lapeyrere (lȧ.pā.rer), Auguste Boué de. See Boué de Lapeyrere, Auguste.

Lapidoth-Swarth (lä'pē.dôt.swärt'), Frau. [Maiden name, Hélène Swarth.] b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, Oct. 25, 1859—. Dutch lyric poet. Among her works are Blauwe Bloemen (1884), Beelden en Stemmen (1887), Sneeuwlokken (1888), Rouwviolen (1889), Passiebloemen (1891), a volume of collected poems (1892), Poezij (1896), Diepe Wateren (1897), and Blanke Duiven (1902). Her prose includes Kleine Schetsen (1893), Ironisch en Tragisch (1895), Van Vrouwenleed (1896), Van Vrouwenlot (1896), and Ernst (1902).

Lapie (lȧ.pē), Pierre Olivier. b. at Rennes, France, April 2, 1901—. French political leader and colonial administrator, governor (1940–42, for the Free French regime) of the Chad territory of French Equatorial Africa. He was undersecretary of state for foreign affairs (1946–47) and minister of education (1950 et seq.).

La Piedad Cavadas (lä.pyā.ŦHÄŦH' kä.bä'ŦHäs). [Also, La Piedad.] City in C Mexico, in Michoacán state. 12,369 (1940).

Lapin (lä'pin) or Lapinlääni (lä'pin.la.ni). See Lappi.

Lapithae (lap'i.thē). In Greek legend, a Thessalian people, descendants of a son of Apollo and Stilbe, and brother of Centaurus. They were governed by Pirithous, a half brother of the Centaurs. On the occasion of the marriage of Pirithous to Hippodameia, a fierce struggle took place between the Centaurs (who had been invited to the wedding) and the Lapithae, which ended in the expulsion of the former from Pelion. The cause of the quarrel was the attempt of a drunken Centaur to carry off the bride.

Lapito (lȧ.pē.tō), Louis Auguste. b. at St.-Maur, near Paris, 1805; d. at Boulogne-sur-Seine, near Paris, April 7, 1874. French landscape painter.

Laplace (lȧ.plȧs'), Ernest. b. at New Orleans, La., July 9, 1861; d. May 15, 1924. American surgeon, who studied in Europe under Pasteur, Lister, Koch, and Billroth. He invented the first forceps for intestinal anastomosis.

Laplace (lȧ.plȧs), Pierre Simon, Marquis de. b. at Beaumont-en-Auge, Calvados, France, March 28, 1749; d. at Paris, March 5, 1827. French astronomer and mathematician. The son of a farmer, he went at the age of 18 to Paris and there obtained, through the influence of D'Alembert, a position as professor of mathematics in the Ecole Militaire. In 1799 Napoleon made him minister of the interior, a post which he held only six weeks. In 1803 he was vice-president of the Senate. He was made a peer by Louis XVIII, and a marquis in 1817. Among his most noted researches were those on the inequality of the motions of Jupiter and Saturn, on lunar motions, on probabilities, and on the tides. His most famous work is the Mécanique céleste (1799–1825; Eng. trans. by Nathaniel Bowditch). He published also Exposition du système du monde (1796) and other works.

Lapland (lap'land). [Finnish, Lappi; Swedish, Lappland.] Country of the Lapps, in the extreme N part of Norway, Sweden, and Finland, and the NW part of European Russia. The Lapps are chiefly nomadic herdsmen dependent upon their flocks of reindeer, which migrate down to the coast or to the lower valleys in summer, and to the mountain plateaus in winter. Some of the Lapps now engage in fishing, forestry, or agriculture as supplementary means of livelihood. They were subjugated by the Russians in the 11th century, by the Norwegians in the 14th, and by the Swedes in the 16th. The economy of Lapland has undergone great changes in recent times with the expansion of modern transportation and the development of mineral and forest resources. The most outstanding development has been that of the iron-ore mining centers of N Sweden, which are linked by rail with the export port of Narvik in Norway. Modern techniques of fishing have been developed along the Norwegian coast, and lumbering is important in Finnish, Swedish, and Russian Lapland. The Lapps, as an ethnic group, now actually constitute less than five percent of the population of Lapland, although the reindeer herding of this small minority remains very important to the economy of the area.

Laplanders (lap'lan.dẽrz). See Lapps.

Laplandish (lap'lan.dish). See under Lapps.

La Plata (lä plä'tä). See also Buenos Aires, viceroyalty.

La Plata. City in E Argentina, capital of Buenos Aires province, on the Río de La Platta ab. 30 mi. SE of the city of Buenos Aires: oil refineries, meat-packing plants; exports agricultural produce by rail and steamship; seat of a university. 207,031 (1947).

La Plata or La Plata de Chuquisaca (dā chō.kē.sä'kä). Former names of Sucre, Bolivia.

La Plata, Río de. See Plata, Río de la.

Lapo (lä'pō), Arnolfo di. See Arnolfo di Cambio.

Lapointe (lȧ.pwañt), Ernest. b. at St. Eloi, Quebec, Canada, Oct. 6, 1867; d. at Montreal, Nov. 26, 1941. Canadian lawyer, politician, and diplomat. A member (1904–41) of the Canadian House of Commons, he was appointed (1921) minister of marine and fisheries, negotiated a treaty (1923) with the U.S. concerning Pacific fisheries, and served as minister of justice (1924–30, 1935 et seq.). He accompanied William Lyon Mackenzie King to London as a Canadian representative to the Imperial Conference of 1926, and led the Canadian delegation at the Imperial Conference of 1929. He was a member of the delegation at the third Imperial Conference (1937). He was appointed (1937) a member of the privy council of the United Kingdom.

Lapommeraye (lȧ.pom.rā), Pierre Henri Victor Berdalle de. b. at Rouen, France, Oct. 20, 1839; d. at Paris, Dec. 23, 1891. French critic and lecturer.

La Porte (lą pōrt'). City in N Indiana, county seat of La Porte County, ab. 51 mi. SE of Chicago: manufactures steel-tube furniture, farm machinery, heating and ventilating equipment, baby carriages, and diverse other products. 17,882 (1950).

La Porte. Town in E Texas, in Harris County, SE of Houston: oil fields and oil refinery. 4,429 (1950).

Lapparent (lȧ.pȧ.rañ), Albert de. b. at Bourges, France, Dec. 30, 1839; d. at Paris, May 5, 1908. French geologist. Among his works are Traité de géologie (1882; 4th ed., 1899) and Cours de minéralogie (3rd ed., 1899).

Lappeenranta (läp'pän.rän.tä). [Swedish, Villmanstrand.] Town in SE Finland, in the lääni (department) of Kymi, on Lake Saima, NE of Helsinki. It is a center of lake traffic, and a resort. 17,332 (1951).

Lappenberg (läp'en.berk), Johann Martin. b. at Hamburg, Germany, July 30, 1794; d. there, Nov. 28, 1865. German historian, keeper of the archives to the Hamburg senate (1823–63). He wrote Geschichte von England (History of England, 1834–37; continued by Reinhold Pauli, translated by Benjamin Thorpe), the history of Hamburg and of the Hanseatic League, and others.

Lappi (läp'pi) or Lappland (läp'länd). See also Lapland.

Lappi. [Also: Lapin, Lapinlääni; Swedish, Lapplands Län (läp'länts len).] Lääni (department) in N Finland, bordering on Sweden in the W, on Norway in the N, on the U.S.S.R. in the E, and on Oulu in the S. Capital, Rovaniemi; area, ab. 36,243 sq. mi.; pop. 169,770 (1951).

Lappish (lap'ish). See under Lapps.

Lapps (laps). [Also: Laplanders, Saami.] People inhabiting Lapland, a region of N Norway, Sweden, Finland, and the Kola Peninsula (U.S.S.R.), now reduced to a few thousands (ab. 30,000). They belong to the Finno-Ugric linguistic stock, and their language, called Lappish or Laplandish, belongs to the Finnic branch of the Finno-Ugric family of languages.

Laprairie (la.prār'i). Town in S Quebec, Canada, county seat of Laprairie County, on the S bank of the St. Lawrence River, S of Montreal. 4,058 (1951).

La Prensa (lä prān'sä). See Prensa, La.

La Présentation (lä prā.zän.tà.syôn), Fort. Original French name of Ogdensburg, N.Y.

L'Après midi d'un faune (lä.pre.mē.dē dœn fōn). See Après-midi d'un faune, L'.

Lapseki (läp.se.kē'). Modern name of Lampsacus.

Laptev Sea (läp'tyif). [Russian, More Laptevykh; former name, Nordenskjöld Sea.] Part of the Arctic Ocean N of Asiatic U.S.S.R. (Siberia), between the Taimyr peninsula and the New Siberian Islands.

La Puebla (lä pwā'вlä). Town in Spain, on the island of Majorca, Balearic Islands, NE of Palma: center of an agricultural district. 10,147 (1940).

La Puebla de Cazalla (dā kä.thä'lyä). Town in SW Spain, in the province of Sevilla, on the Corbones River, SE of Seville city: agricultural trade. 10,684 (1940).

La Puebla de los Angeles (dā lōs äng'hā.lās). See Puebla, city, Mexico.

Lapurdum (la.pėr'dum). Ancient name of Bayonne, France.

Laputa (la.pū'ta). Flying island inhabited by philosophers in Swift's Gulliver's Travels.

Laqueur (lä'kėr), Ernst. b. at Obernigk, near Trebnitz, Poland, 1880; d. in Switzerland, Aug. 19, 1947. Dutch physiologist and biochemist, remembered for his isolation (1935) of the male sex hormone testosterone. He also investigated the physical chemistry of casein, autolysis, lung pathology, vision physiology, and female sex hormones.

L'Aquila (lä'kwē.lä). [Also: Aquila, Aquila degli Abruzzi; former name, Abruzzo Ulteriore II.] Province in S central Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Abruzzi e Molise. Capital, L'Aquila; area, ab. 1,963 sq. mi.; pop. 365,716 (1936).

L'Aquila. [Also: Aquila, Aquila degli Abruzzi.] Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Abruzzi e Molise, the capital of the province of L'Aquila, situated in the Apennines on the Aterno River, ab. 54 mi. NE of Rome. Important chiefly as an agricultural trade center (grain, wool, almonds, saffron), it has also some manufactures, and is a summer resort. It is the seat of an archbishopric. The town was founded by Emperor Frederick II in 1240; destroyed 1259 by Manfred, King of Naples, it was rebuilt by Charles I of Naples (Charles of Anjou). In 1424, papal, Milanese, and Neapolitan forces here defeated the Spaniards under Braccio da Montone. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II. Elevation, ab. 2,365 ft.; pop. of commune, 54,722 (1936); of town, 20,573 (1936).

Lar (lär). Town in S Iran, in Laristan, ab. 135 mi. NW of Bandar Abbas: famous for its wool and vineyards. Pop. ab. 15,000.

Lara (lä'rä). Name of a family belonging to the Castilian aristocracy of the 10th century, whose adventures have been made the subject of many ballads.

Lara. State in NW Venezuela, between Falcón and Carabobo, with a small extent of coast on the Caribbean Sea. Capital, Barquisimeto; area, ab. 7,645 sq. mi.; pop. 370,030 (1950).

Lara (lä'ra). Narrative poem by Byron, published in 1814. Its title is taken from the name of its hero.

Lara (lä'rä), Juan Jacinto. b. at Carora, Barquisimeto, Venezuela, 1778; d. at Barquisimeto, Feb. 25, 1859. Venezuelan general in the war for independence. He led the Colombian troops at the battle of Ayacucho (Dec. 9, 1824), and remained in command of the Colombian contingent after Bolívar left Peru in 1826. On Jan. 26, 1827, his troops revolted, made him prisoner, and sent him to Bogotá, where he was released. This event led to the withdrawal of the Colombians from Peru, and the rejection by that country of Bolívar's constitution.

La Rábida (lä rä'вē.тнä). Name commonly given to the Franciscan convent of Santa María de Rábida, on a hill near the town of Palos, Spain. It is associated with several incidents in the life of Christopher Columbus. The convent, which had fallen to ruins, was restored in 1855.

Larache (lä.räsh'). [Arabic: El Araish, El Arish.] Seaport in NW Africa, in Spanish Morocco, on the Atlantic coast, almost on the boundary between the Spanish and French zones of Morocco but within the Spanish zone. Just NE of Larache is the site of the ancient Phoenician colony of Lixus, traditionally the site of the mythical Garden of the Hesperides. 36,132 (1940).

Lara Jongrang (lä'rä jông'gräng). See under Prambanan, Chandi.

Laramanik (lä.rä.mä.nēk'). See Aramanik.

Laramie (lar'a.mi). [Former name, Laramie City.] City in SE Wyoming, county seat of Albany County, on the Laramie River ab. 45 mi. NW of Cheyenne: manufactures of cement, bricks, and tiles; railroad shops. It is a shipping point for cattle and sheep. Laramie is the seat of the University of Wyoming. A stopping point on the Overland Trail, it was platted in 1868, and named for Jacques Laramie. Elevation, ab. 7,151 ft.; pop. 15,581 (1950).

Laramie, Fort. See under Fort Laramie National Monument.

Laramie, Jacques. [Original surname possibly Lorimer or La Ramée.] b. probably in Canada; d. in what is now Wyoming, 1821. American fur trapper and pioneer, after whom the Laramie Mountains and Laramie, Wyo., are named. Reputed to have been in the employ of the North West Company, he may have been active as a trapper in Colorado as early as 1816 and appears to have gone into southeastern Wyoming in about 1819. He is allegedly the first white man to have explored the upper reaches of the Laramie River. He explored the river further in 1820, perhaps to the mouth of the Sibylee (Sabille), and built a cabin at that point. Also named for him were Fort Laramie, the Laramie Plains, and Laramie Peak.

Laramie Mountains. Range of the Rocky Mountains in SE Wyoming and N Colorado.

Laramie Peak. Highest peak of the Laramie Mountains, in Wyoming. Elevation, 10,274 ft.

Laramie Plains. Elevated basin in S Wyoming, in which Laramie is situated. It is a broad level to rolling plain, used for livestock grazing, drained by the Laramie and Medicine Bow rivers. Elevation, ab. 7,500 ft.

Laramie River. River which rises in N Colorado and joins the North Platte in E Wyoming. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Laranda (la.ran'da). Ancient name of Karaman.

La Ravardière (lä.rà.vàr.dyer), Daniel de la Tousche, Sieur de. b. in Poitou, France, c1570; d. after 1631. French Huguenot soldier and explorer.

Larbaud (lär.bō), Valéry. b. at Vichy, France, 1881—. French novelist, poet, critic, and translator. He is the author of Poèmes d'un riche amateur (1908), Fermina Marquez (1911), Journal d'A. O. Barnabooth (1913), Amants, heureux amants (1924), Ce vice impuni, la lecture (1925), and others. His translations have ranged from Coleridge to Joyce. Born wealthy, Larbaud has used his leisure to "naturalize" the work of various European writers in France. Critics have called him the leading cosmopolitan of his generation.

Larcher (lär.shā), Pierre Henri. b. at Dijon, France, Oct. 12, 1726; d. at Paris, Dec. 22, 1812. French Hellenist, translator of Herodotus (1786).

Larchmont (lärch'mont). Village in SE New York, in Westchester County, on Long Island Sound: a northeastern residential suburb of New York City. 6,330 (1950).

Larcom (lär'kom), Lucy. b. at Beverly Farms, Mass., March 5, 1824; d. April 17, 1893. American poet. In her youth she worked in a factory at Lowell, Mass., and was a contributor to the Lowell Offering. She was editor (1866-74) of Our Young Folks. She was the author of Ships in the Mist, stories (1859), and several volumes of poems, and compiled and edited Roadside Poems (1876) and Hillside and Seaside in Poetry (1877). Her best-known single poem is probably Poor Lone Hannah.

Lardner (lärd'nėr), Dionysius. b. at Dublin, April 3, 1793; d. at Naples, Italy, April 29, 1859. English clergyman and scientific writer. Among his numerous publications are the Cabinet Cyclopaedia (1830-44), to which he contributed the articles on hydrostatics, pneumatics, arithmetic, and geometry (and collaborated in others), The Great Exhibition and London in 1851 (1852), and numerous works and papers on natural science and railway economics.

Lardner, Nathaniel. b. at Hawkhurst, Kent, England, June 6, 1684; d. there, July 24, 1768. English nonconformist divine and Biblical scholar. Author of The Credibility of the Gospel History (1727–57, a work that pioneered in the application of the critical method to the literary materials of the early church), sermons, and others.

Lardner, Ring. [Full name, Ringgold Wilmer Lardner.] b. at Niles, Mich., March 6, 1885; d. at East Hampton, Long Island, N.Y., Sept. 25, 1933. American short-story writer and journalist. While a sports writer (1913–19) on the Chicago Tribune, he published his first humorous baseball fiction, You Know Me, Al (1916), followed by Treat 'Em Rough (1918) and The Real Dope (1919). His work drew on the vernacular and broadened in character analysis in The Big Town (1921) and Symptoms of Being 35 (1921); his mastery of ironic humor was revealed in How to Write Short Stories (1924), The Love Nest and Other Stories (1926), and Round Up (1929). As a playwright he collaborated with George M. Cohan on Elmer the Great (1928) and with George S. Kaufman on June Moon (1929).

Lardy (lär.dē), Charles. b. 1847; d. 1923. Swiss diplomat and lawyer. He was Swiss minister (1883) at Paris, and served as the first Swiss member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

Laredo (lą.rā'dō). City in S Texas, county seat of Webb County, on the Rio Grande River in an irrigated agricultural area noted for its production of Bermuda onions and certain other vegetables: a leading port of entry and trade center on the Mexican-U.S. border. It is the N terminus of the Pan-American Highway, and the site of Fort McIntosh. It was settled by the Spanish in 1755, and incorporated as a city in 1852. Pop. 51,910 (1950).

Laredo Brú (lä.rā'ᴛʜō brö'), Federico. b. April 23, 1875; d. July 7, 1946. Cuban politician and soldier, president of Cuba, Dec. 24, 1936, to October, 1940, installed by Fulgencio Batista after the impeachment of Miguel Mariano Gómez.

La Región Orientale (lä re.ʜyōn' ō.ryen.tä'lā). See Oriente, Ecuador.

Larentalia (lar.en.tā'li.ą). Ancient Roman festival celebrated Dec. 23, during which offerings were made to the dead, especially at the shrine of Acca Larentia, nurse of Romulus and Remus, field goddess, and protectress of the city.

La Réole (lä rā.ol). Town and river port in SW France, in the department of Gironde, on the Garonne River ab. 31 mi. SE of Bordeaux. It was a settlement under the Romans in ancient Gaul. It was later the site of a famous Benedictine abbey, the bastions of which are still standing. 4,491 (1946).

Lares (lār'ēz). In Roman religion, a class of benevolent spirits presiding over the house and family. They were looked upon also as protectors of the state and city, and as very powerful for evil if not duly respected and propitiated. The public Lares, originally two in number, were the guardians of the unity of the state, and were honored with temples and an elaborate ceremonial. After the time of Augustus, at least, each division of the city had also its own public Lares (Lares compitales). The private Lares differed for each family, and were worshiped daily in the house, being domiciled sometimes on the family hearth but usually in a special niche with the Penates. Food was offered to them at every meal. They received also special recognition upon every occasion of festivity, public or private, and on certain days devoted particularly to them, and claimed tribute alike from the bride upon entering the family and from the youth upon attaining his majority. The chief of the private Lares in each family, the domestic or household Lar (Lar familiaris) was the spirit of the founder of the family. To the family spirits were often added in later times, among the household Lares, the shades of heroes, or other personalities who were looked upon with admiration or awe. In their character as malignant divinities, the Lares were commonly classed as lemures or larvae.

Largo Caballero (lär'gō kä.ʙä.lyā'rō), Francisco. b. at Madrid, 1869; d. at Paris, March 23, 1946. Spanish socialist, labor leader, and politician of the Popular Front. Originally a miner, Largo Caballero became interested in the Spanish socialist movement and was imprisoned for his radical activity in 1917. After the fall of the monarchy he became minister of labor in the provisional government and in the first republican government of 1931–33. Imprisoned again in October, 1934, for participation in a revolt in Asturias, he was released after acquittal by the courts in November, 1935. In December he resigned leadership of the Socialist Party and turned his sympathies toward the extreme left, fighting in his paper Claridad both the right, led by Gil Robles, and the moderate left under Prieto. From September, 1936, to May, 1937, he was Spain's prime minister and minister of war. During the Spanish Civil War he headed the "army of workers" fighting in the Guadarrama mountains. He failed to obtain Russian support and was expelled from the cabinet, to be succeeded by Jan Negrín. He was tried in absentia by the Franco government during his exile in Paris, and disappeared (1940) after the collapse of France. In 1945 he returned to Paris; by his own account he was held prisoner by the Germans for the entire intervening period.

Largs (lärgz). Police burgh and market town in SW Scotland, in Ayrshire, on a channel of the Firth of Clyde, ab. 24 mi. W of Glasgow. The town is now a holiday resort. It was the scene of a decisive victory by Alexander III of Scotland over Haakon IV of Norway in 1263. Pop. 7,321 (est. 1948).

La Rièg̀e (lä ryezh). See Ariège.

La Rioja (lä ryō'ʜä). Province in NW Argentina, extending SE from Chile. The development of the area, lying E of the Andes, is hampered by a limited water supply. Some alfalfa, fruit, tobacco, and wheat are grown, but more important is the mining of alum, coal, salt, and metals. Capital, La Rioja; area, ab. 35,690 sq. mi.; pop. 110,746 (1947).

La Rioja. Town in W Argentina, capital of La Rioja province, ab. 635 mi. NW of Buenos Aires: wines. 23,809 (est. 1947).

La Rioja. Fertile upland region in N Spain, centered in the province of Logroño, and situated on the S bank of the Ebro River.

Larionov (lä.ri.ô'nof), Mikhail Fëdorovich. b. at Teraspol, Russia, May 22, 1881—. Russian painter, decorator, and choreographer, one of his country's leading artists. He studied at the Moscow Academy of Fine Arts, and his work has been exhibited in almost every major city in the world.

Larissa (lą.ris'ą). [Also, Larisa (lä'rē.sä).] Nomos (department) in NE Greece, in Thessaly, ceded by Turkey in 1881. Capital, Larissa; area, ab. 2,943 sq. mi.; pop. 206,829 (1951).

Larissa. [Also, Larisa.] City in NE Greece, the capital of the nomos (department) of Larissa, on the Salambria River ab. 40 mi. E of Trikkala: the ancient capital of the district of Pelasgiotis. It is the seat of a bishopric. In World War II heavy fighting between the Greeks and Germans took place here in April, 1941. Pop. 43,163 (1951).

Larissa Cremaste (lą.ris'ą krē.mas'tē). In ancient geography, a town in SE Thessaly, Greece, near the coast: site of a temple to Jupiter.

Laristan (lär.i.stän', -stan'). Region and former province in S Iran, bordering on the Persian Gulf SE of Fars. The surface is largely mountainous. On the plains near the gulf crops of dates, wheat, barley, and rye are produced; sheep are raised in the mountains. Capital, Bandar Abbas; area, ab. 50,000 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 150,000.

Larius (lār'i.us), Lacus. Latin name of Como, Lake.

La Rive (lȧ rēv), Auguste de. b. at Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 9, 1801; d. at Marseilles, France, Nov. 27, 1873. Swiss physicist. He devoted himself to the investigation of the specific heat of gases and the conductibility of heat, but especially to researches in electricity. His name is associated with many original discoveries in magnetism, electrodynamics, and other branches of science. He invented the process of electro-gilding, and propounded a new theory of the aurora. Among his published works are Mémoire sur les caustiques (1824), Théorie de la pile voltaïque (1836), and a complete treatise on electricity, regarded as authoritative, entitled Archives de l'électricité: Traité de l'électricité théorique et appliquée (1854–58).

Larivey (lȧ.rē.vā), Pierre de. [Original surname, Giunta.] b. at Troyes, France, c1550; d. c1612. French dramatist. He was descended from an Italian family which had translated the Italian name Giunta into Larivey. He is considered one of the creators of French comedy. Both Molière and Regnard were indebted to him. He also translated and imitated Straparola's Nights and other Italian comedies.

Larkin (lär'kin), Edgar Lucien. b. at Freedom, Ill., April 5, 1847; d. Oct. 11, 1924. American astronomer.

Larkmeadow (lärk'med''ō). Novel by Marmaduke Pickthall, published in 1912.

Larkspur (lärk'spėr). Town in W California, in Marin County N of San Francisco: residential suburb. 2,905 (1950).

Larksville (lärks'vil). [Former name, Blindtown.] Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Luzerne County, in an anthracite coal area: coal mining. It was renamed in 1895. Pop. 6,360 (1950).

L'Arlésienne (lȧr.lā.zyen). See Arlésienne, L'.

Larmor (lär'môr), Sir Joseph. b. at Magheragall, County Antrim, Ireland, July 11, 1857; d. 1942. British mathematician and physicist. He was especially noted for his contributions to the theory of the ultimate constitution of matter.

Larnaca (lär'nạ.kạ). [Also: Larnaka, Larnica (lär'ni-kạ); ancient name, Citium.] Town and seaport in Cyprus, on the SE coast. It has an open roadstead. 15,828 (est. 1951).

Larne (lärn). Municipal borough, seaport, and seaside resort in Northern Ireland, in County Antrim, ab. 18 mi. N of Belfast. Larne has linen manufactures and an alumina-processing plant, operating on local and imported bauxite. Its exports consist of agricultural products and alumina. It has a ferry service (36 sea miles) to Stranraer, in SW Scotland, which is the shortest regular sea passage between Great Britain and Ireland. 11,750 (est. 1949).

Larne, Lough. Sea inlet in Northern Ireland, in County Antrim, lying between Islandmagee (a peninsula) and the Irish mainland. Larne municipal borough lies near its entrance. Length, ab. 6 mi.

Larned (lär'nẹd). City in C Kansas, county seat of Pawnee County. 4,447 (1950).

Larned, Josephus Nelson. b. at Chatham, Canada, May 11, 1836; d. Aug. 15, 1913. American librarian and author of histories. He was on the staff (1859–72) of the Buffalo Express, and was elected (1871) superintendent of schools at Buffalo, N.Y. As librarian (1877–97) of the Buffalo Library (library of the Buffalo Young Men's Association at the time), he made it the first library to be classified according to the Dewey decimal system and one of the first to have a children's room. Author of History for Ready Reference (1894–95, supplements 1901 and 1910), History of England (1900), Primers of Right and Wrong, for Young People (1902), A History of the United States for Secondary Schools (1903), Seventy Centuries of the Life of Mankind (1905; republished as Larned's History of the World, 1915), and A History of Buffalo (1911).

Larned, William Augustus. b. at Summit, N.J., Dec. 30, 1872; d. at New York, Dec. 16, 1926. American tennis player. He was ranked (1892–1912) among the first ten players in America 19 times, won the national singles championship seven times, and was six times U.S. representative in Davis Cup matches.

Laroche (lȧ.rosh'), Maria Sophie. [Maiden name, Guttermann.] b. at Kaufbeuren, Bavaria, Germany, Dec. 6, 1731; d. at Offenbach, Hesse, Germany, Feb. 18, 1807. German novelist; girlhood sweetheart of Christoph Martin Wieland and grandmother of Clemens Brentano and Elisabeth von Arnim. Her novels are somewhat after the manner of Richardson. Among them are Das Fraulein von Sternheim (1771), Rosaliens Briefe (1779), and Melusinens Sommerlieder (1806).

La Rochefoucauld (lȧ rosh.fō.kō), François, Duc de. [Additional title, Prince of Marcillac.] b. at Paris, Dec. 15, 1613; d. there, March 17, 1680. French moralist and writer. He is known for his maxims, his memoirs, and his correspondence. The first edition of the Maxims was issued anonymously under the title Réflexions ou sentences et maximes morales (1665). The fifth edition (1678), published during the author's lifetime, is considered definitive. A sixth edition appeared posthumously (1693), containing 50 maxims. The best modern edition was made by Gilbert for the series of the Grands écrivains de la France (1868). La Rochefoucauld's memoirs were published in 1662 under the title Mémoires sur la régence d'Anne d'Autriche. His correspondence was made public in 1818 through Belin's edition. He participated in the court intrigue against Richelieu and Mazarin, fought in the Fronde disorders, and was a friend of Mme. de Sévigné and Mme. de La Fayette.

La Rochefoucauld-Liancourt (-lyäṅ.kör), François Alexandre Frédéric, Duc de. b. Jan. 11, 1747; d. March 27, 1827. French philanthropist and politician. He founded on his estate, Liancourt, near Clermont, a model school for the education of poor soldiers' children, which in 1788 received the name École des Enfants de la Patrie. He emigrated at the beginning of the French Revolution, returned in 1799, and was created a peer at the restoration of the Bourbons in 1814. He wrote Voyage dans les États-Unis d'Amérique fait en 1795–97 (1798).

La Rochejacquelein or La Rochejaquelein (lȧ rosh-zhȧk.laṅ), Henri du Vergier, Comte de. b. near Châtillon, Deux-Sèvres, France, in August, 1772; killed at Nouaillé, France, March 4, 1794. French Vendean leader; brother of Louis du Vergier, Marquis de la Rochejacquelein. He was made generalissimo in October, 1793, was victorious at Antrain, and was defeated at Le Mans in 1793.

La Rochejacquelein or La Rochejaquelein, Louis du Vergier, Marquis de. b. at St.-Aubin, Deux-Sèvres, France, in November, 1777; killed in battle at Pont des Marthes, near St.-Gilles, France, June 4, 1815. French Vendean leader; brother of Henri du Vergier, Comte de La Rochejacquelein.

La Rochejacquelein or La Rochejaquelein, Marie Louise Victoire de Donnissan, Marquise de. b. at Versailles, France, Oct. 25, 1772; d. at Orléans, France, Feb. 15, 1857. French royalist; wife of Louis du Vergier, Marquis de La Rochejacquelein. She published Mémoires (1815).

La Rochelle (lȧ ro.shel). [Medieval name, Rupella.] Town in W France, the capital of the department of Charente-Maritime, on an arm of the Bay of Biscay, at the junction of the Canal de Marans and the Rochelle River. An important fishing port, it also exports agricultural products and imports raw materials, mainly lumber and coal. It has docks, metalworking and boatbuilding industries, textile manufactures, and breweries. The town is a center for tourists because of its old fortifications, picturesque buildings, and many historical associations. In the Middle Ages the town was for a long time under English sovereignty; it was later besieged in the religious wars, when it was a chief stronghold of the Huguenots. The city capitulated to Richelieu in 1628, after a siege lasting 15 months. The harbor installations were damaged in World War II. 48,923 (1946).

La Rochelle (lä rō.shel'). Former name of New Rochelle.

La Rochelle (lȧ ro.shel'), Peace of. Peace signed at La Rochelle, France, July 6, 1573, whereby Charles IX granted the Huguenots a degree of toleration.

La Roche-sur-Yon (lȧ rosh.sür.yôṅ). [Former names: Napoléonville, Bourbon-Vendee, Napoléon-Vendée.] Town in W France, the capital of the department of Vendée, on the Yon River a short distance from the Atlantic Ocean. The town was laid out in regular blocks by Napoleon I in 1804, was named Napoléonville (1808–14), Bourbon-Vendée (1814–48), and Napoléon-Vendée (1848–70, 1870–1945).

La Roda (lä rō'ᴛʜä). Town in E Spain, in the province of Albacete, on the plateau of La Mancha, ab. 21 mi. NW of Albacete; trade in agricultural products. 11,602 (1940).

La Romana (lä rō.mä'nä). City in SE Dominican Republic. 11,587 (1950).

Laromiguière (lä.ro.mē.gver), Pierre. b. at Livignac-le-Haut, Aveyron, France, Nov. 3, 1756; d. at Paris, Aug. 12, 1837. French philosophical writer, author of Leçons de philosophie (1815–18).

La Rothière (lä.ro.tyer). Village in N central France, in the department of Aube, ab. 23 mi. E of Troyes. Here on Feb. 1, 1814, the Allies (100,000) under Blücher defeated the French (45,000) under Napoleon.

Larousse (lä.rös), Pierre Athanase. b. at Toucy, Yonne, France, Oct. 23, 1817; d. at Paris, Jan. 3, 1875. French grammarian, lexicographer, and author; editor of the Grand dictionnaire universel du XIXe siècle (1866–78).

Larra (lär'rä), Mariano José de. [Pseudonym, Fígaro.] b. at Madrid, in March, 1809; committed suicide, Feb. 13, 1837. Spanish satirist and dramatist. He first attracted notice by his El Duende Satirico (1829) and El Pobrecito Hablador (1832). He became editor in chief of the Spanish Review in 1833, and wrote a variety of satirical articles published posthumously in five volumes as Figaro.

Larrazábal (lär.rä.sä'bäl), Felipe. b. c1822; drowned, 1873. Venezuelan author, best known for his Vida del Libertador Simon Bolivar (1863).

Larreta (lär.rā'tä), Enrique Rodríguez. b. at Buenos Aires, March 4, 1875—. Argentine novelist, famous for La Gloria de Don Ramiro (1908), perhaps the best of modern Spanish historical novels. He has also written poetry and stories of ranch life.

Larrey (lä.rā), Dominique Jean, Baron. b. near Bagnères-de-Bigorre, France, in July, 1766; d. at Lyons, France, July 25, 1842. French surgeon. He became known in the Napoleonic campaigns as the head of the medical and surgical department of the army. He introduced the ambulances volantes (mobile hospital units). He published Mémoires de médecine et de chirurgie (1812–18) and other works.

L'Arronge (lä.rôṅzh'), Adolf. b. at Hamburg, Germany, March 8, 1838; d. at Kreuzlingen, Switzerland, May 25, 1908. German theater director and playwright. His early career was in music, as a conductor of orchestras in various cities, but the success of his first farce, Das grosse Lo (1866), attracted him to the theater. He took over the direction of the Lobe Theater at Breslau (1874–78), then bought (1881) the Friedrich-Wilhelmstädtische Theater at Berlin, revamped it as the Deutsches Theater in 1883, and directed it until 1894.

Larry Gould Bay (lar'i göld'). See Gould Bay.

Larsa (lär'sạ). [Biblical name, Ellasar.] Ancient city in Mesopotamia, the king of which (Arioch) was allied with Chedorlaomer in his expedition against the cities in the valley of Siddim (Gen. xiv. 1, 9). It is identified by most Assyriologists with the Babylonian city situated about halfway between the sites of Ur and Erech, on the left bank of the Euphrates, now represented by the ruins of Senkereh. Larsa rose to great prominence just before 2000 B.C. under an Elamite dynasty, ruling over Ur and other Mesopotamian city-states, but fell to the Babylonian kings of the first dynasty c1900 B.C.

Lars Christensen Peak (lärs' kris'tẹn.sẹn). Mountain on Peter I Island, lying NE of Antarctica, in ab. 68°50′ S., 90°30′ W. It is the lofty, rounded dome of an extinct crater, and is the highest point on the island. Elevation, ab. 3,937 ft.

Larsen (lär'sẹn), Hanna Astrup. b. at Decorah, Iowa, Sept. 1, 1873; d. at Elmsford, N.Y., Dec. 3, 1945. American editor, biographer, and translator of Danish books. She was assistant editor (1901–04) of Amerika at Madison, Wis., editor (1904–05) of Pacific-Posten at San Francisco, and literary editor (1913–21) and editor (1921–45) of The American-Scandinavian Review. Her biographies include Knut Hamsun (1922) and Selma Lagerlöf (1935). She translated, from the Danish, J. P. Jacobson's Marie Grubbe (1917) and Niels Lyhne (1919) and stories by Steen Blicher, and edited anthologies of Scandinavian stories.

Larsen, Johannes Anker. See Anker Larsen, Johannes.

Larsen, Karl Halfdan Edvard. b. at Rendsborg, Denmark, July 28, 1860; d. at Copenhagen, July 11, 1931. Danish author. He is best known for his stories from the street life of Copenhagen, especially I det gamle Voldkvarter (In the Old Vold-section, 1899).

Lars Porsena (lärz' pôr'sẹ.nạ). See Porsena, Lars.

Larsson (lär'sôn), Karl. b. at Stockholm, May 28, 1853; d. Jan. 22, 1919. Swedish painter and etcher. He was especially successful in water colors, and in mural painting in tempera. His most important work of the latter type is the decoration of the staircase of the National Museum at Stockholm.

Larvik (lär'vēk). [Also: Laurvig, Laurvik.] Town in SE Norway, in the fylke (county) of Vestfold, just W of the mouth of the Lågen River, on the Larvik Fjord (an arm of the Skaggerak), SW of Oslo. It is a seaport, with shipyards, a lumber and wallboard industry, stone quarries (granite), and small metalworking factories. It is the home port of part of the Norwegian whaling fleet. It received town privileges in 1671. Pop. 9,824 (1946).

La Salle (lạ sal'). City in N Illinois, in La Salle County, on the Illinois River, formerly at the head of navigation, ab. 85 mi. SW of Chicago; industries include zinc smelting, and the manufacture of clocks, glass, cement, sulfuric acid, and metal products. 12,083 (1950).

Lasalle (lạ.sal'). [Also, La Salle.] Town on SE Montreal Island, Quebec, Canada, ab. 3 mi. S of the city limits of Montreal. 11,633 (1951).

La Salle (lä säl), Antoine de. [Also, La Sale.] b. c1388; d. c1462. French poet. Of the three works attributed to him, only the romance Petit Jehan de Saintré is certainly of his authorship, but he is often named as the author of the satirical Les Quinze Joyes de mariage and the collection of novellas known as Cent nouvelles nouvelles.

La Salle, Saint Jean Baptiste (or John Baptist) de. See Saint Jean Baptiste de la Salle.

La Salle (lạ sal'; French, lä säl), Robert Cavelier, Sieur de. b. at Rouen, France, in November, 1643; d. in what is now Texas, March 19, 1687. French explorer of North America, known for his voyage down the Mississippi to its mouth. After having been schooled by the Jesuits, he left his novitiate at the age of 22 and in 1666 went to Canada, where he received from the Sulpicians a grant of land on the island of Montreal. He left his seigniory in 1669, when he set out for the West with a Sulpician mission. He reached the Niagara River and the western end of Lake Ontario. Historical students do not accept the claim, advanced by La Salle himself, that he reached at this time the river that was later to be known as the Ohio. Little is known of his career from 1669 to 1673. When Count de Frontenac came to Quebec as the new governor, La Salle cultivated the friendship of the like-minded Frontenac, who also viewed North America as an area splendidly suitable for French development. Frontenac dispatched La Salle to France to secure a monopoly of the fur trade. La Salle succeeded in his mission and returned to Canada in the company of Friar Louis Hennepin. After spending three years at Fort Frontenac (where Kingston, Ontario, now stands), La Salle again went to France, where he was granted a title of nobility and a patent for exploring and developing the areas of the West. Returning to Canada in 1678, he collaborated with Frontenac in making plans for French expansion in the West. In August, 1678, La Sallé set out aboard the Griffon, which had been built at a shipyard on the Niagara River above the falls, and sailed to Green Bay, where his traders, who had preceded him, loaded a rich store of furs aboard the vessel. The Griffon turned back for Fort Frontenac, and was never heard from again. Meanwhile, La Salle and his party continued their journey by canoe. They went up Lake Michigan, into the St. Joseph River, portaged to the Kankakee River, and went down the Illinois River to Lake Peoria, where they built (January, 1679) Fort Crèvecœur. After sending Father Hennepin and two others to explore the upper Mississippi, La Salle went back to Fort Frontenac and did not return to Fort Crèvecœur until late in 1679, when he found the post abandoned and in ruins. In June, 1681, he was reunited at Mackinac with his associate, Henri de Tonti, and together they erected a fort on the upper Illinois River, near what is now Ottawa. Early in 1682 he and Henri de Tonti set out to explore the Mississippi. It was then that

La Salle probably saw the Ohio, at its mouth, for the first time. He reached the Gulf of Mexico on April 9, 1682; taking possession of the Mississippi River valley in the name of the French sovereign, he called the area Louisiana. La Salle was the first of the French explorers to trace the Mississippi to its mouth. When Frontenac was replaced (1682) by Antoine Lefebre, Sieur de la Barre, La Salle was deprived of the command of his fort and summoned to Quebec by the new governor. Instead, La Salle went to France, where after furnishing descriptions of his adventures, he was restored by royal command to his former status in New France. In July, 1684, having been named viceroy of North America and assigned the command of the region from the Illinois to the Spanish borders, he set out from France at the head of a colonizing expedition bound for the mouth of the Mississippi. However, the fleet missed that point and instead landed on the coast of what is now Texas. The ships returned to France in March, 1685, but La Salle remained behind, determined to find the Mississippi. He was shot by mutineers in his party, on the Brazos River just above the mouth of the Navasota.

La Salle and the Discovery of the Great West. Historical work by Francis Parkman, published in 1869 under the title The Discovery of the Great West.

Las Alpujarras (läs äl.pö.här'räs). See Alpujarras, Las.

Las Animas (läs an'i.mąs). City in E Colorado, county seat of Bent County, on the Arkansas River. 3,223 (1950).

Lasca (läs'kä), Il. See Grazzini, Anton Francesco.

La Scala (lä skä'lä). See Scala, La.

Lascaris (las'ką.ris), Andreas Joannes (or Johannes or Janos or Janus). [Called Rhyndacenus.] b. at Rhyndacus, in Asia Minor, c1445; d. at Rome, 1535. Greek scholar, resident in Italy and France after the fall of Constantinople; possibly the younger brother of Constantine Lascaris. He first lived at the court of Lorenzo de' Medici, and after his patron's death went to Paris, where he taught Greek. In 1503 and again in 1505 he was French ambassador at Venice, and after 1508 went to Rome. His most notable work is an edition of the Greek anthology (1494). He also edited the Greek scholia on the Iliad, and other works.

Lascaris, Constantine. fl. in the second half of the 15th century. Greek scholar. He settled in Italy sometime after 1453, and wrote (1476) a Greek grammar, the first printed book to use Greek characters.

Lascaris, Joannes (or John) IV. See John IV (of the Byzantine Empire).

Las Casas (läs kä'säs), Bartolomé de. [Called "Apostle of the Indians."] b. at Seville, Spain, 1474; d. at Madrid, in July, 1566. Spanish Dominican, celebrated as a defender of the Indians against their Spanish conquerors. He went to Hispaniola in 1502, accompanied Diego Velásquez during the conquest of Cuba, and became a curate there. In 1514 he began to preach against the prevailing system of Indian slavery, and in 1515 went to Spain to intercede for the Indians with Ferdinand. By Cardinal Ximenes he was named "Protector of the Indians," with considerable powers, and returned to Hispaniola in 1516. He again visited Spain to urge his views on Charles V, attempted to plant a colony on the coast of Cumaná, in what is now Venezuela, which was destroyed by the Indians (1521), took the Dominican habit at Santo Domingo (1522) and remained in retirement for eight years, and finally returned to Spain. From 1544 to 1547 he was bishop of Chiapas in Mexico. He published Breuissima relacion de la destruycion de las Indias ("Destruction of the Indies," Seville, 1552), Historia de las Indias (published 1875, but well known before by manuscript copies), and others.

Las Cases (läs käz), Emmanuel Augustin Dieudonné, Comte de. b. near Revel, Haute-Garonne, France, 1766; d. at Paris, May 15, 1842. French historian, a companion (1815–16) of Napoleon at St. Helena. He served the royalist cause in the army of Condé in 1792, and then went to England, returning to France in 1799. In 1808 Napoleon made him a baron, and gave him a position in the council of state. When the emperor was sent to St. Helena, Las Cases, with his eldest son, followed him. He was sent away from the island in November, 1816, for attempting to forward a letter to Lucien Bonaparte without the knowledge of the commandant, and was confined for eight months. To him Napoleon dictated a part of his memoirs. He published Mémorial de Sainte Hélène (1822–23).

Lascelles (las'ęlz), Sir Frank Cavendish. b. at London, 1841; d. there, 1920. English diplomat, who worked for Anglo-German amity until 1914; grandson of Henry Lascelles, 2nd Earl of Harewood. He was consul-general at Cairo during the last two years of Khedive Ismail's reign (1878–79) and afterwards held several ambassadorial and ministerial posts.

Lascelles, Henry. [Title, 2nd Earl of Harewood.] b. Dec. 25, 1767; d. at Bramham, Yorkshire, England, Nov. 24, 1841. English nobleman. As member of Parliament (1796, 1802, 1807, 1812, 1818), he voted as a moderate Tory.

Lascelles, Henry George Charles. [Title, 6th Earl of Harewood.] b. Sept. 9, 1882; d. near Leeds, England, May 24, 1947. English soldier. He married (1922) Princess Mary (only daughter of George V).

Lasco (las'kō), Johannes à. Latinized name of Łaski, Jan.

Las Cruces (läs krö'sęs). Town in S New Mexico, county seat of Dona Ana County: center of an agricultural district. New Mexico College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts is nearby. 12,325 (1950).

Lascy (lä'sē), Franz Moritz. See Lacy, Count Franz Moritz von.

Lascy, Pierre. See Lacy, Peter.

Las Desertas (läs dā.ser'täs). See Desertas.

La Serena (lä sā.rā'nä). [Also, Serena.] Capital of Coquimbo province, in NW Chile, on Coquimbo Bay. Founded in 1544; scene of the Chilean declaration of independence (Feb. 27, 1818); seat of a bishopric. 21,742 (1940).

La Serna y Hinojosa (lä ser'nä ē ē.nō.hō'sä), José de. b. at Jerez de la Frontera, Spain, 1770; d. at Cádiz, Spain, 1832. Spanish general. In 1816, with the rank of major general, he was put in command of the army in Upper Peru. He was defeated by the patriots at Salta and Jujuy and, owing to disagreements with the viceroy, resigned in 1819 and was made lieutenant general and president of the council of war; soon after this he was made commander of the army against San Martín. La Serna was forced to evacuate Lima (July 6, 1821), but he kept his ground in the interior with great skill and resolution, making his capital at Cusco. During three years and a half he was practically cut off from Spain. He was finally defeated by Sucre and captured with his whole army at the battle of Ayacucho, Dec. 9, 1824.

La Seyne-sur-Mer (lä sen.sür.mer). [Also, La Seyne.] Town in SE France, in the department of Var, on the Bay of Toulon. It is a southwestern suburb of Toulon, with a port, shipyards, sawmills, and naval-construction works. The port installations and the town were damaged in World War II. 26,172 (1946).

Lashio (lash'i.ō, lą.shō'). Town in E Burma, in Shan State, ab. 130 mi. NE of Mandalay. It is a trading center and became famous during World War II as a terminus of the Burma Road. It is also the NW terminus of the railway line from Mandalay. It was taken by the Japanese in April, 1942, and recaptured by Chinese forces under U.S. General Daniel I. Sultan on March 8, 1945. Pop. 4,638 (1931).

Lashkar (lush'kąr). Capital of Madhya Bharat, Union of India, ab. 135 mi. W of the city of Cawnpore. It is the center of an important stone quarrying and carving industry, and has manufactures of cotton textiles, metal products, tobacco, and pottery. Founded in 1809 S of the old fortress town of Gwalior, Lashkar has grown rapidly and now forms with the old town a single municipality. 182,492 (1941).

La Sierra (lā si.er'ą). Unincorporated community in S California, in Riverside County, SW of Riverside. 3,802 (1950).

Lasithi (la.sē'thē) or Lasithion (lą.sē'thyôn). See Lassithion.

Łask (łask). Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Łódź, on the Grabia River SW of Łódź; textile industry; sugar refinery. The population declined after the formerly numerous Jewish inhabitants were deported by the Germans during World War II. 3,819 (1946).

Lasker (läs'kėr), Eduard. b. at Jarocin, Posen (then in Prussia), Oct. 14, 1829; d. at New York, Jan. 5, 1884. German statesman, one of the founders and leaders of the National Liberal Party. He participated in the Revolution of 1848 at Vienna, entered the Prussian Landtag in 1865 and the German Reichstag in 1867, and headed the secessionists from the National Liberal Party in 1880. He was active in the unification of Germany, especially in the writing of the law code, but disagreed with Bismarck on economic and financial matters.

Lasker, Emanuel. b. at Berlin, Dec. 24, 1868; d. at New York, Jan. 11, 1941. German chess master and world chess champion (1894–1921), author, mathematician, and philosopher. His leading chess works were Common Sense in Chess and Manual of Chess; in the field of philosophy, he wrote Philosophy of Struggle and Philosophy of the Unfinished. His principal international tournament successes were first prize at Nuremberg 1896, London 1899, Paris 1900, St. Petersburg 1909 (equal first), St. Petersburg 1914, Moravská Ostrava (Mährisch-Ostrau) 1923, and New York 1924. His chief match victories were against Steinitz (1894), in which he won the championship, Marshall (1907), and Tarrasch (1908). He was defeated by Capablanca in their match in 1921.

Laski (las'ki), Harold Joseph. b. at Manchester, England, June 30, 1893; d. at London, March 24, 1950. English political scientist. He was a lecturer at McGill (1914–16), Harvard (1916–20), Amherst (1917), and Yale (1919–20, 1931), served as vice-chairman (1921–30) of the British Institute of Adult Education, was a lecturer (1922–25) at Cambridge, and was professor (1926 et seq.) at the University of London. He served as a member of the executive committee of the Fabian Society (1922–36) and of the Labour Party (1936 et seq.), of which he was chairman (1945–46). Author of The Problem of Sovereignty (1917), Authority in the Modern State (1919), Foundations of Sovereignty (1921), A Grammar of Politics (1925), Communism (1927), Liberty in the Modern State (1930), Democracy in Crisis (1933), Parliamentary Government in England (1938), The American Presidency (1940), Faith, Reason, Civilization (1944), and The American Democracy (1948).

Łaski (läs'kē), Jan. [Latinized, Johannes à Lasco.] b. at the castle of Łask, Poland, 1499; d. at Kalisz, Poland, Jan. 13, 1560. Polish Protestant theologian and friend of Erasmus; the second son of a baron of Łask. He studied (1515–17) at Bologna, and was ordained (1521) a priest and dean at Gniezno. He went (1523) to Basel and lived for a year with Erasmus, returned (October, 1525) to Poland, and became (1538) archdeacon of Warsaw. He became a reformer of the Swiss (Calvinist) school. In 1540 he settled at Emden, in East Friesland, and was appointed (1542) pastor of a congregation there. He went (August, 1548) to England on the invitation of Cranmer, returning (March, 1549) to Emden, and returned (May, 1550) to England, remaining there until September, 1553, when Mary Tudor came to the throne. While in England he was superintendent of the Church of Foreign Protestants at London, and took an important part in the discussions of ecclesiastical affairs. He was a voluminous writer.

Łaskowski (läs.kôf'skē), Zygmunt. b. 1841; d. 1926. Polish scholar. He took part in the Polish uprising (1863) against Russia, fled abroad after its failure, and studied medicine at Paris and London. He was professor of anatomy (1876–1926) at Geneva and president of the Polish National Museum at Rapperswil, Switzerland. He was an indefatigable champion of the independence of Poland.

Lasky (las'ki), Jesse L. b. at San Francisco, Sept. 13, 1880—. American motion-picture producer. He organized (1914) and was president of Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, and was an associate producer with RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., and with Warner Brothers.

Las Navas de Tolosa (läs nä'vȧs dā tō.lō'sä). See under Bailén.

La Solana (lä sō.lä'nä). Town in C Spain, in the province of Ciudad Real, ab. 40 mi. E of Ciudad Real: agricultural trade. 13,462 (1940).

La Soufrière (lä sö.frē.er). See Soufrière.

La Souterraine (lä sö.te.ren). Town in C France, in the department of Creuse, W of Guéret. It is an old town, with a Romanesque and Gothic church, built between 1150 and 1225. The town was slightly damaged in World War II. 5,074 (1946).

Las Palmas (läs päl'mäs). Province of Spain, comprising the E part of the Canary Islands, including the major islands of Grand Canary, Fuerteventura, and Lanzarote. Capital, Las Palmas; area, ab. 1,569 sq. mi.; pop. 359,926 (1950).

Las Palmas. [Eng. trans., "The Palms."] City in the Canary Islands, the capital of the Spanish province of Las Palmas, on the N shore of Grand Canary island. It is the largest place in the islands, exporting bananas, tomatoes, potatoes, almonds, and citrus fruits. Hats and woolen and leather goods are manufactured, chiefly in home industries. There are commercial fisheries; shipyards and port facilities are available at nearby La Luz. It is a year-round seaside resort attracting many visitors. 138,441 (1950).

La Spezia (lä spe'tsyä). Province in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Liguria. Capital, La Spezia; area, ab. 345 sq. mi.; pop. 222,080 (1936).

La Spezia. [Also: Spezia, Spezzia.] City and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Liguria, capital of the province of La Spezia, on the Gulf of Spezia ab. 50 mi. SE of Genoa. It is the chief naval station of Italy, with a large, protected harbor, marine arsenal, docks, and shipyards. There are machinery, electrical equipment, and chemical industries, stone quarries and fisheries. The naval station was planned by Napoleon but came into actual being only after the establishment of the kingdom of Italy. Extensive damage was suffered during World War II. Pop. of commune, 106,119 (1936), 111,917 (1951); of city, 80,399 (1936).

Las Pilas (läs pē'läs). Volcanic peak in W Nicaragua, ab. 15 mi. E of León. Elevation, ab. 3,514 ft.

Lassa (lä'sȧ, las'ȧ). See Lhasa.

Las Salinas (läs sä.lē'näs). Place ab. 3 mi. N of Cusco, Peru: so called because salt was once obtained there. Here, on April 26, 1538, the forces of Diego de Almagro (the elder), commanded by his lieutenant, Rodrigo de Orgoñez, were defeated by Francisco Pizarro's army under his brother, Hernando. Almagro was captured and executed soon after.

Lassalle (lä.säl'), Ferdinand. b. at Breslau, April 11, 1825; d. at Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 31, 1864. German socialist. Soon after finishing (1845) his studies at Breslau and Berlin, he became involved in the separation suit of the Countess Hatzfeldt; as her champion, fighting the case through many courts, he eventually secured for her a liberal settlement from her husband, but his implication in the stealing of a strongbox containing evidence remained a black mark against him for the rest of his life. He was jailed (1849) for a year during the revolutionary troubles in Germany. In 1859, after being barred from the city as a subversive, he was permitted to enter Berlin. Under the influence of Marxian doctrine, which he modified by substituting government action for revolution and nationalism for internationalism, he now entered politics as the champion of the workingman. He saw in labor the balancing force (he had been a Hegelian since his university days) between the conservatism of Bismarck and the liberalism of the middle class. He believed, however, that labor was trapped by the wage system, which, by attracting workers when wages began to rise and then tending to fall to a bare subsistence level because of the greater labor supply, acted to keep labor from becoming a force in economics and politics commensurate with its inherent power. He wanted to see coöperatives set up, through which labor could get around this "iron law," and to this end he founded (1863) the Allgemeiner Deutscher Arbeiterverein, regarded as the foundation of the German Social Democratic Party, in an effort to gain political power to force the state to give the workers funds which they could otherwise never obtain. In general he was met by lack of enthusiasm on the workers' part, though his agitation by correspondence and pamphleteering brought him renown elsewhere. He was killed in a duel by the fiancé of Helene von Dönniges, the girl he wanted to marry against her parents' will.

Lassalle (lȧ.sȧl), Jean. b. at Lyons, France, Dec. 14, 1847; d. at Paris, Sept. 7, 1909. French operatic baritone.

Lassell (lȧ.sel′), William. b. at Bolton, Lancashire, England, June 18, 1799; d. at Maidenhead, Berkshire, England, Oct. 5, 1880. English astronomer, noted also as a designer and builder of early reflecting telescopes. He discovered the satellite of Neptune, Oct. 10, 1846, the seventh satellite of Saturn (Hyperion) Sept. 19, 1848 (simultaneously with Bond), and the two inner satellites of Uranus (Ariel and Umbriel) Oct. 24, 1851, and catalogued a large number of new nebulae.

Lassen (läs′ən), Christian. b. at Bergen, Norway, Oct. 22, 1800; d. at Bonn, Germany, May 8, 1876. Norwegian Orientalist. He published Indische Altertumskunde (Indian Antiquities, 1844–62) and other works, edited various Sanskrit works, and deciphered the Old Persian cuneiform inscriptions.

Lassen, Eduard. b. at Copenhagen, April 18, 1830; d. at Weimar, Germany, Jan. 15, 1904. Belgian composer. In 1857 his opera Le Roi Edgard was produced (as Landgraf Ludwigs Brautfahrt) at Weimar under the auspices of Liszt. He was made conductor of the Weimar opera after Liszt's retirement. Among his other works are the operas Frauenlob, Der Gefangene, and Tristan and Isolde.

Lasseran-Massencome (läs.rän.mȧ.sän.kom), Blaise de. See Montluc, Blaise de Lasseran-Massencome, Seigneur de.

Lasserre (lȧ.ser), Pierre. b. at Orthez, Basses-Pyrénées, France, May 31, 1867; d. at Paris, Nov. 4, 1930. French literary critic. He was the author of Le Romantisme français (1907), La Jeunesse de Renan (3 vols., 1925–31), and other items of literary criticism. He joined the Royalist Action Française at the time of the Dreyfus case and served as literary critic of its official newspaper (1908–14). He underwent a complete change of heart during World War I and during his last years argued for the liberalism which he had previously deplored.

Lassigny (lä.sēn′yę̄; French, lȧ.sē.nyē), Battle of. See Matz, Battle of.

Lassithion (lä.sē′thyôn). [Also: Lasithi, Lasithion.] Nomos (department) in S Greece, on the island of Crete. Capital, Hagios Nikolaos; area, ab. 738 sq. mi.; pop. 73,748 (1951).

Lasso (lä′sō), Galo Plaza. See Plaza Lasso, Galo.

Lasso (läs′sō), Orlando di. See Lassus, Orlandus.

L'Assomption (lȧ.sôn̥p.syôn̥). River in S Quebec, Canada, flowing generally S from the Laurentian Mountains to the St. Lawrence River just N of Montreal Island. Length, ab. 100 mi.

Lasson (läs′on), Adolf. b. at Altstrelitz, Germany, March 12, 1832; d. at Berlin, Dec. 19, 1917. German Hegelian philosopher. Author of Das Kulturideal und der Krieg (1868) and System der Rechtsphilosophie (1882). He translated some of the works of Aristotle.

Lassus (las′us), Orlandus. [Also: Orlando di Lasso, Orlande de Lassus; original name, Roland Delattre.] b. at Mons, in Hainault (now part of Belgium), c1530; d. at Munich, June 14, 1594. Belgian composer, second only to Palestrina in the 16th century. He was made director of chamber music to Albert V, Duke of Bavaria, and in 1562 was made Kapellmeister (choir leader). Here he composed the famous music for the Seven Penitential Psalms. He composed over 2,000 works, chiefly sacred, including between 50 and 60 masses, and a number of madrigals, songs, and other works.

Lasswitz (läs′vits), Kurd. b. at Breslau, Germany (now Wrocław, Poland), April 20, 1848; d. at Gotha, Germany, Oct. 17, 1910. German philosopher and writer. Author of Geschichte der Atomistik vom Mittelalter bis Newton (1890), Wirklichkeiten, Beiträge zum Weltverständnis (1900), and Auf zwei Planeten (1897), a work of fiction.

Last (läst), Doctor. Shoemaker who passes an amusing examination for the degree of M.D. in Samuel Foote's The Devil upon Two Sticks.

Lastarría (läs.tär.rē′ä), José Victorino. b. at Rancagua, Chile, 1817; d. at Santiago, Chile, June 14, 1888. Chilean civil servant and author, especially of works relating to the constitutional history of Chile.

Last Chance. Former name of Helena, Mont.

Last Days of Pompeii (pom.pā′ē), The. Historical novel by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, published in 1834.

Last Judgment, The. Among the noted paintings with this subject are the following. 1. A painting by Fra Angelico da Fiesole, at Berlin. It is an altarpiece in three parts. 2. A painting by Michelangelo, covering the entire end wall above the high altar of the Sistine Chapel, Rome. The composition is separated into five subdivisions: (1) above, angels with the emblems of Christ's Passion; (2) upper middle, Christ, with a gesture of condemnation, as the divine Avenger, with Mary at his feet; (3) on both sides, the chief of the elect; (4) at Christ's feet, the angel sounding the trump of doom; (5) below, the fate of those awakened from the dead, the blessed borne upward, and the accursed dashed down by angels and hurled by devils into torment. The painting has suffered from incense and taper smoke, and above all from the clothing of many of Michelangelo's undraped figures. 3. A fresco in the Campo Santo, Pisa, formerly ascribed to Orcagna, but now to the Lorenzetti (1350). The blessed and the lost are rising from their graves and being conducted to one side or the other by angels or by devils. Many great ecclesiastical and civil dignitaries are represented as in the latter case. The subject is powerfully presented; the gesture of condemnation made by Christ toward the damned is famous. 4. A very large painting by Rubens (1617), in the Old Pinakothek at Munich. The Three Persons of the Trinity occupy the central upper part of the canvas. Christ sits, as Judge, with uplifted right arm motioning to the dead to rise. The saints are gathered about the Deity. Below, the dead are returning to life, and the entire right side is occupied by the damned, who are hurled down to perdition by the archangel Michael with flaming sword. 5. An altarpiece by Roger van der Weyden (1447), in the hospital at Beaune, France. It consists of nine compartments, with six more on the outside shutters, and contains portraits of Chancellor Rollin (the donor), of Philippe le Bon of Burgundy, and other personages. It is one of the finest of early Flemish pictures, beautiful in color. 6. A painting by Fra Angelico, in the Accademia, Florence. Christ turns toward the blessed, with a gesture of doom to the lost, who, as they rise from their graves, are dragged off by devils to their fate. Among the lost appear monks and even popes. The angels and the blessed upon the flowery meadows, and at the gates of paradise, are of the greatest beauty and charm.

Last Judgment, The. English version of Ludwig Spohr's oratorio Die Letzten Dinge, produced in 1830, prepared by Edward Taylor.

Last of the Barons, The. Historical novel by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, published in 1843.

Last of the Mohicans (mō.hē′kạnz), The. One of the "Leather-Stocking" series of novels by James Fenimore Cooper, published in 1826. It is so called from the nickname of Uncas, one of its leading characters.

Lastovo (läs′tô.vô). [Italian, Lagosta.] Island in W Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia, off the Dalmatian coast, in the Adriatic Sea ab. 8 mi. S of Korčula. Area, ab. 17 sq. mi.

Last Puritan, The. [Subtitle, A Memoir in the Form of a Novel.] Novel by George Santayana, published in 1936.

Lastra a Signa (läs′trä ä sē′nyä). Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Tuscany, in the province of Firenze, on the Arno River, ab. 8 mi. W of Florence. Its 14th-century walls still stand. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II, except the Torre di Baccio, which suffered some roof damage. Pop. of commune, 13,228 (1936); of town, 2,060 (1936).

Las Tres Marías (läs trās mä.rē′äs). See Tres Marías.

Last Supper. Meal partaken of by Jesus Christ and the 12 apostles on the eve of Christ's Passion and Crucifixion, as related in the New Testament (Mat. xxvi. 17–30; Mark, xiv. 12–26; Luke, xxii. 7–39; John, xiii–xvii, and 1 Cor. xi. 23–29). The consensus of tradition and of critical opinion is that this gathering occurred on a Thursday night, being either the 13th or the 14th of the month of Nisan, c33 A.D., and that the scene was an upper room in a house in Jerusalem belonging to one of Christ's disciples, probably to the mother of the apostle Mark, but possibly to Nicodemus or to Joseph of Arimathea. On this occasion Jesus, bidding his apostles to partake of bread and of wine, pronounced the words which are considered to have established the sacrament of the Eucharist (which, accordingly, is often called the Lord's Supper) and he also predicted the betrayal by Judas Iscariot. The Last Supper has been a subject of Christian art since the 6th century. The most famous of all representations of the event is the wall painting by Leonardo da Vinci in the refectory of Santa Maria delle Grazie at Milan; in this work (which has unfortunately suffered from dampness, neglect, and unskillful restoration), Jesus is shown seated at the middle of a long table with the apostles ranged on each side of him, showing their amazement and excitement at the announcement of the impending betrayal. Other noted paintings of the Last Supper are those of Dirk Bouts in the Church of Saint Pierre at Louvain, Belgium; of Justus of Ghent, a pupil of Van Eyck, in the Instituto di belle Arti at Urbino, Italy: a beautiful example of early Flemish art, and one of the oldest oil paintings extant in Italy; of Luca Signorelli, in the Duomo (cathedral) of Cortona; of Ghirlandaio in the refectory of Ognissanti at Florence; of Tintoretto in the Church of San Giorgio Maggiore, Venice; of Nicolas Poussin in the Louvre at Paris; and of E. von Gebhart at Berlin.

Last Tournament, The. One of the Idylls of the King, by Alfred Tennyson.

Las Vegas (läs vā'gəs). City in SE Nevada, county seat of Clark County: resort center noted for its gambling casinos. It is also the city nearest to the proving grounds of the Atomic Energy Commission, located in the desert ab. 35 mi. NW. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 8,422 (1940), 24,624 (1950).

Las Vegas. [Former name, Nuestra Señora de los Dolores de Las Vegas.] City and town in N New Mexico, county seat of San Miguel County, E of Santa Fe: shipping center for agricultural produce and for livestock. It is the seat of New Mexico Highlands University. Elevation, ab. 6,395 ft.; total population, 13,763 (1950), administratively divided between the city of Las Vegas, pop. 7,494 (1950), and the adjoining town of Las Vegas, pop. 6,269 (1950).

Las Villas (läs vē'yäs; Spanish, läz bē'yäs). [Former name, Santa Clara.] Province in C Cuba: sugar, cattle, coffee, fruit, honey, lumber, minerals, and wax. Capital, Santa Clara; area, ab. 8,267 sq. mi.; pop. 938,581 (1943).

Laswari (ləs.wä'ri). Place in Rajasthan, Union of India, ab. 78 mi. SW of Delhi. Here on Nov. 1, 1803, the British (ab. 4,000) under Gerard Lake defeated the Mahrattas (9,000).

Lászlό de Lombos (läs'lō dę lōm'bōsh), Philip Alexius. b. at Budapest, Hungary, June 1, 1869; d. Nov. 22, 1937. English portrait painter, whose sitters were mostly members of royal families and heads of states. He studied at the Industrial Art School and the National Drawing school at Budapest, under A. Liezenmayer at Munich, and under Lefebvre and Benjamin Constant in the Julian Academy at Paris. His sitters included King Edward VII, Kaiser Wilhelm II, President Theodore Roosevelt, and Benito Mussolini.

Latacunga (lä.tä.köng'gä). [Also, Tacunga.] City in C Ecuador, capital of Cotopaxi province, on the Patate River: center of a cattle and dairying district. It was founded in 1534, on the site of an Indian village. Between 1678 and 1797, it was destroyed four times by earthquakes. Elevation, ab. 9,100 ft.; pop. 20,357 (est. 1944).

Latakia (lat.ą.kē'ą). [Also: al-Ladhiqiya, Ladikieh, Lattakieh; French, Lattaquié; Greek, Laodikeia; Latin, Laodicea, Laodicea ad Mare.] Chief seaport of Syria, ab. 90 mi. SW of Aleppo. Its location is not suitable for it to handle all of Syria's export and import trade, much of which passes through Beirut, in Lebanon. It is connected with Aleppo by road. It exports Latakia tobacco, which derives its name from this city. It was the northernmost of the ancient Phoenician cities on the E coast of the Mediterranean. 36,687 (1943).

Latané (lat'ąn.ā), John Holladay. b. at Staunton, Va., April 1, 1869; d. at New Orleans, La., Jan. 1, 1932. American historian. He was professor (1902–13) of history at Washington and Lee University, and professor (1913 et seq.) of American history and department head at the Johns Hopkins University. Author of Diplomatic Relations of the United States and Spanish America (1900), America as a World Power (1907), History of the United States (1918), From Isolation to Leadership (1918), The United States and Latin America (1920), and History of American Foreign Policy (1927).

Late George Apley (jôrj ap'li), The. Novel by J. P. Marquand, published in 1937 and awarded a Pulitzer prize in 1938. The work satirizes the life of the old families of Boston who strive to maintain their standards of family and tradition in a 20th-century world.

La Tène (lä ten). Locality in W Switzerland, on the NE shore of the Lake of Neuchâtel, ab. 3 mi. E of Neuchâtel. It is noted as the site of the excavation of an ancient Celtic lake village, dating from c400 B.C., which has given its name to the last prehistoric period of the late Iron Age culture in C Europe.

Lateran (lat'ę.rąn). Palace in the E part of Rome. The present edifice dates from the 16th to 18th centuries. The palace was originally named for the Roman family Lateranus to which, until the time of Nero, it belonged. Nero put the last owner, Plautius Lateranus, to death, and appropriated the palace. It was given by Constantine (who also built a church in its precincts) to the Pope.

Lateran Council. Name of a number of ecclesiastical councils held at Rome. The following five are regarded by the Roman Catholic Church as ecumenical: 1. The council of 1123, under Pope Calixtus II, which confirmed the Concordat of Worms and renewed the grant of indulgences promulgated by Pope Urban II in favor of the Crusaders. 2. The council of 1139, under Pope Innocent II, which condemned the antipope Anacletus II and Arnold of Brescia. 3. The council of 1179, under Pope Alexander III, which declared that the popes should be elected exclusively by the college of cardinals, and that a two-thirds vote of the college should be necessary to form a valid election; the council also declared a crusade against the Cathari. 4. The council of 1215, under Pope Innocent III, which condemned the Albigenses. 5. The council of 1512–17, under popes Julius II and Leo X, which abrogated the canons of the Council of Pisa.

Lateran Pact. See Italo-Vatican Agreement.

Laterza (lä.ter'tsä). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Taranto, on the Lato River W of Taranto: agricultural trade; parish church with façade dating from the 15th century. Pop. of commune, 10,364 (1936); of town, 10,022 (1936).

La Teste (lä test). [Former name, La Teste-de-Buch (-dę.büsh).] Town in SW France, in the department of Gironde, in the Bassin d'Arcachon, ab. 32 mi. SW of Bordeaux. It has a port for coastwise shipping, and has oyster fisheries. 9,066 (1946).

Lateur (lä.tėr'), Frank. Original name of Streuvels, Stijn.

Latgale (lät'gä.le). Region and former province in E Latvia, largely N of the Dvina (Daugava) River. It is a region of dairy farming, with crops of flax, potatoes, and grains. Capital, Daugavpils (Dvinsk); area, ab. 6,054 sq. mi.; pop. 567,164 (1935).

Latham (lä.thąm), Hubert. b. at Paris, Jan. 10, 1883; killed (by a buffalo) near Fort Archambault, French Equatorial Africa, June 7, 1912. French pioneer aviator, identified with the development of the Antoinette monoplane from its inception. He first attracted attention by two attempts to fly across the English Channel in July, 1909; in both attempts he fell into the sea when his motor failed. He was one of the first to ascend to considerable altitudes in an airplane, and reached 3,444 ft. on Jan. 7, 1910, at Châlons, France.

Latham (lā'thąm), John. b. at Eltham, near London, June 27, 1740; d. Feb. 4, 1837. English physician and ornithologist, one of the founders of the Linnean Society (1788). He published A General Synopsis of Birds (1781–85), Index ornithologicus sive systema ornithologiae (1790), A General History of Birds (11 vols. 1821–28), and others. The illustrations of the last-named work were all designed, etched, and colored by himself.

Latham, Robert Gordon. b. at Billingborough, Lincolnshire, England, March 24, 1812; d. at Putney, London, March 9, 1888. English philologist, ethnologist, and physician. He published Norway and the Norwegians (1840), The English Language (1841), An Elementary English Grammar (1843), A Handbook of the English Language (1851), an edition of Johnson's Dictionary, and numerous works on ethnology. He was the first to ascribe a European rather than Asiatic origin to the Aryans.

Lathbury (lath'ber''i, -bėr.i), Mary Artemisia. b. at Manchester, N.Y., Aug. 10, 1841; d. Oct. 20, 1913. American hymn writer and author of books for children, such as Fleda and the Voice (1878), Seven Little Maids (1882), Twelve Times One (1885), and Child's Story of the Bible (1898).

Lathbury, Thomas. b. at Brackley, Northamptonshire, England, 1798; d. at Bristol, England, Feb. 11, 1865. English ecclesiastical historian.

Lathrippa (la.thrip'a). Name used by Ptolemy for the city now called Medina, in Saudi Arabia.

Lathrop (lā'throp), Francis Augustus. b. at sea near the Hawaiian Islands, June 22, 1849; d. at Woodcliff, N.J., Oct. 18, 1909. American painter; brother of George Parsons Lathrop. He assisted Burne-Jones and William Morris at London, and came to the U.S. in 1873. He is best known for his portraits and mural paintings, the most important of the murals being the reredos in Saint Bartholomew's Church, New York.

Lathrop, George Parsons. b. at Honolulu, Aug. 25, 1851; d. at New York, April 19, 1898. American journalist and author; brother of Francis Augustus Lathrop and son-in-law of Nathaniel Hawthorne. He wrote A Study of Hawthorne (1876), A Masque of Poets (1878), An Echo of Passion (1882), Spanish Vistas (1883), Newport (1884), and Behind Time (1888).

Lathrop, Julia Clifford. b. at Rockford, Ill., June 29, 1858; d. April 15, 1932. American worker for social reform. She was graduated from Vassar College in 1880. She spent part of her time from 1890 as a resident of Hull House, Chicago, and was a member of the Illinois State Board of Charities. She was appointed head of the Children's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Commerce and Labor in 1912, where she was active until her retirement in 1921.

Lathyrus (la.thī'rus), Ptolemy. See Ptolemy VIII.

Latiano (lä.tyä'nō). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Brindisi, SW of Brindisi: agricultural district. Pop. of commune, 10,506 (1936); of town, 9,496 (1936).

Lätimaa (la'ti.mä). Estonian name of Latvia.

Latimer (lat'i.mėr), Hugh. b. at Thurcaston, Leicestershire, England, c1485; burned at Oxford, England, Oct. 16, 1555. English prelate and reformer. He was graduated from Cambridge in 1510, became a priest, rose in favor at court, especially with Thomas Cromwell, and obtained the benefice of West Kington (or Kineton), Wiltshire. He was cited to appear before the Bishop of London on a charge of heresy Jan. 29, 1532, but recanted April 10. He was made a royal chaplain (1534) and bishop of Worcester (1535), and resigned his bishopric July 1, 1539, on account of his opposition to the Act of the Six Articles (by his own account at the request of King Henry VIII). He was ordered into the custody of the Bishop of Chichester, but was soon released. During the reign of Edward VI, he regained his influence at court and identified himself more closely with the Reformation. On the accession of Mary Tudor he was arrested and committed to the Tower of London (September, 1553). He was sent to Oxford with Nicholas Ridley and Thomas Cranmer to defend their doctrines regarding the Mass before the divines of Oxford and Cambridge, in March, 1554. He was excommunicated April 20, and was burned with Ridley "at the ditch over against Balliol College" on Oct. 16, 1555. His words to Ridley as the torch was applied to the faggots have become famous: "Be of good comfort, Master Ridley, and play the man; we shall this day light such a candle, by God's grace, in England, as I trust shall never be put out."

Latin (lat'in). Language of ancient Rome, of the Indo-European family of languages. From Rome it spread to the furthermost reaches of the Roman Empire, and was for centuries after the fall of Rome the language of scholars and the clergy. The various modern Romance languages developed chiefly from Latin.

Latina (lä.tē'nä). [Formerly, Littoria.] Province in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Latium. Capital, Latina; area, ab. 868 sq. mi., pop. 227,218 (1936).

Latina. [Former name, Littoria.] Town in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Latium, the capital of the province of Latina, SW of Rome. The town, one of the newest in Italy, was built on flat reclaimed land in the former Pontine marshes, from 1929 onward, and metal-working, soap, glass, leather, sugar-refining, and canning industries were developed; cattle raising has been fostered in the district. 19,654 (1936).

Latin America (lat'in a.mer'i.ka). As a geographic term, Latin America is commonly applied to all of the lands lying S and SE of the U.S., including South America, Central America, and the West Indies. In the cultural sense, the term properly applies to those areas commonly speaking Latin languages (Spanish, Portuguese, and (in French Guiana) French), and excludes British, Dutch, and U.S. possessions (except Puerto Rico). The political term "Latin American Republics" applies to the 20 self-governing republics of Latin America: Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela.

Latin Empire. Empire established by the Crusaders of W and S Europe at Constantinople in 1204 during the fourth Crusade. It was overthrown in 1261.

Latini (la.tī'nī). [Also, Latins (lat'inz).] Ancient people inhabiting Latium who, with the Sabines, were the ancestors of the Romans. Theirs was a dominant culture in Italy. They were never completely subjugated nor absorbed by the Etruscans.

Latini (lä.tē'nē), Brunetto. b. at Florence, 1230; d. there, 1294. Italian poet, scholar, and orator; a friend of Dante. His most noted work is an encyclopedia (Trésor) written in French.

Latin League (lat'in). Confederation of the cities in Latium, existing in Italy in the earliest historic times and continuing until 338 B.C., when the Latin towns were finally incorporated in the dominion of Rome, following the Great Latin War (340–338 B.C.), which resulted from the towns' attempts to make themselves equals of Rome within the League or to secede if that were not possible. According to the earliest tradition, the League included 30 cities, among which Alba Longa held the preëminent place. After the fall of Alba, Aricia, Lanuvium, and Tusculum, with other important communities not originally included, were united with the League. The confederation held assemblies in the grove of Ferentino, below Marino in the Alban Hills, and had a common religious sanctuary in the temple of Jupiter Latiaris on the summit of the Alban Mount (Monte Cavo), where annual sacrifices were celebrated.

Latin Union. Name given to a monetary alliance of France, Belgium, Italy, and Switzerland, formed by convention Dec. 23, 1865, and joined by Greece in 1868. Its object was the maintenance and regulation of a uniform interchangeable gold and silver coinage, based on the French franc. Its limited term was continued by two renewals (1878 and 1885), Belgium withdrawing on the latter occasion and adopting the single gold standard.

Latinus (la.tī'nus). In Roman legend, a king of Latium; father of Lavinia and father-in-law of Aeneas. He is variously said to be the son of Faunus, Odysseus, or Hercules, or an aspect of Jupiter.

Latin War (lat'in), Great. War (340–338 B.C.) between Rome and Latium, ending in the subjugation of the latter.

Latin Way. See Via Latina.

Latium (lā'shi.um). In ancient geography, the part of C Italy lying along the Mediterranean SE of Etruria and NW of Campania. The name was originally restricted to the land of the Latini or Latins, chiefly comprised in the Roman Campagna. Its chief cities formed the Latin League, which was at war with Rome from 340 to 338 B.C., and was incorporated with Rome after 338 B.C. In an extended sense Latium (also Latium Adjectum or Novum) was the region from the Tiber to the Liris or to Mount Massicus, including the territories of the Latini, Hernicans, Volscians, and Auruncans, and (in part) of the Aequians.

Latium. [Italian, Lazio.] Compartimento (region) in C Italy, containing the provinces of Frosinone, Latina (formerly Littoria), Rieti, Roma, and Viterbo. It is bounded by Tuscany and Umbria on the N, by Abruzzi e Molise and Campania on the S and E, it reaches from the W slopes of the Apennines down to the marshy coastlands along the Tyrrhenian Sea and includes the lower valley of the Tiber River, with the city of Rome. Livestock raising is more important than agriculture; its industries are concentrated at Rome. Severe fighting took place here in the latter part of World War II, especially around Anzio. Area, ab. 6,634 sq. mi.; pop. 2,647,088 (1936), 3,292,713 (1951).

Latmus (lat'mus). In ancient geography, a mountain range in Caria, Asia Minor, E of Miletus. Here, according to myth, Endymion slept forever and Selene, the moon goddess, came to gaze on his beauty.

Lato (lā'tō) or Latopolis (la.top'o.lis). Ancient names of Isna.

Latobrigi (la.tob'ri.jī). Ancient Celtic people mentioned by Caesar as being associated with the Helvetii in their campaign of 58 B.C. in S Gaul. They probably lived in the S part of what is now Baden, Germany.

Latona. Latin name of Leto.

Latorre (lä.tôr'rā), Mariano. [Called the "Chilean Pereda."] b. 1886—. Chilean short-story writer, whose themes are taken from the rural life of his homeland. Author of Cuentos del Maule (1912), Cuna de cóndores (1918), Chilenos del mar (1929), Hombres y zorros (1937), and others.

La Torre, Miguel de. d. after 1823. Spanish general in South America.

Latouche (lä.tösh), Gaston. b. at St.-Cloud, France, Oct. 29, 1854; d. at Paris, July 24, 1913. French painter and etcher. Among his works are illustrations for Zola's L'Assomoir, the paintings The Prodigal Child, The Last Chapter, The Miraculous Fish, The Four Seasons, and Portrait of Braquemond.

La Tour (lä tör), Abbé de. Pseudonym of Charrière, Isabelle de.

Latour (lä.tör), Louis Antoine Tenant de. b. at St.-Yrieix, Haute-Vienne, France, Aug. 30, 1808; d. at Sceaux, Seine, France, Aug. 27, 1881. French poet and miscellaneous writer.

La Tour d'Auvergne (lä tör dō.verny'). See also under Bouillon, and under Turenne.

La Tour d'Auvergne, Théophile Malo Corret de. b. at Carhaix, Finistère, France, Nov. 23, 1743; killed at Oberhausen, near Neuburg, Bavaria, Germany, June 27, 1800. French soldier, who was named by Napoleon "the first grenadier of the republic" (he refused the rank of general). He was distinguished in the wars of 1792–1800, and was commander of the "Infernal Column." So great was the admiration with which he was regarded that from his death to 1814 his name was retained on the roll call of his company of grenadiers as a mark of honor, the color sergeant answering, "Dead on the field of honor," when it was called (and even into the 20th century, in one unit of the French army, this ritual was observed on ceremonial occasions).

La Tour du Pin (lä tör dü pañ), Patrice de. b. 1911—. French poet, author of La Quête de joie (1933) and Le Lucernaire (1936). Identifiable with no recent school, his poetry combines mysticism and metaphysics with a great severity of technique.

Latourette (lä.tu.ret'), Kenneth Scott. b. at Oregon City, Ore., Aug. 9, 1884—. American Baptist clergyman, Orientalist, and author. He was a faculty member (1910–12) of the College of Yale in China, professor of missions (1921 et seq.) and of Oriental history (1927 et seq.) at Yale, and director (1946 et seq.) of graduate studies in the department of religion at Yale. Author of Development of China (1917), Development of Japan (1918), The Chinese, Their History and Culture (1934), A History of the Expansion of Christianity (7 vols., 1937–45), The Christian Outlook (1947), The History of Japan (1947), and other books.

La Trappe (lä träp). Medieval Cistercian abbey in the department of Orne, France, N of Mortagne. The abbey was founded in 1140, and later gave its name to the Trappists. It was restored in the late 19th century.

Latreille (lä.trey'), Pierre André. b. at Brives, Corrèze, France, Nov. 29, 1762; d. at Paris, Feb. 6, 1833. French entomologist, an associate of Lamarck and Fabricius. Among his works are Histoire des salamandres (1800), Histoire naturelle des singes (1801), Histoire des fourmis (1802), Histoire naturelle des reptiles (1802), Histoire naturelle des crustacés et des insectes (1802–05), Familles naturelles du règne animal (1825), and Cours d'entomologie (1831).

Latrille (lä.trēy'), Charles Ferdinand. See Lorencez, Comte de.

Latrobe (la.trōb'). Borough in SW Pennsylvania, in Westmoreland County, ab. 34 mi. SE of Pittsburgh: manufactures of steel and textiles. The town was platted in 1851. Pop. 11,811 (1950).

Latrobe, Benjamin Henry. b. in Yorkshire, England, May 1, 1764; d. at New Orleans, La., Sept. 3, 1820. American architect. He was educated at a Moravian school in Saxony and at the University of Leipzig. In 1785 he served in the Prussian army; he returned to England in 1786, went to Norfolk, Va., in 1796, and to Philadelphia in 1798. He designed many important engineering works and buildings at Richmond, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. In 1803 Jefferson appointed him architect of the Capitol at Washington, to succeed William Thornton, whose designs he modified greatly. He rebuilt the Capitol after its partial destruction by the British in 1814, introducing in the north wing the six columns of the vestibule designed to represent bundles of cornstalks, and similar tobacco-stalk columns in the circular colonnade. He had a large practice as an engineer, and in 1812 was interested with Fulton in introducing steam navigation.

Latrobe, Charles Joseph. b. at London, March 20, 1801; d. there, Dec. 2, 1875. English traveler and politician; son of Christian Ignatius Latrobe. In 1832–34 he traveled in North America, going to Mexico with Washington Irving, and in 1839 was appointed superintendent of the Port Philip district of New South Wales, and later (Jan. 27, 1851) lieutenant governor of Victoria, a post which he resigned May 5, 1854.

Latrobe, Christian Ignatius. b. at Leeds, England, Feb. 12, 1757; d. near Manchester, England, May 6, 1836. English composer. He took orders in the Church of the United Brethren, and in 1795 was appointed their secretary in England. He composed a number of anthems, a Te Deum, a Miserere, and others. His principal work was his Selection of Sacred Music from the Works of the Most Eminent Composers of Germany and Italy (6 vols., 1806–25).

Lattakieh (lät.tä.kē'e). See Latakia.

Lattaquié (lä.tä.kyā). French name of Latakia.

Lattas (lät'täs), Michael. Original name of Omer Pasha.

Latter-Day Saints. [Full name, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.] Religious denomination, the members of which are commonly called Mormons. It was founded in 1830 at Fayette, N.Y., by Joseph Smith, who claimed that during one of several visions (beginning in 1820) an angel revealed to him the hiding place of certain golden tablets upon which the Book of Mormon was inscribed; a later revelation put him in possession of the stones Urim and Thummim, joined like spectacles, which enabled him to translate the book from its ancient language. Published in 1830, it related that America was anciently inhabited by two races; one came hither after the confusion of tongues fell upon men at Babel, and the other about 600 B.C. The first of these races wholly disappeared; of the second, the American Indians are the remnant. Christ, according to this account, appeared on this continent after the Resurrection, and for a time His church flourished, but eventually because of its transgressions it was cut off from divine favor, and Mormon, the last prophet of this people, wrote his book, at once a history and a statement of doctrine, and buried it that it might be found centuries later by Joseph Smith. Converts quickly gathered around Smith, who led them first to Kirtland, Ohio, and in 1832 to western Missouri, where at Independence and other towns they set up what was in effect a theocratic state. The close-knit, exclusive community of the Saints incurred hostility among the surrounding "Gentiles," whose fears and suspicions were accentuated when Smith told his followers that western Missouri was "the land of your inheritance, which is now in the hands of your enemies." The Mormons, persecuted and subjected to violence, often retorted violently, and even among Smith's followers there were protests over the illegal and brutal conduct of some of their fellows. In 1839 the governor of Missouri ordered the Mormons expelled, and they reëstablished their Zion at Nauvoo, Ill., under a charter permitting them to enact such laws as they pleased if not in conflict with the state or federal constitution, to set up their own courts, and to establish their own militia. Converts flocking to Nauvoo made it the largest town in Illinois, but as it grew the hostility of the non-Mormon population around it increased, especially after it became rumored that the Mormons were practicing polygamy. On June 24, 1844, Joseph Smith and his brother Hyrum were arrested on charges of treason, and three days later were murdered in the jail at Carthage, Ill., by a mob. Although Joseph Smith's son, also named Joseph, and James Jesse Strang, who claimed to have been designated by the prophet as his successor, led dissident movements, the majority of the Saints chose Brigham Young, an exceedingly able organizer, as their new leader, and followed him westward to the region of the Great Salt Lake, where they proclaimed the State of Deseret, in territory then part of Mexico, which however became a U.S. possession in the following year. With the industry which has characterized them everywhere, the Mormons made the mountain wilderness bloom, and in their early years there they profited by trading with the thousands of gold-seekers who, beginning in 1849, took the overland route to California. Though the Mormon petition for admission of the State of Deseret to the Union was rejected, when the region was organized as the Territory of Utah in 1850, Young was appointed territorial governor. He held this position until 1857, when a series of acts of resistance to U.S. authority led to his ousting and to the "Mormon War," in which a military force was sent into Utah, though little fighting or bloodshed resulted. More and more the issue of polygamy or plural marriage became the focus of trouble between the Latter-Day Saints and the U.S. government; or, it might be said, between the former and the rest of the American people. As early as 1843 Joseph Smith had written his Revelation on the Eternity of the Marriage Covenant, including Plurality of Wives, and it is generally considered established that he personally had many wives, but open promulgation of this doctrine was held back until 1852, when the Saints were securely established in Utah. It was a doctrine the practice of which had obvious advantages for a sect that urgently needed to increase and multiply in order to build up and secure its place in a hostile world, and accordingly it was held to tenaciously for many years despite its effect in preventing the admission of Utah to statehood. Federal antipolygamy legislation in 1860 was ineffective, but in 1882 Congress enacted the Edmunds Bill, under which great numbers of Mormons were disfranchised, and a considerable number were imprisoned, for the practice of plural marriage. In 1890 a court decision declared the property of the Mormon church subject to confiscation because that church was an organized rebellion. The then president of the church, Wilford Woodruff, thereafter advised his followers to refrain from any marriage that was contrary to the law; in 1893, amnesty was granted to all who had not broken the law in this respect since 1890; and in 1896 Utah was admitted to the Union, with a state constitution expressly outlawing polygamy. While there is testimony to the sporadic occurrence of plural marriage since then, it is certain that the practice has been completely discontinued by all orthodox Mormons. The denomination continues to dominate Utah, and has spread extensively into other states, especially Arizona, Nevada, Idaho, and Wyoming, Mormons being everywhere respected for industry and sobriety. Bands of Mormon missionaries are continually active throughout the world; congregations have been established in Great Britain and many countries of western Europe, in South Africa, Australia, India, China, Hawaii, and in some countries of South America. The government of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is a hierarchy consisting of two orders of priesthood, an order of Melchizedek (the higher) and an order of Aaron (the lesser). The former is presided over by a president and two counselors whose authority extends over the entire church, and it includes the 12 apostles, the seventies, the patriarch, the high priests, and the elders. The 12 apostles are a traveling high council, which ordains other officers and is entrusted with general ecclesiastical authority; the seventies are the missionaries and propagandists; the patriarch pronounces the church's blessing; the high priests officiate in churchly offices in the absence of higher authorities; and the elders conduct meetings and superintend the priests. The Aaronic priesthood includes bishops, priests, teachers, and deacons. The duties of the bishops are largely secular. The church body is divided and subdivided into districts for administrative purposes and for the collection of tithes. The Saints accept the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and the Book of Doctrine and Covenants as authoritative, and regard the president of the church as invested with divine authority, receiving his revelations as the word of God. It is considered that there had been no prophets and no direct divine guidance of mankind for many centuries until Joseph Smith was chosen and entrusted with the keys of the kingdom of heaven, an authority that has been transmitted to his successors in the presidency of the church. Other Mormon doctrines include repentance and faith, the resurrection of the dead, the second coming of Christ and His reign upon earth, with His seat in Mormon territory, baptism by immersion, baptism by proxy for the dead, and, theoretically, plural marriage as a work of piety to help people the world with souls born into the true faith.

Latter-Day Saints, Reorganized. [Full name, Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.] Ecclesiastical organization which claims to be, and has been recognized by some courts as being, the legitimate continuation of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints as orginally founded by Joseph Smith. Its first head was a son of Joseph Smith, also named Joseph. The Reorganized Church was set up and so named in 1852. Its doctrines are derived from the Bible, the Book of Mormon, and other writings of the first Joseph Smith, but it rejects plural marriages, and this was the occasion of its separation from the more numerous body which followed Brigham Young to Utah. Since 1904 it has had its headquarters at Independence, Mo.

Latter-Day Symphony. Novel by Romer Wilson (Mrs. Edward J. O'Brien), published in 1927.

Lattimore (lat'i.mōr), Owen. b. at Washington, D.C., July 29, 1900—. American Orientalist and author. He was editor in chief (1934–41) of Pacific Affairs, and director (1938 et seq.) of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations at the Johns Hopkins University. He was appointed (1941) political adviser to Chiang Kai-shek by President F. D. Roosevelt, and served as deputy director (1942–44) of the Pacific bureau of the Office of War Information. An accusation was made (1950) by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin that Lattimore was the chief Communist spy in the U.S. but the charge was not proved. An authority on the Far East, especially central Asia, his writings include The Desert Road to Turkestan (1928), Mongol Journeys (1941), Solution in Asia (1945), and Ordeal by Slander (1950).

Lattre de Tassigny (lâtr dẹ tà.sē.nyē), Jean Joseph Marie Gabriel de. See de Lattre de Tassigny, Jean Joseph Marie Gabriel.

Latude (là.tüd), Jean Henry. [Also: Masers de Latude, Masers d'Aubrespy, Jedor, Danger, Jean Danry.] b. at Montagnac, Hérault, France, March 23, 1725; d. at Paris, Jan. 1, 1805. French officer. Not being successful in his profession, he conceived the idea of attracting public attention by sending an imitation infernal machine to Madame de Pompadour and going himself to warn her not to open it as he had discovered a plot against her. Suspicion being aroused, he was arrested and confessed the whole story of his attempted hoax. By command of Pompadour he was imprisoned (1749–84) in the Bastille and elsewhere, escaping several times and for a short period being confined in a madhouse. He was treated with extraordinary severity, but continued to write his memoirs, which gave an account of his numerous escapes and arrests. During the French Revolution he was held up to public attention as an example of the cruelties of the monarchy and was voted a huge indemnity from Pompadour's estate.

Latuka (la.tō'ka). See Lokuto.

La Tuque (là tük'). Town in Quebec, Canada, on the St. Maurice River ab. 103 mi. above Trois Rivières, with which it is connected by road. It has pulp, lumber, and woodworking industries. 9,538 (1951).

Latur (lä.tör'). See Lautaro.

La Turbie (lä tür.bē). See Turbia.

Latvia (lat'vi.ą). [Lettish and Lithuanian, Latvija (lät'-vē.yä); Estonian, Lätimaa; Swedish and German, Lettland; official name since 1940, Latvian Soviet Socialist Republic.] Republic in N Europe, since 1940 part of the U.S.S.R. Latvia borders on the Baltic Sea in the W, and is traversed by the Daugava (Western Dvina) River. The surface of the country is level to rolling, and there are numerous lakes and tracts of woodland. Farming is the chief occupation; dairying and livestock (especially cattle) raising are the chief specialties. Riga is the principal commercial and industrial center, and the major seaport of the country. The principal group of the inhabitants, the Letts, have occupied the region of Latvia since prehistoric times, but during the Middle Ages the country was first ruled by the Teutonic Knights, and later was under Lithuania and Poland. From 1629 to 1721 Livonia N of the Daugava (including Riga) belonged to Sweden. This area passed to Russia in 1721, and the remainder of the country at the third partition of Poland in 1795 also went to Russia. During the 19th century, a national awakening occurred, and a republic was declared in November, 1918, after the collapse of the German and Russian empires in World War I. In 1920 the new republic of Latvia was acknowledged by both Germany and the U.S.S.R., and it entered the League of Nations in 1921. As a result of the Russo-German agreement of August, 1939, Latvia was assigned to the Russian sphere of influence, and it was occupied and annexed by the U.S.S.R. in 1940, a move which has not been recognized by the U.S. government. During World War II Latvia was occupied by German armies from 1941 to 1944, after which the area reverted to Russian control. It has been made a republic of the U.S.S.R. Capital, Riga; area, ab. 24,900 sq. mi.; pop. 1,994,506 (1939).

Latvians (lat'vi.ąnz). See Letts.

Lauban (lou'bän). German name of Lubań.

Laube (lou'bę), Heinrich. b. at Sprottau, Germany, Sept. 18, 1806; d. at Vienna, Aug. 1, 1884. German novelist, dramatist, theater director, and miscellaneous author, one of the leaders of the literary movement known as Junges Deutschland. He was twice imprisoned for revolutionary activity and was a member of the Frankfort Parliament (1848). He was director of the Vienna Hofburgtheater (1850–66), of the Leipzig Stadttheater (1867–70), and of the Vienna Stadttheater (1872–79), which he founded. He was editor of Die elegant Welt at Leipzig (1833, 1842–44). Among his dramas are Rococo (1846), Struensee (1847), Graf Essex (1856); among his other works are the novels Das junge Europa (1833–37; comprising Die Poeten, Die Krieger, Die Bürger), Reisenovellen (1834–37), Die Gräfin Chateaubriand (1843), Der deutsche Krieg (1863–66) and Das erste deutsche Parlament (1849).

Lauber (lou'bėr), Cécile. b. at Lucerne, Switzerland, 1887—. Swiss poet and novelist writing in German. Her novels Die Wandlung (1929), Stumme Natur (1939), and Land deiner Mutter (1946) reveal great understanding of feminine psychology.

L'Auberge Rouge (lō.berzh rözh). See Auberge Rouge, L'.

Lauckner (louk'nėr), Rolf. b. at Königsberg, in East Prussia, Oct. 15, 1887—. German writer; stepson of Hermann Sudermann. Author of the dramas Der Sturz des Apostels Paulus (1917), Wahnschaffe (1920), and others, he has also written verse, and librettos for various composers, and has edited the magazine Über Land und Meer.

Laud (lôd), William. b. at Reading, England, Oct. 7, 1573; beheaded at London, Jan. 10, 1645. English prelate, archbishop of Canterbury (1633–45). In 1594 he graduated at St. John's College, Oxford; he was made vicar of Stamford in Northamptonshire in 1607 and of Caxton in Kent in 1610, and was elected president of St. John's College, May 10, 1611. On Jan. 22, 1621, he became a prebendary of Westminster, and on June 29 bishop of St. David's, resigning the presidency of St. John's in the same year. He was elected bishop of London in 1628, chancellor of the University of Oxford, and archbishop of Canterbury in 1633. Throughout the reign of Charles I he was one of the foremost supporters of the king and most influential men of the state, first as a supporter of George Villiers, 1st Duke of Buckingham, and later as a counselor of the king of equal stature with the Earl of Strafford. His anti-Calvinist, High Church doctrines were backed by the crown's absolute tools, the Court of Star Chamber and Court of High Commission. He was impeached by the Commons (Long Parliament) Dec. 18, 1640, and committed to the Tower of London on March 1, 1641. His trial began March 12, 1644, and he was executed on Tower Hill on Jan. 10, 1645.

Laudenbach (lou'dęn.bäċh), Pierre. Original name of Fresnay, Pierre.

Lauder (lô'dėr), Sir Harry MacLennan. b. at Portobello, Scotland, Aug. 14, 1870; d. at Strathaven, Scotland, Feb. 26, 1950. Scottish singer, song writer, and composer. At the age of 11 he went to work in a mill, and he subsequently became a coal miner; but the possession of a good baritone voice, acting ability, and a sense of humor pointed the way to the music-hall stage. After some years with a traveling troupe, he made his London debut in 1900, achieving immediate success with his broadly comic songs, his kilts of the MacLennan tartan, and his exaggeratedly twisted walking stick. In 1906 he made the first of some 40 tours of the U.S., and in 1908 sang "by command" before King Edward VII. During World War I he became an ardent recruiter for the British armed forces, not the less so after the death of his only son at the front. In 1919 he set up the Harry Lauder Fund for disabled veterans, and in that same year was knighted. During World War II he came out of retirement to sing for British and Allied servicemen, refusing all compensation. He himself wrote the words and the music of most of his songs. They had no relation to ancient Gaelic minstrelsy, and only occasionally referred to the Highlands in a superficial and conventional way, but they gave lyric life for the first time to the simple, courageous humor and the unabashed sentimentality of the Scottish working people, and particularly those of the Clydeside. These were his people, and he was theirs. They listened raptly to I Love a Lassie and Roamin' in the Gloamin', and roared with delight when he sang Stop Yer Ticklin' Jock or It's Nice to Get Up in the Mornin' (But It's Nicer to Lie in Yer Bed).

Lauder, Robert Scott. b. at Silvermills, Edinburgh, June 25, 1803; d. at Edinburgh, April 21, 1869. Scottish painter and teacher of art. His subjects were taken chiefly from Sir Walter Scott's novels, as The Trial of Effie Deans (1840), The Bride of Lammermoor (1831), and others.

Lauder, William. d. in Barbados, 1771. Scottish literary impostor, a graduate of Edinburgh University, who became notorious by charging (1747) John Milton with plagiarism in writing Paradise Lost. He supported the accusation with forged, garbled, and interpolated quotations from modern Latin authors. The fraud was exposed (1750) by John Douglas, and Samuel Johnson, who had countenanced Lauder's attack, forced him to confess his guilt.

Lauderdale (lô'dėr.dāl), Earls and Dukes of. Titles held by various members of the Maitland family.

Lauderdale. See under Berwickshire.

Laudon (lou'don), Baron Gideon Ernst von. [Also, von Loudon.] b. in Livonia, Russia, Feb. 2, 1717; d. at Neutitschein (now Nový Jičín), in Moravia, in July, 1790. Austrian field marshal, distinguished as a general in the Seven Years' War. He served at Prague and Kolín in 1757, and at Hochkirch in 1758, was Austrian commander at Kunersdorf (now Kunowíce) in 1759, commanded at Landeshut (now Kamienna Góra) and Liegnitz (Legnica), in Silesia, in 1760, and stormed Schweidnitz (Świdnica) in 1761. He served in the War of the Bavarian Succession (1778–79), and captured Belgrade in 1789.

Laudonnière (lō.do.nyer), René Goulaine de. fl. in the 16th century. French Huguenot who was sent by Coligny in 1564 to carry aid to the Huguenot colony that went out in 1562 under Ribault. Finding Ribault's settlement abandoned, he built (June, 1564) Fort Carolina on the St. John's River in Florida. The fort was stormed and the garrison massacred (Sept. 21, 1565) by the Spaniards under Menéndez de Avilés. Laudonnière escaped, with a number of others, to England, and afterward returned to France. He wrote L'Histoire notable de la Floride, contenant les trois voyages faits en icelle par des capitaines et pilotes français (1586).

Laudunum (lô.dū'num). A Latin name of Laon.

Laudus (lô'dus). An ancient name of St.-Lô.

Laue (lou'ę), Max von. b. at Pfaffendorf, near Koblenz, Germany, Oct. 9, 1879—. German physicist, awarded (1914) the Nobel prize for physics for his work in x-rays and crystallography. He discovered (1912) the diffraction of x-rays when passed through a crystal, thus developing a convenient method of measuring their wave lengths. A specialist in theoretical physics, he carried out studies in the theory of relativity and in atomic structure. Author of Die Relativitätstheorie (2 vols., 1911), Über die Auffindung der Röntgenstrahlinterferenz (1920), and Materiewellen und ihre Interferenzen (1944).

Lauenburg (lou'ęn.burk). Former duchy later incorporated into the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, lying N of the Elbe River, bordering on Hamburg, Lübeck, Mecklenburg, and Hanover.

Lauenburg. Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, on the Elbe River ab. 26 mi. SE of Hamburg. A river port, it has boatyards, lumber, furniture, chemical industries, and cement works. It is a picturesque town, with the architectural character of the 16th and 17th centuries. Originally a Slavic settlement, it was later under various Saxon dynasties until it passed in 1260 to the house of Saxe-Lauenburg; from 1689 to 1803 it belonged to Lüneburg-Celle and Hanover; 1803–15 to France; 1816–64 to Denmark; 1864–65 to Austria; afterward to Prussia. 11,207 (1950).

Lauenburg or Lauenburg in Pommern (in pom'ėrn). German name of Lębork.

Lauenburg Line. See Ernestine Line.

Lauesen (lou'ę.sęn), Marcus. b. at Løjt, Denmark, Nov. 22, 1907—. Danish author, noted for his depiction of the middle class in the novel Og nu venter vi paa skib (And Now We're Waiting for a Ship, 1931).

Laufer (lou'fėr), Berthold. b. at Cologne, Germany, Oct. 11, 1874; d. at Chicago, Sept. 13, 1934. American anthropologist and Orientalist. He took part in expeditions to eastern Siberia (1898–99), China (1901–04, 1923), Tibet and China (1908–10). He was assistant curator (1908 et seq.) of the East-Asiatic division, associate curator (1911 et seq.) of Asiatic ethnology, and curator (1915 et seq.) of anthropology at the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago.

Lauff (louf), Joseph von. b. at Cologne, Germany, Nov. 16, 1855; d. 1933. German army officer who was, at the behest of Kaiser Wilhelm II, dramaturgist (1898–1903) of the Royal Theater at Wiesbaden. He wrote eulogistic dramas about the Hohenzollerns (Der Burggraf, 1897; Der Eisenzahn, 1899), and stories and poems of the Rhine country (Jan van Calker, 1887; Frau Aleit, 1905; Volk ohne Ehre, 1929).

Lauffeld (lou'felt). See Laafelt.

Laughing Boy. Novel by Oliver La Farge, published in 1929 and awarded a Pulitzer prize in 1930.

"Laughing Philosopher." An epithet of Democritus.

Laughlin (laf'lin), James Laurence. b. at Deerfield, Ohio, April 2, 1850; d. at Jaffrey, N.H., Nov. 28, 1933. American economist, professor of political economy in the University of Chicago from 1892. He published A History of Bimetallism in the United States (1886), Elements of Political Economy (1887), Gold and Prices since 1873 (1887), Facts about Money (1895), Report of the Monetary Commission (1898), Principles of Money (1902), Reciprocity (1903), Industrial America (1907), Latter-day Problems (1909), and other books. He was editor (1892–1933) of the Journal of Political Economy.

Laughton (lô'tọn), Charles. b. at Scarborough, England, July 1, 1899—. English actor; husband (married 1929) of Elsa Lanchester. He performed on the stage and after 1932 in motion pictures at Hollywood. He starred in The Private Life of Henry VIII, The Barretts of Wimpole Street, Ruggles of Red Gap, Les Miserables, Mutiny on the Bounty, Rembrandt, Jamaica Inn, The Beachcomber, The Big Clock, The Parradine Case, and other films. He was one of the Drama Quartette that scored a success in 1951 with readings of Don Juan in Hell, part of Man and Superman by George Bernard Shaw. Laughton afterward appeared on television in informal readings of literary masterpieces.

Laugier (lō.zhyā), César de Bellecour, Comte de. b. at Portoferraio, Elba, Oct. 5, 1789; d. at Florence, March 25, 1871. Italian general and man of letters.

Lau Group (lou). [Also: Eastern Group, Lau Islands.] Group of numerous small islands which form the E group of the Fiji Islands.

Lauingen (lou'ing.ęn). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Swabia, on the Danube River ab. 25 mi. NW of Augsburg. It is the trade center of a fertile agricultural district, and has machinery and textile industries. It has remains of medieval town walls and churches; the former castle of the dukes of Neuburg dates from the 14th century, the Rathaus (town hall) from the 18th century. It was the birthplace of Albertus Magnus. 7,547 (1946).

Lauis (lou'is). German name of Lugano.

Lau Islands (lou). See Lau Group.

Laun (loun). German name of Louny.

Launay (lō.nā), Vicomte Charles de. Pseudonym of Girardin, Delphine de.

Launce (länș). Character in Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona, a servant of Proteus, noted for his remarks to his dog Crab.

Launcelot Gobbo (lôn'sę.lọt, län'-, gob'ō). See Gobbo, Launcelot.

Launceston (lôn'ses.tọn, län'-). Second largest city of Tasmania, Australia, in the N part of the island. Pop., with suburbs, 40,442 (1947).

Launceston. [Ancient name, Dunheved.] Municipal borough and market town in SW England, in Cornwall, ab. 224 mi. SW of London by rail, on the river Tamar. It has a ruined Norman castle. 4,467 (1951).

Launfal (lôn'fąl), Sir. Knight of the Round Table, in the Arthurian cycle of romance; steward of King Arthur. Thomas Chestre wrote a metrical romance with this title in the reign of Henry VI (15th century). He is, however, best known to most modern readers through Lowell's Vision of Sir Launfal.

La Unión (lä ö.nyōn'). Department in E El Salvador, bordering on Honduras and the Pacific Ocean: agricultural area; gold and silver mining. Capital, La Unión; area, ab. 883 sq. mi.; pop. 105,628 (est. 1942).

La Unión. Town in SE El Salvador, capital of La Unión department, on an arm of Fonseca Bay: a major port of El Salvador; tortoise-shell industry. 6,423 (est. 1948).

La Union (lä ö.nyōn'). Province of the Philippines, in W Luzon. It is bounded by Ilocos Sur on the N, Mountain Province on the E, Pangasinan on the S, and the Gulf of Lingayen and the China Sea on the W. The best ports are San Fernando and Santo Tomas. The highest peak is Santo Tomas (7,402 ft.). Tobacco, coffee, pineapples, mangos; corn, rice, betel nuts, and sugar cane are produced. The inhabitants are chiefly Ilocanos. Capital, San Fernando; area, ab. 530 sq. mi.; pop. 237,340 (1951).

La Unión (lä ö.nyōn'). City in E Spain, in the province of Murcia, ab. 28 mi. SE of Murcia. It was founded in 1865; iron, manganese, zinc, and argentiferous lead mines are in the vicinity; the city has a smelter. 10,079 (1940).

Launitz (lou'nits), Eduard Schmidt von der. b. at Grobin, in Courland (now part of Latvia), Russia, Nov. 23, 1796; d. at Frankfort on the Main, Germany, Dec. 12, 1869. Russo-German sculptor.

Launitz, Robert Eberhard (Schmidt von der). b. at Grobin, in Courland (now part of Latvia), Russia, Nov. 16, 1806; d. at New York, Dec. 13, 1870. Russian-American sculptor.

Laupen (lou'pęn). Town in W Switzerland, in the canton of Bern, on the Saane River. It was the scene of a victory gained by the Bernese in 1339 over the allied nobility of Freiburg and Burgundy. 1,314 (1941).

Laura (lô'ra; Italian, lou'rä). [Traditionally identified with Laure de Noves, later Madame de Sade.] b. 1308; d. at Avignon, France, April 6, 1348. French lady beloved by Petrarch, and celebrated in his poems.

Lauraguais (lō.ra.ge). Former division of Languedoc, France. It now forms parts of the departments of Aude, Tarn, and Haute-Garonne. The capital was at Castelnaudary.

Laura Matilda (lô′rə ma.til′də). Writer of sentimental verse in Horace and James Smith's Rejected Addresses.

Laurel (lô′rəl, lor′əl). Town in S Delaware, in Sussex County, SW of Dover: shipping point for vegetables and melons. 2,700 (1950).

Laurel. Town in C Maryland, in Prince Georges County. 4,482 (1950).

Laurel. City in SE Mississippi, a county seat (with Ellisville) of Jones County: vegetable processing and canning factories; manufactures of lumber, plywood, furniture, textiles, naval stores, and cottonseed oil. 25,038 (1950).

Laurel. City in S Montana, in Yellowstone County, ab. 190 mi. E of Butte: shipping point for livestock, wheat, and lumber; railroad junction. 3,663 (1950).

Laureldale (lô′rəl.dāl, lor′əl-). Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Berks County. It was incorporated in 1930. Pop. 3,585 (1950).

Laurel Hill (lô′rəl, lor′əl). [Also, Laurel Ridge.] Range of low mountains of the Appalachian system, in SW Pennsylvania, E of Chestnut Ridge. Peak elevation, over 2,900 ft.

Lauremberg (lou′rəm.berk), Johann. [Pseudonym, Hans Wilmsen L. Rost.] b. at Rostock, Germany, Feb. 26, 1590; d. at Sorø, Denmark, Feb. 28, 1658. German writer. Aside from some Latin poems and a few dramas, his writing consists of the Low German Veer Schertz Gedichte (1652), in which he satirizes the fads and follies of his day. This work is generally considered to be a real contribution to dialect literature.

Laurence (lô′rəns, lor′əns), Saint. See Saint Lawrence.

Laurence, Friar. Character in Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet; a Franciscan friar, the adviser of Romeo and Juliet.

Laurence, Samuel. b. at Guildford, Surrey, England, 1812; d. at London, Feb. 28, 1884. English portrait painter. Among his works are portraits of many men of letters, including Carlyle, Whewell, Browning, F. D. Maurice, Dickens, Sir Henry Taylor, Froude, Thackeray, Tennyson, and Lowell.

Laurencin (lo.räń.sań), Marie. b. at Paris, Oct. 31, 1885—. French painter and lithographer.

Laurens (lô′rənz, lor′ənz). City in NW South Carolina, county seat of Laurens County: textile, hosiery, and glass manufactures. It was at one time the residence of Andrew Johnson. 8,658 (1950).

Laurens (lo.räńs), Henri. b. at Paris, Feb. 18, 1885—. French cubist painter, sculptor, and illustrator, associated with Lipschitz and Brancusi. His first cubist work was a piece of sculpture in plaster (1912); later he worked in metal and wood. After 1925 he began to abandon cubism. Some of his works are Bottle of Rum, Head, Guitar, and the watercolors Boxer, Two Women, and The Table.

Laurens (lô′rənz, lor′ənz), Henry. b. at Charleston, S.C., March 6, 1724; d. there, Dec. 8, 1792. American statesman. He became a delegate to the Continental Congress in 1776, was president of the Congress (1777–78), and was one of the peace commissioners at Paris in 1782, signing the treaty agreement jointly with John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, and John Jay.

Laurens (lo.räńs), Jean Paul. b. at Fourquevaux, Haute-Garonne, France, March 29, 1838; d. 1921. French painter. He made his debut in the Salon of 1863 with his picture The Death of Cato. He painted numerous portraits and a large number of historical compositions and mural pictures. Among the latter may be noted The Death of Ste. Geneviève in the Panthéon, and the ceiling of the Odéon, both at Paris.

Laurens (lô′rənz, lor′ənz), John. b. at Charleston, S.C., Oct. 28, 1754; killed at the Combahee River, S.C., Aug. 27, 1782. American soldier, distinguished for his gallantry in the Revolutionary War; son of Henry Laurens. In 1780 he was sent to France to get more French aid; the help eventually arrived and resulted in the defeat of the British at Yorktown. He arranged the terms of the surrender. He was killed in a skirmish in the period when the final peace was being negotiated.

Laurent (lo.räń), Charles. b. at Paris, Nov. 12, 1856—. French banker and industrialist, founder of Le Crédit National and president of La Banque des Pays du Nord. He was the first French ambassador (1920–22) to Germany after World War I.

Laurent, François. b. at Luxembourg, July 8, 1810; d. at Brussels, Feb. 11, 1887. Belgian historian. He was a liberal, noted for his anticlerical stand, and for his efforts on behalf of the workingman. Author of Études sur l'histoire de l'humanité (1855–70) and others.

Laurent, Hermann. b. at Echternach, Luxembourg, Sept. 2, 1841; d. at Paris, Feb. 19, 1908. French mathematician, best known for his extension (1843) of Cauchy's theorem on series by the introduction of the "Laurent expansion" of functions. He wrote also on differential equations, probability, elimination, complex quantities, heat conduction, elliptic functions, and the theory of residues. His most important treatise was the Traité d'analyse (7 vols., 1885–91).

Laurent, Jacques Charles. b. at Paris, March 11, 1896—, French industrialist and financier, associated particularly with naval construction.

Laurent, Raymond. b. at Nîmes, France, July 20, 1890—. French political leader, secretary general (1924–40) of the Parti Démocrate Populaire. He was a member of the Allied intelligence service during World War II, and became (1944) a leader of the Mouvement Républicain Populaire (MRP).

Laurent (lô′rənt), Robert. b. at Concarneau, France, June 29, 1890—. American sculptor, noted for his semi-abstract sculptures and reliefs in stone and wood. He came to the U.S. in 1902. He is represented in the Whitney Museum at New York, Art Institute of Chicago, Barnes Foundation, Brookgreen (S.C.) Gardens, and Radio City Music Hall, New York. From 1942 to 1946 he was an assistant professor at the University of Indiana.

Laurentian (lô.ren′shən). Archaic culture (c300–500 A.D.) of C New York State, lower Ontario and Quebec, and S New England. The culture was preagricultural and, for the most part, preceramic. Polished stone gouges and ground slate knives and spearheads, which recall Eskimo forms, are typical.

Laurentian Mountains. [Also: Laurentian Highlands; French, Laurentides; sometimes called the "Height of Land."] Ranges of rounded granite mountains in S Quebec, Canada, rising abruptly N of the valley of the St. Lawrence River. They are most prominent along the estuary of the St. Lawrence, below Quebec, where the mountains rise above all the surrounding areas and reach an elevation of ab. 3,905 ft.; farther to the W the range is formed by the S margins of the Laurentian Shield.

Laurentian Shield. [Also: Canadian Shield, Laurentian Plateau, Laurentian Upland.] Vast geological region of NE North America, largely in Canada, but extending S into the U.S. around the W end of Lake Superior, and in the Adirondacks, and NE to include Greenland. It is composed of ancient granitic and metamorphic rocks, and forms the foundation block of the North American continent. The age of the rock is pre-Cambrian; most of it is Archaean igneous rock. The action of the continental glaciation resulted in the scouring and denudation of extensive areas, and much of the shield is rocky and hummocky, and pitted with tens of thousands of small lakes which occupy depressions. There is very little good agricultural land in the entire region. Most of the Shield is covered by coniferous forest; but its N parts in Canada and Greenland have no trees, but are barren tundra regions. A large part of the shield is relatively level, though not smooth; some areas are, however, very mountainous, notably the mountains of N Labrador, the Laurentian Mountains, and the Adirondacks. Hudson Bay occupies a depression in the Shield. The average elevation of the Shield is ab. 1,000 ft.; its area is over 2,000,000 sq. mi.

Laurentides (lo.räń.tēd), Parc des. [English, Laurentides Park (lô′rən.tīdz).] Provincial park in S Quebec, in the Laurentian Mountains, centered ab. 70 mi. N of the city of Quebec: a noted center of winter sports, and also a summer vacation area. The highest summit in the park reaches ab. 3,845 ft. Area, ab. 3,670 sq. mi.

Laurentie (lo.räń.tē), Pierre Sébastien. b. at Houga, Gers, France, Jan. 21, 1793; d. at Paris, Feb. 9, 1876. French historian and legitimist journalist. Author of Histoire de France (1841–43).

Laurentius Justinianus (lô.ren′shi.us jus.tin.i.ā′nus). See Saint Lawrence Justinian.

Laurentum (lô.ren'tum). In ancient geography, a city in Latium, Italy, situated near the coast, ab. 16 mi. S of Rome: the capital of ancient Latium.

Lauria (lou.rē'ä). [Ancient name, Lagaria.] Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lucania, in the province of Potenza, near the Gulf of Policastro, ab. 42 mi. S of Potenza: agricultural district; tanneries. Pop. of commune, 11,097 (1936); of town, 2,158 (1936).

Lauriacum (lô.ri.ā'kum). Latin name of Enns.

Laurie (lou'ri), Robert. [Also: Lawrie, Lowery, Lowry.] b. c1755; d. at Broxbourne, Hertfordshire, England, May 19, 1836. English mezzotint engraver.

Laurie, Simon Somerville. b. at Edinburgh, Nov. 13, 1829; d. March 2, 1909. Scottish philosopher and teacher.

Laurier (lô'ri.ā; French, lo.ryā), Sir Wilfrid. b. at St. Lin, Quebec, Canada, Nov. 20, 1841; d. at Ottawa, Feb. 17, 1919. Canadian statesman, first French-Canadian premier of Canada (1896–1911). As early as his valedictory address at McGill University school of law he pleaded for English-French coöperation in Canada, and he worked toward this end all his life, while always insisting on recognition of the rights of the French-speaking people of Canada. He practiced law at Montreal and then at Arthabaska, Quebec, where he edited a French newspaper opposed to confederation on terms disadvantageous to Lower (French) Canada. He served in the Quebec legislature (1871) and the Canadian House of Commons (1874), where he rose to become a prominent member of the Liberal Party. He was minister of inland revenue (1877–78) in Alexander Mackenzie's cabinet, but the cabinet fell in 1878. In the forefront of the opposition to the government of Sir John Macdonald (1878 et seq.), he became (1887) leader of the Liberal Party when Edward Blake resigned. In 1896 he formed a Liberal government which remained in power until 1911, the longest single cabinet tenure in Canadian history. His administration was marked by an import preference for British goods of 33⅓ percent, the construction of the Grand Trunk Railway (the second transcontinental railroad across Canada), the institution of a government commission on railway and telephone rates, a policy of settlement of the western lands, the establishment of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and a consistent policy of reciprocity with the U.S. His cabinet fell (1911) primarily over the question of a reciprocal tariff agreement with the U.S. Laurier was an advocate of Canadian autonomy within the British Empire; he had sent troops to South Africa in the Boer War, but during World War I he opposed conscription as unconstitutional and refused to enter (1917) the coalition government, but at the same time he supported the war effort.

Laurinburg (lô'rin.bėrg, lor'in-). Town in S North Carolina, county seat of Scotland County: manufactures of cotton textiles and yarn, cottonseed oil, fertilizer, and lumber. 7,134 (1950).

Laurion (lô'ri.on). [Latin, Laurium (lô'ri.um); modern Greek, Lavrion.] Mountain at the SE extremity of Attica, Greece. It was celebrated in antiquity for its silver mines. In recent times its mines have been reopened, and now produce lead and zinc, as well as silver.

Lauriston (lo.rēs.tôn; Anglicized, lô'ris.tọn), Jacques Alexandre Bernard Law, Marquis de. b. at Pondichéry, India, Feb. 1, 1768; d. at Paris, June 10, 1828. French marshal and diplomat. He served with distinction in Napoleon's service at Ragusa, Wagram, Bautzen, and Leipzig.

Lauritsen (lou'rit.sẹn), Charles Christian. b. at Holstebro, Denmark, April 4, 1892—. American physicist, known for his work on x-rays and in nuclear physics. He designed a type of large x-ray tube.

Laurium (lô'ri.um). Village in the W part of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, in Houghton County, in a copper-mining region. 3,211 (1950).

Laurvig or Laurvik (lär'vēk). See Larvik.

Lausanne (lō.zan'). [Italian, Losanna; Latin, Lausonium.] City in W Switzerland, the capital of the canton of Vaud, on the sloping N shore of the Lake of Geneva, at an elevation of ab. 1,625 ft. Lausanne is the seat of the supreme courts of justice of Switzerland, and a focal point of French culture in Switzerland. It has a university, an art museum, a natural science museum, technical schools, and numerous boarding schools (many of which draw large numbers of their students from other countries). It is the center of a wine-growing district and of the wine trade, and has chocolate and tobacco factories. The Cathedral of Notre Dame, consecrated by Pope Gregory X in 1275, restored in the period 1874–1926, is an impressive Gothic structure. There is a notable view of the city, the lake, and the Alps from the terrace in front of the cathedral. Lausanne, an important Celtic and Roman settlement, was destroyed by the Alamanni in 379. It belonged successively to the Burgundian and Frankish kingdoms and to the German Empire. Seat of a bishopric since c593, it was conquered (1536) by the Bernese, who introduced Protestantism. It joined the Swiss Confederation in 1803. Several important international conferences have taken place at Lausanne, among them the conferences leading to the treaty of Lausanne of 1923, by which Turkey obtained a revision of the provisions of the treaty of Sèvres (1920), and the conferences of 1932 which abolished Germany's reparations payments (an agreement not concurred in by the U.S. Congress). The treaty of Lausanne that terminated the Tripolitan War between Turkey and Italy was signed here on Oct. 18, 1912. In 1949, the Palestine Conciliation Commission of the United Nations assembled at Lausanne. Pop., including its lake port district of Ouchy, 106,807 (1950).

Lausanne, Treaty of. Treaty which concluded the Tripolitan War on Oct. 18, 1912. Its chief provisions were the cession of Tripoli and Cyrenaica to Italy and the granting of permission to Italy to occupy Rhodes and the Dodecanese Islands. The negotiations at Lausanne were brought to a settlement only by the attack on Turkey by the Balkan states in the First Balkan War.

Lausanne Conference. Meeting of representatives of Great Britain, Germany, Japan, France, Italy, and Belgium, held (June 16–July 9, 1932) at Lausanne, Switzerland, to consider steps for a definitive solution of the reparations question in all its aspects, including the inter-Allied war debts. In the agreement announced July 9 the Young Plan was replaced by the imposition of an obligation on Germany to pay 714,600,000 dollars in five-percent bonds to the Bank for International Settlements. This stipulation represented a downward revision of Germany's World War I obligation. The conference also suggested a world economic and monetary conference, leading to the London Economic Conference of 1933. The chief aims of the conference were not achieved, largely because of American refusal to cancel Allied debts owed to the U.S.

Laus Deo! (lôs dē'ō). Poem by John Greenleaf Whittier, published in 1865. It was written to mark the proclamation (Dec. 18, 1865) of the Thirteenth Amendment, which abolished slavery in the U.S.

Lausitz (lou'zits). German name of Lusatia.

Lausitzer Neisse (lou'zit.sėr nī'sẹ). See Neisse, in Silesia.

Laus Pompeia (lôs pom.pē'a). Roman name of Lodi, Italy.

Laut (lôt), Agnes C. b. in Ontario, Canada, 1871; d. at Wassaic, N.Y., Nov. 15, 1936. Canadian journalist and writer. She was an editorial writer (1895–97) on the Manitoba Free Press, moved to New York, and was engaged as a correspondent for American, Canadian, and English newspapers.

Lautaro (lou.tä'rō) or Latur (lä.tör'). b. c1535; killed in the battle of Mataquito, 1557. Araucanian Indian of Chile; son of a chief. He was captured by the Spaniards and became a servant of the governor Pedro de Valdivia. Escaping in 1553, he joined his countrymen, took part in the battle of Tucapel, in which Valdivia was killed (Jan. 1, 1554), and during the next three years was the most noted and successful of the Indian leaders. He was eventually defeated and killed by Francisco de Villagra. Lautaro's deeds are celebrated in La Araucana, by the poet Ercilla y Zúñiga.

Lautaro Society. Secret political society, originally established in various Spanish cities during the first years of the 19th century. It was affiliated with the Gran Reunion Americana, and had for its aim the emancipation of Spanish South America. The first American branch (called the Lautaro Lodge) was formed at Buenos Aires by San Martín and others, about July 1, 1812. In January, 1813, it obtained practical control of the government at Buenos Aires, and during the succeeding years, until about 1823, was the hidden force behind nearly all political action of the independence movement.

Lauter (lou'tėr). [French, Lutter.] River in the Saar, flowing SE and forming in part the boundary between the Saar and Alsace, NE France. It joins the Rhine ab. 9 mi. SW of Karlsruhe. Length, ab. 51 mi.

Lauterberg (lou'tėr.berk). [Also: Bad Lauterberg, Lauterberg im Harz.] Town in N central Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, ab. 40 mi. S of Brunswick, on the slopes of the Harz Mountains. It is a resort of some importance, and also has iron foundries; metalworking, paper, furniture, and knitwear industries. 10,921 (1950).

Lauterbrunnen (lou'tėr.brün.ẹn). Village in C Switzerland, in the SE part of the canton of Bern, in a mountain valley in the Bernese Oberland, on the Lütschine River, S of Interlaken: noted as a summer resort. It has a lace-making industry. Nearby are the twin mountains of Jungfrau and Mönch. Elevation, ab. 2,625 ft.; pop. 2,819 (1941).

Lauterbrunnen Valley. [German, Lauterbrunnental (lou'tėr.brün.ẹn.täl).] Valley in C Switzerland, in the SE part of the canton of Bern, in the Bernese Oberland. The name (meaning "clear springs") is derived from the numerous streams that descend from the rocks and the springs that rise at their base. The valley is noted for its waterfalls, more than 20 in number. It is overlooked by the Jungfrau, Mönch, and Breithorn mountain peaks.

Lauzon (lō.zôṅ'). Town in the province of Quebec, Canada, on the S bank of the St. Lawrence River, NE of Lévis, which is opposite the city of Quebec: shipbuilding industries. 9,643 (1951).

Lauzun (lō.zėṅ), Duc de. See Biron, Armand Louis de Gontaut, Duc de Lauzun.

Lava Beds National Monument. National monument in N California, established in 1925. It is an area of old lava flows, and has many types of formations, and lava caves. Area, ab. 72 sq. mi.

Lavadores (lä.bä.ᵺō'räs). Town in NW Spain, in the province of Pontevedra, on the Bay of Vigo, ab. 15 mi. S of Pontevedra: fisheries, saltworks, and paper and leather manufacture. 38,462 (1940).

Lavagna (lä.vä'nyä), Count of. Title of Fiesco, Giovanni Luigi.

Laval (lå.vål). Town in W France, the capital of the department of Mayenne, on the Mayenne River. The cathedral was started in 1160, but the nave and the transept date from the 16th century. The old castle, which formerly belonged to the counts of Laval, now houses a museum. The industries of the town produce iron and steel products, leather and shoes, flour, and table linens and other textiles. Laval is in the heart of an agricultural region and has important grain markets. Part of the town suffered severe damage in World War II. 32,544 (1946).

Laval (lä.väl'), Carl Gustaf Patrik de. b. at Orsa, Sweden, May 9, 1845; d. at Stockholm, Feb. 2, 1913. Swedish engineer. He invented (1878) a centrifugal cream separator and constructed (1887 et seq.) the high-speed steam turbine named for him.

Laval (lå.vål), Gilles de. See Retz, Baron de.

Laval, Pierre. b. at Châteldon, Puy-de-Dôme, France, June 28, 1883; executed at Paris, Oct. 15, 1945. French politician and lawyer, shot as a traitor after World War II. He began his political career as a socialist, became a republican, and finally emerged as a fascist and collaborator with the German invader. As a lawyer before World War I, he represented (1907–14) trade unions in numerous cases, and was elected (1914) a deputy. He supported a compromise peace with Germany, failed of reëlection (1919), and established a temporary relationship with extreme left forces (1919–24). He left (1924) the Socialist Party, was elected (1924) to the Chamber of Deputies as a moderate republican, and was named (1925) minister of public works. Chosen (1925) by Premier Aristide Briand as his secretary-general, he became Briand's minister of justice in 1926. He was minister of labor (1930), and formed (Jan. 27, 1931) his own cabinet, which was twice reorganized and lasted until Feb. 6, 1932. He concluded a moratorium agreement on war debts with U.S. President Hoover and signed (1931) an economic agreement with German Chancellor Brüning. As foreign minister in the Flandin cabinet (November, 1934–May, 1935), he signed a mutual assistance pact with the U.S.S.R. He again formed his own cabinet (June, 1935–January, 1936) and negotiated an agreement with Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, to permit Italian occupation of Ethiopia, which was, however, upset by public indignation. During the critical years leading up to World War II, he increasingly favored a policy of collaboration with Italy and Germany. After the invasion of France, he demanded surrender to the Germans, became vice-premier and minister of information in June, 1940, and foreign minister in October, 1940, strongly backing collaboration with the German war effort. In a sudden turn of policy by the Pétain government, he was ousted from office (December, 1940) and placed under arrest until German warnings brought his release. He returned to power (April, 1942) as administrative chief of the Vichy government, and in November, 1942, was named next in line of succession to Pétain. He proclaimed (1944) his faith in and hope for German victory, escaped to Spain (May, 1945), and was returned (August, 1945) to France for trial on charges of treason. Found guilty, he was executed by a firing squad at the Fresnes prison at Paris.

Laval des Rapides (lä.vål' dā rà.pēd'). Town on the SE coast of Île Jésus, in the St. Lawrence River, Quebec, Canada, across a river channel from the W part of the city of Montreal. Its name derives from rapids in the river. 4,998 (1951).

La Valette (lå vå.let), Jean Parisot de. [Also, Valette.] b. 1494; d. 1568. Grand Master of the Knights of Malta (1557–68), famous for his conduct of the successful defense of Malta against the Turks in 1565. He built Valletta, the capital city of Malta, which was named for him.

Lavalle (lä.bä'yä), Juan. b. at Buenos Aires, Oct. 16, 1797; assassinated at Jujuy, Argentina, Oct. 9, 1841. Argentine general.

La Vallée Poussin (lå vå.lā pö.saṅ), Baron Charles de. See de La Vallée Poussin, Baron Charles.

Lavalleja (lä.bä.ye'hä). Department in SE Uruguay. Capital, Minas; area, ab. 4,820 sq. mi.; pop. 117,323 (est. 1947).

La Vallière (lå vå.lyer), Françoise Louise de La Baume Le Blanc, Duchesse de. b. at Tours, France, Aug. 7, 1644; d. at Paris, June 6, 1710. Mistress of Louis XIV, whose attention she first attracted in 1661; she bore him four children, two of whom died in infancy. She was created a duchess in 1667, and retired to a convent in 1674, after having been superseded in the king's affections by the Marquise de Montespan. She is the reputed author of Réflexions sur la miséricorde de Dieu (1685).

Laval-Montmorency (lä.vål.môṅ.mo.räṅ.sē), François Xavier de. b. at Laval, France, c1622; d. at Quebec, in May, 1708. French prelate in Canada. He served (1674–88) as the first bishop of Quebec, working constantly to maintain the influence of the church in the building of the colony. Laval University is named for him.

Lavarack (lav'a.rąk), John Dudley. b. Dec. 19, 1885—. Australian soldier, who served (1944–46) as head of the Australian military mission to Washington, D.C. He served (1935–39) as chief of the general staff, and headed (1939–40) the southern command of the Australian military forces. He commanded the seventh Australian division in the Middle East, was appointed (June, 1941) commanding general of the First Australian Army Corps, and was elevated (March, 1942) to the command of the First Australian Army. He was appointed (1946) governor of Queensland.

Lavater (lä'vä.tėr, lä.vä'tėr), Johann Kaspar. b. at Zurich, Switzerland, Nov. 15, 1741; d. there, Jan. 2, 1801. Swiss poet and theologian, founder of the so-called science of physiognomy. As a poet he is chiefly known by his Schweizerlieder (Swiss Songs, 1767). Aussichten in die Ewigkeit (Looks into Eternity) appeared the following year. His principal work, in which he gives an account of his science of physiognomy and attempts its justification, is Physiognomische Fragmente zur Beförderung der Menschenkenntnis und Menschenliebe (Physiognomical Fragments for the Promotion of a Knowledge of Man and of Love of Man, 1775–78). Goethe contributed to it a chapter on the skulls of animals.

Lavaur (lȧ.vôr). [Latin, Vaurum.] Town in S France, in the department of Tarn, on the Agout River NE of Toulouse. As one of the leading Albigensian towns, it was sacked by Simon de Montfort. The Cathedral of Saint Alain dates from the 14th century. The town is the center of a silk-producing district. 5,913 (1946).

Lavaux (lȧ.vō). [Also, La Vaux.] District in W Switzerland, in the canton of Vaud, on the slopes N of the Lake of Geneva and E of Lausanne: noted for its wines.

Lavedan (lȧv.dăn), Henri Léon Émile. b. at Orléans, France, April 9, 1859; d. in France, in August, 1940, French novelist and playwright. He wrote for La Vie Parisienne under the name of Machecourt, and was the author of comedies, tales, and novels. Among his plays, Le Duel, Le Bon Temps, Sire, and Le Goût du vice were produced in the U.S. by Otis Skinner.

La Vega (lä bä'gä). Province in C Dominican Republic. Capital, La Vega; area, ab. 1,337 sq. mi.; pop. 193,015 (est. 1950).

La Vega. [Also, Concepción de la Vega.] City in C Dominican Republic, capital of La Vega province. 14,445 (1950).

Lavelanet (lȧv.lȧ.ne). Town in S France, in the department of Ariège, in the valley of the Touyre River, in the N foothills of the Pyrenees. It has woolen-textile manufactures. 5,541 (1946).

Laveleye (lȧv.lā), Émile Louis Victor de. b. at Bruges, Belgium, April 5, 1822; d. at Doyon, near Liége, Belgium, Jan. 3, 1892. Belgian political economist and political writer. Among his works are De la propriété et de ses formes primitives (1873), Le Parti clérical en Belgique (1874), Le Protestantisme et le catholicisme (1875), and Le Socialisme contemporain (1881).

Lavelle (lȧ.vel'), Michael J. b. at New York, May 30, 1856; d. there, Oct. 17, 1939. American Roman Catholic clergyman. He was assistant (1879–86) and rector (1886 et seq.) of Saint Patrick's Cathedral at New York, and was named (1902) vicar general of New York.

Lavello (lä.vel'lō). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lucania, in the province of Potenza, ab. 30 mi. N of Potenza: agricultural district; baronial castle. The emperor Conrad IV of the Hohenstaufen line died here in 1254. Pop. of commune, 11,453 (1936); of town, 11,291 (1936).

Lavengro (lä.veng'grō). Novel by George Borrow, published in 1851.

Laver (lā'vėr), James. b. at Liverpool, England, March 14, 1899—. English novelist, dramatist, and poet. He won (1921) the Newdigate prize for the poem Cervantes. His plays include The Heart Was Not Burned (1938), the musical comedy Nymph Errant (1932), and, for children, The House That Went to Sea (1936) and Swiss Family Robinson (1938), the latter written with Sir Barry Jackson. He is author also of the short stories collected in Laburnum Tree (1935), and of His Last Sebastian (1922), The Young Man Dances (1925), Whistler (1930), Winter Wedding (1934), Poems of Baudelaire (1940), Ladies of Hampton Court (1942), and Titian (1949).

Laveran (lȧv.răn), Charles Louis Alphonse. b. at Paris, June 18, 1845; d. there, May 18, 1922. French pathologist, discoverer of the parasite which causes malaria. He studied malaria in Algeria (1878–83), and during that time identified (1880) the malarial parasite. In 1907 he was awarded the Nobel prize for physiology and medicine. He wrote Nouveaux éléments de pathologie médicale (1880; with Teissier), Traité des fièvres palustres (1884), Du paludisme et de son hématozoaire (1891), Les Hématozoaires de l'homme et des animaux (1895; with Blanchard), Traité d'hygiène militaire (1896), Traité du paludisme (1897), Prophylaxie du paludisme (1903), and Trypanosome et trypanosomiases (1904).

La Vérendrye (lȧ vā.răn.drē), Sieur de. [Title of Pierre Gaultier de Varennes.] b. at Three Rivers, Canada, Nov. 17, 1685; d. Dec. 6, 1749. French explorer in America. He served (1707–11) in the Régiment de Bretagne in France, and was commissioned (1712) into the local forces in Canada. On western explorations (1731 et seq.) with his sons, he erected (1731) Fort St. Pierre on Rainy Lake, Fort St. Charles (1732) on Lake of the Woods, Fort Maurepas (1734) on Lake Winnipeg, Fort La Reine (1738) on the Assiniboine River, and Fort Rouge (1738) at the present site of Winnipeg. He explored Manitoba, the Dakotas, the western plains of Minnesota, and the northwestern territories of Canada.

La Verne (lȧ vėrn'). City in S California, in Los Angeles County, E of Los Angeles: packing center for citrus fruits. 4,198 (1950).

Lavery (lā'vėr.i, lav'ėr.i), Sir John. b. at Belfast, Ireland, 1856; d. Jan. 10, 1941. British landscape, genre, and portrait painter. He is represented in museums at Munich, London, Rome, Berlin, Dublin, and Brussels, among many others. His principal works include The Royal Family in Buckingham Palace (National Portrait Gallery), Spring (Luxembourg Gallery), and Polyminia (Rome).

Laviana (lä.вyä'nä). Town and commune in NW Spain, in the province of Oviedo, on the Nalón River, ab. 15 mi. E of Oviedo: coal and iron mining in the district. 12,455 (1940).

Lavigerie (lȧ.vēzh.rē), Charles Martial Allemand. b. at Bayonne, France, Oct. 13, 1825; d. at Algiers, Nov. 27, 1892. French cardinal, chiefly known as an opponent of the slave trade in Africa. He became bishop of Nancy in 1863, archbishop of Algiers and Carthage in 1867, and cardinal in 1882. He founded the missionary White Fathers and White Sisters for work among the Arabs.

Lavignac (lȧ.vē.nyȧk), Alexandre Jean Albert. b. at Paris, Jan. 22, 1846; d. there, May 28, 1916. French music teacher. He published Solfèges, Cours complet théorique et pratique de dictée musicale, Cinquante leçons d'harmonie, La Musique et les musiciens, and Le Voyage artistique à Bayreuth.

La Villemarqué (lȧ vēl.mȧr.kā), Vicomte de. [Title of Théodore Claude Henri Hersart.] b. at Quimperlé, Finistère, France, July 6, 1815; d. there, Dec. 8, 1895. French philologist, noted for works on the language and literature of Brittany.

Lavinia (lȧ.vin'i.ȧ). In Roman legend, the daughter of Latinus, king of Latium, and wife of Aeneas; eponymous ancestress of the city of Lavinium.

Lavinia. Daughter of Titus Andronicus in the play of that name by Shakespeare.

Lavinium (lȧ.vin'i.um). In ancient geography, a city in Latium, Italy, ab. 17 mi. S of Rome.

Lavisse (lȧ.vēs), Ernest. b. at Nouvionen-Thiérache, Aisne, France, Dec. 17, 1842; d. at Paris, Aug. 18, 1922. French historian and educator. From 1894 he was editor of the Revue de Paris. Among his works are Études sur l'histoire de Prusse (1879), Questions d'enseignement national (1885), Essais sur l'Allemagne impériale (1887), Trois empereurs d'Allemagne (1888), Vue générale de l'histoire politique de l'Europe (1890), La Jeunesse du Grand Frédéric (1891), and Un Ministre: Victor Duruy (1895).

Lavoisier (lȧ.vwȧ.zyā), Antoine Laurent. b. at Paris, Aug. 16, 1743; guillotined at Paris, May 8, 1794. French chemist, the chief founder of modern chemistry. He received an excellent scientific education and was early recognized as a promising scientific mind. He was appointed (1768) chemical assistant to the Academy of Sciences and an assistant to one of the farmers general, who were charged with tax collection. By 1779 he had himself become one of the farmers general. In 1776 he was made director of the government powder mills. He served on several committees of the National Assembly (1789), including the commission (1790) to establish a uniform system of weights and measures. His membership in the hated farmers general brought him under the suspicion of the revolutionary government and he suffered the fate of its members, condemned to death by the Revolutionary Tribunal despite attempts to save him by special petition. Lavoisier's great distinction is that he eliminated from chemistry the old theory of phlogiston and substituted for it a quantitatively measurable substance. Phlogiston was supposedly something given off by a substance during combustion but Lavoisier, by controlled experiment, proved that burning did not consist of emission of phlogiston but of the addition of oxygen (a term he invented) to the substance burned. By performing his experiments in a sealed chamber and by showing that the weight of the chamber was the same both before and after the combustion he demonstrated the law of conservation of mass: the concept is basic in chemistry, since, if nothing is lost during a chemical reaction, an equation expressing the reaction is possible, each side of the equation (the "before" and "after") balancing the other. His experiments likewise split the thermal (physical) and chemical aspects of a reaction, permitting chemistry to be investigated as a separate branch of science. He proved by experiment that respiration in living things is an oxidation reaction and that heat is given off as a result. He experimented to determine the composition of water and performed a quantitative experiment decomposing steam into oxygen and hydrogen. With other chemists of the day he developed the beginnings of the modern system of chemical nomenclature; he divided chemical substances into five classes: gases (including light and heat, the latter hypothesized as a weightless substance called caloric, which was dropped as nonchemical by later chemists); metals; the acidifiable substances, sulfur, phosphorus, and carbon; earthlike substances; and alkalis. Among his writings are Méthode de nomenclature chimique (1787, with C. L. Berthollet, L. B. Guyton de Morveau, and A. F. Fourcroy) and Traité élémentaire de chimie (1789). He worked also with J. E. Guettard on the early geological atlas of France (published 1780).

Lavongai (lä.vông'gī). [Former name, New Hanover, German, Neu Hannover.] Island of the Bismarck Archipelago, NE of New Guinea. Politically it is part of the Territory of New Guinea. Area, ab. 600 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 5,000 (1940).

Lavradores (lä.vrą.dō'rēsh), Terra de. See under Labrador.

Lavras (lä'vrąs). City in SE Brazil, in the state of Minas Gerais. 12,721 (1950).

Lavrentiev (läv.rān'tyif), Boris I. b. in Russia, 1892; d. there, 1944. Russian anatomist. He contributed a great deal to the knowledge of the form and function of the autonomic nervous system. His researches on living synapses, recorded on motion-picture film, are the only ones in world medical literature and are of immense scientific value. He worked also on the most varied forms of nerve endings, whose finer structure he described. He studied the extensive range of processes from normal reactive changes in fibers and cells up to definitely pathologic phenomena, and disclosed the reactive nature of the "Kugel phenomenon." Author of Innervation of the Heart (1946).

Lavrion (läv'ryôn). Modern Greek name of Laurion.

Law (lô), Andrew Bonar. b. in New Brunswick, Canada, Sept. 16, 1858; d. Oct. 30, 1923. British statesman, leader (1911–15) of the Conservative opposition in the House of Commons. After holding the positions in the World War I and postwar cabinets of secretary of state for the colonies (1915–16), chancellor of the exchequer (1916–18), and lord privy seal (1919–21), he became (1922) prime minister of a Conservative cabinet. He served for only 209 days, in which time, in addition to domestic troubles, he was confronted with the international problem created by the French occupation of the Ruhr.

Law, Edmund. b. at Cartmel, Lancashire, England, June 6, 1703; d. at Carlisle, England, Aug. 14, 1787. English prelate and theological and philosophical writer, bishop of Carlisle (1768–87).

Law, Edward. [Title, 1st Baron Ellenborough.] b. at Great Salkeld, Cumberland, England, Nov. 16, 1750; d. at London, Dec. 13, 1818. English jurist; son of Edmund Law. Called to the bar in June, 1780, he served later as leading counsel for Warren Hastings, and appeared in other famous trials. He became attorney general under Addington, Feb. 14, 1801. He entered Parliament in March, 1801, and became lord chief justice of England on April 12, 1802. In 1806 he accepted a seat in the cabinet, under Grenville, without office. His most important attempt in legislation was the act (now repealed) which bore his name, by which the number of capital felonies was largely increased.

Law, Edward. [Title, 1st Earl of Ellenborough.] b. Sept. 8, 1790; d. Dec. 22, 1871. English statesman; eldest son of Edward Law, 1st Baron Ellenborough. He was appointed lord privy seal under Wellington in 1828, was transferred to the presidency of the board of control in the same year, and became interested in Indian affairs. He went out of office in 1830. He was appointed governor general of India (succeeding Lord Auckland) on Oct. 20, 1841, holding the post until 1844. During his administration he annexed Sind (which was conquered by Sir Charles Napier) and invaded Gwalior, conquering the Mahrattas at Maharajpur, Dec. 28, 1843. In 1846 he was first lord of the admiralty and in 1858 again became president of the board of control.

Law (lô; French, lō), Jacques Alexandre Bernard. See Lauriston, Jacques Alexandre Bernard Law, Marquis de.

Law (lô), John. b. at Edinburgh, in April, 1671; d. at Venice, March 21, 1729. English financier and projector of commercial schemes. In April, 1694, he killed "Beau" (Edward) Wilson in a duel at London and was condemned to death, but escaped to the Continent where for a time he led a roving life, largely that of a gambler. At the same time he endeavored to secure the adoption by various governments of his banking and other financial schemes, especially of his plans for the issue of paper money, of which he was an earnest advocate. In May, 1716, he, with others, founded the private Banque Générale in France, and succeeded in carrying out with success his views with regard to paper currency, his notes being accepted in payment of taxes, and commanding a premium over specie. Soon after this he acquired from the French government colonization and trade rights over the territory then called Louisiana, the Compagnie d'Occident being incorporated for this purpose in 1717; the enterprise became famous under the name of the Mississippi Scheme or the System. This company soon absorbed the East India and China companies (being thereafter formally known as the Compagnie des Indes), the African Company, the mint, and the power of receivers general, thus becoming supreme both in the American and Asiatic commerce of France and in its internal financial affairs. Meanwhile, in 1718, the Banque Générale had been transformed into the Banque Royale, with Law as director general and its notes guaranteed by the king. On Jan. 5, 1720, Law was made controller general of finance, and on Feb. 23 the company and the bank were combined. For a while the System prospered, fortunes were made in speculation, and Law possessed great power; but the overissue of paper money and the hostile action of the awakened government brought on the inevitable catastrophe, and in May, 1720, the System collapsed (thereupon acquiring the name "Mississippi Bubble," by which it is now remembered) Law was driven from France, and his estates were confiscated. In December, 1720, however, he was invited by Czar Peter I to take charge of the finances of Russia, but declined. Later (1721) he returned to England, remaining there until 1725, when he went to Italy.

Law, Sallie Chapman. [Sometimes called "Mother of the Confederacy"; maiden name, Gordon.] b. in Wilkes County, N.C., Aug. 27, 1805; d. June 28, 1894. American woman noted for her management of Confederate hospitals during the Civil War. She was one of the organizers (1861) of the Southern Mothers' Hospital at Memphis, Tenn., and the president (c1865 et seq.) of the Southern Mothers' Association.

Law, Thomas. b. at Cambridge, England, Oct. 23, 1759; d. at Washington, D.C., in October, 1834. English economist; seventh son of Edmund Law. He emigrated to America in 1793, became a friend of George Washington, and married, as his second wife, a daughter of Martha Washington. He wrote several works on financial topics.

Law, Thomas Graves. b. in Somersetshire, England, Dec. 14, 1836; d. at Edinburgh, March 12, 1904. English essayist, biographer, and historian. He contributed to the Cambridge Modern History and the Dictionary of National Biography. Author of The Conflicts Between Jesuits and Seculars in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth (1889) and Collected Essays and Reviews (1904).

Law, William. b. at King's Cliffe, near Stamford, Northamptonshire, England, 1686; d. there, April 9, 1761. English controversial and devotional writer. He was ordained in 1711 and in the same year became a fellow of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. When George I came to the throne in 1714, Law refused to take the oath of allegiance to the new king or to abjure the Stuarts.

He was therefore removed, as a nonjuror, from his fellowship. He supported himself thereafter by acting as a tutor, and in 1727 entered the household of Edward Gibbon, grandfather of the historian, as tutor and private chaplain. There he was adviser not only to the Gibbon family but to such visitors as John and Charles Wesley and John Byrom. After 1740 he lived at King's Cliffe with two woman companions, Hester Gibbon and Mrs. Archibald Hutcheson, the widow of an old friend. In 1734 he became acquainted with the work of Jakob Böhme and afterward wrote several mystical works influenced by Böhme's theosophy. Law's influence on John Wesley and other leaders of the evangelical movement was considerable; especially influential were his A Treatise of Christian Perfection (1726) and A Serious Call to a Devout and Holy Life (1728). The latter was much praised by Samuel Johnson and remains Law's best-known work. Law's defense of the church in the Bangorian controversy (Three Letters to the Bishop of Bangor, 1717) was one of the principal contributions to the argument; his attack on the Deism of Matthew Tindal (The Case of Reason, 1732) was the first answer to the Deists; his Remarks on Mandeville's Fable of the Bees (1723) and Letters to a Lady Inclined to Enter the Church of Rome are excellent examples of his controversial style.

Lawa (lä'wä). See Wa.

Lawers (lô'ẽrz), Ben. See Ben Lawers.

Lawes (lôz), Henry. b. at Dinton, Wiltshire, England, about December, 1595; d. Oct. 21, 1662. English musician; brother of William Lawes. He was composer of the music for Milton's Comus (1634), and of numerous anthems and songs, among them poems by Herrick, Carew, Waller, and Lovelace. Milton, commemorating his friend in a sonnet, points out that he attempted to match his music to the sense of the words.

Lawes, Lewis E. b. at Elmira, N.Y., Sept. 13, 1883; d. at Garrison, N.Y., April 23, 1947. American penologist and author. He attended the New York School of Social Work, became (1905) a prison guard, served (1914–15) as overseer of the New York City Reformatory at New Hampton Farms, of which he was superintendent (1915–20), and was warden (1920–41) of Sing Sing Prison at Ossining, N.Y. Author of Man's Judgment of Death (1923), Life and Death in Sing Sing (1928), 20,000 Years in Sing Sing (1932), Meet the Murderer (1940), and Stone and Steel (1941).

Lawes, William. Killed at the siege of Chester, England, in September, 1645. English composer; brother of Henry Lawes. He wrote the music for various masques, instrumental pieces, and vocal compositions.

Lawfeld (lou'felt). See Laafelt.

Lawless (lô'lẹs), Emily. b. at Dublin, June 17, 1845; d. in Surrey, England, Oct. 19, 1913. Irish nature poet and novelist. Author of A Millionaire's Cousin (1885), Hurrish (1886), With Essex in Ireland (1890), and Grania (1892), novels; History of Ireland (1887) and a biography of Maria Edgeworth (1904); With the Wild Geese (1902), Point of View (1909), and The Inalienable Heritage (1914), poetry. Among her poems are Spain and A Drinking Song.

Lawman (lä'mạn). See Layamon.

Lawndale (lôn'dāl). Unincorporated community in S California, in Los Angeles County. Pop. of census tracts, 19,102 (1950).

Lawnsville (lônz'vil). A former name of Logan, W.Va.

Lawrence (lô'rẹns, lor'ẹns), Saint. [Also: Laurence; Latin, Laurentius.] d. (according to most accounts) Aug. 10, 258 A.D. Christian martyr, deacon of Pope Sixtus II. He was put to death with numerous other clergy during the persecution of Valerian in August, 258. According to legend, set down by Saint Ambrose, when asked for his treasures he brought forward the poor; it is also related that he met Sixtus II on the way to execution, on which occasion the Pope promised Lawrence he would suffer three days later. These and other stories about Lawrence are very doubtful, as is also the manner of his execution, on a gridiron, although he is frequently represented in art with the gridiron as his attribute. His date of death, and even his very existence, have been questioned by many authorities.

Lawrence. [Latin, Laurentius.] fl. 498–505. Archpriest of Rome, elected antipope on Nov. 22, 498, by a minority of the Roman clergy after the lawful election of Symmachus. The Laurentian faction, friendly to the Byzantines, was fostered by the senator Festus, who wished the Pope to sign the heretical Henoticon of the emperor Zeno. Lawrence submitted to the decision of the Gothic king Theodoric, who acted as arbiter, and was given the diocese of Nocera in Campania. Subsequently the Laurentian faction several times renewed the schism until 505, despite the decision of the Palmary Synod (502) in favor of Symmachus.

Lawrence, Saint. d. Feb. 2, 619. Prelate of the early English church. Consecrated by Saint Augustine in 604, he succeeded him as archbishop of Canterbury.

Lawrence. City in E Kansas, county seat of Douglas County, on the Kansas River: shipping center for grain and feed; manufactures of flour, paper boxes, and organs. It is the seat of the University of Kansas. It was founded by Free-Soil adherents in 1854, became an antislavery center, and was sacked and burned by proslavery forces in 1856 and by Confederate guerrillas under Quantrill in 1863. Pop. 23,351 (1950).

Lawrence. City in NE Massachusetts, a county seat (with Newburyport and Salem) of Essex County, on the Merrimack River ab. 25 mi. N of Boston. It was platted in 1845 and incorporated as a city in 1853, and is predominantly a woolen-textile manufacturing center; paper, shoes, soap, and other products are also manufactured. A noted strike of textile workers took place here in 1912. The city was named for the Lawrence brothers, Amos and Abbott, who founded both the city and its leading industrial enterprise. Pop. of city, 80,536 (1950); of urbanized area, 112,309 (1950).

Lawrence. Village in SE New York, in Nassau County: residential suburb of New York City. 4,681 (1950).

Lawrence, Abbott. b. at Groton, Mass., Dec. 16, 1792; d. at Boston, Aug. 18, 1855. American merchant and politician; brother of Amos Lawrence and William Lawrence (1783–1848). He was a representative in Congress (1834–36, 1838–40), U.S. minister to Great Britain (1849–52), and founded the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard. He was a partner, with Amos Lawrence, in the mercantile firm of A. and A. Lawrence, and head of the company after his brother retired in 1831.

Lawrence, Amos. b. at Groton, Mass., April 22, 1786; d. at Boston, Dec. 31, 1852. American merchant and philanthropist; brother of Abbott Lawrence and William Lawrence (1783–1848). He gave, among other gifts, about 20,000 dollars to the academy at Groton, which received the name of Lawrence Academy in 1846. He was a partner, with Abbott Lawrence, in the mercantile firm of A. and A. Lawrence.

Lawrence, Charles. d. at Halifax, Nova Scotia, Oct. 17, 1760. English general.

Lawrence, Charles Edward. b. at Thurlstone, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 24, 1870; d. at London, March 14, 1940. English novelist, dramatist, and critic. Author of Pilgrimage (1907; revised, 1914), Much Ado About Something (1909), Mrs. Bente and Youth Went Riding (both 1918), Such Stuff As Dreams (1919), The God in the Thicket (1920), The Iron Bell (1921), Week-End at Forthries (1935), The Gods Were Sleeping (1937), novels; The Year (1927) and The Reckoning (1934), plays. He also wrote Wisdom of the Apocrypha (1910), The Gentle Art of Authorship (1924), and several one-act plays, including The Hour of Prospero (1927), Swift and Stella (1928), Spikenard (1930), The Day Before Yesterday (1931), Home (1932), The Touch of Nature (1934), and Gloriana (1939). He was coeditor of the Quarterly Review, and on the staff (1904–18) of the Daily Chronicle.

Lawrence, David. b. at Philadelphia, Dec. 25, 1888—. American journalist and author. He was Washington correspondent (1916–19) for the New York Evening Post, president (1919–33) of the Consolidated Press Association, president and publisher of the United States Daily (1926–33) and the United States News (1933 et seq.), and founder and president of World Report (1946 et seq.). Author of True Story of Woodrow Wilson (1924), Beyond the New Deal (1934), Nine Honest Men (1936), Diary of a Washington Correspondent (1942), The Vanishing First Amendment (1944), and other books.

Lawrence, D. H. [Full name, David Herbert Lawrence.] b. at Eastwood, Nottinghamshire, England,

Sept. 11, 1885; d. at Vence, near Nice, France, March 2, 1930. English novelist, short-story writer, poet, and essayist. Son of a coal miner, he was educated at Nottingham High School and at the Nottingham Day Training College for Teachers, and taught (1908–12) at the Davidson Road Elementary School, at Croydon, near London. He lived and traveled in Australia, Mexico, Sicily, Sardinia, Italy, the U.S., and elsewhere in vain attempts to cure or improve his tubercular lung condition. Author of The White Peacock (1911), The Trespasser (1912), Sons and Lovers (1913), The Rainbow (1915), The Lost Girl (1920; awarded the James Tait Black memorial prize), Women in Love (1920), Aaron's Rod (1922), Kangaroo (1923), St. Mawr (1925), The Plumed Serpent (1926), Lady Chatterley's Lover (1928; banned in both England and America), The Virgin and the Gipsy (1930), novels; The Prussian Officer (1914), England, My England (1922), The Fox (1923), The Ladybird (1923; American title, The Captain's Doll), Glad Ghosts and Sun (both 1926), Rawdon's Roof and The Woman Who Rode Away (both 1928), The Lovely Lady and Love Among the Haystacks (1933), collected short stories and tales; The Widowing of Mrs. Holroyd (1914), Touch and Go (1920), David (1926), and A Collier's Friday Night (1934), plays; Love Poems (1913), Amores (1916), Look! We Have Come Through (1917), New Poems (1918), Tortoises (1921), Birds, Beasts and Flowers (1923), Pansies (1929), Nettles and The Triumph of the Machine (both 1930), and The Ship of Death (1933), poetry; Movements in European History (1921), Psychoanalysis of the Unconscious (1921), Fantasia of the Unconscious (1922), Studies in Classic American Literature (1923), Pornography and Obscenity (1929), volumes of critical essays and studies; Twilight in Italy (1916), Sea and Sardinia (1921), and Mornings in Mexico (1927), travel books. His Letters were published in 1932 and 1934. He translated some of the short stories of Ivan Bunin, Russian novelist, and Little Novels of Sicily (1925), Cavelleria Rusticana (1928), and other works by Giovanni Verga. Among his single poems are Suspense, A Youth Mowing, A Young Wife, Cherry Robbers, A Winter's Tale, Love on the Farm, Piano, Wedding Morn, Service of All the Dead, Nostalgia, A Baby Asleep After Pain, Moonrise, Tommies in the Train, and Resurrection. Tormented throughout his life by ill-suppressed feelings of inferiority, aggravated by the suppression of his sincere The Rainbow in 1915 and by his illness, Lawrence preached a freedom of the "male" principle that was reflected in his preoccupation with the physico-mental processes. The message he sought to bring to the world was often obscured by his passionate and sometimes incoherent exposition of the theme, but his powers as a novelist of deep psychological insight and descriptive power are nevertheless apparent.

Lawrence, Ernest Orlando. b. at Canton, S.D., Aug. 8, 1901—. American physicist, inventor (1930) of the cyclotron. He was professor of physics (1930 et seq.) and director (1936 et seq.) of the radiation laboratory at the University of California, and consultant (1946 et seq.) at the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory. He worked on the structure of atoms and of the atomic nucleus, effected transmutation of certain elements, produced artificial radioactivity, and applied the results of his experiments to problems of physics and biology. He received the Nobel prize for physics (1939).

Lawrence, George Alfred. b. at Braxted, England, Essex, March 25, 1827; d. at Edinburgh, Sept. 23, 1876. English novelist. He wrote the adventure novel Guy Livingstone, or Thorough (1857).

Lawrence, Sir George St. Patrick. b. at Trincomalee, Ceylon, March 17, 1804; d. at London, Nov. 16, 1884. English general; brother of Sir Henry M. Lawrence and of J. L. M. Lawrence. He served in India, except for one brief period, from 1822 to 1864, and was made major general in 1861. He wrote Forty-three Years in India (1874).

Lawrence, Gertrude. [Original name, Gertrude Alexandra Dagmar Lawrence Klasen.] b. at London, July 4, 1902; d. at New York, Sept. 6, 1952. English actress, noted especially for her roles in musical comedy and revue. She arrived (1924) in America with the cast of Charlot's Revue, in which she shared the lead with Beatrice Lillie. Her leading roles were in Candlelight (1929), Susan and God (1937), Skylark (1939), Lady in the Dark (1940), Pygmalion (1946) and The King and I (1951). She appeared opposite Noel Coward in his Private Lives (1930) and To-Night at Eight-Thirty (1935–37). She taught (1951–52) a course in dramatics at Columbia University. Author of A Star Danced (1945).

Lawrence, Sir Henry Montgomery. b. at Matura, Ceylon, June 28, 1806; d. at Lucknow, India, July 4, 1857. English general and administrator in India; brother of Sir George St. P. Lawrence and of J. L. M. Lawrence. He served in India from 1822, and was appointed resident at Lahore Jan. 8, 1847. He was president of the board of administration in the Punjab April 14, 1849, the governor general's agent in Rajputana (1853), and chief commissioner of Oudh (1857). When the Sepoy Mutiny broke out (May, 1857), he was at Lucknow, the defense of which he organized, and where he died from a wound received July 2. He was the author of several works on India.

Lawrence, Sir Herbert Alexander. b. 1861; d. at Little Berkhamsted, England, 1943. English soldier. He served in the Boer War (1899–1902), and was appointed major general during the Dardanelles campaign (1915) in World War I. He was chairman (1926–37) of the munitions firm of Vickers Ltd.

Lawrence, James. b. at Burlington, N.J., Oct. 1, 1781; d. at sea, June 4, 1813. American naval officer in the War of 1812. While in command of the Hornet he captured the British ship Peacock in February, 1813. He was defeated and mortally wounded as commander of the Chesapeake against the Shannon on June 1, 1813. Lawrence's words ("Don't give up the ship"), spoken as he was carried below, rank with John Paul Jones's "I have just begun to fight," in the annals of the U.S. Navy during its early years.

Lawrence, John Laird Mair. [Title, 1st Baron Lawrence.] b. at Richmond, Yorkshire, England, March 4, 1811; d. June 26, 1879. English statesman and administrator in India; brother of Sir Henry M. Lawrence and of Sir George St. P. Lawrence. He went to India in 1829, became one of the administrators of the Punjab in 1849, was chief commissioner in 1853, and served as viceroy and governor general of India (1863–69). The services which he rendered as governor of the Punjab during the Sepoy Mutiny, when he managed to disarm the Sepoy troops in the Punjab before they could do any harm, and his assistance at Delhi, earned for him the title of "savior of India." As viceroy he opposed the "forward" policy that eventually led to the Afghan War.

Lawrence, Josephine. b. at Newark, N.J., c1897—. American journalist and novelist. Her initial works were stories for children, including Rosemary (1922), The Berry Patch (1925), and Wind's in the West (1931). She wrote (1921) the first story for children broadcast by radio. Author of the novels Head of the Family (1932), Years Are So Long (1934), If I Have Four Apples (1935), The Sound of Running Feet (1937), Bow Down to Wood and Stone (1938), A Good Home With Nice People (1939), But You Are Young (1940), No Stone Unturned (1941), There is Today (1942), A Tower of Steel (1943), Let Us Consider One Another (1945), Double Wedding Ring (1946), The Pleasant Morning Light (1948), and My Heart Shall Not Fear (1949).

Lawrence, Marjorie. b. at Dean's March, Australia, Feb. 17, 1909—. Australian operatic soprano, specializing in Wagnerian roles.

Lawrence, Stringer. b. at Hereford, England, March 6, 1697; d. at London, Jan. 10, 1775. English soldier. He went (1748) to India to take command of the troops of the East India Company, and at once began the labors in military organization which earned for him the title of "father of the Indian army." He was chiefly occupied in fighting the French and checking the growth of their influence in India. His last service was the defense of Fort St. George during its famous siege by the French under Lally (1758–59).

Lawrence, Sir Thomas. b. at Bristol, England, May 4, 1769; d. at London, Jan. 7, 1830. English portrait painter. He was knighted April 22, 1815, and elected president of the Royal Academy to succeed Benjamin West, on March 20, 1820. He was patronized by George III, among a large number of other notable persons.

Lawrence, Thomas Edward. [Often shortened to T. E. Lawrence; called Lawrence of Arabia; during his later years, T. E. Shaw.] b. at Portmadoc, Caernarvonshire, Wales, Aug. 15, 1888; d. at Bovington Camp, Dorsetshire, England, May 19, 1935. English archaeologist, secret agent, soldier, and writer, who has been called "the most romantic figure of his time." While a student at Oxford he became interested in archaeology, and after some solitary travel in Syria, in 1911 he joined a British Museum expedition engaged in excavating ancient sites in the valley of the Euphrates. On the outbreak of World War I, he became a member of the British secret service and, operating out of Cairo, made an extraordinarily penetrating study not only of the Turkish military forces and leaders, but also of the possibility of a successful Arab revolt against Turkish overlordship. In 1916 he received permission to promote such a revolt, and considering Faisal al-Husain (later to be Faisal I of Iraq), son of the sherif of Arabia (Husein ibn-Ali, who was to be first king of Ḥejaz), the ablest and most dependable of the insurgent Arabs, he proceeded to Faisal's camp and induced him to undertake a campaign which disrupted the communications of the Turkish forces in Arabia, prevented them from attacking the Suez Canal and Egypt, and brought about the liberation of Arabia from Turkish domination. The high point of his brilliant military career came in 1918 when, with Faisal, he entered Damascus in triumph. Officially a subordinate first of General Wingate and subsequently of Allenby, Lawrence in fact and of necessity operated independently, and in the desert campaign displayed a strategic genius rarely surpassed in military annals. Attending the Paris Peace Conference in 1919 as a member of the British delegation, Lawrence is said to have been embarrassed and dismayed to learn that while he had made certain promises to the Arabs concerning their hopes of independence and their territorial expectations, the British government had made in other directions commitments which conflicted with his pledges. Refusing a peerage and rejecting the Distinguished Service Order and other honors, he consented to serve as adviser to the Middle East division of the Colonial Office in 1921–22, during which time he was instrumental in bringing about the recognition of Iraq as a kingdom and of Faisal as its king. Thereafter Lawrence, shunning fame and public notice, enlisted as an aircraftman (equivalent to private) in the Royal Air Force under the name of Ross. When his identity was discovered, he transferred to the tank corps, adopted the name T. E. Shaw, and later again served in the Royal Air Force under that designation. His death in 1935 resulted from a motorcycle accident. His extraordinary book The Seven Pillars of Wisdom, based on his wartime experiences in Arabia, was privately printed in an edition limited to nine copies, in 1926; in 1927 an abridgment of it was published under the title Revolt in the Desert, and in 1935 the complete text was published, under the original title. In 1932 Lawrence's translation of the Odyssey, considered one of the best in English, appeared. A selection of his letters was published in 1939, and in 1940 a collection of his miscellaneous writings, under the title Oriental Assembly.

Lawrence, William. b. at Groton, Mass., Sept. 7, 1783; d. Oct. 14, 1848. American merchant, textile manufacturer, and philanthropist; brother of Abbott Lawrence and Amos Lawrence. He started (1810) in business as a commission merchant, founded (1822) with a fourth brother, Samuel Lawrence, the firm of W. and S. Lawrence, and organized (c1825) the Middlesex Manufacturing Company (the first factory for woolen goods incorporated in the U.S.) at Lowell, Mass. As a board member (1818–48) of the Suffolk bank, he aided the establishment of the "Suffolk Bank System." He endowed the academy at Groton, whose name was changed (1846) to Lawrence Academy.

Lawrence, Sir William. b. at Cirencester, England, July 16, 1783; d. at London, July 5, 1867. English surgeon and anatomist. Of his works his Lectures on the Physiology, Zoology, and Natural History of Man are noted for the fact that the courts refused to protect their author's rights in them because they were held to contradict the Scriptures.

Lawrence, William. b. at Boston, May 30, 1850; d. there, Nov. 6, 1941. American Protestant Episcopal clergyman. He was consecrated (1893) bishop of Massachusetts, a position from which he resigned (1926). Author of Life of Amos A. Lawrence (1889), Visions of Service (1896), Study of Phillips Brooks (1903), The American Cathedral (1921), Memories of a Happy Life (1926), The New American (1929), and Life of Phillips Brooks (1930).

Lawrence, William Appleton. b. at Cambridge, Mass., May 21, 1889—. American Protestant Episcopal clergyman; son of William Lawrence (1850–1941). He was consecrated bishop (1937) of western Massachusetts. Author of Christian Marriage (1929).

Lawrence, William Beach. b. at New York, Oct. 23, 1800; d. there, March 26, 1881. American jurist and politician. Among his works are Law of Charitable Uses (1845), Visitation and Search (1858), and Commentaire sur les éléments du droit international (4 vols., 1868–80). He edited Wheaton's Elements of International Law (1855).

Lawrence Boythorn (boi'thôrn). See Boythorn, Lawrence.

Lawrenceburg (lô'rens.bėrg, lor'ens-). City in SE Indiana, county seat of Dearborn County. 4,806 (1950).

Lawrenceburg. City in SW Tennessee, county seat of Lawrence County: manufactures of cheese and of wool textiles. It was founded in 1815. Pop. 5,442 (1950).

Lawrence Justinian (lô'rens, lor'ens jus.tin'i.an), Saint. [Latin, Laurentius Justinianus.] b. 1381; d. Jan. 8, 1456. Italian Augustinian canon regular. At the age of 19 he entered an Augustinian monastery near Venice. This later became a convent of secular canons living in community, of which Lawrence was chosen prior and then superior general. He was consecrated bishop of Castello (1433), and in 1451 became patriarch of Venice, on transference of the patriarchate from Grado by Pope Nicholas V. He was known for his liberality and charity toward the poor.

Lawrenceville (lô'rens.vil, lor'ens-). City in N Georgia, county seat of Gwinnett County, ab. 25 mi. NE of Atlanta. 2,932 (1950).

Lawrenceville. City in SE Illinois, county seat of Lawrence County, in a petroleum area. Its chief industry is oil refining. 6,328 (1950).

Lawrenceville. Unincorporated community in C New Jersey, in Mercer County: seat of the Lawrenceville School. 1,056 (1950).

Lawrie (lô'ri, lor'i), Lee. b. at Rixdorf, Germany, Oct. 16, 1877—. American sculptor. He taught at Harvard University (1910–12) and Yale University (1908–18), and was a consultant on sculpture for the Chicago Exposition (1933) and the New York World's Fair (1939). He was a pupil of Philip Martiny and Augustus Saint-Gaudens. His work includes the sculpture at the entrance of the R.C.A. Building, New York, marble head of a woman, in the Metropolitan Museum, New York, and the sculpture on the Harkness memorial tower and archway at Yale University, the Nebraska and Louisiana state capitols, Bok carillon tower, Florida, and at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point.

Lawrie (lou'ri), Robert. See Laurie, Robert.

Laws of Burgos (bör'gōs). See Burgos, Laws of.

Laws of Candy (kan'di), The. Play by John Fletcher, printed in 1647. It was probably written c1619.

Lawson (lô'sọn), Andrew Cowper. b. at Anstruther, Scotland, July 25, 1861; d. June 16, 1952. American expert in petrography, economic geology, geomorphology, geomorphogeny, seismology, and other fields of geology.

Lawson, Cecil Gordon. b. at Wellington, Shropshire, England, Dec. 3, 1851; d. at London, June 10, 1882. English landscape painter.

Lawson, Sir Harry Sutherland Wightman. b. at Dunolly, Victoria, Australia, March 5, 1875—. Australian statesman. He was a member (1899–1928) of the state parliament, senator (1928–35) for Victoria, premier (1918–24) of Victoria, and minister (1934) of external territories.

Lawson, Henry. [Also: Henry Hertzberg Lawson, Henry Archibald Lawson.] b. near Grenfell, New South Wales, Australia, June 17, 1867; d. at Sydney, Australia, Sept. 2, 1922. Australian short-story writer and poet, the greatest writer of fictional sketches in Australian literature. He was the son of a Norwegian father (Larsen, Anglicized as Lawson) and an Australian mother. Meagerly educated, he learned the trade of a carriage painter, but his mother, a working journalist from 1884, encouraged him to write, and he published his first book in 1894. The best single volumes of his work are While the Billy Boils (1896) and Joe Wilson and His Mates (1902); his poetry is of lesser worth.

Lawson, Sir John. d. at Greenwich (now part of London), June 29, 1665, from a wound received in action off Lowestoft June 3. English sailor, commander in the service of Parliament (1642–56, 1659), and then in that of the king. He served under Vice-Admiral Penn in the Mediterranean, and under Blake in the North Sea, and became vice-admiral in 1653. In 1659 he took, by order of Parliament, command of the fleet in the "Narrow Seas." In 1661–64 he commanded a fleet in the Mediterranean, and succeeded temporarily in subduing the corsairs of Tunis and Algiers.

Lawson, John. d. c1712. Scottish surgeon who came to America as surveyor general of North Carolina in 1700. He traveled extensively through the Carolinas in the course of his business, writing down his experiences and observations as he went. He was one of the founders of New Bern, N.C. He became an object of suspicion to the Indians, who waylaid and murdered him. His book A New Voyage to Carolina was published at London in 1709.

Lawson, John Howard. b. at New York, Sept. 25, 1895—. American playwright and scenarist. His plays include Roger Bloomer (1923), Processional (1925), The International (1928), Gentlewoman (1934), and Marching Song (1937). He was scenarist for such films as Action in the North Atlantic (1943), Sahara (1943), and Smashup (1947).

Lawson, Robert. b. at New York, Oct. 4, 1892—. American illustrator, etcher, and writer, best known for his illustrations for children's books.

Lawson, Thomas William. b. at Charlestown, Mass., Feb. 26, 1857; d. Feb. 8, 1925. American stockbroker, speculator, and author. He was the writer of magazine articles under the general title of Frenzied Finance (1904–05) attacking stock-market gamblers and the large insurance companies (thus leading in part to the insurance investigation of 1905). Author of Friday, the Thirteenth (1907), also an attack on the stock market, and other books.

Lawson, Victor Freemont. b. at Chicago, Sept. 9, 1850; d. Aug. 19, 1925. American journalist, a pioneer in the development of foreign news services and the postal savings-bank. He bought (1876) the Chicago Daily News, the first penny newspaper in the West, and brought out (1881) a morning edition as the Chicago Record (later the Record-Herald). He was president (1894–1900) of the Associated Press.

Lawson, W. B. Pseudonym of Jenks, George Charles.

Lawson, Sir Wilfrid. b. in Cumberland, England, Sept. 4, 1829; d. at London, July 1, 1906. English politician. He represented Carlisle in Parliament (1859–65, 1868–85), and sat for a division of Cumberland (1886–1900, 1906) and for a division of Cornwall (1903–05). He was one of the most strenuous advocates of the cause of temperance, and an opponent of the Boer War and armaments. He supported a program urging abolition of the House of Lords.

Lawton (lô'tọn). [Called the "Post City."] City in SW Oklahoma, county seat of Comanche County, in an agricultural area: processing center for cotton, cottonseed, asphalt, and granite. It is the seat of a state agricultural college. The large military post of Fort Sill is just N of the city. 34,757 (1950).

Lawton, Henry Ware. b. at Toledo, Ohio, March 17, 1843; d. at San Mateo, near Manila, P.I., Dec. 19, 1899. American general. He served with the Union army in the Civil War, rising to the brevet rank of colonel, entered the regular army in 1866, served in the West against the Indians, and became famous for his successful operations against Geronimo. Commissioned brigadier general of volunteers in 1898, he commanded a division in the attack on Santiago, captured El Caney July 1, was promoted major general of volunteers July 8, and was assigned to the command of a corps in the Philippines in the same year.

Lawyer Squint (skwint). See Squint, Lawyer.

Laxenburg (läk'sẹn.bürk). [Also, Lachsenburg.] Village in E Austria, now included in Vienna, on the Schwechat River ab. 9 mi. S of the center of the city of Vienna. It is noted for its imperial castle and park, the latter dating from the 18th century. 967 (1946).

Laxness (läks'nes), Halldór Kiljan. b. at Reykjavík, Iceland, April 23, 1902—. Icelandic novelist. He traveled widely in Europe and the U.S., was converted to Catholicism in 1923, and turned to Communism in 1929. He won his first great success with the novel Vefarinn mikli frá Kasmir (The Great Weaver from Kasmir, 1927). The novel of proletarian Icelandic life Salka-Valka (in Icelandic, 1931–32) won him a circle of American readers, which was greatly increased by Independent People (in Icelandic, 1934; in English, 1943).

Laxou (lä.sö). Town in E France, in the department of Meurthe-et-Moselle; a western suburb of Nancy. 8,551 (1946).

Layamon (lā'ạ.mọn, lā'yạ.mọn, lā'mọn). [Also, Lawman.] fl. 1200. English priest, author of a Middle English paraphrase of Wace's Roman de Brut. Written in alliterative verse, with the occasional introduction of rhyme, this chronicle is regarded as the first important English work of its kind. All that is known of his life is contained in a few passages of his work which refer to himself. From these it appears that he was a priest and lived at "Ernley" (identified with Areley Regis in north Worcestershire).

Layard (lā'ạrd), Sir Austen Henry. b. at Paris, March 5, 1817; d. at London, July 5, 1894. English archaeologist and diplomat, noted for his archaeological discoveries in Asiatic Turkey. In 1845–47 he continued the excavations at Kuyunjik begun by Bolta and dug also at Nimrud. He identified Kuyunjik as the site of ancient Nineveh. He was a member of Parliament for Southwark (1860–70), undersecretary for foreign affairs (1861–66), commissioner of works (1868–69), minister to Spain (1869–77), and ambassador to Constantinople (1877–80). He published Nineveh and its Remains (1848), The Monuments of Nineveh (1849–53), Inscriptions in the Cuneiform Character from Assyrian Monuments (1851), Fresh Discoveries at Nineveh, and Researches at Babylon (1853), and others.

Laybach (lī'bäċh). German name of Ljubljana.

Laycock (lā'kok), Thomas. b. at Wetherby, Yorkshire, England, 1812; d. at Edinburgh, Sept. 21, 1876. English physiologist.

Lay Down Your Arms! Title of the English translation by T. Holmes of Die Waffen nieder (1889) by the Baroness von Suttner. The author was awarded the Nobel peace prize in 1905. The book is known also as Ground Arms!

Lay of Aethiopia (ē.thi.ō'pi.ạ). See Aethiopis.

Lay of Havelok the Dane (hav'lok; dān), The. See Havelok the Dane, The Lay of.

Lay of Telegonus (tel.ẹ.gō'nus). See Telegonia.

Lay of the Last Minstrel. Narrative poem by Sir Walter Scott, published in 1805.

Laysan (lī'sän). Atoll in the NW part of the Hawaiian group, NW of Honolulu and SE of Midway. It is noted for its teeming bird life, now protected by law.

Lays of Ancient Rome (rōm), The. Volume of poems by Thomas Babington Macaulay, published in 1842.

Layton (lā'tọn). Town in N Utah, in Davis County, near Great Salt Lake, ab. 20 mi. N of Salt Lake City. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population grew from 646 (1940) to 3,456 (1950).

Layton, Sir Geoffrey. b. at Liverpool, England, April 20, 1884—. English naval officer. He was vice-admiral (1939–40) heading the first battle squadron and second in command of the Home Fleet, and served as commander in chief in China (1940–42), Ceylon (1942–45), and at Portsmouth (1945–47).

Layton, Sir Walter Thomas. b. at London, March 15, 1884—. English economist. He was editor (1922–38) of the Economist, and chairman of the News Chronicle, Limited (1930–50) and the Star Newspaper Company, Limited (1936–50). He was British representative (1929) on the organization committee of the Bank for International Settlements, and served in advisory and administrative posts in World Wars I and II. He directed the economic and financial section of the League of Nations, and later served (1949) as a vice-president of the Assembly of Europe.

Lazarillo (laz.ạ.ril'ō). Character in Beaumont and Fletcher's The Woman-Hater, described in the dramatis personae as a voluptuous "smell-feast." He is a poor and hungry courtier, whose whole soul is given to the subject of delicate eating, with a particular desire for a fish head, which he pursues through the play and finally obtains by marrying its possessor.

Lazarillo de Tormes (lä.thä.rē'lyō dā tôr'mās). Work attributed to Diego Hurtado de Mendoza (first known edition 1553), the autobiography of a boy, "Little Lazarus," who began life as the guide of a blind beggar. It was the first of the gusto picaresco or Spanish picaresque romances.

Lazarus (laz'ạ.rus). In New Testament history, the brother of Mary and Martha, and friend of Jesus, who raised him from the dead after four days. The story of the miracle does not appear in the Synoptic Gospels but only in John, and it has therefore become a hotly disputed point in Biblical criticism. John, xi. 1–44; xii. 1–18.

Lazarus. In the New Testament, a character in one of the parables of Jesus, a beggar at the gate of Dives, a rich man. Luke, xvi. 19.

Lazarus, Emma. b. at New York, July 22, 1849; d. there, Nov. 19, 1887. American poet and essayist, noted for her sonnet engraved on the pedestal of the Statue of Liberty. She wrote Admetus and Other Poems (1871), Songs of a Semite (1882), a prose work, Alide: an Episode of Goethe's Life (1874), a drama, The Spagnoletto (1876), prose poems, By the Waters of Babylon (1887), and Poems (1889). She translated the Poems and Ballads of Heinrich Heine (1881).

Lazarus (lä'tsä.růs), Moritz. b. at Filehne, Posen (Poznań), then part of Germany, Sept. 15, 1824; d. at Merano, in the Italian Tyrol, April 13, 1903. German philosopher of Herbartian tendencies. He worked closely with the philologist Heymann Steinthal. He wrote Das Leben der Seele in Monographien über seine Erscheinungen und Gesetze (1856–57) and others, and edited, with Steinthal, the Zeitschrift für Völkerpsychologie und Sprachwissenschaft.

Lazarus Laughed (laz'ạ.rus). Poetic drama by Eugene O'Neill, produced and published in 1927.

Lazear (lạ.zir'), Jesse William. b. in Baltimore County, Md., May 2, 1866; d. at Quemados, Cuba, Sept. 25, 1900. American physician and bacteriologist. Assigned (1900) to laboratory duty at Columbia Barracks at Quemados, Cuba, he was a member (1900 et seq.), with Walter Reed, James Carroll, and Aristides Agramonte, of the Yellow Fever Commission. He was fatally bitten while studying the disease.

Laziali (lä.tsyä'lē), Monti. An Italian name of the Alban Hills.

Lazio (lä'tsyō). Italian name of Latium.

Lázně Kynžvart (läz'nye kinzh'värt). [German, Bad Königswart.] Resort town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Karlovy Vary, in NW Bohemia, situated in a wooded mountain region. It is visited for its chalybeate and mud baths and also as a summer resort. Königswart Castle, formerly the property of Prince Metternich, is in the vicinity. 1,144 (1947).

Lazzari (läd'dzä.rē), Silvio. b. at Botzen, in the Austrian Tyrol, 1860; d. at Paris, June 18, 1944. French composer. He promoted interest in Wagner by his contributions to musical journals. Among his compositions are the operas Amor (1898), L'Ensorcelé (1903), La Lépreuse (1912), and Le Sauteriot (1920); the pantomime Lulu (1887); and the orchestral works Rapsodie Espagnole and Impressions d'Adriatique. He also wrote songs, choruses, Concertstück for piano, chamber music, and a march.

Le (lā). See Leh.

Lea (lē). River in SE England, rising in Bedfordshire, and flowing SE and S to the river Thames near the Isle of Dogs, in London. Length, 46 mi.

Lea, Fanny Heaslip. b. at New Orleans, La., Oct. 30, 1884—. American writer. Author of Quicksands (1911), Sicily Ann (1914), The Dream-Maker Man (1925), Wild Goose Chase (1929), Half Angel (1932), Once to Every Man (1937), Sailor's Star (1944), and other books. Her plays include Lolly (1930) and Crede Byron (1936).

Lea, Henry Charles. b. at Philadelphia, Sept. 19, 1825; d. there, Oct. 24, 1909. American author and publisher; son of Isaac Lea. His works include Superstition and Force (1866), A History of the Inquisition of the Middle Ages (1887–88), Chapters from the Religious History of Spain connected with the Inquisition (1890), History of Auricular Confession and Indulgences in the Latin Church (1896), The Moriscos of Spain (1901), History of the Inquisition of Spain (4 vols., 1906–07), and The Inquisition in the Spanish Dependencies (1908).

Lea, Homer. b. at Denver, Colo., Nov. 17, 1876; d. Nov. 1, 1912. American soldier and author. He took part in the expedition to relieve Peking in the Boxer rebellion, and became a confidential adviser of Sun Yat-sen. He wrote a novel, The Vermilion Pencil (1908), as well as The Valor of Ignorance (1909) and The Day of the Saxon (1912), tracts warning of conflict between the Orient and the West.

Lea, Isaac. b. at Wilmington, Del., March 4, 1792; d. at Philadelphia, Dec. 8, 1886. American naturalist. Among his works are Contributions to Geology (1833) and Fossil Footmarks (1853).

Leach (lēch), William Elford. b. at Plymouth, England, 1790; d. at the Palazzo San Sebastiano, near Tortona, Italy, Aug. 25, 1836. English physician and naturalist, assistant librarian, and later assistant keeper, of the natural history department in the British Museum, noted especially for his work in entomology and malacology. He published The Zoological Miscellany (1814–17), Malacostraca podophthalma Britanniae, or a Monograph on the British Crabs (1815–16), Systematic Catalogue of the Specimens of the Indigenous Mammalia and Birds that are preserved in the British Museum (1816), and A Synopsis of the Mollusca of Great Britain (edited by J. E. Gray, 1852, but in part printed and circulated as early as 1820).

Leacock (lē'kok), Stephen Butler. b. at Swanmoor, Hampshire, England, 1869; d. at Toronto, Canada, March 28, 1944. Canadian economist and humorist. He was professor (1901–36) and head of the economics department (1908–36) at McGill University, Montreal. Author of Elements of Political Science (1906), Economic Prosperity in the British Empire (1930), Montreal: Seaport and City (1942), and other serious works. His literary studies include Humour: Its Theory and Technique (1935) and biographies of Mark Twain (1932) and Charles Dickens (1933). Among his humorous books are Literary Lapses (1910), Nonsense Novels (1911), Arcadian Adventures with the Idle Rich (1914), Moonbeams from the Larger Lunacy (1915), Frenzied Fiction (1917), Afternoons in Utopia (1932), Funny Pieces (1936), Laugh Parade (1940), My Remarkable Uncle (1942), and Happy Stories Just to Laugh at (1944). He published My Discovery of England (1922) after a lecture tour in England, and he was the author of How To Write (1943).

Lead (lēd). City in W South Dakota, in Lawrence County, at the head of Gold Run Gulch, in the Black Hills: the principal gold mining and refining center of the state. It is the site of the Homestake Mine, producing about one seventh of the annual total U.S. output of gold. 6,422 (1950).

Leadbeater (led'bē"tėr), Mary. [Maiden name, Shackleton.] b. at Ballitore, County Kildare, Ireland, in December, 1758; d. there, June 27, 1826. English writer, friend and correspondent of Burke. She published Poems (1808), Cottage Dialogues among the Irish Peasantry (1811), Cottage Biography (1822), and Annals of Ballitore (published 1862 as The Leadbeater Papers by R. D. Webb).

Leader (lē'dėr), Benjamin Williams. b. at Reading, England, March 12, 1831; d. at Shere, England, March 22, 1923. English landscape painter, noted particularly for his Welsh mountain scenes. He is represented in museums at London, Albany, Birmingham, Bristol, Liverpool, Melbourne, Reading, Rochdale, Salford, and Sheffield. His principal works include Tintern Abbey (Birmingham), Fast Falls the Eventide (Liverpool), and In the Fields (Melbourne).

Leadhills (lead'hilz) or Lead Hills. See Lowther Hills.

Leadsville (lēdz'vil). Former name of Elkins, W.Va.

Leadville (led'vil). City in C Colorado, capital of Lake County, ab. 10,200 ft. above sea level, ab. 78 mi. SW of Denver. It is noted for the mining of silver, molybdenum, and lead (and formerly of gold). It was settled in 1877, and two years later had a population of ab. 30,000; it was the richest silver-mining center of the U.S. in the 1880's. It has undergone numerous changes of fortune since, and the production of metals other than silver has become of greater importance. Pop. 4,081 (1950).

Leaf (lēf). River in N Quebec, flowing generally NE into Leaf Lake, an arm of Ungava Bay. Length, ab. 165 mi.

Leaf, Munro. b. at Hamilton, Md., Dec. 4, 1905—. American writer and illustrator of books for juveniles. Author of Grammar Can Be Fun (1934), Ferdinand (1936), The Fun Book (1941), and others.

Leaf, Walter. b. at Norwood, London, Nov. 26, 1852; d. March 28, 1927. English scholar and banker. Entering the firm of Leaf, Sons and Company as a young man, he became chairman of Leaf and Company, Ltd., in 1888, and chairman of the Westminster Bank in 1918. He served as president of the Institute of Bankers (1919–21), and as president of the International Chamber of Commerce in 1925. As a banker, he was the author of an authoritative work entitled Banking (1926). As a classical scholar, he made, between 1886 and 1902, a translation of the Iliad, and published Companion to the Iliad (1892), Troy, a Study in Homeric Geography (1912), Homer and History (1915), Little Poems from the Greek (1922), and Strabo on the Troad (1923). He collaborated with Andrew Lang and E. J. Myers in the preparation of the widely used Lang, Leaf, and Myers translation of the Iliad into English prose, which was first published in 1882 and has been several times reprinted.

League, the. In French history, the Holy League, formed in the Roman Catholic interest in 1576. The Guise family was at its head, and it carried on for many years a contest against Henry of Navarre, who eventually became Henry IV of France and embraced the Roman Catholic faith.

League Island. Former island in the Delaware River, now a southern part of Philadelphia, at the mouth of the Schuylkill. It is the site of a U.S. navy yard.

League of Nations. International organization created after World War I by the treaty of Versailles to act as an international forum and a place to mediate or conciliate international disputes. Its chief bodies were the League of Nations Council, the League of Nations Assembly, the Permanent Court of International Justice, and the League of Nations Secretariat. Though unable to settle any of the major disputes it faced, such as the Ethiopian crisis, because of the requirement for unanimity in the Council and the nonmembership of the U.S., considerable work was accomplished in the social and economic field. With headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, the organization endured until January, 1946, when it was dissolved after the first meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

League of Nations Assembly. Body of the League of Nations which met annually at Geneva, Switzerland, and which included representatives of all nations belonging to the League of Nations. It was, in actual practice, the League's chief forum for the voicing of national grievances and opinions. Each nation was allowed three delegates, but only one vote. Its specifically assigned tasks were the selection of nonpermanent members of the League of Nations Council, admission of new members, budget control, and, together with the Council, the selection of judges for the Permanent Court of International Justice, as well as the consideration of "any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world." It elected annually a president and six vice-presidents, who steered the work of its meetings and committees.

League of Nations Council. Chief decision-making body of the League of Nations. It was required to make its decisions, except on procedure, by unanimous consent. It met three times yearly and on special call at Geneva, Switzerland. It started with five permanent and four nonpermanent members, but the number was changed in 1922, after the U.S. had refused to join the League, to four permanent and five nonpermanent members. Later Germany and the U.S.S.R. joined Great Britain, France, Japan, and Italy as permanent members, while nonpermanent seats were increased to nine in 1926, ten in 1933, and 11 in 1936. Nonpermanent posts were for three-year staggered terms. Its primary responsibility was the solution of international disputes, but the Council also considered armaments reduction, the annual reports of mandated states, and treaty disputes. Its presidency rotated among its members.

League of Nations Secretariat. Permanent civil service body of the League of Nations, located at Geneva, Switzerland, and drawing its staff from all member nations. It handled the League's routine business, the publication of documents and treaties, and rendered staff assistance to League delegates. Headed by the League's secretary-general, its work was divided into eleven sections, treating such matters as health, mandates, disarmament, and minorities. The Secretariat's staff was supposed to be an internationally oriented body rather than one which would represent the interests of a contributing state or group of states. The secretaries-general of the League were Sir James Eric Drummond (1919–33) and Joseph Avenol (1933–40).

League of Rhine Cities (rīn). See Rhine Cities, League of.

League of the German Princes (jėr'mạn). [German, Fürstenbund.] League formed at the instance of Frederick the Great (Frederick II of Prussia) in July, 1785, between Prussia, Hanover, and the electorate of Saxony, against the emperor Joseph II. It was afterward joined by Brunswick, Mainz, Hesse-Cassel, Baden, Mecklenburg, Anhalt, and the Thuringian lands.

League of the Iroquois (ir'i.kwoi, -kwoiz). See Iroquois, League of the.

League of the Public Weal. Union of powerful French nobles formed (c1465) against Louis XI, its principal power being Burgundy. Louis eventually overcame it by diplomacy.

League of Women Voters of the United States. In U.S. history, a nonpartisan women's political group. With the coming into force, in 1920, of the 19th amendment to the Constitution of the United States, extending the franchise to women on a national basis, the work of the National Woman Suffrage Association came to an end, but many leaders of the suffrage movement felt that organized steps should be taken toward guiding the new and numerous class of voters in the wise use of their new power. Accordingly, in that year, the National League of Women Voters was established under the presidency of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who since 1900 had been president of the National Woman Suffrage Association. In 1948 the name of the National League of Women Voters was changed to League of Women Voters of the United States. This organization is now concerned not so much with defense and advancement of specific women's causes or interests, as with the study of public affairs, political problems, and civic techniques, in general, and with the promotion of active interest in these matters on the part of all citizens. In 1951 the League had a stated membership of approximately 103,000.

League to Enforce Peace. Organization founded at Philadelphia in 1915, during World War I, which supported and advocated the general concept of a form of international government to prevent war and maintain world peace.

Leah (lē'ạ). [Also, Lia.] In the Bible, the elder daughter of Laban, and first wife of Jacob (Gen. xxix). She became the ancestress of the six tribes of Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, and Zebulon. She also became the mother of Dinah, the only daughter of Jacob mentioned. She was buried in the double cave (Machpelah), the family burial place of the patriarchs, at Hebron (Gen. xlix. 31).

Leahy (lā'hi), Edward Daniel. b. at London, 1797; d. at Brighton, England, Feb. 9, 1875. English painter, best known for his portraits.

Leahy, Frank William. b. at O'Neill, Neb., Aug. 27, 1908—. American football coach. Graduating in 1931 from Notre Dame University, where he played football under the coaching of Knute Rockne, he became line coach at Georgetown University in that same year, held the same position at Michigan State College in 1932, and served as assistant coach at Fordham University (1933–38), before becoming (1939) head coach at Boston College. His success at the last-named institution led to his appointment in 1941 as head coach and athletic director at Notre Dame. He entered the U.S. navy in May, 1944, and until his discharge in 1945 served as recreational director for submarine combat crews.

Leahy, William Daniel. b. at Hampton, Iowa, May 6, 1875—. American naval officer and diplomat. He served (1937–39) as chief of naval operations, and retired (1939) from the navy. He was appointed governor of Puerto Rico (1939) and ambassador (1940) to France. He was named chief of staff (July, 1942) to President F. D. Roosevelt, and appointed (December, 1944) admiral of the fleet. He served as chief of staff to President Truman until 1948.

Leake (lēk), Sir John. b. at Rotherhithe, England, 1656; d. at Greenwich, London, Aug. 21, 1720. English sailor in the War of the Spanish Succession. He relieved Barcelona, in April, 1706, received the submission of Cartagena in May, and, with the coöperation of the land forces, captured the city of Alicante and secured the surrender of Majorca and Iviza. He was appointed admiral and commander in chief in the Mediterranean Jan. 15, 1708, and coöperated in the reduction of Sardinia and Minorca. In December he again received a commission as admiral and commander in chief. In 1709 he was appointed one of the lords of the admiralty.

Leake, William Martin. b. at London, Jan. 14, 1777; d. at Brighton, England, Jan. 6, 1860. English antiquary and classical topographer. He traveled through Asia Minor and Cyprus in 1800, and joined the Turkish army in Egypt (via Athens, Cyprus, and Syria) in 1801. He was employed in a survey of Egypt until March, 1802. In 1805 he visited Greece, and remained there, engaged in surveys and explorations and diplomatic negotiations, until 1807. In 1808 he went to Greece on business of the British government, returning to England in 1809. Among his publications are The Topography of Athens (1821), Journal of a Tour in Asia Minor (1824), Travels in the Morea (1830), Travels in Northern Greece (1835), and Numismata Hellenica (1854–59).

Leakey (lē'ki), Louis Seymour Bazett. b. at Kabete, Kenya, Aug. 7, 1903—. English anthropologist and archaeologist, director of the Nairobi Museum, in Kenya. He has been leader of numerous archaeological expeditions which have unearthed early human skeletal remains in East Africa and fossils of anthropoid apes of the Miocene age including specimens of Proconsul africanus. Author of The Stone Age Cultures of Kenya (1931), Stone-Age Africa (1936), and others.

Leaksville (lēks'vil). Town in N North Carolina, in Rockingham County, on the Dan River ab. 30 mi. N of Greensboro: textiles. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 1,886 (1940), 4,045 (1950).

Lea-McCarran Civil Aeronautics Act (lē'ma.kar'an). See Civil Aeronautics Act.

Leamington (lem'ing.ton). [Also: Leamington Spa; official name, Royal Leamington Spa; former name, Leamington Priors.] Municipal borough and inland resort in C England, in Warwickshire, ab. 2 mi. E of Warwick, ab. 87 mi. NW of London by rail. Saline springs were discovered here c1786. The town has manufactures of stoves and grates. 36,345 (1951).

Leamington (lē'ming.ton). Town in S Ontario, Canada, in Essex County, near the shore of Lake Erie ab. 35 mi. SE of Windsor. It is in the heart of a truck-farming area producing the fruits and vegetables which supply many of the towns and cities of SW Ontario. 6,950 (1951).

Leander (lē.an'dėr). In Greek legend, a youth of Abydos, the lover of Hero. Each night he swam the Hellespont to visit her secretly. Marriage was forbidden them because Hero was a priestess of Aphrodite at Sestos. One stormy night the light in the tower, by which his course was guided, was extinguished, and he perished. His body was washed ashore, and on discovering it Hero threw herself into the sea and was drowned.

Leander (lā.än'dėr), Richard. See Volkmann, Richard.

Léandre (lā.ändr). Rival of Lélie in Molière's comedy L'Étourdi.

Léandre. Lover of Lucinde in Molière's Le Médecin malgré lui.

Léandre. Son of Géronte in Molière's Les Fourberies de Scapin.

Léandre, Charles Lucien. b. at Champsecret, France, July 23, 1862—. French artist, illustrator, and caricaturist. He did satiric sketches of King Edward VII, Queen Victoria, Leopold, Wilhelm II, Victor Emmanuel, and Franz Joseph. Among his works are The Tower, Enoch, Jules Gautier, The Life of the Painter, Supper of the Rich, Supper of the Poor, The White Bench, Norman Countryside, illustrations for H. Murger's La Vie de Bohème, A. de Musset's Poems, books by Balzac, Flaubert, and de Maupassant, and sculpture in wood and stone.

Leaning Tower of Pisa (pē'za). See under Pisa, Italy.

Leão (lē.oun'), Honorio Hermeto Carneiro. See Carneiro Leão, Honorio Hermeto.

Lear (lir). [Also: Leir, Leyr.] Legendary king of Britain. In Geoffrey of Monmouth's History of the Kings of Britain (which Shakespeare adopted as the framework of his tragedy), King Leir, son of Bladud, built the town of Leicester, tested the love of his three daughters, and after being deposed by the two elder daughters, was restored to his throne by Cordelia, the discredited youngest. Geoffrey of Monmouth found this story in the early Welsh chronicles, and not only Latinized the old Welsh names of Llyr and Creiddylad to Leir and Cordeilla, but, according to Alexander H. Krappe (in his Mythologie Universelle, Paris, 1930), euhemerized the Old Irish Ler into the British king. The Welsh Llyr was a sea personification, cognate with the Old Irish Ler, personification of the sea. The story itself (of a king testing the devotion of a daughter or daughters, or of courtiers, or of a man testing the loyalty of friends) is world folklore, as ancient at least as a Buddhist parable already old when first translated in the 11th century. The daughter or friend who gives the cryptic, nonflattering answer is of course invariably the truest, most loving, or most loyal. The story is best known today through Shakespeare's tragedy King Lear. The story of King Lear also appears in Spenser's Faerie Queene.

Lear, Ben. b. at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, May 12, 1879—. American army officer. He was commander (1940–43) of the U.S. Second Army with the rank of lieutenant general, and commander (1943–45) of the army ground forces. He was appointed (1945) deputy commander to General Eisenhower.

Lear, Edward. b. at London, May 12, 1812; d. at San Remo, Italy, 1888. English artist and writer, noted for his nonsense verse and limericks. Among his publications are Illustrations for the Family of the Psittacidæ (1832), The Book of Nonsense (1846), Journal of a Landscape Painter in Corsica (1870, the last of a series of journals of his travels in the Mediterranean area), Nonsense Songs, Stories, Botany, and Alphabets (1870), More Nonsense (1871), and Laughable Lyrics (1876). Author of The Owl and the Pussy-Cat (1871), The Pobble Who Had No Toes, and The Jumblies.

Lear, King. See King Lear.

Lear, Tobias. b. at Portsmouth, N.H., Sept. 19, 1762; d. Oct. 11, 1816. American diplomat. He was private secretary (1785–92) and military secretary (1798–99) to George Washington, and wrote Observations on the River Potomack, the Country Adjacent, and the City of Washington (1793), thought to be the first monograph on the district. He was consul (1801–02) at Santo Domingo (now Ciudad Trujillo), and was appointed (1803) consul general to Algiers. He negotiated (1805) the treaty with Tripoli by which that Mediterranean city-state agreed to forego tribute from merchant vessels that came within its reach.

Learchus (lē.är'kus). In Greek mythology, son of Athamus, a king of Boeotia, and Ino, daughter of Cadmus. Learchus was killed by his father in a fit of madness.

Learmont (lir'mont), Thomas. See Thomas the Rhymer.

Learned (lėr'ned), Marion Dexter. b. near Dover, Del., July 10, 1857; d. Aug. 1, 1917. American Germanic philologist and historian of literature. He was the author of The Pennsylvania German Dialect (1889), The German-American Teutonic Lyric (1896), The Saga of Walther of Aquitaine (1892), A New German Grammar (1903), Herder and America (1904), the historical work Life of Francis Daniel Pastorius (1908), and Guide to the Manuscript Materials Relating to American History in the German State Archives (1912).

Lear of the Steppes (lir), A. Novelette by Ivan Turgenev.

Leary (lir'i), Herbert Fairfax. b. at Washington, D.C., May 31, 1885—. American naval officer. He was appointed (February, 1942) vice-admiral in command of Allied naval forces in the Australia-New Zealand area.

commanded (October, 1942–May, 1943) the U.S. Pacific fleet task force, and was commander (1943–46) of the Eastern Sea Frontier.

Lease-Lend. British term for Lend-Lease.

Leaside (lē'sīd). Town in Ontario, Canada, a northern residential suburb of Toronto. 6,183 (1941), 16,233 (1951).

Leatherhead (leтн'ėr.hed). Urban district and town in SE England, in Surrey, on the river Mole and on the S bank of the river Thames, ab. 4 mi. SW of Epsom, ab. 18 mi. SW of Waterloo Station, London. It has associations with the manorial courts of the Norman era. 27,203 (1951).

Leatherhead, Lanthorn. In Ben Jonson's comedy Bartholomew Fair, a toy-man who is said, though on doubtful authority, to be intended to ridicule Inigo Jones, with whom Jonson had a continual quarrel.

Leathers (leтн'ėrz), Frederick James. [Title, Baron Leathers.] b. at London, Nov. 21, 1883—. English industrialist and government official. He was associated (1914–18) with the ministry of shipping, was adviser (1940–41) on coal to the shipping ministry, and became minister (1941–45) of war transport.

Leatherstocking. [In some editions, Leather-Stocking.] Name given to Natty Bumppo in some of James Fenimore Cooper's novels, which are hence called the "Leatherstocking Tales." He is also called Hawkeye, the Trapper, the Pathfinder, and the Deerslayer.

Leather Stocking and Silk: or, Hunter John Myers and His Times (jon mī'ėrz). Romance by John Esten Cooke, published in 1854.

Léau (lā.ō). [Flemish, Zoutleeuw.] Village in E central Belgium, in the province of Brabant, ab. 18 mi. E of Louvain: noted for the Church of Saint Leonhard.

Leavenworth (lev'ẹn.wėrth). City in NE Kansas, county seat of Leavenworth County, on the Missouri River: manufactures include furniture, flour, steel, and machinery; meat packing. It was founded in 1854 and until the census of 1880 was the largest city in Kansas. It is the site of Fort Leavenworth and a federal penitentiary. 20,579 (1950).

Leavenworth, Fort. Military post in NE Kansas, on the Missouri River just N of the city of Leavenworth. It was established in 1827 as an outpost against the Indians, and was the starting point for many overland travelers before the railroad era. It is now the site of the Command and General Staff College of the U.S. Army, of a federal penitentiary, and of a major air base. Area, ab. 12 sq. mi.

Leavenworth Case, The. Novel by Anna Katharine Green, published in 1878.

Leaves of Grass. Collection of poems by Walt Whitman. The first edition, containing 12 poems and a preface which was later omitted, was published in 1855; the second edition, containing 33 poems and a reply to Emerson, in 1856; the third, including the first and second editions and containing 122 new poems, in 1860; the fourth edition in 1867; and the fifth edition in 1871. The sixth edition (also called the Author's or Centennial Edition) was published in two volumes in 1876; the seventh edition in 1881–82; the eighth edition in 1889; and a final edition, brought out under Whitman's supervision, in 1891–92. The standard edition is included in the author's Complete Writings (10 vols., 1902). Among the sections in Leaves of Grass are "Calamus" and "Children of Adam." The poems include "Crossing Brooklyn Ferry," "By Blue Ontario's Shore," "Song of the Broad-Axe," "Facing West from California's Shores," "Once I Pass'd through a Populous City," "When Lilacs Last in the Door Yard Bloom'd," "O Captain! My Captain!" "Pioneers! O Pioneers!," "One's-Self I Sing," "Passage to India," "Chanting the Square Deific," and "Out of the Cradle Endlessly Rocking."

Leavitt (lev'it), Joshua. b. at Heath, Mass., Sept. 8, 1794; d. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Jan. 16, 1873. American journalist, lecturer, and antislavery politician. He founded the New York Evangelist in 1831, and became managing editor of the New York Independent in 1848.

Leavittsburg (lev'its.bėrg). Unincorporated community in NE Ohio, in Trumbull County. 2,533 (1950).

Lebadea or Lebadeia (leb.ạ.dē'ạ). See Levadia.

Lebanon (leb'ạ.nọn). [Arabic, Lubnan; French, Liban.] Republic in W Asia, bordered on the N and E by Syria, on the S by Israel, and on the W by the Mediterranean Sea: one of the so-called Levant States and a member of the Arab League. Taken from the Turkish Empire in World War I, it was made a French mandate in 1920, but declared its independence in 1941 and was recognized in 1944; withdrawal of foreign troops was completed in 1946. It is composed of a rich coastal strip of land behind which rise the Lebanon range of mountains. Along the border of Syria is the Anti-Lebanon range. Most of the inhabitants are farmers or nomadic herders. The chief products of the country are wheat, fruit, olive oil, silk, tobacco, and wool. The religious grouping of the population was estimated c1943 as: Christian sects, 53 percent; Moslem sects, 46 percent; others, one percent (about half being Jews). Capital, Beirut; area, ab. 3,927 sq. mi.; pop. 1,246,580 (est. 1949).

Lebanon. City in C Indiana, county seat of Boone County, ab. 26 mi. NW of Indianapolis, in an agricultural area. Its diverse manufactures include bus bodies, kitchen cabinets, tools, and condensed milk. 7,631 (1950).

Lebanon. City in C Kentucky, county seat of Marion County. 4,640 (1950).

Lebanon. [Arabic, El Libnan; Latin, Libanus.] Lofty mountain range in the republic of Lebanon, which runs from NE by N to SE by S and extends in one unbroken dorsal ridge for a distance of more than 100 mi. It is bounded on the N by the Nahr el-Kebir (the classical Eleutherus) near Tripoli and Homs. Its highest summits rise in the N. Beginning with the Jebel el-Akra (4,500 ft.) it rises until it attains near Tripoli in the Jebel el-Machmal an elevation of 10,131 ft., and in the Dahr el-Kodib, 10,052 ft. The French built in 1863 a post road leading from Beirut to Damascus through a pass at an elevation of ab. 7,500 ft. From this pass the ridge gradually slopes down to the valley of the Litani River. The Lebanon consists mainly of limestone. It is cut through by many gorges, ravines, and glens, with here and there tremendous chasms and precipices that descend for nearly a thousand feet. The peaks of the Machmal and Kodib are clothed with snow eight months in the year, while in the ravines the snow never melts. From these snow peaks the name of the range, which in Hebrew means "The White," is derived. Of the chief ornament of Lebanon in ancient time, the cedars, there still exist small groups on many places in the mountains, the largest consisting of about 350 trees, at the foot of the Machmal. The Lebanon is still covered with industrious villages and monasteries, and adorned with gardens of olives, dates, figs, mulberries, and other fruit trees. It exhibits the greatest variety in its climatic conditions and the character of its soil, so that an Arabian poet has said of it: "The winter is upon its head, the spring upon its shoulders, the autumn in its bosom, and at its feet slumbers the summer." It is inhabited by Mohammedans, Druses, and Maronite Christians. Opposite this ridge on the E side is that known as Anti-Lebanon or Anti-Libanus. Between the two ranges is enclosed the great and fertile valley of Bika, called by the Greeks and Romans Coele-Syria ("Hollow Syria"), cut through by the Asi and Litani rivers (the classical Orontes and Leontes), and containing the city of Baalbek, with its magnificent ruins. In the Assyrian inscriptions the Lebanon is mentioned by the name of Libnânu as the chief source from which the Assyrian kings procured costly woods for their buildings.

Lebanon. City in S Missouri, county seat of Laclede County: shipping point for corn, oats, wheat, and hay. 6,808 (1950).

Lebanon. Town (in New Hampshire the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in C New Hampshire, in Grafton County, on the Connecticut River ab. 50 mi. NW of Concord: manufactures include woolen goods, watchmakers' tools, and electrical supplies. Pop. of town, 8,495 (1950); of village, 4,614 (1950).

Lebanon. Village in SW Ohio, county seat of Warren County, between the Great Miami and Miami rivers. 4,618 (1950).

Lebanon. City in W Oregon, in Linn County, on the South Santiam River, in a fruit, nut, and farming area: center for strawberry cultivation. It has lumber and paper mills. In the decade between the last two U.S.

censuses its population more than doubled. 2,729 (1940), 5,873 (1950).

Lebanon. [Former name, Steitztown.] City in SE Pennsylvania, county seat of Lebanon County, ab. 25 mi. NE of Harrisburg: manufactures include iron, steel, textiles, paper boxes, shoes, rubbers, cigars, beer, and food products; trading center for a rich agricultural district. It was platted in 1756, incorporated as a borough in 1821, and chartered as a city in 1868. Pop. 28,156 (1950).

Lebanon. Town in C Tennessee, county seat of Wilson County: manufactures of flour, wool textiles, blankets, and wood products. It is the seat of Cumberland University. 7,913 (1950).

Lebanon Independent. Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Lebanon County, near the city of Lebanon. 2,778 (1950).

Le Bargy (lę bȧr.zhē), Charles Gustave Auguste. b. at La Chapelle, Seine, France, 1858; d. 1936. French romantic actor, famous for his performances in Rostand's first play, Les Romanesques (1894), Victor Hugo's Hernani, and other roles requiring colorful acting.

Lebas (lę.bä), Philippe. b. at Paris, 1794; d. 1861. French archaeologist and philologist. He wrote Voyage archéologique en Grèce et en Asie Mineure.

Lebaudy (lę.bō.dē), Paul. b. at Enghien, Seine-et-Oise, France, 1855; d. 1918. French promoter of aviation. A man of wealth and owner of a sugar refinery, he also served in the Chamber of Deputies. With his brother, he financed the making of a number of dirigible balloons adopted by the French government, including (1903) the first semirigid balloon powered by an internal-combustion engine to fly.

Lebbaeus (le.bē'us). See Saint Jude.

Lebbeke (leb'ę.kę). Town in NW Belgium, in the province of East Flanders, ab. 15 mi. NW of Brussels: agricultural trade center; lace manufactures; parish church in baroque style, with Gothic tower. 11,882 (1947).

Lebda (leb'dą). Modern name of Leptis Magna.

Le Beau (lę bō'). Character in Shakespeare's As You Like It, a courtier in attendance on Frederick, the usurping duke.

Le Beau (lę bō), Charles. b. at Paris, Oct. 15, 1701; d. there, March 13, 1778. French historian.

Lebeau (lę.bō), Jean Louis Joseph. b. at Huy, Belgium, Jan. 2, 1794; d. there, March 19, 1865. Belgian statesman, prominent at the time of the Belgian revolution (1830). He was minister of foreign affairs (1840–41).

Lebedev (leb'ę.dęf; Russian, lyä'byi.dyif), Piotr Nikolayevich. b. at Moscow, 1866; d. March 1, 1911. Russian physicist. He is best known for his investigation of the pressure of light upon bodies, as set forth in his work Experimental Research on Light Pressure (1901), and for his measurement (1910) of this pressure. He also conducted studies in terrestrial magnetism.

Lebedin (leb.ę.dēn'; Russian, lyi.byi.dyēn'). Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 90 mi. NW of Kharkov: food-processing center. 16,800 (1935).

Lebedos (leb'ę.dos). In ancient geography, an Ionian seaport in Lydia, Asia Minor, ab. 25 mi. NW of Ephesus.

Le Bel (lę bel), Joseph Achille. b. at Pechelbronn, France, 1846; d. at Paris, 1930. French organic chemist. He and Jacobus van't Hoff independently published the hypothesis that carbon's four bonds are arranged tetrahedrally (1874). This became one of the cornerstones of organic chemistry.

Leber (lā'bėr), Theodor. b. at Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany, Feb. 29, 1840; d. at Heidelberg, Germany, April 17, 1917. German ophthalmologist. He was known for his studies on the blood vessels of the eye and his pathologic-anatomical researches on degeneration of the pigment of the retina. He described (1871) a rare hereditary optic atrophy, called Leber's disease, and described (1873) the ciliary body's method of excreting intraocular fluid (called Leber's plexus).

Lebert (lā'bėrt), Hermann. b. at Breslau, June 9, 1813; d. at Bex, Switzerland, Aug. 1, 1878. German physician, noted as a pathologist.

Lebesgue (lę.beg), Henri Léon. b. at Beauvais, France, June 28, 1875; d. at Paris, July 26, 1941. French mathematician, considered to have been one of the greatest of his time. He made an important contribution in his "pavement" or "tiling" theorem, but his chief fame rests on his introduction of the idea of summable function which largely remade the field of integration. His new definition of integration, now known as the "Lebesgue integral," was one of the great achievements of modern analysis. His writings cover topics in geometry, Fourier series, potential theory, calculus of variations, and analysis situs. Besides some 50 papers, a bibliography of which is found in the Journal of the London Mathematical Society, XIX (1944), 56–64, Lebesgue wrote two classic books: Leçons sur les séries trigonométriques (1903) and Leçons sur l'intégration et la recherche des fonctions primitives (1904).

Lebesgue, Philéas. b. at La Neuville Vault, France, Nov. 26, 1869—. French poet and literary critic. Author of Le Sang de l'autre (1901), Les Folles Verveines (1903), Fenêtres sur le monde (1929), and others.

Le Blanc (lę blăn). [Latin, Oblincum.] Town in C France, in the department of Indre, on the Creuse River ab. 35 mi. E of Poitiers. It is a trade center for the agricultural products of the region. 6,719 (1946).

Le Blanc, Françoise Louise de La Baume. See La Vallière, Françoise Louise de La Baume Le Blanc, Duchesse de.

Leblanc (lę.blăn), Georgette. b. in Belgium, 1882—. French actress, singer, and diseuse who won success in operas (Thaïs, Sappho, and Carmen), and attracted attention as a concert singer of famous German Lieder and songs by Debussy, Faure, and d'Indy. She became best known, however, as the heroine of plays by Maurice Maeterlinck, whom she married (1901). Maeterlinck wrote Monna Vanna (1902) for her, and she played the role of Monna Vanna throughout Europe. She also played the title role of Joyzelle (1903). Her style of acting, notable for nervous force and temperament, was compared to that of Sarah Bernhardt.

Le Blanc-Mesnil (lė blăn.mā.nēl). Town in N central France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, NE of Paris. It belongs to the metropolitan region of Paris. 18,277 (1946).

Leblond (lę.blôn), Ary. b. at St.-Pierre, Réunion island, 1880—. French writer; brother of Marius Leblond, with whom he collaborates under the joint name Marius-Ary Leblond.

Leblond, Jacques (Jacob) Christophe. b. at Frankfort on the Main, Germany, 1670; d. at Paris, 1741. German painter and engraver. He was noted for his miniatures, and in 1720 set on foot in London a process of printing engravings in color, which he explained in Il Coloretto (1730).

Leblond, Jean Baptiste. b. near Autun, France, Dec. 2, 1747; d. at Guzy, France, Aug. 15, 1815. French naturalist and traveler.

Leblond, Marius. b. at St.-Denis, Réunion island, 1877—. French writer; brother of Ary Leblond, with whom he collaborates under the joint name Marius-Ary Leblond.

Le Bocage (lę bo.kȧzh). [Also, Le Bocage Vendéen.] District in Poitou, W central France.

Le Bocage. [Also, Le Bocage Normand.] District in Normandy, NW France. The word Bocage is a French geographic term used to describe a region of cultivated fields and meadows, divided up by hedgerows and woodlands. There has been an extensive development of this type of region in W France, extending from Normandy to the Loire River, favored by the damp climate and the mild winters. Various parts are given local designations, as Le Bocage Normand (the Normandy Bocage), Le Bocage Vendéen (the Bocage of Vendée), and others. The former was the scene of action between German and Allied forces in World War II after the invasion of Europe by the Allies on June 6, 1944. During the French Revolution, the Bocage Vendéen was the scene of a major battle between the revolutionaries and the royalists.

Lebœuf (lę.bœf), Edmond. b. at Paris, Dec. 6, 1809; d. near Argentan, Orne, France, June 7, 1888. French marshal. He was chief of the artillery staff during the Crimean War, commanded the artillery of the French army in Italy in 1859, was minister of war (1869–70), and was made a marshal of France in 1869. On being asked by the emperor, Napoleon III, as to the condition of the army, he answered that it was perfectly equipped down to the replacements for the buttons on the gaiters; this was on the eve of the Franco-Prussian War. He was captured by the Germans at Metz.

Le Bon (lę bôn), Gustave. b. at Nogent le Rotrou, France, May 7, 1841; d. at Marnes la Coquete, France, Dec. 14, 1931. French physician and social psychologist. His preoccupation with the nature and actions of crowds led him to formulate a collective social psychology based on concepts of racial superiority, racial soul, and national character. He put special emphasis on the role of emotion as the determining force in history and culture. His important work was La Psychologie des foules (1895, translated as The Crowd, 1922). Among his other works are The Psychology of Peoples (1912), La Révolution française et la psychologie des révolutions (1912; Eng. trans., The Psychology of Revolutions, 1913), The Psychology of the Great War (1916), and Psychologie des temps nouveaux (1920).

Lębork (lem'bôrk). [German, Lauenburg, Lauenburg in Pommern.] Town in N Poland, in the województwo (province) of Gdansk, formerly in Pomerania, Germany, on the Leba River ab. 38 mi. NW of Danzig (Gdansk). Before World War II it had machinery, metal, and pottery manufactures, distilleries, and a brewery. It has a castle of the Teutonic Order, and a Gothic Church of Saint Jacob, both of the 14th century. Founded by the Teutonic Order in 1341, it passed to Pomerania in 1455, to Brandenburg in 1658, and to Poland in 1945. In World War II, it was occupied by the Russians on March 11, 1945. Pop. 19,114 (1939), 10,954 (1946).

Le Bossu (lę bo.sü), René. b. at Paris, 1631; d. 1689. French ecclesiastic, subprior of the Abbey of St. Jean de Chartres. Author of Traité du poème épique (1675).

Lebourg (lę.bör), Albert. b. at Montfort-sur-Risle, France, Feb. 1, 1849; d. at Rouen, France, Jan. 7, 1928. French painter, usually considered to have been the last of the impressionist school. He studied at the École des Beaux-Arts at Rouen, and then at Paris under J. P. Laurens. He became a professor at Algiers, and spent four years in North Africa. Later, he painted many scenes of Paris, Normandy, Rouen, and Vernon. He exhibited with the impressionists, and later at the Société des Beaux-Arts, and in Germany, Argentina, Russia, Rumania, and elsewhere.

Le Bourget (lę bör.zhe). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, a northeastern suburb of Paris. It is the site of the airport where Charles Lindbergh landed on May 21, 1927, completing the first non-stop New York-Paris flight. 7,327 (1946).

Le Bouscat (lę bös.kà). Town in SW France, in the department of Gironde: a northwestern industrial suburb of Bordeaux. The town suffered damage in World War II. 18,901 (1946).

Le Braz (lę brà), Anatole. b. at Duault, in Brittany, France, April 2, 1859; d. at Menton, France, March 2, 1926. French writer and expert on Breton literature, author of 30 books and hundreds of articles on his native province. Typical of his writings are Le Monde celte (1888), Au pays des pardons (1894), and Essai sur l'histoire du théâtre celtique (1904).

Lebrun (lę.brėń), Albert. b. at Mercy-le-Haut, Meurthe-et-Moselle, France, Aug. 29, 1871; d. March 6, 1950. French politician, last (14th) president (1932–40) of the Third Republic. A mining engineer, he served as a deputy (1900–20) and senator (1920–32), and was minister of colonies (1911–14). After service as an artillery officer in World War I, he was a member of the war committee and a minister for liberated regions in the Clemenceau cabinet (1917–20). He succeeded (June, 1931) Paul Doumer as president of the senate when Doumer was named president of France, and became president (May 10, 1932) after Doumer's assassination. He was reëlected (April 5, 1939) to the presidency, was removed from office by the Vichy government, and was arrested (August, 1943) by the Germans during World War II.

Lebrun, Charles. b. at Paris, Feb. 22, 1619; d. there, Feb. 12, 1690. French historical painter. He studied at Rome (1642–46), where he met Poussin, who instructed him in the antiquities of Rome. On his return to France he undertook notable works, and in 1648 became one of the founders of the Académie Royale de Peinture. In 1663 he was appointed director of the Gobelins, and was charged by Louis XIV with the series of pictures from the life of Alexander the Great reproduced in tapestry. In 1679 he undertook the great works in the Galerie de Versailles.

Lebrun, Charles François. [Title, Duc de Piacenza; title in English, Duke of Plaisance.] b. at St.-Sauveur-Landelin, Manche, France, March 19, 1739; d. near Dourdan, France, June 16, 1824. French politician. He was a member of the National Assembly, was elected to the Council of Five Hundred in 1795, became third consul in 1799, and archtreasurer of the empire in 1804. He became (c1806) Duke of Piacenza, and was governor of Holland (1810–13).

Lebrun, Marie Anne Élisabeth Vigée-. See Vigée-Lebrun, Marie Anne Élisabeth.

Lebrun, Pierre Antoine. b. at Paris, Nov. 29, 1785; d. there, May 27, 1873. French lyric and dramatic poet. Among his dramas is Marie Stuart (1820). Voyage en Grèce, a series of epic fragments and reflections, was published in 1827.

Lebrun, Ponce Denis Écouchard. [Called Lebrun-Pindare.] b. at Paris, Aug. 11, 1729; d. there, Sept. 2, 1807. French lyric poet. His works consist chiefly of lyrics and epigrams.

Lebrun (lę.brun'), Rico. b. at Naples, Italy, 1900—. American painter. Seated Clown and the frescoes for the New York City Post Office Annex are among his best-known works.

Lebrun (lę.brėń), Madame Vigée-. See Vigée-Lebrun, Marie Anne Élisabeth.

Lebwin (leb'win), Saint. See Saint Livinus.

Le Cannet (lę kà.ne). Town in SE France, in the department of Alpes-Maritimes, on the mountain slopes N of Cannes. It is a resort and has an institute devoted to the treatment of tuberculosis. 10,299 (1946).

Le Cap (lę kàp). Colloquial name for Cap-Haïtien.

Le Cardonnel (lę kàr.do.nel), Louis. b. at Valence, Drôme, France, Feb. 27, 1862; d. at Avignon, France, May 28, 1936. French abbé and poet. Author of Poèmes (1904), Carmina sacra (1912), Du Rhône à l'Arno (1920), À Sainte-Thérèse de Jésus (1923), De l'une à l'autre aurore (1926), and others.

Le Cateau (lę kà.tō). [Former name, Le Cateau-Cambrésis; Latin, Castrum Cameracense.] Town in N France, in the department of Nord, on the Selle River ab. 18 mi. S of Valenciennes. It is an industrial town, producing chiefly woolen goods. It formerly belonged to the bishops of Cambrai. In 1559, England, France, and Spain signed a peace treaty here. The town was occupied by the Germans in World Wars I and II. 7,954 (1946).

Lécavelé (lā.kàv.lā), R. See Dorgelès, Roland.

Lecce (let'chā). [Former name, Terra di Otranto.] Province in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, occupying the extremity of the "heel" of the Italian "boot." Capital, Lecce; area, ab. 1,065 sq. mi.; pop. 526,553 (1936).

Lecce. [Ancient name, Lupiae.] City and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, the capital of the province of Lecce, SE of Brindisi. A center of tobacco culture, it has a large tobacco factory and also flour mills, wine cellars, ceramics, textile, and other industries; a local specialty is the manufacture of papier-mâché figurines. It was called the "Florence of Baroque" by the 19th-century historian Ferdinand Gregorovius. The basilica of Santa Croce (1353) and the cathedral (1114) have been reworked in the baroque style; other churches, the Palazzo del Seminario, the Palazzo della Prefettura, arches, gates, and other monuments date from the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries. There is a Roman amphitheater. After the downfall of the Roman Empire, Lecce was sacked by the Goths under Totila; contested between Saracens, Greeks, and Lombards; invaded by Hungarians and Slavs; conquered by the Normans; then it passed under the various succeeding rulers of the region. Frequently suffering (1469, 1481, 1528, 1616) from epidemics of plague, it was finally recolonized by Greek refugees from Turkish domination, mainly in the 16th and 17th centuries. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II. Pop. of commune, 49,261 (1936); of city, 42,622 (1936).

Lecco (lek'kō). Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Como, at the S end of Lake Lecco (which is an arm of Lake Como) and on the Adda River, ab. 30 mi. NE of Milan. It is a tourist resort and has important metallurgical, machinery, and textile industries. It is also a center for the production of Gorgonzola cheese. In the Middle Ages, the town was under the rule of the Lombards, later of Milan; the castle was built by the Spaniards. Pop. of commune, 36,973 (1936); of town, 19,784 (1936).

Lecco, Lake. [Italian, Lago di Lecco.] Southeastern arm of Lake Como, NW Italy. Length, ab. 13 mi.

Lech (leċh). [Latin, Licus.] River in Tirol province, Austria, and S Bavaria, Germany, joining the Danube ab. 25 mi. N of Augsburg. At Rain, near the mouth of the Lech, Gustavus Adolphus defeated the Imperialists under Tilly (who was mortally wounded in the battle), in April, 1632. Length, ab. 177 mi.

Lecha-Marzo (lā'chä.mär'thō), Antonio. b. 1888; d. 1920. Spanish physician, known for his work in blood chemistry. He wrote on palmistry and fingerprints (1912) and on medico-legal microchemistry.

Le Châtelard (lę shä.tlär). Town in Switzerland, in the canton of Vaud, SE of Vevey. 9,990 (1941).

Le Chatelier (lę shä.tę lyā), Henry Louis. b. at Paris, 1850; d. at Miribel-les-Échelles, France, 1936. French physical and inorganic chemist. The famous Le Chatelier-Braun principle (1884–88) states: A change in any factor in an equilibrium causes a reaction tending to change this factor in the opposite direction, thus to cancel the change's effect. It was partially anticipated by van't Hoff and by Gibbs. Le Chatelier first made accurate high temperature measurements possible, particularly by introducing the platinum, platinum-rhodium thermocouple (1887). He also did basic work on cement chemistry and important pioneer work on steel chemistry.

Le Chesnay (lę she.nā). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, ab. 1 mi. W of Versailles. It is a suburb of Versailles. 7,995 (1946).

Lechevalier (lę.shę.vä lyā), Jean Baptiste. b. near Coutances, France, July 1, 1752; d. at Paris, July 2, 1836. French archaeologist. He wrote Voyage de la Troade (3rd ed., 1802), Voyage de la Propontide et du Pont-Euxin (1800), and Ulysse-Homer, a work on the authorship of the Iliad and Odyssey (1829).

Lechfeld (leċh'felt). Plain in S Germany, in Bavaria S of Augsburg, between the Lech and Wertach rivers. Here on Aug. 10, 955, the emperor Otto I defeated the Magyars, ending their last attempt to conquer the West.

Lechhausen (leċh'hou.zęn). Former town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Swabia, on the Lech River opposite Augsburg. Formerly an industrial suburb, it is now a part of the city of Augsburg.

Lechoń (le'ĦôNy'), Jan. [Pseudonym of Leszek Serafinowicz.] b. at Warsaw, Poland, 1899—. Polish poet and essayist. Educated at the University of Warsaw, he was the proud hope of the Skamander literary association and its principal slogan-formulator. His output was small, but influential. He spent the years of World War II in the U.S., where he edited a Polish literary journal and wrote literary articles and verse.

Lechthal Alps (leċh'täl). Group of the Alps in W Austria, in Tirol province, near the upper valley of the Lech River. Peak elevation, ab. 9,970 ft.

Le Cid (lę sēd). See Cid, Le.

Lecky (lek'i), William Edward Hartpole. b. near Dublin, March 26, 1838; d. at London, Oct. 22, 1903. Irish historian and essayist. He was educated at Cheltenham and at Trinity College, Dublin, served as a Liberal member of Parliament (1895–1902), and was offered, but declined, an Oxford professorship in history. His widow (who was Elizabeth van Dedem, maid of honor to Sophia, Queen of the Netherlands, when he married her in 1871) published his Historical and Political Essays in 1908, and founded the Lecky professorship of history at Trinity College. He was the author of Religious Tendencies of the Age (1860), The Leaders of Public Opinion in Ireland (1861), The Declining Sense of the Miraculous (1863), A History of the Rise and Influence of Rationalism in Europe (2 vols., 1865), A History of European Morals from Augustus to Charlemagne (2 vols., 1869), A History of England in the Eighteenth Century (8 vols., 1878–90), Democracy and Liberty (2 vols., 1896), and The Map of Life (1899). He also wrote Friendship and Other Poems (1859) and Poems (1891).

Leclair (lę.kler), Jean Marie. b. at Lyons, France, May 10, 1697; d. at Paris, Oct. 22, 1764. French composer and violin virtuoso. Best known for his many violin works, he also wrote the opera Scylla et Glaucus (1746), ballets, and divertimenti.

Leclerc (lę.kler), Charles Victor Emmanuel. b. at Pontoise, near Paris, March 17, 1772; d. at Cap-Haïtien, Haiti, Dec. 2, 1802. French general. He married (1797) Maria Paulina, sister of Napoleon Bonaparte, accompanied (1798) his brother-in-law to Egypt, and was prominent in the overthrow (Nov. 9, 1799; 18th Brumaire) of the Directory. In December, 1801, he was sent with 25,000 men and a large fleet under Admiral Villaret-Joyeuse to subdue the island of Santo Domingo (now Hispaniola). Toussaint L'Ouverture made a desperate resistance, but finally capitulated, and was subsequently arrested (June, 1802) and sent to France. New uprisings of the Negroes followed, and the French army was decimated by yellow fever, of which Leclerc himself finally died.

Leclerc, Jacques Philippe. [Full name, Vicomte Philippe François Marie Leclerc de Hauteclocque; original name, Vicomte Philippe François Marie de Hauteclocque.] b. at Belloy-St.-Léonard, Somme, France, Nov. 22, 1902; d. in airplane crash at Colomb-Béchar, Oran, Algeria, Nov. 28, 1947. French army officer, noted for his leadership of Free French troops during World War II. After seizing (August, 1940) the Cameroon region for the Free French, he assumed (November, 1940) military command of the Chad region, where he organized a force which crossed the Sahara desert to join the British Eighth Army in the liberation (1941–43) of North Africa. He commanded the French 2nd Armored Division in the invasion of Normandy, the liberation of Paris (August, 1944), and the invasion of Germany. He commanded the French forces in Indochina (1945–46), and was inspector general of French forces in North Africa (1946–47).

Le Clerc (lę kler), Jean. [Also: Leclerc; Latinized, Johannes Clericus.] b. at Geneva, Switzerland, March 19, 1657; d. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, Jan. 8, 1736. Swiss Protestant theologian. He published Biblical commentaries, and edited the Bibliothèque universelle et historique (1686–93).

Leclerc du Tremblay (lę.kler dü träN.blā), François. See Joseph, Father.

Leclercq (lę.kler), Agnes. See Salm-Salm, Madame.

Leclère (lę.kler), Léon. See Klingsor, Tristan.

L'Écluse (lā.klüz), Fort de. Old fort in E France, in the department of Ain, overlooking the Rhone River, W of Geneva, Switzerland, guarding the entrance from Switzerland.

Lecocq (lę.kok), Alexandre Charles. b. at Paris, June 3, 1832; d. there, Oct. 24, 1918. French composer. His works include Fleur de thé (1868), Le Beau Danois (1870), Le Barbier de Trouville (1871), La Fille de Madame Angot (1872), Les Prés St.-Gervais (1874), Giroflé-Girofla (1874), Le Pompon (1875), La Petite Mariée (1875), Kosiki (1876), La Marjolaine (1877), La Petite Mademoiselle (1879), and La Princesse des Canaries (1883).

L'École des Femmes (lā.kol dā fâm). See École des Femmes, L'.

L'École des Maris (lā.kol dā mà.rē). See École des Maris, L'.

Lecompton (lę.komp'tọn). City in E Kansas, in Douglas County, on the Kansas River ab. 16 mi. E of Topeka. It was the capital of the Territory of Kansas (1855–58), and noted for its role (1855–58) in the struggle between proslavery and Abolitionist settlers. 263 (1950).

Lecompton Constitution. Proslavery constitution framed during the agitation for the admission of Kansas to the U.S. as a state by a constitutional convention at Lecompton, Sept. 5–Nov. 7, 1857, and rejected as a whole by the people, Jan. 4, 1858. The clause sanctioning slavery was separately submitted, Dec. 21, 1857, and adopted. The constitution was a chapter in the national controversy over "bleeding Kansas" which was a forerunner of the Civil War.

Le Conte (lẹ kont'), John. b. in Liberty County, Ga., Dec. 4, 1818; d. at Berkeley, Calif., April 29, 1891. American physicist; brother of Joseph Le Conte. He was president (1876–81) of the University of California.

Le Conte, John Lawrence. b. at New York, May 13, 1825; d. at Philadelphia, Nov. 15, 1883. American naturalist; cousin of John Le Conte and Joseph Le Conte. He made scientific journeys in various parts of the U.S. and elsewhere, and was chief clerk of the U.S. mint at Philadelphia from 1878 until his death. He was the author of Classification of the Coleoptera of North America (1862–73; later editions with Dr. G. H. Horn), List of Coleoptera of North America (1866), and many important entomological papers.

Le Conte, Joseph. b. in Liberty County, Ga., Feb. 26, 1823; d. in the Yosemite Valley, Calif., July 6, 1901. American physicist; brother of John Le Conte. He published Religion and Science (1874), Elements of Geology (1878), Sight: an Exposition of the Principles of Monocular and Binocular Vision (1881), Compend of Geology (1884), and Evolution (1888).

Leconte (lẹ.kôñt), Sébastien Charles. b. at Calais, France, 1860; d. at Paris, Jan. 7, 1934. French jurist and poet. Author of L'Esprit qui passe (1897), Salamine (1897), Les Bijoux de Marguerite (1899), La Tentation de l'homme (1903), Le Sang de Méduse (1905), Le Masque de fer (1911), and others.

Leconte de Lisle (lẹ.kôñt dẹ lēl), Charles Marie René. b. on the Île Bourbon (now Réunion), Oct. 25, 1818; d. at Louveciennes, France, July 17, 1894. French poet, identified with the Parnassian group of poets. After completing his education he spent some time in India, then went to France and settled permanently at Paris. His works bear ample testimony to his fondness for antiquity, whether Scandinavian, Hellenic, or Oriental. His first volume of Greek studies, Poèmes antiques, appeared in 1852, and was followed by Poèmes et poésies (1854), Le Chemin de la croix, published in the Revue Française (1859), Poèmes barbares (1862), Kaïn, published in Le Parnasse contemporain (1869), and Poèmes tragiques (1884). He was widely known as a translator; in this capacity he published L'Iliade (1866), L'Odyssée (1867), and Hymnes orphiques (1869). He translated Hesiod in 1869, Horace in 1873, Sophocles in 1877, and Euripides in 1885. He made two attempts to write for the stage: Les Erinnyes (1872) is a study of Aeschylus and of the Greek tragic poets, and L'Apollonide is a lyric drama based on the Ion of Euripides. A candidate for the French Academy in 1873 and 1877, he was defeated in spite of the support of Victor Hugo. Ultimately, on Feb. 11, 1886, he was elected to fill the vacancy caused by Hugo's death.

Le Coq (lẹ kok'), Albert August von. b. at Berlin, Sept. 8, 1860; d. there, April 21, 1930. German ethnologist and archaeologist, authority on the art of Kashgaria (Chinese or Eastern Turkistan).

Lecoq (lẹ.kok), Henri. b. at Avesnes, France, 1802; d. 1871. French naturalist.

Lecoq de Boisbaudran (lẹ.kok dẹ bwä.bō.dräṅ), Paul Émile. See Boisbaudran, Paul Émile Lecoq de.

Le Corbusier (lẹ kôr.bü.zyā). [Pseudonym of Charles Édouard Jeanneret.] b. at La Chaux-de-Fonds, Switzerland, Oct. 6, 1887—. Swiss architect, city planner, painter, and writer. He has exerted a wide influence upon the development of modern architecture, although more by virtue of his projects and writings than by actual buildings (he coined the slogan "the house—a machine for living," an expression synonymous with extreme functionalism). He studied under the French architect-engineer Auguste Perret and the German architect Peter Behrens. The best-known of his projects is the Palace of the League of Nations at Geneva, for which he won the first prize in the competition; his design, however, was never executed. He was the French delegate for the project of the United Nations headquarters at New York. His theoretical studies produced the invention of the "Modulor," a formula for functional architecture; founder of the International Congress for Modern Architects. Author of Vers une Architecture (1923) and Propos d'Urbanisme (1947).

Lecourt (lẹ.kör), Robert. b. at Pavilly, Seine-Inférieure, France, Sept. 19, 1908—. French political leader and lawyer, minister of justice (July-September, 1948; February, 1949) under the Fourth Republic, a member of the Mouvement Républicain Populaire. He was active in the resistance movement during World War II.

Lecouvreur (lẹ.kō.vrėr), Adrienne. [Original surname, Couvreur.] b. at Damery, near Épernay, France, April 5, 1692; d. at Paris, March 20, 1730. French actress. She attained a high rank in both comedy and tragedy. She was one of the mistresses of Hermann Maurice, Comte de Saxe, by whom she became the mother of George Sand's great-grandmother, and is said to have been poisoned by a jealous rival, the Duchesse de Bouillon. She was buried secretly. Voltaire wrote a poem upon her death and burial, and she was made the subject of a drama by Scribe and Legouvé (1849).

Le Crac (lẹ kräk'). Medieval name of El Kerak.

Le Creusot (lẹ krė.zō). [Also, Le Creuzot.] Town in E central France, ab. 97 mi. by road N of Lyons. It was only a small village until the 19th century, when an iron and steel industry developed on the basis of the local coal resources. In 1880 ab. 173,000 tons of pig iron were produced. However, competition from the great industry of Lorraine and depletion of the local coal caused a sharp decline in pig-iron production in the late 19th century, and the Schneider works at Le Creusot came to specialize in finished products requiring highly developed technical skills, such as locomotives, armor plate, and machine tools. The city was extensively damaged in World War II. Pop. of commune, 24,106 (1946); of town, 17,133 (1946).

Le Croisic (lẹ krwä.zēk). Fishing port and resort in W France, in the department of Loire-Inférieure, ab. 16 mi. W of St.-Nazaire. 3,426 (1946).

Lectoure (lek.tör). [Latin, Lactora.] Town in SW France, in the department of Gers, on a plateau above the Gers River. It is a trade center for agricultural products, particularly grain, cattle, and the wines of the Armagnac region. It has various medieval monuments and a museum of Gallo-Roman antiquities. 3,955 (1946).

Leda (lē'dạ). In Greek mythology, the wife of Tyndareus of Sparta, and mother of Helen, Clytemnestra, Castor, and Pollux. According to the later legends, she was approached by Zeus in the form of a swan, and brought forth two eggs; but the paternity of her twins, Castor and Pollux, is disputed. Clytemnestra was the daughter of Leda and Tyndareus, Helen of Leda and Zeus. Homer says that Tyndareus fathered Castor and Pollux also, but other legends make one or both the sons of Zeus.

Leda. Asteroid (No. 38) discovered by Jean Chacornac at Paris, Jan. 12, 1856.

Ledan (lẹ.däṅ), Marie. Original name of Delna, Marie.

Ledeberg (lā'dẹ.berėh). Town in NW Belgium, in the province of East Flanders, SE of Ghent, of which it is a suburb: horticulture; cotton mills; chemical factories. 12,244 (1947).

Ledebour (lā'dẹ.bōr), Karl Friedrich von. b. at Stralsund, Germany, July 8, 1785; d. at Munich, July 4, 1851. German botanist. He wrote Flora Altaica (1829–33), Flora Rossica (1841–53), and others.

Lederer (lā'dẹ.rėr), Emil. b. at Pilsen (Plzeň), in Bohemia, July 22, 1882; d. at New York, May 29, 1939. German economist, sociologist, and teacher. He rejected the purely economic interpretation of history but retained many other Marxist concepts. Among his numerous works are Soziologie der Revolution (1919), Grundzüge der ökonomischen Theorie (1922), and State of the Masses (1940).

Lederer (led'ėr.ėr), George W. b. at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., 1861; d. at New York, Oct. 8, 1938. American theatrical producer, originator of the name "vaudeville" as applying to the higher type of variety show in which he pioneered. He was associated (1878) with Sydney Rosenfeld in the production of the latter's Florizel, and produced the musical comedies The Belle of New York and Madame Sherry and the revue The Passing Show. He was the manager of Lillian Russell.

Lederle (led'ėr.lẹ), Ernst Joseph. b. on Staten Island, N.Y., June 30, 1865; d. March 7, 1921. American sanitary engineer, commissioner of health of New York City (1910 et seq.).

le Despencer (lẹ dẹs.pen'sėr), 15th Baron. Title of Dashwood, Francis.

le Despenser (lẹ dẹs.pen'sėr). See Despenser.

Led-Horse Claim: A Romance of a Mining Camp, The. Novel by Mary Hallock Foote, published in 1883.

Ledi (lē'dī), Ben. See Ben Ledi.

Ledóchowski (le.dō.ʜôf'skē), Count Mieczysław. b. Oct. 29, 1822; d. at Rome, July 22, 1902. Polish cardinal, archibishop of Poznań (Posen) and Gniezno (1865–74). He was removed for opposition to the May laws during Bismarck's Kulturkampf and was imprisoned from 1874 to 1876. He was made (1875) a cardinal while he was in prison. The Prussian government refused to permit him to return to his archdiocese and he resigned it in 1885.

Ledo Road (lē'dō). [Also, Stilwell Road.] In World War II, a military supply road running ab. 478 mi. from Ledo, in the Indian state of Assam, to Bhamo, in N Burma near the border of China, where it connected with the Burma Road N of the point where that highway had been cut by the Japanese. It was built (1942–44) largely by native labor under the direction of U.S. military engineers. The entire 1,044-mile supply route from Ledo to Bhamo and thence over the Burma Road to Kunming, China, was named the Stilwell Road in honor of U.S. General Joseph W. Stilwell by Chiang Kai-shek in January, 1945. The entire system was declared surplus property by the U.S. in November, 1945, and American maintenance ceased. Certain parts of it were never entirely completed, and it received only limited use before Burma was freed from Japanese occupation. Another factor which tended to reduce its importance was the Allied success in flying supplies over the "Hump" of the Himalayas.

Ledo Salinarius (lē'dō sal.i.nār'i.us). Latin name of Lons-le-Saunier.

Ledoux (lę.dö'), Louis Vernon. b. at New York, June 6, 1880—. American poet and art critic. A businessman, he is president of Ledoux and Company, chemists and assayers. His volumes of verse include Songs from the Silent Land (1905), The Soul's Progress and Other Poems (1907), Yzdra (1909), and The Story of Eleusis (1916). He is an authority on Japanese art, his studies including The Art of Japan (1927), Japanese Prints of the Primitive Period (1942), and Harunobu and Shunsho (1945).

Ledru (lę.drü), André Pierre. b. at Chantenay, France, Jan. 22, 1761; d. at Le Mans, France, July 11, 1825. French priest and author.

Ledru-Rollin (lę.drü.ro.lañ). Alexandre Auguste. b. at Fontenay-aux-Roses, near Paris, Feb. 2, 1807; d. there, Dec. 31, 1874. French politician. He was a principal republican lawyer following 1830, but did not come to public notice until 1841, when he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies for Le Mans. His campaign speeches were considered inflammatory, and he was sentenced to four months in prison, but he appealed and was released. He became known as a champion of the workingman, and as an extreme radical. He founded the journal La Réforme to publicize his ideas. In the events leading up to the February Revolution of 1848, he took a prominent part, speaking at the banquets held throughout France and opposing the naming of the Duchess of Orléans as regent. He was one of the leaders of the provisional government, holding the ministry of the interior, and one of the executive committee under the National Assembly. With the attempt of the left wing to establish its own government in May, Ledru-Rollin became definitely associated with the moderate republicans and Lamartine and lost most of his support, but before he left office he had instituted a system of universal suffrage. In the elections in December, 1848, he was one of the three candidates of the republican parties, but he polled only 370,000 votes as Louis Napoleon swept the election. In 1849 he scored an unexpected success in the election for the assembly and took this as the signal for an attack on the government of Louis Napoleon, which, he claimed, had acted illegally in its military campaign against the Roman Republic. He was forced to flee from France and for 20 years thereafter lived at London, joining with such other exiled revolutionaries of 1848 as Mazzini and Kossuth. He carried on continual agitation from London for republican reforms in France but not until 1870 was he permitted to return. He was elected to the assembly in 1871 refused to sit, and was again elected in 1874. He then took his place in the legislature but died soon afterward.

Leduc (lę.dūk'). Town in Alberta, Canada, ab. 21 mi. S of Edmonton. Nearby is a recently discovered oil field. 1,842 (1951).

Ledyard (led'yard), John. b. at Groton, Conn., 1751; d. at Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 10, 1789. American traveler; nephew of William Ledyard. He accompanied Captain Cook on his third voyage (1776 et seq.) and in 1786 set out on a journey through northern Europe and Asia, but was arrested at Irkutsk as a spy on Feb. 24, 1788, and compelled to abandon his project. He died during a voyage of discovery to central Africa, undertaken under the patronage of the African Association.

Ledyard, William. b. at Groton, Conn., Dec. 6, 1738; killed Sept. 6, 1781. American Revolutionary officer. He defended Fort Griswold, near New London, Conn., against a greatly superior force of British on Sept. 6, 1781. The fort was eventually carried by a certain Major Bromfield, on whom the command had devolved by the death of his superior officers. Ledyard is said to have been run through the body with his own sword by Bromfield after the surrender.

Lee (lē). See also Lee River.

Lee. Town (in Massachusetts the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in W Massachusetts, in Berkshire County, on the Housatonic River ab. 10 mi. S of Pittsfield: paper manufactures. Pop. of town, 4,820 (1950); of village, 2,847 (1950).

Lee, Alfred. b. at Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 9, 1807; d. at Wilmington, Del., April 12, 1887. American bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Lee, Algernon. b. at Dubuque, Iowa, Sept. 15, 1873—. American journalist and socialist. He has been identified with the socialist movement since 1895. He was editor of the Minneapolis Tocsin (1898–99), of the Worker (1899–1908), and of the Call (1908–09); and was president (1909 et seq.) of the Rand School of Social Science.

Lee, Alice. One of the principal characters in Sir Walter Scott's Woodstock.

Lee or Lees (lēz), Ann. [Called "Mother Ann."] b. at Manchester, England, Feb. 29, 1736; d. at Watervliet, N.Y., Sept. 8, 1784. English mystic, founder of the American religious sect of Shakers, or Shaking Quakers, formally known as the United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearing. A laborer in the textile mills at Manchester, and unhappily married (to Abraham Stanley, or Standerin, a blacksmith), physically ill, and subject to depression and visions, she revolted against industrial conditions in her native manor, the established church, and the institution of marriage, and joined (1758) the society of Jane and James Wardley, an offshoot of the Society of Friends which had been influenced by the teachings of the Continental French Prophets. Dominating the Wardley group by virtue of her strong personality and prophetic utterances, Ann sought fuller freedom for her faith in America, emigrating to this country with seven followers, in 1774. The first Shaker colony was established (1776) at Niskayuna (now Watervliet), near Albany, N.Y. In a mission tour through parts of eastern New York and New England (1781–83) she laid the basis for a United Society of 19 communities.

Lee, Arthur. b. at "Stratford," Westmoreland County, Va., Dec. 21, 1740; d. at Urbana, Va., Dec. 12, 1792. American diplomat and political essayist; brother of Francis Lightfoot Lee, Richard Henry Lee, and William Lee (1739–95). He was graduated (M.D., 1764) from the University of Edinburgh and established (1766) his medical practice at Williamsburg, Va. He soon abandoned medicine for law, going to London to study at Lincoln's Inn and the Middle Temple. He was admitted to the bar in 1775. Having begun his career as a political essayist with "The Monitor's Letters," published (February–April, 1768) in the Virginia Gazette just before he left for his law studies in England, he continued his writings at London, where he wrote political essays which he signed "Junius Americanus" and "Raleigh." His writings having gained him a reputation among political leaders in the colonies, he was chosen (1770) agent of Massachusetts at London. Among his notable essays was An Appeal to the Justice and Interests of the People of Great Britain in the Present Dispute with America (1774). He was also active in British politics, becoming an associate of John Wilkes.

He became (November, 1775) confidential correspondent at London of the committee of secret correspondence of the Continental Congress and in October, 1776, was appointed one of the three commissioners to negotiate a treaty with France. He went to Paris in late December, 1776, joining Benjamin Franklin and Silas Deane. In February, 1777, Lee went to Spain, where he obtained from the government aid for the American cause. When he returned to Paris in mid-1777, his distrust and suspicion of Franklin and Deane led to a controversy in which Lee made wild charges against his two colleagues. On Feb. 6, 1778, the three commissioners signed military and commercial treaties with France. The controversy between Deane and Lee finally split the Continental Congress into two factions; Deane's recall was issued on Dec. 8, 1777, before he signed the treaties, and he was dismissed shortly after his return. Lee was replaced in 1779 and returned to America in 1780. He was elected (1781) to the Virginia House of Delegates and was later chosen for the Continental Congress, in which he sat until 1784. He was one of the commissioners appointed by Congress to negotiate the Indian treaties of Fort Stanwix (Oct. 22, 1784) and Fort McIntosh (Jan. 21, 1785). He was appointed (July, 1785) to the treasury board, holding that post until the federal government was inaugurated, at which time he retired from public life, being opposed to the Constitution.

Lee, Charles. b. at Dernhall, Cheshire, England, 1731; d. at Philadelphia, Oct. 2, 1782. English soldier of fortune and American Revolutionary general. As a lieutenant in the 44th regiment, he was with the Braddock expedition (1755) into western Pennsylvania. In 1756 he purchased a captaincy while stationed in the Mohawk Valley and while there was adopted into a Mohawk tribe and married the daughter of a Seneca chief. He was wounded during the attack on Fort Ticonderoga (July, 1758) and later took part in the capture of Fort Niagara and of Montreal. Returning (1760–61) to England, he became (Aug. 10, 1761) a major in the 103rd regiment and served during the campaign in Portugal, where he received his promotion to lieutenant colonel. In 1765 he was in Poland, where he undertook a mission to Constantinople for the king; he returned to Poland in 1769 to offer his services to the pro-Russian King Stanislaus II during the civil war, was made a "general and adjutant" in the Polish forces, and served (1769–70) with the Russian armies against Turkey. After subsequent wanderings he went (1773) to America and settled (1775) in Berkeley County, Va. (now in W.Va.). At the outbreak of the Revolution he embraced the American cause and was appointed (June 17, 1775) second major general of the Continental army. He resigned his half pay in the British army. At Boston during the siege of that city, he was dispatched (March, 1776) by Congress to the South, where he organized defenses in several colonies. He was sent north in the fall of 1776, and shortly thereafter refused to comply with Washington's order to bring his division into the main army, then threatened by Howe. At this time he sent to Gates his noted letter, in which he criticized Washington for the loss of Fort Washington. He was taken prisoner by the British on Dec. 13, 1776, and was confined at New York, where after a time he apparently became on good terms with General Howe. During his imprisonment he drew up a scheme ("Mr. Lee's Plan, 29th March, 1777") on how to defeat the Americans, which he submitted to the British. This document was not discovered until 1858, and since that time it has generally been acknowledged that Lee was a traitor to the Revolutionary cause. He was exchanged (April, 1778) and at the battle of Monmouth (June 28, 1778) was responsible for precipitating an American retreat that developed into a rout. To this day it is not known whether the action was the result of Lee's cowardice or whether it was prearranged with the British. The situation at Monmouth was partially retrieved only by the swift and decisive action taken by Washington. A court-martial sitting at Brunswick in the summer of 1778 found Lee guilty of misbehavior before the enemy, disobedience to orders, and disrespect to his commander in chief. He received a 12-months' suspension, but his military career was over. Thereafter he wrote peevish letters to Congress, to newspapers, and to his friends, and was finally dismissed from the service on Jan. 10, 1780.

Lee, Charles. b. in Virginia, 1758; d. near Warrenton, Va., June 24, 1815. American lawyer. As U.S. attorney general (1795–1801) under Washington and John Adams, he opposed the conciliatory policy toward France. In his law practice, he served in the case of Marbury v. Madison and was one of the defense lawyers in the Richmond trial (1807) of Aaron Burr for treason.

Lee, Doris. b. at Aledo, Ill., Feb. 1, 1905—. American painter, muralist, and writer, best known for her scenes of rural life. Examples of her work include Noon, Thanksgiving Dinner, Arbor Day, Country Wedding, After the Market, Havana Siesta, Women Bathers, and Twilight Ride.

Lee, Fitzhugh. b. in Fairfax County, Va., Nov. 19, 1835; d. at Washington, D.C., April 28, 1905. American soldier and politician; nephew of General R.E. Lee. He was graduated from West Point in 1856, served as cavalry commander in all the campaigns of the Army of Northern Virginia (Confederate), rising to the rank of major general in August, 1863, was governor of Virginia (1886–89), and was U.S. consul general at Havana, Cuba (June, 1896–April, 1898). He was appointed major general of volunteers in 1898, served in the Spanish-American War, and was military governor of Havana in 1899.

Lee, Francis. b. at Cogham, Surrey, England, March 12, 1661; d. at Gravelines, in Flanders, Aug. 23, 1719. English physician and scholar.

Lee, Francis Lightfoot. b. at Stratford, Westmoreland County, Va., Oct. 14, 1734; d. at Richmond, Va., Jan. 11, 1797. American politician; brother of Arthur Lee, Richard Henry Lee, and William Lee (1739–95). He signed the Declaration of Independence as member of Congress from Virginia.

Lee, George Washington Custis. b. at Fortress Monroe, Va., Sept. 16, 1832; d. Feb. 18, 1913. American officer in the Confederate army; son of Robert E. Lee (1807–70). He was graduated (1854) from West Point. Resigning (1861) his commission in the U.S. army, he was appointed (Aug. 31, 1861) aide-de-camp to Confederate President Jefferson Davis, and led an emergency brigade in the defense of Richmond. He was professor (1865–71) of military and civil engineering at the Virginia Military Institute, and president (1871–97) of Washington and Lee University.

Lee, Hannah Farnham. [Maiden name, Sawyer.] b. at Newburyport, Mass., 1780; d. Dec. 27, 1865. American author, chiefly remembered for her Three Experiments of Living (1837). Her other writings include Historical Sketches of Old Painters (1838), The Life and Times of Martin Luther (1839), Memoir of Pierre Toussaint (1853), and Familiar Sketches of Sculpture and Sculptors (1854).

Lee, Harriet. b. at London, 1757; d. at Clifton, near Bristol, England, Aug. 1, 1851. English author; sister of Sophia Lee, her collaborator in the Canterbury Tales (1797–1805). She also published The Errors of Innocence, a novel (1786), The New Peerage, or Our Eyes May Deceive Us, a comedy (1787), and Clara Lennox, a novel (1797). Kruitzner, one of her Canterbury Tales, was dramatized by Byron as Werner.

Lee, Henry. [Called Light-Horse Harry Lee.] b. at "Leesylvania," near Dumfries, Prince William County, Va., Jan. 29, 1756; d. on Cumberland Island, Ga., March 25, 1818. American Revolutionary officer and statesman, noted as a cavalry officer; father of Robert E. Lee. He was graduated (1773) from the College of New Jersey and in 1776 was named a captain of Virginia cavalry. He joined Washington's army in April, 1777, and soon became an intimate associate of the commander in chief. Promoted (January, 1778) to the rank of major, he took command of a mixed force known as "Lee's Legion" which captured (July 19, 1779) the British post at Paulus Hook, N.Y., in one of the most daring feats of the Revolutionary War. A lieutenant colonel by 1780, he joined Greene that year and took part in the campaign in the South. After the siege of Yorktown, at which he was present, he resigned from the army and in 1785 was chosen for the Virginia House of Delegates. In that year he also went to the Continental Congress, in which he served during the greater part of the period until 1788. He was a member of the Virginia convention for the ratification of the Constitution, which he supported as a Federalist. He served (1792–95) as governor of Virginia, was chosen by Washington to lead the army which suppressed the Pennsylvania Whiskey Rebellion (1794), and in 1799 went to Congress. There, in the resolutions drafted by Lee and offered by John Marshall on the occasion of Washington's death, occurred the now well-known description, "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." He later fell into financial difficulties and was imprisoned (1808–09) for debt. While in confinement he wrote his Memoirs of the War in the Southern Department of the United States (2 vols., 1812). In July, 1812, he was badly injured after he came to the rescue of his friend Alexander C. Hanson; together with the latter, he was assaulted by a mob which broke into the Baltimore jail. Impoverished and in ill health, he went to the West Indies to recuperate; on the way home he weakened and was placed in the care of the daughter of his former commander, Greene, on Cumberland Island, Ga. In 1913 his remains were reinterred at the Lee Chapel of Washington and Lee University (Lexington, Va.).

Lee, Henry. b. in Nottinghamshire, England, Oct. 27, 1765; d. at London, March 30, 1836. English writer and actor.

Lee, Henry. b. in Westmoreland County, Va., May 28, 1787; d. Jan. 30, 1837. American soldier and writer; son of Henry Lee (1756–1818). He was attached (c1813 et seq.) to the staffs of General James Wilkinson and General George Izard during the War of 1812. He joined (1826) Andrew Jackson's party and aided (1828) in the composition of Jackson's inaugural address. Author of The Life of Napoleon Bonaparte down to the Peace of Tolentino and the Close of his First Campaign in Italy (1837), as well as much controversial material concerning his father.

Lee, Ivy Ledbetter. b. at Cedartown, Ga., July 16, 1877; d. at New York, Nov. 9, 1934. American public-relations specialist, notable for his services to John D. Rockefeller. He was employed (1899–1903) on the New York Morning Journal, Sun, Times, and World, and was publicity manager (1903) for the election of Seth Low as mayor of New York. He represented (1914–34) the Pennsylvania Railroad, John D. Rockefeller, the Bethlehem Steel Company, Walter P. Chrysler, Guggenheim Brothers, the International Sugar Council, and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. Author of Human Nature and Railroads (1915), Publicity: Some of the Things It Is and Is Not (1925), Present Day Russia (1928), and The Press Today (1929).

Lee, James Paris. b. at Hawick, Scotland, Aug. 9, 1831; d. 1904. American designer of rifles. The Lee-Enfield rifle was adopted (1904) by the British army, and was the standard British infantry weapon throughout World War I.

Lee, Jennette Barbour Perry. b. Nov. 10, 1860; d. Oct. 16, 1951. American author. She became (1904) professor of English language and literature in Smith College. Author of Kate Wetherell (1900), Uncle William (1906), The Ibsen Secret (1907), Simeon Tetlow's Shadow (1909), Happy Island (1910), Aunt Jane (1915), and Dead Right (1925).

Lee, Jennie. b. at Lochgelly, Scotland, Nov. 3, 1904— British politician; wife (married 1934) of Aneurin Bevan. A journalist, she served (1929–31, 1945 et seq.) as a member of Parliament. Author of Tomorrow Is a New Day (1939), Our Ally Russia (1941), and others.

Lee, Jesse. b. in Virginia, March 12, 1758; d. Sept. 12, 1816. American Methodist Episcopal clergyman, notable for the establishment of Methodism in New England. Admitted (1783) to the Virginia Conference, he was an itinerant preacher (1783–89) in North Carolina, Virginia, and Maryland. He toured (1789–90) Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Vermont, and New Hampshire with marked success. He aided (1797–1800) Bishop Asbury, and served as presiding elder (1801–15) of the Virginia Conference. Author of A Short History of the Methodists in the United States of America (1810).

Lee, John Clifford Hodges. b. at Junction City, Kan., Aug. 1, 1887—. American engineer and infantry officer.

Lee, John Edward. b. at Hull, England, Dec. 21, 1808; d. at Torquay, England, Aug. 18, 1887. English antiquary and geologist.

Lee, J. S. See Li Ssu-kuang.

Lee, Manfred B. [Pseudonym, Ellery Queen.] b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Jan. 11, 1905—. American author, with Frederic Dannay, of detective fiction under the pseudonym Ellery Queen and also under the pseudonym Barnaby Ross. Their earlier books were titled on the pattern of The Roman Hat Mystery (1929). These books featured also a hiatus near the end, at which point the reader was asked to stop and solve the mystery.

Lee, Nathaniel. b. at Hatfield, Hertfordshire, England, c1649; d. at London, 1692. English dramatist. He wrote Nero (1675), Gloriana (1676), Sophonisba, or Hannibal's Overthrow (1676), The Rival Queens, or the Death of Alexander the Great (1677: in which appeared the line "When Greeks joined Greeks then was the tug of war"), Mithridates, King of Pontus (1678), Caesar Borgia (1680), Theodosius, or The Force of Love (1680), and Lucius Junius Brutus (1681, published 1685). With Dryden, he wrote Oedipus, King of Thebes (1679), The Duke of Guise (1682), and Constantine the Great (1684). Lee became insane in 1684, and was confined in an asylum for five years. He died in a fit of intoxication.

Lee, Richard. d. 1664. English settler in Virginia; an ancestor of Richard Henry Lee, Henry ("Light-Horse Harry") Lee, and Robert E. Lee. He immigrated (c1641), received (1642) a grant of a thousand acres, moved (c1651) to Dividing Creeks in Northumberland County, where he raised tobacco, and served variously as clerk of the council, attorney general of the colony, burgess, high sheriff of York County, councilor, and secretary of state.

Lee, Richard Henry. b. at "Stratford," Westmoreland County, Va., Jan. 20, 1732; d. at "Chantilly," Westmoreland County, Va., June 19, 1794. American Revolutionary leader and statesman, signer of the Declaration of Independence; brother of Arthur Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee. Educated in Virginia and England, he became (1757) a justice of the peace in Westmoreland County, and in 1758 took his seat in the Virginia House of Burgesses, where he allied himself with the progressives of the Patrick Henry wing. He achieved a position of leadership by his opposition to the Parliamentary measure (March, 1764) to tax the colonies. In February, 1766, in order to combat the Stamp Act, he organized in his county a nonimportation association which ranks as the first of the colonial boycott movements. He also fought against the Townshend Acts and as early as 1768 suggested the formation of committees of correspondence; with Thomas Jefferson and Patrick Henry he originated (March, 1773) the scheme for such intercolonial committees. Lee, Jefferson, and Henry played the leading roles in guiding Virginia into the Revolutionary cause, and it was Lee who first issued the call for a general congress of the colonies. He was the second delegate named by Virginia to the Continental Congress, in which he moved (1776) the resolutions in behalf of independence. He signed the Declaration of Independence. In May, 1779, he resigned from Congress. He was elected (1780) to the Virginia House of Delegates, where he aligned himself with the conservatives. Elected (1784) a delegate to Congress, he served as its president for a year. Although he declined nomination as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, he contributed toward shaping the Northwest Ordinance. An opponent of the Constitution, he set forth his reasons for opposition in his Letters of the Federal Farmer to the Republican. He advocated amendments before adoption, and some of his recommendations were later incorporated in the first ten amendments to the Constitution. He was chosen as one of Virginia's first senators to the federal Congress and in October, 1792, resigned his seat because of ill health.

Lee, Robert. b. at Tweedmouth, England, Nov. 11, 1804; d. at Torquay, England, March 14, 1868. Clergyman of the established church of Scotland.

Lee, Robert Edward. b. at "Stratford," Westmoreland County, Va., Jan. 19, 1807; d. at Lexington, Va., Oct. 12, 1870. American soldier and educator. The youngest son of Henry ("Light-Horse Harry") Lee, of Revolutionary fame, and Ann Hill Carter, he was descended from two of Virginia's most notable families. Following financial reverses, the family moved from "Stratford" to the town of Alexandria, Va., where Robert's boyhood was passed. Graduating from the U.S. Military Academy second in the class of 1829, he was commissioned in the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army. In 1831 he married Mary Anne Randolph Custis, of "Arlington," great-granddaughter of Martha Washington. Between 1829 and 1846 he did engineering work on seacoast fortifications and river improvement on the Mississippi. In the Mexican War (1846–48), his principal service was as engineer officer on the staff of Major General Winfield Scott. For distinguished services in the siege of Veracruz and at the battles of Cerro Gordo and those in the Valley of Mexico. he was promoted by brevet through successive ranks from captain to colonel, and received the highest commendation of Scott. Between 1848 and 1861 he was engaged on fortification work in Baltimore Harbor, was three years (1852–55) superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point, and was for five years lieutenant colonel of the 2nd Cavalry, serving mostly on the Western frontier. In 1859, while at his home at Arlington on leave of absence, he commanded the detachment sent to Harpers Ferry, Va., to suppress the John Brown raid. In 1860 he was in command of the Department of Texas. In February, 1861, he was ordered to report to the general in chief, Scott, at Washington. There, in March, he was named colonel of the 1st Cavalry and accepted the commission.

Period of First Hostilities. Meanwhile, seven Southern states had adopted ordinances of secession and, in February, had formed the Confederate States of America. On March 15, 1861, the secretary of war of the new government offered Lee a commission as brigadier general, the highest rank authorized in the army then being formed. The offer was ignored. On April 15, following the fall of Fort Sumter, President Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers. On April 18, Lee was offered command of the army to be called into the field by the U.S. His response, based upon his conviction that his duty of allegiance was primarily to Virginia, was that he opposed secession but could take no part in an invasion of the Southern states. On the next day, word reached Lee that the Virginia convention had voted for secession, subject to ratification by popular election. On April 20, Lee tendered his resignation from the U.S. Army and three days later became commander of the military forces of Virginia. The voters of Virginia ratified the ordinance of secession on May 23, and on the following day federal forces crossed the Potomac River. The capital of the Confederacy was moved from Montgomery, Ala., to Richmond, and, on June 8, the Virginia forces were transferred to Confederate command. Subsequently, on August 31, Lee was confirmed as the third in rank of five Confederate generals. Meanwhile, he had gone to western Virginia to coördinate Confederate resistance at a point where Union columns were seeking to break through the mountains. The campaign continued until the end of October, with disappointing results. With distinctly lowered military prestige, Lee was sent in November, 1861, to command the defenses of the lower South Atlantic coast. In March, 1862, he was recalled and assigned to duty at Richmond as a sort of coördinator of military operations under the direction of President Jefferson Davis.

Commander of the Army of Northern Virginia. Meanwhile George B. McClellan's Union forces advanced up the peninsula between the York and James rivers almost to the outskirts of Richmond. Joseph E. Johnston, commanding the Confederate defenders, was wounded in battle on May 31. On the next day, Lee was placed in command of the forces which he christened the "Army of Northern Virginia." Faced by an army of greatly superior strength, Lee fortified Richmond while planning a characteristically bold stroke. Joining to his own the forces of Thomas J. ("Stonewall") Jackson, brought from the Shenandoah Valley, Lee struck McClellan's right flank and in the series of actions known as the Seven Days (June 25–July 1, 1862) drove him away from the immediate vicinity of Richmond to a new base on the James River. A new Union army under John Pope, advancing from the northwest, was routed at the Second Battle of Bull Run, or Manassas (Aug. 29–30, 1862), after which Lee crossed the Potomac River into Maryland. At Sharpsburg, he met McClellan (whose army had been withdrawn from the James River to strengthen the defense of Washington) in the bloody battle of Antietam (Sept. 17, 1862). Tactically the battle was a draw but Lee was compelled to withdraw into Virginia. He severely defeated Ambrose Burnside, who had succeeded McClellan in command of the Union army, at Fredericksburg (Dec. 13, 1862), and again defeated the Union forces, now under command of Joseph Hooker, in the brief and brilliant campaign of Chancellorsville (May 1–6, 1863). In this campaign "Stonewall" Jackson was mortally wounded by the accidental fire of his own troops. This great loss necessitated a reorganization of the army. James Longstreet retained command of the First Corps and Richard S. Ewell succeeded Jackson in command of the Second, both being reduced in strength, and a new corps, the Third, with Ambrose P. Hill in command, being formed. The cavalry corps continued under command of J. E. B. Stuart.

Gettysburg to Appomattox Court House. With this reorganized army, Lee once more crossed the Potomac in June and marched into Pennsylvania. At Gettysburg, in an engagement brought on somewhat by accident, Lee attacked the Union forces under George G. Meade, who had succeeded Hooker, and after three days of fighting (July 1–3, 1863) was repulsed. The defeat at Gettysburg, due partly to lack of information, partly to lack of coördination and coöperation of corps commanders, partly to lack of definiteness and emphasis in Lee's own orders, and partly to Meade and the Army of the Potomac, was followed by an unmolested retreat into Virginia. There, through the winter, both armies remained quiescent. On May 4, 1864, the Army of the Potomac, under the general direction of U. S. Grant and the immediate command of Meade, crossed the Rapidan with 120,000 men, double Lee's force. After two days of heavy fighting in the Wilderness (May 5–6, 1864), Grant broke off battle and started to move around Lee to the southeast. Divining the movement, Lee was beforehand in shifting forces to Spotsylvania Court House, where the Confederates fought off massive attacks (May 8–21, 1864). Again Grant shifted leftward, and again Lee kept ahead to make a stand at the North Anna River. Declining the invitation to battle there, Grant once more moved to the left and once more Lee did likewise. Attacking at Cold Harbor on June 3, Grant suffered a bloody repulse, after which he shifted both the method and the locale of his attacks. In mid-June, the main Union forces crossed the James and laid siege to Petersburg, critical rail junction to the south of Richmond. After nearly ten months of trench warfare, marked by growing disparity of strength, Petersburg fell on April 2, 1865. On the same evening Richmond was evacuated and Lee, with an army reduced to about 30,000 men, marched out to the southwest. Virtually surrounded at Appomattox Court House, Lee surrendered on April 9, 1865. to Grant on generous terms.

Greatness Recognized by North and South. Two months before the surrender, Lee had been named general in chief of all Confederate forces but his command other than Virginia was little more than nominal. His handling of the Army of Northern Virginia was marked by great audacity, combined with prudence and skill in the use of forces inferior in numbers, equipment, transportation, and supplies. To his soldiers, to the Southern people, and subsequently to the people of America, he stands not only as a great commander but also as an exemplar of the character of a Christian and a gentleman. This is due in no small degree to the course he followed after the surrender, when by example as well as counsel he stood for peace and reconciliation. He applied promptly for pardon under the terms of President Johnson's proclamation. The individual pardon applied for was never granted but he was included in the general amnesty of 1868, and an indictment against him for treason was nol-prossed. After the war, Lee refused offers for commercialization of his name and reputation, and in September, 1865, accepted, at a salary of 1,500 dollars a year, the presidency of Washington College at Lexington, Va., better known today under the name of Washington and Lee University, which it took after Lee's death. There he served five years, until his death on Oct. 12, 1870, and there, in the chapel of the university, he is buried.

Lee, "Rooney." See Lee, William Henry Fitzhugh.

Lee, Samuel. b. at Longnor, near Shrewsbury, England, May 14, 1783; d. at Bailey, Hertfordshire, England, Dec. 16, 1852. English clergyman and linguist. He was the author of works (translations of parts of the Bible, and the like) in Syriac, Malay, Persian, Arabic, Coptic, and Hindustani, a Hebrew grammar, a Hebrew, Chaldee, and English lexicon, and others.

Lee, Samuel Phillips. b. in Fairfax County, Va., Feb. 13, 1812; d. at Silver Spring, Md., June 5, 1897. American officer in the Union navy during the Civil War; grandson of Richard Henry Lee. In command of the brig Washington during the Mexican War, he assisted at the capture of Tabasco. As commander of the Oneida during the Civil War, he took part (1862) in the attack on New Orleans and was second in line under Farragut in the two passages of Vicksburg. He headed (1862–64) a blockading squadron, originating the system of placing a cordon of ships out at sea to intercept runners, and commanded (1864–65) the Mississippi squadron on the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers.

Lee, Sarah. [Maiden name, Wallis.] b. at Colchester, England, Sept. 10, 1791; d. at Erith, Kent, England, Sept. 22, 1856. English writer and artist.

Lee, Sir Sidney. b. at London, Dec. 5, 1859; d. there, March 3, 1926. English scholar and editor. He was assistant editor of the Dictionary of National Biography (1883–90), was joint editor with (Sir) Leslie Stephen (1890–91), and upon the retirement of the latter in 1891 became editor in chief. Among his publications are Stratford-on-Avon from the Earliest Times to the Death of Shakespeare (1884), Life of William Shakespeare (1898), a biography of Queen Victoria (1902), Shakespeare First Folio Facsimile (1902), Elizabethan Sonnets (1904), Great Englishmen of the Sixteenth Century (1904), Shakespeare and the Modern Stage (1906), and The French Renaissance in England (1910). He was engaged in writing an official biography of Edward VII when he died.

Lee, Sophia. b. at London, 1750; d. at Clifton, England, March 13, 1824. English novelist and dramatist; sister of Harriet Lee, with whom she collaborated in writing the Canterbury Tales. Author of The Chapter of Accidents, a comedy (produced Aug. 5, 1780), The Recess, a novel (1785), and Almeyda, Queen of Grenada, a tragedy (1796).

Lee, Stephen Dill. b. at Charleston, S.C., Sept. 22, 1833; d. at Vicksburg, Miss., May 28, 1908. American soldier, lieutenant general in the Confederate army. He was graduated from West Point in 1854, entered the Confederate service as captain, and took part in numerous battles (including the Vicksburg campaign) during the Civil War.

Lee, Sydney. b. at Manchester, England, Aug. 27, 1866—. English painter in oil and watercolor, wood engraver, and etcher, noted primarily for his landscapes of England, Germany, and Spain. In 1938 he served as a member of the jury for the Carnegie Exhibition. His work is found in museums throughout England. Among his principal oils are Among the Dolomites (Chantrey Fund) and Top of the Pass (Manchester); his prints include Ponte Paradiso (wood engraving) and The Sleeping Square (aquatint).

Lee, Vernon. Pseudonym of Paget, Violet.

Lee, William. b. probably at Calverton, Nottinghamshire, England; d. at Paris, c1610. English inventor of the stocking frame. In 1598 he produced a pair of silk stockings, knit by his machine, which he presented to the queen. His invention was opposed, in the interest of the hand-knitters, and he took it to France, only to meet with failure there also. His death is said to have been the result of this disappointment.

Lee, William. b. in Westmoreland County, Va., Aug. 31, 1739; d. June 27, 1795. American diplomat and merchant; brother of Arthur Lee, Francis Lightfoot Lee, and Richard Henry Lee. Having accompanied (1768) his brother Arthur to London, he became the only American ever to be named (1775) alderman of that city. He was appointed (1777) joint commercial agent with Thomas Morris at Nantes, France, where he became involved in the Lee-Deane controversy. He negotiated a treaty of commerce between the Netherlands and America, which, although never ratified, was the ostensible cause of war between England and the Netherlands.

Lee, William Henry Fitzhugh. [Called "Rooney" Lee.] b. at Arlington, Va., May 31, 1837; d. near Alexandria, Va., Oct. 15, 1891. American Confederate soldier; son of Robert E. Lee. He served as a cavalry officer (1862–64) under J. E. B. Stuart, at Yorktown, Richmond, Second Bull Run (Manassas), Chancellorsville, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, and Brandy Station. In 1864, now a major general, he commanded the cavalry at Globe Tavern, led the Confederate right at Five Forks, and was second in command of the cavalry at Appomattox. He was a state senator (1875–79), and served (1887–91) in Congress.

Lee, William Little. b. at Sandy Hill, N.Y., Feb. 8, 1821; d. May 28, 1857. American jurist, one of the creators of Hawaiian constitutional monarchy. Having stopped (1846) at Hawaii on a trip to Oregon, he was persuaded to remain and was appointed one of the judges for the island of Oahu. He was chief justice (1847 et seq.) of the new supreme court which became (1852) the nominal and factual highest court. He served as Hawaiian minister (1855 et seq.) to the U.S.

Leech (lēch), John. b. at London, Aug. 29, 1817; d. there, Oct. 29, 1864. English caricaturist, especially noted for his contributions to Punch. His father was an Irishman, the proprietor of a coffee house, and a man of some culture. John went to Charterhouse school, where he gained the friendship of Thackeray. He left the school at 16, and was apprenticed to one Whittle, a surgeon, at Haxton, an extraordinary character, who furnished him with much material. He continued his medical studies with Dr. John Cockle of the Royal Free Hospital. He finally abandoned medicine, and at 18 published Etchings and Sketches by A. Pen, Esq. When Seymour shot himself in 1836, Leech applied to Dickens for the place of illustrator of Pickwick Papers, but failed to obtain it. It was only c1840 that Leech matured the style and manner which afterward made him famous. In 1841 he joined the staff of Punch, on which he remained 23 years.

Leechburg (lēch'bėrg). Borough in W Pennsylvania, in Armstrong County: coal mining; manufactures of steel. It was platted in 1828. Pop. 4,042 (1950).

Leech Lake (lēch). Lake in N central Minnesota, in Cass County. It is the third largest lake entirely within the state, and has many summer resorts along its shores. Elevation, ab. 1,298 ft.; area, ab. 170 sq. mi.

Leeds (lēdz). City in N central Alabama, in St. Clair and Jefferson counties, ab. 15 mi. E of Birmingham: cement manufactures. 3,306 (1950).

Leeds. [Middle English, Ledes, Ledis; Old English, Leodes, Loidis.] City and county borough in N central England, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, on the river Aire ab. 25 mi. SW of York, ab. 186 mi. N of London by rail. It formerly occupied a leading position in English woolen and linen manufacture, but now is overshadowed by Bradford; the manufacture of textiles is now less important than numerous other industries, which include the manufacture of clothing, locomotives, rails, textile machinery, aircraft, electrical equipment, and boots and shoes. Leeds has canal connections with Liverpool via the Leeds and Liverpool Canal. The city contains Leeds University, a library (founded by Joseph Priestley), town hall, and various exchanges. Its triennial musical festivals are famous throughout the world. 504,954 (1951).

Leeds, Duke of. Title held by various members of the Osborne family.

Leeds, Nina. Heroine of Strange Interlude (1928), drama by Eugene O'Neill.

Leeds and Liverpool Canal (liv'ėr.pōl). Canal in NW and C England, in Lancashire and the West Riding of Yorkshire. It follows a circuitous route from Leeds Street, in the heart of Liverpool, past Wigan, Blackburn, Burnley, Nelson, and Colne, all in Lancashire. It enters the West Riding of Yorkshire, reaches its summit near Skipton, and parallels the course of the river Aire SE past Bingley, Shipley, and Horsforth to Leeds. Canal and improved river channels from Leeds provide connections with the river Humber; thus an all-water connection is made between the Irish Sea and the North Sea across England. There are 104 locks between the rivers Mersey and Humber (not all, however, on the Leeds and Liverpool Canal). The total distance is 161 mi., 127 mi. of which are on the Leeds and Liverpool Canal.

Leeds Choral Union. Chorus established (1896) at Leeds, England, with Alfred Benton as conductor. His successors were Sir Henry Coward and Norman Strafford.

Leedumaa (lā'do.mä). Estonian name of Lithuania.

Lee-Hamilton (lē'ham'il.tən), Eugene Jacob. b. at London, Jan. 6, 1845; d. near Florence, Italy, Sept. 7, 1907. English poet, novelist, and translator. His poor health compelled him to leave college without taking a degree. For the same reason he gave up his work with the British diplomatic service. Author of Poems and Transcripts (1878), Imaginary Sonnets (1888), and Sonnets of the Wingless Hours (1894), an autobiographical sonnet sequence. He translated Dante's Inferno in 1898 and edited his own poems in 1903 in the Canterbury Poets' series.

Lee-Hankey (lē'hang'ki), William. b. at Chester, England, March 28, 1869—. English painter and etcher, noted for his landscapes and portraits in oil, watercolor, aquatint, and drypoint. He is represented in museums at Paris, Berlin, Prague, Budapest, Melbourne, Ottawa, Belfast, and Liverpool, among others. His principal works include The Knitting Lesson (oil) and The Hill Top (aquatint). In addition, he illustrated editions of Goldsmith and Izaak Walton.

Leek (lēk). Urban district and market town in C England, in Staffordshire, ab. 11 mi. SE of Macclesfield, ab. 158 mi. NW of London by rail. It has manufactures of silk, including knitwear (the town is a satellite of Macclesfield in this industry). 19,358 (1951).

Leer (lār). [Also, Leer in Ostfriesland (in ōst'frēs'länt).] Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, on the Leda River near the Ems River, ab. 34 mi. W of Oldenburg. It has a port accessible to ocean as well as to river boats, and a considerable agricultural trade. There are canneries, dairies, and metallurgical, chemical, lumber, paper, and textile industries. In World War II the town was reached by Allied troops on April 23, 1945. Pop. 20,616 (1950).

Leerdam (lār.däm'). Town in W central Netherlands, in South Holland province, ab. 14 mi. S of Utrecht: noted for manufacture of glassware. Pop. ab. 9,000.

Lee River (lē). [Also, Leigh River.] River in SW Irish Republic, in County Cork. It rises on the County Cork-County Kerry boundary, and flows E across the county to Cork Harbour at Cork. Length, ab. 50 mi.

Lees (lēz), Ann. See Lee or Lees, Ann.

Lees, Charles Herbert. b. at Glodwick, Oldham, Lancashire, England, July 28, 1864—. English physicist. Author of Heat Conductivity (1892), Intermediate Course in Practical Physics (1896), and Exercises in Practical Physics (1901).

Lees, William Nassau. b. Feb. 26, 1825; d. at London, March 9, 1889. English soldier and Oriental scholar.

Leesburg (lēz'bėrg). City in C Florida, in Lake County, S of Jacksonville: shipping point for vegetables and citrus fruit; food-processing industries. 7,395 (1950).

Lees Summit (lēz). City in W Missouri, in Jackson County, ab. 15 mi. SE of Kansas City. 2,554 (1950).

Leesville (lēz'vil). Town in W Louisiana, parish seat of Vernon Parish, in a stock-raising and lumbering area. Camp Polk is SE of the town. 4,670 (1950).

Leetonia (lē.tō'ni.ạ, -tōn'yạ). Village in NE Ohio, in Columbiana County, ab. 15 mi. SW of Youngstown: coal mining. 2,565 (1950).

Leeuw (lā'ō), Aart van der. b. 1876; d. 1931. Dutch neo-romantic novelist and poet. He wrote fantasies, including De Gezegenden (The Blessed Ones, 1923) and Vluchtige Begroetingen (Transient Salutations, 1925). His novels include Ik en mijn speelman (I and My Fiddler, 1927).

Leeuw, Gerardus van der. b. at The Hague, Netherlands, March 18, 1890—. Dutch theologian and teacher. He was minister of education, art, and sciences (1945–46).

Leeuwarden (lā'wär.dẹn). [Frisian, Liouwert.] City in NE Netherlands, the capital of the province of Friesland, on the Ee River, W of Groningen: a center for trade in dairy products, cattle, eggs, freshwater fish, and timber. It has manufactures of milk powder, machinery, paper goods, and gold and silver ware (the latter have declined in importance). The old part of the city is surrounded by canals. Its notable buildings include the town hall (1715), weigh house (1595), chancellery house (1502–71), and the former royal palace; the Church of Saint Jacob (begun 1480) is the largest monastic church in the Netherlands. 79,134 (est. 1951).

Leeuwen (lā'wẹn), Herman François van. b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, Nov. 26, 1890—. Dutch industrialist, director of numerous banks and industrial enterprises including the Twentsche Bank of Amsterdam, commissioner of the Royal Netherlands blast furnaces and steel mills at Ijmuiden and of K.L.M. (Royal Dutch Airlines).

Leeuwen, Wilhelmus Hendrik van. b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, May 8, 1887—. Dutch mechanical engineer and industrialist. He has active interests in machine works, shipbuilding, docks, and oil.

Leeuwenhoek or Leuwenhoek (lā'wẹn.hök), Antonius von. b. at Delft, Netherlands, Oct. 24, 1632; d. there, Aug. 26, 1723. Dutch microscopist and naturalist. He discovered and described red blood corpuscles, infusoria, spermatozoa, and the capillary circulation of blood. He built his own microscopes and with them satisfied an almost universal curiosity. His principal systematic study was in the disproving of several theories of spontaneous generation.

Leeuwin (lō'in), Cape. Cape at the SW extremity of Australia. It has a lighthouse.

Leeward Islands (lē'wạrd, lō'ạrd). [Also: Leeward Group; French, Îles sous le Vent.] Western group or section of the Society Islands, in Oceania, belonging to France. The main islands are Huahine, Raiatea, Tahaa, and Bora Bora. Pop. 12,460 (1946), including 10,685 natives.

Leeward Islands. Group of islands in the West Indies, belonging to the Lesser Antilles, and including the chain of islands extending from Anguilla SE to Dominica. It includes all the islands of the British crown colony of the Leeward Islands excepting the British Virgin Islands, and also includes the islands of St. Martin (French and Dutch), Saba, St. Eustatius (both Dutch), and the French overseas department of Guadeloupe (including the main island, adjacent islands, and St. Barthélemy). Area, ab. 1,071 sq. mi.

Leeward Islands. British crown colony consisting of the British possessions in the Leeward Islands, and the British Virgin Islands. The chief islands are Antigua, Barbuda, Redonda, St. Kitts, Nevis, Montserrat, Anguilla, Sombrero, Tortola, Virgin Gorda, and Anegada. Capital, St. John's (on Antigua); area, ab. 422.5 sq. mi.; pop. 108,847 (1946).

Le Fanu (lef'ạ.nū), Joseph Sheridan. b. at Dublin, Aug. 28, 1814; d. there, Feb. 7, 1873. Irish journalist and novelist, noted especially for stories set within an atmosphere of dread. As a journalist he was connected with the Dublin University Magazine, The Evening Mail, and other journals. He wrote the ballads Phaudhrig Crohoore and Shamus O'Brien (1837). Among his novels are The House by the Churchyard (1863), Uncle Silas (1864), Guy Deverell (1865), The Tenants of Malory (1867), A Lost Name (1868), The Wyvern Mystery (1869), Checkmate (1870), The Rose and the Key (1871), Chronicles of Golden Friars (1871), and In a Glass Darkly (1872).

Lefébure-Wély (lẹ.fā.bür.vā.lē), Louis James Alfred. [Original surname, Lefebvre.] b. at Paris, Nov. 13, 1817; d. there, Dec. 31, 1869. French organist and composer.

Lefebvre (le.fevr), Catherine Hubscher. See under Sans Gêne, Madame.

Lefebvre, Charles Édouard. b. at Paris, June 19, 1843; d. at Aix-les-Bains, Savoie, France, Sept. 8, 1917. French composer. Among his compositions are the operas Le Trésor (1883), Zaïre (1887), and Djelma (1894); the choral works Judith (1879) and Éloa (1889); and the overture Toggenburg (1904). He also wrote chamber music, psalms, and sonatas.

Lefebvre, François Joseph. [Titie, Duc de Dantzig.] b. at Ruffach, in Alsace, Oct. 25, 1755; d. at Paris, Sept. 14, 1820. French marshal. He fought at Fleurus in 1794, Altenkirchen in 1796, and Stockach in 1799. He captured Danzig in 1807, and served throughout the Napoleonic campaigns, commanding the Imperial Guard in Russia (1812) and joining Napoleon during the Hundred Days. His wife, Catherine, who was a laundress when he married her in 1783, was the object of much unkind gossip. Sardou's comedy Madame Sans Gêne is about her.

Lefebvre, Jules. b. March 10, 1836; d. Feb. 24, 1912. French painter, a pupil of Cogniet.

Lefebvre de Cheverus (dẹ shẹ.vrüs), Jean Louis Anne Madeleine. See Cheverus, Jean Louis Anne Madeleine Lefebvre de.

Lefebvre de Laboulaye (dẹ là.bö.lā), Édouard René. See Laboulaye, Édouard René Lefebvre de.

Lefebvre de Laboulaye, Lucien André. See Laboulaye, André Lefebvre de.

Lefebvre-Desnouettes (-dā.nwet), Comte Charles. b. at Paris, Sept. 14, 1773; lost at sea, April 22, 1822. French cavalry general. He fought in Napoleon's campaigns in Prussia, Spain, and Russia, and was wounded at Waterloo. He was sentenced to death but fled to the U.S. Given permission to return to France by Louis XVIII, he was drowned when his ship, the Albion, sank off Ireland.

Le Fevre (lẹ fē'vèr). Poor lieutenant in Laurence Sterne's Tristram Shandy, with reference to whose death Uncle Toby swore his famous oath which the recording angel dropped a tear upon "and blotted it out for ever."

Lefevre (lẹ.fē'vèr), Charles Shaw-. See Shaw-Lefevre, Charles.

Le Fevre (lẹ fevr), Paul. See Géraldy, Paul.

Lefèvre (lẹ.fevr), Pierre. See Favre, Pierre.

Lefèvre d'Étaples (dā.tápl), Jacques. [Also, Jacobus Faber, surnamed Stapulensis.] b. at Étaples, France, c1450; d. at Nérac, Lot-et-Garonne, France, c1537. French scholar and reformer. In 1521 he fled when the Sorbonne declared some of his writing heretical, but under protection of the king and Margaret of Navarre he was able to return. He wrote commentaries on the works of Aristotle, and translated some of the books of the Bible into French (1523–30).

Le Figaro. See Figaro, Le.

Le Flô (lẹ flō), Adolphe Emmanuel Charles. b. at Lesneven, Finistère, France, Nov. 2, 1804; d. at Nechoat, France, Nov. 10, 1887. French general, politician, and diplomat, minister of war (1870–71), and minister at St. Petersburg (1871–79).

Le Fort (lẹ fôr'), Gertrud von. b. at Minden, Germany, Oct. 11, 1876—. German poet and novelist. The titles of her lyrical volumes (Hymnen an die Kirche, 1924; Hymnen an Deutschland, 1932) indicate her major themes. She states and restates the Christian concept of redemption and analyzes the Christian values in German history. Her major novels are Das Schweisstuch der Veronika (1928; Eng. trans., The Veil of Veronica), Der Papst aus dem Ghetto (1930; Eng. trans., The Pope from the Ghetto), and Die Letzte am Schafott (1931; Eng. trans., The Song at the Scaffold).

Lefranc (lẹ.frăn), Abel Jules Maurice. b. at Élincourt, France, 1863; d. Nov. 26, 1952. French historian. Author of La Jeunesse de Calvin (Calvin's Youth, 1888), and Histoire du Collège de France, depuis ses origines jusqu' à la fin du premier Empire (History of the Collège de France, from its Origin to the End of the First Empire, 1893).

Lefroy (lẹ.froi'), Sir John Henry. b. at Ashe, Hampshire, England, Jan. 28, 1817; d. at Lewarne, Cornwall, England, April 11, 1890. English soldier, administrator, and man of science.

Lefschetz (lef'shets), Solomon. b. at Moscow, Sept. 3, 1884—. American mathematician, contributor to the theory of multiple periodic functions, and a leader in topology and algebraic geometry. His books include L'Analysis situs et la géométrie algébrique (1924), Géométrie sur les surfaces et les variétés algébriques (1929), Algebraic Topology (1942), Lectures on Differential Equations (1946), and Introduction to Topology (1949).

Le Gallienne (lẹ.gal'yẹn, -gal.i.en'), Eva. b. at London, Jan. 11, 1899—. American actress; daughter of Richard Le Gallienne. She was the founder (1926) and director of New York's Civic Repertory Theater, and was cofounder (1946) with Margaret Webster of the American Repertory Theater. She has appeared in such plays as Cradle Song, The Cherry Orchard, Peter Pan, John Gabriel Borkman, Twelfth Night, Hedda Gabler, The Sea Gull, Romeo and Juliet, Camille, Alice in Wonderland, L'Aiglon, Rosmersholm, Androcles and the Lion, and Uncle Harry.

Le Gallienne, Richard. b. at Liverpool, England, Jan. 20, 1866; d. at Menton, France, Sept. 14, 1947. English journalist and author. Among his works are The Book-bills of Narcissus (1891), The Religion of a Literary Man (1893), Prose Fancies (1894, 1896), The Quest of the Golden Girl (1896), Painted Shadows (1904), Romances of Old France (1905), The Worshiper of the Images (1906), Attitudes and Avowals (1910), October Vagabonds (1910), Loves of the Poets (1911), The Magic Seas (1930), and From a Paris Garret (1943).

Legal Tender Act. Act passed (Feb. 25, 1862) by the U.S. Congress, and successively supplemented, providing for the issue by the U.S. government of approximately 450 million dollars in fiat money. This issue of paper money (popularly known as "greenbacks") was declared legal tender, but no specific provision was made for the date of redemption. The measure was adopted as a means of prosecuting the Civil War.

Legal Tender Cases. Cases involving the constitutionality of the Legal Tender Act of 1862, and later supplements, authorizing the issue of "greenbacks" (fiat money accepted as legal tender). The cases were Hepburn v. Griswold, 8 Wallace 603 (1870), often called the First Legal Tender Cases; and Knox v. Lee, and Parker v. Davis, 12 Wallace 457 (1871), often called the Second Legal Tender Cases. They are of interest for their political connotations. In the case of Hepburn v. Griswold, the Supreme Court, by a four to three decision, declared that the acts passed during the Civil War making all U.S. notes legal tender were invalid in so far as they applied to preëxisting debts. Shortly before this critical decision was announced, Justice Grier resigned. There were therefore two vacancies on the court, and President Grant promptly filled them by the appointment of Joseph P. Bradley and William Strong. In Knox v. Lee and Parker v. Davis, both of these justices maintained the constitutionality of the legal tender acts, reversing in five to four votes the decision in Hepburn v. Griswold. It was at the time freely charged that President Grant had deliberately packed the court for the express purpose of obtaining a reversal. In light of modern findings, particularly in reference to material in the manuscript diary of Hamilton Fish, there appears to be no substantial ground for the charge that Grant exacted a pledge or expression of opinion from Bradley or Strong before making their nominations. But it is equally clear that Grant was aware that the judicial records of Bradley and Strong made it almost certain that their opinions in the Second Legal Tender Cases would tend in the direction of sustaining the constitutionality of the acts of 1862 and 1863.

Legaré (lẹ.grē'), Hugh Swinton. b. at Charleston, S.C., Jan. 2, 1797; d. at Boston, June 20, 1843. American politician and lawyer. He was member of Congress from South Carolina (1837–39), and U.S. attorney general (1841–43) and secretary of state (1843) under Tyler.

Legaspi (lā.gäs'pē). City in SE Luzon, Philippine Islands, the capital of Albay province, at the head of Albay Gulf. Pop. 18,987 (1948); with suburbs, 78,828 (1948).

Légataire Universel (lā.gà.ter ü.nē.ver.sel), Le. Comedy by Jean François Regnard, produced in 1708.

Legate (leg'āt), Bartholomew. b. in Essex, England, c1575; burned at Smithfield, London, March 18, 1612. English preacher of the Seekers, a sect of Mennonite Baptists, the last person burned for heresy at London.

Legazpe (lā.gäs'pā) or Legaspi (lā.gäs'pē), Miguel López de. See López de Legazpe (or Legaspi), Miguel.

Legend (lej'ẹnd), Sir Sampson. In Congreve's Love for Love, an overbearing old man with a perverse and ill-natured wit.

Légende des siècles (lā.zhăńd dā syekl), La. [Eng. trans., "The Legend of the Centuries."] Collection of poems by Victor Hugo, published in 1859–77.

Legend of Good Women, The. Unfinished poem by Geoffrey Chaucer. The Prologue, a courtly love-vision influenced by such poets as Deschamps, Machaut, and Froissart, introduces some ten "legends" of martyrs of Cupid, beginning with Cleopatra. Chaucer adapted from Ovid and from medieval redactors, especially Boccaccio, most of these stories of classical heroines who suffered or died out of devotion to their lovers. The Legend reveals Chaucer's growing mastery of the heroic couplet and of brief narrative.

Legend of Jubal, and other Poems (jo'bal). Poems by George Eliot, published in 1874.

Legend of Montrose (mon.trōz', mon'trōz). Historical novel by Sir Walter Scott, published in 1819.

Legend of Sleepy Hollow, The. See under Sketch Book, The.

Legendre (lẹ.zhäńdr), Adrien Marie. b. at Toulouse, France, Sept. 18, 1752; d. at Paris, Jan. 10, 1833. French mathematician. He did important work in elliptic functions, theory of numbers, and the trigonometric tables. He was the first to publish (though he was not the originator) the method of least squares. In 1787 he took part in measuring a degree of latitude between Dunkerque and Boulogne. His chief works were Éléments de géométrie (1794), Essai sur la théorie des nombres (1798), and Traité des fonctions elliptiques (1827–32).

Legends of New England. Prose and verse collection by John Greenleaf Whittier, published in 1831.

Legentilhomme (lẹ.zhäń.tē.yom), Paul Louis. b. at Valognes, Manche, France, March 22, 1884—. French army officer, first French general to join Charles de Gaulle in the Free French movement during World War II. He announced support of De Gaulle in June, 1940, while commander in French Somaliland, led Free French troops in the Syrian campaign (1941), was war commissioner (1941–42), high commissioner for Madagascar (1942–43), commissioner for war and air (1943), and military governor of Paris (1945).

Léger (lā.zhā), Alexis Saint-Léger. See Perse, St.-John.

Léger, Fernand. b. at Argentan, France, in February, 1881—. French cubist painter, also one of the leaders of the movements known as purism and l'effort moderne. He, with Picasso, is one of the most important leaders of contemporary French art. Among his most important works are Seamstress, Village in the Forest, Breakfast, Composition No. 7, Card Party, Mechanical Elements, Still Life with Serpent, Cocteau in Profile, Woman in Blue, Contrast of Forms, The City, Composition with Figure, Mobile Object, The Lecture, Mechanical, Animated Landscapes, Mural Painting, The Dancer with Keys, Fixed Object, The Rose and the Compass, and illustrations for several books.

Léger, Louis Paul Marie. b. at Toulouse, France, Jan. 13, 1843; d. at Paris, April 30, 1923. French Slavic scholar. Author of La Littérature russe (Russian Literature, 1892) and Le Monde slave (The Slavic World, 1872–1902).

Leges Corneliae (lē'jēz kôr.nē'li.ē). See Cornelian Laws.

Leges Regiae (lē'jēz rē'ji.ē). Ancient Roman traditional laws. Upon being subsequently written down they were arbitrarily ascribed to various kings.

Legge (leg), Alexander. b. in Dane County, Wis., July 13, 1866; d. at Hinsdale, Ill., Dec. 3, 1933. American business executive. He was president (1922 et seq.) of the International Harvester Company. He served as chief of staff (1917), vice-chairman, and with the foreign mission (1918) of the war industries board in World War I under Bernard M. Baruch. He was chairman (1929–31) of the federal farm board, and established (1933) the farm foundation.

Legge, George. [Title, 1st Baron Dartmouth.] b. 1648; d. in the Tower of London, Oct. 25, 1691. English admiral; grandnephew of George Villiers, 1st Duke of Buckingham. He was appointed admiral and commander in chief by James II, in October, 1688, for the purpose of attacking and repelling the Dutch fleet. This he failed to do, remaining inactive, and after the flight of the king submitted to William III and was relieved of his command, Jan. 10, 1689. He was accused of treason (conspiracy to betray the country to the French in the interest of James) and was committed (1691) to the Tower.

Legge, Henry Bilson-. [Original surname, Legge.] b. May 29, 1708; d. at Tunbridge Wells, England, Aug. 23, 1764. English politician; fourth son of William Legge, 1st Earl of Dartmouth. He was private secretary to Sir Robert Walpole, was appointed secretary for Ireland under the Duke of Devonshire in October, 1739, entered Parliament in 1740, became a lord of the admiralty in April, 1745, and was appointed envoy extraordinary to the king of Prussia (January, 1748). He became chancellor of the exchequer April 6, 1754, in Newcastle's administration, retiring Nov. 20, 1755, resumed this office under the Duke of Devonshire Nov. 15, 1756, retiring in April, 1757, and was appointed to it a third time July 2, 1757. He assumed the name Bilson-Legge to secure an inheritance left him, on this condition, by a cousin, Leonard Bilson.

Legge, James. b. at Huntly, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Dec. 20, 1815; d. at Oxford, England, Nov. 29, 1897. Scottish Sinologist. He was a missionary at Malacca and Hong Kong from 1839 to 1873, and in 1876 was appointed professor of Chinese at Oxford University. He published a noteworthy edition of the Chinese classics, with translation, prolegomena, and notes (1861–86).

Legge, Thomas. b. at Norwich, England, 1535; d. at Cambridge, England, July 12, 1607. English scholar and Latin dramatist.

Legge, William. [Titles, 1st Earl of Dartmouth, Viscount Lewisham.] b. Oct. 14, 1672; d. at Blackheath, Kent, England, Dec. 15, 1750. English statesman; son of George Legge, 1st Baron Dartmouth. He was appointed secretary of state for the southern department June 15, 1710.

Legge, William. [Title, 2nd Earl of Dartmouth.] b. June 20, 1731; d. at Blackheath, Kent, England, July 15, 1801. English politician, secretary of state for the colonies (1772–75), advocate of a strong policy of suppression of colonial resistance in America; grandson of William Legge, 1st Earl of Dartmouth. He became president of the trustees of a fund collected in England for the benefit of the Indian charity school founded by Eleazar Wheelock at Lebanon, Conn. Wheelock afterward moved to Hanover, N.H., where he founded a college to which he gave the name of Dartmouth in 1769.

Leggett (leg'ẹt), William. b. at New York, April 30, 1801; d. at New Rochelle, N.Y., May 29, 1839. American author. Among his works are Leisure Hours at Sea (1825) and Journals of the Ocean (1826), both volumes of poetry, Tales and Sketches by a Country Schoolmaster (1829), and Naval Stories (1834).

Leghorn (leg'hôrn). [Italian, Livorno; French, Livourne; Spanish, Liorna; Latin, Liburnum, Liburni Portus.] City in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Tuscany, the capital of the province of Livorno, on the Ligurian Sea SW of Pisa. It is an important port city, mainly for the import trade in grain, cotton, wool, and silk; it has docks, shipyards, and a naval academy; there are chemical and metallurgical industries. It is the seat of a bishopric, has a stock exchange, an important library, a civic museum, and a number of educational institutions. There are castles erected in the 16th century according to designs by Giovanni de' Medici; the cathedral is also a 16th-century building. The Palazzo Communale and other notable private and public buildings date from the 17th century. After the fall of Pisa, the city was under the control of Genoa but was sold to Florence in 1421 and prospered under Cosimo de' Medici, who declared the town a free port and gave favorable concessions to new settlers (1547–48). The so-called costituzione livornina of 1593, granting liberty of residence, commerce, and religion, attracted numerous Jewish refugees from Spain and Portugal and merchants from various Levantine countries who contributed much to the subsequent commercial and industrial development of Leghorn as the chief port of Tuscany and a rival of the older ports of Italy. The importance of the city declined in the 19th century. Large-scale destruction was caused in city and harbor during the latter part of World War II. However, repairs have been completed or are being carried out. Pop. of commune, 145,727 (1951).

Leghorn. English and German name of Livorno, province.

Legien (lā.gēn'), Karl. b. at Marienburg (now Malburk, Poland; in territory then part of Germany), Dec. 1, 1861; d. at Berlin, Dec. 26, 1920. German trade-union leader. He became (1891) chairman of the general committee of the German Federation of Trade Unions. Cofounder of the International Federation of Trade Unions, he was its secretary (1903–19). He was a Social Democratic member of the Reichstag (1893–98, 1903–18), and a member of the Weimar constitutional assembly (1919–20).

Leginska (lẹ.gin'skạ), Ethel. [Original surname, Liggins.] b. at Hull, England, c1883—. English pianist and conductor. She conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic, and the Berlin Philharmonic, being the first woman to lead these symphony orchestras. Among her compositions is the symphonic poem Beyond the Fields We Know.

Legio (lē'ji.ō). See Megiddo.

Légion Étrangère (lā.zhôṅ ā.träṅ.zher). French name of the Foreign Legion.

Legion of Honor. [Full French name, Ordre de la Légion d' Honneur.] In France, an order of distinction and reward for civil and military services instituted in May, 1802, during the Consulate, by Napoleon Bonaparte, but since modified from time to time in important particulars. Under the First Empire the distinctions conferred invested the person decorated with the rank of legionary, officer, commander, grand officer, or grand cross. The order holds considerable property, the proceeds of which are paid out in pensions, principally to wounded and disabled members.

Legislative Assembly. In French history, the legislative bodies of 1791–92 and 1849–51, as distinguished from the Constituent Assemblies of 1789–91 and 1848–49.

Legnago (lā.nyä'gō). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Veneto, in the province of Verona, on the Adige River ab. 22 mi. SE of Verona. It is an agricultural commune, connected by a canal with the Po River. In the 19th century, Legnago became one of the strongholds of the Austrian Quadrilateral (a strategic area based on mutually supporting fortifications in the N part of Italy). Some damage was suffered during World War II by the Torrione di Legnago, but it was repairable. Pop. of commune, 31,952 (1936); of town, 4,528 (1936).

Legnano (lā.nyä'nō). City and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Milano, on the Olona River ab. 18 mi. NW of Milan. It has machinery, cotton-textile, dye, and chemical industries. The Federation of Lombard Towns defeated the German Emperor Frederick I (Barbarossa) here in a decisive battle in 1176. Pop. of commune, 31,952 (1936); of city, 31,352 (1936).

Legnica (leg.nē'tsä). [German, Liegnitz.] City in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, formerly in Silesia, Germany, on the Kaczawa (Katzbach) River, ab. 39 mi. W of Wrocław (Breslau): the center of a fertile market-gardening district; manufactures of pharmaceuticals, textiles, paints and lacquers, liquors, pianos, machinery, and porcelain. The Church of Peter and Paul, of the 14th century, is in the Gothic style; the Church of Saint John (1294) was renovated in the baroque style in 1720; the former Collegium of the Jesuits, the former Convent Church of the Benedictines, and the old town hall, are all baroque buildings of the 18th century; the castle dates from the 12th century. Near here, in 1241, a battle took place between the Mongols and the Polish and German knights, marking one of the westernmost advances of Genghis Khan's armies toward C and W Europe. Frederick II of Prussia defeated the Austrians under Laudon here in 1760. The town was damaged in World War II and was occupied by Russian forces on Feb. 10, 1945. It came to Poland in 1945. The population declined with the departure of the German inhabitants, but increased with the new immigration from E Poland. 83,681 (1939), 24,357 (1946), 70,000 (est. 1950).

Le Goffic (lę go.fēk), Charles. b. at Lannion, France, July 14, 1863; d. there, Feb. 12, 1932. French poet, novelist, and critic, expert on Breton literature. He was the author of novels such as L'Erreur de Florence (1904) and Ventôse (1910); of much poetry, the best of which is collected in Poésies complètes (1931); and of many books and essays in literary criticism, particularly on Breton subjects. His major contribution to the Breton revival is L'Âme bretonne (4 vols., 1908–25).

Legouis (lę.gwē), Émile. b. at Honfleur, Calvados, France, Oct. 31, 1861; d. at Paris, Oct. 16, 1937. French literary historian, specialist in English literature. He was the author (with Louis Cazamian, who wrote of the period after 1660) of a standard Histoire de la littérature anglaise (1925 and subsequent editions) and of numerous studies of English writers. He was professor of English language and literature (1904-32) at the Sorbonne.

Legouvé (lę.gö.vā), Gabriel Jean Baptiste Ernest Wilfrid. b. at Paris, Feb. 15, 1807; d. there, March 14, 1903. French dramatist; son of G. M. J. B. Legouvé. Among his dramas (written alone or with Scribe) are Adrienne Lecouvreur (1849), Contes de la reine de Navarre (1850), Bataille des dames (1851), Médée (1855), Les Doigts de fée (1858), Béatrix, a comedy written to introduce Ristori in a French play (1861), Miss Suzanne (1867), Les Deux Reines de France (produced in 1872), and Une Séparation (1877). He also published nearly 20 volumes of poems and dramatic essays.

Legouvé, Gabriel Marie Jean Baptiste. b. at Paris, June 23, 1764; d. there, Aug. 30, 1812. French poet and dramatist. Among his plays are La Mort d'Abel (1792), Épicharis (1793), Étéocle (1799), and La Mort de Henri IV (1806).

Legrain (lę.graṅ), Georges. b. at Paris, 1865; d. at Karnak, Egypt, 1917. French Egyptologist. As a member of the French archaeological mission at Cairo, he discovered (1903) hundreds of statues and bronzes hidden in the temple of Karnak. Author of Catalogue des monuments et inscriptions de l'Égypte antique (Catalogue of Old Egyptian Monuments and Inscriptions, 1894, 1895).

Legrand (lę.graṅ), Émile. b. at Fontenay-le-Marmion, France, 1841; d. at Paris, Nov. 28, 1903. French Hellenist. Author of Grammaire grecque moderne (Modern Greek Grammar, 1878) and others.

Legrand, Louis. b. at Dijon, France, Sept. 23, 1863—. French painter, engraver, and pastel artist, known for his sketches of Parisian life, and later for genre and religious paintings. His sketches were published in the Journal and the Journal Amusant, and in 1891 the Gil Blas Illustré published a series of his drawings on café and opera life. Included among his better-known works are Nude, The Promenade, Dancer, Bohemian Girl, Mother of Sadness, Mother and Child, The Pretty Cherry Vendor, The Loge, Doll, Sleeping Spaniards, and Bather.

Legrand (lę.grand'), William. Character in "The Gold-Bug" (1843), story by Edgar Allan Poe. It was included in Tales (1845).

Le Grand Andely (lę gräṅ.täṅ.dlē). See under Les Andelys.

Le Grand-Montrouge (lę gräṅ.môṅ.rözh). See Montrouge.

Le Grand-Quevilly (lę gräṅ.kę.vē.yē). Town in NE France, in the department of Seine-Inférieure, on the Seine River ab. 4 mi. SW of Rouen. It has blast furnaces, iron foundries, and a number of other industries. 8,942 (1946).

Legree (lę.grē'), Simon. Brutal slave dealer in Uncle Tom's Cabin (1852), by Harriet Beecher Stowe. The name has become a synonym for the very harsh taskmaster.

Legrenzi (lā.gren'tsē), Giovanni. b. near Bergamo, Italy, c1626; d. at Venice, May 26, 1690. Italian conductor and composer. His works include motets, masses, and 17 operas, such as Achille in Sciro (1664) and Pertinace (1684).

Legros (lę.grō), Alphonse. b. at Dijon, France, May 8, 1837; d. Dec. 8, 1911. French historical, genre, and portrait painter. He became professor of etching at South Kensington, and was Slade professor of fine arts at University College, London, 1876–93. He was also noted as an etcher, and for his drawings in sepia and chalk.

Legros, Pierre. b. at Paris, 1666; d. at Rome, 1719. French sculptor. Among his works are the Vestal of the Tuileries garden and numerous religious groups in the churches of Rome and Paris.

Leguizamón (lā.gē.sä.mōn'), Martiniano P. b. in Entre Ríos, Argentina, 1858; d. 1935. Argentine author who brought new vigor to the literature of the gaucho. His writing took the forms of short story, drama, criticism, history, and the novel. Author of Calandria (1896), Recuerdos de la tierra (1896), Alma nativa (1906), De cepa criolla (1908), Páginas argentinas (1911), and Montaraz (1911).

Leh (lā). [Also, Le.] Chief town and capital of Ladakh, Kashmir, N India, near the upper Indus River, ab. 165 mi. E of Srinagar: an important trading center for the routes between India, Turkistan, and Tibet. Elevation, ab. 11,500 ft.; pop. 3,372 (1941).

Lehár (le'hăr; Anglicized, lā'hăr), Franz. b. at Komárom, Hungary (now Komárno, Czechoslovakia), April 30, 1870; d. at Bad Ischl, Austria, Oct. 24, 1948. Hungarian composer. His first work, Kukuska (a serious composition, afterward known as Tatjana), was produced at Leipzig in 1896. Thereafter he devoted himself to light music and the operetta form. His works, most of which were first produced at Vienna, include Wiener Frauen (1902), Der Rastelbinder (1902), Die Juxheirat (1904), Die lustig Witwe (1905), which, as The Merry Widow, La Veuve joyeuse, and La Vedova Allegra, brought him wide recognition, Peter und Paul reisen ins Schlaraffenland (1906), Mitislav der Moderne (1907), Edelweiss und Rosenstock (1907), Der Mann mit den drei Frauen (1908), Der Graf von Luxemburg (1909), Zigeuner Liebe (1910), and Eva (1911). He directed several orchestras, including the Tonkünstler Orchestra at Vienna.

Le Havre (lę hȧ'vrę; French, lę ävr). [Also: Havre; full name, Le Havre-de-Grâce.] City in NW France, in the department of Seine-Inférieure, at the mouth of the Seine River and on the English Channel, NW of Paris. It is the third largest port city of France, and the chief port for transatlantic steamship lines. Imports include coffee, cacao, wheat, maize, cotton, petroleum, coal, and timber. It has a number of docks and naval construction shops, and also has metallurgical (ferrous and nonferrous metal products), and chemical industries, petroleum refineries, and flour mills. The Church of Notre Dame dates from the 17th century. Le Havre was founded in 1517 by Francis I, built up by Richelieu and Colbert, and enlarged by Vauban. The British unsuccessfully tried to capture it in 1694, 1759, and 1796. The harbor was vastly improved in the 19th and 20th centuries. During World War II Le Havre was subjected to over 170 air bombings, with the result that about three quarters of the buildings in the city were destroyed, and more than 5,000 of the inhabitants were killed. The art museum (collections had been removed) was bombed out of existence. Reconstruction has been under way since 1945. Pop. 164,083 (1936), 106,934 (1946).

Leni (lē'nī). City in N central Utah, in Utah County, in an agricultural region. It was named for a figure in the Book of Mormon. 3,027 (1950).

Lenigh (lē'nī). River in E Pennsylvania, which joins the Delaware at Easton. Its valley is noted for anthracite coal. Length, ab. 120 mi.; navigable to White Haven.

Lenighton (lē.nī'tọn). [Former name, Gnadenhutten.] Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Carbon County, on the Lehigh River: textile manufactures. Settled by Moravians in 1746, it was destroyed and its inhabitants massacred during the French and Indian Wars. A new settlement was platted in 1794 and incorporated in 1866. Pop. 6,565 (1950).

Lenman (lē'mạn), Herbert H. b. at New York, March 28, 1878—. American banker, politician, and public administrator. He became (1908) partner in the New York banking firm of Lehman Brothers. A member of the Democratic Party, he served as lieutenant governor (1928–32) and governor (1932–42) of New York. He was appointed (1942) director of foreign relief and rehabilitation operations, and was director general (1943–46) of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. He was elected U.S. senator from New York in 1949, defeating the Republican candidate John Foster Dulles in a special election held to fill the unexpired term of Robert F. Wagner, who had resigned; he was reëlected (1950) at the regular election.

Lehman Caves National Monument. National monument in E Nevada, in White Pine County, established in 1922. There are extensive limestone caverns. Area, ab. 1 sq. mi.

Lehmann (lā'män). See Hödel, Emil Heinrich Max.

Lehmann, Charles Ernest Rodolphe Henri. b. at Kiel, Germany, April 14, 1814; d. at Paris, March 30, 1882. French historical painter. He was a pupil of Ingres. In 1847 he was naturalized at Paris as a French citizen.

Lehmann (lā'mạn), Elizabetta Nina Mary Frederika. [Called Liza Lehmann.] b. at London, July 11, 1862; d. at Pinner, Middlesex, England, Sept. 19, 1918. English soprano concert singer and composer; niece of C. E. R. H. Lehmann. She wrote In a Persian Garden, a song cycle (1896), The Daisy-chain (1901), Sergeant Brue, a musical farce (1904), and other works.

Lehmann (lā'män), Lilli. b. at Würzburg, Germany, 1848; d. 1929. German soprano singer. She sang in German opera for several seasons in the U.S. and was especially successful in her rendering of Wagner's music. She took part (1876) in the first complete production of Wagner's Ring at Bayreuth. She was noted also for her rendition of German lieder.

Lehmann, Lotte. b. at Perleberg, Brandenburg, Germany, Feb. 27, 1888—. German operatic soprano. She appeared with the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera companies, singing mainly Wagnerian roles with the latter. She has published an autobiography (Wings of Song, 1938) and a novel (Eternal Flight).

Lehmann, Max. b. at Berlin, May 19, 1845; d. at Göttingen, Germany, Oct. 8, 1929. German historian. Author of Friedrich der Grosse und der Ursprung des siebenjährigen Krieges (Frederick the Great and the Origin of the Seven Years' War, 1894) and Freiherr vom Stein (1902–05).

Lehmann (lā'mạn), Rosamond (Nina). b. c1904—. English novelist; daughter of Rudolph Chambers Lehmann. Her books include Dusty Answer (1927), A Note in Music (1930), Invitation to the Waltz (1932), The Weather in the Streets (1936), No More Music (1939), The Ballad and the Source (1944), and The Gypsy's Baby (1946).

Lehmann, Rudolph Chambers. b. 1856; d. 1929. British journalist and Liberal politician; father of Rosamond Lehmann. He was a member of the staff of Punch (from 1890) and author of Mr. Punch's Prize Novels (1893) and Anni Fugaces (1901). He was a famous oarsman.

Lehmann-Haupt (lā'män.houpt'), Ferdinand Friedrich Carl. b. at Hamburg, Germany, March 11, 1861; d. at Innsbruck, Austria, July 24, 1938. German historian and archaeologist. Author of Armenien einst und jetzt (Ancient and Modern Armenia, 1910–31), Israel, seine Entwicklung im Rahmen der Weltgeschichte (Israel, its Development in the Framework of World History, 1911), Solon, the Poet, the Merchant, and the Statesman (1912), and Vergleichende Metrologie (Comparative Metrology, 1912).

Lehmbruck (lām'brůk), Wilhelm. b. at Meidensich, near Duisburg, Germany, Jan. 4, 1881; committed suicide at Berlin, March 25, 1919. German sculptor. He studied at Düsseldorf, was strongly influenced by the French sculptor Maillol, and later developed a definite expressionist style of his own. He worked in stone, terra cotta, and bronze. One of his best-known works is the figure Kneeling Woman (1911) at the Museum of Modern Art, New York.

Lehnin (lā.nēn'). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, ab. 30 mi. SW of Berlin. It is noted for its Cistercian monastery, founded in 1180. Pop. 3,978 (1946).

Lehrte (lār'tę). Town in N central Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, ab. 12 mi. E of Hanover. It is a railroad junction, and has a sugar refinery, canneries, and chemical and machinery industries. Potash mines are in the vicinity. 19,172 (1950).

Leiah (lā'yä). [Also, Leia.] Town in the district of Mianwali, Punjab, Pakistan, on the Indus River ab. 60 mi. NW of the city of Multan. Pop. ab. 13,000.

Leiberich (lī'bę.riċh), Baron Karl Mack von. See Mack von Leiberich, Baron Karl.

Leibl (lī'bl), Wilhelm. b. Oct. 23, 1844; d. Dec. 4, 1900. German portrait and genre painter, a pupil of Piloty at Munich.

Leibniz or Leibnitz (līp'nits), Baron Gottfried Wilhelm von. b. at Leipzig, Germany, July 1, 1646; d. at Hanover, Germany, Nov. 14, 1716. German philosopher, mathematician, and courtier. A precocious child, he was learned in Latin and Greek, and a student of philosophy, before he entered the University of Leipzig at the age of 15. Dissatisfied with the teaching at that institution, he continued his studies at the universities of Jena and Altdorf, receiving the degree of doctor of law from the latter in 1666. The brilliance of his dissertation on this occasion led to an offer of a professorship at Altdorf, but he had already determined to play his role on a larger stage. The publication of his Nova Methodus in 1667 with a dedication to the archbishop of Mainz led, as expected, to his employment by that imperial elector, chiefly in the writing of political tracts and memoranda. While Louis XIV was making his preparations for the Third Dutch War, Leibniz wrote a memorandum suggesting that Christian princes, instead of fighting each other, should direct their efforts toward non-Christian lands, and proposing Egypt as a suitable scene for Louis's martial activities. This proposal was forwarded to the French monarch, and Leibniz was invited to visit Paris, where, however, Louis neglected to give him an audience. He remained in the French capital from 1672 to 1676 in a diplomatic capacity, and availed himself of the opportunity to discuss philosophy with Descartes's disciple Malebranche, and mathematics with the scientist Huygens. During these years also he visited England, meeting Boyle and Newton, and exhibiting a calculating machine of his invention at the Royal Society, of which he was made a fellow in 1673. At this time mathematics became his real major interest, and it was during the years 1675–76 that he worked out his method of infinitesimal calculus, which when published in 1684 led to some controversy with Newton, who had developed his calculus in 1665; but of this it appears that Leibniz was ignorant. Meanwhile he had won the favor of the Duke of Brunswick-Lüneburg, who appointed him his librarian and made him a privy councilor, and in 1676 he proceeded (by way of Holland, where he lingered for long discussions with Spinoza) to Hanover, thenceforth his permanent home. Among the tasks set for him by his ducal patron was the writing of a history of the Brunswick-Lüneburg family; this entailed a good deal of travel, including a long stay at Rome, during which he was tempted by the Pope's offer to make him librarian of the Vatican, but as this would have required him to become a Catholic, he declined. During this period he wrote Systema theologicum in an effort to reconcile Catholicism and Protestantism; later he worked for the more moderate aim of promoting unity between the Lutheran and Reformed churches, with equal lack of success. Through the electress Sophia of Hanover, Leibniz came to the notice of her daughter, the electress Sophia Charlotte of Brandenburg, who became his most admiring patron. At her invitation he went to Berlin in 1700, and after the Elector of Brandenburg assumed the title of Frederick I of Prussia, at Leibniz's suggestion he founded the Academy of Science at Berlin, installing the philosopher as president for life. Already a privy councilor of Hanover, Leibniz was granted the same honorary rank by the ruler of Brandenburg, by Peter I of Russia, and by the emperor, who moreover made him a baron of the empire. But when the elector George Louis of Hanover became George I of England, he did not take Leibniz with him, but required him to remain at Hanover and to complete the Brunswick-Lüneburg chronicle. Since the death of Sophia Charlotte in 1705 Leibniz's star had in fact been in decline; the last years of the man who had so assiduously courted princes and princesses were solitary and embittered, and when he died, attended only by his secretary, the event went unnoticed except by the French Academy, where he was eulogized. Some others of Leibniz's principal works were De Arte combinatoria (1666), Hypothesis physica nova (1671), Codex juris gentium diplomaticus (1693), Essais de Théodicée sur la bonté de Dieu, la liberté de l'homme, et l'origine du mal (1710), La Monadologie (1714), Principes de la nature et de la grâce (1714), and Nouveaux essais sur l'entendement humain, written in 1704 but published posthumously. Leibniz was regarded in his day as a kind of universal genius. In the precise field of mathematics, as well as in the science of comparative philology, which was another of his interests, his accomplishments were solid. Like many another system of philosophy, his before long became more a subject of historical study than a vital force, yet he had some influence on Hegel, more on Kant, and still more on Goethe. The core of his thought lay in the concept of the multiplicity of substance, of substance as force, and of monads as the units of substance. The subtleties of his system cannot be briefly summarized, but the grand conclusion was that between the physical and moral realms there is a preestablished harmony, so that the universe cannot be other, or better, than it is. This was an idea naturally congenial to princes and privileged persons, but it is remembered today chiefly because of Voltaire's satirization of it in Candide.

Leicester (les'tər). [Middle English, Leicester, Leiceter, Leyceter; Old English, Legaceaster, Legceaster, Ligeraceaster, Ligoraceaster; Latin, Ratae.] City, county borough, and market town in C England, county seat of Leicestershire, on the river Soar and on the Grand Union Canal, ab. 29 mi. NW of Northampton, ab. 99 mi. N of London by rail. It has important manufactures of boots and shoes, and of knitwear and hosiery. Other manufactures include hosiery machinery, boot and shoe machinery, heating and ventilating equipment, agricultural machinery, worsteds and woolens, and mixed fabrics. The town contains remains of a castle, several old churches, and Roman antiquities. It was an ancient British and Roman town. It was associated with Richard III, who slept here the night before he was killed at Bosworth. Stormed by Charles I, in May, 1645, it was retaken by Fairfax, in June, 1645. Pop. 285,061 (1951).

Leicester. Town in C Massachusetts, in Worcester County: textile and printing industries. 6,029 (1950).

Leicester, Earl of. Title of Beaumont, Robert de.

Leicester, Earl of. Title of Dudley, Robert.

Leicester, Earl of. Title of Montfort, Simon de.

Leicester, Earl of. A title of Thomas of Lancaster.

Leicester, Earl of. Title of various members of the Sidney family.

Leicester Dedlock (ded'lok), Sir. See Dedlock, Sir Leicester.

Leicester of Holkham (hōl'kam), Earl of. Title of Coke, Thomas William.

Leicestershire (les'tər.shir). [Also: Leicester, Leics.] County in C England, bounded on the N by Nottinghamshire, on the NE by Lincolnshire, on the E by Rutlandshire, on the SE by Northamptonshire, on the SW by Warwickshire, on the W by Staffordshire, and on the NW by Derbyshire. The surface is generally rolling. Leicestershire has a small coal field (ab. 60 sq. mi.) centered about Ashby-de-la-Zouch; it also has an iron-ore field near Melton Mowbray. The county has a modest iron and steel industry, producing varied products. More important are the manufactures of boots and shoes, machinery, hosiery, and knitwear. It is an important agricultural county, famous for its long-wooled breed of Leicestershire sheep. One of the finest permanent pastures in England is located in the Market Harborough district, and there is an extensive dairying industry. Stilton cheese is made in Leicestershire. County seat, Leicester; area, ab. 832 sq. mi.; pop. 630,893 (1951).

Leicester Square (les'tər). Square in the West End of London, near Piccadilly Circus. Until the 19th century the square was known as Leicester Fields; it was unenclosed country until the time of Charles II.

Leichhardt (līch'härt), Friedrich Wilhelm Ludwig. b. near Beeskow, Prussia, Oct. 23, 1813; disappeared in Australia, 1848. German explorer in Australia. He traversed Queensland and Arnhem Land (1844–45), and attempted to traverse the continent in 1848. He was last heard from April 3, 1848, being then on the Cogoon River. He published Journal of an Overland Expedition in Australia, from Moreton Bay to Port Essington, during the Years 1844–45 (1847).

Leichlingen (līch'ling.ən). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, on the Wupper River, ab. 12 mi. NE of Cologne: fruit canneries; manufactures of precision instruments and textiles. 11,424 (1950).

Leichtentritt (līch'tən.trit), Hugo. b. at Pleschen (now Pleszew, Poland; then in Germany), Jan. 1, 1874; d. Nov. 13, 1951. German composer and musicologist. His compositions include two operas, almost 100 songs, a symphony, and chamber music. He was the author of Chopin (1905), Geschichte der Motette (1908), Analyse der Chopinschen Klavierwerke (2 vols., 1921–22), Händel (1924), and Musik, Geschichte und Ideen (1938).

Leiden (līd'ən). [Also: Leyden; Latin, Lugdunum Batavorum.] City in W Netherlands, in the province of South Holland, on the Oude Rijn (Old Rhine) River ab. 6 mi. from the North Sea and ab. 22 mi. SW of Amsterdam. It is primarily an academic and commercial rather than an industrial town, although it has manufactures of carpets and woolen goods, machinery, and cigars, and several printing establishments. 90,673 (est. 1951).

City Buildings and Institutions. The university, founded by William I of Orange (William the Silent) in 1575, has long been one of the leading universities of Europe; Hugo Grotius, Jacob Arminius, Daniel Heinsius, Herman Boerhave, and others taught there in the 17th and 18th centuries. Connected with the university are the national institution for East Indian languages, ethnography, and geography; the botanical gardens, founded in 1587; the observatory; the natural history museum; the museum of antiquities (Egyptian and Indian collections); the museum of Dutch antiquities; three ethnographical collections; and the university library, containing over a million volumes and manuscripts. The Hooglandsche Kerk, dedicated to Saint Pancras, was built in the 15th century; the Stadhuis (town hall) and the Gemeen Landshuis van Rijnland date from the 16th century; the municipal timber house and the weigh house from the 17th century; there is an old castle.

History. Leiden, a Roman settlement in ancient times, grew slowly during the Middle Ages. It was besieged by the Spaniards in May–October, 1574 (the siege was broken by the cutting of the dikes). In the 15th and 16th centuries, Leiden was most important for its manufactures of broadcloth, baize, and camlets. The Pilgrim Fathers resided here from 1609 to 1620. Leiden was the birthplace of Rembrandt, Jan van Goyen, Gabriel Metsu, Jan Steen, and Gerard Dou, Dutch painters.

Leiden des jungen Werthers (lī'dẹn des yŭng'ẹn ver'tẽrs), Das. [English title, The Sorrows of Werther.] Sentimental novel by Goethe (published in 1774), written in the form of letters.

Leidy (lī'di), Joseph. b. at Philadelphia, Sept. 9, 1823; d. there, April 29, 1891. American naturalist. Author of Elementary Treatise on Human Anatomy (1860, rewritten 1889), Cretaceous Reptiles of the United States (1865), and others.

Leie (lī'ẹ). Flemish name of the Lys.

Leif Ericson or Ericsson (lēf' er'ik.sọn). See Ericson or Ericsson, Leif.

Leigh (lē). Municipal borough and market town in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 13 mi. W of Manchester, ab. 194 mi. NW of London by rail. It has manufactures of cottons and rayons, and is a coal-mining center. 48,714 (1951).

Leigh, Edward. b. at Shawell, Leicestershire, England, March 24, 1602; d. at Rushall Hall, Staffordshire, England, June 2, 1671. English Puritan theologian.

Leigh, Egerton. b. in Cheshire, England, 1815; d. at London, July 1, 1876. English soldier and antiquary, author of A Glossary of Words Used in the Dialect of Cheshire (1877).

Leigh, Sir Amyas. Principal character in Charles Kingsley's novel Westward Ho!

Leigh-Mallory (-mal'ọ̄.ri), Trafford Leigh. b. at Mobberley, Cheshire, England, July 11, 1892; lost in France on flight to southeast Asia, Nov. 17, 1944. English air officer. He was appointed air vice-marshal (1938), air marshal (1942), and air chief marshal (1944). He commanded (1939) a fighter group, and planned the air support for the Dieppe raid (August, 1942). He was appointed head of the R.A.F. fighter command (November, 1942) and chief of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force (December, 1943). He was reported missing during a flight to assume his duties as air commander in chief in Southeast Asia; his airplane was found (June, 1945) near Grenoble, France.

Leigh River (lē). See Lee River.

Leighton (lā'tọn), Alexander. b. in Scotland, 1568; d. 1649. Scottish physician and divine, a victim of Archbishop Laud's persecutions. He was a vigorous opponent of Roman Catholicism, and was fined, mutilated, and imprisoned (1630–40) for his attack upon the episcopacy and the queen, and released and recompensed with a gift of 6,000 pounds by the Long Parliament. He wrote Speculum Belli Sacri, or the Looking Glass of War (1624), and An Appeal to the Parliament, or Sion's Plea against the Prelacie (1628).

Leighton, Alexander. b. at Dundee, Scotland, 1800; d. Dec. 24, 1874. Scottish writer and editor.

Leighton, Clare. b. at London, April 12, 1899—. English painter and wood-engraver, noted primarily for her book illustrations. She is represented in museums throughout England, Canada, and the U.S. Among the books she has illustrated are Return of the Native, The Sea and the Jungle, and Wuthering Heights. In addition, she has published a number of books on the technique of wood-engraving, including How to Do Woodcuts and Wood-Engraving.

Leighton, Frederick. [Title, Baron Leighton of Stretton.] b. Dec. 3, 1830; d. Jan. 25, 1896. English historical and portrait painter. Among his paintings are Romeo and Juliet (1858), Odalisque (1862); Star of Bethlehem (1862), Orpheus and Eurydice (1864), Hercules Wrestling with Death (1871), Industrial Arts of Peace (1873), Daphnephoria (1876), Wedded (1882), and Cymon and Iphigenia (1884). He was raised to the peerage on Jan. 1, 1896.

Leighton, Robert. b. 1611; d. at London, June 25, 1684. Scottish prelate, originally a Presbyterian divine, who attempted to mediate between Episcopacy and Presbyterianism; son of Alexander Leighton (1568–1649). He was made principal of the University of Edinburgh and professor of divinity in 1653, was bishop of Dunblane (on the restoration of the episcopacy) 1661–70, and was archbishop of Glasgow (1670–74). His Rules and Instructions for a Holy Life and other works were published posthumously.

Leighton Buzzard (buz'ạrd). Urban district and market town in S central England, in Bedfordshire, on the river Ouzel (a tributary of the Ouse) ab. 7 mi. NW of Dunstable, ab. 40 mi. NW of London by rail. Sands for building and for glassmaking are dug here. 9,023 (1951).

Leila, or the Siege of Granada (lē'lạ, lā'-; grạ.nä'dạ). Novel by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, published in 1838.

Leine (lī'nẹ). River in N central Germany, joining the Aller ab. 25 mi. N of Hanover. Length, ab. 120 mi.

Leinert (lī'nẽrt), Robert. b. at Striesen, Germany, Dec. 16, 1873—. German politician, journalist, and trade-union leader. He was a Social Democratic member (1908–18) of the Prussian diet, and served as chairman (November, 1918) of the workers' and soldiers' council. After acting as mayor of Hanover (1918–24), he again served (1919–33) in the Prussian diet, of which he was president (1924–28).

Leino (lā'nō), Eino. [Original surname, Lönnbohm.] b. 1878; d. 1926. Finnish prose writer and poet. He has been called the father of modern Finnish literature, but as only one of his prose works, Den unga kvinnan (The Young Woman, 1911), has been translated (into Swedish), his work has not gained a wide reading public outside of Finnish-speaking Finland.

Leinsdorf (līns'dôrf), Erich. b. at Vienna, Feb. 4, 1912—. American orchestra conductor. Assistant to Bruno Walter at the Salzburg Festival, he retained his position after the close of the festival. He assisted Toscanini from 1934 to 1937, and was assistant conductor at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. In 1939 he succeeded Arthur Bodanzky as chief conductor of the Metropolitan. He became (1943) conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra.

Leinster (len'stẽr, lin'-). [Irish, Laighin.] Southeastern of the four great historic provincial divisions of Ireland, now wholly within the Irish Republic. It is bounded on the N by Ulster province, on the E by the Irish Sea, on the SE by St. George's Channel, on the SW by Munster province, and on the W by Connacht province. Leinster comprises 12 counties; they are Counties Carlow, Dublin, Kildare, Kilkenny, Laoighis, Longford, Louth, Meath, Offaly, Westmeath, Wexford, and Wicklow. The kingdom of Leinster was under native rulers until the Anglo-Norman invasion in the 12th century. Area, ab. 7,580 sq. mi.; pop. 1,334,754 (1951).

Leinster, 1st Duke of. A title of Fitzgerald, James.

Leinster, Mount. Mountain in SE Irish Republic, in Leinster province, on the County Carlow-County Wexford boundary. Elevation, ab. 2,610 ft.

Leip (līp), Hans. b. at Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 22, 1893—. German writer of plays, poems, stories, and novels. Typical examples of his work are Der betrunkene Lebenskelch (1921) and Der Pfuhl (1923).

Leipnik (līp'nik). German name of Lipník.

Leipoldt (lā'polt), C. Louis. b. 1880—. South African poet, novelist, journalist, and physician. He published popular verse in Oom Gert vertel (Stories of Old Gerard, 1911); historical poetry in Dingaansdag (1920) and En Uit drie Wêrelddele (From Three Continents, 1923); and sonnets in Skoonheidstroos (Beauty's Consolation). His novels include Die Hugenote (1939). He also wrote many ghost stories. Among his plays is Die laaste Avond (The Last Evening, 1930).

Leipzig (līp'tsiċh; Anglicized, līp'sig). [Also: Leipsic (līp'sik); Latin, Lipsia.] City in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, at the junction of the Elster, Pleisse, and Parthe rivers, ab. 94 mi. SW of Berlin. It is the largest city in Saxony, one of the most important commercial cities in Germany, and a major railroad junction. The fairs of Leipzig, initiated as early as the 13th century, until recently were by far the largest in Europe. There were spring and fall fairs, technical, building-trade, fur, and textile fairs, attracting numerous exhibiting industries as well as buyers from many countries. It was one of the leading cities of the world in the publishing and bookselling trade, including the trade in musical literature and musical instruments; there are numerous and important printing establishments. The existence in the vicinity of coal and lignite mines has furthered the development of manufacturing, including iron, steel, metal products, instruments, electrical equipment, chemicals, cotton and woolen textiles, pianos, toys, and foodstuffs. Leipzig is a river port, connected by a canal with the Saale and Elbe rivers. It has a large airport. All of these trading and manufacturing activities received a severe blow first through devastating air raids in the period 1943–45, which practically annihilated the publishing center, and second through the zonal division of Germany, which has prevented the normal flow of East-West trade. 702,155 (1939), 607,655 (1946).

Culture and Architecture. The university of Leipzig, founded in 1409 by German students who withdrew from Charles University at Prague, ranked formerly among the largest and most renowned German universities. Leipzig has played a great role in the history of German music. Johann Sebastian Bach, Robert Schumann, Felix Mendelssohn, Max Reger, and Arthur Nikisch lived here; Richard Wagner and the philosopher Leibnitz were born here. Leipzig has several excellent libraries. There is an art museum, with German and Dutch paintings, sculptures, and etchings; other museums have ethnological, historical, and music collections. Leipzig was formerly the seat of the supreme court of Germany. Architecturally, Leipzig is predominantly a modern city; such buildings as the Rathaus (town hall), the central railroad station, the Völkerschlacht monument, numerous commercial buildings were examples of various aspects of 20th-century architecture. However, most of its major buildings were entirely ruined or severely damaged in World War II.

History. The name Leipzig is of Slavic origin (Slavic lipa, linden tree); the place originally was a Slavic settlement. The German colony received town privileges in the 12th century, and the location of the town at the crossing of various commercial roads furthered the development of the fairs. In 1519 the disputation between Luther, Karlstadt, and Eck took place here. The Reformation was introduced in 1539. Three of the great battles of the Thirty Years' War, two at Breitenfeld and one at Lützen, were fought near Leipzig. In the 17th and 18th centuries, the city became a center of the book-publishing business, and of literary, theatrical, and musical activities. The battle of Leipzig (Völkerschlacht) was fought near here, Oct. 16–19, 1813, ending with Napoleon's defeat by the combined Russian, Prussian, and Austrian armies. The first major German railroad was opened between Leipzig and Dresden in 1839. In World War II a U.S. force took the city on April 20, 1945; subsequently it was occupied by the Russians.

Leipzig, Battle of. [Also, Battle of Breitenfeld.] Either of two battles of the Thirty Years' War: a victory gained by 40,000 Swedes and Saxons under Gustavus Adolphus over 40,000 Imperialists under Tilly, Sept. 17, 1631, at Breitenfeld, a small place near Leipzig; or a victory of the Swedes under Torstenson over the Imperialists under Piccolomini, Nov. 2, 1642.

Leipzig, Battle of. [Called the "Battle of the Nations"; German, Völkerschlacht.] Victory gained by the Prussians, Russians, Austrians, and Swedes (200,000 at first, 300,000 later) under Schwarzenberg over the French (ab. 180,000) under Napoleon, Oct. 16–19, 1813. The loss of the Allies is estimated at 54,000 killed and wounded; that of the French at 40,000 killed and wounded and 30,000 prisoners. The victory virtually secured the liberation of Germany.

Leipzig Disputation. Famous theological controversy between Martin Luther and Andreas Rudolf Karlstadt on one side and Johann Eck on the other, held at Leipzig June 27–July 15, 1519.

Leipzig Interim. Statement of belief drawn up by Melanchthon and other German Protestant theologians, making important concessions to the Roman Catholics. It was formally adopted in December, 1548.

Leir (lir). See Lear.

Leiria (lā.rē'ą). District in W central Portugal, in the province of Beira Litoral. Capital, Leiria; area, ab. 1,326 sq. mi.; pop. 395,779 (1950).

Leiria. Town and concelho (commune) in W Portugal, in the province of Beira Litoral, the capital of the district of Leiria, on the Liz River near the Atlantic coast, between Lisbon and Coimbra. The seat of a bishopric, it has a cathedral in Renaissance style. The castle, originally built in 1135, was reconstructed in later periods. West of the town a large pine forest, the Pinhal de Leiria, extends to the coast. Pop. of concelho, 65,828 (1940); of town, 6,147 (1940).

Leisegang (lī'zę.gäng), Hans. b. at Blankenburg, Germany, March 13, 1890—. German philosopher and historian of religion.

Leisewitz (lī'zę.vits), Johann Anton. b. at Hanover, Germany, May 9, 1752; d. at Brunswick, Germany, Sept. 10, 1806. German dramatist of the "Sturm und Drang" period.

Leishman (lēsh'mąn), John G. A. b. at Pittsburgh, Pa., March 28, 1857; d. at Nice, France, March 27, 1924. American diplomat. He was president (1886–97) of the Carnegie Steel Company. Subsequently he served as U.S. minister to Switzerland (1897–1900) and Turkey (1900–06), and as U.S. ambassador to Turkey (1906–09), Italy (1909–11), and Germany (1911–13).

Leisler (līs'lėr), Jacob. b. at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, 1640; d. at New York, May 16, 1691. American patriot. He came to America in 1660 as a soldier in the service of the Dutch West India Company. He acquired a fortune by trade with the Indians, and became a captain in the military force stationed at New York. He headed the movement which deposed the Jacobite lieutenant governor Francis Nicholson and proclaimed William and Mary in June, 1689. Opposed by the rich traders, large landholders, and others of the upper classes, Leisler, backed by the middle class and the artisans, assumed without formal authority the functions of a royal lieutenant governor, but, after undergoing military attack in Fort William (which he had renamed from Fort James), laid down his power on the arrival of Henry Sloughter as governor in 1691, in spite of which he was tried and executed for treason. The sentence was so manifestly unjust that it is said Sloughter hesitated to sign the death warrant until heated with wine.

Leisnig (līs'niċh). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, on the Freiberger Mulde River, ab. 28 mi. SE of Leipzig. Before World War II it had cloth, lingerie, toy, furniture, and machine industries. Above the town is Mildenstein Castle, built in the 11th–15th centuries. 10,077 (1946).

Leitch (lēch), William Leighton. b. at Glasgow, Nov. 22, 1804; d. April 25, 1883. Scottish painter, especially noted as a teacher.

Leiter (lī'tėr), Joseph. b. at Chicago, Dec. 4, 1868; d. there, April 11, 1932. American grain speculator; son of Levi Zeigler Leiter. Having been given (1891) a million dollars by his father and entrusted with the management (1892–98) of the family real-estate holdings, he conceived (1897) the idea of cornering the wheat market. He failed (1898) with a loss of six to ten million dollars, covered largely by his father. He was manager (1904 et seq.) of the 30-million-dollar Leiter estate, and president (1904 et seq.) of the Zeigler Coal Company and the Chicago, Zeigler and Gulf Railway.

Leiter, Levi Zeigler. b. at Leitersburg, Md., Nov. 2, 1834; d. June 9, 1904. American merchant and financier.

He was associated (1865–81) with Marshall Field as credit manager in a dry-goods firm at Chicago. He invested (1881 et seq.) in real estate and was one of the leaders in rebuilding Chicago after the fire of 1871. He was president of the Chicago Art Institute, and director (1874–80) of the Chicago Relief and Aid Society.

Leith (lēth). Former parliamentary burgh, since 1920 a part of Edinburgh. It is the principal seaport on the E coast of Scotland, and the second-ranking port in the country. There is a shipyard which specializes in the building of cargo ships. 82,934 (1931).

Leith, Charles Kenneth. b. at Trempealeau, Wis., Jan. 20, 1875—. American geologist and authority on economic geology. Professor of geology (1903–45) at the University of Wisconsin, he served during World War II as chief (1942–45) of the metals and minerals branch of the War Production Board's office of production research and development. Author of World Minerals and World Peace (1943), and other publications, especially on pre-Cambrian, metamorphic, structural, and economic geology.

Leith, Sir James. b. at Leithhall, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Aug. 8, 1763; d. in Barbados, Oct. 16, 1816. Scottish soldier and colonial administrator.

Leitha (līʹtä). River in NE Austria and NW Hungary which joins the S channel of the Danube near Magyarovar. It historically formed part of the boundary between Austria and Hungary (hence the terms "Cisleithan" and "Transleithan"). Length, ab. 125 mi.

Leith Hill. Prominent hill in SE England, in Surrey, ab. 25 mi. SW of London. It is the highest point of the Downs. 965 ft.

Leith-Ross (lēthʹrosʹ), Sir Frederick William. b. in Mauritius, 1887—. British economist and financier. He entered (1909) the treasury, served as private secretary (1911–13) to Prime Minister H. H. Asquith, and was British representative (1920–25) on the Reparation Commission's finance board. He was deputy controller (1925–32) of finance in the treasury, and principal economic adviser (1932–46) to the government. He served as British financial expert (1929, 1930) at the Hague Conferences, British representative at the World Economic Conference (1933) at London and the War Debts Mission (1933) at Washington, and negotiator of financial agreements with Germany (1934) and Italy (1935). He was engaged (1935–36) in a financial mission to China, and served as a delegate (1937) to the International Sugar Conference at London. He was on the Economic Committee (1932 et seq.) of the League of Nations, and was director general (1939–43) of the Ministry of Economic Warfare. After World War II he served with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and became (1946) governor of the National Bank of Egypt.

Leitmeritz (lītʹmę.rits). German name of Litoměřice.

Leitomischl (līʹtō.mish.l). German name of Litomyšl.

Leitrim (lēʹtrim). [Irish, Liathdruim.] Maritime county in NW Irish Republic, in Connacht province. It is bounded on the N by County Donegal, on the NE by County Fermanagh (Northern Ireland), on the E by County Cavan, on the SE by County Longford, on the SW by Counties Roscommon and Sligo, and on the NW by Donegal Bay. The county is divided into northwestern and southeastern sections by Lough Allen, an expansion of the river Shannon. The surface of the NW part is generally hilly and mountainous and of low productivity. The SE part is level to rolling and covered with many bogs and small lakes. Farming is the chief occupation. The county has limited manufactures of coarse linen and woolen textiles. Carrick-on-Shannon is the county seat; area, ab. 589 sq. mi.; pop. 41,309 (1951).

Leiva y de la Cerda (lāʹвä ē dä lä therʹтнä), Juan de. [Titles: Marquis of Leiva and Labrada, Count of Baños.] b. c1610; d. after 1667. Spanish viceroy of Mexico (Sept. 16, 1660–June 28, 1664).

Leix (lāks). See Laoighis.

Leixões (lā.shoiʼnshʹ). Port in NW Portugal, the seaport of Oporto, ab. 4 mi. NW of the city, on the Atlantic coast. It exports wine, sardines, olive oil, and cork.

Lejeune (lę.zhēnʹ), John Archer. b. in Point Coupé Parish, La., Jan. 10, 1867; d. at Baltimore, Md., Nov. 20, 1942. American marine-corps officer. He served in the Spanish-American War, the Philippines (1908–09), and at the capture of Veracruz (1914). He served (1918–19) in France as commander of the 2nd division, and gained fame during the engagements in the St.-Mihiel, Champagne, and Argonne actions. He was commandant (1920–29) of the marine corps and founder of the Marine Corps Institute.

Lejeune, Louis François, Baron. b. at Strasbourg, France, 1775; d. at Toulouse, France, 1848. French general, and painter of battle scenes.

Lek (lek). River in W Netherlands, one of the chief branches of the lower Rhine, flowing into the Nieuwe Maas near Rotterdam.

Lekain (lę.kaṅ), Henri Louis. [Original surname, Cain.] b. at Paris, April 14, 1728; d. there, Feb. 8, 1778. French tragedian. In 1750 he created a role in Le Mauvais Riche which attracted the attention of Voltaire, who became his friend. It was the custom to compare him with Garrick, but they had little in common. He left interesting memoirs, with letters from Garrick, Voltaire, and others.

Le Kef (lę kef). [Also: El Kef, El Keff, Keff; ancient name, Sicca Veneria.] Town in N Africa, in Tunisia, ab. 95 mi. SW of Tunis, with which it is connected by rail. 11,246 (1946).

Lekeu (lę.kė), Guillaume. b. at Heusy, Belgium, Jan. 20, 1870; d. at Angers, France, Jan. 21, 1894. Belgian composer. His works include two symphonic études, a composition for orchestra and chorus, songs, a violin and piano sonata, and an unfinished string quartet completed by d'Indy.

L. E. L. Pseudonym of Landon, Letitia Elizabeth.

Leland (lēʹland). City in W Mississippi, in Washington County, in a cotton, alfalfa, vegetable, and pecan farming area. 4,736 (1950).

Leland, Charles Godfrey. b. at Philadelphia, Aug. 15, 1824; d. at Florence, March 20, 1903. American author, creator of the character "Hans Breitmann." He edited (1860–61) Vanity Fair at New York. He resided principally at London (1869–80), and gave much time to the study of the language and customs of the Gypsies. Among his works are Poetry and Mystery of Dreams (1855), Hans Breitmann's Party, and Other Ballads (1868; burlesque poems in Pennsylvania Dutch, published in four series), English Gypsies (1873), Minor Arts (1880), The Gypsies (1882), Algonquin Legends of New England (1884), Practical Education (1888), Gypsy Sorcery and Fortune-telling (1890), Memoirs (1893), Hans Breitmann in Germany (1895), Songs of the Sea and Lays of the Land (1895), Aradia; or, Gospel of the Witches (1899), and, with J. D. Prince, Kulóscap the Master, and Other Algonkin Poems (1902). He wrote also a series of books on various arts and crafts.

Leland, Henry Martyn. b. at Danville, Vt., Feb. 16, 1843; d. March 26, 1932. American manufacturer, a pioneer in the automobile industry. After a 20-year association with Brown and Sharp at Providence, R.I., he founded (1890) at Detroit the Leland and Faulconer Manufacturing Company. He organized (1904) the Cadillac Motor Car Company and merged the two, serving as general manager (1904–09) and president (1909 et seq.). He established also the Lincoln Motor Company, which was later sold to Henry Ford.

Leland or Leyland (lēʹland), John. b. at London, Sept. 13, c1506; d. April 18, 1552. English antiquary. He was appointed king's antiquary by Henry VIII in 1533, with a commission to search for English antiquities in all libraries and other places where they might be found, and for this purpose journeyed for six years (1536–42), through England, making exhaustive researches and minutely recording his observations. He was adjudged insane in 1550. Most of his work was left in manuscript at his death. His Itinerary was published in 1710, and his Collectanea in 1715.

Leland, John. b. at Wigan, England, Oct. 18, 1691; d. at Dublin, Jan. 16, 1766. English Presbyterian clergyman and controversialist. He was the author of A View of the Principal Deistical Writers that have Appeared in England During the Last and Present Centuries (1754–56) and others.

Leleges (lelʹę.jēz). Ancient people who lived on the coasts of Greece, Asia Minor, and the islands of the Aegean. They are thought to have been related to the Carians of SW Asia Minor.

Leleux (lẹ.lė), Adolphe. b. at Paris, Nov. 15, 1812; d. there, July 27, 1891. French painter of landscape and genre scenes; brother of Armand Leleux.

Leleux, Armand. b. at Paris, 1818; d. there, in June, 1885. French genre painter, a pupil of Ingres; brother of Adolphe Leleux.

Lelewel (le.le'vel), Joachim. b. at Warsaw, Poland, March 21, 1786; d. at Paris, May 29, 1861. Polish historian, noted especially for his studies in the geography of the Middle Ages. His works include Géographie des Arabes (1851), Géographie du moyen âge (1852–57), and various works on Polish history and antiquities. He was appointed (1816) professor of history at the University of Warsaw, and soon after at Vilna. In 1824 he was deprived of his position for political reasons, and became one of the leaders of the Polish revolution of 1830. He escaped afterwards to Paris, living there and at Brussels for the rest of his life.

Lélie (lā.lē). Étourdi (heedless one) in Molière's play L'Étourdi; his singular carelessness and étourderie bring to naught all the astonishing schemes for his benefit concocted by Mascarille, his valet.

Le Locle (lẹ lok'l). Town in W Switzerland, in the canton of Neuchâtel. It has a lace industry and has been important since the early 18th century for the manufacture of watches. 11,336 (1941).

Lely (lā'lē), Cornelis. b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, Sept. 23, 1854; d. at The Hague, Netherlands, June 14, 1929. Dutch engineer and statesman. He was engineer in charge of the study for the reclamation of the Zuider Zee (1885–91), and served several times as minister of public works.

Lely (lē'li), Sir Peter. [Original name, Pieter Van der Vaes (or Faes).] b. at Soest, in Westphalia, Germany, Sept. 14, 1618; d. at London, Nov. 30, 1680. Dutch artist, court painter to Charles II. He studied at Haarlem and worked there until 1641, when he went to England with the Prince of Orange (who was later to become king of England as William III), who wedded the Princess Mary in that year. He remained in England and enjoyed until his death great popularity as a portrait painter, his pictures of the beauties of the court of Charles II being especially famous. He executed portraits of both William and Mary, and of a large number of the other eminent men and women. The name Lely was assumed by his father, who was born in a house bearing the sign of a lily.

Lemaire or Le Maire (lẹ mer), Jean. [Also, Lemaire (or Le Maire) de Belges (dẹ belzh).] b. at Belges, or Baria, in Hainaut, 1473; d. c1525. Belgian poet and historian, after 1504 secretary and librarian to Margaret of Austria, who was regent of the Netherlands after 1507. His most important work is his Illustrations de Gaule belgique (1812). His Epistres de l'amand verd, written to his patroness, were very influential in establishing verse as a French literary form.

Lemaire, Nicolas Éloi. b. at Triaucourt, Meuse, France, Dec. 1, 1767; d. Oct. 3, 1832. French classical scholar.

Lemaître (lẹ.metr; Anglicized, lẹ.met'rẹ), Frédérick. [Original name, Antoine Louis Prosper Lemaître.] b. at Le Havre, France, July 21, 1800; d. at Paris, Jan. 26, 1876. French actor. He made slow progress on the stage, but in 1823, being cast for the melodramatic part of Robert Macaire in a play in which he feared he could make no impression, he conceived the idea of playing it as a comic part. From this time his success as a comedian was assured. In France he was considered the greatest dramatic artist of his time, with the exception of Talma.

Lemaître, Abbé Georges Édouard. b. at Charleroi, Belgium, July 17, 1894—. Belgian physicist and astronomer. He was ordained a priest in 1922, and studied (1923–24) at the solar physics laboratory, Cambridge, England, and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (Ph.D., 1927) and Harvard College Observatory (1924–25). He has been a professor at Louvain since 1927. He is a proponent of the theory that the universe, expanding infinitely in space-time, is the result of, and consists of, an expanding atom. He lectured at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton (1935). Author of Theory of the Evolution of the Expanding Universe and numerous scientific papers.

Lemaître, Jules. [Full name, François Élie Jules Lemaître.] b. at Vennecy, Loiret, France, April 27, 1853; d. Aug. 5, 1914. French critic, poet, novelist, and dramatist. His critical work has been collected under the titles Les Contemporains (1885–95) and Impressions du théâtre (1888–98). He was the author also of several volumes of fiction, Sérénus (1886), Dix contes (1889), Les Rois (1893), and Myrrha (1894); two books of verse, Les Médaillons (1880) and Petites orientales (1882); and a number of plays.

Léman (lā.mäṅ). See under Lemanic Republic.

Léman, Lac. A French name of Geneva, Lake of.

Leman (lē'mạn), Lake. See Geneva, Lake of.

Lemanic Republic (lē.man'ik). Name assumed by the canton of Vaud, Switzerland, in January, 1798, as an independent state. It entered the Helvetic Republic as the canton of Léman in April, 1798.

Le Mans (lẹ mäṅ). City in W France, the capital of the department of Sarthe, on the Sarthe River between Paris and Nantes. It is an important railroad junction and has trade in grain, cattle, and poultry; industries include the production of agricultural machinery, automobiles, shoes, garments, hemp products, and preserved foods. The Cathedral of Saint-Julien dates from the 11th, 12th, 13th, and 15th centuries and has famous stained-glass windows. The town was frequently contested in the Middle Ages. It was a major battleground in the Vendean War (1793) and the scene of a crucial French defeat in the Franco-Prussian War (1871). It suffered damage from bombing in World War II. 100,455 (1946).

Lemanus (lẹ.mā'nus) or Lemannus (lẹ.man'us), Lacus. Latin name of Geneva, Lake of.

Le Marais (lẹ mā.re). See Marais, Le.

Le Marchant (lẹ mär'chạnt), John Gaspard. b. in Guernsey, Channel Islands, 1766; killed at the battle of Salamanca, Spain, July 22, 1812. English soldier. He served in Flanders (1793–94), was governor of officers' training schools he had suggested (1801–10), the schools later being combined as the basis of the Sandhurst Royal Military College, and commanded a brigade of cavalry in the Peninsular War (1810–12).

Le Marchant, Sir John Gaspard. b. 1803; d. at London, Feb. 6, 1874. English soldier and colonial governor; son of John Gaspard Le Marchant (1766–1812).

Le Mars (lẹ märz'). City in NW Iowa, county seat of Plymouth County; shipping point for livestock and grains. 5,844 (1950).

Le May Range (lẹ mā'). [Also: Army Range, U.S. Army Range.] Mountain range in Antarctica, in the SE part of Alexander I Island, in ab. 71°50′ S., 70°00′ W.

Lemba (lām'bā). [Also: Balemba, Waremba.] Bantu-speaking people of S Africa, numbering only ab. 5,000, and subject to, and scattered among, the Shona in Southern Rhodesia and the Venda in the Union of South Africa. They have dark skins, but non-Negroid features, and do not intermarry with their neighbors. They eat no pork, and are believed to be Semitic in origin. According to native tradition, they introduced circumcision in this part of S Africa.

Lemberg (lem'berk). German name of Lvov.

Lemercier (lẹ.mer.syā), Jacques. b. at Pontoise, France, c1585; d. at Paris, 1660. French architect. In 1618 he was appointed architect to the king, and in 1620 he rebuilt the bridge at Rouen. In 1624 he took charge of the works at the Louvre, which had not advanced beyond the constructions of Pierre Lescot; these he doubled on the western and southern sides, quadrupling the intended size of the court. In the middle of the western side he built the Pavillon de l'Orloge, crowned by the famous caryatids of Jacques Sarrazin. In 1627 he constructed the Château de Lilly. He was the favorite architect of Richelieu, and in 1629 built the Palais Richelieu, later developed into the Palais Royal. About the same time also he built the church and buildings of the Sorbonne.

Lemercier, Louis Jean Népomucène. b. at Paris, April 24, 1771; d. there, June 7, 1840. French poet and playwright. He wrote a number of plays, among which are Agamemnon (produced 1794), Le Tartuffe révolutionnaire (1795), and Pinto (1798).

Lémery (lā.mə.rē'), Nicolas. b. at Rouen, France, Nov. 17, 1645; d. at Paris, June 19, 1715. French chemist, author of Cours de chymie (1675) and other works.

Lemessos (lē.mes'os) or Lemessus (-us). See Limassol.

Lemgo (lem'gō). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the free state of Lippe, ab. 41 mi. SW of Hanover: cigar, toy, furniture, textile, and metal manufactures. The manufacture of meerschaum pipes is a specialty. The churches of Saint Nicholas and Saint Mary are Gothic buildings of the 13th and 14th centuries; the Rathaus (town hall) dates from the 14th–17th centuries; there is a municipal museum. The town was a member of the Hanseatic League in the Middle Ages. It suffered no damage during World War II. 20,088 (1950).

Lemieux (lę.myē), Rodolphe. b. at Montreal, Nov. 1, 1866; d. there, Sept. 28, 1937. Canadian lawyer and politician. He was a member of the Canadian House of Commons (1896–1930) and Senate (1930–37), and held posts as solicitor general (1904–06), postmaster general (1906–11), and minister of marine and fisheries (1911). He served (1922–30) as speaker of House of Commons. He was the author of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act (Lemieux Act), establishing arbitration procedures.

Lemke (lem'kē), William. b. at Albany, Minn., Aug. 13, 1878; d. at Fargo, N.D., May 30, 1950. American politician. A leading member of the National Non-Partisan League, he served (1921–23) as attorney general of North Dakota. Lemke, whose reforming activities included service as head of the group to prepare laws to forward North Dakota's industrial progress, was a member of Congress (1933–41, 1945–50) and was sponsor of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium legislation of the depression years. He was the candidate (1936) of the Union Party for the presidency of the U.S., running with the backing of Father Coughlin, Francis E. Townsend, and Huey Long, and receiving almost 900,000 votes.

Lemmens (lem'ęns), Nicolas Jacques. b. at Zoerle-Parwys, Belgium, Jan. 3, 1823; d. at Castle Linterport, Belgium, Jan. 30, 1881. Belgian organist and composer. His work includes religious, orchestral, and organ compositions, and a method for the organ.

Lemmon (lem'ọn). City in NW South Dakota, in Perkins County, near the North Dakota line, ab. 135 mi. NE of Rapid City: grain, livestock, and coal. 2,760 (1950).

Lemmon, John Gill. b. at Lima, Mich., Jan. 2, 1832; d. Nov. 24, 1908. American botanist in California. He was named (1888) botanist to the California state board of forestry.

Lemnos (lem'nos). [Also: Limni, Limno, Limnos.] Island in the Aegean Sea, belonging to Greece, in the nomos (department) of Lesbos. The surface is hilly and fertile, and produces grain, wine, olives, tobacco, and fruits. It has hot springs and a harbor on the S coast at Moudros. Sacred to Hephaestus in ancient times, it was conquered by the Persians, and recovered for Athens by Miltiades. In 1912 it was taken by the Greeks from the Turks. In World War I it was the base of the British fleet in the Dardanelles campaign. Chief town, Kastro; length, ab. 20 mi.; area, ab. 180 sq. mi.; pop. 25,477 (1940). According to an ancient myth, the Argonauts touched at Lemnos for supplies soon after they began their voyage. They found the island populated only by women, who had murdered all the men for cohabiting with Thracian female captives. The Argonauts were hospitably greeted and stayed for some time, Jason fathering the twin sons of Hypsipyle, the Lemnian queen, and the other Argonauts leaving an island soon repopulated with males. Students see evidence in the myth of a former gynocracy (rule by women). Both Aeschylus and Sophocles wrote plays, now lost, on the story.

Lemoine (lę.mwän), Émile Michel Hyacinthe. b. at Quimper, France, Nov. 22, 1840; d. at Paris, Dec. 21, 1912. French mathematician and engineer, best known for his work on the geometry of the triangle, especially in connection with the "Lemoine circle." Besides numerous papers, he wrote Géométographie ou art des constructions géométriques (1902).

Lemoine (lę.moin'), Henry. b. at London, Jan. 14, 1756; d. there, April 30, 1812. English bookseller and writer.

Lemoinne (lę.mwän), John Émile. b. at London, Oct. 17, 1815; d. at Paris, Dec. 14, 1892. French journalist. He was on the staff of the Journal des Débats for 52 years. He also wrote for the Revue des Deux Mondes and Le Matin. Among other works, he published a collection of his articles under the title Études critiques et biographiques (1862).

Lemon (lem'ọn), Harvey Brace. b. at Chicago, April 23, 1885—. American physicist and author. He investigated the biophysical effects of ultraviolet rays. Author of From Galileo to Cosmic Rays (1934), Cosmic Rays thus Far (1936), From Galileo to the Nuclear Age (1946), and other works.

Lemon, Mark. b. at London, Nov. 30, 1809; d. at Crawley, Sussex, England, May 23, 1870. English journalist, dramatist, and novelist, one of the founders and the first editor (1841–70) of Punch. Among his numerous plays are Hearts Are Trumps, Lost and Won, Self-Accusation, and Love and War. He also wrote a number of Christmas tales, and published a jest-book in 1867.

Lemonnier (lę.mo.nyā), André Georges. b. Feb. 24, 1896—. French naval officer. During World War II he supervised the use of vessels from the French merchant marine within the Allied merchant fleet as a whole. He was Free French fleet commander (1943–45) and served (1945–47) as French chief of naval staff.

Lemonnier, Camille. [Full name, Antoine Louis Camille Lemonnier.] b. at Ixelles, near Brussels, March 24, 1844; d. at Brussels, June 13, 1913. Belgian novelist and critic, a member of the naturalist school. Sociological tendencies are revealed in some of his work, as well as a conscious pantheism. His art criticism includes Salon de Bruxelles (1863); his critical works on Gustave Courbet and Alfred Stevens are standard. Among his collections of short stories are Contes flamandes et wallons (1875) and Ceux de la glèbe (1889). His novels include Le Mâle (1881), Le Mort (1882), L'Hystérique (1883), Happe-Chair (1886), Le Possédé (1890), Les Deux Consciences (1902), and Comme va le ruisseau (1903). He founded L'Art Universel, replaced later by L'Art Moderne of Émile Picard.

Lemonnier, Pierre Charles. b. at Paris, Nov. 23, 1715; d. near Bayeux, France, May 31, 1799. French astronomer. He spent 50 years in observations of the moon, studied the influence of Saturn on the motion of Jupiter, and recorded his observation of Uranus before its recognition as a planet. He also investigated terrestrial magnetism and atmospheric electricity.

Lemon Rock. See under Skelligs, the.

Lemont (lę.mont'). Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County. 2,757 (1950).

Le Mont-Dore (lę môn.dôr). See Mont-Dore.

Le Mort-Homme (lę môr.tọm). [Eng. trans., "the Dead Man."] Hill NW of Verdun, France, the scene of intense fighting during the German offensive of the spring of 1916.

Le Morvan (lę môr.väṅ). See Morvan.

Lemos (lā'mōs), 10th Count of. Title of Fernández de Castro Andrade y Portugal, Pedro.

Lemovices (lem.ọ.vī'sēz). Tribe in ancient Gaul, occupying territory near the Arvernian border. They are mentioned by Julius Caesar as supporting Vercingetorix in his revolt of 52 B.C. The French province of Limousin derives its name from them.

Lemoyne (lę.moin'). Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Cumberland County, on the Susquehanna River. It is a southwestern residential suburb of Harrisburg, and the site of the northernmost point of the Confederate advance in 1863. Pop. 4,605 (1950).

Le Moyne (lę mwän), Antoine. [Title, Sieur de Châteauguay.] b. at Montreal, July 7, 1683; d. at Rochefort, France, March 21, 1747. French commander in North America; son of Charles Le Moyne (1626–83). He served (1705–06) under his brother, Pierre Le Moyne, Sieur d' Iberville, against the English, was made commandant of the troops in Louisiana in 1717, and king's lieutenant of the colony in 1718, was governor of Martinique (1727–44), and became governor of Île Royale, or Cape Breton Island, in 1745.

Le Moyne, Charles. [Also written le Moyne, Lemoyne; title, Sieur de Longueuil.] b. in Normandy, France, 1626; d. at Villemarie, Canada, 1683. French pioneer in Canada. He distinguished himself in border warfare against the Iroquois and the English, and was ennobled by Louis XIV in 1668.

Le Moyne, Charles. [Title, Baron de Longueuil.] b. at Montreal, Dec. 10, 1656; d. at Montreal, June 8, 1729. French government official in Canada; son of Charles Le Moyne (1626–83). He was made governor of Montreal and created a baron in 1700, became commandant general of Canada in 1711 and governor of Three Rivers in 1720, and was reappointed governor of Montreal in 1724.

Le Moyne, Jacques. [Title, Sieur de Ste.-Hélène.] b. at Villemarie, Canada, April 16, 1659; d. at Quebec, in October, 1690. French commander in North America; son of Charles Le Moyne (1626–83). He was one of the leaders of the expedition which captured and plundered Schenectady in 1690. He fell mortally wounded at the moment of victory, while defending the passage of the St. Charles against the British admiral William Phips.

Le Moyne, Jean Baptiste. See Bienville, Jean Baptiste Le Moyne, Sieur de.

Le Moyne, Joseph. [Title, Sieur de Sérigny.] b. at Montreal, July 22, 1668; d. at Rochefort, France, 1734. French naval officer; son of Charles Le Moyne (1626–83). He was made governor of Rochefort in 1723.

Le Moyne, Paul. [Title, Sieur de Maricourt.] b. at Montreal, Dec. 15, 1663; killed March 21, 1704. French commander in Canada; son of Charles Le Moyne (1626–83).

Le Moyne, Pierre. See Iberville, Pierre Le Moyne, Sieur d'.

Lempa (lem'pä). River in Central America, rising in SE Guatemala, and flowing through SW Honduras and NW and C El Salvador, emptying into the Pacific ab. 40 mi. SE of San Salvador. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Lempira (lem.pē'rä). [Former name, Gracias.] Department in SW Honduras, on the border of El Salvador: coffee. Capital, Gracias; area, ab. 1,689 sq. mi.; pop. 90,908 (1950).

Lemprière (lem.prir'), John. b. in Jersey, Channel Islands, c1765; d. at London, Feb. 1, 1824. English classical scholar. He published Bibliotheca Classica, or Classical Dictionary (1788), for many years, and through many editions, one of the standard reference works on mythology and the ancient world.

Lemuel (lem'ū.ęl). In the Bible, an unknown king mentioned in Prov. xxxi. 1, 4. The rabbinical commentators identified him with Solomon.

Lemuel Gulliver (gul'i.vėr). See Gulliver, Lemuel.

Lemuria (lę.mū'ri.ą). Land supposed formerly to have existed in the Indian Ocean, connecting Madagascar, the peninsula of India, and Sumatra.

Lemuria. Ancient Roman festival celebrated annually on May 9, 11, and 13 for the lemures, or spirits of the dead. Offerings were made at midnight by the head of the family, who walked barefoot through the house scattering black beans and repeating a formula of appeasement. The third day of the Lemuria was celebrated especially by merchants to insure a year's good luck in business.

Lena (lā'nä). Commune in NW Spain, in the province of Oviedo, on the Caudal River ab. 13 mi. S of Oviedo. It consists of several parishes, and is in a coal-mining district. Chief town, Pola de Lena. 15,532 (1940).

Lenaea (le.nē'ą). In Greek religion, the feast of vats, one of the four Attic festivals in honor of Dionysus. It was held at Athens in the month Gamelion (January–February), at the Lenaeum, the sacred shrine where Dionysian rites were held. There was a great public feast, followed by a procession, with jesting and mockery, to the theater.

Lenape (len'ą.pā). See Delaware Indians.

Lenard (lā'närt), Philipp. b. at Pressburg (now Bratislava, Czechoslovakia), June 7, 1862; d. in Germany, May 20, 1947. German physicist. In 1905 he received the Nobel prize for physics for his work on cathode rays. He demonstrated that light causes the emission of electrons from substances, that the velocity of the emission was not related to the intensity of the light, that the frequency of the light did affect the velocity. He also helped modify Thomson's early picture of the structure of the atom by indicating that it was mostly empty space, since electrons passed through many atoms without striking other electrons or a nucleus. The Lenard rays, emitted through a foil-covered "window" in a Crookes tube, are named for him.

Lena River (lē'ną; Russian, lye'ną). One of the longest rivers of the U.S.S.R., in E central Siberia. It rises near Lake Baikal, flows generally NE and N, and empties into the Arctic Ocean. Yakutsk is on its banks, and its chief tributaries are the Vitim, Vilyui, and Aldan. Its delta is famous for the mammoth ivory discovered there. The river is navigable (during the summer) nearly to its headwaters. Length, ab. 2,650 mi.

Lenau (lā'nou), Nikolaus. [Pseudonym of Nikolaus Niembsch von Strehlenau.] b. at Csátad, Hungary (now Lenauheim, Rumania), Aug. 13, 1802; d. near Vienna, Aug. 22, 1850. Austrian poet. Among his poems are Faust (1835), Savonarola (1837), and Die Albigenser (1842).

Lenbach (lān'bäċh), Franz von. b. at Schrobenhausen, Bavaria, Germany, Dec. 13, 1836; d. May 6, 1904. German portrait painter. In 1862 he went to Italy and Spain, where he studied and copied old masters for a gallery at Munich. After his return to Munich he devoted himself exclusively to portraiture. He became a member of the Berlin Academy in 1883.

Lenca (leng'ką). Group of settled agricultural Indian tribes in SW Honduras and N El Salvador, presently numbering between 55,000 and 60,000.

Lenca. [Also, Lencan (leng'kąn).] Language of the Lenca tribes, comprised of several only slightly differentiated dialects. It is presently regarded as an independent language family.

Lenclos (läṅ.klō) or L'Enclos, Anne. [Called Ninon de Lenclos (or L'Enclos).] b. at Paris, c1620; d. there, 1705 (some sources say 1706). French courtesan and wit. She retained her beauty and charm to a very old age. Mademoiselle de Scudéry drew her portrait in Clélie under the name of Clarisse. She received the highest society in her salon, which has been compared for its tone with the Hôtel Rambouillet. Madame Scarron (afterward de Maintenon), Madame de Lafayette, and Queen Christina of Sweden were her friends. St. Évremond, La Rochefoucauld, D'Estrées, the great Condé, and three generations of the family of Sévigné were among her lovers. Her career of sensuality, stretching over an almost incredible length of time, has made her perhaps the most legendary of the famous French women of fashion.

Lendinara (len.dē.nä'rä). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Veneto, in the province of Rovigo, on the Adigetto River ab. 26 mi. SW of Padua. It has jute and hemp, furniture, and sugar-refining industries. Pop. of commune, 15,717 (1936); of town, 4,995 (1936).

Lend-Lease. [Called, by the British, Lease-Lend.] Term applied to the system devised by the U.S. for providing material aid to the other Allied powers in World War II. Originally designed (and narrowly passed, as such, by Congress in March, 1941) as "aid short of war," it gave the President power to have manufactured, and to sell, lease, or exchange any defense article to or with any nation whose defense he considered vital to U.S. security. In return, the U.S. would receive money, materials, or "any other direct or indirect benefit which the President deems satisfactory." When the U.S. entered World War II, Lend-Lease became a system of inter-Allied aid with provisions made for mutual credits. After having provided just over 50 billion dollars of aid, with Great Britain and the U.S.S.R. as the principal recipients, Lend-Lease was brought to an end by President Truman on Aug. 25, 1945.

Lendum (len'dum). An ancient name of Lens.

Lenéru (lę.nā.rü), Marie. [Pseudonym, Antoine Morsain.] b. at Brest, in Brittany, France, June 2, 1875; d. at Lorient, France, Sept. 23, 1918. French playwright. She was the author of Les Affranchis (1910), Le Redoutable (1912), La Triomphante (1918), La Maison sur le roc (1924), and Le Bonheur des autres (1925). Her Journal (2 vols., 1922) records the life of an artist shut off from the world by deafness and eventually by blindness.

Le Neve (lę nēv'), John. b. at Bloomsbury, London, Dec. 27, 1679; d. 1741. English antiquary.

Le Neve, Peter. b. at London, 1661; d. in Norfolk, England, Sept. 24, 1729. English antiquary.

Lenfant (laṅ faṅ), Jacques. b. at Bazoches, France, April 13, 1661; d. at Berlin, Aug. 7, 1728. French Protestant theologian and church historian.

L'Enfant (läṅ.fäṅ), Pierre Charles. b. at Paris, 1754; d. 1825. French officer and engineer. He came to America in 1777 with Lafayette, joined the American army, and was commissioned brevet major in 1783. He planned the city of Washington, D.C., after his work in remodeling the New York seat of the federal government had impressed Washington. The expense connected with building the new city was so great, however, that his resignation was forced in 1792. The plans lay dormant until 1901, when the government began remodeling the city along the lines he had laid down 120 years before.

Lenge (läng'gā). [Also, Valenge.] Southern subgroup of the Chopi, a Bantu-speaking people of S Mozambique, in SE Africa. They are divided into five independent subgroups ruled by hereditary district chiefs, of which one is the highest ranking.

Lengefeld (leng'e.felt), Karoline von. See Wolzogen, Karoline von.

Lengerich leeng'e.riċh). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, near the Teutoburg Forest, ab. 10 mi. SW of Osnabrück: metallurgical, chemical, and foodstuff industries; agricultural trade. 19,647 (1950).

Lenglen (läṅ.glen; Anglicized, leng'len, -glen), Suzanne. b. at Compiègne, France, May 24, 1899; d. at Paris, July 4, 1938. French lawn-tennis player. She won (1914) the women's world hard-court singles championship. Among her other championships were the ladies' singles (1919–23, 1925), ladies' doubles (1919–23, 1925), and the mixed doubles (1920, 1922, 1925), all at Wimbledon. In her sole try at the American singles championship, she defaulted (1921) against Mrs. Molla Mallory. She defeated (1926) Helen Wills, however, in straight sets at Cannes, France. She turned professional in 1926 and toured until her retirement in 1927.

Lengua (lān'gwä). Group of South American Indians of the Chaco region, formerly very numerous. The term Lengua was originally applied to several linguistic groups. The language is now classified, however, as belonging to the Maca group of the newly postulated Mataca-Maca family in the Macro-Guaicuru phylum, which includes several linguistic families of the Chaco heretofore considered unrelated.

Lengyel (len'dyel), Emil. b. at Budapest, Hungary, April 26, 1895—. American journalist, teacher, and writer. He served in the Austro-Hungarian army during World War I and was imprisoned for 20 months in Siberia. He was a journalist (1919–30) in Europe and for European newspapers in the U.S. Author of Hitler (1932), Millions of Dictators (1936), The Danube (1939), Turkey (1941), Siberia (1943), America's Role in World Affairs (1945), They Came from Hungary (1947), and other books.

Lenin (len'in; Russian lye'nyin), Vladimir Ilyich. [Often called Nikolai Lenin (although the prename was not used by him, nor is it used by Russians); original surname, Ulyanov.] b. at Simbirsk (now Ulyanovsk), Russia, April 9, 1870; d. at Gorky, near Leningrad, Jan. 21, 1924. Russian revolutionist and statesman, chief ideologist of Bolshevism in its original form, and leader in the establishment of the U.S.S.R. In the same year (1887) in which he graduated from the Simbirsk Gymnasium (advanced secondary school), winning a medal for scholarship, his brother Aleksandr was executed for taking part in a plot against the life of the czar. The young Vladimir, far from being cowed by this tragedy, was confirmed in his own radical bent, and shortly after entering Kazan University for the study of law, his participation in a student demonstration led to his first banishment. In 1889 he was permitted to resume study at Kazan; from there he went to the University of St. Petersburg, where he passed his law examinations in 1891. For a short time he practiced his profession, but by 1894 he was giving all his time and energies to revolutionary agitation. In the following year he went abroad to consult with Plekhanov and other radical leaders. On his return to St. Petersburg he resumed his illegal activities, with the result that in December, 1895, he was arrested, imprisoned, and subsequently sent to Siberia for three years, during which time he wrote The Development of Capitalism in Russia. When his term in exile was over, he went abroad again. In 1900 he began the publication, at Munich, of the newspaper Iskra ("The Spark"), in which he systematically developed his ideas for the application of Marxist theory to the promotion of revolution, calling for resolute underground activity to make the Social Democratic Party the vanguard of the proletariat, the workers in industry. In 1903 the Russian Social Democratic Party held a congress, meeting first at Brussels and then at London, where Lenin, rather than tolerate subordination of the proletariat to the liberal bourgeoisie, forced a split. The larger faction, endorsing Lenin's policy, took the name of Bolsheviks, from the Russian word for "majority," and the opposition became known as Mensheviks, or "minority." With the outbreak of extensive disorders in Russia in 1905, Lenin hastened there, hoping that the decisive revolution was about to occur. Though that hope aborted, he noted, for future reference, that the members of the working class had used force against those who used it against them, and that in some places they had actually been able temporarily to seize power. He made careful note also of a new form of organization to which the events of 1905 gave birth, namely soviets ("councils") composed of workers', peasants', and soldiers' deputies. Twelve years later he was to make use of what he learned at this time. In 1907 Lenin left Russia, but from England and elsewhere continued to guide the Bolsheviks. Against the view of other extremists, he insisted that Social Democrats elected to the Duma should participate in the work of that body, using it to get publicity for their proposals. On the other hand he vigorously opposed all efforts of the Mensheviks to discountenance illegal activities. As the upshot of a conference at Prague in 1912, the Mensheviks were definitely shorn of influence in the Russian Social Democratic Party, and Lenin's ascendancy among the Bolsheviks was definitely established. At that time the Bolsheviks began the publication at St. Petersburg of the newspaper Pravda, which had a legal existence, but was constantly harassed by the czarist authorities (the Bolsheviks made very effective propaganda of every such instance). When World War I burst upon the world, Lenin, from Switzerland, denounced the socialists who, in the various warring countries, supported "their own" governments. Having developed his theory of imperialism as the final stage of capitalism, in which the capitalist nations, seeking markets for their products and employment for their surplus capital, appropriate the territories of peoples unable effectively to resist, and in which the capitalist nations thereafter come into inevitable conflict for the control of markets for goods and for capital, Lenin pronounced World War I an imperialist war, and called on workers everywhere to refuse it their support. He saw in this conflict the historical moment for a revolution led by the proletariat. The Second International (of the various Social Democratic parties) having failed to bring about the working-class unity which could have prevented war, he called for the formation of a Third International, and for the transformation of the war into a civil war in each country, with the workers seizing power. An important conference of socialists at Zimmerwald, Switzerland, in September, 1915, supported Lenin's theses. When the Russian Revolution erupted in February, 1917, Lenin, blocked by the British from getting to Russia with Allied help, turned to the Germans; they realized that his presence in Russia could not but disrupt Russian military operations, and gave him transport to Sweden, whence he proceeded to Petrograd (as St. Petersburg had recently been renamed). He arrived at the Finland Station on April 3, and, in a famous speech made there, he asserted that the bourgeois revolution which overthrew the czarist regime must be only the starting point of the real revolution, and called on the proletariat to arm and seize power. Some of the other leading Bolshevists thought this audacious program was premature, and so it seemed when the first Bolshevik bid for power, in July, was crushed by the Kerensky government, and Lenin had to flee to Finland. But the Bolsheviks secured majorities in the powerful Petrograd and Moscow Soviets, and at the second All-Russian Soviet Congress in November (in October by the Old Style calendar), Lenin appeared and gained command; the Kerensky government was overthrown, the dictatorship of the proletariat was proclaimed, and a socialist republic of workers and peasants erected under the administration of a Council of People's Commissars, of which Lenin was president. The ex-Siberian convict, the police-hunted refugee who had lived long and intimately with peril and poverty, was now, if not the master of, certainly the most powerful person in one of the world's most extensive empires. The closest and most influential of his associates at that time seem to have been Trotsky, Stalin, and Rykov. The other warring nations paid no heed to their call for an armistice, but the infant socialist state purchased peace with the Central Powers on the humiliating terms of the Brest-Litovsk treaty. Nevertheless, civil war wracked the country until 1920. Concessions had to be made to the peasant passion for landownership, and the need for capital was met by the New Economic Policy which for a time allowed private industry and business a limited scope. Under Lenin's driving leadership, however, major industries were nationalized; the development of hydroelectric power was begun, as well as the mechanization of agriculture; not only the many countries comprised within the old Russian Empire, but each of the scores of small peoples in its vast territory was at first conceded autonomy within the new Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and encouraged to develop its own culture; illiteracy was attacked on all fronts; though religious liberty was theoretically guaranteed, there was actually a good deal of persecution of clergy and believers, and (particularly during the first years of the new regime) a vigorous encouragement of godlessness. Under the weight of his labors, Lenin's health broke, and several strokes preceded his death. His body is enshrined in an imposing mausoleum at Moscow, where it is viewed by hundreds of thousands annually. His power and authority in the state and in the Communist Party (successor to the Bolshevik wing of the Social Democratic Party) eventually passed to Joseph V. Stalin. Of Lenin it is generally conceded, even among those who most abhor his ideology and deplore the results of his actions, that he was unselfish in character and idealistic in his aims.

Leninabad (le″nin.ą.bad′, -ä.bät′). [Former name, Khodjend, Khodzhent, Khojend; ancient name, Alexandria Eschata.] Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Tadzhik Soviet Socialist Republic, in C Asia, on the Syr Darya. It has food-processing and silk-textile industries. It is an ancient town, captured by Alexander the Great in his campaign of 329–327 B.C.; it was taken by the Russians in 1866. Pop. 45,500 (1939).

Leninakan (le″nin.ą.kän′). [Former name, Aleksandropol, Alexandrapol, Alexandropol; Armenian, Gumri, Kumri.] City in the U.S.S.R., in the Armenian Soviet Socialist Republic, near the Turkish border: cotton-textile and food-processing industries. Here, in 1853, the Russians defeated the Turks. The city was devastated by an earthquake in 1926, but has been rebuilt. 67,707 (1939).

Leningrad (len′in.grad; Russian, lyi.nyin.grät′). Oblast (region) in NW U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, centered ab. 300 mi. NW of Moscow and bordering on the Gulf of Finland and Lake Ladoga. Most of the area is flat, and some of it swampy, but there are ranges of low hills. The most important crops are hay and fodder, rye, flax, and potatoes. Near the city of Leningrad, garden crops and dairy products predominate. The chief mineral resource is bauxite, produced in the vicinity of Tikhvin. Capital, Leningrad; area, ab. 54,349 sq. mi. (1939), ab. 32,850 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 6,435,076 (1939).

Leningrad. [Former names, St. Petersburg, Russian, Sankt Peterburg, popularly Peterburg; later (1914–24) Petrograd.] City in NW U.S.S.R., capital of the Leningrad oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, and formerly capital of the Russian Empire, situated at the head of the Gulf of Finland and at the mouth of the Neva River. The manufacture of machinery, machine tools, ships, chemicals, rubber products, shoes, clothing, textiles, wood products, paper, and food products, and publishing and printing are the chief industries of the city, which by itself is the third most important industrial region in the U.S.S.R. It stands partly on the mainland and partly on low islands formed by the mouths of the river. The winter is long and the climate damp. Leningrad is the second largest city of the U.S.S.R., and its chief Baltic seaport. It is the terminus of a web of ten major railroad lines which spread out in all directions from the city, and has five railway stations. It has canal connections with the Volga River and with the White Sea. 3,191,304 (1939).

Architecture. Saint Isaac's Cathedral is a building of Renaissance style, imposing from its size (364 by 315 ft.) and the magnificence of its materials; it was completed after the middle of the 19th century. The Kazan Cathedral is in plan a Latin cross with porticos of six columns before the nave and transepts. Though one third smaller than Saint Isaac's, it is still an imposing structure. The iconostasis is of silver, from the spoils of Napoleon I; the cathedral contains many other martial trophies. The Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul, in the fortress, was from the foundation of St. Petersburg the mausoleum of Russian sovereigns. In plan it is rectangular, three-aisled, 98 by 210 ft.; it is rococo in style and crowned by a slender pyramidal spire, of Dutch design, 302 ft. high, covered with gilded copper. The palace of the grand duke Michael, built in 1820, is architecturally perhaps the finest palace in the city. The grand staircase is 80 ft. square. The cottage of Peter the Great, built by the czar in 1703 and inhabited by him during the building of St. Petersburg, has been preserved and houses many relics of Peter. It is 20 by 55 ft., of wood, with two rooms and a kitchen. The Moscow Gate, a triumphal arch in a neo-Greek style, was erected in 1838 in commemoration of Russian victories in Poland, Turkey, and Persia. Other objects of interest are the winter palace, the Hermitage, and Anichkov palace. The city is the seat of a library (over 1,800,000 volumes), academy of sciences (with rich collections), academy of arts, various museums, military, mining, naval, medical, and other schools, and learned societies. The university was founded in 1819.

History. St. Petersburg was founded by Peter the Great in 1703, and thousands were compelled by the emperor to remove their residences to it. It was largely developed by Catharine II, Alexander I, and Nicholas I. During the late 19th and early 20th centuries the city developed as an industrial center, with a large foreign capital investment. It had a large working-class population and was naturally a center of revolutionary activity. St. Petersburg was the principal scene of the revolution of 1905, and played a leading role in the Russian Revolution of 1917. The violence, emigration, and unrest of the years of the revolution caused its population to dwindle from 2,415,000 in 1916 to 722,000 in 1920. The city was renamed Petrograd in 1914 and Leningrad in 1924. Moscow was made the national capital, but Leningrad, with its seaport location and skilled labor force, rapidly recovered to become a major industrial and cultural center. In World War II Leningrad was a chief objective of the Nazi and Finnish armies, which reached its suburbs in August, 1941, and closed a siege ring around the city in October. The population and military defenders of Leningrad put up a heroic and prolonged resistance, which was aided by supplies brought in across the ice of Lake Ladoga. Many civilians were evacuated. The city underwent severe artillery and air bombardments, and endured the longest siege of any modern city, which it successfully withstood, though at a cost of over a half million lives. A Soviet offensive removed the theater of warfare from the near environs of Leningrad in January, 1943. There has since been extensive reconstruction.

Leninogorsk (lye″nyin.ọ.gôrsk′). [Former name, Ridder.] City in the U.S.S.R., in E Kazakh Soviet Socialist Republic, in a valley in the W foothills of the Altai. It is a major center for the mining and refining of metals producing zinc, lead, and silver; some gold and copper are obtained as byproducts. 50,000 (est. 1939).

Lenin Peak (len′in). [Also: Lenin Mountain; former name, Kaufmann Peak or Mountain.] Mountain in the U.S.S.R., on the border between the Kirghiz and Tadzhik Soviet Socialist Republics, in the Pamirs, the third highest mountain in the U.S.S.R. Elevation, ab. 23,405 ft.

Leninsk-Kuznetski (len′insk.kŏz.nyet′ski). [Former names, Kolchugino, Lenino (len′i.no).] City in the U.S.S.R., in the Kemerovo oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, in the Kuznetsk Basin, important coal-mining center. 81,084 (1939).

Lenje (lān'jā). [Also, Walenje.] Bantu-speaking people of SE Africa, inhabiting an area in the neighborhood of Broken Hill in C Northern Rhodesia. Culturally and linguistically they resemble the Ila.

Lenk (lengk). [Official name, Lenk im Simmental (im zim'ẹn.täl).] Village in C Switzerland, in the canton of Bern, in the Simmen Valley (Simmental): a health resort and center for winter sports. Elevation, ab. 3,625 ft.; pop. 1,752 (1941).

Lenkoran (leng.ko.rän'). Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Azerbaijan Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 130 mi. S of Baku, on the Caspian Sea, in an area producing tea, tobacco, and citrus fruits. It has sawmilling and food-processing (including fish-processing) industries. The town was stormed and annexed by the Russians in 1813. Pop. 24,000 (1936).

Lennep (len'ep). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia. It is now administratively a part of Remscheid, though ab. 3 mi. E of it.

Lennep, David Jakob van. b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, July 15, 1774; d. there, Feb. 10, 1853. Dutch classical philologist.

Lennep, Jacob van. b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, March 24, 1802; d. at Oosterbeek, near Arnhem, Netherlands, Aug. 25, 1868. Dutch novelist and poet; son of David Jakob van Lennep.

Lennox (len'ọks). Unincorporated community in S California, in Los Angeles County: a southwestern suburb of Los Angeles. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban areas. The last official enumeration was 10,526 (1940).

Lennox. Former division of Scotland. It corresponded to Dumbartonshire, a large part of Stirlingshire, and parts of Perthshire and Renfrewshire.

Lennox. Character in Shakespeare's Macbeth, a thane of Scotland.

Lennox, Countess of. Title of Douglas, Lady Margaret.

Lennox, Duke or Earl of. Titles held by various members of the Stuart (or Stewart) family.

Lennox, Charles. [Title, 1st Duke of Richmond.] b. July 29, 1672; d. at Goodwood, Sussex, England, May 27, 1723. Natural son of Charles II and Louise de Kérouallé, Duchess of Portsmouth. He went (1688) to Paris at the Revolution, in the service of James II, but later changed both his politics and his religion, becoming reconciled to King William III and entering the Church of England.

Lennox, Charles. [Title, 3rd Duke of Richmond and Lennox.] b. at London, Feb. 22, 1735; d. at Goodwood, Sussex, England, Dec. 29, 1806. English diplomat and politician; grandson of Charles Lennox, 1st Duke of Richmond. He was minister at Paris (1765), secretary of state for the southern department (1766), and master-general of the ordnance, with a seat in the cabinet (1782–95). He defended the action of the American colonies in resisting the government, advocated the redress of grievances in Ireland, and pronounced in favor of universal suffrage.

Lennox, Charles. [Title, 4th Duke of Richmond and Lennox.] b. 1764; d. near Richmond, Canada, Aug. 20, 1819. English army officer and public official; nephew of Charles Lennox, 3rd Duke of Richmond and Lennox. He fought (1789) a duel with Frederick Augustus, Duke of York, son of King George III. He served (1790–1806) as member of Parliament, was a privy councilor (1807), and was lord lieutenant (1807–13) of Ireland. He is noted for the ball (1815) he gave at his residence at Brussels on the eve of the battle of Quatre Bras preceding the battle of Waterloo. He was in the suite of the Duke of Wellington at Waterloo. Appointed (1818) governor general of British North America, he died of hydrophobia in Canada the following year.

Lennox, Charles Gordon-. [Title, 5th Duke of Richmond.] b. Aug. 3, 1791; d. Oct. 21, 1860. English soldier and public official; son of Charles Lennox (1764–1819). A lieutenant (1810) in the dragoons, he served (1810–14) as aide-de-camp and assistant military secretary to Wellington in Portugal. He was a member of Parliament (1812–19), succeeded (1819) his father as Duke of Richmond, and served (1830–34) as postmaster general. As president (1845) of the Agricultural Protection League, he opposed the abolition of the Corn Laws.

Lennox, Charles Henry Gordon-. [Titles: 6th Duke of Richmond, 1st Duke of Gordon; in the Scottish peerage, Duke of Lennox; in the French peerage, Duc d'Aubigny.] b. at Richmond House, Whitehall, London, Feb. 27, 1818; d. at Gordon Castle, Banffshire, Scotland, Sept. 27, 1903. English Conservative politician. He was president of the board of trade (1867–68, 1885), lord president of the council (1874–80), and secretary for Scotland (1885–86). He was commonly designated as the Duke of Richmond and Gordon.

Lennox, Charlotte. [Maiden name, Ramsay.] b. at New York, 1720; d. in England, Jan. 4, 1804. English novelist and poet. She published The Female Quixote; or the Adventures of Arabella (1752) and Shakespear Illustrated (1753–54), and wrote The Sister, a comedy (to which Goldsmith wrote the epilogue), acted Feb. 18, 1769.

Lennox, Lord William Pitt. b. at Winestead Abbey, Yorkshire, England, Sept. 20, 1799; d. at London, Feb. 18, 1881. English soldier, writer, and journalist; fourth son of Charles Lennox (1764–1819), 4th Duke of Richmond. He wrote several novels, books on sports, and reminiscences.

Lenoir (lẹ.nōr'). Town in W central North Carolina, county seat of Caldwell County: manufactures of furniture. 7,888 (1950).

Lenoir (lẹ.nwär), Alexandre Albert. b. at Paris, 1801; d. there, Feb. 17, 1891. French architect and archaeologist; son of Marie Alexandre Lenoir.

Le Noir (lẹ nwär'), Elizabeth Anne. [Maiden name, Smart.] b. c1755; d. at Caversham, Berkshire, England, May 6, 1841. English novelist and poet; daughter of Christopher Smart. Author of Village Annals (1803), Village Anecdotes (1804), and Miscellaneous Poems (1825).

Lenoir (lẹ.nwär), (Jean Joseph) Étienne. b. at Mussy-la-Ville, Luxembourg, Jan. 12, 1822; d. at La Varenne-St.-Hilaire, France, Aug. 7, 1900. French inventor. He invented (1859) the so-called Lenoir gas engine, the first practical internal-combustion engine, and also devised (1864) an autographic telegraphy machine. Author of Recherches sur le tannage des cuirs par l'ozone (1883).

Lenoir, Marie Alexandre. b. at Paris, Dec. 26, 1761; d. there, June 11, 1839. French archaeologist. His works include Musée des monuments français (1804) and Histoire des arts en France, prouvée par les monuments (1810).

Lenoir City (lẹ.nōr'). City in E Tennessee, in Loudon County, on the Tennessee River: shipping point for hay and grain; manufactures of chairs, hosiery, and railroad cars. Established in 1840, it was incorporated in 1933. Pop. 5,159 (1950).

Lenore (lẹ.nōr'). Ballad (1773) by G. A. Bürger: so called from the name of its heroine. It is related to the English ballad The Suffolk Miracle, in that both are based on the dead rider motif (the story of the dead lover who returns from his grave on horseback to carry off his inconsolable true love is widespread in Europe).

Lenore. Lyrical ballad by Edgar Allan Poe, published in Poems (1831) under the title "A Paean," and subsequently revised.

Lenormand (lẹ.nôr.mäṅ), Henri René. b. at Paris, May 3, 1882; d. 1951. French playwright. He was author of Les Possédés (1909), Le Lâche (written c1916, produced 1925), Le Temps est un songe (1919; Eng. trans., Time is a Dream, 1923), Les Ratés (1920; Eng. trans., The Failures, 1923), Le Mangeur de Rêves (1922; Eng. trans., The Dream Doctor, 1928), and others. His plays combined a naturalist grimness, possibly attributable to his ill health, with a remarkable ability to probe the subconscious and unconscious motives of conduct. He was among the first to put the lessons of psychoanalysis to work on the stage.

Lenormand, Marie Anne Adélaïde. b. at Alençon, France, May 27, 1772; d. at Paris, June 25, 1843. French fortuneteller. She wrote a number of books on subjects connected with her profession.

Lenormant (lẹ.nôr.mäṅ), Charles. b. at Paris, June 1, 1802; d. at Athens, Nov. 24, 1859. French archaeologist and numismatist. His chief works are Trésor de numismatique et de glyptique (1836–50) and Élite des monuments céramo-graphiques (1844–57), both written in collaboration.

Lenormant, François. b. at Paris, Jan. 17, 1837; d. there, Dec. 10, 1883. French archaeologist and historian; son of Charles Lenormant. His works include Manuel d'histoire ancienne de l'Orient (1868), Les Sciences occultes en Asie (1874–75), and Les Origines de l'histoire d'après la Bible (1880–82).

Lenôtre (lẹ.nōtr), André. b. at Paris, March 12, 1613; d. at Versailles, France, Sept. 15, 1700. French architect and landscape gardener. His first work was the park and gardens of the Château de Vaux-le-Vicompte. He also designed the gardens and parks, wholly or in part, at Versailles, Rambouillet, St.-Cloud, Chantilly, Meudon, Fontainebleau, and the Château de la Reine de Navarre, among others. In England he laid out Kensington Gardens, St. James's Park, and Greenwich Park. At Rome he designed the gardens of the Villa Ludovisi, the Villa Pamphili, the Quirinal, the Vatican, and the Villa Albani.

Lenox (len'ọks). Town in W Massachusetts, in Berkshire County, near the Housatonic River, ab. 40 mi. NW of Springfield: summer resort. Tanglewood, the site of the writing of Tanglewood Tales by Nathaniel Hawthorne, and of the annual Berkshire Music Festival, is nearby. 3,627 (1950).

Lenox, James. b. at New York, Aug. 19, 1800; d. there, Feb. 17, 1880. American booklover and philanthropist. He was the founder and benefactor of the Lenox Library at New York City, which in 1895 combined with the Astor Library and the Tilden Trust in the New York Public Library.

Lenroot (len'röt), Katharine Fredrica. b. at Superior, Wis., March 8, 1891—. American administrator and social worker. She was deputy industrial commissioner in Wisconsin (1913) and joined (1915) the Children's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor. She served (1934–51) as chief of the Children's Bureau and was a delegate to many conferences on problems, both national and international, concerning children and social work. She was U.S. representative to the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) until 1952.

Lens (länṡ). [Ancient names, Lentium, Lendum.] Town in N France, in the department of Pas-de-Calais, on the Souchez and Deule rivers, ab. 9 mi. NE of Arras. It is in the heart of a coal-mining region, known for foundries. The Great Condé defeated (1648) the Spaniards here, and the town fell to France in 1659. During World War I Lens was almost completely destroyed, but it remained undamaged in World War II. 34,342 (1946).

Lent (lent). Christian religious season lasting for 40 days and ending on Easter Sunday. A period of penitence and sorrowing, it is marked, especially in the Roman Catholic Church, by abstention and partial fasting.

Lentelli (len.tāl'lē), Leo. b. at Bologna, Italy, Oct. 29, 1879—. American sculptor and painter, best known for his sculptures decorating public buildings. Among his better-known works are a figure of Christ and 16 angels for the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine, New York, sculpture for the façade of the International Building, Rockefeller Center, New York, and five figures for the façade of the San Francisco Public Library.

Lenten Stuffe (len'tẹn stuf). [Full title, Nashe's Lenten Stuffe, or the Praise of the Red Herring.] Pamphlet by Thomas Nashe, published in 1599. It is a lively description of Great Yarmouth, where he had found a safe shelter, with a panegyric on the red herring, its staple commodity.

Lenthall (len'tôl, -thôl), William. b. at Henley-on-Thames, England, June, 1591; d. Sept. 3, 1662. English lawyer and politician. He was a member of the Short Parliament and speaker of the Long Parliament (Nov. 3, 1640–April 20, 1653), a position which he filled with ability and success. He became famous from his refusal to tell Charles I whether or not any one of the "five members" was present when the king attempted to arrest them in the House of Commons. He was also speaker of the first Parliament summoned by Cromwell, and was a member of the Parliament of 1656. When the Long Parliament reassembled he resumed his office in it, and later contributed to bring about the Restoration.

Lentia (len'shi.a). Latin name of Linz, Austria.

Lentienses (len.shi.en'sēz). Ancient German tribe, a southern branch of the Alamanni, dwelling in the 3rd century in the region to the north of Lake Constance, where the Roman Emperor Constantius Chlorus led an expedition against them and defeated them in 298.

Lentini (len.tē'nē). [Ancient name, Leontini.] Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Siracusa, ab. 21 mi. NW of Syracuse: grain, rice, and wine culture; manufactures of tomato paste and building materials. One of the oldest Greek settlements in ancient Sicily, it was much contested among Syracusans, Athenians, and domestic rulers. It was devastated by the Carthaginians in 406 B.C., resettled from Syracuse, and again under various rulers until, after the second Punic War, it fell definitely to the Romans. In the Middle Ages, it was destroyed by the Arabs, and rebuilt by the Normans; in 1542, Charles V founded the nearby Carlentini. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II. Pop. of commune, 23,830 (1936); of town, 23,511 (1936).

Lentium (len'shi.um). An ancient name of Lens.

Lentulus (len'tụ.lus), Publius Cornelius. [Surnamed Sura.] Executed at Rome, Dec. 5, 63 B.C. Roman politician, praetor (75 B.C.), and conspirator with Catiline in 63 B.C. He planned to kill Cicero and burn Rome.

Lenz (lents). [Romansh, Lansch.] Village in SE Switzerland, in the canton of Grisons. Elevation, ab. 4,245 ft.; pop. 389 (1941).

Lenz, Heinrich Oskar. b. at Leipzig, Germany, April 13, 1848; d. at Soos, Austria, March 1, 1925. German geologist and African traveler. He accompanied the expedition of Paul Güssfeldt to West Africa (1874), and explored Morocco, Timbuktu, and Sénégal (1879). Foiled in his attempt to determine the watershed of the Nile and Congo basins (1885), he crossed the continent by way of Tanganyika and Nyasa lakes. He wrote Skizzen aus West-Afrika (1878) and Timbuktu: Reise durch Marokko, Sahara, und Sudan (1884).

Lenz, Jakob Michael Reinhold. b. at Sesswegen, in Livonia, Jan. 12, 1751; d. near Moscow, May 23 (or May 24), 1792. German poet of the "Sturm und Drang" period. He was at Strasbourg with Goethe, and went afterwards (1776) to Weimar, where Goethe and Wieland made much of him. He became insane in 1778. Two of his dramas, Der Hofmeister (1774) and Die Soldaten (1776), occupy a prominent place in the literature of his generation.

Lenz, Max. b. at Greifswald, Germany, June 13, 1850; d. at Berlin, April 6, 1932. German historian, follower of the historian Leopold von Ranke. Author of König Sigismund und Heinrich V von England (King Sigismund and King Henry V of England, 1874), Geschichte Bismarcks (History of Bismarck, 1902), and Napoleon (1905).

Lenz, Peter. [Religious name, Father Desiderius.] b. at Haigerloch, Germany, March 12, 1832; d. Jan. 28, 1928. German painter, architect, and sculptor, known for his religious frescoes in many churches of Europe. His early works were statues after mythological and classical subjects. He traveled to Rome, Egypt, and elsewhere, and then did a series of large frescoes in Italian, German, and Czechoslovakian churches.

Lenz (lenz), Sidney S. b. at Chicago, July 12, 1873—. American expert card player and writer, holder of national and international bridge and whist championships. Author of Lenz on Bridge (2 vols., 1926, 1927), How's Your Bridge (1929), Official System of Contract Bridge (1931), Cribbage (1946), and other books.

Lenzburg (lents'bụrk). Town in N Switzerland, in the canton of Aargau, on the Aa River. It has factories producing candied fruits, toys, and paper products. 4,266 (1941).

Lenzen (len'tsen). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, ab. 66 mi. N of Magdeburg. Pop. ab. 4,000.

Leo (lē'ō). Ancient zodiacal constellation, the Lion, containing Regulus, a star of magnitude $1\frac{1}{2}$, and two stars of the second magnitude. It is easily found, for the pointers of the Great Bear point S to its brightest star, distant about 45 degrees. Four stars in the body of Leo form a characteristic trapezium, and those about the neck and mane make a sickle. It is the fifth sign of the zodiac.

Leo I, Saint. [Called Leo the Great.] b. probably in Tuscany, Italy; d. at Rome, Nov. 10, 461. Pope from 440 to 461. He opposed the Pelagians and Manicheans, organized ecclesiastical administration, directed the Council of Chalcedon which condemned Monophysitism, and in 452 induced Attila to leave Italy without attacking Rome. In 445 he obtained an edict from Valentinian III that recognized the supremacy of the Roman see. His works include numerous sermons and letters.

Leo II, Saint. b. in Sicily; d. June 28, 683. Pope from 682 to 683. Elected a few days after the death of Saint Agatho (Jan. 10, 681), he was not consecrated till Aug. 17, 682, waiting for approval of the Byzantine emperor Constantine Pogonatus. He confirmed the acts of the Sixth Ecumenical Council (680–681), which had condemned Monothelitism.

Leo III, Saint. b. at Rome; d. June 12, 816. Pope from 795 to 816. He opposed the Adoptionist heresy of Felix of Urgel, and obtained (798) his anathematization. He crowned Charlemagne Roman emperor in 800 (Christmas, 799, then reckoned as the first of the new year), and was affirmed in his position as temporal head of Rome. By getting Charlemagne to come to Rome for the coronation, Leo brought the focus of the Empire back to the city.

Leo IV, Saint. b. at Rome; d. July 17, 855. Pope from 847 to 855. He fortified Rome against the Saracens and repaired damages from raids during reigns of earlier popes.

Leo V. b. at Priapi, Italy. Pope in 903. After two months on the papal throne, he was ejected and imprisoned by the Cardinal Christopher, who thereupon himself took the papal chair, but was soon displaced by Sergius III. The exact circumstances of Leo V's death are not known; some accounts have it that both he and Christopher were put to death by Sergius III, but no documentary proof of this can be obtained.

Leo VI. b. at Rome. Pope from May to December, 928. Very little is known about this Pope: the date of his death and even the place of his burial have never been definitely established.

Leo VII. b. at Rome; d. July 13, 939. Pope from 936 to 939. He sought to establish peace between Alberic of Rome and Hugo, king of Italy, and was, with the aid of Abbot Odo of Cluny, at least temporarily successful.

Leo VIII. b. at Rome; d. March 1, 965. Pope from 963 to 965. Illegally elected after the deposition of John XII by Emperor Otto I, he disputed the papal throne with Benedict V.

Leo IX, Saint. [Original name, Bruno.] b. in Alsace, June 21, 1002; d. at Rome, April 19, 1054. Pope from 1049 to 1054. He undertook ecclesiastical reform, condemning simony and clerical incontinence. He was defeated by the Normans near Civitella, June 18, 1053, and was held in captivity for nine months.

Leo X. [Original name, Giovanni de' Medici.] b. at Florence, Dec. 11, 1475; d. at Rome, Dec. 1, 1521. Pope from 1513 to 1521; second son of Lorenzo de' Medici (Lorenzo the Magnificent). He expelled the petty tyrants from the ecclesiastical states, added Perugia, Sinigaglia, and Fermo to the domains of the church, and restored Parma and Piacenza to the holy see. During his pontificate the Reformation began with Luther's protest against the sale of indulgences in 1517; he excommunicated Luther in 1521. He honored Henry VIII of England, author of a pamphlet against Luther, with the title Fidei Defensor (Defender of the Faith). He was a liberal patron of art and literature.

Leo XI. [Original name, Alessandro de' Medici.] b. at Florence, 1535; d. at Rome, April 27, 1605. Pope in 1605. He was a bitter opponent of nepotism.

Leo XII. [Original name, Annibale Francesco Clemente Melchiore Girolamo Nicola della Genga.] b. near Spoleto, Italy, Aug. 22, 1760; d. at Rome, Feb. 10, 1829. Pope from 1823 to 1829. An efficient administrator of ecclesiastical business, he lacked insight into temporal affairs of the day, especially in the papal states, and followed a policy of severe repression.

Leo XIII. [Original name, Gioacchino Vincenzo Raffaele Luigi Pecci.] b. at Carpineto, near Anagni, Italy, March 2, 1810; d. at Rome, July 20, 1903. Pope from 1878 to 1903. He was elected successor of Pius IX on Feb. 20, 1878. An energetic leader in both ecclesiastical and social reform, he wrote a great number of letters to the universal church, among them the famous encyclical Rerum Novarum (1891), on the condition of the working classes. For this and similar documents he was unjustly criticized by conservative Christians. However, he is now generally recognized as one of the great popes of the modern era. He persistently fought the Italian government, maintaining himself as the "prisoner of the Vatican."

Leo I (of the Byzantine Empire). [Called Leo the Thracian (thrā'shan), Leo the Great, Leo the Butcher.] b. in Thrace, c400; d. Feb. 3, 474. Byzantine emperor (457–474). His army under Anthemius defeated (c466) the Huns at Sardica. He afterward planned with Anthemius, who had in the meantime been elected emperor of Rome, a joint attack on Genseric in Africa, which failed through the lack of care shown by Leo's brother-in-law Basiliscus. Leo took the opportunity to have Aspar, commander of the guards, who had helped in obtaining his election, executed for treason in 471. He was called Leo the Great by the Orthodox Christians, but the Arians called him, because of his violent suppression of them, Makelles (the Butcher).

Leo II (of the Byzantine Empire). Byzantine emperor (474); grandson of Leo I, associated with him on the throne for a few months.

Leo III (of the Byzantine Empire). [Called Leo the Isaurian (ī.sô'ri.an).] b. at Germanicia, in Armenia Minor, c680; d. June 18, 741. Byzantine emperor (717–741). He successfully defended (717) Constantinople against the Arabs, and later campaigned (726–739) against them, finally defeating them at the decisive battle of Acroïnum (739). He modernized the laws (unrevised since the time of Justinian I) with the publication of a new code in Greek, the Ecloga (739). Under Leo there began the long Iconoclastic struggle. He forbade (726) the veneration of images, and their removal caused riots, resignations, and a schism with the West. The exarchate of Ravenna revolted (727) and eventually remained apart from the empire. Revolts were, however, suppressed elsewhere in Italy and in Greece.

Leo IV (of the Byzantine Empire). [Called Leo the Khazar.] b. c750; d. 780. Byzantine emperor (775–780); son of Constantine V and a Khazar princess. He maintained the policies of his predecessors in defending the empire against Arab and Bulgar encroachment, and in supporting the Iconoclasts.

Leo V (of the Byzantine Empire). [Called Leo the Armenian (är.mē'ni.an, -mēn'yan).] Killed at Constantinople, 820. Byzantine emperor (813–820). A general under Michael I, he usurped the throne and, continuing the campaigns that had brought him to power, defeated the Bulgarians in 814 and 815. He was assassinated by a group of conspirators.

Leo VI (of the Byzantine Empire). [Called Leo the Wise, Leo the Philosopher.] b. sometime before 866; d. 912. Byzantine emperor (886–912); legally son of Basil I, though actually the son of Michael III and Eudocia, who married Basil, Michael's murderer. He was noted for his scholarly interests. He issued the Basilica, a Greek digest, begun by Basil I, of the Latin Justinian Code; it supplanted the Justinian law in the East. He was the author of poetry, and of Orations dealing mainly with matters of theology. During his reign the Bulgars waged (889–897) a successful war against the empire, and the Moslems caused serious losses at Thessalonica (904) and Sicily (907). Leo was the cause of a long ecclesiastical dispute when his first three marriages (two being the limit allowed in the Greek Church) failed to produce an heir. He persisted despite the opposition of the church and married a fourth time, at last begetting a son, Constantine VII (Constantine Porphyrogenitus).

Leo (lā'ō), Friedrich. b. at Regenwalde, Germany, July 10, 1851; d. at Göttingen, Germany, Jan. 15, 1914. German classicist, one of the leading Latinists of his day. Author of Plautinische Forschungen (Studies in Plautus, 1895) and Geschichte der römischen Literatur (History of Roman Literature, 1913).

Leo, Heinrich. b. at Rudolstadt, Germany, March 19, 1799; d. at Halle, Germany, April 24, 1878. German historian. His work was colored by extreme reaction, and he wrote always from the standpoint of a supporter of the Prussian monarchy.

Leo, Leonardo. [Full name, Lionardo (not Leonardo) Oronzo Salvatore de Leo.] b. at San Vito degli Schiavi, Italy, Aug. 9, 1694; d. at Naples, Italy, Oct. 31, 1744. Italian composer and professor of music. He was the author of nearly 50 operas (among them Sofonisba, 1718), dramatic cantatas, about 100 sacred compositions, and other works. Among his sacred works is a celebrated Miserere composed in 1739, for which he received a pension from the Duke of Savoy.

Leo Africanus (lē'ō af.ri.kā'nus). [Original name, al-Hassan ibn-Mohammed; name assumed on conversion to Christianity, Johannes Leo.] d. after 1526. Moorish geographer and traveler, author of a description of Africa (published in Italian in 1588). In the course of his travels he was captured (c1520) by pirates and sent as a slave to Rome. Here he learned Italian and Latin and was converted by Pope Leo X to Christianity.

Leoben (lā.ō'bẹn). City in E Austria, in Styria province, on the Mur River ab. 28 mi. NW of Graz. It is the center of the lignite-mining district of upper Styria and has a mining school. Here, on April 18, 1797, Napoleon I signed a provisional treaty with Austria, secretly agreeing to give to Austria the greater part of the mainland territory of Venice in return for the Netherlands. The agreement was modified by the peace of Campo Formio. 35,319 (1951).

Leobschütz (lā'op.shüts). German name of Głubczyce.

Léocadie (lā.ō.kȧ.dē). Lyrical drama (1824) by Scribe and Mélesville, music by Daniel Auber.

Leochares (lẹ.ok'ạ.rēz). fl. about the middle of the 4th century B.C. Athenian sculptor, a pupil of Scopas and associated with him on the mausoleum of Halicarnassus. He is probably represented by the Ganymede and eagle of the Vatican, supposed to be a copy of his celebrated work.

Leodium (lẹ.ō'di.um). Latin name of Liége, city.

Leofric (lẹ.of'rik). [Latin, Leuricus; title, Earl of Mercia.] d. at what is now Bromley, Staffordshire, England, Aug. 31, 1057. Earl of Mercia; son of Leofwine, ealdorman of the Hwiccas. He was a powerful nobleman who shared with the earls Godwin and Siward the chief influence in the kingdom during the reigns of Hardicanute and Edward the Confessor. During the quarrel between Edward the Confessor and Earl Godwin (1051) Leofric used his good offices to mediate their differences. His wife was Godiva (Godgifu), subject of the well-known legend.

Leofric. d. Feb. 10, 1072. English prelate, appointed bishop of Devonshire and Cornwall in 1046.

Leofwine (lẹ.of'wi.nẹ). Killed at the battle of Hastings, Oct. 14, 1066. Younger son of Earl Godwin.

Leo Hunter (lē'ō hun'tėr), Mrs. See Hunter, Mrs. Leo.

Leoline (lē'ō.lin), Sir. Character in Samuel Taylor Coleridge's Christabel.

Leo Minor (lē'ō mī'nọr). Constellation between Leo and the Great Bear, first introduced in 1690 by Hevelius.

Leominster (lem'stėr, lem'in.stėr). Municipal borough and market town in W England, in Herefordshire, on the river Lugg, ab. 12 mi. N of Hereford, ab. 148 mi. NW of London by rail. The town grew up around a 7th-century monastery. 6,289 (1951).

Leominster (lem'in.stėr). City in N Massachusetts, in Worcester County, on the Nashua River ab. 38 mi. NW of Boston: manufactures of plastics, wool textiles, toys, furniture, and paper boxes. It was made a town in 1741, and was incorporated as a city in 1915. Pop. 24,075 (1950).

León (lā.ōn'). See also Cotopaxi, province.

León. [Full name, León de los Aldamas.] City in C Mexico, in Guanajuato state, on the Torbio River ab. 190 mi. NW of Mexico City: manufactures of leather, shoes, pottery, and textiles. Elevation, ab. 6,180 ft.; pop. 74,155 (1940), 140,000 (1950).

León. Department in W Nicaragua, bounded on the S by the Pacific Ocean. Capital, León; area, ab. 2,355 sq.mi.; pop. 124,189 (1950).

León. City in W Nicaragua, capital of the department of León: market center for farm products; site of a cathedral, and seat of the national university. Founded on Lake Managua in 1525, it was removed to its present site in 1610, after the old town was destroyed by an earthquake. 31,008 (1950).

León. Region and former kingdom in NW Spain, bounded by Asturias on the N, Old Castile on the E, Estremadura on the S, and Portugal and Galicia on the W. The surface is generally mountainous. It comprised the area of what are now the provinces of León, Zamora, and Salamanca. The name Kingdom of León was given to the Asturian dominions early in the 10th century. León was united with Castile in 1037, separated in 1157, and finally reunited in 1230.

León. Province in NW Spain, bounded by Oviedo on the N, Santander and Palencia on the E, Valladolid on the SE, Zamora on the S, and Orense and Lugo on the W. A large part of the surface is mountainous. Forestry and agriculture are the principal occupations. Capital, León; area, ab. 5,433 sq. mi.; pop. 540,981 (1950).

León. City in NW Spain, the capital of the province of León, and former capital of the kingdom of León, situated at the confluence of the Torio and Bernesga rivers, ab. 85 mi. NW of Valladolid: named after the Roman Legio (legion) Septima Gemina, which was long stationed here. It has a grain and livestock trade, leather, linen, and lumber industries, and distilleries. The old town is surrounded by walls, and has numerous old churches and palaces. The Romanesque cathedral, one of the finest in Spain, dates from the 13th century; it is noted for its sculptured doors. A Roman garrison town in ancient times, it became in the 10th century the capital of the kingdom of León; it was in Moorish hands several times during the 8th, 9th, and 10th centuries. 54,287 (1950).

Leon (lē'ọn). Character in John Fletcher's Rule a Wife and Have a Wife.

Léon (lā.ôn). In Beaumarchais's La Mère coupable, the supposed son of Count Almaviva; actually the son of the countess and Chérubin, her page.

Leon (lẹ.on'), Daniel De. See De Leon, Daniel.

León (lā.ōn'), Juan Ponce de. See Ponce de León, Juan.

León, Luis Ponce de. See Ponce de León, Luis.

León, Ricardo. b. at Málaga, Spain, 1877; d. 1943. Spanish novelist and essayist. He wrote under the influence of the mystics, the picaresque literature, and Cervantes. His defense of tradition made him rather unpopular with the generation of 1898. His best novel, Casta de hidalgos (1908; Eng. trans., A Son of the Hidalgos, 1921), enjoyed considerable success abroad. Alcalá de los Zegríes (1909) and El Amor de los amores (1910) are two of his outstanding works.

Leonard (len'ạrd), Harry Ward. b. at Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 8, 1861; d. at New York, Feb. 18, 1915. American electrical inventor, notable for the Ward Leonard system of motor control (patented 1891). He was associated (1884) with Thomas A. Edison in introducing the central-station system of electrical control in major cities, was superintendent (1888–89) of the Western Electric Light Company at Chicago, and general manager (1889–94) for the U.S. and Canada of the light and power departments of the Edison General Electric Company. He established (1894) the Ward Leonard Electric Company at Bronxville, N.Y. He was the inventor of the first electric train-lighting system (1889), an electric elevator-control device (1892), the double-arm circuit breaker (1902), and a system of multiple-voltage motor control (1892).

Leonard, Sterling Andrus. b. at National City, Calif., April 23, 1888; d. May 15, 1931. American educator. Author of English Composition as a Social Problem (1917), Essential Principles of Teaching Reading and Literature (1922), General Language (1925), and The Doctrine of Correctness in English Usage, 1700–1800 (1928).

Leonard, William Ellery. b. at Plainfield, N.J., Jan. 25, 1876; d. at Madison, Wis., May 2, 1944. American writer and professor, known for his poetry. He was a teacher (1906 et seq.) with professorial rank from 1926) of English at Wisconsin. His books of poetry include Sonnets and Poems (1906), The Poet of Galilee (1909), The Lynching Bee and Other Poems (1920), Two Lives (1925), and A Son of Earth (1928). His plays include Glory of the Morning (1912). He was the author of Byron and Byronism in America and Lucretius, the Man, the Poet, the Times, and he was a translator of Beowulf, and of the works of Lucretius and Empedocles. His autobiography, The Locomotive-God (1927), explains the curious phobia that forced him to confine his world to the area between home and campus.

Leonardo da Pisa (lā.ō.när'dō dä pē'sä). [Also: Leonardo Pisano, Leonardo Fibonacci.] b. at Pisa, Italy, c1170; d. after 1240. Italian mathematician, the greatest in the Christian world of the Middle Ages. He studied Greek and Arabic mathematics and wrote treatises on the application of algebra to geometry. He is known also as Fibonacci (i.e., son or descendant of Bonacci), and the series of numbers $u_1 = 1, u_2 = 1, \ldots, u_{n+2} = u_n + u_{n+1}$, which he studied, are therefore known as "numbers of Fibonacci." He was an advocate of the adoption of Arabic notation. His most important books are Liber abaci (composed 1202) and Practica geometrica (written 1220). These were printed in 1857–62 in the two volumes of his Scritti. In 1225 he wrote two shorter works, Flos and Liber quadratorum.

Leonardo da Vinci (lā.ō.när'dō dä vēn'chē; Anglicized, le.när'dō dą vin'chi). See Vinci, Leonardo da.

Leonardo de Argensola (lā.ō.när'ᴛʜō dā är.ʜen.sō'lä). See Argensola.

Leonard Wood Memorial for the Eradication of Leprosy. [Also, American Leprosy Foundation.] Organization founded in 1927 for the purpose of conducting research in the treatment and prevention of leprosy. It maintains headquarters at New York, has a library of some 2,000 volumes on leprosy and the Philippines, and publishes the International Journal of Leprosy (quarterly).

Leonato (lē.ọ.nä'tō). Character in Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing, the governor of Messina and the uncle of Beatrice.

Leonatus (lē.ọ.nā'tus), Posthumus. See Posthumus Leonatus.

Leonberg (lā'on.berk). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Württemberg-Baden, American Zone, formerly in the free state of Württemberg, ab. 4 mi. W of Stuttgart: machine, tool, shoe, and ceramics manufactures. It has a 14th-century church, a 15th-century Rathaus (town hall), and a 16th-century castle. 12,430 (1950).

Leoncavallo (lā.ōn.kä.väl'lō), Ruggiero. b. at Naples, Italy, March 8, 1858; d. at Montecatini, Italy, Aug. 9, 1919. Italian operatic composer. His first opera, Chatterton, was composed at the age of 18. After some years of wandering, he returned to Italy with the plan of an operatic trilogy, the first part of which, I Medici (the only part written), he could not bring out till he had made his first success with I Pagliacci; the latter, produced at Milan in 1892, became one of the most popular of modern Italian operas. His La Bohème appeared in 1897, Zaza in 1900, Der Roland, written at the command of the German emperor, in 1904, and The Youth of Figaro in 1906. He wrote the librettos of all his operas.

Leonding (lā'on.ding). Town in N Austria, in the province of Upper Austria: a suburb of Linz, on the railroad line between Linz and Salzburg. 6,233 (1946).

Leone (lā.ō'nā), Monte. Mountain peak in the Valais Alps, near the Simplon Pass, on the border of Switzerland and Italy. Elevation, ab. 11,655 ft.

Leonforte (lā.ōn.fôr'tā). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Catania, in the interior of the island, ab. 40 mi. W of Catania. Predominantly an agricultural commune, it also has stone quarries and produces sulfur. Some damage was suffered during World War II by buildings of tourist interest, but repairs have been completed or are being carried out. Pop. of commune, 16,144 (1936); of town, 15,700 (1936).

Leonhard (lā'on.härt), Gustav. b. at Munich, Nov. 22, 1816; d. Dec. 27, 1878. German geologist and mineralogist; son of K. C. von Leonhard.

Leonhard, Karl Cäsar von. b. at Rumpenheim, near Hanau, Prussia, Germany, Sept. 12, 1779; d. at Heidelberg, Baden, Germany, Jan. 23, 1862. German geologist and mineralogist.

Leoni (lā.ō'nē), Francesca Bussa di. See Saint Frances of Rome.

Leoni, Leone. b. probably in the neighborhood of Arezzo, Italy, c1509; d. at Milan, Italy, July 22, 1590. Italian sculptor and medalist. He first appears at Venice associated with Titian and Pietro Aretino. In 1537 he met Benvenuto Cellini at Padua in competition for the medal of Bembo. Through the good will of Ferrante Gonzaga he entered the service of Charles V, and remained attached to the imperial household. Many of his works are in the Prado Museum at Madrid. He was assisted and succeeded by his son, Pompeo (d. 1610). They executed the bronze groups of Charles V and Philip II with their families in the Escorial.

Leonia (lę.ō'ni.ą). Suburban borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County. 7,378 (1950).

Leonidas (lę.on'i.dąs). Killed at Thermopylae, Greece, 480 B.C. Greek hero, king of Sparta (c490–480 B.C.), famous for his defense of the pass of Thermopylae against the Persian army of Xerxes I. He was slain in company with 300 Spartans and 700 Thespians when Ephialtes, a Malian, guided the Persians to the Greek rear.

Leonidas. Epic poem by Richard Glover, published in 1737.

Léonide (lā.o.nēd) or Léonid (lē'ọ.nid). See Berman, Léonide (or Léonid).

Leonine (lē'ọ.nīn). In Shakespeare's Pericles, the attendant of Dionysia, employed to murder Marina.

Leonine City. That part of the city of Rome which is W of the Tiber and N of Trastevere. It contains the Vatican, the Castle of Sant'Angelo, and the district between (known as the Borgo), and is enclosed within a separate line of walls. It was first fortified by Pope Leo IV.

Leonists (lē'ọ.nists). See Waldenses.

Leonnatus (lē.ọ.nā'tus). d. 322 B.C. General of Alexander the Great, one of the ablest of his officers. On Alexander's death, Leonnatus received the satrapy of Hellespontine Phrygia. He fell in battle against the Athenians and their allies while seeking to relieve Antipater who was blockaded in Lamia.

Leonnoys (lā.o.nwä). See Lyonesse.

Leonora (lē.ọ.nō'rą). Opera by William H. Fry, first performed at Philadelphia on June 4, 1845. It is credited by some as being the first American grand opera.

Leonora, A Story of the Five Towns. Second volume in the first "Five Towns" trilogy by Arnold Bennett. Published in 1903, it is a study of a middle-aged woman of the nouveau riche. The other novels in the trilogy are Anna of the Five Towns (1902) and Sacred and Profane Love (1905; revised ed., The Book of Carlotta, 1911).

Leonora Overtures (lā.ō.nō'rā). Four overtures by Ludwig van Beethoven for the opera Fidelio. Leonora No. 1 is said to have been written in 1807; Leonora No. 2 (1805) is a favorite concert piece; Leonora No. 3 (1806) is commonly performed between the acts of the opera. All of these are in C major. The Fidelio Overture (1814) in E major customarily prefaces the stage work.

Leonor de Guzman (lā.ō.nōr' dā göth.män'). Drama by George Henry Boker, published in 1853.

Léonore (lā.o.nôr). In Molière's École des maris, the sister of Isabelle. She has been brought up by Ariste, the brother of Sganarelle, on a system the reverse of that pursued by the latter with Isabelle.

Léonore ou L'Amour Conjugal (lā.o.nôr ō lą.mör kôṅ.zhü.gąl). Opera by Jean Nicolas Bouilly, music by Pierre Gaveaux, produced at the Paris Opéra-Comique on Feb. 19, 1798. The book was translated into Italian, composed by Ferdinando Paër, and produced at Dresden on Oct. 3, 1804. It was also translated into German by Joseph Sonnleithner (late in 1804) and composed by Ludwig von Beethoven as the opera finally called Fidelio.

Leonov (li.ô'nọf), Leonid Maksimovich. b. at Moscow, May 19, 1899—. Russian novelist and playwright. At the beginning of his literary career he was, like many of his gifted fellow writers, what Trotsky called a fellow traveler, but before long his allegiance to the new order became complete. In his early writings he was given to fantasy and stylistic experimentation, while the work of his maturity realistically reflects the successive phases of Soviet policy and history. There are English renderings of half a dozen of his novels, including the war tale The Capture of Velikoshumsk, translated as Chariot of Wrath (1946).

Leontes (lę.on'tēz). King of Sicily in Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale. His jealousy, unlike that of Othello, is willful and tyrannical. He is the Pandosto of Robert Greene's Pandosto, from which the play was taken.

Leontes. Ancient name of the Litani.

Leontini (lē.ọn.tī'nī). Ancient name of Lentini.

Leontius of Byzantium (lę.on'shi.us; bi.zan'shi.um). [Called Byzantinus or Scholasticus.] b. c485; d. c543. Byzantine monk and theological writer. He reputedly joined the Nestorians in Scythia but later accepted the teachings of the Council of Ephesus. He lived at Constantinople and Jerusalem, and probably Rome. Devoted to Aristotle, he is referred to as first of the Scholastics.

León y Gama (lā.ōn′ ē gä′mä), Antonio de. See Gama, Antonio León de.

Leopardi (lā.ō.pär′dē), Alessandro. b. in the second half of the 15th century; d. sometime before 1545. Venetian sculptor and architect. In 1487 he was banished from Venice for forgery, but he was recalled (c1490) to finish the Colleoni statue begun by Verrocchio; this he did in 1496. He signed his name on the girth of the saddle, and was called ever after "del Cavallo." He also made the pedestal of the statue.

Leopardi, Conte Giacomo. b. at Recanati, Italy, June 29, 1798; d. at Naples, Italy, June 14, 1837. Italian poet and philologist. From his youth sickly and deformed, he was educated at home, and devoted himself to the study of the Greek and Latin classics. He published in 1818 an ode to Italy, in which he lamented the political and intellectual degeneracy of his country, and which created a profound impression. Other odes in the same vein, notably one occasioned by Cardinal Mai's discovery of part of Cicero's De republica, shortly secured for him a place among the first lyric poets of Italy. He went in 1822 to Rome, where he pursued the study of philology. He afterward resided for short periods at Recanti, Bologna, Florence, Rome, and Naples. The first collected edition of his poems was published in 1824. A collection of miscellaneous prose essays was published in 1827 under the title of Operette morali.

Leopold (lē′ō.pōld; German, lā′o.polt). [Title, Prince of Anhalt-Dessau; called der Alte Dessauer, meaning "the Old Dessauer."] b. at Dessau, Germany, July 3, 1676; d. there, in April, 1747. Prussian field marshal. He distinguished himself at Höchstädt (1703), Blenheim (1704), Cassano (1705), Turin (1706), and other battles in the War of the Spanish Succession. He was made field marshal in 1712. He captured Rügen from the Swedes in 1715. In the War of the Austrian Succession, he gained the victories of Neustadt, Jägerndorf, and Kesselsdorf in 1745. He established, under Frederick William I, the basis of Prussian military power by his organization, under the strictest discipline, of the Prussian infantry.

Leopold. [Title, Prince of Bavaria; full name, Maximilian Joseph Maria Arnulf Leopold.] b. at Munich, Feb. 9, 1846; d. there, Sept. 30, 1930. German general; second son of Prince Regent Luitpold of Bavaria. In World War I, he was supreme commander on Germany's Eastern front (1916 et seq.).

Leopold I (of Belgium) (lē′ō.pōld). b. at Coburg, Germany, Dec. 16, 1790; d. at Laeken, near Brussels, Dec. 10, 1865. King of the Belgians (1831–65); youngest son of Francis Frederick, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Saalfeld. He married Princess Charlotte, daughter of George IV of England, in 1816, and after her death in 1817 lived in England until 1830. He refused the crown of Greece in 1830, and was elected king of the newly independent Belgians in 1831. He married Princess Louise, daughter of Louis Philippe of France, in 1832. He was noted as a diplomat and an adviser to other European kings and statesmen. His reign was peaceful, not even being disturbed by the Continent-wide troubles of 1848.

Leopold II (of Belgium). b. at Brussels, April 9, 1835; d. there, Dec. 17, 1909. King of the Belgians (1865–1909); son of Leopold I. Interested in colonial expansion in Africa, he founded in 1876 the International African Association. Henry M. Stanley explored the Congo River region for him; as a result the king formed the International Association of the Congo. The European conference on African problems (1884–85) recognized this organization and Leopold became owner, in his own name, of the independent Congo state. The tremendous fortune he obtained here was made possible by an exploitation of native labor unparalleled in modern history; the outcry against its cruelty resulted in an inquiry (1904) and the formal annexation (1908) by Belgium of the Congo. His wife, Henrietta Maria of Austria, whom he married in 1853 and who was well loved for her charities, died in 1902 and the resultant lawsuits over her will brought by Leopold's estranged daughter, Stéphanie, combined with Leopold's notoriously dissolute way of life, caused a revulsion of public feeling. His only son died in 1869 and he was succeeded by his nephew Albert I.

Leopold III (of Belgium). b. Nov. 3, 1901—. King of the Belgians (1934–51); son of Albert I and Elizabeth. He succeeded his father on Feb. 23, 1934. He married (Nov. 4, 1926) Princess Astrid of Sweden (killed in an automobile accident, Aug. 29, 1935), and then (1941) Marie Lilian Baels, created Princess de Réthy. He commanded the Belgian army in World War II and surrendered with his army to the Germans; he was held as a prisoner of war. On Sept. 20, 1944, the Belgian parliament elected as regent of the kingdom Prince Charles, Count of Flanders, the brother of the king. After the king's liberation, a law of July 19, 1945, provided that resumption of his constitutional powers should depend upon a majority vote in Parliament. His return was vigorously opposed by the French-speaking population of Belgium, who accused him of wartime collaboration with the Germans. In a referendum (1950) the king, supported principally by the Flemings, won the right to return, but his attempt to do so caused rioting in the cities throughout the country and he decided to abdicate in favor of his son Baudouin.

Leopold I (of the Holy Roman Empire). b. June 9, 1640; d. at Vienna, May 5, 1705. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (1658–1705); second son of Ferdinand III. He succeeded his father in the empire, in the hereditary Hapsburg dominions, and in Hungary in 1658. War broke out with the Turks in 1661, and lasted until 1664, when a victory of the imperial general Montecucculi, at Szentgotthárd (St. Gotthard), on the Rába River, secured the conclusion of a truce for 20 years. In 1672 the emperor joined Brandenburg in support of the Netherlands against Louis XIV of France. Peace was concluded in 1679 at Nijmegen, where the emperor was forced to cede Freiburg im Breisgau to France. In 1682 a second war broke out with the Turks, who were called in by the Hungarian magnates under Count Imre Thököly. The grand vizier Kara Mustapha invested (July 14, 1683) Vienna, which was defended by Rüdiger von Starhemberg. The siege was raised (Sept. 12, 1683) by John Sobieski, king of Poland, and Charles, duke of Lorraine. A victory by the imperial general Prince Eugene at Senta, in 1697, brought about the peace of Karlowitz in 1699. Through the claim of his family to the throne of Spain, vacated by the death of Charles II, he became involved in the War of the Spanish Succession, which was continued under his successors Joseph I and Charles VI.

Leopold II (of the Holy Roman Empire). b. at Vienna, May 5, 1747; d. March 1, 1792. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (1790–92); third son of Francis I and Maria Theresa. He was grand duke of Tuscany (1765–90) and succeeded his brother Joseph II as emperor in 1790. He formed (Feb. 7, 1792) an alliance with Prussia against revolutionary France, and died just as hostilities were about to begin.

Leopold II (of Tuscany). b. Oct. 3, 1797; d. in Bohemia, Jan. 29, 1870. Grand duke of Tuscany (1824–59); second son of the grand duke Ferdinand II. He granted in 1847 a liberal constitution, which, however, he abolished in 1852, when he realized that his allies, Austria (which had placed him on the throne again after he had fled during the revolution of 1848), the Pope, and the king of Naples, were all opposed to so liberal a document. He was expelled by the democratic party in 1859, and Tuscany was united with Sardinia.

Leopold (lā′ō.pôlt), Jan H. b. 1865; d. 1925. Dutch poet and classical scholar. He wrote fragile, mystic poetry of pantheistic tendency, such as Verzen (1913). He came to full development with Oinoi ena stalagmon and the epic Cheops (1915). He was the author of the essay Uit den hoin van Epicurus (From Epicure's Garden) and Stoische Wijsheid (Stoic Wisdom).

Leopold II (lē′ō.pōld), Lake. [French, Lac Léopold II.] Large lake in C Africa, in W Belgian Congo. It discharges into the Lukenie River, a tributary of the Kasai, which flows into the Congo. Discovered by Stanley in 1882, it was named for King Leopold II of Belgium. Area, ab. 900 sq. mi.

Leopold Bloom (blom). See Bloom, Leopold.

Leopold George Duncan Albert (lē′ō.pōld jôrj′ dung′-kan al′bert). [Title, Duke of Albany.] b. at Buckingham Palace, London, April 7, 1853; d. March 28, 1884

Youngest son of Queen Victoria, noted for his patronage of literature and education.

Leopoldovna (li.o.pôl'dọv.nạ), Anna. See Anna Leopoldovna.

Léopoldville (lē'ō.pōld.vil; French, lā.o.pold.vēl). Province of the Belgian Congo, in W central Africa. It is the westernmost of the six provinces of the Belgian Congo, bounded on the W by the Atlantic Ocean, on the N by French Equatorial Africa and Equator province, on the E by Kasai province, and on the S by Angola. Capital, Léopoldville; area, ab. 140,150 sq. mi.; pop. 2,445,401 (1949), including 14,062 Europeans.

Léopoldville. Capital of the province of Léopoldville and of the Belgian Congo, in W central Africa, on the S side of the Congo River just below Stanley Pool, and opposite Brazzaville, the capital of French Equatorial Africa. It was founded by Stanley in 1882. A railway has been constructed between Léopoldville and Matadi, ab. 230 mi. away. The river is navigable from Léopoldville to Stanleyville. Most of the big business firms and commercial establishments in the Belgian Congo, except the mining companies, maintain their headquarters here, and in recent years textile, metal, boatbuilding, cement, and consumer-goods industries have developed in the city. Léopoldville has a powerful radio station, and is a stop on international air routes. Pop. 160,304 (1949), including 8,044 Europeans.

Leopolis (lē.op'ō.lis). Latin name of Lvov.

Leosthenes (lē.os'thẹ.nēz). d. 323 B.C. Athenian general. He was commander of the combined Greek armies in the Lamian War, 323 B.C., defeating Antipater and forcing him to take refuge in Lamia, the siege of which city gave the war its name.

Leotychides (lē.ō.tik'i.dēz). d. at Tegea, Greece, c469 B.C. Spartan king (491–469 B.C.), victor at Mycale in 479 B.C. over the Persians.

Leovigild (lē.ō'vi.gild). King of the Visigoths in Spain (569–586). He annexed (c585) the Suevia kingdom and imparted a nationalistic feeling to both the Roman and the Gothic inhabitants of Spain. He was threatened by the rebellion of his son Hermenegild, who had become anti-Arian through his marriage to a Frankish princess, but was successful in subduing him (585).

Le Palais (lẹ pa.le). [Also, Palais.] Town in W France, in the department of Morbihan, the chief place on the island of Belle-Île-en-Mer, off the coast of Brittany, S of Quiberon. It has a port and a citadel, begun in the 16th century and reinforced by Vauban, now used as a penitentiary. 2,208 (1946).

Lepanto (lẹ.pan'tō; Italian, le'pän.tō). See Navpaktos.

Lepanto, Battle of. Naval victory gained Oct. 7, 1571, by the Italian and Spanish fleets, under Don John of Austria, over the Turks, west of Lepanto (Navpaktos). More than 500 ships of both sides were involved; of the nearly 300 Turkish vessels, only 40 galleys escaped. The European fleet was made up of Spanish (Cervantes lost his left hand in this fight), Venetian, Genoese (commanded by Gianandrea Doria), Papal (commanded by Marc Antonio Colonna), Sicilian, and Neapolitan ships. It was the greatest naval battle since Actium (31 B.C.), the last great battle between fleets of galleys, and the last of the Crusades. Turkish naval power never again after this battle achieved status sufficient to permit a threat to the maritime nations of Europe.

Lepanto, Gulf of. See Corinth, Gulf of.

Lepanto-Bontoc (lā.pän'tō.bôn.tôk'). Former inland province of Luzon, Philippine Islands: now part of Mountain Province.

Lepanto Igorot (lā.pän'tō ē.gō.rōt'). See Kankanai.

Lepaya (lye'pa.yạ). A Russian name of Liepaja.

Lepe (lā'pā), Diego de. b. in Spain, c1460; d. probably in Portugal, before 1515. Spanish navigator.

Lepelletier de Chambure (lẹ.pel.tyā dẹ shäṅ.bür), Auguste. See Chambure, Auguste Lepelletier de.

Le Perche (lẹ persh). See Perche.

Lepère (lẹ.per), Louis Auguste. b. at Paris, Nov. 30, 1849; d. at Domme, France, Nov. 20, 1918. French engraver and illustrator, who illustrated many travel books with woodcuts and engravings. A list of his works includes Moulin de la Galette, Autumn at Champagne, Roofs of St.-Severin, Fish Merchant, View of Jouy-de-Moutier, The Cité Seen from the Bridge of Arts, and illustrations for Goudeau's French Countryside, Montorgueil's Paris by Chance, and de Maupassant's Two Stories.

Le Perreux-sur-Marne (lẹ pe.rė.sür.märn). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, on the Marne River. It is an eastern suburb of Paris. 23,086 (1946).

Le Petit Andely (lẹ ptē.täṅ.dlē). See under Les Andelys.

Le Petit-Quevily (lẹ ptē.kẹ.vē.yē). [Also, Le Petit-Quevilly.] Town in NW France, in the department of Seine-Inférieure, on the Seine River, SW of Rouen. It has cotton spinning and weaving mills and a petroleum refinery. 19,953 (1946).

Lepidus (lep'i.dus), Marcus Aemilius. [Surnamed Porcina.] Roman consul (137 B.C.) and orator. He was sent into Spain during his consulship, and conducted an unsuccessful war against the Vaccaei.

Lepidus, Marcus Aemilius. d. c77 B.C. Roman politician; father of Lepidus the triumvir (d. 13 B.C.). He was consul in 78 B.C., and was defeated by Pompey and Catulus at Rome in 77 B.C. after the Senate had ordered him to a provincial post for attempting to alter Sulla's constitution.

Lepidus, Marcus Aemilius. d. 13 B.C. Roman politician, a member of the triumvirate with Augustus and Mark Antony in 43 B.C. He was deposed in 36.

Lépine (lā.pēn), Jacques Raphael. b. at Lyons, France, July 6, 1840; d. at Menton, France, Nov. 17, 1919. French physician. He worked on the physiology and pathology of the nervous system, on the physiology of secretion of the glands, and made studies of diabetes.

Lepini (lā.pē'nē), Monti. Italian name of the Volscian Mountains.

Le Play (lẹ ple), Pierre Guillaume Frédéric. b. at Honfleur, France, April 11, 1806; d. April 5, 1882. French engineer, economist, and sociologist, founder of the modern school of social economy in France. He founded the International Society of Social Economy, and various associations of workmen. Among the more important of his works are Les Ouvriers européens (1855), La Réforme sociale en France (1864), L'Organisation du travail (1870), Programme de gouvernement et d'organisation sociale (1880), La Constitution essentielle de l'humanité (1881), and L'École de la paix sociale (1882).

Le Plessis-Robinson (lẹ ple.sē.ro.baṅ.sôṅ). Town in N France, in the department of Seine. It is a southwestern residential suburb of Paris. 10,118 (1946).

Lepontii (lẹ.pon'shi.ī). Ancient Alpine people in Rhaetia, chiefly in what is now the canton of Ticino, Switzerland.

Lepontine Alps (lẹ.pon'tin, -tīn). [Italian, Alpi Lepontine.] That part of the Alps which extends from the Simplon Pass E to the Splügen Pass. It comprises the St. Gotthard, Ticino, and Adula Alps. Highest peak, Monte Leone (ab. 11,655 ft.).

Leporello (lā.pō.rel'lō; Anglicized, lep.ō.rel'ō). Lackey of Don Giovanni in Mozart's opera of that name (it is a bass part). He executes the perfidious orders of his master, sympathizes with his success, helps him out of scrapes, and is a physical and moral coward.

Le Portel (lẹ pôr.tel). Town in N France, in the department of Pas-de-Calais, on the English Channel. It is a southwestern suburb of Boulogne. It suffered damage in World War II. 8,131 (1946).

Le Pré-St.-Gervais (lẹ prā.saṅ.zher.ve). Town in N France, in the department of Seine. It is a northeastern suburb of Paris, and has diverse industries. 14,691 (1946).

Lepsius (lep'sẹ.ůs), Johannes. b. at Berlin, Dec. 15, 1858; d. Feb. 3, 1926. German Protestant theologian; son of Karl Richard Lepsius. He was active (1897 et seq.) as a publicist in behalf of the Armenian people.

Lepsius, Karl Richard. b. at Naumburg, Germany, Dec. 23, 1810; d. at Berlin, July 10, 1884. German Egyptologist and philologist. He conducted the Prussian expedition to Egypt (1842–46). In 1866 he found the Decree of Canopus, like the Rosetta Stone a trilingual inscription, in Greek and demotic and hieroglyphic Egyptian. Among his works is Denkmäler aus Ägypten und Äthiopien (Monuments of Egypt and Ethiopia, 1849–59).

Leptis Magna (lep'tis mag'nạ). [Also: Leptis, Neapolis; modern name, Lebda.] In ancient geography, a seaport in N Africa, on the Libyan coast just E of the present town of Homs. It was founded by the Phoenicians, and remained an important city under the Romans.

Lepus (lē'pus). Southern constellation, the Hare, recognized by the ancients, situated S of Orion and W of Canis Major. Its brightest star, of 2.7 magnitude, is in a line from the middle star of Orion's belt through the sword of Orion.

Le Puy (lẹ pwē). [Former name, Le Puy-en-Velay; medieval Latin names, Anicium, Podium.] City in S central France, the capital of the department of Haute-Loire, situated in mountainous surroundings between the Borne and Dolaizon rivers, SW of St.-Étienne. It is a picturesque old town, long famous for its lace manufactures. The Cathedral of Notre Dame, built in Romanesque style in the 12th century, combines elements of the architectural schools of Auvergne and Burgundy. The Church of Saint-Michel d'Aiguilhe dates back to the 11th century. The Musée Crozatier contains natural history and art collections. Elevation, ab. 2,075 ft.; pop. 22,705 (1946).

Le Queux (lẹ kū'), William Tufnell. b. at London, July 2, 1864; d. Oct. 13, 1927. English novelist and journalist. He reported the Balkan War (1912–13) for the Daily Mail. Author of Strange Tales of a Nihilist (1890), Guilty Bonds (1890), The Great White Queen (1896), The Day of Temptation (1897), The Eye of Istar (1897), England's Peril (1899), The Tickencote Treasure (1902), Secrets of the Foreign Office (1903), The Mask (1904), The Czar's Spy (1903), Confessions of a Ladies' Man (1905), Who Giveth This Woman? (1905), A Spider's Eye (1905), An Observer in the Near East (1907), Fatal Fingers (1912), The Hand of Allah (1914), German Spies in England (1915), Rasputin, the Rascal Monk (1920), Landru (1921), Things I Know (1923), Where the Desert Ends (1923), Hidden Hands (1925), The Fatal Face (1926), and Blackmailed (1927). His two fictional but highly realistic stories The Great War in England in 1897 (1894) and The Invasion of 1910 (1906) anticipated World War I.

Ler (lār). [Also, Lir.] In Old Irish mythology, the personification of the sea, and father of the sea god, Manannan mac Lir, or Manannan son of Ler (Lir is the genitive of Ler, but in translations is often mistakenly taken as nominative). See Llyr.

Le Raincy (lẹ raṅ.sē). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, NE of Paris. It is an industrial suburb. 12,397 (1946).

Lercara Friddi (ler.kä'rä frēd'dē). Town and commune in SW Italy, on the island of Sicily, in the province of Palermo, SE of Palermo, in a sulfur-mining region. Pop. of commune, 12,255 (1936); of town, 12,070 (1936).

Lerdo (ler'ŦHō). [Also, Ciudad Lerdo.] City in N Mexico, in the state of Durango, in the Laguna District. 9,349 (1940).

Lerdo de Tejada (ler'ŦHō dā tā.HÄ'ŦHÄ), Miguel. [Full name, Miguel Lerdo de Tejada y Correal.] b. at Veracruz, Mexico, 1814; d. at Mexico City, March 22, 1861. Mexican politician and author; brother of Sebastián Lerdo de Tejada. In 1856 he was Ignacio Comonfort's minister of the treasury, subsequently held other important offices, was a judge of the supreme court (1860–61) and was twice a presidential candidate. His best-known book is Apuntes históricos de la heroica ciudad de Vera Cruz (5 parts, 1850–55). He was responsible (1856) for the Lerdo Law curbing landholding privileges, especially of the clergy.

Lerdo de Tejada, Sebastián. [Full name, Sebastián Lerdo de Tejada y Correal.] b. at Jalapa, Mexico, April 25, 1825; d. at New York, April 21, 1889. Mexican statesman and jurist, president (1872–76) of Mexico; brother of Miguel Lerdo de Tejada. After serving (1855–57) as supreme court judge, he became the chief minister (1863–71) of Benito Juárez. Elected president (1867) of the supreme court, he became, by virtue of that office, president of Mexico on the death of Juárez (July 18, 1872). He was confirmed in the position by an election, and claimed to have been reëlected in 1876; but in November of that year he was driven from Mexico by the revolutionary army of Porfirio Díaz.

Lerici (lā'rē.chē). Town in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Liguria, in the province of Genova, on the Gulf of Spezia between La Spezia and Viareggio. It is a seaside resort, with a 16th-century castle. It also has a silver and lead foundry. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II. 12,217 (1936).

Lérida (lā'rē.ŦHä). Province in NE Spain, bounded by France and Andorra on the N, Gerona and Barcelona on the E, Tarragona on the SE and S, and Zaragoza and Huesca on the W: part of the region of Catalonia. The N part of the province is mountainous, including the high peaks of the Pyrenees; grain is grown in the S part. Capital, Lérida; area, ab. 4,656 sq. mi.; pop. 326,189 (1950).

Lérida. [Ancient name, Ilerda.] City in NE Spain, the capital of the province of Lérida, on the Segre River ab. 80 mi. W of Barcelona. It has woolen, cotton, and silk-textile industries, leather and glass factories, and an agricultural trade. The seat of a bishopric, it has a Romanesque cathedral (dating from 1203). Julius Caesar defeated the partisans of Pompey under Afranius and Petreius here in 49 B.C. In the Thirty Years' War and in the Peninsular War it was much contested between the Spaniards and the French (it was occupied by the latter in 1707 and in 1810). Pop. 52,122 (1950).

Lerin (le'rēn). Serbian name of Florina, town.

Lérins (lā.raṅs), Îles de. Group of small islands in SE France, in the Mediterranean, off Cannes. The chief islands are St.-Honorat and Ste.-Marguerite. A noted monastery established c400 A.D. by Saint Honoratius is on the island of St.-Honorat. Total area, ab. 1 sq. mi.

Lerma (ler'mä). [Also, Zacoloacan.] River in SW Mexico, in the state of Jalisco, known as the Santiago below Lake Chapala. Length, with the Santiago, ab. 624 mi.

Lermontov (ler'mọn.tọf), Mikhail Yuryevich. [Sometimes called the Poet of the Caucasus.] b. at Moscow, Oct. 15, 1814; killed (in a duel) in the Caucasus, July 27, 1841. Russian poet and novelist. An officer of the guards, he wrote (1837) a vigorous poem of protest at the death of Pushkin in a duel. The poem, addressed to the czar, was considered so impertinent that Lermontov was expelled from the guards and assigned to active duty in the Caucasus. There he found himself in a country he loved, and his subsequent poetry reflects his feeling. His best-known works are the novel A Hero of Our Time, and the poems Song of the Czar Ivan Vasilievich, Ismail-Bey, and The Demon.

Lerna (lėr.nạ). In ancient geography, a marshy region in Argolis, Greece, S of Argos. It is notable in Greek mythology as the dwelling place of the Lernean hydra, killed by Hercules.

Lerner (lėr'nėr), Max. b. at or near Minsk, Russia, Dec. 20, 1902—. American editor and writer on political science and current affairs. He was assistant editor (1927 et seq.) and managing editor of the Encyclopedia of Social Sciences, editor (1936–38) of The Nation, editorial director (1943–49) of the New York newspaper PM (which later was reorganized as the Star), and became (1949) columnist for the New York Post. Author of It Is Later Than You Think (1938), Ideas Are Weapons (1939), Ideas for the Ice Age (1941), The Mind and Faith of Justice Holmes (1943), Public Journal (1945), and Actions and Passions (1949).

Leros (lē'ros). [Also, Lero (le'rō).] Small island of the Dodecanese, SE Greece, in the nomos (department) of Kalymnos, in the Aegean Sea ab. 32 mi. S of Samos, N of Kalymnos. Area, ab. 28 sq. mi.; pop. 13,657 (1936).

Le Rossignol (lẹ ros'ig.nol; French, lẹ ro.sē.nyol), James Edward. b. at Quebec, Canada, Oct. 24, 1866—. American economist and educator. Author of Monopolies, Past and Present (1901), Orthodox Socialism (1907), What Is Socialism? (1921), Economics for Everyman (1923), From Marx to Stalin (1940), Inflation and How to Scotch It (1943), and other books.

Le Roux (lẹ rōō), Henri. [Known as Hugues.] b. at Le Havre, France, 1860; d. at Paris, 1925. French journalist, traveler, and man of letters. Author of L'Amour aux États-Unis (1908) and works of a similar nature, and of such studies as La France et la guerre (1917).

Leroux (lẹ.rö), Pierre. b. near Paris, April 17, 1797; d. there, April 12, 1871. French philosophical writer, journalist, and socialist. He was a leader of the Humanitarians, and influenced George Sand, with whom he founded (1841) the Revue Indépendante. A member of the extreme Socialist group in the Constituent Assembly (1848) and the Legislative Assembly (1849), and an opponent of Napoleon III's coup d'état, he spent the years from 1851 to 1859 in exile. His chief work is De l'humanité (1840).

Leroux, Xavier Henri Napoléon. b. at Velletri, Italy, Oct. 11, 1863; d. at Paris, Feb. 2, 1919. French composer. In 1885 he won the Prix de Rome with the cantata Endymion. Among his works are operas, including La Reine Fiamette (1903), Théodora (1906), and Le Chemineau (1907), a mass, orchestral pieces, and many songs.

Le Roy (lẹ roi′, lē′ roi). Village in W New York, in Genesee County, in a farming region: manufactures include gelatin products and farm machinery. The stringless bean was first developed here. 4,721 (1950).

Leroy (lē.roi′), Barry. See Barry Leroy.

Leroy-Beaulieu (lẹ.rwȧ.bō.lyē), (Henri Jean Baptiste) Anatole. b. at Lisieux, France, Feb. 12, 1842; d. at Paris, June 15, 1912. French writer, an expert on Russian and Near Eastern questions; brother of Pierre Paul Leroy-Beaulieu. Author of L'Empire des Tsars et des Russes (2 vols., 1881–82), Les Juifs et l'antisémitisme (1893), Christianisme et démocratie (1905), and other works.

Leroy-Beaulieu, Pierre Paul. b. at Saumur, France, Dec. 9, 1843; d. at Paris, Dec. 9, 1916. French political economist, an opponent of socialism and of protection; brother of Anatole Leroy-Beaulieu. In 1872 he founded L'Économiste français. Among his works are De l'état social et intellectuel des populations ouvrières (1868), De la colonisation chez les peuples modernes (1873), Traité de la science des finances (2nd ed., 1879), Essai sur la répartition des richesses (1880), La Collectivisme (1884), L'Algérie et la Tunisie (1887), Précis d'économie politique (1888), L'État moderne et ses fonctions (1889), Traité théorique et pratique d'économie politique (1895), Le Sahara, le Soudan et les chemins de fer transsahariens (1904), and L'Art de placer et gérer sa fortune (1906).

Lerroux (le.rō′), Alejandro. b. in Córdoba, Spain, 1864; d. at Madrid, June 27, 1949. Spanish politician and journalist. After 1901 he was repeatedly a member of the Cortes and became leader of the Radical Party, which originated about 1904 as a demagogic and violently anticlerical party. Lerroux became wealthy and had a successful career as journalist and public speaker. When the fall of the monarchy opened opportunities for republican politicians, he obtained ministerial posts in the provisional republican government and was acting minister of war under Azaña, rising to the prime ministership (September, December, 1933; March, October, 1934; April, 1935). He was not reëlected in 1936, when the vote went to the Popular Front and radical left, and so-called Lerrouxism, based on expediency and compromise, no longer held any appeal to the people.

Lersch (lersh), Heinrich. b. at München-Gladbach, Germany, Sept. 12, 1889; d. at Bodendorf, Germany, June 19, 1936. German proletarian poet and novelist. As a journeyman brazier he traveled throughout Western Europe. He was severely wounded in World War I, from which he returned convinced that the hope of German socialism lay in a classless nationalism. His collection Mensch im Eisen (1924) reflects the conviction (which is the leitmotiv of his extensive lyrical production) that there is beauty in a machine and pride in the worker's mastery of it.

Lerwick (lėr′wik, ler′ik). Police burgh and seaport in N Scotland, county seat of Shetland County, in the Shetland Islands, on the E coast of the island of Mainland, ab. 200 mi. N of Aberdeen. Herring fisheries are the chief industry of the town, but have declined somewhat in importance in recent years. 5,918 (est. 1948).

Léry (lā.rē), Jean de. b. at La Margelle, in Burgundy, France, 1534; d. at Bern, Switzerland, 1611. French Protestant minister and author.

Le Sage or Lesage (lẹ.sȧzh), Alain René. b. at Sarzeau, Morbihan, France, May 8, 1668; d. at Boulogne, France, Nov. 17, 1747. French novelist and dramatist. He studied philosophy and law at Paris, and was enrolled as a parliamentary advocate, but soon devoted himself to literature. His chief work is the novel Gil Blas de Santillane (1715–35, a work picaresque in form but actually a novel of realism rather than of romantic adventure. Among his other works are the novel Le Diable boiteux (1707); the plays Le Point d'honneur (from the Spanish of Rojas, 1702), Crispin rival de son maître (1707), Turcaret (1708), and others; the short works La Valise trouvée and Une Journée des Parques; and Guzman d'Alfarache, Estévanille Gonzales, Le Bachelier de Salamanque, and Vie et aventures de M. de Beauchêne, romances all more or less borrowed from Spanish originals. He also translated Boiardo's Orlando innamorato, and wrote farces for the théâtre de la foire (the musical entertainment presented in booths at fairs).

Les Andelys (lā zäṅ.dlē). Town in N France, in the department of Eure, on the Seine River ab. 19 mi. SE of Rouen. It is a small river port consisting of Le Grand Andely and Le Petit Andely. It has churches dating from the 13th, 14th, and 16th centuries. The Château Gaillard was founded by Richard I of England (Richard the Lion-Hearted) in 1196, and was dismantled by order of Henry IV of France in 1603. The painter Nicholas Poussin was born nearby. The part of the town called Le Grand Andely, including the Church of Notre Dame and the Hôtel du Grand Cerf, was about 80 percent destroyed in World War II. 5,238 (1946).

Lesath (lẹ.sath′). Third-magnitude star ν Scorpii, at the end of the tail of the constellation.

Les Bauges (lā bōzh). Plateau in the departments of Savoie and Haute-Savoie, France, between Chambéry and the Lake of Annecy.

Les Baux (lā bō). Small town in SE France, in Bouches-du-Rhône department, near Arles, remarkable for its castle and stone buildings. It was the capital of a powerful medieval countship. Bauxite (which derives its name from this place) is still mined nearby. Formerly a town of several thousand inhabitants, it had a population of only 151 in 1946.

Lesbia (lez′bi.ạ). Name by which Clodia, the favorite of Catullus, is referred to in his poems.

Lesbian Adventures (lez′bi.ạn), The. [Also, Lesbiaca (lez′bi.ạ.kạ).] Greek romance, attributed to Longus.

Lesbos (lez′bos). Nomos (department) in E Greece, composed of the Aegean islands of Lesbos, Lemnos, and Hagios Eustratios, with minor adjacent islets. Capital, Mytilene; area, ab. 836 sq. mi.; pop. 154,683 (1951).

Lesbos. [Also: Lesvos, Mytilene, Mytilini; Italian, Metelino; Turkish Midillü.] Island in the Aegean Sea, belonging to Greece, W of Asia Minor. It is the chief island in the nomos (department) of Lesbos. The surface is mountainous, and the soil is fertile. Colonized by Aeolians, it was celebrated in ancient times as a seat of literature. Between the 8th and 4th centuries B.C. Lesbos was the home of many notable persons including Sappho, Arion, Alcaeus, Terpander, Theophrastus, Pittacus, and Hellanicus. The island was acquired by the Turks in 1462, and by Greece in 1913. Chief town, Mytilene; area, ab. 630 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 134,000 (1940).

Lescaut (les.kō), Manon. See Manon Lescaut.

Les Cayes (lā kā′; French, lā kȧy′). See Cayes.

Lescaze (les.käz′), William. b. at Geneva, Switzerland, March 27, 1896—. American architect and designer in America, known for his low-cost housing projects. Educated at Geneva and Zurich, he arrived in the U.S. in 1920, and designed the first completely air-conditioned skyscraper in the U.S. (Philadelphia Savings Fund Society Building) and the first residence to use glass brick. The Williamsburg Houses, Elliott Houses (New York), and Woods End Houses (New Jersey) are among the housing projects he has designed.

Les Cévennes (lā sā.ven). See Cévennes.

Lesches (les′kēz) or Lescheus (les′kūs). b. at Pyrrha, near Mytilene; fl. in the 7th century B.C. One of the so-called Greek cyclic poets, reputed author of a lost poem entitled The Little Iliad, in four books. It was designed to be a sequel to the Iliad of Homer, and related the events which followed the death of Hector, namely, the fate of Ajax, the exploits of Ulysses, and the fall of Troy.

Leschetitzky (lesh.ẹ.tit′skē), Teodor. b. at Lancut, Poland, June 22, 1830; d. at Dresden, Germany, Nov. 14, 1915 Polish pianist, teacher, and composer. He was for some time professor in the Conservatory at St. Petersburg, but went in 1878 to Vienna. Among his pupils were Paderewski and Ossip Gabrilówitsch.

Lescot (les.kō), Élie. b. 1883—. Haitian lawyer, diplomat, and statesman, president (1941–46) of Haiti. He was minister to the U.S. (1937–41). He served as minister plenipotentiary to the Dominican Republic, settling the boundary dispute between Haiti and that country. He was president (April 15, 1941) until deposed (Jan. 11, 1946) by an army coup led by Major Frank Levaud. Exiled (Jan. 14), he went to Miami, Fla., then to Canada.

Lescot, Pierre. b. at Paris, c1510; d. Sept. 10, 1578. French architect. About all that is known of his personal history is derived from a poem by Ronsard, and the accounts of the royal buildings. He was practically the first architect of France to employ the classical forms in a truly classical way, previous attempts being largely influenced by Gothic forms. His work is considered the best that the Renaissance produced in France. He was made architect of the Louvre Aug. 3, 1546, and retained the office as long as he lived. That part of the Louvre which was built by Lescot consists of the western side south of the Tour d'Orloge, which stands upon the foundations of the great hall of Philippe Auguste, and, with a lower roof, remains just as Lescot left it; the Pavillon du Roi, remodeled; and the western half of the south side, also remodeled.

Les-Eaux-Bonnes (lā.zō.bon). See Eaux-Bonnes.

Lese di Sandro (lā'sā dē sän'drō), Benozzo di. See Gozzoli, Benozzo.

Lesghians (lez'gi.ạnz) or Lesghins (lez'ginz). See Lezghians.

Lesina (le'zē.nä). Italian name of the island and town of Hvar, in Yugoslavia.

Leskovac (les'kô.väts). [German, Leskovatz.] Town in SE Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Serbia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Vardarska, on a small river near its junction with the Morava River, S of Niš: station on the railway line from Belgrade to Salonika. 21,765 (1948).

Les Landes (lā länd). See Landes, plain.

Lesley (les'li, lez'li), Peter. [Also: J. Peter Lesley; pseudonym, John W. Allen, Jr.] b. at Philadelphia, Sept. 17, 1819; d. at Milton, Mass., June 1, 1903. American geologist. He was employed (1838–41) on the first geological survey of Pennsylvania under Henry Darwin Rogers, and was state geologist (1873–87) of the second geological survey of Pennsylvania. Author of A Manual of Coal and Its Topography (1856), Lowell Lectures on Man's Origin and Destiny (1868), and a novel, Paul Dreifuss, His Holiday Abroad (1882).

Leslie (les'li, lez'li), Alexander. [Title, 1st Earl of Leven.] b. c1580; d. at Balgonie, Fifeshire, Scotland, April 4, 1661. Scottish general, long in the service of Charles IX and Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden in the campaigns against Russia, Poland, Denmark, and Austria. In 1628 he compelled Wallenstein to raise the siege of Stralsund, and in 1630 seized the island of Rügen for the Swedish king. He returned to Scotland, and identified himself with the Covenanters, resigning from the Swedish service in 1638. The organization and command of the Scottish army were entrusted to him. He captured Aberdeen and Edinburgh Castle in 1639, but resigned in June of that year in order that there might be no obstacle to the proposed peace with Charles I. On the rupture of the peace, he resumed his position as general (April, 1640). In 1644 he led an army into England to support the Parliament, and took part in the battle of Marston Moor, where the troops under his command were routed. After Charles surrendered himself to the Scots in 1645, Leslie had charge of him until he was given up to the Parliament in January, 1647. He was relieved of his command May 11, 1648, but assumed it again in 1648 when Cromwell threatened Scotland. In 1651 he was surprised and captured by a body of English horse, carried to London, and imprisoned in the Tower, from which he was soon released.

Leslie, Charles. b. at Dublin, July 17, 1650; d. at Glaslough, County Monaghan, Ireland, April 13, 1722. British nonjuror (Jacobite) and controversialist. He was an opponent of William III, whom he attacked in a pamphlet Gallienus Redivivus, or Murther will out (1695; a principal authority on the Glencoe massacre), of Burnet (Tempora mutantur, 1689), Tillotson, and others. He also attacked the Quakers (The Snake in the Grass, or Satan transformed into an Angel of Light, 1696, and other pamphlets) and the Jews, and engaged in political controversies. His best-known work is A Short and Easy Method with the Deists (1698). He was obliged to leave England (1711) to avoid arrest on account of his political opinions, and later joined the household of the Old Pretender, James Francis Edward Stuart, whom he ardently supported.

Leslie, Charles Robert. b. at London, Oct. 19, 1794; d. there, May 5, 1859. English painter and writer, known for his paintings of literary and historical subjects. He went to America with his parents in 1799, returned to England in 1811 to study art, and became a pupil of Allston and West, and a close friend of Constable. In 1833 he was for a brief period instructor of drawing at West Point. He was professor of painting (1848–52) at the Royal Academy. He wrote Memoirs of John Constable (1845), Handbook for Young Painters (1855), Autobiographical Recollections (edited by Taylor, 1865), and Life of Reynolds (completed by Taylor, 1865).

Leslie, David. [Title, 1st Baron Newark.] b. c1601; d. 1682. Scottish general. He was colonel of horse under Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, but returned to Scotland in 1640 to support the cause of the Covenanters, and was appointed major general in the Scottish army under Alexander Leslie, 1st Earl of Leven. At the battle of Marston Moor, in which the troops under Alexander Leslie were routed by Rupert, he stood firm with Cromwell, and won the day. His part in the victory, which was ignored by Cromwell, has been much discussed, but it was certainly an important one. On Sept. 13, 1645, he defeated Montrose. He later supported the cause of Charles II, and was defeated by Cromwell at Dunbar (Sept. 3, 1650) and again at Worcester (Sept. 3, 1651). He was captured and confined in the Tower of London until 1660. After the Restoration he was created 1st Baron Newark.

Leslie, Eliza. b. at Philadelphia, Nov. 15, 1787; d. at Gloucester, N.J., Jan. 1, 1858. American author; sister of Charles Robert Leslie. She published Domestic Cookery Book (1837) and others.

Leslie, Frank. [Original name, Henry Carter.] b. at Ipswich, England, March 29, 1821; d. at New York, Jan. 10, 1880. American publisher, founder (1855) of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. He arrived (1838) at New York, worked (1852) at Boston on Gleason's Pictorial, and brought out (1854) at New York his first independent publication, Frank Leslie's Ladies' Gazette of Paris, London, and New York Fashions. He issued many other publications, including Frank Leslie's Monthly (1857 et seq.), Chatterbox, Comic Almanac, and Jolly Joker, all of which bore his name.

Leslie, Frank. Legal name after 1882 of Leslie, Miriam Florence.

Leslie, Henry David. b. at London, June 18, 1822; d. at Llansantffraid, Montgomeryshire, Wales, Feb. 4, 1896. English composer and choral leader. He conducted (1855–80) his own choir. Among his works are operas, oratorios, an overture, a symphony, and religious works.

Leslie, John. b. Sept. 29, 1527; d. at Guirtenburg, near Brussels, May 30, 1596. Scottish Roman Catholic prelate and historian, bishop of Ross, a partisan and influential adviser of Mary, Queen of Scots (he was her agent in many affairs during her imprisonment). He was involved (1571) in the Norfolk conspiracy, and was confined in the Tower of London, and later transferred to Farnham Castle. In 1573 he was released. He wrote a history of Scotland, partly in Latin (1578) and partly in Scots (published 1830), and various other works.

Leslie, John. [Title, 6th Earl of Rothes.] b. 1600; d. at Richmond, Surrey, England, Aug. 23, 1641. Scottish politician and leader of the Covenanters. He was an opponent of Charles I's ecclesiastical policy in Scotland and organized (1638) the movement against episcopacy. One of the commissioners who arranged (1640) the peace treaty at London, he remained at the court of Charles I. Author of Short Relation of Proceedings concerning the Affairs of Scotland from August 1637 to July 1638 (published 1830).

Leslie, John. [Titles: 7th Earl and 1st Duke of Rothes.] b. 1630; d. July 27, 1681. Scottish statesman; son of John Leslie (1600–41). Lord of session and commissioner of the exchequer (1661), he became (1663) lord high treasurer, and privy councilor of England, and was appointed (1664) keeper of the privy seal.

Leslie, Sir John. b. at Largo, Fifeshire, Scotland, April 16, 1766; d. at Coates, near Largo, Nov. 3, 1832. Scottish physicist and geometrician. He wrote Inquiry into the Nature and Properties of Heat (1804), Elements of Geometry (1809), Geometrical Analysis (1821), Eelments of Physics (1823), and others.

Leslie, John Randolph Shane. See Leslie, Shane.

Leslie, Mrs. Madeline. Pseudonym of Baker, Harriette Newall Woods.

Leslie, Miriam Florence. [Legal name from 1882, Frank Leslie; maiden name, Folline or Follin.] b. at New Orleans, La., c1836; d. Sept. 18, 1914. American magazine editor, business executive, and author; wife of Frank Leslie (1821–80). She was editor (1871 et seq.) of Frank Leslie's Lady's Journal, and managed (1880–95) the Frank Leslie publications after her husband's death. Author of Rents in Our Robes (1888), Beautiful Women of Twelve Epochs (1890), Are Men Gay Deceivers (1893), and A Social Mirage (1899).

Leslie, Norman. [Title, Master of Rothes.] d. in France, Aug. 29, 1554. Scottish soldier, leader of the party that assassinated (1546) Cardinal Beaton. Although he had no personal part in the act of murder, he was denounced as a rebel, and carried captive (1546) to France. He escaped to England, and was pensioned by Edward VI. He fled (1553) to France at the accession of Mary Tudor, and entered the service of Henry II of France. He died of wounds received in an action at Renti (near Cambrai).

Leslie, Shane. [Full name, John Randolph Shane Leslie.] b. 1885—. Irish writer. Author of Songs of Oriel (1908), The End of a Chapter (1916), Verses in Peace and War, The Oppidan (1922), Doomsland (1923), George the Fourth (1926), The Skull of Swift (1928), The Epic of Jutland (1930), Poems and Ballads (1933), American Wonderland (1936), The Film of Memory (1938), The Life of Mrs. Fitzherbert (1939), and Letters of Mrs. Fitzherbert (1940).

Leslie, Thomas Edward Cliffe. b. in Ireland, 1827; d. at Belfast, Ireland, Jan. 27, 1882. British political economist. He was one of the principal figures in the rise of the economic school that sought to explain economic phenomena in terms of historical background and social context rather than by the application of fixed principles and laws. He wrote Land Systems and Industrial Economy of Ireland, England, and Continental Countries (1870), Essays in Political and Moral Philosophy (1879), and others.

Les Lilas (lā lē.lä). Town in N France, in the department of Seine. It is an eastern industrial suburb of Paris. 17,685 (1946).

Lesly (les'li, lez'li), Ludovic. In Sir Walter Scott's Quentin Durward, an archer of Louis XI's bodyguard.

Les Martigues (lā mȧr.tēg). See Martigues.

Les Misérables (lā mē.zā.rȧbl). Novel by Victor Hugo, in five parts: Fantine, Cosette, Marius, St. Denis (or L'Idylle rue Plumet), and Jean Valjean. It was published in 1862. It is the story of Jean Valjean, a hard-working French peasant who is sent to the galleys for stealing a loaf of bread for the starving family of his sister. His attempts to escape result in the lengthening of his sentence to 19 years. When he finally obtains his freedom and is befriended by the Bishop of D——, Valjean steals the Bishop's silver. He is caught by the police but the kindhearted Bishop declares that he had given the silver to Valjean. The Bishop's act of kindness impresses Jean Valjean so greatly that he resolves to lead an upright life under another name. He becomes prosperous and does many good deeds, but is constantly pursued by Javert, a ruthless detective, and is finally sent back to the galleys. Later he escapes and rescues Cosette, the daughter of Fantine, a woman of the streets whom he had once aided. The novel is a complex tale which presents a remarkable picture of the poor of Paris in its day.

Lesot de la Penneterie (le.sō dę lȧ pe.ne.trē), Louis Charles Adrien. Original name of Lacressonière.

Les Pavillons-sous-Bois (lā pȧ.vē.yôn.sö.bwä). [Also, Pavillons-sous-Bois.] Town in N France, in the department of Seine. It is a northeastern residential suburb of Paris. 15,093 (1946).

Lespinasse (les.pē.nȧs), Julie Jeanne Éléonore de. b. at Lyons, France, 1732 (baptized Nov. 19); d. at Paris, May 22, 1776. French letter-writer and leader of society. She was the illegitimate daughter of the Countess d'Albon. In 1754 Madame du Deffand, who had become blind, invited her to live with her. For ten years they presided together over their fashionable and literary salon. At the end of that time they quarreled, and Mademoiselle Lespinasse established another salon with D'Alembert as its principal habitué.

Lesquereux (lā.kā.rē'), Leo. b. at Fleurier, Neuchâtel, Switzerland, Nov. 18, 1806; d. at Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 25, 1889. American paleobotanist, noted for his systematic study of the type of plant life that produced the Appalachian coal field. He classified the plant collection of Louis Agassiz's 1848 Lake Superior expedition, and became associated with William Starling Sullivant in bryology. He determined the coal plants for the Kentucky survey (1860), the Illinois survey (1866, 1870), and the Indiana survey (1876, 1884).

Les Sables-d'Olonne (lā sȧ.blę.do.lon). Town in W France, in the department of Vendée, on the Bay of Biscay. It is an important fishing port and popular bathing resort covering a narrow stretch of dunes between a tidal marsh and the ocean. It has some port trade, and boatbuilding yards and fish canneries. 17,650 (1946).

Lesse (les'ę). River in S Belgium, flowing NW to join the Meuse near Dinant. It flows underground through limestone caves during part of its course. Length, ab. 50 mi.

Lesseps (les'eps; French, le.seps), Ferdinand Marie, Vicomte de. b. at Versailles, France, Nov. 19, 1805; d. near Paris, Dec. 7, 1894. French engineer and diplomat. He was ambassador at Madrid in 1848, and was sent on a special mission to Rome in 1849 in connection with the safe return of Pope Pius IX to the Vatican. However, he is chiefly known as the planner and engineer of the Suez Canal, on which work was commenced in 1859, and which was opened in 1869. De Lesseps was organizer and supervisor of the company building the canal and raised over one hundred million francs by popular subscription in France. He afterward formed a company for the purpose of cutting a canal through the Isthmus of Panama; work on this project began in 1881. The scheme collapsed, and a judicial inquiry into the affairs of the company resulted in a prison sentence for de Lesseps in 1893, but the sentence was never carried out.

Lesser Antilles (an.til'ēz). Collective name for all of the smaller islands of the West Indies, SE of the U.S., which excludes the Bahamas, Cuba, Hispaniola, Jamaica, and Puerto Rico. The four chief groups are the Virgin Islands (U.S. and Great Britain), the Leeward Islands (Great Britain and France), the Windward Islands (Great Britain and France), and the islands off the N coast of Venezuela (Netherlands and Venezuela).

Lesser Slave Lake (slāv). Lake in C Alberta, Canada, draining into the Athabaska River. Elevation, ab. 1,893 ft.; area, ab. 461 sq. mi.

Lesser Sunda Isles (sun'dą). Province of Indonesia, incorporating the chain of islands extending E from Java, and including Bali, Flores, Lombok, Sumba, Sumbawa, the Indonesian part of Timor, and numerous smaller islands. Area, ab. 28,600 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 4,000,000.

Lessines (le.sēn). [Flemish, Lessen (les'ęn).] Town in W central Belgium, in the province of Hainaut, on the Dender River ab. 25 mi. SW of Brussels: stone (porphyry) quarries. 9,873 (1946).

Lessing (les'ing), Gotthold Ephraim. b. at Kamenz, Germany, Jan. 22, 1729; d. at Brunswick, Germany, Feb. 15, 1781. German critic and dramatist. The son of a clergyman, he attended school at Kamenz and Meissen, and in 1746 went to Leipzig to study theology. Instead, however, of pursuing his studies in this direction, he soon gave his principal attention to the theater. His first comedy, Der junge Gelehrte (The Young Scholar), was produced in 1748, during his third semester at the university. His association with the theater having given offense to his parents, he was summoned home. He soon, however, returned to Leipzig, where he matriculated as a student of medicine. This same year (1748) he went to Berlin, where he supported himself by making translations and writing criticisms and reviews. In 1751 he went to Wittenberg to complete his studies at the university there. After taking a master's degree, he returned to Berlin in 1752

(he had already, in 1751, published a collection of poems under the title Kleinigkeiten). In 1753 he began the publication of his collected works, two volumes of which were issued that year, two in 1754, and two more in 1755, in which year he also wrote his first major play, Miss Sara Sampson. Several minor comedies fall in this early period, namely, Der Misogyn, a bourgeois tragedy on the English model, Die Juden, Der Freigeist, and Der Schatz. He had also written a number of Anacreontic poems, poetic fables, epigrams, and didactic poems. In the autumn of 1755 he returned once more to Leipzig, where with slight interruptions he remained until 1757. In 1758 he went back to Berlin, and began there the following year, in conjunction with Moses Mendelssohn and the bookseller Nicolai, his Litteraturbriefe (in full, Briefe, die neueste Litteratur betreffend), with which he was connected until 1760. He published too, at this time, a collection of prose fables, a number of odes in prose, the one-act tragedy Philotas, and sketched the plan of a Faust, which, however, was never to be completed (and he later lost the manuscript for that portion which he had done). In 1760 he went to Breslau as secretary to General von Tauentzien. In 1763 he wrote the comedy Minna von Barnhelm, which was not published until 1767. From Breslau he returned in 1765 to Berlin, where he next wrote his great critical work Laokoön (1766), which compares plastic art (as a static form) with poetry (as a dynamic form). The succeeding year he went to Hamburg in order to take part as a critic in the foundation of a German national theater. The result of this undertaking was the series of dramatic criticisms published twice a week from 1767 to 1769 under the title Hamburgische Dramaturgie. In 1768 appeared Briefe antiquarischen Inhalts, directed against Professor Klotz of Halle. In 1769 appeared the archaeological treatise Wie die Alten den Tod gebildet. In this year he received a call as librarian to the ducal library at Wolfenbüttel, a position which he held from the spring of 1770 until his death. In 1772 appeared the tragedy Emilia Galotti. From 1773 to 1781 were published a series of Beiträge zur Geschichte und Litteratur aus den Schätzen der Wolfenbütteler Bibliothek. In this series Lessing published Fragmente eines Wolfenbüttelschen Ungenannten, theological criticisms purporting to be extracts from the writings of "an anonymous Wolfenbütteler," but really written by the Hamburg professor and philosopher H. S. Reimarus, whose book criticizing miracles had been left to Lessing, and from which Lessing had published excerpts from 1774 to 1778, thus involving himself in a bitter controversy, most notably with Pastor Johann Melchior Goeze of Hamburg (against whom Lessing wrote the scathing polemics contained in his Anti-Goeze, which appeared also in 1778). This same year was published Ernst und Falk, Gespräche für Freimaurer. In 1779 appeared the drama Nathan der Weise, and in 1780, finally, the treatise Die Erziehung des Menschengeschlechts, which was, like the Anti-Goeze papers and Nathan, a result of the theological controversies of the last years of his life.

Lessing, Karl Friedrich. b. at Breslau, in February, 1808; d. at Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany, June 5, 1880. German historical and landscape painter; grandnephew of Gotthold Ephraim Lessing. Many of his subjects were taken from scenes in the life of John Hus.

Lessington (les'ing.tọn), Stephen de. See Lexinton or Lessington, Stephen de.

Lessinian Alps (lę.sin'i.ạn). [Also, Lessini Mountains (lās.sē'nē); Italian, Monti Lessini.] A southern group of the Alps in N Italy, E of the Adige River and S of the Brenta River. Peak elevation, ab. 7,680 ft.

Lesson in Anatomy, The. [Also, The Anatomy Lesson.] Painting by Rembrandt (1632), in the museum at The Hague, Netherlands. It represents Nicolaus (or Claes) Tulp, a noted anatomist, demonstrating the anatomy of the dissected arm of a corpse to several students, in presence of two members of the guild of surgeons. All the figures are portraits.

Lesson of the Master, The. Collection of tales by Henry James, published in 1892.

Lester (les'tėr), Jeeter. See under Tobacco Road.

Lester, John W. See under Wallack, Lester.

Lestocq (les.tok'), Count Johann Hermann von. b. at Celle, Germany, April 29, 1692; d. June 23, 1767. German surgeon at the Russian court, a favorite and councilor (1741–48) of the empress Elizabeth.

L'Estrange (les.trānj', lęs-), Sir Roger. b. at Hunstanton, Norfolk, England, Dec. 17, 1616; d. at London, Dec. 11, 1704. English journalist and Royalist pamphleteer, licenser of the press under Charles II and James II. He served in the royal army against the Parliament, and in an attempt to carry out a plot for the capture of Lynn was betrayed, arrested, and condemned to death, but remained at Newgate until 1648, when he escaped to the Netherlands. He returned to England in 1653. In 1663 he was appointed surveyor of printing offices and licenser of the press, and founded The Public Intelligencer and The News, both of which ceased to exist in 1666. From 1681 to 1687 he issued the Observator. He published a great number of political pamphlets, The Fables of Æsop and other Eminent Mythologists with Moral Reflections (1692), The Works of Flavius Josephus compared with the Original Greek (1702), and a translation of the Visions of Quevedo.

Le Sueur (lę sör'). City in S Minnesota, in Le Sueur County, on the Minnesota River ab. 50 mi. SW of Minneapolis: farm products. 2,713 (1950).

Lesueur (lę.sü.ėr), Daniel. [Pseudonym of Jeanne Lapauze; maiden name, Loiseau.] b. at Paris, 1860; d. 1921. French poet and novelist, a translator (1891–93) of Byron. Her works consist, almost exclusively, of analyses of love. Typical titles are Mortel Secret (1902) and Le Masque d'amour (1904).

Lesueur, Eustache. b. at Paris, Nov. 19, 1617; d. there, April 30, 1655. French historical painter. His chief work is Life of Saint Bruno, in the Louvre.

Lesueur, Hubert. b. at Paris, c1595; d. at London, c1652. French sculptor, resident in England after 1628. He completed, in 1634, bronze statues of the king and queen, now at St. John's College, Oxford.

Lesueur, Jean François. b. at Drucat-Plessiel, near Abbeville, France, Jan. 15, 1760 (some sources suggest dates as late as 1764); d. at Paris, Oct. 6, 1837. French composer. He wrote eight operas, including Les Bardes (1804), and other works, among them a mass and a Te Deum for the coronation of Napoleon, whose maître de chapelle he had become. Among his pupils at the Conservatoire, where he was professor of composition after 1818, were Hector Berlioz, Ambroise Thomas, and Charles Gounod.

Lesvos (lez'vôs). See Lesbos.

Leszczyński (lesh.chin'skē), Stanislaus. See Stanislaus I.

Leszno (lesh'nô). [German, Lissa.] Town in NW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Poznań, before the end of World War I in Germany, SW of Poznań, in a fertile agricultural district. It has distilleries, and metal and furniture manufactures. The parish church, a baroque structure of the late 17th century, contains tombs of various members of the noble family of Leszczyński, from which was descended the Polish king Stanislaus I. The beautiful 18th-century rococo Castle of Rydzyna is in the vicinity. Leszno became a town in 1547; after the Thirty Years' War it was the center of settlement by the Moravian Brethren in Poland. At the same time, it became the seat of a large Jewish settlement and of a leading rabbinical school. The town was sacked by the Swedes in 1656, passed to Prussia in 1793, and to the republic of Poland in 1919. Pop. 20,820 (1946).

Letchworth (lech'wėrth). Urban district in SE England, in Hertfordshire ab. 35 mi. N of London by rail. It was founded in 1903, being planned in its entirety before any development was permitted, according to the principles outlined in Sir Ebenezer Howard's book Garden Cities of Tomorrow. Letchworth was the first of the English "garden cities." 20,321 (1951).

Le Teil (lę tey'). [Also, Le Teil-d'Ardèche (-dăr.desh).] Town in SE France, in the department of Ardèche, a river port on the Rhone River, W of Montélimar. It is an industrial town, and has limestone quarries and limekilns. 8,789 (1946).

Letellier (le.te.lyā), François Michel. See Louvois, Marquis de.

Lethbridge (leth'brij). City in S Alberta, Canada, on the Oldman River ab. 70 mi. N of the Canadian-U.S. border. It is the center of a wheat, sugar beet, and livestock farming region. It has food-processing plants, and coal is mined in the vicinity. 22,947 (1951).

Lethe (lē'thē). In Greek mythology: 1. The personification of oblivion; a daughter of Eris. 2. The river of oblivion, one of the streams of Hades, the waters of which possessed the property of causing those who drank of them to forget their former existence. The dead drank upon their arrival in Hades; and those about to be reborn also drank of it. Ariosto places Lethe in the moon; Dante places it in purgatory.

Letheby (lēth'bi), Henry. b. at Plymouth, England, 1816; d. at London, March 28, 1876. English chemist.

Lethington (leth'ing.tọn), Lord. See Maitland, Sir Richard.

Leticia (lā.tē'syā). City in SE Colombia, on the N bank of the Amazon River. It is the capital of Amazonas commissary. It was disputed between Colombia and Peru (1932) and awarded to Colombia by a decision of the League of Nations in 1934. Pop. 1,674 (1938).

Letmathe (let'mä.tẹ). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, on the Lenne River E of Wuppertal. It has rolling mills, and manufactures of aluminum, chains, wire, and machinery. 11,512 (1950).

Leto (lē'tō). [Latin, Latona.] In Greek mythology, the daughter of the Titan Coeus and Phoebe, and mother by Zeus of Apollo and Artemis. According to an early form of the myth, she was the wife of Zeus before he married Hera; in later myth, she was his mistress after his marriage with Hera. Hera in jealous rage decreed that no place on earth where the sun shone should allow Leto to give birth to her children. So Leto bore her twins, Apollo and Artemis, either on the island of Delos, protected by Poseidon, or, in some versions, in an undersea cave. Leto's name became Latona in Roman mythology.

L'Étourdi (lā.tör.dē). See Étourdi, L'.

Le Tréport (lẹ trā.pôr). Town in NW France, in the department of Seine-Inférieure, on the English Channel at the mouth of the Bresle River, ab. 16 mi. NE of Dieppe. It is a fishing port, with coastwise shipping, and is a popular seaside resort. The town suffered some damage in World War II. 5,168 (1946).

Letterhaus (let'ẹr.hous), Bernhard. b. at Barmen, Germany, July 10, 1894; executed 1944. German politician and labor leader. A journalist and an organizer of the Christian trade unions, he was a Centrist Party member (1928 et seq.) of the Prussian diet. Active in the abortive plot to overthrow Hitler in July, 1944, he was arrested by the Gestapo and executed.

Letterman (let'ėr.mạn), Jonathan. b. at Canonsburg, Pa., Dec. 11, 1824; d. March 15, 1872. American army surgeon, a pioneer in the technique of specially organized front-line care for wounded soldiers. In the Civil War he was assigned (1861) to the Army of the Potomac. As medical director (1862 et seq.) of this army, he introduced ambulance transport for casualties on the battlefields, and the combat procedures of the U.S. Army Medical Corps are based to this day on the principle of speedy evacuation of wounded which he helped to establish. The U.S. Army's Letterman General Hospital at San Francisco is named in his honor. He was the author of Medical Recollections of the Army of the Potomac (1866).

Letter of Cupid (kū'pid), The. See Cupid, The Letter of.

Letters from a Farmer in Pennsylvania to the Inhabitants of the British Colonies. Letters by John Dickinson, published (1767–68) in the Pennsylvania Chronicle and as a pamphlet in 1768. The author invoked the social compact theory in urging colonial opposition to British tax measures.

Letters from an American Farmer. Essays by Michel Guillaume Jean de Crèvecœur, published at London (1782) under the pseudonym J. Hector St. John. Crèvecœur gives a graphic description of the social life and customs in the colonies, mingling realistic reports of the difficulties of frontier life with philosophical reflections upon the nature and meaning of American experience.

Lettish (let'ish). See under Letts.

Lettland. Swedish (let'länd) and German (let'länt) name of Latvia.

Letton (let'ọn), John. fl. second half of 15th century. English printer, the first to set up a printing press in the city of London.

Lettow-Vorbeck (let'ō.fōr'bek), Paul von. b. at Saarlouis, Saar territory, March 20, 1870—. German general. He served (1900) in China and was commander (1914–18) of the colonial forces in East Africa, where he fought successfully until the armistice ended the East African campaign just as he began an advance into Rhodesia. Returning to Germany, he sided with Kapp and was forced to retire after the latter's abortive putsch (March, 1920). He wrote Meine Erinnerungen aus Deutsch-Ostafrika (1919).

Lettres à la fiancée (letr à là fyäṅ.sā). Correspondence (1922; Eng. trans., 1937) by Léon Bloy, much admired for its fervor.

Lettres à une inconnue (letr à ü.naṅ.ko.nü). [Eng. trans., "Letters to an Unknown (woman)."] Collection of letters by Prosper Mérimée, published posthumously in 1873.

Lettres édifiantes (letr ā.dē.fyäṅt). [Full title, Lettres édifiantes et curieuses, écrites des missions étrangères par quelques missionaires de la compagnie de Jésus.] Collection of letters from Jesuit missionaries, principally in America and Asia, first published at Paris, in 34 volumes, in the period 1702–76. There is a second collection entitled Nouvelles lettres édifiantes des missions de la Chine et des Indes Orientales (8 vols., 1818–23). Spanish and Italian editions have been published, and an abridged one in English. Many of these letters are of great historical and ethnographical interest.

Letts (lets). [Also, Latvians.] Indigenous people of Latvia. They numbered ab. 1,150,000 in 1938, and ab. 1,500,000 in 1948. The Letts moved north to their present homes in 800–1000 A.D., pushing out Finnish peoples. After the founding of Riga by the Teutonic Knights in 1201, the Letts came under German rule, and were reduced to the status of serfs by German merchants and landowners. German rule was succeeded by Polish (1561–1625), Swedish (1629–1710), and finally by Russian domination. The serfs were liberated early in the 19th century, and Lettish national revival followed close on the heels of the liberation. The language, called Lettish or Latvian, is related to Lithuanian, and belongs to the Baltic subfamily of Indo-European languages.

Letzeburg (let'sẹ.bůrk). See Luxembourg.

Letzten Dinge (lets'tẹn ding'ẹ), Die. [Eng. trans., "The Last Things."] Oratorio by Ludwig Spohr, produced at Cassel on Good Friday, 1826. It is known in English as The Last Judgment.

Leuca (le'ö.kä), Cape. See Santa Maria di Leuca, Cape.

Leucadia (lö.kā'di.ạ). Ancient name of Doukato, Cape.

Leucadia or Leucas (lö'kạs). See Leukas.

Leuchtenberg (loiċh'tẹn.berk), Duke of. See Beauharnais, Eugène de.

Leucippe and Cleitophon (lö.sip'ē; klī'tǭ.fon). Greek romance by Achilles Tatius, written in the 3rd or 4th century A.D.

Leucippus (lö.sip'us). fl. c500 B.C. Greek philosopher, founder of the atomic school of philosophy.

Leuckart (loik'ärt), Karl Georg Friedrich Rudolf. b. at Helmstedt, Germany, Oct. 7, 1822; d. at Leipzig, Germany, Feb. 6, 1898. German zoölogist, especially noted as a helminthologist. He published Die Parasiten des Menschen (1863–76) and others.

Leucopetra (lö.kop'ẹ.trạ). [Modern Italian name, Capo dell' Armi.] In ancient geography, a promontory at the SW extremity of Italy.

Leucopetra. In ancient geography, a village on the Isthmus of Corinth. Here (146 B.C.) the Romans under Mummius defeated the Achaean League under Diaeus.

Leucothea (lö.koth'ẹ̄.ạ). In Greek mythology, the name of Ino after her deification as a sea goddess.

Leucothea or Leukothea. Asteroid (No. 35) discovered by Luther at Düsseldorf, April 19, 1855.

Leucothoe (lö.koth'ǭ.ē). In Greek mythology, a Babylonian princess who was transformed into a sweet-smelling plant by Apollo.

Leuctra (lök'trạ). In ancient geography, a locality in Boeotia, Greece, ab. 7 mi. SW of Thebes. It is celebrated for the victory (371 B.C.) gained here by the Thebans under Epaminondas over the Spartans under Cleombrotus. The battle is significant as the decisive end of Spartan military supremacy in Greece and as a tactical turning point in military history, Epaminondas's victory being the result of his concentration of overwhelming force at a single point in the enemy line.

Leuk (loik). [French, Loèche; full name, Leuk-Stadt, French, Loèche-la-Ville.] Picturesque small town in S Switzerland, in the canton of Valais, overlooking the Rhone River, NE of Sion. Elevation, ab. 2,470 ft.; pop. 2,242 (1941).

Leukas (lö'kąs). [Also: Leucadia, Leukados (lö.kā'dos), Levkas; Italian, Santa Maura; Latin, Leucas.] One of the Ionian Islands, Greece, in the nomos (department) of Leukas, W of Aetolia and Acarnania, from which it is separated by a narrow channel. The surface is hilly and mountainous; the chief products are currants, wine, and olive oil. In its SW part is a steep cliff, known as Sappho's Leap, from which Sappho is said to have thrown herself into the sea. Length, ab. 23 mi.; area, ab. 114 sq. mi.; pop. 37,712 (1951).

Leukas. [Also: Amaxichi, Amaxiki, Hamaxiki, Leucas, Leucadia, Leukados, Levkas; Italian, Santa Maura.] Seaport and the chief town on the island of Leukas, Ionian Islands, Greece, near the NE extremity of the island. 6,577 (1951).

Leukerbad (loi'kėr.bät). [French, Loèche-les-Bains; English, Baths of Leuk.] Village in SW Switzerland, in the canton of Valais, ab. 5 mi. N of Leuk, noted for its radioactive thermal springs. Elevation, ab. 4,610 ft.; pop. 514 (1941).

Leukothea (lö.kō.thē'ą). See Leucothea.

Leumann (loi'män), Ernst. b. at Berg, Switzerland, April 11, 1859; d. at Freiburg im Breisgau, Germany, April 24, 1931. German Sanskrit scholar. Author of Etymologisches Wörterbuch (Etymological Dictionary, 1907).

Leuna (loi'nä). Industrial town in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony-Anhalt, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, ab. 17 mi. W of Leipzig. It is noted as the site of a great synthetic ammonia and chemical plant erected in 1916, which supplied Germany with nitrate for explosives after Chilean imports were cut off in World War I. The plant was heavily bombed in World War II. 9,920 (1946).

Leuricus (lö.rī'kus). Latin form of Leofric.

Leuschner (loish'nėr), Armin Otto. b. at Detroit, Mich., Jan. 16, 1868—. American astronomer and educator. He was professor and head of the astronomy department (1907–38) and dean of the graduate school (1913–18, 1920–23) at the University of California. Author of Celestial Mechanics (1922), The Minor Planets of the Hecuba Group (1939), and other works.

Leuthen (loi'tęn). [Polish, Lutynia.] Village in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, ab. 10 mi. W of Wrocław (Breslau). In 1757 Frederick II of Prussia (Frederick the Great) defeated the Austrians here. The village came under Polish administration in 1945.

Leuthold (loit'holt), Heinrich. b. at Wetzikon, Switzerland, 1827; d. at Zurich, Switzerland, 1879. Swiss poet, writing in German. Though his collected works in three volumes, first published in 1914, are generally considered to contain only a few really outstanding poems, his work has considerable documentary value in that it reflects an attempt to shake off the postclassical traditions of the Munich school headed by E. Geibel and to give realistic expression to the experiences of a strong and often passionate individuality.

Leutkirch (loit'kirċh). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Württemberg-Hohenzollern, French Zone, formerly in the free state of Württemberg, ab. 41 mi. S of Ulm; center of a dairying district. It passed to Württemberg in 1810. Pop. 5,601 (1946).

Leutschau (loit'shou). German name of Levoča.

Leutze (loit'sę), Emanuel. b. at Gmünd, Württemberg, Germany, May 24, 1816; d. at Washington, D.C., July 18, 1868. Historical painter. His work was done in the 19th-century German tradition (specifically, of the Düsseldorf school), and he maintained a studio in Germany between 1840 and 1860. Among his works are Washington Crossing the Delaware, Westward the Course of Empire Takes Its Way, Washington at Monmouth, Landing of the Norsemen, and Cromwell and His Daughter.

Leuven (lé'vęn). Flemish name of Louvain.

Leuwenhoek (lā'węn.hök), Antonius von. See Leeuwenhoek or Leuwenhoek, Antonius von.

Léva (lā'vŏ). Hungarian name of Levice.

Levadia (le.vä'ʜyä). [Also: Levadhia, Levadeia, Livadia; ancient name, Lebadeia, Lebadea (leb.ą.dē'ą).] Town in C Greece, in the nomos (department) of Attica and Boeotia, ab. 57 mi. NW of Athens on the Athens-Salonika railroad line. The environs are very fertile. It is the seat of a bishopric. In ancient times it was noted for its oracle of Trophonius. 11,877 (1951).

Levaditi (lā.vą.dē.tē), Constantin. b. at Galaţi, Rumania, July 31, 1874; d. at Paris, 1928. French physician. He was on the staff of the Pasteur Institute at Paris. His studies on polymorphic erythemas, the neurotropic ectodermatoses (1922), on poliomyelitis and encephalitis, and on chemotherapy were fundamental. He described (1905) a method (named for him) for staining the spirochaeta pallida.

Levaillant (lę.vą.yäñ), François. b. at Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, 1753; d. at Sézanne, France, Nov. 22, 1824. French ornithologist and traveler in southern Africa (1781–85). He published accounts of his travels (1790, 1796).

Levallois-Perret (lę.vą.lwą.pe.re). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, on the Seine River, adjoining Paris on the NW. It is part of greater Paris, and is an important industrial center, with manufactures of automobiles, machinery, chemicals, foodstuffs, and aircraft. 61,681 (1946).

Levambert (lę.väñ.ber), Louis. b. at Paris, 1614; d. 1670. French sculptor. Much of his work is in the park of Versailles.

Levana (le.vā'ną). In Roman religion, a goddess of childbirth and protectress of children.

Levanna (lā.vän'nä), Monte. [Also, La Levanna.] Mountain peak in the Graian Alps, on the frontier of France and Italy. Elevation, ab. 11,873 ft.

Levant (lę.vant'). General name for the large region lying on and near the Mediterranean, SE of Italy, including all of the E Mediterranean borderlands and islands from Greece to Egypt. It is sometimes reckoned as extending E to the Euphrates and as taking in the Nile valley. In a more restricted sense, the name applies only to the E coast region of the Mediterranean, from Asia Minor to Israel. The name was originally given by the Italians.

Levant, Oscar. b. at Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 27, 1906—. American pianist and composer. He studied composition with Schönberg. He appeared (1928) in the stage production Burlesque, and is noted as an interpreter of the music of George Gershwin. He has been associated with Twentieth Century-Fox film studios at Hollywood, and composed music and conducted for The American Way (1939) at the New York World's Fair. He has appeared in a number of motion pictures, notably in An American In Paris (1951). For a time he was a panel member on the radio program Information Please. His compositions include a piano concerto (1936), a nocturne and suite for orchestra (1936), a string quartet (1937), and a sonatina (1931). He is the author of A Smattering of Ignorance (1940).

Levasseur (lę.vą.sėr), Pierre Émile. b. at Paris, Dec. 8, 1828; d. there, July 10, 1911. French economist. He was especially known as a founder of the study of commercial geography and as an exponent of the historical approach to economics. Author of La Population française (The French Population, 1889–92), L'Ouvrier américain (The American Worker, 1898), and others.

Le Vau (lę vō), Louis. [Also, Levau.] b. 1612; d. 1670. French architect. His first work, apparently, was in 1643 at the Château de Vaux-le-Vicomte. He was afterward charged with the transformation of the Château de Vincennes. He succeeded Lemercier as architect of the Louvre and Tuileries, and completed the eastern and northern sides, except the portico of Perrault. At the Tuileries Louis XIV ordered Le Vau to remodel the palace, which he did at the expense of De l'Orme's work, leaving only the ground floor intact. He also built the Pavillon de Marsan and the old Pavillon de Flore. In 1661 he built the Palais des Quatres Nations, now the Palais de l'Institut. He was also the first architect of Saint Sulpice, and built the Chapel de la Salpêtrière, Saint-Louis en l'Île, and others. He added two pavilions and an orangerie to the old Château de Versailles built by Louis XIII.

Levelers (lev'ə.lərz). Political and religious extremist sect prominent in the English Civil War period, flourishing especially in the period 1647–50. Their principal leaders were John Lilburne, Richard Overton, and William Walwyn, Lilburne being their most prominent pamphleteer. The Levelers (who themselves did not use the name) were primarily a religious group, opposed to either episcopacy or presbyterianism as governmental policy and holding to an almost extreme toleration in religious matters. Politically they were equalitarian, desiring a written constitution, universal manhood suffrage, and a leveling of political, social, and economic inequalities. The movement was not, however, socialistic, but was utopian in its individualism. The Levelers' main strength lay in the New Model army of Cromwell and their agitation led to several revolts among the troops at what they considered Cromwell's temporizing policies.

Levelers. See also Whiteboys.

Levelland (lev'əl.land). Town in NW Texas, county seat of Hockley County, W of Lubbock, in a livestock-farming and petroleum-producing region. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 3,091 (1940), 8,264 (1950).

Leven (lē'vən). Police burgh in SE Scotland, in Fifeshire, on an inlet of the Firth of Forth, ab. 430 mi. N of London by rail. 8,578 (est. 1948).

Leven, 1st Earl of. Title of Leslie, Alexander.

Leven, 3rd Earl of. A title of Melville, David.

Leven, Loch. Sea inlet in W central Scotland, an arm of Loch Linnhe, forming part of the Argyllshire-Inverness-shire boundary. It extends ab. 11 mi. E from Loch Linnhe. Greatest width, ab. 1 mi.

Leven, Loch. [Also, Lochleven.] Lake in S central Scotland, in Kinross-shire, just E of Kinross. Castle Island, in the lake, has the remains of a castle which was the scene in 1567–68 of the imprisonment of Mary, Queen of Scots. The island was formerly connected with the mainland by an ancient causeway, now submerged. The lake is drained by the river Leven, which flows E across Fifeshire to the Firth of Forth. Area, ab. 6 sq. mi.

Levene (lē.vən'), Phoebus Aaron Theodore. b. at Sagor, Russia, Feb. 25, 1869; d. at New York, Sept. 6, 1940. American chemist. He was assistant (1905) in chemistry and a member (1907–39) of the Rockefeller Institute. Author of the monographs Hexosamines and Mucoproteins (1925), Nucleic Acids (1931), and papers covering researches in proteins, nucleins, carbohydrates, lipids, and questions in stereochemistry.

Lever (lē'vər), Sir Ashton. b. at Alkrington, near Manchester, England, March 5, 1729; d. at Manchester, Jan. 24, 1788. English naturalist.

Lever, Charles James. b. at Dublin, Aug. 31, 1806; d. at Trieste, June 1, 1872. Irish novelist. He graduated from Trinity College, Dublin, having studied medicine, which he practiced first in Ireland and then at Brussels (1840–42). He was editor of the Dublin University Magazine (1842–45), settled at Florence in 1847, and was appointed consul at La Spezia in 1857, and at Trieste in 1867. He wrote Harry Lorrequer (1837), Charles O'Malley (1840), Tom Burke of Ours (1844), Arthur O'Leary (1844), Con Cregan (1849), Roland Cashel (1850), The Daltons (1852), The Dodd Family Abroad (1853–54), Lord Kilgobbin (1872), and others. His earlier novels, chiefly about military life and deeds, were episodic, formless artistically, and popular; his later works, more controlled, were not as widely read.

Lever, William Hesketh. [Title, created 1922, 1st Viscount Leverhulme.] b. at Bolton, Lancashire, England, Sept. 19, 1851; d. May 7, 1925. English industrialist, chairman of Lever Brothers, Ltd. He began manufacturing "Sunlight" soap at Warrington, Lancashire, in 1885 and soon had expanded his business to cover the country. In 1888 he began building Port Sunlight, in Cheshire, a planned industrial village, intended to be a model town in which the needs of the inhabitants as well as of the factory would be considered. By the year of his death his firm, Lever Brothers, had acquired sole or part ownership of companies throughout the world, and was associated with many others (the grand total approximated 250). In 1906 he instituted a famous libel suit against the Northcliffe press interests for calling a trade agreement he had made with other soap manufacturers a trust; the allegation was withdrawn on the third day of the trial and damages and costs were awarded to Lever. In 1909 he began an original profit-sharing plan among his employees that continued his policy, originating with the founding of Port Sunlight, of turning back profits into employees' welfare activities. After World War I he bought the Island of Lewis with Harris in the Hebrides, establishing a chain of fish shops in London and elsewhere in England as outlets for their fisheries.

Lever Act. Act of the U.S. Congress (Aug. 10, 1917) authorizing the president to conserve food and fuel during the prosecution of World War I. Among other provisions, it authorized price-fixing. The guarantee of two dollars a bushel for wheat was to last until May 1, 1919, but actually the price was set at 2.20 dollars a bushel. Among the units established for the administration of the act were the Food Administration (under Herbert Hoover) and the Fuel Administration (under Harry Augustus Garfield).

Leverett (lev'ər.ət, lev'rət), Frederick Percival. b. at Portsmouth, N.H., Sept. 11, 1803; d. at Boston, Oct. 6, 1836. American classical scholar.

Leverett, John. b. in England, 1616; d. March 16, 1679. Colonial governor of Massachusetts (1673–79).

Leverett, John. b. Aug. 25, 1662; d. May 3, 1724. American educator and lawyer; grandson of John Leverett (1616–79). As tutor and fellow (1685–1700) and as president (1707–24) of Harvard, his liberal policy earned him the opposition of Cotton Mather and Governor Dudley on religious and political issues.

Leverhulme (lē'vər.hūm), 1st Viscount. See Lever, William Hesketh.

Leveridge (lev'ər.ij), Richard. b. 1670; d. March 22, 1758. English singer. He had a very deep bass voice, which was unimpaired for many years. He published a collection of songs with music in 1727. To him is credited the song Roast Beef of Old England.

Leverkusen (lā'vər.kō.zən). City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, on the Rhine River ab. 15 mi. SE of Düsseldorf. It is a river port, with huge chemical works, iron foundries, machinery, garment, and knitwear industries, and a cement plant. The city was formed out of various smaller communities in 1930. Pop. 65,531 (1950).

Levermore (lev'ər.mōr), Charles Herbert. b. at Mansfield, Conn., Oct. 15, 1850; d. at Berkeley, Calif., Oct. 20, 1927. American educator and advocate of international peace. He was founder (1896) and president (1896–1912) of Adelphi College at Brooklyn, N.Y. (now at Garden City, N.Y.). He served as acting director (1915–17) of the World Peace Foundation, and secretary (1917 et seq.) of the New York Peace Society, and was a member of other organizations devoted to world peace. Author of The Republic of New Haven (1886), Political History Since 1815 (with D. R. Dewey, 1889), The Academy Song Book (1895), The Students' Hymnal (1911), Forerunners and Competitors of the Pilgrims and Puritans (1912), The American Songbook (1917), and Life of Samuel Train Dutton (1922).

Leverrier (lə.ve.ryā), Urbain Jean Joseph. b. at St.-Lô, France, March 11, 1811; d. at Paris, Sept. 23, 1877. French astronomer, who shared with J. C. Adams the honor of discovering (1846) the planet Neptune. Both men had made independent calculations indicating the presence of the planet.

Levertin (lā'vər.tēn), Oscar Ivar. b. at Gryt, Södermanland, Sweden, 1862; d. at Stockholm, 1906. Swedish lyric poet, novelist, and critic. In 1899 Levertin became professor of literature at the new University of Stockholm; he served (1897–1906) as the leading literary critic for the Swedish newspaper Svenska Dagbladet. A considerable part of Levertin's production is concerned with Jewish problems; another part is inspired by Christian legend and classical history.

Le Vésinet (lẹ vā.zē.ne). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, on the Seine River ab. 10 mi. W of Paris. It is frequented by Parisians because of its park and its small lakes. 13,020 (1946 .

Leveson (lō'sọn), Sir Richard. b. 1570; d. at London, in July, 1605. English admiral.

Leveson-Gower (-gōr'), Francis. See Egerton, Francis (1800–57).

Leveson-Gower, George Granville. [Title, 1st Duke of Sutherland.] b. at London, Jan. 9, 1758; d. July 19, 1833. English statesman; eldest son of Granville Leveson-Gower, 1st Marquis of Stafford, by his second wife, daughter of the first Duke of Bridgewater. He was a member of the House of Commons (1778–98, except 1784–87), and was ambassador at Paris (1790–92).

Leveson-Gower, Lady Georgiana Charlotte. [Also, Lady Georgiana Charlotte Fullerton.] b. Sept. 23, 1812; d. Jan. 19, 1885. English novelist; daughter of Granville Leveson-Gower, 1st Earl Granville. She wrote Laurentia (1861), Rose Leblanc (1861), Too Strange not to be True (1864), Constance Sherwood (1865), A Stormy Life (1867), Mrs. Gerald's Niece (1869), A Will and a Way (1881), Life of St. Francis of Rome (1885), and various other lives of saints, and translations, principally from the French.

Leveson-Gower, Granville. [Title, 1st Marquis of Stafford.] b. Aug. 4, 1721; d. Oct. 26, 1803. English politician; third son of John Leveson-Gower, 1st Earl Gower. He succeeded his father in 1754, and was created Marquis of Stafford in 1786. He was a lord of the admiralty (1749), lord privy seal (1755–57, 1784–94), and president of the council (1767–79, 1783–84).

Leveson-Gower, Granville. [Title, 1st Earl Granville.] b. Oct. 12, 1773; d. at London, Jan. 8, 1846. English diplomat; third son of Granville Leveson-Gower, 1st Marquis of Stafford. He was ambassador extraordinary at St. Petersburg (1804–05), minister at Brussels (1816), and ambassador at Paris (1824–41, with interruptions).

Leveson-Gower, Granville George. [Title, 2nd Earl Granville.] b. at London, May 11, 1815; d. there, March 31, 1891. English statesman; eldest son and successor (1846) of Granville Leveson-Gower, 1st Earl Granville. He entered the House of Commons in 1836. He was undersecretary of state for foreign affairs (1840–41), and vice-president of the Board of Trade and paymaster of the forces (1848–51), entering the cabinet in 1851. He was the successor to Palmerston in the foreign office (1851–52), and president of the council (1852–54). In June, 1859, he attempted without success to form a cabinet, and accepted the presidency of the council under Palmerston. He was appointed secretary of state for the colonies under Gladstone in 1868, and was secretary for foreign affairs (1870–74). It was during this administration that the Treaty of Washington was signed (May, 1871) settling the Alabama claims, the fisheries, and the northwest boundary disputes with the U.S. by referring the problems to specific arbitrators. He reassumed charge of the foreign office under Gladstone (1880–85).

Leveson-Gower, John. [Titles: 1st Earl Gower, Viscount Trentham.] d. Dec. 25, 1754. English nobleman. Declared (1740, 1743, 1745) one of the lords justices, he served also (1742–43, 1744) as lord privy seal. In recognition of his services in raising a regiment against the Jacobite rebels, he was created (1746) Viscount Trentham and Earl Gower.

Levi (lē'vī). See also Saint Matthew.

Levi. In the Bible, a son of Jacob and Leah, the ancestor of the Levites, the priestly tribe of the Israelites. Gen. xxix. 34, etc.

Levi (lā'vē), Carlo. b. at Turin, 1902—. Italian writer and painter. He obtained a medical degree in 1924 but turned to painting. An anti-Fascist, he was twice arrested for his political views and was exiled (1935–36) to Lucania, the compartimento (region) in the arch of the Italian boot. His experiences there, miles from the nearest railroad, are related in his most famous work, Cristo si è fermato à Eboli (1945; Eng. trans., Christ Stopped at Eboli, 1947). His other work includes the personal testament Of Fear and Freedom (1950), and The Watch (1951).

Levi, Giuseppe. b. at Trieste, Oct. 14, 1872—. Italian neurologist. He worked on the cytology of the nerve cells and the development of the chondrocranium, and is distinguished for his investigations on the mechanisms of growth.

Levi, Hermann. b. at Giessen, Germany, Nov. 7, 1839; d. at Munich, May 13, 1900. German orchestral conductor, noted especially as an interpreter of Wagner and Mozart. He conducted (July 28, 1882) at Bayreuth the first performance of Wagner's Parsifal.

Lévi (lā.vē), Israel. b. at Paris, 1856; d. there, 1939. French rabbi and scholar. He was chosen (1919) chief rabbi of France, serving in that post until 1938. Author of La Légende d'Alexandre dans le Talmud et le Midrash (1887), Les Juifs et l'inquisition dans la France méridionale (1891), and Le Péché originel dans les anciennes sources juives (1907).

Levi (lē'vī), Leone. b. at Ancona, Italy, June 6, 1821; d. May 7, 1888. English jurist and statistician. He was the author of Commercial Law: Its Principles and Administration (1850–52), History of British Commerce and of the Economic Progress of the British Nation, 1763–1870 (1872), and others.

Lévi (lā.vē), Sylvain. b. at Paris, March 28, 1863; d. there, 1935. French East Indian scholar. Author of L'Inde et le monde (India and the World, 1926), and other works on India and the Far East.

Léviathan (lā.vyà.tāñ). [English title, The Dark Journey.] Novel (1929; Eng. trans., 1929) by Julien Green.

Levi ben Gershon (lē'vī ben gėr'shọn). [Also, Gersonides.] b. at Bagnols, in Languedoc, France; d. probably at Perpignan, France, 1344. Jewish philosopher, rationalist, mathematician, astronomer, and Biblical scholar. He wrote books on trigonometry and a treatise on the parallel axiom. In astronomy he invented the Jacob's staff, an instrument for measuring visual angles, and the camera obscura, with the aid of which he made several new observations. He wrote commentaries on the Bible, the Talmud, on Aristotle, and on the commentaries of Averroës on Aristotle. His chief work is Milhamoth Adonai (The Wars of God), on which he worked for 12 years (1317–29), and in which he presents his religious philosophy. It deals with the immortality of the soul, prophecy, divine knowledge, providence, miracles, and the creation of the world. At the instigation of Pope Clement VI, a Latin translation of part of the work dealing with astronomy as it was understood by the Arabs was made during his lifetime and published in 1342. He came from a long line of pious scholars, and his Biblical commentaries gave him a certain standing in the Jewish community, but it does not appear that he ever officiated as a rabbi or was offered a rabbinical post. It may be that his reputation as a rationalist and his tendency to depart from strict orthodoxy operated against him. He spent some time at Avignon and Orange, and is generally believed to have died at Perpignan. His theories and his inventions had a great influence on modern astronomy. His great work, which is modeled after the Moreh Nebuhim of Maimonides, was not published until 1560 (new ed., Leipzig, 1866).

Levice (le'vi.tse). [German, Lewentz; Hungarian, Léva.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Nitra, in S Slovakia, in the valley of the Hron River NE of Komárno. It is the marketing center of a rich agricultural region. 11,749 (1947).

Levi-Civita (lā'vē.chē'vē.tā), Tullio. b. at Padua, Italy, March 29, 1873; d. at Rome, Dec. 29, 1941. Italian mathematician, one of the creators of the absolute differential calculus. He developed the idea of covariant differentiation and the theory of the curvature of spaces in Riemannian geometry, and he applied these to the theory of relativity.

Levico (lā'vē.kō). Resort town in N Italy, in the Italian Tyrol, in the compartimento (region) of Trentino-Alto Adige, in the province of Trente, ab. 9 mi. SE of Trent. Pop. ab. 3,500.

Levin (le.vin'), Meyer. b. at Chicago, Oct. 8, 1905—. American novelist. He served on the staff of the Chicago Daily News, settled (c1929) in Palestine, and upon his return to the U.S. became a member of the editorial staffs of Esquire and Ken. He was an overseas news correspondent during World War II. His novels include Reporter (1929), Frankie and Johnnie (1930), The New Bridge (1933), The Old Branch (1937), Citizens (1940), and

My Father's House (1947). In Search (1950) is an autobiography.

Levin (lę.vēn'), Rahel. See Varnhagen von Ense, Rahel Antonie Friederike.

Leviné (le.vē.nā'), Eugene. [Original name, Nissen Berg; pseudonym, Goldberg.] b. at St. Petersburg, 1883; executed at Munich, June 5, 1919. German revolutionist. He joined the Independent Social Democratic Party, and became editor (1919) of the Communist Party paper, Rote Fahne. He was court-martialed and shot for an attempt to overthrow the government of Bavaria.

Levine (lę.vēn'), Jack. b. at Boston, Jan. 3, 1915—. American expressionist painter and water-colorist, best known for his satiric works. Examples of his work are owned by the Museum of Modern Art and the Metropolitan Museum at New York, Fogg Art Museum at Cambridge, Mass., and other galleries.

Levinthal (lev'in.thôl), Bernard Louis. b. in Lithuania, 1865; d. Sept. 23, 1952. American rabbi, head of the United Orthodox Hebrew Congregations of Philadelphia and rabbi of Congregation B'nai Abraham at that city. He was one of the founders (1902) of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States, of which he was the first president, and took part (1917) in the organization of the American Jewish Congress.

Levinthal, Israel Herbert. b. at Vilna, Lithuania, 1888 —. American rabbi; son of Bernard Louis Levinthal. He was ordained (1910) at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. Among his several Brooklyn, N.Y., congregations, he was rabbi at the Brooklyn Jewish Center, where he founded the Institute for Jewish Studies for Adults.

Lévis (lē'vis; French, lā.vēs). [Also: Levis, Point Levi.] City in S Quebec, Canada, a river port on the St. Lawrence River, opposite the city of Quebec, with which it is connected by ferry. 13,162 (1951).

Levites (lē'vīts). Specifically, a body of assistants to the priests in the tabernacle and temple service of the Jews. This body was composed of all males of the tribe of Levi, between 30 (or 25) and 50 years of age, exclusive of the family of Aaron, which constituted the priesthood. Originally they guarded the tabernacle, and assisted in carrying it and its vessels, and in preparing the corn, wine, oil, and other articles, for sacrifice; they furnished the music at the services, and had charge of the sacred treasures and revenues. After the settlement at Palestine they were relieved of some of these duties, but assumed those of religious guides and teachers. Later they were also the learned class, and became scribes, judges, and similar officials. They were allowed no territorial possessions, except 35 cities in which they lived, supported by tithes on the produce of the lands of the tribes. The Levites were divided into three families, which bore the names of the sons of Levi: the Gershonites, the Kohathites, and the Merarites.

Leviticus (lę.vit'i.kus). Canonical book of the Old Testament, the third book of Moses or of the Pentateuch, containing principally the laws and regulations relating to the priests and Levites and to religious ceremonies, or the body of the ceremonial law.

Levittown (lev'it.toun). Unincorporated community in SE New York, on Long Island, in Nassau County. It is a residential suburban community developed as a large-scale housing project in 1947–51. Pop. ab. 50,000.

Levittown. Unincorporated community in SE Pennsylvania, in Bucks County. It has been developed since 1950 as a residential town for the workers at a new steel mill and at other industrial enterprises in the vicinity. Area, ab. 5.5 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 55,000.

Levitzki (lę.vits'ki), Mischa. b. at Kremenchug, Russia, May 25, 1898; d. at Avon-by-the-Sea, N.J., Jan. 2, 1941. Russian pianist and composer. Among his compositions are The Enchanted Nymph and Arabesque valsante.

Levkas (lef.käs'). See Leukas.

Levoča (le'vô.chä). [Hungarian, Löcse; German, Leutschau.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Košice, in Slovakia, in the Carpathian Mountains. It is called the "Slovakian Nuremberg" because of its many old buildings. Among them are Saint Jacob's Cathedral, the largest Gothic edifice in Slovakia, with many art treasures, the 14th-century Franciscan church, the town hall, and Thurzov House. There are various small industries and a historical museum. It is a tourist center; resorts and mineral springs are in the vicinity. 7,427 (1947).

Lévrier Bay (lā.vrē.ā'). [French, Baie du Lévrier.] Arm of the Atlantic Ocean on the W coast of Africa, separated from the sea by a peninsula of which Cape Blanc is the tip.

Levroux (lę.vrō). Town in C France, in the department of Indre, ab. 13 mi. NW of Châteauroux. It has leather industries and a 13th-century church. 3,268 (1946).

Levuka (lā.vö'kä). Town in the Fiji islands, on Ovalau island, close to the large island of Viti Levu. It is the chief port of Ovalau, and was the capital of the Fiji islands until 1882. Pop. ab. 2,000.

Levy (lē'vi), Amy. b. at Clapham, London, Nov. 10, 1861; committed suicide Sept. 10, 1889. English poet and novelist. She wrote several volumes of poems, including Xantippe and other Poems (1881), A Minor Poet (1884), and A London Plane-tree (1889), and the novel Reuben Sachs (1889).

Levy, Benn. [Full name, Benn Wolfe Levy.] b. at London, March 7, 1900—. English playwright and politician. He was a member (1945–50) of Parliament. Author of This Woman Business, Mud and Treacle, Mrs. Moonlight, Art and Mrs. Bottle, The Devil Passes, Evergreen, Springtime for Henry, The Poet's Heart, The Jealous God, and Clutterbuck. He was the translator of Topaze from the French of Marcel Pagnol.

Lévy (lā.vē), Calmann. b. at Phalsbourg, in Lorraine, France, Oct. 19, 1819; d. June 18, 1891. French bookseller and editor; brother of Michel Lévy.

Levy (lē'vi), Edward. See Burnham, 1st Baron.

Lévy (lā.vē), Émile. b. at Paris, Aug. 29, 1826; d. there, April 4, 1890. French genre and portrait painter. He was a pupil of the École des Beaux-Arts, of De Pujol, and of Picot, and won the Grand Prix de Rome in 1854.

Levy (lē'vi), Julius. See Rodenberg, Julius.

Levy, Louis Edward. b. at Stenowitz, in Bohemia, Oct. 12, 1846; d. Feb. 16, 1919. American photoengraver, inventor, and author. Founder (1875) of the Levy Photo-Engraving Company at Baltimore, Md., he subsequently established (1877) the Levytype Company at Philadelphia. He published (1887–90) the Philadelphia Evening Herald. He was the inventor, with David Bachrach, Jr., of the "levytype," a photochemical engraving process (patented 1875) and, with Max Levy, of the Levy half-tone screen, an etched glass grating (patented 1893). Author of The Jewish Year (1865), The Jewish Refugees in the United States (1895), and Recollections of Forty Years: A Photo-Engraving Retrospect (1912).

Lévy (lā.vē), Maurice. b. at Ribeauvillé, France, Feb. 28, 1838; d. at Paris, Sept. 30, 1910. French mathematician and engineer. His books include Leçons sur les marées (1867), La Statique graphique et ses applications aux constructions (1874), and Éléments de cinématique et de mécanique (1902).

Levy (lē'vi), Max. b. at Detroit, Mich., March 9, 1857; d. at Allenhurst, N.J., July 31, 1926. American photoengraver and inventor; brother of Louis Edward Levy. He was associated with his brother in the Levytype Company at Philadelphia and in the invention (1891) of the Levy half-tone screen, and manufactured (1893–1926) half-tone screens. He was the inventor (1917) of the hemocytometer for counting the number of corpuscles in a blood specimen.

Lévy (lā.vē), Michel. b. at Phalsbourg, in Lorraine, France, Dec. 20, 1821; d. at Paris, May 6, 1875. French bookseller and publisher; brother of Calmann Lévy. He is credited with first having had the idea of publishing good books in inexpensive, paper-covered editions.

Levy (lē'vi), Uriah Phillips. b. at Philadelphia, April 22, 1792; d. at New York, March 22, 1862. American naval officer. He was flag officer (1860) of the Mediterranean squadron. He purchased "Monticello," Jefferson's home, as a public shrine, but the contesting of his will prevented execution of the bequest until the U.S. acquired the property in 1923.

Lévy-Bruhl (lā.vē.brül), Lucien. b. at Paris, April 10, 1857; d. there, March 13, 1939. French philosopher, psychologist, and sociologist, best known for his studies in the field of primitive religion. He served (1899 et seq.) as professor at the Sorbonne. A follower of Durkheim, he sought to apply the theory of collective representations to an interpretation of primitive mentality. His research methods stressed the comparative, as against the evolutionary, philosophical approach in anthropology. Author of Les Fonctions mentales dans les sociétés inférieures (1910), La Mentalité primitive (1922; Eng. trans., 1923), L'Âme primitive (1927), and Le Surnaturel et la nature dans la mentalité primitive (1931).

Levy-Dorn (lā'vē.dôrn'), Max. b. at Berlin, Aug. 1, 1863; d. there, June 20, 1929. German roentgenologist. He made notable studies in the diagnosis of diseases of the thorax and the abdominal organs; introduced orthodiagraphy, a method using an apparatus for the determining of the exact dimensions of the heart; formulated the crossfire method in x-ray therapy for protection of the operator from x-rays; and suggested preoperative radiation of cancer. He studied the effect of x-rays on cholesterol and made the first stereoscopic and cinematographic x-ray pictures.

Lewald (lā'vält), Fanny. [Married name, Stahr.] b. at Königsberg, in East Prussia, March 24, 1811; d. at Dresden, Germany, Aug. 5, 1889. German novelist and writer of travel books, a staunch defender in her day of women's rights. Among her novels are Klementine (1842), Eine Lebensfrage (1845), Prinz Louis Ferdinand (1849), and Von Geschlecht zu Geschlecht (1863–65).

Lewentz (lā'vents). German name of Levice.

Lewes (lō'is). Town in SE Delaware, in Sussex County, on the S shore of Delaware Bay: fishing port, resort, and port of entry into the U.S. A Dutch settlement was made here in 1631. Pop. 2,904 (1950).

Lewes. Municipal borough and sheep-marketing town in SE England, the county seat of East Sussex, on the river Ouse ab. 50 mi. S of London by rail. Lewes is the original home of the famous South Downs sheep. It was a medieval port, and contains an ancient castle which once guarded the water-gap of the Ouse through the South Downs. Near Lewes, on May 14, 1264, Henry III was defeated by the barons under Simon de Montfort. 13,104 (1951).

Lewes, Charles Lee. b. at London, Nov. 29, 1740; d. July 23, 1803. English comedian; grandfather of George Henry Lewes.

Lewes, George Henry. b. at London, April 18, 1817; d. there, Nov. 28, 1878. English philosophical and miscellaneous writer, largely influenced by the philosophy of August Comte. Lewes was married in 1840, but in 1854 left his wife, living thereafter with George Eliot (Mary Anne Evans). He wrote a Biographical History of Philosophy (1845–46), The Spanish Drama (1847), The Life of Goethe (1855), Seaside Studies (1858), Physiology of Common Life (1859–60), Studies in Animal Life (1862), Aristotle (1864), Problems of Life and Mind (1874–79), Actors and the Art of Acting (1875), and Physical Basis of Mind (1877). He was the first editor (1865–66) of the Fortnightly Review.

Lewes, Mise of. Agreement between the defeated royal party under Henry III of England and the barons under Simon de Montfort in 1264, directly after the battle of Lewes. It provided for native councilors and the reorganization of Parliament, reinstating the earlier (1258) Provisions of Oxford.

Lewes River. River in SW Yukon Territory, Canada, flowing NW to join the Pelly at Fort Selkirk to form the Yukon River: one of the two principal headstreams of the Yukon. Length, ab. 338 mi.

Lewin (lō'in), Thomas. b. April 19, 1805; d. Jan. 5, 1877. English lawyer, antiquary, and writer. He wrote A Practical Treatise on the Law of Trusts and Trustees (1837), The Life and Epistles of St. Paul (1851), An Essay on the Chronology of the New Testament (1854), and other works.

Lewis (lō'is). Northern and larger portion of Lewis with Harris island, in N Scotland, in the Outer Hebrides, in Ross and Cromarty county. When Harris, the S part of the island, is included, the district is also known as the Lews. Stornoway is the chief town. Area, ab. 575 sq. mi.; pop. 24,685 (1931).

Lewis, Alfred Henry. [Pseudonym, Dan Quin.] b. at Cleveland, Ohio, c1858; d. at New York, Dec. 23, 1914. American journalist and author. He is chiefly remembered for his stories of cowboy life, among them Wolfville (1897), Wolfville Days (1902), Wolfville Nights (1902), Wolfville Folks (1908), and Faro Nell and Her Friends (1913). He headed (1894) William Randolph Hearst's Washington bureau.

Lewis, Andrew. b. in County Donegal, Ireland, 1720; d. in Bedford County, Va., Sept. 26, 1781. American soldier. He was a major in George Washington's regiment on Edward Braddock's expedition against Fort Duquesne in 1755, and commander of an expedition against the Shawnee Indians in 1756. He served in the attack on Fort Duquesne in 1758, and was captured and taken to Montreal. He gained the victory of Point Pleasant over the Indians, Oct. 10, 1774, and served as brigadier general in the Continental army from March 1, 1776, to April 5, 1777.

Lewis, Cecil Day. [Pseudonym, Nicholas Blake; original name, Cecil Day-Lewis.] b. at Ballintubber, Ireland, April 27, 1904—. English poet and critic, with W. H. Auden and Stephen Spender a principal exponent of the "poetic political" school of the 1930's in England. Author of The Friendly Tree (1936), Child of Misfortune (1939), Poetry for You (1944), The Poetic Image (1947), a verse translation of Vergil's Georgics (1940), the modern morality play Noah and the Waters, as well as numerous detective novels under the pseudonym of Nicholas Blake. His verse includes Transitional Poem (1929), From Feathers to Iron (1931), The Magnetic Mountain (1933), A Time to Dance (1935), Overtures to Death (1938), and Word Over All (1943).

Lewis, Charles. b. at Gloucester, England, 1753; d. at Edinburgh, July 12, 1795. English painter of still life.

Lewis, Charles Bertrand. [Pseudonym, M. Quad.] b. at Liverpool, Ohio, Feb. 15, 1842; d. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Aug. 21, 1924. American journalist and writer of humorous western stories. He published sketches in the Detroit Free Press while on the staff as legislative reporter (1869 et seq.), and a regular column (1891 et seq.) for the New York World. Author of Brother Gardner's Lime Kiln Club (1882) and The Life and Troubles of Mr. Bowser (1902).

Lewis, Charles George. b. at Enfield, Middlesex, England, June 13, 1808; d. June 16, 1880. English engraver, best known for his engravings of Landseer's works.

Lewis, Charlton Miner. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., March 4, 1866; d. March 12, 1923. American professor of English literature and language; son of Charlton Thomas Lewis. He was instructor (1895–98), assistant professor (1898–99), and professor (1899 et seq.) at Yale. Author of Foreign Sources of Modern English Versification (1898), The Beginnings of English Literature (1900), The Principles of English Verse (1906), and The Genesis of Hamlet (1907).

Lewis, Charlton Thomas. b. at West Chester, Pa., Feb. 25, 1834; d. at Morristown, N.J., May 26, 1904. American lawyer and scholar. As president (1893–1904) of the Prison Association of New York, he was a delegate (1895) to the International Prison Congress and vice-president (1897) of the National Prison Association.

Lewis, Clarence Irving. b. at Stoneham, Mass., April 12, 1883—. American philosopher. He was professor of philosophy (1930 et seq.) at Harvard. Author of Survey of Symbolic Logic (1918), Mind and the World-Order (1929), An Analysis of Knowledge and Valuation (1946), and other books. He was coauthor with C. H. Langford of Symbolic Logic (1932).

Lewis, C. S. [Pseudonym, Clive Hamilton; full name, Clive Staples Lewis.] b. at Belfast, Ireland, Nov. 29, 1898—. British medievalist and Christian apologist. Author of The Pilgrim's Regress (1933), The Allegory of Love (1936), Out of the Silent Planet (1938), The Screwtape Letters (1942), Perelandra (1943), Christian Behaviour (1943), That Hideous Strength (1945), The Great Divorce (1945), Miracles (1947), and Transposition (1949).

Lewis, David. b. in Wales, c1683; d. at Low Leyton, Essex, England, in April, 1760. British poet, author of Philip of Macedon, a tragedy (1727).

Lewis, D. B. Wyndham. [Full name, Dominic Bevan Wyndham Lewis.] b. 1894—. English journalist and writer, especially of biographies. His books include On Stare and Other Conceits (1927), François Villon (1928), King Spider—Louis XI of France (1930), Emperor of the West, Charles V (1932), Ronsard (1944), Take it to Bed

(1944), The Hooded Hawk—Or, the Case of Mr. Boswell (1947), and Four Favourites (1948).

Lewis, Estelle Anna Blanche. [Maiden name, Robinson.] b. near Baltimore, in April, 1824; d. at London, Nov. 24, 1880. American poet.

Lewis, Mrs. Ethelreda. b. in England; d. at Port Alfred, Cape of Good Hope province, South Africa, Aug. 1, 1946. South African novelist. Author of The Harp (1925), The Flying Emerald, and Mantis (1926), novels of African life, she achieved an international audience with The Life and Works of Alfred Aloysius Horn, an Old Visitor, Taken Down and Edited by Ethelreda Lewis (1927; American title, Trader Horn) and Harold the Webbed, or The Young Vykings (1928). Trader Horn was one of the greatest popular successes of its time in the U.S.

Lewis, Fort. Military reservation in W Washington, in Pierce County.

Lewis, Francis. b. at Llandaff, Wales, March 21, 1713; d. at New York, Dec. 31, 1802. American patriot, signer of the Declaration of Independence as member of Congress from New York.

Lewis, Frederick Christian. b. at London, March 14, 1779; d. at Enfield, Middlesex, England, Dec. 18, 1856. English engraver and landscape painter. He engraved works of Raphael, Michelangelo, Claude, Poussin, Flaxman, Turner, Landseer, and others.

Lewis, Sir George Cornewall. b. at London, April 21, 1806; d. at Harpton Court, Radnorshire, Wales, April 13, 1863. English statesman, scholar, and author. He was poor law commissioner for England and Wales (1839–47), undersecretary for the home department (1848), financial secretary to the treasury (1850–52), chancellor of the exchequer (1855–58), home secretary (1859–61), and secretary for war (1861–63). He was editor of, and a contributor to, the Edinburgh Review from 1852 to 1855. His chief work is Enquiry into the Credibility of the Early Roman History (1855); among his other works are books on international law, the philosophy of politics, and ancient astronomy.

Lewis, Harry Sinclair. See Lewis, Sinclair.

Lewis, Ida. [Married name, Wilson.] b. at Newport, R.I., 1841; d. there, Oct. 24, 1911. American heroine; daughter of a keeper of the Lime Rock lighthouse. She was official keeper from 1889, and was noted for her courage in saving life.

Lewis, Ida. Actress, better known under pseudonym of Arthur, Julia.

Lewis, Isaac Newton. b. at New Salem, Pa., Oct. 12, 1858; d. at Hoboken, N.J., Nov. 9, 1931. American artillery officer, inventor of the Lewis machine gun (patented 1911). Among his inventions are the Lewis depression position-finder (1891), an electric car-lighting system (1893), a gas-propelled torpedo (1909), a system of time-interval clocks and bell signals for artillery fire control, and quick-reading mechanical vernier scales. He introduced the modern corps organization of artillery, adapted (1902) by the army. After much litigation, the Lewis machine gun was accepted in World War I by the U.S. government for arming airplanes.

Lewis, John. b. at Bristol, England, Aug. 29, 1675; d. Jan. 16, 1747. English biographer, antiquary, and bibliographer.

Lewis, John Frederick. b. at London, 1805; d. at Walton on the Thames, England, Aug. 15, 1876. English etcher and painter, at first of animals but later of Highland Scottish, Italian, Spanish (for which he was called "Spanish Lewis"), and Oriental subjects.

Lewis, John Llewellyn. b. at Lucas, Iowa, Feb. 12, 1880—. American labor leader. He worked as a coal miner, joined the United Mine Workers' Union (affiliated with the American Federation of Labor), and served as its legislative agent (1909–11), vice-president (1917 et seq.), and president (1920 et seq.). He was an organizer (1911–17) for the American Federation of Labor and a powerful supporter of William Green for the presidency after the death of Samuel Gompers. He was a leader in organizing (1935) the Committee for Industrial Organization (reorganized in 1938 as the Congress of Industrial Organizations) after a policy disagreement with the American Federation of Labor, Lewis supporting a plan to organize the "heavy" industries on an industry-wide basis rather than on a crafts basis. He was a supporter of Franklin D. Roosevelt during the 1930's, but broke with him in 1940. He served (1935–41) as president of the CIO, resigning after Roosevelt's election for a third term. He remained head of the United Mine Workers' Union, and after a quarrel with Philip Murray took his union out of the CIO, several years later returning to the American Federation of Labor and serving (1946–47) as a member of its council. In 1947 the United Mine Workers again became an independent union. Lewis's policy of serving first of all the immediate welfare of the members of his union led him to call several strikes during the period of national emergency during and after World War II. Although there were obvious tactical advantages (for Lewis's union) in this course of action, it led to much indignation on the part of a large segment of the public, to whom it seemed clear that the national interest was being placed second to the special interests of the coal miners (indeed, it is now generally conceded that Lewis's intransigence was a principal cause of the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act (1947), which curbed the power of all unions).

Lewis, Matthew Gregory. [Called "Monk" Lewis.] b. at London, July 9, 1775; d. at sea, May 14, 1818. English poet, dramatist, and romance writer, best known as the author of the Gothic novel Ambrosio, or the Monk (1795), the most vivid exemplar of the tale of weird horror popular in the late 18th century, from which he was commonly known as "Monk" Lewis. He visited (1792–83) Weimar, became (1794) an attaché of the British legation at The Hague, was a member (1796–1802) of the House of Commons, and went to Jamaica (where he owned property) in November, 1815, and again toward the end of 1817. He also wrote Village Virtues, a satire (1796), The Castle Spectre (acted at the Drury Lane Theatre, London, Dec. 14, 1797), Tales of Horror (1799), Alphonso, King of Castile, a tragedy (1801), and Adelgitha, a tragedy (acted at Drury Lane, April 30, 1807).

Lewis, Meriwether. b. in Albemarle County, Va., Aug. 18, 1774, d. in Tennessee, Oct. 11, 1809. American explorer and governor, coleader of the Lewis and Clark expedition into the American Northwest. A neighbor of Thomas Jefferson, he was educated privately and at the age of 20 took part as a member of the militia in suppressing the Whiskey Rebellion (1794) in western Pennsylvania. He enlisted (May 1, 1795) in the regular army and was commissioned an ensign. In that year he was with Anthony Wayne during the campaign which terminated the Indian wars in the Northwest Territory; it was during this time that he met William Clark, under whom he served. Promoted (1799) to lieutenant, he was on duty at Detroit in 1801 when Jefferson, several days after his election to the presidency, offered Lewis the post of private secretary. Lewis accepted, taking up his quarters at the White House after the inauguration. During his two years there Lewis often discussed with Jefferson the latter's long-maturing plan to search for a land route to the Pacific Ocean, a venture which had enlisted Lewis's enthusiasm as early as 1792. In 1803, after Jefferson sent his private message to Congress, that body appropriated funds for the journey. Lewis was sent to Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pa., to study astronomy and map-making in preparation for the undertaking. He chose William Clark as his colleague, and the two assembled (1803–04) their expedition in Illinois, near the mouth of the Missouri River, and set out from St. Charles, Mo., in the spring of 1804. Following the Missouri to its source, they reached the Columbia River and the Pacific Ocean in the late summer of 1805. While the expedition was led by both men, the guiding hand was that of Lewis. The epoch-making journey was instrumental in opening up commerce routes to the West and is accounted a milestone in the expansion of the American nation. The expedition returned to St. Louis, Mo., on Sept. 23, 1806, and in November, 1806, Lewis and Clark set out for Washington, D.C. Resigning from the army, Lewis was appointed governor of the province of Louisiana. In 1809, learning that some bills he had issued on the government had been repudiated, he started out from St. Louis for Washington, D.C. He died at an inn in central Tennessee before reaching his objective. Although Jefferson believed that Lewis had committed suicide, it is generally held that Lewis was robbed and murdered. In 1848 the state of Tennessee built in his honor a monument situated in the county named after him. See any one of the several editions of the History of the Expedition under the Command of Captains Lewis and Clark.

Lewis, Morgan. b. at New York, Oct. 16, 1754; d. there, April 7, 1844. American general, jurist, and politician; son of Francis Lewis. He was governor of New York (1805–06).

Lewis, Percy Wyndham. See Lewis, Wyndham.

Lewis, Sinclair. b. at Sauk Center, Minn., Feb. 7, 1885; d. near Rome, Italy, Jan. 10, 1951. American novelist and playwright. He received a B.A. (1907) from Yale, and worked (1907–16) as a journalist and editor. He was the first American to receive the Nobel prize (1930) in literature (a Pulitzer prize was offered to him earlier, in 1926; he refused it). He is noted for his satirical, but often sympathetic, portrayals of American middle-class life, both in its pretentiousness and in its emptiness of values as seen by Lewis. Author of Our Mr. Wrenn (1914), The Trail of the Hawk (1915), The Job (1917), Main Street (1920), Babbitt (1922), Arrowsmith (1925), Mantrap (1926), Elmer Gantry (1927), The Man Who Knew Coolidge (1928), Dodsworth (1929, which he dramatized, 1934, with Sidney Howard), Ann Vickers (1933), Work of Art (1934), It Can't Happen Here (1935, which he dramatized, 1936, with John C. Moffitt), The Prodigal Parents (1938), Bethel Merriday (1940), Gideon Planish (1943), Cass Timberlane (1945), Kingsblood Royal (1947), and The God-Seeker (1949). His last work, World So Wide (a sequel to Dodsworth, against a background of Italy), was being serialized in a magazine at the time of his death. With Lloyd Lewis, he wrote the play Jayhawker (1934), and he was author of the play Angela Is Twenty-Two (1940).

Lewis, Tayler. b. at Northumberland, N.Y., March 27, 1802; d. at Schenectady, N.Y., May 11, 1877. American scholar and author. Among his works are Six Days of Creation (1855), The Bible and Science (1856), and The Divine Human in the Scripture (1860).

Lewis, William Thomas. b. at Ormskirk, Lancashire, England, c1748; d. at London, Jan. 13, 1811. English comic actor. Among the parts which he created are Falkland in The Rivals, Wyndham in the Man of Reason, Sir Charles Racket in Three Weeks after Marriage, Counsellor Witmore in Kenrick's Duellist, Beverly in Colman's Man of Business, Arviragus in Mason's Caractacus, Millamour in Murphy's Know your own Mind, Doricourt in The Belle's Stratagem, and Egerton in The Man of the World.

Lewis, Winford Lee. b. at Gridley, Calif., May 29, 1878; d. at Chicago, Jan. 20, 1943. American chemist, the developer (1918) of Lewisite, a poison gas used during World War I.

Lewis, Wyndham. [Full name, Percy Wyndham Lewis.] b. 1884—. English painter, draftsman, and writer who founded vorticism, the first English abstract movement, which drew its subject matter from futurism and its method from the abstractionists. In 1914 and 1915 he published Blast, the official journal of vorticism; in 1921 and 1922 he published The Tyro. Meanwhile he abandoned pure abstraction and reintroduced the human figure. His principal paintings include Plan of War and Women; among his written works are Tarr (1918), The Art of Being Ruled (1926), Time and Western Man (1928), The Wild Body (1931), Hitler (1931), Doom of Youth (1932), Men Without Art (1934), The Revenge for Love (1937), The Mysterious Mr. Bull (1938), The Hitler Cult (1939), The Vulgar Streak (1941), Anglosaxony (1942), and America and Cosmic Man (1948).

Lewis and Clark Cavern State Park. State park in SW Montana, in Jefferson County, established in 1935. The caverns were discovered in 1902, and contain very colorful formations. Area, ab. 4 sq. mi.

Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition. International exposition held at Portland, Ore., in 1905, to celebrate the centennial of the exploration of the Oregon country by Meriwether Lewis and William Clark.

Lewis Baboon (ba.bön'). See Baboon, Lewis and Philip.

Lewisburg (lö'is.bėrg). Borough in E central Pennsylvania, county seat of Union County; manufactures of furniture and textiles. It is the seat of Bucknell University. It was platted in 1785. Pop. 5,268 (1950).

Lewisburg. Town in C Tennessee, county seat of Marshall County; shipping point for livestock; manufactures of condensed milk, cheese, butter, and pencils. 5,164 (1950).

Lewisham (lö'i.shạm, lū'is.ạm). Metropolitan borough of London, in the SE part, on the river Ravensbourne, ab. 6 mi. SE of Charing Cross Station. Lewisham is a residential district, and the borough which suffered the heaviest destruction (especially from flying bombs) in World War II. 227,551 (1951).

Lewisham, Viscount. A title of Legge, William.

Lewisohn (lö'i.sōn), Adolph. b. at Hamburg, Germany, May 27, 1849; d. at Upper Saranac Lake, N.Y., Aug. 17, 1938. American financier and philanthropist. He was the senior member of the metals firm of Adolph Lewisohn and Sons. He donated Lewisohn Stadium to the City College of New York (at which he supported for many years the summer symphonic concerts), a building for the School of Mines to Columbia University, and gifts to Dartmouth, Princeton, Harvard, and Yale.

Lewisohn, Ludwig. b. at Berlin, May 30, 1883—. American novelist and critic. He was an editorial staff member (1919–24) of The Nation, and later became a professor at Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass. His novels include The Broken Snare (1908), Don Juan (1923), The Case of Mr. Crump (1926, first published in the U.S. in 1947), The Island Within (1928), Stephen Escott (1930), and The Last Days of Shylock (1931). He is the author of such critical works as The Modern Drama (1915), The Spirit of Modern German Literature (1916), The Poets of Modern France (1918), Israel (1925), Cities and Men (1927), and Expression in America (1932; later published as Story of American Literature, 1939). He published the autobiographies Upstream (1922) and Mid-Channel (1929), and translated Rilke, Werfel, Hauptmann, and other German authors. His more recent works include Anniversary (1948), Among the Nations (1948), and Goethe: The Story of a Man (1949).

Lewis River (lö'is). See Snake.

Lewiston (lö'is.tọn). City in W Idaho, county seat of Nez Perce County, near the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater rivers; shipping center for fruit, grain, livestock, and lumber. It was the first capital of Idaho Territory. 12,935 (1950).

Lewiston. City in SW Maine, in Androscoggin County, on the Androscoggin River, opposite Auburn, its twin city, ab. 31 mi. N of Portland. Its leading manufactures are woolen textiles. It is the seat of Bates College. 40,974 (1950).

Lewiston. Village in W New York, in Niagara County, on the Niagara River. It was the prehistoric site of Niagara Falls, which have receded to their present location during a period variously estimated from 10,000 to 50,000 years. James Fenimore Cooper is supposed to have written The Spy here. 1,626 (1950).

Lewistown (lö'is.toun). City in W central Illinois, county seat of Fulton County, near the Spoon River, ab. 35 mi. SW of Peoria, in a farming region. The poet Edgar Lee Masters lived here. In nearby Indian mounds valuable archaeological finds have been made. 2,630 (1950).

Lewistown. [Former name, Reed's Fort.] City in C Montana, county seat of Fergus County; center for an agricultural and mining area. 6,573 (1950).

Lewistown. Borough in C Pennsylvania, county seat of Mifflin County, on the Juniata River; manufactures of rayon and metal products. It is a trading center for an agricultural and dairying area. Platted in 1790, it occupies the site of a former Shawnee Indian village. 13,894 (1950).

Lewis with Harris (lö'is; har'is). Island in NW Scotland, the largest of the Outer Hebrides, divided between Ross and Cromarty county (Lewis) and Inverness-shire (Harris). It is a rocky and partly mountainous island, bleak in aspect. Most of the population lives near the coast; fishing, sheep grazing, and the manufacture of tweed are the chief activities. Area, ab. 770 sq. mi.; pop. 28,042 (1931).

Lews (loz). The. See under Lewis.

Lexer (lek'ser), Erich. b. at Freiburg im Breisgau, Germany, May 22, 1867; d. at Berlin, Dec. 4, 1937. German surgeon. He is known for his contributions to plastic surgery, reconstruction of bones and joints, and the fat-fascia procedure (1908).

Lexington (lek'sing.ton). City in N Kentucky, county seat of Fayette County, ab. 22 mi. SE of Frankfort: third largest city in the state; notable as a marketing center for horses and tobacco; manufactures include cigarettes, whiskey, furniture, clothing, flour, and electrical equipment. It is the seat of Transylvania College and the University of Kentucky. It was founded in 1779, chartered in 1782, and named for the battle of Lexington (Mass.). 55,534 (1950).

Lexington. Town in E Massachusetts, in Middlesex County, ab. 11 mi. NW of Boston: residential suburban community; site of the first state normal school in the U.S. It is noted as the scene of the first bloodshed of the American Revolution, April 19, 1775. The British (800 men) left Boston on the night of April 18, to take the colonials' military stores at Concord. The advance, under Major John Pitcairn, rushed ahead when the British commander discovered that couriers (Paul Revere and William Dawes) had ridden to warn the colonists, was confronted at Lexington Green by about 50 minutemen under Captain John Parker, and this force was dispersed with the loss of seven Americans killed. The British proceeded to Concord, and a part of the force was repulsed at the Concord bridge by the minutemen. The British commander thereupon ordered a retreat, and maintained a running fight back to Charlestown with the constantly increasing force of Americans. At Lexington he was reinforced by 1,200 men under Lord Hugh Percy. The British casualties (killed, wounded, and missing) have been given as 273; the equivalent American losses, 93. The fighting at Concord is often called the battle of Concord, while the entire day's fighting is called the battle of Lexington. 17,335 (1950).

Lexington. City in C Mississippi, county sea of Holmes County: shipping point for butter and cotton. 3,198 (1950).

Lexington. City in W Missouri, county seat of Lafayette County, on the S bank of the Missouri River ab. 40 mi. E of Kansas City: trading center for cattle, hemp, and tobacco. 5,074 (1950).

Lexington. City in S Nebraska, county seat of Dawson County: flour and feed milling. 5,068 (1950).

Lexington. City in W North Carolina, county sea of Davidson County: manufactures of flour, furniture, and cotton textiles. It was settled in 1775 and subsequently named for Lexington, Mass., the scene of the Revolutionary War battle. The Daniel Boone Memorial Park and Cave are nearby. 13,571 (1950).

Lexington. Town in W Tennessee, county seat of Henderson County. The Battle of Parker's Crossroads (1863) was fought nearby. 3,566 (1950).

Lexington. Town in W central Virginia, county seat of Rockbridge County, on the North River ab. 108 mi. W of Richmond. It is the seat of Washington and Lee University and the Virginia Military Institute. 5,976 (1950).

Lexington. A former name of Anamosa.

Lexington, Battle of. See under Lexington, Mass.

Lexinton or Lessington (les'ing.ton), Stephen de. fl. about the middle of the 13th century. English ecclesiastic.

Lexis (lek'sis), Wilhelm. b. at Eschweiler, Germany, July 17, 1837; d. at Göttingen, Germany, Aug. 24, 1914. German economist and statistician. He served (1887–1914) as professor of economics at the University of Göttingen, where he conducted (1895–1914) a seminar in insurance, the first of its kind at any university. He made outstanding studies in mathematical statistics, formulating the theory of statistical dispersion and evolving a fresh approach to the graphic treatment of mortality.

Lexourion (lēk.sō'rē.ôn). [Also, Lixourion.] Town in Greece, in the nomos (department) of Cephalonia. 5,142 (1940).

Lexovii (lek.sō'vi.ī) or Lexobii (-bi-). Ancient Celtic people in northern Gaul, mentioned by Caesar as living on the coast of what is now Normandy, near Caen and Lisieux.

Lexow (lek'sō), Clarence. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Sept. 16, 1852; d. Dec. 30, 1910. American politician and lawyer, chairman of the special committee (Lexow Committee) established (1894) to investigate corruption in New York City's police department.

Lexow Committee. Body appointed by the New York State senate on Jan. 30, 1894, for the purpose of investigating charges of corruption in the New York City Police Department, unearthed (1892 et seq.) by the crusading Presbyterian minister Charles H. Parkhurst. Intended by Thomas C. Platt's Republican machine at Albany primarily as a means to oust New York City's Tammany Hall Democrats under Richard Croker, the Lexow Committee was successful largely through the efforts of its non-Tammany Democratic counselor John W. Goff. The committee took its name from Senator Clarence Lexow, who as chairman brought to light dishonesty and graft involving high police officials as well as detectives and patrolmen. One of the results of the Lexow Committee's inquiry was the appointment in 1895 of Theodore Roosevelt as the chief police commissioner of New York City. Its exposé of Tammany Hall graft (estimated at seven million dollars annually from underworld sources alone) led to the successful campaign (1894) by the Committee of Seventy for the election of the Republican mayor William L. Strong.

Lex Romana Wisigothorum (or Visigothorum) (leks rō.mā'nạ viz''i.gō.thō'rum). See Breviarium Alaricanum.

Ley (lē), James. [Title, 1st Earl of Marlborough.] b. 1550; d. March 14, 1629. English jurist and politician. He was appointed lord chief justice of the King's Bench for Ireland (1604), lord chief justice of England (1622), and lord high treasurer (1624). He succeeded (1621) Francis Bacon as speaker of the House of Lords, and pronounced the judgment of the Lords upon him.

Ley (lī), Robert. b. at Niederbreidenbach, Germany, Feb. 15, 1890; committed suicide Oct. 25, 1945. German Nazi politician. He was a member of the Prussian diet (1929) and of the Reichstag (1932). After Hitler's accession to power he became head of the Labor Front, abolished existing trade unions, organized Kraft durch Freude (the Strength through Joy movement that regulated the spending of the workers' leisure time), and headed the organization of Germans living abroad. He was responsible for the exploitation of foreign labor for war work in Germany. He committed suicide while awaiting trial before the international war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg. Violently anti-Semitic during his years in power, he left a political testament attributing the Nazi downfall to the anti-Semitism of Hitler's regime.

Leybourn (lē'bėrn), William. b. 1626; d. c1700. English surgeon and mathematician. He was the author, with Vincent Wing, of the first English treatise on astronomy, Urania practica (1648). He also published Planometria (1650; republished as The Complete Surveyor, 1653), Arithmetick, Vulgar, Decimal, and Instrumental (1657), Census mathematicus (1690), Panarithmologia, the earliest English ready reckoner (1693), and others.

Leycester (les'tėr), Sir Peter. b. at Nether Tabley, Cheshire, England, March 3, 1614; d. there, Oct. 11, 1678. English antiquary.

Leyden (lī'dẹn). See Leiden.

Leyden, Ernst Viktor von. b. at Danzig, April 20, 1832; d. at Berlin, Oct. 5, 1910. German physician. He specialized in neurology; made clinical studies of tabes dorsalis (1863–1901), of diseases of the spinal cord (1874–76), of respiration in fever (1870); described an atrophic type of progressive muscular dystrophy seen in children (1879–80), a type of hemiplegia, called Leyden's paralysis (1875), fatty infiltration of the heart (1882), and prognosis in heart disease (1889).

Leyden (lā'dẹn), John. b. at Denholm, Roxburghshire, Scotland, Sept. 8, 1775; d. at Batavia, Java, Aug. 28, 1811. Scottish poet, physician, and Orientalist. An assistant to Walter Scott, he helped in gathering material for Minstrelsy of the Scottish Border. He wrote descriptive and other poetry based on Scottish scenes and traditions and translated material from the Persian and the Arabic. He was appointed (1803) assistant surgeon at Madras, traveled extensively in India, settled at Calcutta in 1806, was made assay-master of the mint there in 1810, and went to Java in 1811. He published A Historical and Philosophical Sketch of the Discoveries and Settlements of the Europeans in Northern and Western Africa at the Close of the Eighteenth Century (1799), an "Essay on the Languages and Literature of the Indo-Chinese Nations" (in Asiatic Researches), and others.

Leyden (līˈdẹn), Lucas van. See Lucas van Leyden.

Leyden Plate. Earliest surely dated Maya item, a carved jade pendantlike object, 8½ inches long and 3 inches wide, bearing on one surface the Maya hieroglyphic inscription equivalent to Sept. 17, 320 A.D. It was found at Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, but is thought, on the basis of style, to have been made at Tikal.

Leye (līˈẹ). Flemish name of the Lys.

Leyen (līˈẹn), Friedrich von der. b. at Bremen, Germany, Aug. 19, 1873—. German philologist and student of Germanic culture. His first important publication was Einführung in das Gotische (1907). Most of his later books deal with legends and fairy tales, in which field he edited the comprehensive collections Deutsches Sagenbuch (1908 et seq.) and Märchen der Weltliteratur (with Paul Zaunert, 1912 et seq.). He is the author also of Die Götter und Göttersagen der Germanen (1909), the critical work Deutsche Dichtung in neuer Zeit (1926), and its supplement, Die Forderung des Tages (1931).

Leygues (lāg), (Jean Claude) Georges. b. at Villeneuve-sur-Lot, Lot-et-Garonne, France, Nov. 28, 1857; d. at St.-Cloud, Seine-et-Oise, France, Sept. 1, 1933. French political leader, known for his contribution to the naval expansion of France. A deputy from 1885, he held (1920) the premiership and the ministries of public instruction, interior, colonies, and navy. He was largely instrumental in developing the French navy during World War I while minister in the Clemenceau cabinet. After the war, he again held (1925–30) the navy post. He organized, with Louis Barthou, the moderate republican group, L'Union Républicaine.

Leyland (lāˈland). Urban district in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 5 mi. S of Preston, ab. 205 mi. NW of London by rail. 14,722 (1951).

Leyland (lēˈland), John. See Leland or Leyland, John.

Leylio (lāˈlyō). Stage name of Andreini, Giovanni Battista.

Leypoldt (līˈpōlt), Frederick. [Pseudonym, L. Pylodet.] b. at Stuttgart, Germany, Nov. 17, 1835; d. March 31, 1884. American bibliographer, editor, and publisher. He established (1866) the book firm, with Henry Holt, of Leypoldt and Holt. He founded (1876) the Library Journal, which he published. He inaugurated (c1873) the series of book catalogues now called The Publishers' Trade List Annual. His other bibliographical ventures included the Literary Bulletin, a Monthly Record of Current Literature (1868), which became The Publishers' Weekly in 1873, and the Index Medicus (1879 et seq.).

Leyr (lir). See Lear.

Leys (līs), Baron Hendrik. b. at Antwerp, Belgium, Feb. 18, 1815; d. there, Aug. 26, 1869. Belgian historical and genre painter.

Leyte (lāˈtẹ; Spanish, lāˈtā). Province in the C Philippine Islands. It consists of the islands of Leyte, Biliran, Panaon, and numerous small islands SW of Samar, from which Leyte is separated by the narrow and winding Janabatas Channel. The island of Leyte is indented by several bays. Mountain ranges traverse the principal islands from NW to SE. Volcanic cones exceeding 4,000 ft. in height are found in S Leyte and in N Biliran. Coal is found in NE Leyte and in Biliran, and gold in Biliran and Panaon. Agricultural products include copra, rice, bananas, sweet potatoes, sugar cane, and a very large yield of Manila hemp. The race is Visayan. Capital, Tacloban; area, ab. 3,084 sq. mi.; pop. 1,006,891 (1948).

Leyte. Island in the E central Philippines, N of Mindanao, W of Samar. It was the scene of the first landing of U.S. forces under the command of General Douglas MacArthur, on the E coast near Tacloban, Oct. 20, 1944. This marked the beginning of the campaign which resulted in the liberation of the Philippines from the Japanese, after nearly three years of occupation. Length, ab. 115 mi.; area, ab. 2,785 sq. mi.; pop. 835,532 (1939).

Leyte Gulf. Embayment of the Pacific Ocean in E Philippine Islands, bordered on the N by the island of Samar, on the W by Leyte, and on the S by Dinagat. It is connected to the Mindanao Sea on the SW by Surigao Strait, and to the Samar Sea on the NW by Janabatas Channel. In World War II it was the scene of a great naval and air engagement between Japanese and U.S. forces (Oct. 23–27, 1944).

Leyton (lāˈtọn). Municipal borough in SE England, in Essex, ab. 9 mi. NE of St. Pancras Station, London. 105,183 (1951).

Lezghians (lezˈgi.ạnz). [Also: Kyurins, Lesghians, Lesghins.] Tall rugged mountain people, of Mohammedan faith, of Dagestan in the Caucasus, of whom a few have spread also into the Azerbaijan Soviet Socialist Republic. Their language, called Lezghian or Kyurinish, belongs to the North Caucasian group of the Caucasian family of languages, unrelated to any of the Indo-European or Turkic languages of their neighbors. They numbered ab. 105,000 in 1931.

Lézignan-Corbières (lā.zē.nyäṅ.kôr.byer). Town in S France, in the department of Aude, ab. 21 mi. E of Carcassonne. It is a center for trade in wine and hides. 6,986 (1946).

Lhasa (läˈsạ, lasˈạ). [Also: Lassa; called the "Forbidden City."] Capital of Tibet, in the SE part of the country on a tributary of the Brahmaputra River at ab. 11,900 ft. above sea level. It is an important trading center, is celebrated as a place of pilgrimage, and is remarkable for the number and size of its lamaseries. The chief building is the Potala, the seat of government and of the Dalai Lama. Lhasa became the residence of the Dalai Lama in the 17th century. It has been visited by few Europeans. Permanent pop. ab. 20,000 (increases to ab. 100,000 in market time).

Lhermitte (ler.mēt), Léon Augustin. b. at Mont-St.-Père, Aisne, France, Jan. 31, 1844; d. 1925. French genre painter. He was a vice-president of the Société Nationale des Beaux-Arts. Among his pictures are Harvesters' Wages (1882; in the Musée du Luxembourg), The Vintage (1884; Metropolitan Museum of Art), and Sainte-Claire-Deville (1889; Sorbonne).

Lhévinne (lā.vēnˈ), Josef. b. in Russia, Dec. 3, 1874; d. 1944. Russian pianist. He toured extensively in Europe, and after 1905 in America, where he taught at the Juilliard Graduate School.

L'Homme Armé (lom ȧr.mā). See Homme Armé, L'.

L'Homme qui Rit (lom kē rē). See Homme qui Rit, L'.

L'Hospital (lo.pē.tȧl), Guillaume François Antoine de. [Also: L'Hôpital; title, Marquis de St. Mesme.] b. at Paris, 1661; d. there, Feb. 2, 1704. French mathematician, one of the first to write on the calculus, and author of popular textbooks. His name is recalled in the "rule of L'Hospital" on indeterminate forms. He wrote Analyse des infiniment petits (1696), the first textbook on the calculus; his posthumous Traité analytique des sections coniques (1707) was the most popular textbook on analytic geometry during the 18th century.

L'Hospital, Michel de. [Also, L'Hôpital.] b. at Aigueperse, in Auvergne (now Puy-de-Dôme), France, c1505; d. March 13, 1573. French statesman. He was sent (1547) on a mission to the Council of Trent, which was at that time sitting at Bologna. He was made superintendent of the royal finances in 1554, and in 1560 became chancellor of France. He caused the States-General to be assembled at Orléans in 1560, and procured the passage in 1562 of the Edict of January, which granted toleration to the Huguenots. His liberal policy was, however, distasteful to the Guises, and civil war broke out in 1562 in spite of his efforts to maintain peace. He was dismissed from office in 1568.

Lhote (lōt), André. b. at Bordeaux, France, July 5, 1885—. French painter, sculptor, and writer, one of the foremost spokesmen for contemporary French art. He exhibited (1907, 1910) in the Salon d'Automne. In 1918 he started to teach at, and direct, an art school at Paris. Among his better-known works are Rugby, Escales, Still Life, Baroque Nude, Melancholy, On the Beach, Self-Portrait, Demoiselles d'Avignon, French Countryside, Homage to Watteau, Sunday, illustrations for P. Claudel's Corymb of Autumn, J. Cocteau's Escales, and others, and many critical essays for the Nouvelle Revue Française.

Lhungen (lůnˈgen). See Lummi.

Lhut (lut), Daniel Greysolon, Sieur Du. See Duluth or Du Lhut, Daniel Greysolon, Sieur.

Lhuyd (loid), Edward. b. 1660; d. June 30, 1709. British scholar and naturalist, best known for his researches in Celtic.

Lhuys (lü.ēs), Édouard Drouyn de. See Drouyn de Lhuys, Édouard.

L'Hypocrite (lē.po.krēt). See Hypocrite, L'.

Lia (lē'ą). See Leah.

Liadov (lyä'dof), Anatol Constantinovich. b. at St. Petersburg, May 11, 1855; d. at Novgorod, Russia, Aug. 28, 1914. Russian composer. He wrote for the orchestra, but most of his compositions are for the piano. The Musical Snuff-Box is probably the best-known of these piano pieces. He belonged to the so-called New Russian school, but he was also influenced by Chopin and Schumann.

Liais (lyā), Emmanuel. b. at Cherbourg, France, Feb. 15, 1826; d. there, March 5, 1900. French astronomer.

Liakoura (lyä'kö.rä). See Parnassus.

Liancourt (lyäṅ.kör). [Also, Liancourt-sous-Clermont (-sö.kler.môṅ).] Manufacturing town in N France, in the department of Oise, ab. 30 mi. N of Paris. It contains a ruined ducal castle. 3,391 (1946).

Liancourt, François Alexandre Frédéric, Duc de La Rochefoucauld-. See La Rochefoucauld-Liancourt, François Alexandre Frédéric, Duc de.

Liancourt Rocks (lyäṅ.kör'). [Also: Hornet Islands; Japanese, Take Shima.] Group of small islands in the SW part of the Japan Sea, ab. 140 mi. E of the Korean coast, belonging to Japan. Near them, in the Russo-Japanese War, a part of the Russian fleet surrendered to the Japanese.

Liang Ch'i-ch'ao (lyäng' chē'chou'). b. at Hsinhui, Kwangtung, China, 1873; d. at Peiping, China, 1929. Chinese writer and moderate reformer, a disciple of K'ang Yu-wei and his coworker in the so-called Hundred Days of Reform (1898). However, unlike K'ang, he supported the republic and held various posts under it, including that of minister of justice (1913–14).

Liang Shan (lyäng' shän'). [Also, Ta Liang Shan.] Chain of mountains in W central China, in the provinces of Sikang and Szechwan. It runs N and S for a distance of ab. 200 mi. Elevation, up to 14,500 ft.

Liang Shu-ming (lyäng' shö'ming'). b. at Kweilin, Kwangsi, China, 1894—. Chinese philosopher, rural reformer, and liberal leader. As head of the Rural Reconstruction Association he participated in founding (1941) the Federation of Democratic Parties. After serving (1946) as a Democratic League representative in the unsuccessful Political Consultative Conference, he retired from public life.

Liao (lyou). [Chinese, Liao Ho (lyou' hu').] River in NE China, in Manchuria, which rises in the province of Jehol, and flows NE nearly parallel to the border of Chahar province, E into Manchuria, and then SW into the Gulf of Liaotung. Length, ab. 900 mi.

Liao Cheng-chih (lyou' jung'jē'). [Also known as Ho Liu-hua.] b. at Huayang, Kwangtung, China, 1908—. Chinese politician and publicist; son of Liao Chung-k'ai. He joined (1927) the Communist Party, and was later elected to its central committee. While serving as 8th Route Army representative to the New Fourth Army in South China he was arrested (1942) by the Kuomintang but released (1946) after widespread petitioning in his favor. Subsequently he directed Communist broadcasting activities and became (1949) chairman of the National Committee of the All-China Democratic Youth Federation and a vice-chairman of the Commission of Overseas Chinese Affairs, headed by his mother, Madame Liao Chung-k'ai.

Liao Chung-k'ai (lyou' jung'kī'). b. at San Francisco, 1876; d. 1925. Chinese statesman, follower and close collaborator (1904 et seq.) of Sun Yat-sen, serving under him as finance minister (1922–23) and promoting the Chinese pro-Soviet orientation of the early 1920's; because of this activity he was assassinated (1925) by right-wing elements in the Kuomintang.

Liao Chung-k'ai, Madame. [Also known by her maiden name, Ho Hsiang-ning.] b. in Kwangtung, China, c1880—. Chinese painter, poetess, and revolutionary leader; wife of Liao Chung-k'ai. She attracted special attention in 1933, when Chiang Kai-shek was hesitant about resisting Japan, by sending him a petticoat and a poem saying she would like to exchange her petticoat for his uniform. Continuing opposition to Chiang, she helped found (1948) the revolutionary committee of the Kuomintang and became (1949) chairman of the Commission of Overseas Chinese Affairs within the Communist-led People's Republic of China.

Liaoning (lyou'ning'). [Former name, Fengtien.] Former province in NE China, in Manchuria. It was the southernmost province in Manchuria and the most industrialized province in all of China. It occupied the richest part of the Manchurian plain. In 1949 the province was incorporated into the new provinces of Liaosi and Liaotung. Area, ab. 124,224 sq. mi.; pop. 16,465,303 (1936).

Liaopei (lyou'bā'). [Also, Liaopeh.] Former province of China, in W central Manchuria, centered N of the city of Mukden. It was formed in 1945 and dissolved in 1949. Former capital, Liaoyuan; area, ab. 46,959 sq. mi.; pop. 4,904,399 (1946).

Liaosi (lyou'shē'). [Also, Liaohsi.] Province in NE China, in SW Manchuria, bounded on the S by the Gulf of Liaotung, on the SW by Hopei, on the NW by Jehol and the Inner Mongolian Autonomous Region, on the N by Kirin, and on the SE by Liaotung. It was formed in 1949 and includes much of the fertile valley of the Liao River, and drier hill country to the W. The chief crops are soybeans, wheat, peanuts, potatoes, and kaoliang. Capital, Chinchow (Chinhsien); area, ab. 21,500 sq. mi.; pop. 7,391,492 (1950).

Liaotung (lyou'dung'). Province in NE China, in SE Manchuria, occupying the Liaotung peninsula, and extending inland to the NE. It was formed in 1949. It is bounded on the SE by Korea, on the S by the Yellow Sea, on the NW by Liaosi, and on the N by Kirin. Most of the province is hilly or mountainous, but the valleys are fertile and densely populated. The chief crops are soybeans, kaoliang, wheat, and vegetables. Liaotung has important deposits of iron ore and coal. It is the most populous of the Manchurian provinces. Capital, Antung; area, ab. 40,000 sq. mi.; pop. 8,558,608 (1950), excluding the independent municipalities of Mukden, Fushun, Anshan, Port Arthur-Dairen, and Penhsi, which are geographically located in the province.

Liaotung, Gulf of. [Chinese, Liaotung Wan (wän').] Arm of the Yellow Sea in NE China, a northern extension of the Po Hai. It is enclosed on three sides by Manchuria. Length, ab. 140 mi.; width, ab. 60 mi.

Liaotung Peninsula. Peninsula in NE China, in S Manchuria, lying between the Gulf of Liaotung and Korea Bay. The S tip (Kwantung, or Kwantung Leased Territory; area, ab. 1,438 sq. mi.) came under the control of the Japanese as a result of the Russo-Japanese War (1904–05). The Japanese built it up into a modern port and industrial area with a naval base. The chief city is Dairen. In 1945 Kwantung was returned to the Chinese and was incorporated in the province of Liaoning. In the Sino-Russian treaty of 1945, Dairen was made a free port and Port Arthur a joint naval base for a 30-year period, and the area became an independent municipality. Area, ab. 1,312 sq. mi.; pop. 1,054,465 (1950).

Liaoyang (lyou'yäng'). Town in NE China, in the province of Liaotung, Manchuria, ab. 40 mi. SW of Mukden. Here the Japanese under Marshal Oyama defeated the Russians under General Kuropatkin, Aug. 25–Sept. 4, 1904. It was opened in 1907 to foreign trade. 100,165 (1940).

Liaoyuan (lyou'yü.än'). [Former name, Chengchiatun.] City in NE China, in Manchuria, formerly (1946–49) capital of Liaopei province, now located in Liaosi province, on the Liao River. It is a rail junction, and an important trade center. Pop. ab. 45,000.

Liapunov (lyä.pö.nôf'), Aleksandr Mikhailovich. [Also, Lyapunov.] b. at Yaroslavl, Russia, June 6, 1857; d. at Petrograd, Nov. 3, 1918. Russian mathematician and scientist. His early work centered about broad general theorems in hydrodynamics and gravitating masses; his later, and best-known, contributions concerned the stability of a rotating fluid mass, an important problem in cosmogony.

Liapunov, Sergius Mikhailovich. [Also, Lyapunov.] b. at Yaroslavl, Russia, Nov. 30, 1859; d. at Paris, in November, 1924. Russian composer. His works include, for the orchestra, a ballade, an overture, and a symphony in B minor; for the piano, a concerto, études, preludes, mazurkas, and others. He also edited and published a collection of Russian songs.

Liaqat Ali Khan (lē.ä'kạt ä'lē kän'). [Also, Liaquat Ali Khan.] b. at Karnal, Punjab, India, Oct. 1, 1895; assassinated at Rawalpindi, Pakistan, Oct. 16, 1951. Pakistani statesman. A lawyer and member (1922) of the Inner Temple, he joined the Moslem League in 1923 and served (1926–40) as a member of the legislative council of the United Provinces. He was leader of the Democratic Party and from 1940 to 1947 sat in the central legislature; by 1941 he was deputy leader of the Moslem League, which he represented at the Simla conferences in 1945 and 1946. He was minister of finance (1946–47) at the time of the partition of India and became (1947) the first prime minister of Pakistan, holding also the portfolio of defense. The death of his close associate, Governor General Mohammed Ali Jinnah, in 1948, left Liaqat Ali Khan the leader of the Pakistani state and heir to the problems raised by the partition of the subcontinent. He was attempting to settle the dispute with India over the status of Kashmir when he was killed.

Liar, The. Adaptation by Samuel Foote of Corneille's Le Menteur.

Liard (lē'ärd). River rising in the N part of the province of British Columbia, Canada, and flowing NE to join the Mackenzie River in Mackenzie District, Northwest Territories, near Simpson. Length, ab. 755 mi.

Liard (lyär), Louis. b. at Falaise, France, Aug. 22, 1846; d. at Paris, Sept. 21, 1917. French philosopher. He served (1876 et seq.) as professor at Bordeaux, and was minister of education during the anti-clerical reorganization of French institutions of learning in the latter part of the 19th century. Author of La Science positive et la métaphysique (1879), Logique (1884), and others.

Liathdruim (lē'drim). Irish name of Leitrim.

Liban (lē.bäñ). French name of the republic of Lebanon.

Libanius (li.bā'ni.us). b. at Antioch, Syria, c341 A.D.; d. c390 A.D. Greek sophist. A pagan, he taught under the Christian emperors, and showed no prejudice against Christians when the pagan Julian reigned. He left a voluminous body of writing, mainly orations, an autobiography, letters, and a life of Demosthenes, among others.

Libanus (lib'ạ.nus). Latin name of the Lebanon range.

Libau (lē'bou). German name of Liepaja.

Libava (lē.bä'va). A Russian name of Liepaja.

Libby (lib'i), Pauline. Original name of Frederick, Pauline.

Libby Prison. Confederate military prison at Richmond, Va., during the Civil War. Originally a tobacco warehouse, it was afterward taken down, carried to Chicago, and there set up as a war museum.

Libedinsky (lē.byi.dyēn'ski), Yury Nikolayevich. b. at Odessa, Russia, 1898—. Russian novelist and playwright. A Week (1923), the only one of his tales available in English, is an account of a peasant mutiny put down by the Bolsheviks. He is the author of a war novel, Guards (1942). A devoted and active Communist, he uses his pen to exalt the party and all its works.

Libelt (lē'belt), Karól. b. at Poznań, Poland, April 8, 1807; d. near Golancz, Poland, June 9, 1875. Polish politician and philosophical writer. He was sentenced (1847) to 20 years in jail for revolutionary activity but was released in 1848. He took part in the liberal movement in central Europe thereafter.

Liber (lī'bėr). In Italian mythology, a god of the vine and wine, worshiped as a fertility god, who became identified with the Greek Dionysus and later the Roman Bacchus. He was honored, with his female counterpart, Libera, with the festival Liberalia, celebrated on March 17.

Libera (lib'ẹ.rạ). In Italian mythology, a goddess of the vine and wine, wife of the wine god Liber, worshiped as a fertility goddess. She became, in this capacity, identified with the Greek Persephone.

Liberal (lib'ẹ.rạl). City in SW Kansas, county seat of Seward County; shipping point for wheat. 7,134 (1950).

Liberalia (lib.ẹ.rā'li.ạ). See under Liber.

Liberalis (lib.ẹ.rā'lis), Antoninus. See Antoninus Liberalis.

Liberalitas Julia (lib.ẹ.ral'i.tas jö'li.ạ, -lya). A Roman name of Évora, city.

Liberal Party. In British history, a political party that developed from the Whig Party, active since about the time of the first Reform Bill (1831). In the 19th century, it generally advocated moderate reforms in government and extension of the franchise, favored free trade, and advocated home rule for Ireland. It has held office under Grey, Melbourne, Russell, Aberdeen, Palmerston, Gladstone, Rosebery, Campbell-Bannerman, and Asquith as prime ministers. The quarrel between Asquith and Lloyd George over leadership of the party caused many of its members to turn to the Labour Party and since the election of 1918 Labour rather than the Liberals has contested as the principal opponent of the Conservatives.

Liberal Party. In the several dominions of the British Commonwealth, name of a political party. The Liberal parties, though they follow programs approximately parallel, are not necessarily connected.

Liberal Republican Party. In U.S. history, a political movement (1870–72) which represented a reaction from the policy of the so-called Radical Republicans toward the South and from the corruption of the Grant administration. It had its inception in Senator Charles Sumner's break with Grant over the Santo Domingo affair and in a party division in Missouri. Among the leaders of the movement were Charles Francis Adams, Carl Schurz, Horace Greeley, and Sumner. The party's Cincinnati convention nominated Greeley for the presidency, and his candidacy was supported by the Democrats at their Baltimore convention. The Liberal Republican platform, adopted May 1, 1872, stressed civil service reform, conciliation of the South, and the need for removing political corruption. However, in the election of 1872, Greeley was decisively defeated by Grant, and the movement collapsed.

Liberal Unionists. In British politics, a party formed in 1886 by the secession from the Liberal Party of those who objected to Gladstone's home rule proposals. They acted generally with the Conservatives.

Libération (lē.bā.rā.syôn). Paris daily newspaper, founded in 1941.

Liberation, War of. See War of Liberation.

Liberator, The. Antislavery paper published weekly at Boston from 1831 to 1865, and edited by William Lloyd Garrison.

Liberator, the. See O'Connell, Daniel.

Liberatore (lē''be.rā.tō'rā), Niccolò di. Original name of Alunno, Niccolò.

Liber de Hyda (lī'bėr dē hī'dạ). Monastic record which seems to have been compiled during the second half of the 14th century. It gives an account of the foundation of Oxford University in 886. It professes to give a list of the original staff of teachers.

Liberec (lē'be.rets). Kraj (region) of Czechoslovakia, in N Bohemia, bordering on SE Germany and SW Poland. Capital, Liberec; area, ab. 1,636 sq. mi.; pop. 479,874 (1947).

Liberec. [German, Reichenberg.] City in Czechoslovakia, capital of the kraj (region) of Liberec, in N Bohemia, on the Nisa River ab. 56 mi. NE of Prague. It is an important center of the textile industry, and also has manufactures of machinery, pianos, leather goods, and foodstuffs. 52,798 (1947).

History. The city belonged to Wallenstein from 1622 to 1634 and passed after his death to the Gallas and Clam-Gallas families, under Hapsburg overlordship. In 1918 an attempt was made to make it the capital of an independent German Bohemia, but the city was occupied by the Czechs soon afterward. It came under German domination in 1938 but was returned to Czechoslovakia after the conclusion of World War II, and the Sudeten German population was expelled. In the 19th century it became the principal manufacturing center in Bohemia for textiles of various sorts, particularly cloth and carpets, and the center of a textile district, the Bohemian counterpart to the adjacent Saxon and Silesian textile districts. The first modern textile factory was founded in 1828.

Liberia (lī.bir'i.ạ). Republic on the W coast of Africa extending ab. 325 mi. along the coast from Cape Palmas NW to the Mano River. It is bounded on the NW by Sierra Leone, on the N by French Guinea, on the NE and E by the Ivory Coast, and on the S and SW by the Atlantic Ocean. The coast is low; on the N border the Nimba Mountains reach an elevation of over 6,000 ft. Liberia has a hot, humid, equatorial climate with a dry season during Northern Hemisphere winter. The chief exports are rubber, palm kernels, palm oil, gold, and iron ore. The economy of the country is almost entirely dependent on rubber, and extensive rubber plantations have been developed by a large American corporation. The government is vested in a president and in a congress comprising a senate and a house of representatives. Liberia was founded (1822) by freed Negroes repatriated by the American Colonization Society, and was declared an independent republic in 1847. The boundaries of the republic were determined by the Anglo-Liberian agreements of 1885 and 1903, the Franco-Liberian agreements of 1892 and 1907, and the agreement of 1910 by which the U.S. took over general control of various troublesome aspects of Liberian administration and foreign affairs. In 1942 the U.S. was given permission to construct, control, and operate bases in Liberia for the duration of World War II. Skilled U.S. personnel and technicians remained after the war to advise the country on its development, and close economic, political and cultural ties exist between the two nations. About three fourths of Liberia's foreign trade is with the U.S. Capital, Monrovia; area, ab. 43,000 sq. mi.; pop. 1,600,000 (est. 1949).

Liberia (lē.bā'ryä). [Also, Guanacaste.] Capital of the province of Guanacaste, in NW Costa Rica, ab. 95 mi. NW of San José. Pop. ab. 3,500.

Liberius (lī.bir'i.us), Saint. b. at Rome; d. Sept. 24, 366. Pope from 352 to 366. A Roman deacon, Liberius began his pontificate at a time when Constantius was ruling the whole empire and endeavoring to make it Arian. Liberius resisted the Arians by upholding the acquittal of Athanasius in the synod of Sardica and by making the Nicene Creed the test of orthodoxy. Exiled by Constantius to Beroea in Thrace, Liberius returned to Rome in 357, the archdeacon Felix, intruded by the Arians as antipope, being rejected by the people. Some have claimed that Liberius was restored only because he signed the Arian formula of Sirmium, but such sources are either suspect of pro-Arian sympathies or are of doubtful historicity.

Liber Pontificalis (lī'bėr pon.tif.i.kā'lis). [Eng. trans., "Book of the Pope."] Work containing the lives of the popes from Saint Peter to Stephen VI. It has been attributed to Anastasius Bibliothecarius (fl. 9th century), but without ancient authority.

Libertad (lē.ber.täth'). See La Libertad.

Libertador (lē''ber.tä.thōr'). Province in NW Dominican Republic. Capital, Dajabón; area, ab. 356 sq. mi.; pop. 25,513 (1950).

"Libertador, El." See Bolívar, Simón.

Libertine, The. Tragedy by Thomas Shadwell, produced in 1676. It is professedly derived from L'Atheista fulminato, but was probably actually taken from Molière's Don Juan.

Liberty (lib'ėr.ti). City in W Missouri, county seat of Clay County: shipping point for grain. It is the seat of William Jewell College. 4,709 (1950).

Liberty. Village in SE New York, in Sullivan County: vacation resort in the Catskills. Elevation, ab. 1,581 ft.; pop. 4,658 (1950).

Liberty. [Former names, Atascosita, Liberty Town.] City in E Texas, county seat of Liberty County, on the Trinity River NE of Houston. 4,163 (1950).

Liberty Bell. In U.S. history, a famous bell cast at London in 1752. It bore the motto "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof" (Lev. xxv. 10). It was afterward recast at Philadelphia, with the same inscription, and it was rung when the Declaration of Independence was adopted by Congress. The bell was cracked in 1835. It is now in Independence Hall at Philadelphia.

Liberty Bell, The. Gift book of antislavery literature, published annually, with the exception of four years, from 1839 to 1858.

Liberty Enlightening the World. See Statue of Liberty.

Liberty of Peterborough (pē'tėr.bur.ō, -bėr.ō). See Soke of Peterborough.

Liberty Party. In U.S. politics, an antislavery party founded in 1839. It opposed the annexation of Texas, and nominated James G. Birney for president in 1840, and again in 1844, when he polled 62,263 votes. This vote was comprised in large part of people who would otherwise probably have voted for the Whig ticket, and thus may be said to have contributed to the defeat of Henry Clay and the election of James K. Polk. In 1848 it merged with the Free Soil Party.

Liberty Tree. Elm tree formerly standing on Washington Street, Boston. Effigies of unpopular persons were hung upon it during the widespread protest of the American colonists against the Stamp Act.

Libertyville (lib'ėr.ti.vil). Village in NE Illinois, in Lake County, ab. 35 mi. NW of Chicago, in a dairy-farming area. 5,425 (1950).

Liber Veritatis (lī'bėr ver.i.tā'tis). [Eng. trans., "Book of Truth."] Collection of original drawings by Claude Lorrain. There are six copies in existence.

Libia (lib'i.ạ). See Libya.

Libian Desert (lib'i.ạn). See Libyan Desert.

Libitina (lib.i.tī'nạ). Ancient Italian goddess of gardens and vineyards. By confusion with the word "libido" she was mistakenly regarded as a goddess of passion. Later Venus became identified with her as Venus Libitina, especially in her aspect as goddess of death and of burials. In this aspect she was later identified with Proserpine. By tradition, a piece of money was deposited in her temple for every one who died in Rome.

Libius Severus (lib'i.us sẹ.vir'us). See Severus, Libius (or Vibius).

Libnan (lēb.nän'), El. Arabic name of the Lebanon range.

Libohova (lē.bō.hō'vä), Ekrem Bey. b. in Albania, (then part of Turkey), 1882; d. at Rome, 1948. Albanian political leader, foreign minister (1936–39) and prime minister (1943–44) under Italian occupation.

Libourne (lē.börn). Town in SW France, in the department of Gironde, at the confluence of the Isle and Dordogne rivers, ab. 18 mi. NE of Bordeaux. The town is the center of a wine-making region and has distilleries and various other industries. 20,166 (1946).

Libra (lī'brạ). Ancient zodiacal constellation, representing an ordinary pair of scales. This constellation was not commonly used among the Greeks, its place being occupied by the Chelae, or Scorpion's Claws. It is found, however, in all the Egyptian zodiacs going back to 600 B.C.; but there is reason to believe that it is not so old as the rest of the zodiac (that is, 2,000 years or more B.C.). Its principal stars, Kiffa Borealis and Kiffa Australis, 2.7 and 3.0 magnitudes respectively, are at the base of an isosceles triangle of which Antares forms the vertex.

Library of Congress. National library of the U.S., situated at Washington, D.C. It was established in 1800, originally for the use of the members of the Senate and House of Representatives, but is freely open to the public. In 1814 the collection of books was destroyed by the British troops, but a new one was begun with the purchase by Congress of a large portion of the library of Thomas Jefferson. On June 30, 1946, the library contained 8,913,000 volumes and pamphlets, 1,711,292 maps and charts, 8,121,913 (est.) pieces of manuscript, and 1,719,610 volumes and pieces of music. Its union catalogue contains some 14 million entries. The library is one of the leading centers of historical research in the U.S. Work on the present building, situated SE of the Capitol, was begun in 1889 and was completed in 1897 at a cost of 6,345,000 dollars. It is in the form of a quadrangle enclosing four courts and a central rotunda surmounted by a dome. The length of the building (which faces W) is 470 ft. from N to S, and its depth from W to E, 340 ft. The interior is decorated with the work of American artists.

Library of International Relations. Organization at Chicago, founded in 1932 for the purpose of fostering interest in international problems, which maintains a collection of 46,000 volumes and more than 600 periodicals and newspapers drawn from many foreign countries. It publishes The World in Focus (monthly), a bibliographical guide.

Libreville (lē.brẹ.vēl). Capital and chief port of Gabon territory, French Equatorial Africa, ab. 30 mi. N of the equator, on the Bay of Gabon, an arm of the Gulf of Guinea. It consists of the French town, where the government buildings, the hospital, and the Catholic mission are located, and of the suburbs Glasstown and Baraka, where foreign traders reside and the American Presbyterians have their mission station. The nucleus of the native population was formed by a settlement of liberated slaves. Pop. ab. 25,000.

Libro d'Oro (lē'brō dō'rō). Roll or register of the noble families of a state or province, with the list of their estates; an institution of the Italian republics of the Middle Ages, the most famous being that of Venice.

Liburnia (lī.bėr'ni.ą). In ancient geography, a country in Illyria, along the Adriatic Sea, corresponding to the W part of modern Croatia, Yugoslavia. The inhabitants were celebrated as navigators and pirates.

Liburnum (lī.bėr'num) or Liburni Portus (lī.bėr'nī pōr'tus). Latin names of Leghorn, city.

Libya (lib'i.ą). In ancient geography, a name of varying signification, denoting Africa, or Africa excluding Egypt, or Africa excluding Egypt and Ethiopia.

Libya. [Also: Libia; present name (since 1950), United Kingdom of Libya.] Name given (1912) to the former Italian province in N Africa formed from Tripoli and Barca. It was divided into provinces for administrative purposes, and the four N provinces, Tripoli, Misurata, Bengasi, and Derna, were incorporated into Italy proper in 1934. Libya is mostly desert, including a vast area of plateau and sandy wasteland of the E Sahara. Northern Cyrenaica, bordering the Mediterranean coast, is more humid, and has winter rainfall sufficient for cereal and olive cultivation. There are many oases along the Mediterranean lowland from Zuára to Derna which contain the chief centers of population, and produce food crops, including dates, citrus and other fruits. The steppe zone lies just S of the coast, and is chiefly a region of extensive livestock grazing. The climate of Libya is one of extremes. Summer is very hot, and the winters mild, but subject to daily extremes of temperature and to cold nights. Libya was the scene of the famous World War II desert campaign between Montgomery and his British Eighth Army and Rommel and his German panzer (armored) divisions. After the Allied victory over the Axis forces and the conquest of the area, Libya was administered by the British as a military territory until May, 1949, when the United Nations took it over. It was then divided into three sections: Cyrenaica, the E portion, was given to Great Britain as a trust territory, Italy was allowed to retain the W section of Tripolitania as a trust territory, and France was made the trustee for the S desert section of the Fezzan. In November, 1949, the assembly of the United Nations voted to grant independence to Libya; the former colony became officially an independent kingdom on Dec. 24, 1951. The first election of the House of Representatives occurred on Feb. 19, 1952. Capitals, (winter) Tripoli, (summer) Bengasi; area, ab. 679,360 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 1,174,000 (1950).

Libyan Desert (lib'i.ąn). [Also: Libian Desert; in Egypt, Western Desert.] In ancient times, the Sahara; now restricted to an extremely barren and partly sandy desert region extending from the W side of the Nile valley to E central Libya. Area, ab. 750,000 sq. mi.

Libyans (lib'i.ąnz). Inhabitants of ancient Libya, a Hamitic-speaking group. Their extinct languages and dialects, called Old Libyan, belonged to the Hamitic group of languages which is now classified by most scholars as being related to the Semitic languages.

Libyan Sea. [Latin, Libycum Mare (lib'i.kum mā'rē).] In ancient geography, that part of the Mediterranean which extends from what is now Tunisia E to Egypt.

Libyssa (li.bis'ą). [Also, Lybyssa.] Place in NW Turkey, ab. 35 mi. SE of Istanbul, on the Sea of Marmara; site of an ancient city where Hannibal is said to have committed suicide.

Licata (lē.kä'tä). [Also: Alicata; ancient Greek, Phintias.] City and commune in SW Italy, on the S coast of the island of Sicily, in the province of Agrigento, at the mouth of the Salso River. The chief industry is the mining and refining of sulfur. It has a port, exporting asphalt, sulfur, and agricultural products. A Greek town in ancient times, it was destroyed by Turkish pirates in 1553. The new city was built in the 17th century. In World War II, the American forces established a beachhead here on July 11, 1943. Pop. of commune, 31,611 (1936); of city, 30,641 (1936).

Lic. Blas Urrea (lē.sen.syä'ғнō bläs ör.rā'ä). A pseudonym of Cabrera, Luis.

License Cases, 5 Howard 504 (1847). Cases involving the consideration by the U.S. Supreme Court of the relation of local regulations of the liquor traffic to interstate commerce, which illustrate the complexity of the extent to which the power of Congress over interstate commerce is exclusive. These cases bore upon the validity of statutes of New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts forbidding the sale of liquor in small quantities and without licenses, and presented considerable difficulty in the interpretation of the commerce power and states' rights; six justices wrote nine separate opinions, but the state statutes were sustained. The leading opinion was written by Chief Justice Taney, who took the position that the power of Congress over interstate commerce was not exclusive, and that the license requirements in question were legitimate as long as they conflicted with no federal regulation.

Li Chai-sum (lē' chī'sŭm'). Cantonese form of Li Chi-shen.

Lichas (lī'kąs). In Greek legend, the friend of Hercules whom Deianira sent to him bearing (unwittingly) the poisoned shirt which caused the hero's death. Neither Lichas nor Deianira knew the fatal powers of the shirt. Hercules in pain and rage hurled Lichas into the sea.

Licheng (lē'cheng'). See Tsinan, China.

Lichfield (lich'fēld). Municipal borough and market town in C England, in Staffordshire, ab. 14 mi. N of Birmingham, ab. 116 mi. NW of London by rail. The cathedral (built of red sandstone) is a large and impressive edifice, mostly of the 13th and 14th centuries. The exterior is marked by its three lofty spires, the central one built by Wren. The handsome 16th-century windows were brought from a convent near Liége. The cathedral measures 403 by 65 ft.; length of transepts, 149; height of vault, 60; height of central spire, 260. Samuel Johnson was born here in a room over his father's bookshop (now a Johnsonian museum). Lichfield was made a bishopric c656, and was an archbishopric for a few years at the close of the 8th century. It was besieged by the Parliamentary forces in 1643. Pop. 10,624 (1951).

Li Chi-shen (lē' chē'shen'). [Cantonese form, Le Chai-sum.] b. at Tsangwu, Kwangsi, China, 1886—. South Chinese leader long at odds with Chiang Kai-shek. He was thrice expelled (1928, 1934, 1947) from the Kuomintang. He commanded the 4th Army in the Northern Expedition of 1926–27, supported Chiang in the anti-Communist purge of 1927, but opposed Chiang by joining (1933–34) the Fukien Rebellion. He set up and headed (1948) the Revolutionary Committee of the Kuomintang, and was elected (1949) one of the six vice-chairmen of the Central People's Government in the Peiping government.

Lichnowsky (liċh.nôf'skē), Prince Karl Max. b. at Kreuzenort, Germany, March 8, 1860; d. at Berlin, Feb. 2, 1928. German diplomat. As German ambassador to England (1912–14), he worked toward British-German understanding. He wrote (1916) Meine Londoner Mission, 1912–14, and was on that account expelled from the Herrenhaus (Prussian upper house), although the book had been published (1918) against his wishes. In 1918 he joined the Democratic Party.

Lichnowsky, Mechtilde. [Maiden name, von Arco-Zinneberg.] b. 1879—. German writer; wife of Karl Max Lichnowsky. She is the author of a collection of poems (Gott Bittet, 1916), a play (Ein Spiel vom Tod, 1913), and a novel (Die Geburt, 1921).

Lichtenberg (liċh'ten.berk), Alexander von. b. at Budapest, 1880; d. 1949. German urologist. He recommended the injection of bismuth suspension, rendering kidney, pelvis, and ureter opaque to x-rays, and suggested this method for the diagnosis of tumors of the kidney, described an operation for hydronephrosis (1929), and introduced uroselectan (1929).

Lichtenberg, Georg Christoph. b. at Oberramstädt, near Darmstadt, Germany, July 1, 1742; d. at Göttingen, Germany, Feb. 24, 1799. German physicist and satirist. He is best known as the discoverer of the electrical figures produced on a nonconducting plate by a point-source of electricity, named for him. He wrote mordant criticisms of Lavater's so-called science of physiognomy, of Voss's system of Greek pronunciation, and of the Sturm und Drang writers. He wrote (1794–99) a well-known explanation of Hogarth's engravings.

Lichtenberger (lēsh.tăñ.ber.zhā), Henri. b. at Mulhouse, in Alsace, France, March 12, 1864; d. at Biarritz, France, in November, 1940. French scholar, notable for his studies of German culture, literature, and history. His published studies include Le Poème et la légende des Nibelungen (1891), Histoire de la langue allemande (1895), La Philosophie de Nietzsche (1904), Henri Heine penseur (1905), L'Allemagne moderne, son évolution (1907), Wagner (1910), Novalis (1912), L'Impérialisme économique allemand (1918), and Faust (1932 et seq.). He also prepared an annotated edition of Goethe's and Schiller's lyrical poetry, and translated selected Nietzsche fragments.

Lichtenfels (liċh'tẹn.fels). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Middle and Upper Franconia, ab. 8 mi. SE of Coburg. The chief industry is basket-weaving; there are also chemical, lumber, ceramics, metal, and toy manufactures. The Monastery and Church of Vierzehnheiligen, one of the most grandiose baroque structures in Germany, erected in the 18th century according to designs by Balthasar Neumann, is in the vicinity. 10,558 (1950).

Lichtenstein (liċh'tẹn.shtīn). [Also, Lichtenstein-Callnberg (-käln'berk).] Town in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, near the Erzgebirge, ab. 15 mi. SW of Chemnitz. Before World War II it had hosiery and glove manufactures. Coal mines are in the vicinity. 13,407 (1946).

Lichtenstein, Martin Heinrich Karl. b. at Hamburg, Germany, Jan. 10, 1780; d. at sea, Sept. 3, 1857. German African traveler and zoölogist. He wrote Reisen im südlichen Afrika (Travels in Southern Africa, 1810–11).

Lichtenstein, Ulrich von. See Ulrich von Lichtenstein.

Lichterfelde (liċh'tėr.fel.dẹ). Former village in NE Germany, incorporated in 1920 into the city of Berlin. It is now a residential section of the city, located ab. 8 mi. SW of the center.

Lichtwer (liċht'vėr), Magnus Gottfried. b. at Wurzen, Germany, Jan. 30, 1719; d. at Halberstadt, Germany, July 7, 1783. German writer of fables, which appeared chiefly in Vier Bücher äsopischer Fabeln (1748). He also wrote a didactic poem, Das Recht der Vernunft (1758), based on Christian von Wolff's rationalistic philosophy.

Lichtwitz (liċht'vits), Leopold. b. at Ohlau (now Oława), in Silesia, Germany, Dec. 9, 1876; d. at New Rochelle, N.Y., March 18, 1943. German clinician. He made studies in diseases of the kidneys, on the formation of the urinary and biliary calculus, and on metabolism.

Licinia gens (lī.sin'i.ạ). Celebrated plebeian clan or house, of uncertain origin, in ancient Rome. The first member of the gens who obtained the consulship was Gaius Licinius Calvus Stolo, 364 B.C. The Licinii almost constantly occupied high offices of state.

Licinian Laws or Rogations (lī.sin'i.an). Collection of laws proposed by the Roman tribunes Gaius Licinius Calvus Stolo and Lucius Sextius in 376 B.C. and passed in 367. They provided that one of the consuls must be a plebeian; that no person could occupy more than 500 jugera (somewhat more than 300 acres) of the public land; that interest on debts should be deducted from the principal and the balance paid in three years; and that plebeians should be admitted to the College of the Sibylline Books. There were provisions limiting the cattle on the public lands and limiting the slave labor on large estates.

Licinius (lī.sin'i.us). [Full name, Gaius (or Caius) Licinius Calvus Stolo.] fl. 377–361 B.C. Roman tribune (377 B.C.) who proposed the Licinian Laws. The laws brought a peaceful end to the struggle between the patricians and the plebeians. Licinius was consul in 364 and 361 B.C. and was afterwards fined for possessing more of the public land than was allowed by his own laws.

Licinius. [Full name, Gaius (or Caius) Flavius Valerius Licinianus Licinius.] b. in Dacia; killed at Thessalonica, 324 A.D. Roman emperor (308–324). He was made Augustus by Galerius in 308. In 313 he married Constantia, sister of Constantine I. He defeated Maximinus II in 314, whereby he became sole ruler of the East. In 314 he became involved in war with Constantine, who had made himself sole ruler of the West. Peace was shortly concluded, but a new war begun in 323 ended in his defeat and death.

Lick (lik), James. b. at Fredericksburg, Pa., Aug. 21, 1796; d. at San Francisco, Oct. 1, 1876. American businessman and philanthropist. He went to California in 1847 and amassed a large fortune there. In 1874 he set apart three million dollars for public and charitable uses, including 700,000 dollars for an astronomical observatory, the Lick Observatory of the University of California.

Licking (lik'ing). River in E Kentucky, joining the Ohio at Newport, opposite Cincinnati. Length, ab. 300 mi.

Lick Observatory (lik). Astronomical observatory, on Mount Hamilton, Calif. It is controlled by the astronomy department of the University of California. By deeds executed in 1874 and 1875, James Lick left 700,000 dollars in trust for the purchase of a site and the construction of an observatory and of a telescope "superior to and more powerful than any telescope yet made." The site chosen was the summit of Mount Hamilton, a 4,372-foot elevation in the Coast Range near San Jose in W California. Much of the site, comprising ab. 3,000 acres, was given by the U.S. and by the state of California, and Santa Clara County constructed a road to the summit of the mountain. The observatory came into operation in 1888. The principal instrument is a refracting telescope of a focal length of 56 ft., 2 inches. The observatory also houses smaller refractors, a comet-seeker, a photographic telescope, and seismometers for recording earthquake shocks.

Licus (lī'kus). Latin name of the Lech.

Liddell (lid'ẹl), Henry George. b. at Binchester, Durham, England, Feb. 6, 1811; d. at Ascot, Berkshire, England, Jan. 18, 1898. English clergyman and classical scholar, dean (1855–91) of Christ Church, Oxford. He published (1843) with Robert Scott a Greek lexicon, based on Franz Passow's German work, and considered the standard Greek-English lexicon. He also wrote History of Ancient Rome (1855), and others. Among the many children of his marriage (1846) to Lorina Reeve was Alice, his second daughter, for whom Lewis Carroll (C. L. Dodgson) wrote Alice's Adventures in Wonderland and Through the Looking-Glass.

Liddell Hart (lid'ẹl härt'), Basil Henry. b. Oct. 31, 1895—. English military authority and writer. He was military correspondent (1925–39) for several newspapers, including the London Times. He is also known for his development of the battle drill system (1917), the "expanding torrent" method of attack, and other tactical innovations later officially adopted. He was an early exponent of air power and of mechanization, his theories being highly influential in the development of modern battle strategy. Author of New Methods of Infantry Training (1919), Science of Infantry Tactics (1921), The Remaking of Modern Armies (1927), The Decisive Wars of History (1929), Foch—The Man of Orléans (1931), T. E. Lawrence—In Arabia and After (1934), A History of the World War, 1914–18 (1934), The Defence of Britain (1939), The Strategy of Indirect Approach (1941), The Revolution in Warfare (1946), The Other Side of the Hill (1948), and Defence of the West (1950).

Lidderdale (lid'ėr.dāl), William. b. at St. Petersburg, 1832; d. June 26, 1902. English financier.

Liddesdale (lidz'dāl). [Also, Liddisdale.] Valley of Liddel Water, a small tributary of the river Esk, in SE Scotland, in Roxburghshire, near the border between England and Scotland. It was made famous by Scott's Guy Mannering.

Liddesdale, Knight of. Title of Douglas, Sir William (1300–53).

Liddon (lid'ọn), Henry Parry. b. at North Stoneham, Hampshire, England, Aug. 20, 1829; d. at Weston-super-Mare, Somersetshire, England, Sept. 9, 1890. English High-Church clergyman, celebrated as a preacher. He graduated at Oxford (Christ Church) in 1850, where he identified himself with the Oxford (High-Church) movement. In 1854 he became vice-principal of the theological college at Cuddesdon (resigning in 1859), and in 1859 vice-principal of St. Edmund's Hall, Oxford. In 1863 he was appointed select preacher to the university (reappointed 1870, 1877, 1884), in 1870 a canon of Saint Paul's, where he preached with great effect, and in 1886 chancellor of Saint Paul's.

Lidericus (li.dir'i.kus). Latin name of the Loir.

Lidice (lē'di.tse). Village in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Praha, in C Bohemia, ab. 10 mi. W of Prague. In May, 1942, unknown underground fighters assassinated Reinhard Heydrich, the Nazi governor of Bohemia and Moravia. In reprisal, all the male inhabitants of the village, where, the Nazis claimed, the assassins had been given shelter, were shot, the women deported to the Ravensbrück concentration camp, the children distributed to German families, and the village leveled to the ground. Lidice is now a place of pilgrimage. The village is to be rebuilt, and a monument erected. It is also planned to establish here an institute for mining research. A village in Illinois, a northwestern suburb of Joliet, was named for the destroyed Czech village.

Lidin (lē'dyin), Vladimir. [Pseudonym of Vladimir Germanovich Gomberg.] b. at Moscow, March 11, 1894—. Russian novelist and short-story writer. An English translation of one of his tales was published (1932) as The Price of Life (at New York) and The Apostate (at London).

Lidingö (lē'ding.ė). Town in E Sweden, a northeastern residential and industrial suburb forming a part of greater Stockholm. It has shipyards and manufactures of welding apparatus, lighthouse equipment, and radio parts. 20,798 (1950).

Lidköping (lēd'chė''ping). Town in SW Sweden, in the län (county) of Skaraborg, on the S shore of Lake Vänern ab. 70 mi. NE of Göteborg. It has machine, porcelain, lumber, and match manufactures, and a sugar refinery. 13,988 (1949).

Lido (lē'dō). [Also, Lido di Venezia (dē vā.ne'tsyä).] Island and resort town in NE Italy, a part of Venice, situated ab. 2 mi. SE of the center of the city and bordering on the open Adriatic Sea. It is one of the most fashionable seashore resorts in Europe, and is much frequented by foreign visitors. The airport of Venice is at the N end of the island. Length of island, ab. 8 mi.

Lidtn de Jeude (lēt' dę yė'dę), Otto Cornelis Adriaan van. b. at Tiel, Netherlands, July 7, 1881—. Dutch engineer. He was minister of public works (1935–37, 1939), and minister of war (1942–45) in the government-in-exile at London.

Lidzbark Warmiński (lēts'bärk vär.mēn'skē). [German, Heilsberg.] Town in N Poland, in the województwo (province) of Olsztyn, formerly in East Prussia, Germany, on the Lyna (Alle) River, near the U.S.S.R. border, ab. 39 mi. S of Kaliningrad, U.S.S.R. Before World War II it had tanneries and breweries. There is a 13th-century castle of the Teutonic Order. The town became part of Poland in 1945, after suffering severe damage in World War II. 11,787 (1939); 4,201 (1946).

Lie (lē), Jonas. b. in Norway, April 29, 1880; d. Jan. 11, 1940. American landscape painter, president (1934 et seq.) of the National Academy of Design; nephew of J. L. E. Lie. His series of paintings of the Panama Canal were presented (1929) to the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, as a memorial to General Goethals. Many large galleries in the U.S., France, and Norway own his works, among which are Fishing Boats at Sunrise, The Conquerors, Culebra Cut, Afterglow, Ice Harvest, Wind Swept, Brooklyn Bridge, and A New York Cañon.

Lie, Jonas Lauritz Edemil. b. at Drammen, Norway, Nov. 6, 1833; d. at Bærum, near Christiania (now Oslo), July 5, 1908. Norwegian novelist; uncle of Jonas Lie (1880–1940). He entered the naval academy at Frederiksværn, but a year later was forced to give up this career because of near-sightedness. Subsequently he studied jurisprudence at Oslo (then Christiania). In 1864 appeared a first collection of poems. His first novel, Den Fremsynte (Eng. trans., The Visionary, 1894), appeared in 1870. With government assistance he now spent a summer in travel in the north, the fruit of which was Fortællinger og Skildringer fra Norge (Tales and Descriptions of Norway), and then was enabled to undertake a journey to Rome. His next novel, Tremasteren Fremtiden eller Liv nordpaa (The Bark Future, or Life up North, 1872), dealt with Norse life at sea, a theme which was to recur in his later works. This was followed in 1874 by his most widely known novel, Lodsen og hans Hustru (The Pilot and his Wife). Results of his Italian journey were Fanfulla, Antonio Banniera, and the lyrical drama Faustina Strozzi (all 1875). Thomas Ross (1878) and Adam Schrader (1879) are novels of city life. Rutland (1881) is a sea story. A three-act comedy, Grabows Kat, was successfully produced at Oslo and Stockholm. In his later years he lived much abroad (alternately at Stuttgart, Berchtesgaden, and Dresden).

Lie, (Marius) Sophus. b. at Nordfjordeide am Eidsfjord, Norway, Dec. 17, 1842; d. at Christiania (now Oslo), Norway, Feb. 18, 1899. Norwegian mathematician, considered to have been among his country's greatest, best known for his work on transformation groups. He and Klein were closely associated in bringing new life to group theory, the former concentrating on continuous groups, the latter on discontinuous groups. Lie made important contributions also to partial differential equations. His books include Theorie der Transformationsgruppen (with F. Engel, 1888–93), Vorlesungen über Differentialgleichungen mit bekannten infinitesimalen Transformationen (1891), Vorlesungen über continue Gruppen mit geometrischen und anderen Anwendungen (1893), and Geometrie der Berürungstransformatio ien (1896).

Lie, Trygve Halvdan. b. at Christiania (now Oslo), Norway, July 16, 1896—. Norwegian statesman, secretary-general (1946–53) of the United Nations. He was earlier counsel to the Norwegian Trade Union Federation (1922–35) and its executive secretary (1926), Norwegian minister of justice (1935–39), minister of trade (1939–40), acting foreign minister (1940), and foreign minister (1941–45) of the Norwegian government-in-exile. He served as chairman of the Norwegian delegation to the United Nations (1945–46), and was elected secretary-general in February, 1946.

Lieb (lēb), John William. b. at Newark, N.J., Feb. 12, 1860; d. at New Rochelle, N.Y., Nov. 1, 1929. American electrical and mechanical engineer. He was associated (1881–82) with Thomas Edison in the preparation of a central electric lighting plant, and was sent (1882) to Italy to establish the Milan Edison Station, where he remained until 1894. His collection of materials on Leonardo da Vinci is now housed in the Lieb Memorial Library at Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N.J. Author of "Leonardo da Vinci—Natural Philosopher and Engineer," published in the Journal of the Franklin Institute (1921).

Lieb, Michael. Original name of Munkácsy or Muncaczy, Mihály.

Liebenstein (lē'bęn.shtīn). [Also, Bad Liebenstein.] Commune in C Germany, in the Land (state) of Thuringia, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Thuringia, in the Thuringian Forest: health resort. 3,259 (1946).

Lieber (lē'bėr), Francis. b. at Berlin, March 18, 1800; d. at New York, Oct. 2, 1872. Historian and political economist. He fought under Blücher against Napoleon (1815), left Germany because of persecution resulting from his liberal beliefs, took part in the Greek war of independence, publishing his campaign diary under the title The German Anacharsis in 1823, and came to the U.S. in 1827. At Boston he planned and edited the Encyclopaedia Americana in 13 volumes (1829–33) and during his tenure as professor of history and political economy at South Carolina College (1835–56) he wrote his Manual of Political Ethics (1838), Legal and Political Hermeneutics (1839), and Civil Liberty and Self-Government (1853). He held similar posts in Columbia College (1857–65) and Columbia Law School (1865–72) at New York. At President Lincoln's request he prepared during the Civil War the Code of War for the Government of the Armies of the United States in the Field (1863), which was later revised by the U.S. War Department and issued as Instruction for the Government of Armies in the Field, General Orders No. 100. This work was of influence in later efforts, as those of Bluntschli, to codify the rules of war. All of Lieber's technical works were written in English, but he continued to employ German in his occasional poetry.

Lieber, Oscar Montgomery. b. at Boston, Sept. 8, 1830; d. at Richmond, Va., June 27, 1862. American geologist and chemist; son of Francis Lieber.

Lieber or Liebler (lēb'lėr), Thomas. Original name of Erastus, Thomas.

Lieberkühn (lē'bėr.kün), Johann Nathanael. b. 1711; d. at Berlin, 1756. German anatomist. The Lieberkühnian glands of the intestines were named after him.

Liebermann (lē'bėr.män), Karl Theodor. b. at Berlin, 1842; d. there, 1914. German organic chemist. With Karl Graebe, he determined the structure of anthracene and synthesized alizarin. He discovered the so-called Liebermann dyes, and investigated quercitin and rhamnetin.

Liebermann, Max. b. at Berlin, July 20, 1847; d. 1935. German painter and etcher, leader of the impressionist movement in his country. He was strongly influenced by Courbet and Millet, at first, and then by the impressionists in France. His portraits are considered to be as excellent as his landscapes, and his work has had a strong influence on later German painting. He was head of the Berlin group known as the Secession (or Secessionists) at the end of the 19th century, and president of the German Academy of Art from 1920.

Liebert (lē'bėrt), Arthur. b. at Berlin, Nov. 10, 1878—. German Neo-Kantian philosopher. Author of Das Problem der Geltung (1914), Geist und Welt der Dialektik (1929), Erkenntnistheorie (1932), Die Krise des Idealismus (1936), and Liberalismus (1938).

Liebesverbot (lē'bẹs.fėr.bōt''), Das. [Eng. trans., "The Edict Against Love."] Opera in two acts by Richard Wagner, based on William Shakespeare's Measure for Measure, first performed at Magdeburg, March 29, 1836.

Liebhard (lēp'härt), Joachim. Original name of Camerarius, Joachim.

Liebig (lē'biċh), Baron Justus von. b. at Darmstadt, Germany, May 12, 1803; d. at Munich, April 18, 1873. German chemist, appointed professor of chemistry at Giessen in 1824, and at Munich in 1852. He established at Giessen a noted laboratory for teaching and research in organic chemistry and the application of chemistry to agriculture and food. His work on the replacement of minerals in the soil as a means of revitalizing it for plant growth is considered the basis of modern agricultural fertilizer methods. With Johann Christoff Poggendorff he wrote Handwörterbuch der Chemie (Dictionary of Chemistry, 1837–64). His works include Handbuch der organischen Chemie (in Geiger's Handbuch der Pharmacie, 1839), Die organische Chemie in ihrer Anwendung auf Agrikultur (Organic Chemistry in Its Application to Agriculture, 1840), Die Tierchemie oder organische Chemie in ihrer Anwendung auf Physiologie und Pathologie (Animal Chemistry or Organic Chemistry in Its Application to Physiology and Pathology, 1842), Chemische Briefe (Eng. trans., Familiar Letters on Chemistry, 1844), Grundsätze der Agrikulturchemie (1855), Theorie und Praxis der Landwirtschaft (1856), and Naturwissenschaftliche Briefe über die moderne Landwirtschaft (1859).

Liebknecht (lēp'knecht), Karl. b. at Leipzig, Germany, Aug. 13, 1871; assassinated at Berlin, Jan. 15, 1919. German politician; son of Wilhelm Liebknecht. He was a Social Democratic member (1908) of the Prussian diet, and a member (1912 et seq.) of the Reichstag. He voted for war credits in 1914 but later agitated against the war, and was sentenced (1916) to four years of forced labor. Released in November, 1918, he became a cofounder of the German Communist (Spartacist) Party. He was murdered, along with Rosa Luxemburg, by a group of reactionary officers when arrested during the street fighting in Berlin in January, 1919. Among his works are Klassenkampf gegen den Krieg (1919) and Briefe aus dem Felde, aus der Untersuchungshaft, aus dem Zuchthaus (1920).

Liebknecht, Wilhelm. b. at Giessen, Hesse, Germany, March 29, 1826; d. at Berlin, Aug. 7, 1900. German politician and journalist. He took part in the revolutionary movement in Baden (1848), and lived in exile in Switzerland and England from 1849 to 1862, when he returned to Germany. In England he became a close friend of Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels. He became the leader of the Social Democratic Party in 1868, and was elected a member of the Reichstag by the Social Democrats in 1874. His extreme political views resulted in his imprisonment on two occasions. Among the socialist journals he edited were the Demokratisches Wochenblatt and Vorwärts.

Liebmann (lēp'män), Otto. b. at Löwenberg, in Silesia, Feb. 25, 1840; d. at Jena, Germany, Jan. 14, 1912. German philosopher, a notable introducer of Neo-Kantianism in Germany. Author of Kant und die Epigonen (1865), Zur Analysis der Wirklichkeit (1876), Gedanken und Tatsachen (1882–1904), Die Klimax der Theorien (1884), and Weltwanderung (1899), a volume of philosophical poetry.

Liechtenstein (lēch'tẹn.shtīn; Anglicized, lik'tẹn.stīn). Independent principality in C Europe, bounded by the Austrian province of Vorarlberg on the E and the Swiss cantons of Graubünden and St. Gallen on the S and W. The surface is generally mountainous. The religion is predominantly Roman Catholic. The nucleus of the present state was the tiny principality of Vaduz, established in 1342; the principality of Liechtenstein was established in 1719, and belonged to the German Confederation until 1866. It has had a customs union with Switzerland since 1924. Capital, Vaduz; area, ab. 61 sq. mi.; pop. 13,571 (1950).

Liechtenstein Gallery. Art gallery at Vienna, the most important private collection of paintings in the city, situated in the old summer palace of the princes of Liechtenstein. It is especially strong in the works of Rubens and Vandyke. The building escaped serious bomb damage in World War II.

Lieder ohne Worte (lē'dėr ō'nẹ vôr'tẹ). [English title, Songs Without Words.] Forty-eight short compositions for piano by Felix Mendelssohn. They were published (1830–45) in eight books.

Liefland (lēf'land). See Livonia.

Lieftinck (lēf'tingk), P. b. at Muiden, Netherlands, 1902—. Dutch economist and teacher. He was attached to the ministry of economic affairs (1932–34), and became (1934) professor of economics, banking, credit, and commercial policy at Rotterdam. He has been minister of finance since 1945.

Liége (lē.āzh'; French, lyezh). [Official form in Belgium (since 1945), Liège; Flemish, Luik; Walloon, Lige; German, Lüttich.] Province of Belgium, bounded by Limbourg and the Netherlands on the N, the German Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia on the E, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg on the S, the provinces of Luxembourg and Namur on the S and SW, and Brabant on the W. It is hilly country throughout, watered by the Meuse River and its tributaries. The soil, particularly in the E and S parts of the province, is not very fertile. On both banks of the Meuse, around the city of Liége, there is a coal-mining region, with an area of heavy industries. The majority of the population are French-speaking Walloons. There is a Flemish-speaking minority N of Liége and a German-speaking minority along the E border. Formerly an independent ecclesiastical state, the region passed to the Kingdom of the Netherlands in 1815, to Belgium in 1830. The territory of Eupen-Malmédy, formerly belonging to Germany, was incorporated after World War I. Capital, Liége; area, ab. 1,525 sq. mi.; pop. 963,851 (1947).

Liége. [Official form in Belgium (since 1945), Liège; Flemish, Luik; Walloon, Lige; German, Lüttich; Latin, Leodium.] City in E Belgium, the capital of the province of Liége, situated at the junction of the Ourthe and Meuse rivers: chief center of an important mining and manufacturing district containing more than half a million inhabitants. It is a river port, railroad junction, and commercial center. Numerous coal mines are in the vicinity, and it is the largest center of the iron and steel industry in Belgium. It has also manufactures of machinery, bicycles, automobiles, locomotives, and other metal products. Pop. of city, 156,208 (1947); area of greater Liége, ab. 70 sq. mi.; pop. 425,400 (1947).

Chief Buildings and Institutions. Liége is the cultural center of the French-speaking Walloon provinces of Belgium. It has a university, founded in 1817, a mining academy, art academy, music conservatory, and a museum of Walloon folklore. It is the seat of a bishopric, with a number of churches, among which the churches of Saint Jacques and Saint Paul are the most important; the palace of justice, formerly the episcopal residence, dates from the 16th century, the Musee d'Ansembourg from the 18th century; there is a botanical garden.

History. Liége, first mentioned in the 6th century, became the seat of a bishopric in the 8th century. It remained under the archbishop of Cologne until the 14th century, when the bishops of Liége attained princely rank in the medieval German Empire. Liége was conquered by Charles the Bold of Burgundy in 1467; it was occupied by French armies in 1675, 1684, 1792, and 1794. In 1801 the territory of Liége passed to France, in 1815 to the Netherlands, and in 1830 to Belgium. In World War I, the city was occupied by German armies on Aug. 7, 1914; the 12 surrounding forts held out for several more days, finally being reduced after a famous artillery attack (Aug. 6–17, 1914). In World War II, the capture on May 11, 1940, of Fort Eben Emael, strongest link in the city's defenses, opened the German offensive which led to the defeat of the Belgian, British, and French armies. A large part of the city, including the university buildings, was destroyed or heavily damaged by bombings in the later stages of World War II.

Liegnitz (lēg'nits). German name of Legnica.

Liegnitz, Battle of. [Also, Battle of Wahlstatt.] Battle fought at Wahlstatt, a village ab. 6 mi. SE of Liegnitz (now Legnica), in Silesia, on April 9, 1241. It was a victory for the Mongols under Batu Khan over the Germans (under Duke Henry II of Silesia) and Poles; but the Mongol advance into central Europe was nevertheless checked, and the contest is hence regarded as one of the decisive battles of the world.

Liegnitz, Battle of. Victory gained near Liegnitz (now Legnica), in Silesia, Aug. 15, 1760, by Frederick the Great over the Austrians under Laudon. It prevented the junction of the Austrians and Russians.

Lielupe (lye'lö.pe). [German name, Aa.] River in Latvia, rising in NE Lithuania and emptying into the Gulf of Riga, at the mouth of the Dvina (Daugava).

Lienert (lē'nėrt), Meinrad. b. at Einsiedeln, Switzerland, 1865; d. at Zurich, Switzerland, 1933. Swiss poet writing in German. He was the author of a collection of lyrics entitled s'Schwäbelpfyffli (1906–18).

Lienhard (lēn'härt), Friedrich (or Fritz). b. at Rothbach, in Alsace, Oct. 4, 1865; d. at Weimar, Germany, April 30, 1929. German playwright and novelist, consistently devoted to Heimatkunst, the literary movement which urged portrayal of the beauties of one's native heath rather than the seamy side of city life. Besides the monthly Wege nach Weimar (1905–08), he produced plays, novels, and other works dealing in large part with Alsace. He wrote the drama Gottfried von Strassburg (1897), the novel Oberlin (1910), and also Weltkrieg und Elsass-Lothringen (1916) and Die Meisterschaft der Menschheit (1918).

Lienyun (lyen'yün'). [Also: former name, Lienyunkang; Laoyao.] City in E China, in the province of Kiangsu, a rail terminus and port on the Yellow Sea: salt production. Area of municipality, ab. 166 sq. mi.; pop. 76,753 (1947).

Lienz (lē'ents). Town in S Austria, in E Tirol, at the influx of the Isel into the Drau River, W of Villach. It is a tourist center. 10,024 (1951).

Liepaja (lye'pä.yä). [Russian, Lepaya, Libava; Lithuanian, Liepoja; German, Libau.] Seaport in W Latvia, on the Baltic Sea: an important port. It has steel mills, shipyards, and manufactures of machinery, pulp and paper, chemicals, and foodstuffs. 57,098 (1939).

Lierre (lyer). [Flemish, Lier (lēr).] Town in N Belgium, in the province of Antwerp, at the junction of the Great and Little Nèthe rivers, ab. 10 mi. SE of Antwerp: trading center of a vegetable-growing district, with lace and cord manufactures. 28,982 (1947).

Liesing (lē'zing). Former town in E Austria, now in the territory of Vienna, SW of the city center. It has manufactures of beer, chemicals, soap, machinery, and metalware. During the Nazi occupation of Austria Liesing was the site of a concentration camp. 5,193 (1946).

Liestal (lēs'tāl). Town in N Switzerland, the capital of the half-canton of Basel-Land, on the Ergolz River: an infantry garrison town. It was the birthplace of the Swiss poet Carl Spitteler. 7,211 (1941).

Lietuva (lye.tō'vä). Lithuanian name of Lithuania.

Lietzmann (lēts'män), Hans. b. at Düsseldorf, Germany, March 2, 1875; d. at Locarno, Switzerland, June 25, 1942. German Protestant theologian and religious historian.

Lievens or Livens or Lievenz (lē'vens), Jan. [Also, Lievensz.] b. at Leiden, Netherlands, Oct. 24, 1607; d. at Antwerp, Belgium, c1663. Dutch painter and engraver.

Liévin (lyā.vañ). Town in N France, in the department of Pas-de-Calais, W of Lens. It is a coal-mining town and has chemical industries. Largely destroyed by artillery fire during a British offensive in 1915, it was rebuilt after World War I and suffered little damage in World War II. 28,875 (1946).

Lièvre (lē.ev're; French, lyevr). River in SW Quebec, flowing generally S from the Laurentian Mountains to join the Ottawa River ab. 15 mi. below Ottawa. Length, ab. 205 mi.

Lif and Lifthrasir (lēf; lēf.thrä'zir). In Teutonic mythology, the human pair (Lif, the man; Lifthrasir, the woman) who survive Ragnarok, the end of the world. They sleep safely in a certain forest during the destruction, and wake to repeople the earth.

Lifar (lē.fär'), Serge. b. at Kiev, Russia, April 2, 1905—. Russian ballet dancer and choreographer. He was a solo performer with Diaghilev's Ballet Russe and was later a ballet master at Paris and Monte Carlo.

Life. Weekly picture magazine established in 1936 by Henry Luce, who took over the title of the humor magazine which had been published since 1883.

Life and Death of Harriett Frean (har'i.ėt frēn), The. Psychological novel by May Sinclair, published in 1922.

Life and Death of Mr. Badman (bad'mạn), The. See Badman, The Life and Death of Mr.

Life and Death of Richard-Yea-and Nay (rich'ạrd-yā'ạnd.nā'), The. Historical novel by Maurice Hewlett, published in 1900.

Life and Death of Thomas, Lord Cromwell (tom'ạs; krom'wel, -wẹl, krum'-). See Cromwell, The Life and Death of Thomas, Lord.

Life and Gabriella: The Story of a Woman's Courage (gā.bri.el'ạ, gab.ri-). Novel by Ellen Glasgow, published in 1916.

Life for the Czar, A. Opera in five acts by Mikhail Ivanovich Glinka, first produced at St. Petersburg, in December, 1836. A success from its first performance, it marks the beginning of the Russian national school of composition.

Life Let Us Cherish. [German title, Freut euch des Lebens.] German song, written by Martin Usteri of Zurich, published in 1796. The music was written by Hans Georg Nägeli in 1793.

Life of Christ, The. Series of six paintings by Rembrandt, executed c1640 for the Stadholder of the Netherlands. The finest of the series is the Entombment, whose chief group is thrown into vigorous relief by a ray of strong light amid the somber surroundings. In the Nativity, the Virgin sits beside the infant Jesus, who lies on a bed of straw before the wondering shepherds. Saint Joseph holds a lamp, from which all the light of the picture proceeds.

Life of Gargantua and Pantagruel (gär.gan'ţū.a; pan.tag'rō.ẹl), The. See Gargantua and Pantagruel, The Life of.

Life of John the Baptist. See John the Baptist, Life of.

Life of Reason, The. Philosophical work by George Santayana, published in five volumes (1905–06). The author discusses from the viewpoint of naturalism man's effort to lead a rational existence in the spheres of art, science, religion, common sense, and society.

Life on the Mississippi (mis.i.sip'i). Autobiographical narrative (1883) by Samuel Langhorne Clemens under the pseudonym Mark Twain. The book deals with the history of the Mississippi River and the author's experiences as a steamboat pilot. The second part of the work recounts Twain's return to the scene after a 20-year absence, and notes the changes wrought by time and the coming of the railroad.

Life Saving Service. See under Coast Guard, U.S.

Life without Principle. Essay by Henry David Thoreau published (1863) in the Atlantic Monthly.

Liffey (lif'i). River in E Irish Republic, in Leinster province. It rises in the Wicklow Mountains, in the NW part of County Wicklow, and flows NW into County Kildare to Droichead Nua (or Newbridge), whence it flows NE and E to Dublin Bay at Dublin. Length, ab. 50 mi.

Lifford (lif'ȯrd). Small town in NW Irish Republic, the county seat of County Donegal, situated just W of the border of Northern Ireland and of the river Foyle. 478 (1941).

Lifthrasir (lēf.thrä'zir). See Lif and Lifthrasir.

Ligarius (li.gār'i.us), Quintus. fl. in the middle of the 1st century B.C. Roman commander, an adherent of Pompey, defended before Caesar by Cicero.

Ligeia (li.jē'ą). Tale by Edgar Allan Poe, published in 1838 and included in Tales of the Grotesque and Arabesque (1840).

Liger (lī'jėr). Latin name of the Loire River.

Liggett (lig'ęt), Hunter. b. at Reading, Pa., March 21, 1857; d. at San Francisco, Dec. 30, 1935. American army officer. He served (1915–17) in the Philippines, was appointed (1917) major general, and served (1917–19) in France with the American Expeditionary Forces, taking part in the Marne, St.-Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne operations. He was in command of the 1st army (1918–19) and of the army of occupation on the Rhine (1919).

Liggett, Louis Kroh. b. at Detroit, Mich., April 4, 1875—. American merchant. He helped found the United Drug Company, of which he served as president, and was chairman of the board of the Liggett Drug Company, Inc., operating a nation-wide system of drug stores.

Liggins (lig'inz), Ethel. Original name of Leginska, Ethel.

Light (līt), Christina. Character in the novels Roderick Hudson (1876) and The Princess Casamassima (1886) by Henry James.

Light Articles Only. Short stories and sketches by A. P. Herbert, published in 1921. It was issued in America under the title Little Rays of Moonshine.

Light Brigade, Charge of the. See Charge of the Light Brigade.

Lightfoot (līt'fůt), John. b. at Stoke-upon-Trent, England, March 29, 1602; d. at Ely, England, Dec. 6, 1675 English Hebraist and rabbinical scholar. He was vice-chancellor of Cambridge University (1654). He was appointed to a prebend at Ely in 1668. His chief works are Horae Hebraicae et Talmudicae (1658–74), and an incomplete Harmony of the Four Evangelists (1644 et seq.). He assisted Brian Walton in the preparation of the Polyglot Bible (1657).

Lightfoot, Joseph Barber. b. at Liverpool, England, April 13, 1828; d. at Bournemouth, England, Dec. 21, 1889. English prelate and scholar, made bishop of Durham in 1879. He became a fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1852, and Hulsean professor of divinity in 1861. In 1871 he was appointed a canon of Saint Paul's. He was an influential member of the committee for the revision of the New Testament. He published commentaries on Saint Paul's Epistles to the Galatians (1865), the Philippians (1868), and the Colossians and Philemon (1875), A Fresh Revision of the New Testament (1871), an edition of Ignatius and Polycarp (1885), sermons, addresses, and others.

"Light-Horse Harry" Lee (līt'hôrs har'i lē). See Lee, Henry.

"Lighthouse of El Salvador" (el sal'vą.dôr). See Izalco.

Light in August (ô'gust). Novel by William Faulkner, published in 1932.

Lightnin'. Play (1918) by Winchell Smith and Frank Bacon. Until Abie's Irish Rose eclipsed its record, it held the distinction of having the longest run (1,291 performances) of any New York play.

Light of Asia (ā'zha, ā'sha), The. Poem by Sir Edwin Arnold, published in 1878.

Light of the World, The. Picture by Holman Hunt. It represents Jesus standing at night before a closed door with a lighted lantern in his hand.

Light of the World, The. Oratorio in two parts by Sir Arthur Sullivan, produced in 1873.

Light of the World, The. Poem by Sir Edwin Arnold, published in 1890.

Ligne (lēny'), Prince Charles Joseph de. b. at Brussels, May 12, 1735; d. at Vienna, Dec. 13, 1814. Austrian field marshal. Distinguished in the Seven Years' War, he became the close friend of Joseph II and later was a favorite of Catherine II of Russia. His correspondence with important literary and governmental figures of his time is noted for its charm and wit. He is credited with the remark about the Congress of Vienna: "Le Congrès danse mais ne marche pas" (the Congress dances but gets nowhere. He was the author of Mélanges militaires, littéraires, et sentimentaires (34 vols., 1795–1811) and Œuvres posthumes (1817).

Ligny (lē.nyē). Commune and village in S central Belgium, in the province of Namur, ab. 25 mi. SE of Brussels. A victory was gained here by Napoleon over the Prussians under Blücher June 16, 1815, just before the Battle of Waterloo. Pop. of commune, 1,988 (1947).

Ligny-en-Barrois (lē.nyē.äṅ.bȧ.rwȧ). Town in NE France, in the department of Meuse, on the Ornain River ab. 11 mi. SE of Bar-le-Duc. It produces shoes and precision instruments. 4,829 (1946).

Ligon (lig'ǫn), Richard. fl. c1650. English royalist. He published A True and Exact History of Barbadoes (London, 1650), considered to be the best of the early works on that island.

Ligonier (lig.ō.nir'), John. [Also: Jean Louis Ligonier; title, 1st Earl Ligonier.] b. at Castres, France, Nov. 7, 1680; d. April 28, 1770. English soldier. He went to England in 1697, entered the army under Marlborough in 1702, and took part in all the military events till 1710. He was appointed (1712) governor of Fort St. Philip, Minorca. He commanded the English infantry at the battle of Fontenoy, May 11, 1745, and was commander in chief of the British forces at the battle of Raucoux (Rocourt), Oct. 11, 1746. He was made prisoner at the battle of Laafelt, July 2, 1747, but was soon exchanged.

Liguest (lē.ge), Pierre Laclède. Full name of Laclède, Pierre.

Liguori (lē.gwô'rē), Saint Alfonso Maria de'. [Also, Saint Alphonsus Liguori.] b. at Marianella, near Naples, Italy, Sept. 26, 1696; d. at Nocera dei Pagani, Italy, Aug. 1, 1787. Italian theologian, founder of the order of the Redemptorists (Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer) in 1732. Among his works are Theologia moralis (1755), Homo apostolicus (1782), and others. He was canonized in 1839 and declared a Doctor of the Church in 1871.

Liguria (li.gū'ri.ą). In ancient geography, the country of the Ligurians, in NW Italy and SE France. At the time of Augustus it was included between the Mediterranean and the rivers Var, Po, Trebbia, and Magra. Originally it extended beyond these limits. It was at war with Rome from c200 B.C. to c120 B.C., and was finally subjugated in 14 B.C.

Liguria. Compartimento (region) in N Italy, containing the provinces of Genova, Imperia, La Spezia, and Savona. It stretches, in the shape of a half moon, between the Apennines and the Ligurian Sea, from Tuscany to the French border. The coastal strip, densely populated, is the Italian Riviera, famous for its scenery and climate; its farms produce citrus fruits, olives, nuts, and flowers. There are fisheries and a number of industries, the latter concentrated in the vicinity of Genoa (shipbuilding, iron and machine works). Prior to the unification of Italy Liguria belonged to the kingdom of Sardinia under the house of Savoy. A small mountainous area in the W was ceded to France in 1947. Area, ab. 2,099 sq. mi. (1936), ab. 2,089 sq. mi. (1950); pop. 1,466,915 (1936), 1,555,275 (1951).

Ligurian Alps (li.gū'ri.ąn alps). That part of the Maritime Alps in NW Italy which extends from the Col di Tenda E to the Col di Giovi. Peak elevation, ab. 8,690 ft.

Ligurian Apennines (ap'ę.nīnz). That part of the Apennines in NW Italy which extends from the Ligurian Alps to the borders of Tuscany. Peak elevation, ab. 5,915 ft.

Ligurian Republic. Name assumed by the republic of Genoa, formed on the model of France, in 1797. It was formally annexed to France in 1805; French control ended with the fall of Napoleon.

Ligurians (li.gū'ri.ąnz). Ancient eponymous inhabitants of Liguria, occupying a region from the Mediterranean coast into SE Gaul. One group of them (Ligurii), of a mixed Celtic and Germanic stock, were subjugated by Rome.

Ligurian Sea. [Italian, Mar Ligure; French, Mer Ligurienne; Latin, Mare Ligusticum.] That part of the Mediterranean Sea which lies between Liguria and Corsica.

Liholiho (lē′hō.lē′hō). See Kamehameha II.

Liholiho, Alexander. See Kamehameha IV.

Lihue (lē.hō′ā). Town in E Kauai, Hawaiian Islands, the county seat of Kauai County, and chief town on the island of Kauai. 3,870 (1950).

Li Hung-chang (lē′ hůng′jäng′). [Called the "Bismarck of Asia."] b. in the province of Anhwei, China, c1823; d. at Peiping, Nov. 7, 1901. Chinese statesman. He supported General Charles ("Chinese") Gordon in suppressing the Taiping Rebellion against the Manchu dynasty (for their joint success, both received the yellow jacket and the three-eyed peacock's feather, the highest orders bestowed by the Manchu emperors). He was appointed governor general of Chihli province and senior grand secretary of state in 1870, remaining the intermediary between China and the world at large until the beginning (1894) of the first war with Japan. After the first reverses suffered by the Chinese, his enemies prevailed upon the emperor to strip him of his highest decorations, and, later, he was obliged to share the command of the army with Prince Kung, the emperor's uncle (later still, both he and Prince Kung were superseded in command of the army). But at the close of the war, after ineffectual efforts by others, Li Hung-chang was made the high commissioner for China, with absolute powers, and brought about an agreement for peace between his country and Japan. He was the organizer of the only body of modern soldiers China employed, the founder of her navy of modern ships, the builder of her first railway. The faults of the Chinese army for which he was degraded early in the war were due to the weakness and ignorance of the Tsung-li-yamen, the board which conducted the war, and to which Li was subordinated. He was prime minister (1895–98) of China. He visited Europe and the U.S. in 1896. In July, 1900, he was appointed governor of Chihli, and played an important part in the negotiations which accompanied and followed the siege of the legations in the Boxer Rebellion. He was one of the Chinese peace commissioners.

Lij Yasu (lēj yä′sö). b. 1896—. Emperor of Ethiopia (1911–16); son of a daughter of Menelik II. He was proclaimed heir to the throne in 1908, and became emperor on May 15, 1911. He became a convert to Islam, arousing the opposition of the Christian nobility of his country, and attempted to form a Moslem League in the Near East, thus gaining the enmity of the Allies during World War I. He was deposed (1916) and afterwards imprisoned.

Likely Story, A. Novel by William De Morgan, published in 1911.

Lilas (lē.lä), Les. See Les Lilas.

Lilburne (lil′bėrn), John. b. at Greenwich (now part of London), c1614; d. at Eltham (now part of London), Aug. 29, 1657. English political agitator and Puritan pamphleteer; brother of Robert Lilburne. He was arrested Dec. 11, 1637, on the charge of printing unlicensed books (William Prynne's and others), whipped and pilloried, and imprisoned until released at the opening of the Long Parliament. At the battle of Brentford he was taken prisoner, and was subsequently tried for treason, but was exchanged in 1643, and became (1644) lieutenant colonel of dragoons. He refused to take the covenant and resigned from the army in 1645, dissatisfied with the Presbyterian dominance and aiming for a more democratic establishment. He was several times imprisoned and fined for attacks on persons of authority, and finally tried for sedition. Notwithstanding his acquittal, he was transferred to the Tower of London, thence to Elizabeth Castle, Guernsey, and from there to Dover Castle (October, 1655). He became a Quaker, and shortly after that Cromwell released him. He wrote a large number of controversial pamphlets.

Lilburne, Robert. b. in Durham, England, 1613; d. 1665. English regicide; brother of John Lilburne. He was an officer (colonel of infantry) in the Parliamentary army, and in December, 1648, was appointed one of the judges of Charles I, and signed his death warrant. In the Scottish campaigns (1651) he served with distinction, and was rewarded by Parliament. At the Restoration he was tried and condemned to death, but the sentence was not executed. He died a prisoner.

L'Île de Yeu (lēl dyė). See Yeu, Île d'.

"Lili" (lē′lē). See under Schönemann, Anna Elisabeth.

Lilian (lil′i.ạn). Novel by Arnold Bennett, published in 1922.

Liliencron (lē′lyẹn.krōn), Detlev von. [Original full name, Friedrich Adolf Axel von Liliencron.] b. at Kiel, Germany, June 3, 1844; d. July 22, 1909. German poet. An officer in the Prussian army in the wars of 1866 and 1870–71, he never lost his interest in soldiering, but his hopes of a military career in America (where his grandfather had served with Washington) were not realized, and after two miserable years (1875–77) of hand-to-mouth existence in the U.S. he returned to Germany and served as a government official until 1885. Liliencron's lyric poetry is generally considered to offer a parallel in German letters to impressionistic painting (Adjutantenritte, 1883). In addition to the "higgledy-piggledy epic" Poggfred (1906), which most critical readers now look upon as hardly more than a curiosity, he wrote ballads, short stories (Kriegsnovellen, 1893), novels, and dramas.

Liliencron, Baron Rochus von. b. at Plön, Germany, Dec. 8, 1820; d. at Koblenz, Germany, March 5, 1912. German scholar and musicologist. He served (1869 et seq.) as chief editor of Allgemeine deutsche Biographie, at Munich. He published four volumes of Die historischen Volkslieder der Deutschen vom 13. bis 16. Jahrhundert (1865–69) and Deutsches Leben im Volkslied um 1530 (1885), which contained not only the words to various 16th-century folk songs but also, where possible, the music.

Lilienstein (lē′lyẹn.shtīn). One of the chief heights of the Saxon Switzerland, overlooking the Elbe River ab. 17 mi. SE of Dresden. Elevation, ab. 1,348 ft.

Lilienthal (lil′yẹn.thôl), David Eli. b. at Morton, Ill., July 8, 1899—. American civil servant and administrator, notable for his connection with the Tennessee Valley Authority and with the Atomic Energy Commission. Admitted to the bar of Illinois in 1923, he practiced law for several years at Chicago before accepting appointment by Governor Philip La Follette of Wisconsin as a member of the Public Service Commission of that state. In 1933 President Franklin D. Roosevelt named him one of the three directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority. He became chairman in 1941, holding the post until 1946, when by appointment of President Truman he became chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. With Dean Acheson, then undersecretary of state, he prepared a report which was utilized by Bernard M. Baruch in drafting his proposals to the United Nations concerning atomic energy control. Mr. Lilienthal continued to head the Atomic Energy Commission until 1950. He is the author of TVA: Democracy on the March (1944) and of This I Do Believe (1949).

Lilienthal (lē′lyẹn.täl), Otto. b. at Anklam, Prussia, Germany, May 23, 1848; d. at Rhinow, Prussia, Germany, Aug. 9, 1896. German aeronautical pioneer. He is considered the inventor of the modern glider based on bird flight. He wrote Der Vogelflug als Grundlage der Fliegekunst (1889), translated into English under the title Bird-flight as the Basis of Aviation.

Li Li-san (lē lē′sän′). b. at Liling, Hunan, China, 1896—. Chinese Communist leader who helped found (1921) the Chinese Communist Party in France and dominated (1929–31) the party in China. He was replaced (1931) by Mao Tse-tung, studied and worked (1931–45) at Moscow, and returned (1945) to China, where he became (1949) minister of labor in the People's Republic of China.

Lilith (lil′ith). In the Bible and in Talmudic tradition, a demon that dwells in deserted places, mentioned in Isa. xxxiv. 14 as a screech owl. She is otherwise depicted as a female roaming in the night, especially dangerous to children and to women in childbirth. Lilith is probably of Babylonian origin: a demon of waste places, whose name occurs frequently in the incantations. In rabbinical tradition Lilith was Adam's first wife, created simultaneously with Adam and therefore his equal. Unwilling to take an inferior role, she left Adam, and was expelled from Eden. One variant of the story says she slept with Adam once more after this and gave birth to evil spirits. In Mohammedan legend, she became the consort of the Devil and gave birth to evil spirits. However, for her disobedience and defiance, she was condemned to lose all her offspring forever. In Talmudic legend, she became a night demon who slept with men who slept alone, causing nocturnal emissions. By medieval times the legend was that Lilith envied all mothers their children and would take them unless special precautionary magic was observed.

Liliuokalani (lē.lē''ō.ō.kä.lä'nē), Lydia Kamehameha. b. Sept. 2, 1838; d. Nov. 11, 1917. Queen of the Hawaiian Islands (1891–93); sister of King Kalakaua. She married an American, John O. Dominis, who was governor of Oahu. He died in 1891, and in the same year, on the death of the king, she ascended the throne. In 1893 she was deposed as the result of her attempt to supersede the constitution of 1887. Her heiress presumptive was her niece, daughter of her younger sister and A. S. Cleghorn, governor of Oahu after the death of Dominis. However, the monarchy was abolished and a republic was established (1894), the islands eventually being annexed (1898) by the U.S. Liliuokalani lived in exile in the U.S. after one abortive attempt (1895) to regain the throne. She wrote several songs, the most famous being Aloha Oe (Farewell to Thee).

Lille (lēl). [Former name, L'Isle, Lisle; Flemish, Ryssel; Latin, Insula.] City in N France, the capital of the department of Nord, situated in the plain of Flanders, near the Belgian border. Long one of the chief fortress cities of France, with ramparts and citadel constructed by Vauban still standing, it is now one of France's major manufacturing centers. The textile industry is predominant; there are cotton, linen, and woolen manufactures. Other products include clothing, automobile parts, optical instruments, leather goods, printed materials, tobacco, soap, and foodstuffs. Lille has only a few old buildings; some date from its Spanish period in the 15th and 16th centuries; some, such as the Bourse building and the churches of Saint André, Saint Cathérine, and de la Madeleine, from the 18th century. It has a university, a Catholic college, and a theater. The city has belonged at various times to Flanders, France, and Burgundy, later to the Spanish and Austrian Hapsburgs. In 1667 it was taken by Louis XIV, in 1708 by Prince Eugene of Savoy and the Duke of Marlborough. The treaty of Utrecht (1713) gave it to France. In 1914 the Germans bombarded the city, causing great damage, and held it afterward for four years; it was damaged again in World War II. Pop. with immediate suburbs, ab. 350,000 (1952); of greater Lille (including Tourcoing and Roubaix), ab. 700,000 (1952).

Lillebælt (lil'e.belt). Danish name of Belt, Little.

Lillebonne (lēl.bon). [Latin, Juliobana, Juliobona. Town in NW France, in the department of Seine-Inférieure, on the Bolbec River ab. 19 mi. E of Le Havre It has a ruined castle dating from the 12th century, and a Roman theater. 5,956 (1946).

Lillehammer (lil'e.häm.ėr). Town in SE Norway, capital of the fylke (county) of Opland, at the N end of Lake Mjøsa. 6,565 (1946).

Lillers (lē.ler). Town in N France, in the department of Pas-de-Calais, near the Belgian border and ab. 23 mi. NW of Arras. It is a coal-mining town and is said to have contained Europe's earliest artesian well (bored in the 12th century). It has one of the most beautiful Romanesque churches in French Flanders. 8,557 (1946).

Lillibullero (lil''i.bu.lē'rō) or Lilliburlero (-bėr.lē'rō). Political song satirizing James II of England, who had made an unwelcome nomination to the lord-lieutenancy of Ireland. The words were written (c1686) by Thomas Wharton (1648–1715). It is claimed that the music, originally a quickstep march, was by Henry Purcell, but it is also said to have been known in Ireland in the first quarter of the 17th century. The song is the merest doggerel, but contributed a great impetus to the revolution of 1688. The whole army and the people sang it constantly. The refrain "Lillibullero bullen a la" was specially adapted to the music of the quickstep with which the soldiers were familiar.

Lillie (lil'i), Beatrice. [Title, by marriage, Lady Peel.] b. at Toronto, Canada, May 29, 1898—. English comic actress; wife (married 1920) of Sir Robert Peel (d. 1934). She made her debut (1914) at London, played in vaudeville (1915–22) at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, and made her New York debut (1924) in Charlot's Revue. She starred in Big Top (1940), Seven Lively Arts (1945), Better Late (1946), and other productions, and appeared (1926, 1931) in motion pictures.

Lillie, Frank Rattray. b. at Toronto, Canada, June 27, 1870; d. at Chicago, 1947. American zoölogist who served as assistant director (1900–08), director (1908–25), and president (1925–42) of the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass. He was instrumental in organizing the Oceanographic Institution at Woods Hole. Author of The Development of the Chick (1908) and others.

Lilliput (lil'i.put). Country on the shore of which Lemuel Gulliver is wrecked, in Jonathan Swift's Gulliver's Travels. The inhabitants (the Lilliputians) are so small that Gulliver is a giant to them.

Lilliput. Play taken from Swift's Gulliver's Travels, produced by David Garrick in December, 1756. It was played by children whom he trained himself.

Lillo (lē'yō), Baldomero. b. 1867; d. 1923. Chilean short-story writer, one of the earliest of his country's realists. Author of Sub terra (1904) and Sub sole (1907).

Lillo (lil'ō), George. b. near Moorfields, London, Feb. 4, 1693; d. at London, Sept. 3, 1739. English dramatist. He wrote Silvia, or the Country Burial, a ballad-opera (acted 1730); The Merchant, renamed The London Merchant, or the History of George Barnwell, and usually called George Barnwell (acted 1731), long a successful play; Britannia, or the Royal Lovers (acted 1734); The Christian Hero (acted 1735); Fatal Curiosity (acted 1736); and an adaptation of an Elizabethan play, Arden of Feversham, completed after Lillo's death by John Hoadly (acted 1759).

Lilly (lil'i), William. [Pseudonym, Zadkiel.] b. at Diseworth, Leicestershire, England, May 1, 1602; d. at Hersham, Surrey, England, June 9, 1681. English astrologer. He was the author of a series of almanacs (1644–80, yearly), of many prophetic pamphlets, of Christian Astrology (1647), which was long an authority on the subject (reprinted as Introduction to Astrology, 1852), of True History of King James I, and King Charles I (1651), and of The History of Lilly's Life and Times (1715), an autobiography.

Lillyvick (lil'i.vik), Mr. In Charles Dickens's Nicholas Nickleby, a collector of London water-taxes who marries Henrietta Petowker and is presently forsaken by her for a "half-pay captain, . . . a bottle-nosed captain that any man might have considered himself safe from."

Lilongwe (lē.lông'wā). Town in SE Africa, in W central Nyasaland protectorate, ab. 187 mi. NW of Zomba, with which it is connected by a good road: center of a tobacco industry. It has an airport. Pop. ab. 1,500.

Lily or Lilye (lil'i), William. b. at Odiham, Hampshire, England, c1468; d. at London, Feb. 25, 1522. English grammarian, a friend of Colet, Erasmus, and More, and one of the first teachers of Greek in England. He studied the classics in Italy under Sulpicius and Pomponius Laetus, and in 1512 was appointed high master of Colet's school in Saint Paul's Churchyard. He contributed a Latin syntax (Grammatices rudimenta) to the Æditio of Colet (written probably c1509), and, with the aid of Erasmus, wrote a syntax (Absolutissimus de octo orationis partium constructione), published in 1513. The two (Æditio and Absolutissimus) were revised and combined as a Latin grammar (1540), entitled Institutio compendiaria totius grammaticae, which was again issued, in altered form, in 1574, under the title A Short Introduction of Grammar. In this form it was used and quoted by Shakespeare. It was the national Latin grammar, and continued in popular use in various editions for many years.

Lilybaeum (lil.i.bē'um). Ancient name of Marsala, Italy.

Lily Bart (lil'i bärt). See Bart, Lily.

Lily Maid of Astolat (as'tō.lat). In Arthurian legend, Elaine of Astolat, who died of love for Sir Lancelot.

Lily of Killarney (ki.lär'ni), The. Opera in three acts by Sir Jules Benedict, with a libretto by John Oxenford, based on a play by Dion Boucicault, first performed at the London Covent Garden on Feb. 8, 1862.

Lima (lī′mą). City in W Ohio, county seat of Allen County, ab. 84 mi. NW of Columbus: manufactures include electrical machinery, cigars, Diesel engines, railroad locomotives, foodstuffs, and bus bodies. It was platted in 1831, as the county seat, and was incorporated in 1842. Pop. 50,246 (1950).

Lima (lē′mą; Spanish, lē′mä). Department in W Peru, on the Pacific coast: cotton, grains, sugar, and livestock. Capital, Lima; area, ab. 15,052 sq. mi.; pop. 1,216,325 (est. 1950).

Lima. [Original Spanish name, Ciudad de los Reyes.] City in W Peru, capital of Peru and of Lima department, on the Rimac River ab. 7 mi. E of its seaport, Callao: leading commercial center of Peru. The cathedral is a large building in Renaissance style. The university, chartered by Charles V in 1551, is the oldest in America. Lima, founded by Pizarro in 1535, has often been visited by earthquakes (most disastrously on Oct. 28, 1746). It was entered by the army of San Martín in 1821, and was occupied by the Chileans from Jan. 17, 1881, to Oct. 21, 1883. Pop. 533,645 (1940), 835,468 (est. 1950).

Lima, Audience of. Supreme court of Peru during the colonial period. It was established in 1544, and originally there was no appeal from its decisions except in civil cases involving more than 10,000 pesos de oro; later its powers were somewhat restricted. The audiences of Chile, Charcas, and elsewhere were subordinate to it. The viceroy was ex-officio president of the Audience; in case of a vacancy in his office one of the auditors became president, and acted ad interim as viceroy.

Lima (lē′mą), (Manuel de) Oliveira. b. at Recife, Brazil, Dec. 25, 1867; d. at Washington, D.C., March 24, 1928. Brazilian historian, essayist, and diplomat, who lived for some years in the U.S. He donated to the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C., his valuable book collection, now known as the Lima Library. Among his works is The Evolution of Brazil Compared With That of Spanish and Anglo-Saxon America (1914).

Lima, Pedro de Araujo. See Araujo Lima, Pedro de.

Lima Barreto (lē′mą bär.rā′tō). See Barreto, (Afonso Henriques de) Lima.

Lima Conference. International conference of American states, attended by representatives of all 21 American republics and held at Lima, Peru, from Dec. 10 to 27, 1938. The U.S., in a move to strengthen the Western Hemisphere against Nazi encroachment, supported the creation of an international committee to promote the common defense. Although the establishment of such a body was opposed by Argentina and five other republics, the principle underlying the proposal was approved on Dec. 24, 1938.

Lima e Silva (lē′mą ē sēl′vą), Francisco de. b. at Rio de Janeiro, July 5, 1785; d. there, Dec. 2, 1853. Brazilian general and statesman, regent (1831–35) of Brazil; father of Luiz Alves de Lima e Silva. After the abdication of Pedro I (April 6, 1831) he was a member of the temporary regency, and, by the death of one of his colleagues and the retirement of the other, remained the sole ruler until Oct. 12, 1835.

Lima e Silva, Luiz (or Luis) Alves de. [Titles, Baron, Count, Marquis, and (from March 23, 1869) Duke of Caxias.] b. at Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 25, 1803; d. near there, May 7, 1880. Brazilian soldier and statesman; son of Francisco de Lima e Silva. As president of Maranhão (February, 1840–May, 1841), São Paulo (May, 1842–December, 1842), and Rio Grande do Sul (December, 1842–October, 1846), he crushed rebellions in all those states. In 1851 he commanded the Brazilian army which, in alliance with Justo José Urquiza, drove the Argentine dictator Juan Manuel de Rosas from Buenos Aires. A conservative, he was senator from 1855, minister of war (June, 1855), and, by the death of the Marquis of Paraná, premier (Sept. 3, 1856–May 3, 1857; March 3, 1861–May 4, 1862). From October, 1866, to February, 1869, he was commander in chief of the Brazilian forces in Paraguay, and during a portion of the time commanded the Argentine forces also. This period was marked by the great successes of the war, including the occupation of Humaitá (July, 1868) and of Asunción (Jan. 5, 1869). He was for a third time premier (June 25, 1875–Jan. 1, 1878), attained the military rank of marshal (December, 1862), and was the only duke created during the empire.

Limagne (lē.mäny′). Fertile district in the basin of the Allier River, in Auvergne, France, in the departments of Allier and Puy-de-Dôme.

Limanowski (lē.mä.nôf′skē), Bolesław. b. 1835; d. 1935. Polish historian and sociologist. Active in the independence movement against Russia, he took part in the preparations for the uprising in 1863, was arrested by czarist police, and was exiled. He later lived in Austria, Switzerland, and France, greatly influencing Polish youth as one of the founders (1892) of the Polish Socialist Party. His most important historical works, all in Polish, are History of the Social Movement in the Second Half of the 18th Century (1888), History of the Uprising in 1863–64 (1909), Stanislaw Worcel, Polish Utopian Socialist (1910), Champions of Freedom (1911), History of the Revolutionary Movement in Poland (1913), and Memoirs (1937).

Liman von Sanders (lē′män fon zän′dėrs), Otto. b. at Stolp, Germany, Feb. 17, 1855; d. at Munich, Aug. 22, 1929. Prussian general who led (1913) the German military mission in Turkey, and defended the Dardanelles (February, 1915–January, 1916) against the Allied Gallipoli expedition. In 1918, as German commander in Palestine, he was defeated by General Allenby.

Limassol (lē.mä.sôl′). [Also: Limasol; Greek, Lemessos, Lemissos, Limissos; Latin, Lemessus.] Seaport on the S coast of Cyprus. It exports wine, carobs, and asbestos. The site of the ancient city of Amathus is nearby. 25,803 (est. 1951).

Limay (lē.mī′). River in W Argentina, flowing NE from Lake Nahuel Huapí to join the Neuquén, forming the Río Negro. Length, ab. 270 mi.

Limba (lim′bä). Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting N Sierra Leone. Their population is estimated at more than 110,000 (by T. N. Goddard, The Handbook of Sierra Leone, 1925). Culturally they resemble the Temne.

Limbach (lim′bäċh). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, near the Erzgebirge, ab. 8 mi. NW of Chemnitz. Before World War II it was a center of the hosiery and knitwear industries. 17,963 (1946).

Limbe (lim′bā). Town in S Nyasaland protectorate, SE Africa, on the railway line from Beira, Mozambique, ab. 349 mi. N of that port: the customs and railway headquarters of the protectorate. The largest tobacco factory in the British Commonwealth is here. Elevation, ab. 3,800 ft.; pop. 7,140, including 280 Europeans (1945).

Limberham, or The Kind Keeper (lim′bėr.ąm). Play by John Dryden, produced in 1678.

Limberlost (lim′bėr.lôst), A Girl of the. See Girl of the Limberlost, A.

Limbo (lim′bō). Name given to that region of the afterworld to which go the souls of those who die unsaved through no fault of their own. Medieval cosmography locates it on the edge of hell; Dante numbered it as first of the ten circles of hell. It is inhabited by the souls of unbaptized infants, the souls of the ancients who never heard of Christ, and the souls of fools who knew no better than to live as they did.

Limborch (lim′bôrċh), Philippus van. b. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, June 19, 1633; d. there, April 30, 1712. Dutch Arminian theologian, pastor and later (1668) professor at the College of the Remonstrants in Amsterdam. He was a friend of John Locke, who addressed to him his Epistola de tolerantia.

Limburg (lim′bėrg; Dutch and Flemish, lim′bėrċh). Former duchy in W Europe, corresponding to the two provinces of that name in Belgium and the Netherlands. It passed to Brabant in 1288, was divided between Spain and the Netherlands in 1648, was under French rule from 1794 to 1814, was allotted to the Netherlands in 1814–15, joined Belgium in 1830, and in 1839 was divided between Belgium and the Netherlands.

Limburg. [French, Limbourg (laṅ.bör; Anglicized, lim′-berg).] Province of Belgium, bounded by the Netherlands on the N and E, by Liége on the S, and by Brabant and Antwerp on the W: the smallest of the provinces of Belgium. Traversed by the Albert Canal, it is largely level country, with sandy soils. The population is engaged in agriculture, livestock raising, dairying (which includes the making of Limburger cheese), and manufacturing. The center of the province contains a coal-mining region. The population is largely of Flemish stock and language. Capital, Hasselt; area, ab. 929 sq. mi.; pop. 460,445 (1947).

Limburg. Province in SE Netherlands, bounded by Germany on the E, Belgium on the S and W, and the province of North Brabant on the NW and N. It has high hills in the S, and fertile plains, particularly along the Maas (Meuse) River. There is general farming, dairying, and livestock raising. There are rich coal mines, stone quarries, and numerous industries. Capital, Maastricht; area, ab. 851 sq. mi.; pop. 739,343 (est. 1950).

Limburg an der Lahn (lim'bŭrk än dĕr län'). [Also: Limburg; English, Limburg on the Lahn (lim'bėrg; län').] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hessen, American Zone, formerly in the province of Hesse-Nassau, Prussia, on the Lahn River ab. 21 mi. E of Koblenz: livestock and leather trade; machine, metal, furniture, and other industries. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishopric, and is noted for its Romanesque Dom (cathedral), erected (1215–35) on the site of an earlier church. The community received town privileges in the 13th century; it passed to the archbishopric of Trier in 1344, to Nassau in 1803, and to Prussia in 1866. Pop. 15,419 (1950).

Limehouse (līm'hous). Parish in Stepney metropolitan borough, NE London, on the N bank of the Thames. It contains London's "Chinatown" and has long been noted as a rendezvous of British and foreign sailors. The area suffered heavy damage in World War II.

Limeira (lē.mā'rą). City in SE Brazil, in the state of São Paulo: manufactures hats, matches, and machinery. The surrounding region produces oranges and silk. 27,962 (1950).

Limen Vatheos (lē.mēn' vā.the'ôs). See Vathy.

Limerick (lim'ę.rik). [Irish, Luimneach, Luimnigh.] County in SW Irish Republic, in Munster province. It is bounded on the N by the estuary of the river Shannon and County Clare, on the E by County Tipperary, on the S by County Cork, and on the W by County Kerry. The surface in the N and C parts is generally low and rolling; hilly and mountainous terrain is found in the E, S, and SW. The soil is fertile and highly productive, especially near the river Shannon and in the Golden Vale of Limerick, a lowland reaching westward from Cashel, in County Tipperary, to Limerick, on the river Shannon. The Golden Vale is said to be the most fertile part of Ireland. Dairy farming and cattle raising are the chief agricultural specialties. Industries include woolen and paper manufactures, grain milling, bacon curing, and butter and cheese making. Limerick is the county seat; area, ab. 1,037 sq. mi.; pop. 141,251 (1951).

Limerick. [Irish, Luimneach, Luimnigh.] City, county borough, and river port, in SW Irish Republic, county seat of County Limerick, situated at the head of the estuary of the river Shannon, ab. 109 mi. SW of Dublin. Limerick consists of three parts: the English Town (on an island), the Irish Town, and Newtown Pery. Limerick handles chiefly grain and agricultural products through its port. It is the largest grain-milling center in the west of Ireland, and has also bacon-curing establishments and other food-processing industries. It has inland waterway connections via the Shannon Navigation Canal with the Grand and Royal Canals. The large hydroelectric development on the river Shannon is ab. 2 mi. NE. The cathedral was founded in the 12th century, but modified through the later Middle Ages. Limerick was a Danish town in the 9th, 10th, and 11th centuries, was taken by the English under Ireton in 1651, was unsuccessfully besieged by William III in 1690, and was the last Jacobite stronghold, surrendering on Oct. 3, 1691. Pop. 50,823 (1951).

Limerick, Earl of. Title of Dongan, Thomas.

Limerick, Treaty of. [Also, Pacification of Limerick.] Treaty concluded (October, 1691) between the English commander Godert de Ginkel and the Irish commander Patrick Sarsfield, granting amnesty, liberty, and other privileges to the Irish Catholics, and permission to volunteer in the French service. The Irish Parliament insisted, however, on its being virtually ignored.

Limestone (līm'stōn). Former name of Maysville, Ky.

Lim Fjord (lēm) or Limfjord (lēm'fyôrd''). Shallow sea passage cutting off the N portion of Jutland, Denmark, from the main portion of the peninsula. Length, ab. 110 mi.

Limin (lē.mēn'). See Thasos, town.

Limmat (lim'ät). River in N Switzerland which flows from the Lake of Zurich and joins the Aare near Brugg, in Aargau canton. Length, ab. 21 mi.

L'Immoraliste (lē.mo.rą.lēst). See Immoraliste, L'.

Limnae (lim'nē). In ancient geography, a section of Athens, Greece, important as the seat of the earliest cult of Dionysus and the first rudimentary dramatic performances at Athens.

Limnander de Nieuwenhove (lim.nän'dėr dę nē'węn-hō.vę), Baron Armand Marie Guislain. b. at Ghent, Belgium, May 22, 1814; d. Aug. 15, 1892. Belgian composer of several operas, a symphony, religious music, a string quartet, songs, and a cello sonata.

Limne Kerkinitis (lim'nē kėr.ki.nī'tis). See Cercinitis.

Limni (lēm'nē) or Limno (lēm'nô) or Limnos (lēm'nôs). See Lemnos.

Limoeiro (lē.mwā'rō). City in NE Brazil, in the state of Pernambuco. 14,322 (1950).

Limoges (lē.mōzh'; French, lē.mozh). [Ancient names, Augustoritum, Augustoritum Lemovicensium.] City in W France, the capital of the department of Haute-Vienne, on the Vienne River, one of the principal stations on the railroad line from Paris to Toulouse. The porcelain manufactures of Limoges are world-famous, consisting of industrial as well as household articles. The goldsmith's and glazier's crafts are likewise of long standing. The enameling craft flourished here from the 12th to the 16th centuries. Limoges also produces printed materials (chiefly calendars and prayer books), leather and wooden shoes, clothing, and liquors. It has trade in lumber, wine, and agricultural products. There is a collection of ceramics and other treasures in the Musée Adrien-Dubouche and in the municipal museum. Founded by the Romans, the town suffered in the barbarian invasions and, much later, in the English and Huguenot wars. Its modern industrial history was initiated in the 18th century under the administration of Turgot. 107,857 (1946).

Limón (lē.mōn'). Province in E Costa Rica: bananas, coffee, hides, sugar, and timber. It is inhabited mainly by Indians. Capital, Limón; area, ab. 3,379 sq. mi.; pop. 41,360 (1950).

Limón. [Also, Puerto Limón.] Chief port of Costa Rica, and capital of Limón province, on the Caribbean Sea: a large portion of the exports and imports of Costa Rica pass through Limón. It is believed to be on the site of the ancient Indian village, Carare, where Columbus landed on his last voyage to America. 11,310 (1950).

Limonum (li.mō'num, lī-). Ancient name of Poitiers.

Limousin (lē.mō.zaⁿ). Region and former province of France. It was bounded by Marche on the N, Auvergne on the E, and Guienne on the S and W, corresponding generally to the modern departments of Corrèze, a large part of Haute-Vienne, and part of Dordogne. Its capital was Limoges.

Limousin, Léonard. b. at Limoges, France, c1505; d. before Feb. 10, 1577. French painter, enameler, and engraver, the greatest of the enamelers of Limoges. His portraits are especially celebrated. His oldest known work (1532) is a copy of an engraving from Albrecht Dürer. The latest date given for his enamels is 1574.

Limoux (lē.mö). Town in S France, in the department of Aude, in a fertile plain on the Aude River ab. 13 mi. SW of Carcassonne. It produces white wines. 7,587 (1946).

Limp (limp), Sir Luke. Principal character in Samuel Foote's play The Lame Lover.

Limpopo (lim.pō'pō). [Also: Bempe, Crocodile, Inhampura, Ouri.] River in S Africa, forming part of the boundary between the Transvaal, Union of South Africa, and Southern Rhodesia and Bechuanaland; it flows into the Indian Ocean N of Delagoa Bay and Lourenço Marques. Length, ab. 1,000 mi.

Linacre (lin'ą.kėr), Thomas. b. probably at Canterbury, England, c1460; d. at London, Oct. 20, 1524. English physician and classical scholar, a pioneer in the New Learning of the Renaissance in England, the projector and one of the founders of the College of Physicians at London, and the founder of lectureships at Oxford and Cambridge. He was elected fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, in 1484, and traveled and studied in Italy, taking the degree of M.D. at Padua. He returned to Oxford, where he had among his pupils in Greek Thomas More and Erasmus. Soon after Henry VIII came to the throne, Linacre was appointed one of his physicians and thereafter lived chiefly at London. He received priest's orders in 1520. He published grammatical works and translations, especially of Galen, from Greek into Latin.

Linard (lē.närt′), Piz. See under Silvretta.

Linares (lē.nä′rās). Province in C Chile. Capital, Linares; area, ab. 3,791 sq. mi.; pop. 135,333 (est. 1950).

Linares. Capital of Linares province, in C Chile: agricultural trade center, and shipping point for wine and fruit. 17,108 (1940).

Linares. City in S Spain, in the province of Jaén, in the S foothills of the Sierra Morena, ab. 25 mi. N of Jaén: agricultural trade; center of a lead, silver, and copper mining district. It has manufactures of lead sheets and pipes, rope, pottery, gunpowder, and dynamite. The Carthaginians were defeated near here by Scipio Africanus in 208 B.C. Pop. 52,022 (1950).

Linares, José María. b. at Potosí, Bolivia, July 10, 1810; d. at Valparaíso, Chile, 1861. Bolivian politician. He was acting president of the republic (1848), and in 1857 headed a revolt against Córdoba and was elected president. His measures were progressive, but he repressed opposition with severity, declared himself (1838) dictator, and was deposed by a revolution (January, 1861).

Lincei (lēn.chā′ē). Italian academy, founded in the latter part of the 16th century by Frederic Cesi, the son of the Duke of Acqua Sparta. Its special object was the study of physical science, and its members called themselves the Lynxes from their desire to pierce into the depths of truth. Porta, Galileo, Colonna, and others were members.

Lincoln (ling′kọn). [Latin, Lindum, Lindum Colonia.] County borough and cathedral city in C England, county seat of Lincolnshire, in the Parts of Lindsey, on the river Witham ab. 33 mi. NE of Nottingham, ab. 130 mi. N of London by rail. It is a grain and cattle market town, having also manufactures of agricultural and earth-moving machinery. The cathedral is an impressive building, founded in the 11th century, but rebuilt in the end of the 12th and the first half of the 13th, after having been wrecked by an earthquake in 1185. The cloister and chapter house were built in the 13th century. The Chapter Library contains one of the four existing contemporary copies of the Magna Carta. The city contains many medieval buildings of interest. Lincoln was important in the Roman and Saxon periods, and was a chief town of the Danelaw. Lincoln stood at the junction of Foss Way and Ermine Street, two important Roman highways in England. It was one of the five boroughs won from the Danes by the king of Wessex in the 10th century, and was one of the five principal towns in the kingdom at the time of the compilation of the Domesday Book. King Stephen captured its Norman castle (founded by William the Conqueror), and was defeated near it by partisans of Matilda in 1141. The castle was taken by the barons in 1216, and by the Parliamentarians in 1644. Pop. 69,412 (1951).

Lincoln. City in C Illinois, county seat of Logan County, ab. 28 mi. NE of Springfield. It is the seat of Lincoln College. Abraham Lincoln practiced law here in the 1850's, and helped lay out the town in 1853. Pop. 14,362 (1950).

Lincoln. Town (in Maine the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in C Maine, in Penobscot County, on the Penobscot River: trading center for an agricultural community. Pop. of town, 4,030 (1950); of village, 2,548 (1950).

Lincoln. [Former name, Lancaster.] City in SE Nebraska, on Salt Creek, capital of Nebraska and county seat of Lancaster County. It is a railroad center, and has trade in grain and cattle. It is the seat of the University of Nebraska, Union College, and Nebraska Wesleyan University. It was the home of Charles G. Dawes, John J. Pershing, and William Jennings Bryan. It was settled in 1856 and was selected as the state capital in 1867. Pop. of city, 98,884 (1950); of urbanized area, 99,509 (1950).

Lincoln. Town in N Rhode Island, in Providence County: textile mills, and dyeing and bleaching plants. 11,270 (1950).

Lincoln, Earl of. A title of Henry of Lancaster (c1299–1361).

Lincoln, Earl of. A title of Thomas of Lancaster.

Lincoln, 1st Earl of. A title of Clinton, Edward Fiennes de.

Lincoln, 3rd Earl of. Title of Lacy, Henry de.

Lincoln, Abraham. b. in Hardin (now Larue) County, Ky., Feb. 12, 1809; d. at Washington, D.C., April 15, 1865. American statesman, sixteenth President of the United States (1861–65). He was born in a log cabin in the Kentucky backwoods, on a site known as the "Sinking Spring Farm." The son of humble parents (Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks), his paternal lineage has been traced back to Samuel Lincoln, who emigrated from Hingham, England, and settled (1637) at Hingham, Mass. His early years were spent on a homestead on Knob Creek, some eight miles from his birthplace. In 1816 his father, a typical pioneer of the early Western frontier, took his family to what is now Spencer County, Ind., where Lincoln's mother died in October, 1818. His father later married Sarah Johnston, a widow of Elizabethtown, Ky., who contributed much to young Lincoln's education. He had a total of only one year's formal schooling; the greater part of his education was secured by study in the cabin built by his father. Young Lincoln performed the rough tasks of the frontier, and for a time was drawn into river work. In 1828 he made a journey from Gentry's Landing on the Ohio to New Orleans. In 1830 he accompanied his family to Illinois, where they settled on the Sangamon River near Decatur. After returning from New Orleans, whither he had helped navigate a flatboat built by him and Denton Offutt, Lincoln struck out on his own, settling at New Salem, a village on the Sangamon some 20 miles from Springfield. Remaining there from 1831 to 1837, he kept store for Denton Offutt, managed a mill, held a partnership in another store, and performed a variety of odd jobs, including splitting rails. He also acted as village postmaster and deputy county surveyor. In the Black Hawk War (1832) he served as a captain of militia. During this period at New Salem he studied law, broadened his knowledge, and began taking an interest in politics. He was elected (1834) to the Illinois legislature and served in that body until 1841. At this time he was a Clay Whig, and was chosen as Whig floor leader in a Democratic legislature. His record in that body indicates that, while he did not support slavery, he was vigorously opposed to abolitionist efforts. During this period he courted Ann Rutledge (d. 1835), the daughter of a New Salem innkeeper. On Sept. 9, 1836, he was licensed to practice law. Leaving New Salem in 1837, he settled at Springfield, where he entered into a law partnership with John Todd Stuart. After a somewhat troubled courtship, which allegedly witnessed the postponement of a wedding set for Jan. 1, 1841, he married (Nov. 4, 1842) Mary Todd. They subsequently had four sons: Robert Todd, Edward Baker, William Wallace, and Thomas. Lincoln served (1847–49) in Congress as the only Whig member from Illinois during that session. His Congressional record was not outstanding. A member of the Whig national committee, he followed party regularity in attacking the Polk administration's policy on the Mexican War as one of unwarranted aggression. This opposition cost him the support of his district. He also voted for the Wilmot Proviso. He read a proposal (Jan. 10, 1849) to abolish slavery in the District of Columbia, calling for gradual and compensated emancipation. He was a delegate to the Whig convention at Philadelphia (1848) and during the presidential campaign of that year stumped Massachusetts for Zachary Taylor. Lincoln was not a candidate for public office in 1848. Leaving Washington at the end of the Congressional session, he resumed his law practice at Springfield, where his partnership with Stuart was succeeded by one with Stephen T. Logan and another with William H. Herndon, who later became one of his biographers. He practiced before the state supreme court and in the federal district courts, gradually achieving prominence as one of the outstanding lawyers in Illinois. Far from being a mere rural lawyer, as one part of the Lincoln legend holds, he was an eminently successful attorney who handled business and railroad cases. He resumed his interest in politics in 1854, the year when the repeal of the Missouri Compromise was being debated; in 1856 he aligned himself with the newly established Republican Party; and, taking a stand on slavery calculated to draw both moderates and abolitionists, he soon became the leading Republican in Illinois. In 1856 he received 110 votes for the vice-presidential nomination at the Republican convention at Philadelphia; and in 1858 he was chosen as Republican candidate for the office of U.S. senator from Illinois. On June 16, 1858, he made his famous declaration before the state Republican convention at Springfield: "A house divided against itself cannot stand. I believe this government cannot endure permanently, half slave and half free. I do not expect the Union to be dissolved—I do not expect the house to fall—but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing, or all the other." On July 24, 1858, he challenged Stephen A. Douglas to a series of debates which lasted from Aug. 21 to Oct. 15, 1858, and during which Douglas enunciated the "Freeport Doctrine" which cost him Southern support at the Democratic national convention in 1860. Lincoln lost the senatorial contest to Douglas, but the debates made him a national figure. While Lincoln denounced the Dred Scott decision, he was a conservative on the slavery issue. He did not support abolition; he did not advocate citizenship or social equality for Negroes; he did not support the unconditional repeal of fugitive-slave laws; and he did not disapprove of the admission of states in which slavery had been established of bona fide constitutions. The main element stressed by Lincoln was the proposition that slavery should be excluded from government territories. His chief object was the preservation of the Union. He achieved further national repute in his noted Cooper Institute speech (New York City, Feb. 27, 1860), a plea for Union and reconciliation that increased his chances as a presidential possibility. As a moderate with conservative shadings, he was chosen as Republican presidential candidate on the third ballot at the party's national convention at Chicago in 1860. In the four-way contest of that year, he carried every Northern free state with the exception of New Jersey; in terms of the popular vote, however, he was a minority choice. Hannibal Hamlin was chosen as vice-president. During the campaign, Lincoln took a relatively inactive role; and after his election, as the secession crisis moved rapidly toward its climax, he pursued the policy some historians have termed as one of "perilous silence." He busied himself at Springfield with party affairs and the formation of his cabinet; although he expressed aspects of his policy in private and confidential correspondence, he did virtually nothing to make his concrete policy publicly known. Meanwhile, as the Buchanan administration fumblingly drew toward its close, the Southern states were taking steps to secede from the Union. Leaving Springfield (Feb. 11, 1861) for Washington, D.C., Lincoln delivered on the way a number of speeches indicating that he would resist secession. His first inaugural address was a plea for reconciliation and the maintenance of the Union. Historians have long differed on the interpretation of the policies leading up to the fateful attack (April 12, 1861) on Fort Sumter which touched off the Civil War. Lincoln's approach to the problem was characterized by caution and a willingness to explore possibilities, while his policy, after verging towards indecision, was to supply the Sumter garrison without placing it on a war footing. The decision to maintain and supply Union forces at the fort in Charleston harbor was Lincoln's alone, taken after most of his cabinet members had initially advised evacuation. There was much confusion in liaison, largely due to Seward's muddling, which created the impression that the Union government would evacuate Fort Sumter. To withdraw without securing Southern concessions, Lincoln knew, would be interpreted by the South as a sign of Union weakness. Lincoln's position on withdrawal from Sumter, as expressed to unionist delegates to the Virginia secession convention, was that he would assent to evacuation only if it would prevent the secession of Virginia. It is known that Lincoln notified Pickens, the governor of South Carolina, before dispatching the nonaggressive supply expedition to Sumter. After the war began, Lincoln viewed Southern secession as a rebellion, taking necessary military measures even before Congress officially recognized (July 13, 1861) a state of war. At the outset, as throughout the Civil War, Lincoln's declared purpose was that which he stressed in his noted letter to Horace Greeley: "My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or to destroy slavery." In order to prosecute the war, Lincoln expanded his executive powers to the point where some, even within Congress, began calling him a dictator. Lincoln's war powers, and his relations with the governors of Northern states, was yet another step toward the consolidation of the national power, even though this drift was not generally estimated in its true proportions at the time. During the course of the war Lincoln had to satisfy, if at times only by tact, the demands made by the abolitionists and by the Radical Republicans; the disputes which shook his cabinet on several occasions; the importunings of office-seekers; and the querulousness of defeatists. He had to deal with the activities of Northern disloyalists. At the outset he had to work with a military organization beset by confusion and political control, and throughout the war, particularly after First Bull Run, he took an immediate interest in the details of military planning. He had to deal with generals such as McClellan, Frémont, and Hunter with whom personal or political understanding was not a simple affair. The problem of slavery was a pressing one; it was finally dealt with in terms of the necessity imposed by the struggle for popular government. The Emancipation Proclamation (issued in preliminary form Sept. 22, 1862; officially proclaimed Jan. 1, 1863) followed upon the partial emancipation measures taken in the summer of 1862. It was not the single stroke of policy envisaged in legend. Lincoln had at first been in favor of gradual and compensated emancipation, with the declaration of freedom being reserved to the voluntary action of the states; he also favored a plan to deport emancipated slaves to colonies in Africa. However, his failure to win over the border states, the pressure exerted by the Radical Republicans, and the need to win foreign sympathy, especially in Great Britain, dictated Lincoln's decision to issue the Emancipation Proclamation. Like the decision on Sumter, Lincoln's action on emancipation was taken independently. Yet the Emancipation Proclamation was not an abolitionist measure, for it did not condemn slavery as a moral evil; it applied only to slaves in districts under Confederate control, thus excluding Tennessee and parts of Virginia and Louisiana; and it promised action to furnish compensation to slaveholders. The Proclamation, therefore, did not affect the status of slavery in Union-controlled areas; and genuine legal emancipation was not wholly effected until the Thirteenth Amendment was added to the Constitution. To the burdens and harassments of the war years was added a personal tragedy: the death (Feb. 20, 1862) of his son William. He was the second son Lincoln lost during his lifetime, Edward Baker Lincoln having died on Feb. 1, 1850. Always profoundly conscious of the terrible sufferings of the men in battle, and of the larger meaning of the cause for which they fought, Lincoln's humanity reached a high point in his famous Gettysburg Address (Nov. 19, 1863), delivered on the occasion of dedicating a military cemetery on the Pennsylvania battlefield. It was also a classic statement of the creed of free government as expressed in time of crisis. In 1864, Lincoln had to face a divided Republican Party. In the eyes of the Radical Republicans he was too conservative, evidenced, as they thought, by his pocket veto (July 8, 1864) of the Wade-Davis Bill. His leniency toward the South aroused opposition; and the low military fortunes of the Union had induced a decline in morale. For a time Lincoln had to face a demand for his withdrawal from the nomination, but after Atlanta was taken his prospects improved. Running against George B. McClellan in the campaign of 1864, Lincoln carried the Union states by a majority of more than 400,000 votes. Andrew Johnson, a Democrat, was elected vice-president on the Republican Union ticket. In his second inaugural address (March 4, 1865), Lincoln spoke the famous words that included:

"With malice toward none; with charity for all, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds. . . ." His policy of conciliation had already been manifested in his proclamation of Dec. 8, 1863, and its insistence on reunion and the abolition of slavery in the Confederacy was repeated at the Hampton Roads Conference (February, 1865), when Lincoln, accompanied by Seward, conferred with Confederate commissioners on the possibility of reaching a peace settlement. He was assassinated less than a week after Lee surrendered to Grant. On the day he was fatally shot (Ford's Theater, Washington, D.C., April 14, 1865) by the actor John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln had discussed Southern reconstruction with his cabinet and reiterated his conciliatory attitude toward the South. Amid widespread mourning, his remains were conveyed to Springfield, and almost immediately Lincoln took his place as the leading martyr in the annals of the American nation. A humanitarian and a democrat, compassionate in war, forgiving in victory, he had a faith in popular government almost religious in quality. As image and ideal, he embodies the expression of the American canon of democracy and nationhood, in whose cause he gave his life.

Lincoln, Benjamin. b. at Hingham, Mass., Jan. 24, 1773; d. there, May 9, 1810. American general. He served through the Revolutionary War, unsuccessfully besieged Savannah in 1779, and surrendered Charleston to the British in 1780. He was secretary of war (1781–84), and suppressed Shays's Rebellion in 1787.

Lincoln, Enoch. b. at Worcester, Mass., Dec. 28, 1788; d. at Augusta, Me., Oct. 8, 1829. American politician and author; son of Levi Lincoln (1749–1820). He was governor (1827–29) of Maine.

Lincoln, Fair of. Battle fought at Lincoln, England, in May, 1217, in which William Marshal, 1st Earl of Pembroke, leading the adherents of the young King Henry III, defeated the French under Louis, son of Philip II.

Lincoln, Hugh of. See Hugh of Lincoln.

Lincoln, Joseph Crosby. b. at Brewster, Mass., Feb. 13, 1870; d. at Winter Park, Fla., March 10, 1944. American novelist, known especially for his stories of Cape Cod. Author of Cape Cod Ballads (1902), Cap'n Eri (1904), Mr. Pratt (1906), Mr. Pratt's Patients (1913), "Quahaug" (1914), Shavings (1918), The Portygee (1919), Galusha the Magnificent (1921), Rugged Water (1924), Queer Judson (1925), The Big Mogul (1926), Storm Signals (1935), The Bradshaws of Harniss (1943), and other books.

Lincoln, Levi. b. at Hingham, Mass., May 15, 1749; d. at Worcester, Mass., April 14, 1820. American politician, attorney general (1801–05) under Jefferson, and acting governor of Massachusetts (1808–09).

Lincoln, Levi. b. at Worcester, Mass., Oct. 25, 1782; d. there, May 29, 1868. American politician; son of Levi Lincoln (1749–1820). He was governor of Massachusetts (1825–34), and a member of Congress from Massachusetts (1835–41).

Lincoln, Lionel. See Lionel Lincoln.

Lincoln, Mary. [Maiden name, Todd.] b. at Lexington, Ky., Dec. 13, 1818; d. at Springfield, Ill., July 16, 1882. Wife of Abraham Lincoln. She married (1842) Lincoln at Springfield, Ill., where she had lived since 1837. During his presidency she was criticized as being from the South and for what was considered inappropriate extravagance during the Civil War. After Lincoln's assassination and the death (1871) of the third of her four sons, she was committed (1875) as insane to a sanitarium at Batavia, Ill., but was later released. She was pensioned (1870) by Congress. Persistent rumors, based especially on the stories of W. H. Herndon, Lincoln's biographer, maintain that the Lincolns had an unhappy married life, but evidence indicates that their life together was one of deep and genuine understanding.

Lincoln, Mary Johnson. [Maiden name, Bailey.] b. at South Attleboro, Mass., July 8, 1844; d. Dec. 2, 1921. American teacher. She was principal (1879–85) of the new Boston Cooking School, and culinary editor (1894–1904) of the American Kitchen Magazine. Author of Mrs. Lincoln's Boston Cook Book (1884), Peerless Cookbook (1885), Carving and Serving (1886), Boston School Kitchen Textbook (1887), and What to Have for Luncheon (1904).

Lincoln, Mount. Mountain peak in the Rocky Mountains, in Colorado, NE of Leadville; highest point in the Park Range. On its summit is a meteorological station. 14,284 ft.

Lincoln, Mount. See High Peak, N.Y.

Lincoln, Nancy Hanks. See Hanks, Nancy.

Lincoln, Natalie Sumner. b. at Washington, D.C., 1872; d. Aug. 31, 1935. American detective-fiction writer and editor (1915 et seq.) of the official magazine of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Her books include The Trevor Case (1912), The Man Inside (1914), The Moving Finger (1918), The Red Seal (1920), The Meredith Mystery (1923), The Missing Initial (1925), Dead Man's Bluff (1928), The Fifth Latch-key (1929), Marked "Candelled" (1930), and No. 13 Thirteenth St. (1932).

Lincoln, Robert Todd. b. at Springfield, Ill., Aug. 1, 1843; d. July 26, 1926. American businessman and statesman; only son of Abraham Lincoln to live to adult age. He was U.S. secretary of war (1881–85) under Garfield and Arthur and U.S. minister to England (1889–93). He served as president (1897–1911) of the Pullman Company.

Lincoln, Victoria. b. at Fall River, Mass., Oct. 23, 1904—. American novelist. Author of February Hill (1934), Grandmother and the Comet (1946), The Wind at My Back (1948), Celia Amberley (1949), and Out from Eden (1951).

Lincoln City. Unincorporated settlement in SW Indiana, in Spencer County, on the site of the Lincoln farm where Abraham Lincoln spent a part of his boyhood and youth. His mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, is buried here. A state park has been established to preserve the area.

Lincoln College. One of the colleges of Oxford University. It was founded in 1427 by Richard Fleming, bishop of Lincoln, who dedicated it to the Blessed Mary and All Saints. It is the college of John Wesley, and of John Morley, biographer of Voltaire and Rousseau. One of its rectors was Mark Pattison, Milton scholar, and the original of Casaubon in Middlemarch.

Lincoln Heights. City in SW Ohio, in Hamilton County: a northern residential suburb of Cincinnati. 5,531 (1950).

Lincoln Memorial. Building at Washington, D.C., beyond the W end of The Mall and in the park area extending along the Potomac River. It was completed in 1922, in classical Greek architectural style. Within is a great figure of Abraham Lincoln by the sculptor Daniel Chester French. The memorial is particularly striking when viewed at night, under floodlighting. Its 36 columns symbolize the union of the 36 states which were in the U.S. at the time of Lincoln's presidency.

Lincoln Park. City in SE Michigan, in Wayne County: a southwestern industrial and residential suburb of Detroit. 29,310 (1940).

Lincoln Park. Borough in N New Jersey, in Morris County, near Paterson. 3,376 (1950).

Lincoln Park. Largest park in Chicago, situated on the lake front in the N part of the city. It has been increased in area and extended N to a total length of ab. 5 mi. by filling in part of Lake Michigan. Area, ab. 1.6 sq. mi.

Lincolnshire (ling'kən.shir). [Also: Lincoln, Lincs.] Geographical county in E central England. It is bounded on the N and NW by Yorkshire, on the E by the North Sea and its inlet, the Wash, on the SE by Norfolk, on the S by Cambridgeshire, Northamptonshire, and Rutlandshire, on the SW by Leicestershire, and on the W by Nottinghamshire. The surface is generally flat and especially level along the coast; there are, however, a few ranges of low limestone hills. In the SE are the Fens (drained in the 17th and 18th centuries). It is an important agricultural county, producing wheat, root crops, small fruits, and flowers. Sheep and cattle also are raised. Iron ore is found, especially in the N near Frodingham and Scunthorpe; reserves are believed to be sufficient to last 200 years. The county is an important iron and steel producer, ranking third in Britain. Ironmaking was done here in the 12th and 13th centuries. Lincolnshire formed part of ancient Mercia, later of the Danelaw. The county is divided into three administrative counties: the Parts of Holland, Parts of Kesteven, and Parts of Lindsey. Lincolnshire is the second largest English county. County seat, Lincoln; area, ab. 2,663 sq. mi.; pop. 706,574 (1951).

Lincoln's Inn. One of the London Inns of Court. It takes its name from the Earl of Lincoln who built his town house here in the 14th century, on property originally belonging to the Black Friars.

Lincoln's Inn Fields. Largest square in London. It is near the junction of High Holborn and Chancery Lane and is surrounded by lawyers' offices, Lincoln's Inn, and the Royal College of Surgeons. It was laid out by Inigo Jones. Babington and other conspirators for Mary, Queen of Scots were "hanged, bowelled, and quartered" here in 1586, and William, Lord Russell, was executed here for high treason in 1683.

Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre. Theatre formerly standing on the south side of Lincoln's Inn Fields, London. It was built by Christopher Rich and was opened by John Rich in 1714. In 1734 Italian operas were given here. In 1756 it was converted into barracks and used for other purposes till 1848, when it was demolished to make room for an addition to the College of Surgeons.

Lincolnton (ling'kŏn.tŏn). Town in W central North Carolina, county seat of Lincoln County, near the Catawba River; manufactures cotton textiles. It was named for the Revolutionary soldier Benjamin Lincoln. 5,423 (1950).

Lincoln Tunnel. Motor vehicle tunnel under the Hudson River between the borough of Manhattan in New York City and Weekawken, N.J. The south tube was opened in 1937 and the north tube in 1945. It was built at a cost of some 80 million dollars. The tunnel is administered by the Port of New York Authority. Length, ab. 8,200 ft.

Lincolnwood (ling'kŏn.wŭd). Town in NE Illinois, in Cook County; a northern suburb of Chicago. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population grew from 752 (1940) to 3,072 (1950).

Lind (lind), Jenny. [Called the "Swedish Nightingale"; married name, Goldschmidt.] b. at Stockholm, Oct. 6, 1820; d. at Wynd's Point, Malvern, England, Nov. 2, 1887. Swedish singer, noted for her coloratura soprano voice. She first made a success at the royal theater, Stockholm, as Agathe in Der Freischütz, March 7, 1838, studied at Paris (1841–42), was active at Stockholm (1842–44), studied and sang in Germany (1844–47), and sang in England (1847–49) and in America (1850–52), her tour being arranged by P. T. Barnum. She retired from the operatic stage in 1849 and thereafter appeared only in oratorios and in recitals. She was married to Otto Goldschmidt, a conductor and composer, at Boston, Feb. 5, 1852. From 1883 to 1886 she was teacher of singing at the Royal College of Music.

Lind, Samuel Colville. b. at McMinnville, Tenn., June 15, 1879—. American chemist and educator. He was chief chemist (1923–25) of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, and director of the school of chemistry (1926–35) and dean of the institute of technology (1935 et seq.) at the University of Minnesota. He was the inventor of the interchangeable electroscope for radium measurements, and the originator of the ionization theory of the chemical effects of radium rays.

Lindabrides (lin'dą.brīdz). Character in the Mirror of Knighthood, belonging to the Amadis cycle of romances. She is often mentioned by old writers. Lindabrides became with them a common name for a mistress or a courtesan.

Linda Condon (lin'dą kon'dŏn). Novel by Joseph Hergesheimer, published in 1919.

Linda di Chamouni (lēn'dä dē shä.mō.nē'). Opera in three acts by Gaetano Donizetti, with a libretto by Rossi, first produced at Vienna on May 19, 1842.

Lindale (lin'dāl). Unincorporated community in NW Georgia, in Floyd County; textile manufactures. Pop. (with adjoining Silver Creek), 3,234 (1950).

Lindau (lin'dou). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Württemberg-Hohenzollern, French Zone, formerly in the Kreis (district) of Swabia, Bavaria, situated on an island in Lake Constance ab. 25 mi. E of Konstanz. It is a lake port and health resort, the center of a grain and fruit growing district. The industrial section and some residential suburbs are on the mainland; there are creameries, canneries, and other small industries. The old town, located on the island, has churches of the 12th, 13th, and 16th centuries, and a Renaissance Rathaus (town hall). The convent and the free city of Lindau long struggled against each other; the convent remained Roman Catholic, the town became Protestant. The entire territory passed to Bavaria in 1806; it was attached to the Land of Württemberg-Hohenzollern in 1945. Pop. 20,308 (1950).

Lindau, Paul. b. at Magdeburg, Germany, June 3, 1839; d. at Berlin, Jan. 31, 1919. German journalist, critic, dramatist, and novelist; brother of Rudolf Lindau. He edited newspapers at Düsseldorf, Elberfeld, and Berlin, and directed theaters at Meiningen and Berlin for many years. His stories (Kleine Geschichten, 1871), his many plays (Ein Erfolg, 1874; Gräfin Lea, 1879) as well as his novels (Der Zug nach dem Westen, 1886) enjoyed great favor in their day.

Lindau, Rudolf. b. at Gardelegen, Germany, Oct. 10, 1830; d. at Paris, Oct. 14, 1910. German novelist, journalist, and miscellaneous writer; brother of Paul Lindau. He traveled in Europe and in the Far East, often in diplomatic service, and was for many years (1871 et seq.) connected with the German embassy at Paris. He wrote stories (Das rote Tuch; Die Hochzeitsreise) and novels (Robert Aschton, 1877; Gute Gesellschaft, 1879).

Lindberg (lind'bėrg, lin'-; Swedish, lind'bery'), Per August. b. at Stockholm, March 5, 1890; d. there, Feb. 7, 1944. Swedish stage director and manager. He directed the Lorensberg Theater at Göteborg for four years, winning acclaim with productions of plays by Shakespeare and Strindberg. He started an experimental studio at the state-subsidized Dramatiska Teatern in Stockholm, staging plays by Toller, Hjalmar Bergman, and Pär Lagerkvist. In the Konserthuset (Concert Hall) of Stockholm, he started an experimental theater, dispensing with conventional settings, employing a formal stage, and depending largely upon plastic arrangements and the actors' rhythmic patterns. In private theaters he produced experimental plays such as Strindberg's To Damascus and Benavente's Bonds of Interest. He also published a number of books on the theater, including Days in Castile, which included a study of Calderón de la Barca (1924), Regiproblem (1927), and Around the Curtain (1932).

Lindbergh (lind'bėrg, lin'-), Anne Morrow. [Maiden name, Anne Spencer Morrow.] b. at Englewood, N.J., 1906—. American writer and aviation enthusiast; wife of Charles Augustus Lindbergh (b. 1902), and daughter of Dwight Whitney Morrow (1873–1931). A prize winner for her literary work at Smith College, she resumed writing after her marriage, and is the author of North to the Orient (1935), Listen, the Wind (1938), The Wave of the Future (1940), and The Steep Ascent (1944). The first two of these especially are stories of flights with her husband. The Wave of the Future was in some quarters criticized as displaying a lack of faith in democracy and an inclination toward an allegedly fascist organization of society. She was the first woman to receive the Hubbard Medal (1934), for her work as copilot and radio operator accompanying her husband in a 40,000 mile flight over five continents.

Lindbergh, Charles Augustus. b. at Stockholm, Jan. 20, 1859; d. May 24, 1924. American political reformer, a leader of the Non-Partisan League; father of Charles A. Lindbergh (b. 1902), the transatlantic flyer. During his five terms (1907–17) as a Republican congressman from Minnesota, he supported income tax legislation, Wilson's Mexican policy, and controls for big business. His opposition to U.S. participation in World War I brought him electoral unpopularity and ended his political career.

Lindbergh, Charles Augustus. b. at Detroit, Mich., Feb. 4, 1902—. American aviator; son of Charles Augustus Lindbergh (1859–1924). After leaving college in 1922 to become an aviator, he was commissioned (1925) a member of the air corps reserve. He made the initial flight (1926) on the air mail route between Chicago and St. Louis. He ordered built for him a Ryan monoplane, named The Spirit of St. Louis, in which he flew (May 10, 1927) from San Diego, Calif., to New York in the then record-breaking time for transcontinental solo flight of 21 hours, 20 minutes. On May 20, 1927, he took off from Roosevelt Field, New York, landing 33 hours, 39 minutes later at Le Bourget Air Field, Paris, in the first successful solo flight across the Atlantic Ocean. Lindbergh (or "Lindy," as he was popularly called) immediately became a world hero and his return to the U.S. in June was the occasion of tremendous celebrations. He toured the U.S. to promote aviation, flew to Mexico on the invitation of President Calles, and, in 1929, married Anne Spencer Morrow, daughter of Dwight Morrow, U.S. ambassador to Mexico from 1927 to 1930. Photographic survey flights over Mexico resulted in important archaeological discoveries, and the Lindberghs later made pioneering flights to Alaska and other parts of the world. In 1932, the Lindberghs' son was kidnapped and found dead; the subsequent arrest (1934) of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, a German carpenter, his trial (1935), and his execution (1936), in what was probably the most sensational criminal case of the century, brought unwelcome publicity to the Lindberghs, who moved (1935) to England. In 1936 Lindbergh collaborated with Dr. Alexis Carrel on physiological experiments that resulted in the so-called artificial heart, a pump to circulate the blood. In this period he surveyed the several European air forces, and his reports on German air strength had much to do with the unwillingness of the Western powers to face a test of strength with Germany, though it was pointed out that Lindbergh's friendship with English admirers of the Nazi regime may have colored the reports. On his return to the U.S. in 1939, he lent his support to various isolationist groups, such as America First, and he made numerous speeches in an effort to keep the U.S. from entering the "European War." During World War II he was a civilian consultant for the U.S. Army Air Force, having resigned from the reserve as the result of popular outcry against his isolationism and alleged pro-Nazi sentiments, and he made several tours of Europe and the Pacific. He was the author of We (1936), an account of himself and his plane in the Atlantic flight.

Lindblad (lind'bläd), Adolf Frederick. b. near Stockholm, Feb. 1, 1801; d. Aug. 23, 1878. Swedish composer whose songs were made popular by the performances of Jenny Lind. His other works include the opera Frondärarne (1835), chamber music, and a symphony.

Linblad, Bertil. b. at Örebro, Sweden, Nov. 26, 1895—. Swedish astronomer, noted for his studies of the dynamics of spiral nebulae and contributions to the theory of galactic rotation.

Linde (lin'dę), Otto zur. b. at Essen, Germany, April 26, 1873—. German poet of the later naturalistic group, known chiefly for his attempted reform of the German lyric. He talked of "phonetic rhythm" and (borrowing the strict objectivity of some naturalists) asserted that the song should sing itself. With Rudolf Pannwitz, he founded (1904) and edited Charon, a journal devoted to the theory and practice of such verse. He wrote Die Kugel, Eine Philosophie in Versen (1909), Thule-Traumland (1910), and Arno Holz und der Charon (1911).

Linde (lēn'de), Samuel Bogumil. b. at Toruń, Poland, 1771; d. at Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 8, 1847. Polish lexicographer. He published a dictionary of the Polish language (6 vols., 1807–14).

Lindegren (lin'dę.gren), Erik Johan. b. at Luleå, Sweden, 1910—. Swedish lyric poet and critic. He has worked as a literary critic for Bonniers Litterära Magasin (1943 et seq.) and Stockholms-Tidningen (1946 et seq.). Lindegren's poetry is often surrealistic and imagistic, and expresses in free and musical verse the psychological complexity and confusion of modern Europe. His second book, Mannen utan väg (The Man Without a Road), had to be published at the author's own expense, but has since come to be regarded as one of Sweden's most important literary documents of the 1940's.

Lindeman (lin'dę.măn), Ludvig Mathias. b. at Trondheim, Norway, Nov. 28, 1812; d. at Christiania (now Oslo), Norway, May 23, 1887. Norwegian composer and music scholar.

Lindemann (lin'dę.măn), Frederick Alexander. [Title, 1st Baron Cherwell.] English physicist; friend and adviser of Winston S. Churchill. He was professor of experimental philosophy (1919 et seq.) at Oxford. He projected (1935) the system of interceptor balloons (barrage balloons) used over English cities during World War II air attacks. Author of The Physical Significance of the Quantum Theory (1932) and articles on astrophysics, meteorology, isotopes, and relativity.

Lindemann (lin'dę.măn), Karl Louis Ferdinand. b. at Hanover, Germany, April 12, 1852; d. at Munich, March 6, 1939. German mathematician. He contributed to differential geometry, the theory of numbers, Abelian and theta functions, potential theory, and the theory of screws, but is best known for his proof (1882) of the transcendence of the number π. This proof established the impossibility of solution by construction of the ancient problem of squaring the circle, that is, constructing with compass and straight edge a square equal in area to a given circle.

Linden (lin'dęn). Former town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, now a western part of the city of Hanover.

Linden. City in NE New Jersey, in Union County. It has an automobile assembly plant, a large petroleum refinery, chemical plants, and other industries. 30,644 (1950).

Lindenhurst (lin'dęn.hėrst). Village in SE New York, in Suffolk County, on Long Island. 8,644 (1950).

Lindenthal (lin'dęn.thôl), Gustav. b. at Brünn, Austria (now Brno, Czechoslovakia), May 21, 1850; d. July 31, 1935. American civil engineer, a specialist in bridges and tunnels. He was a consultant in the construction of western railways and bridges with offices at Pittsburgh (1877–90) and New York (1890 et seq.). He served as commissioner (1902–03) of bridges for the City of New York, was consulting engineer for the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnels under the Hudson and East rivers at New York, and consultant and architect of the Hell Gate steel arch bridge spanning the East River at New York.

Lindenwold (lin'dęn.wōld). Borough in SW New Jersey, in Camden County: residential community. 3,479 (1950).

Lindesnes (lin'dęs.nes). [Also: Lindesnæs; English, the Naze.] Cape at the S extremity of Norway, projecting into the North Sea.

Lindi (lin'di). Seaport town in E Africa, in SE Tanganyika territory, on the Indian Ocean coast ab. 60 mi. N of the Mozambique boundary. The town is the administrative headquarters of the Southern Province, and the main commercial center of the area. It exports peanuts and sisal. 8,577 (1948).

Lindisfarne (lin'dis.färn). See Holy Island.

Lindlar (lind'lär). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, ab. 13 mi. E of Cologne: various industries. 10,539 (1950).

Lindley (lind'li), John. b. at Catton, near Norwich, England, Feb. 5, 1799; d. at Turnham Green, Middlesex, England, Nov. 1, 1865. English botanist and horticulturist, professor of botany (1829–60) in the University of London (University College). He wrote A Synopsis of the British Flora (1829), Key to Structural and Systematic Botany (1835; enlarged as Elements of Botany, 1841), The Theory of Horticulture (1840; enlarged as The Theory and Practice of Horticulture, 1842), The Vegetable Kingdom (1846), and others. He was the editor of the Journal of the Horticultural Society (1846–55) and of the Gardeners' Chronicle (1841–65).

Lindley, Mount. Mountain in Antarctica, W of the Ross Shelf Ice, in ab. 81°45′ S., 159°15′ E. Elevation, ab. 7,270 ft.

Lindman (lind'măn), (Salomon) Arvid (Achates). b. at Österbey, Sweden, Sept. 19, 1862; d. in airplane crash near Croydon, England, Dec. 9, 1936. Swedish political leader, industrialist, and naval officer, known particularly for introducing electoral reforms while premier (1906–11). During a second term (1928–30) as premier, he strengthened national defense preparations and increased tariff rates. He was leader (1912–35) of the Conservative Party. He started a successful career as an industrialist, concerned particularly with the timber industry. He was elected (1905) to the Riksdag (parliament), becoming naval minister the same year, and was foreign minister (1917) for six months during World War I. He was a delegate (1932) to the Geneva disarmament conference. His forestry activities included presidency of the State Institute of Scientific Forestry Research and of the Forestry High School.

Lindner (lind'ner), Theodor. b. at Breslau, May 29, 1843; d. at Halle, Germany, Nov. 25, 1919. German historian. Author of Weltgeschichte seit der Völkerwanderung (World History Since the Migration of People, 1901–16).

Lindor (lin'dôr). Poetical name for a lover, usually a shepherd lover.

Lindpaintner (lint'pint.nêr), Peter Joseph von. b. at Koblenz, Germany, Dec. 9, 1791; d. at Nonnenhorn, Lake Constance, Germany, Aug. 21, 1856. German composer and conductor.

Lindsay (lin'zi). City in S central California, in Tulare County: processing center and shipping point for an orange and olive growing area. 5,060 (1950).

Lindsay. Town in S central Oklahoma, in Garvin County, on the Washita River ab. 40 mi. S of Oklahoma City. 3,021 (1950).

Lindsay. City in SE Ontario, Canada, county seat of Victoria County, on the Scugog River, ab. 60 mi. NE of Toronto. 9,603 (1951).

Lindsay, Alexander. [Title: 4th Earl of Crawford; called the "Tiger Earl" and "Earl Beardie."] d. 1454. Scottish nobleman, warden of the Marches in 1451. He raised a force against James II of Scotland after the murder of his ally William Douglas, 8th Earl of Douglas (Feb. 21, 1452), but was defeated at Brechin on May 18, 1452.

Lindsay, Alexander. [Title, 1st Baron Spynie.] d. June 5, 1607. Scottish nobleman, vice-chamberlain to James VI of Scotland (James I of England). He was accidentally slain while endeavoring to stop a quarrel between two kinsmen.

Lindsay, Alexander. [Titles: 2nd Baron Balcarres, 1st Earl of Balcarres.] b. July 6, 1618; d. at Breda, Netherlands, in August, 1659. Scottish supporter of Charles II. He was present (1644) at the battle of Marston Moor, but broke (1648) with the Covenanters after the attempted rescue of the king. He was admitted (1649) to Parliament, and became (1650) commissioner of the exchequer. He was sent to France with Scottish royalist proposals for Charles II and remained at the exiled king's court.

Lindsay, Alexander. [Titles: 6th Earl of Balcarres, 23rd Earl of Crawford.] b. Jan. 18, 1752; d. near Wigan, Lancashire, England, May 27, 1825. Scottish soldier. He served as commander of an infantry battalion at Ticonderoga, July 7, 1777, and was involved in Burgoyne's surrender, remaining a prisoner until 1779. In 1793 he was appointed commander of the forces in Jersey, and in 1794 governor of Jamaica, where he remained till 1801. He engaged in a duel with Benedict Arnold, but refused to shoot in his turn, preferring, as he said, to leave Arnold "to the executioner."

Lindsay, David. [Titles: 5th Earl of Crawford, 1st Duke of Montrose.] b. c1440; d. cDecember 25, 1495. Scottish nobleman and politician; son of Alexander Lindsay (d. 1454). He was appointed (1476) lord high admiral, master (1480) of the household, lord chamberlain (1483), and joint high justiciary (1488) of north Scotland. He was created (1488) Duke of Montrose, the first instance in which the dignity of duke was given to a Scotsman not of royal blood.

Lindsay, Sir David. [Also, Lyndsay.] b. 1490; d. before April 18, 1555. Scottish poet and diplomat. He was appointed (c1529) Lyon king at arms. His poetry, in the Chaucerian tradition, attacked the vices of the church and is considered as one of the factors that aided the Reformation in Scotland. He was the author of The Complaynt to the King (1529), Ane Satyre of the Three Estaits (1540, a dramatic poem satirizing abuses in church and state, acted again in 1555), The Monarchie (1543, his last and longest poem), and The Register of the Arms of the Scottish Nobility and Gentry (first published in 1821).

Lindsay, David Alexander Edward. [Titles: 27th Earl of Crawford, 10th Earl of Balcarres.] b. at Aberdeen, Scotland, Oct. 10, 1871; d. at Wigan, Lancashire, England, March 8, 1940. Scottish politician. He served (1914–16) as an enlisted man in World War I. He was in Lloyd George's cabinet as lord privy seal (1916–18), was chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1919–20), first commissioner of works (1921–22), minister of transport (1922), and was appointed (1926) presiding officer of the government committee on radio development. Author of books on art, such as Donatello (1903) and The Evolution of Italian Sculpture (1909).

Lindsay, Howard. b. at Waterford, N.Y., March 29, 1889—. American playwright, producer, and actor. He was coauthor with Bertrand Robinson of Tommy (1927), Your Uncle Dudley (1929), and Oh Promise Me (1930), and collaborated with Russel Crouse on musical comedies such as Anything Goes (1934), Red, Hot, and Blue (1936), Hooray for What? (1937), and Strip for Action (1942), and on a dramatization of Clarence Day's Life With Father (produced at New York, 1939) in which he played the role of Father. He shared the Pulitzer prize (1946) with Russel Crouse for State of the Union (1945).

Lindsay, Nicholas Vachel. See Lindsay, Vachel.

Lindsay, Norman Alfred William. b. at Creswick, Australia, 1879—. Australian cartoonist, illustrator, and author, noted particularly for the two humorous novels which he wrote and illustrated, The Cautious Amorist (1932) and The Age of Consent (1938). His pen drawings, water colors, and etchings are in numerous Australian and British museums and collections. In addition, he is the illustrator of Lysistrata, Poetry in Australia, and Loving Mad Tom. His essays include Creative Effort and Madame Life's Lovers (illustrated).

Lindsay, Patrick. [Title, 6th Baron Lindsay of the Byres.] d. Dec. 11, 1589. Scottish statesman, said to have been the first of the nobles to give open support to the cause of the Reformers. He played a prominent part in the affairs of Scotland during the reign of Mary, Queen of Scots, and the regencies of Murray and Morton. He supported the plot for the murder of Rizzio, and was guardian with Lord Ruthven of Queen Mary in Lochleven Castle. He was deputed to obtain her signature to the deed of abdication, and decided by his skill the result of the battle of Langside, in which her adherents were defeated.

Lindsay, Philip. b. at Sydney, Australia, May 1, 1906—. English historian and novelist; son of Norman Alfred William Lindsay. Author of Morgan in Jamaica (1930), King Richard III (1933), King Henry V (1934), Kings of Merry England (1936), Crowned King of England (1937), Mirror for Ruffians (1939), and other historical studies. His works of fiction include the novels Panama is Burning (1932), Here Comes the King (1933), London Bridge is Falling (1934), Gentleman Harry Retires (1937), Bride for a Buccaneer (1938), The Fall of the Axe (1940), Jack Laughs at Locksmiths (1943), and He Rides in Triumph (1945), as well as motion-picture scenarios.

Lindsay, Robert. b. at Pitscottie, Fifeshire, Scotland, c1500; d. c1565. Scottish writer.

Lindsay, Samuel McCune. b. at Pittsburgh, Pa., May 10, 1869—. American educator and writer on social legislation. He was commissioner of education (1902–04) of Puerto Rico, and served as professor of social legislation (1907–39) at Columbia. Author of Social Aspects of Philadelphia Relief Work (1895), Railway Labor in the United States (1902), Reports on Child Labor (1902–07), Economic Aspects of Emergency Housing Legislation in New York (1921), and other works. Coauthor with W. W. and W. F. Willoughby of Financial Administration of Great Britain (1917).

Lindsay, Vachel. [Full name, Nicholas Vachel Lindsay.] b. at Springfield, Ill., Nov. 10, 1879; d. there, Dec. 4, 1931. American poet. His use of chanting rhythms and colloquial speech in The Congo and Other Poems (1914) influenced many succeeding writers. After lecturing (1905–06) on art at New York he undertook the first of a number of walking trips, through the South, with copies of a poem, The Tree of Laughing Bells, to pay his way. He was the first American poet invited to read his work at Oxford University (1920). His volumes of verse are Rhymes to be Traded for Bread (1912), General William Booth Enters into Heaven and Other Poems (1913), The Chinese Nightingale and Other Poems (1917), The Golden Whales of California and Other Rhymes (1920), The Daniel Jazz (1920), Going-to-the-Sun (1923), Collected Poems (1923), Going-to-the-Stars (1926), and The Candle in the Cabin (1926). His prose writings include The Art of the Moving Picture (1915), The Golden Book of Springfield (1920), and The Litany of Washington Street (1929).

Lindsay, Wallace Martin. b. at Pittenweem, Fifeshire, Scotland, Feb. 12, 1858; d. at St. Andrews, Scotland, Feb. 21, 1937. Scottish classical scholar. He was professor of humanity (1899–1937) at St. Andrews, Scotland. Author of The Latin Language (1894), Syntax of Plautus (1907), Julian of Toledo (1922), and other studies, and editor of many Latin texts.

Lindsell (lin'sel), Sir Wilfrid Gordon. b. Sept. 29, 1884—. English soldier who commanded the British army's Middle East supply service during World War II. He was quartermaster general (1939–40) of the British Expeditionary Force. His organization of supply and equipment was considered to have been instrumental in the successful advance of the British Eighth Army across North Africa.

Lindsey (lin'zi), Benjamin Barr. [Called Ben Lindsey.] b. at Jackson, Tenn., Nov. 25, 1869; d. at Los Angeles, Calif., March 26, 1943. American jurist. He was admitted to the bar in 1894, and became judge of the county court and juvenile court at Denver, Colo., in 1901. He introduced important reforms in the juvenile court system, and was a leading authority on the treatment of juvenile delinquents, his methods being adopted in many places throughout the world. He was appointed (1934) to the California superior court. Judge Lindsey was also known as a political reformer and became a controversial figure through his advocacy of companionate marriage. He published Problems of the Children (1903), The Beast and the Jungle (1910), and other works. With Wainwright Evans he wrote The Revolt of Modern Youth (1925) and The Companionate Marriage (1927).

Lindsey, Parts of. Administrative county in E central England, a subdivision of Lincolnshire. It occupies the N part of Lincolnshire, and is the largest of the administrative counties into which Lincolnshire is divided. It is bounded on the N by Yorkshire, on the E by the North Sea, on the S by the Parts of Holland and the Parts of Kesteven, on the SW by Nottinghamshire, and on the W and NW by Yorkshire. The surface is more varied than in other parts of Lincolnshire. The Isle of Axholme occupies the W and NW parts. The Vale of Trent skirts along the W border. These are regions of pasture and cultivation. East of the Vale of Trent, the pronounced escarpment of the Lincoln Heights rises. East of the Lincoln Heights lies the Vale of Lincolnshire, another region of pasture and crop land. The Lincolnshire Wolds, chalk hills used chiefly for grazing sheep, lie E of the Vale of Lincolnshire. Farthest to the E, along the coast, lie the Lincolnshire Marshes, part of the Fens, now extensively drained and raising wheat, root crops, and cattle. Area, ab. 1,520 sq. mi.; pop. 473,463 (1951).

Lindum (lin'dum) or Lindum Colonia (kō.lō'ni.ą). Latin names of Lincoln, England.

Lindus (lin'dus). In ancient geography, a town on the E coast of Rhodes. The site is now occupied by the village of Lindos.

Line (līn), Francis. [Also, Francis Hall.] b. probably at London, 1595; d. at Liége, Belgium, Nov. 25, 1675. English Jesuit, professor of Hebrew and mathematics in the Jesuit college of Liége.

Línea (lē'nā.ä) or Línea de la Concepción (dā lä kōn.thep''thyōn'), La. See La Línea.

Line Islands (līn). Group of 11 small coral islands in C Pacific Ocean, between the Hawaiian Islands and the Tuamotu Islands. They are owned partly by Great Britain and partly by the U.S. The islands are: Kingman, Palmyra, Washington, Fanning, Christmas, Jarvis, Malden, Starbuck, Caroline, Vostock, and Flint. Formerly valuable for guano deposits, their chief value in recent years has been as sites for airfields and weather stations.

Lines of Düppel (düp'el). See Düppel, Lines of.

Lines of Torres Vedras (tôr'rāz bā'thräs). See Torres Vedras, Lines of.

Linet (li.net'). [Also, Lynette.] In Arthurian romance, the sister of Lionês of Castle Perilous. In the Morte d'Arthur she engages Gareth to rescue Lionês. He does so, and marries her. Tennyson treats the story in his Gareth and Lynette.

Ling (ling), Per Henrik. b. at Ljunga, in Småland, Sweden, Nov. 15, 1776; d. at Stockholm, May 3, 1839. Swedish poet. He was the founder of the so-called movement cure, the use of gymnastic exercises, either alone or in conjunction with medical treatment, to cure bodily ailments. In 1813 he founded the Royal Gymnastic Central Institute at Stockholm.

Linga Purana (ling'gą pō.rä'nä). One of the 18 Puranas; in this one Siva explains the objects of life: virtue, wealth, righteousness, and final liberation from rebirth. It contains 11,000 stanzas, and is not earlier than the 8th or 9th century.

Lingard (ling'gärd), Jim. Hero of Joseph Conrad's novel Lord Jim (1900).

Lingard, John. b. at Winchester, England, Feb. 5, 1771; d. at Hornby, Lancashire, England, July 17, 1851. English Roman Catholic priest and historian. He wrote A History of England (8 vols., 1819–30; last edition, revised by the author, 10 vols., 1849–51), The Antiquities of the Anglo-Saxon Church (1806, enlarged as The History and Antiquities of the Anglo-Saxon Church, 1845), and others.

Lingayen (lēng.gä.yen'). Town in W Luzon, Philippine Islands, the capital of Pangasinan province. It is situated on the delta at the mouth of the Agno River, on Lingayen Gulf, and is a coastal port. 6,350 (1948).

Lingayen Gulf. Arm of the China Sea, indenting the W coast of Luzon, Philippine Islands. It was the scene of a major Japanese amphibious assault in December, 1941.

Lingeh (ling.ge'). Seaport town in S Iran, in Luristan, on the Persian Gulf. It has an airport, and exports dates, carpets, hides, and fishery products. Pop. ab. 10,000.

Lingen (ling'en). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, on the Ems River and the Dortmund-Ems Canal, near the Dutch border, ab. 36 mi. NW of Osnabrück: grain and livestock trade. Its manufactures include textiles, furniture, cement, machinery, and dairy products. The Rathaus (town hall) dates from the 17th century. Lingen belonged to the countship of Lingen in the Middle Ages; it passed in the 16th century to Charles V, then to Spain, to Maurice of Nassau-Orange, and in 1702 to Prussia. 20,164 (1950).

Lingenthal (ling'en.täl), Karl Salomo Zachariä von. See Zachariä von Lingenthal, Karl Salomo.

Lingg (lingk), Hermann. b. at Lindau, Germany, Jan. 22, 1820; d. at Munich, June 18, 1905. German poet of the so-called Munich school. He studied medicine and was an army surgeon until 1851, when he retired on a stipend from King Maximilian II of Bavaria. His first poems (1853) were warmly received, as was also his ambitious epic, Die Völkerwanderung (1866–68), but this reputation has not been endorsed by later generations, and of his numerous dramas none has retained any considerable audience. His poem Das Krokodil von Singapur gave the name to the well-known literary club Das Krokodil.

Linggadjati (ling.gä.jä'tē). See under Cheribon.

Linggadjati Agreement. [Also, Cheribon Agreement.] Armistice agreement formally concluded on March 27, 1947, at the town of Linggadjati, near Cheribon, Java, between the Netherlands government and the government of the Republic of Indonesia. After long negotiations, the Netherlands government recognized the republican government's de facto authority over Java, Madura, and Sumatra and pledged itself to the withdrawal of Allied and Netherlands armed forces still in republican territory by Jan. 1, 1949, the date set for the joint establishment of a federated United States of Indonesia. The agreement failed to define adequately the status which the republic was to occupy during the interim period, and the resulting difference of views, especially with regard to the republican government's power to enter into foreign relations, led to renewed occupation of republican territory by Dutch military forces. Negotiations for a settlement of the dispute during the next two years, mostly under the supervision of a Good Offices Committee appointed by the United Nations Security Council, aimed in the main to reestablish, now on the firm ground of complete mutual understanding, the peaceful accommodation that was supposed to have been reached at Linggadjati.

Lingo (ling'gō). Character in Samuel Foote's Agreeable Surprise.

Lingoa Geral (lēng'gwą zhā.räl'). Modified form of the Tupí language, formerly widely spoken in the settlements of interior Brazil. At the time of the Brazilian conquest various dialects of the Tupí tongue were spoken over the greater part of Brazil, and the Jesuits adopted them as a medium for their teachings. These dialects became amalgamated through intercourse between the missions. Indians of other tribes brought into the missions readily learned the Tupí, and modified it by words from their own languages; other words were introduced from the Portuguese, and gradually a language was formed which, though based on the original Tupí, differed from it considerably. The Lingoa Geral is closely allied to the modern Guaraní of Paraguay.

Lingones (ling.gō'nēz). Ancient Celtic tribe living in E Gaul, in the vicinity of what is now Langres and Dijon, in the department of Haute-Marne, France. They are mentioned by Caesar as being allies of the Roman legions.

Lingones. An ancient name of Langres.

Linguetta (lēng.gwāt'tä). Italian name of Acroceraunia.

Linguistic Society of America. Organization founded in 1924 for the purpose of promoting the scientific study of language. Among its publications are Language (quarterly) and Language Monographs (occasional).

Linhai (lin'hī'). [Former name, Tai-chau, Taichow.] City in E China, in the province of Chekiang, on a small river ab. 80 mi. SW of Ninghsien (Ningpo): a center for agricultural trade. 50,000 (1922).

Linhares (lē.nyä'rēs), José. b. at Baturité, Ceará, Brazil, Jan. 28, 1886—. Brazilian jurist, acting president (Oct. 29, 1945–Jan. 21, 1946) of Brazil. He was a member (1937 et seq.) of the supreme court, serving as its vice-president (1940–45) and president (1945 et seq.).

Lini (lin'ē'). [Former name, Ichow.] City in E China, in the province of Shantung, at the junction of the Fang and Yi rivers: important road junction and trading center. 100,000 (1922).

Liniers y Bremont (lēn.yers' ē brā.mônt') or Liniers, Santiago Antonio María de. [French, Jacques Antoine Marie Deliniers-Brémont.] b. at Niort, Deux-Sèvres, France, Feb. 6, 1756; d. near Buenos Aires, Aug. 26, 1810. Spanish Royalist in the naval service. He commanded a force on the Río de la Plata, retaking Buenos Aires from the English in 1806. The people deposed the weak viceroy Sobremonte, and put Liniers in his place, Aug. 14, 1806; but he was dismissed by the Spanish central junta in July, 1809. He retired to Córdoba and, on hearing of the revolution of May 10, 1810, collected a force and attempted to reëstablish royal authority, but was captured and shot.

Linievitch (lē'nyi.vich), Nikolai Petrovitch. See Linyevich, Nikolay Petrovich.

Link (lingk), Heinrich Friedrich. b. at Hildesheim, Germany, Feb. 2, 1767; d. at Berlin, Jan. 1, 1851. German botanist.

Linkinwater (ling'kin.wô.tėr, -wot.ėr), Tim. In Charles Dickens's Nicholas Nickleby, the faithful and trustworthy clerk of Cheeryble Brothers.

Linklater (lingk'lā''tėr), Eric. b. in the Orkney Islands, 1899—. English novelist and biographer. Author of White Man's Saga (1929), Poet's Pub (1929), A Dragon Laughed (1930), Juan in America (1931), Ben Jonson and King James (1931), The Men of Ness (1932), Mary Queen of Scots (1933), Robert the Bruce (1934), The Devil's in the News (1934), The Lion and the Unicorn (1935), God Likes Them Plain (1935), Juan in China (1937), The Impregnable Women (1938), Judas (1939), The Wind on the Moon (1944), Private Angelo (1946), The Art of Adventure (1947), Scalskin Trousers (1947), A Spell for Old Bones (1949), Mr. Byculla (1950), and Laxdale Hall (1952).

Linkomies (ling'kō.mēs), Edwin Johan Hildegard. b. at Viborg, Finland, Dec. 22, 1894—. Finnish political leader and educator, who served (1943–44) as premier during World War II. He was sentenced (1946) to 5½ years imprisonment on war-guilt charges, but was released (1948). He was vice-president (1939–43) of the parliament, and was successively vice-president (1936–42) and president (1942–43) of the coalition party. He was associated with Helsinki University, where he became (1923) professor of Romance philology, and served (1930–31) as dean. He held (1932–45) the post of prorector there.

Linköping (lin'chė''ping). City in SE Sweden, the capital of the län (county) of Östergötland, near the S shore of Lake Roxen, on the Stångån (Stang River), ab. 110 mi. SW of Stockholm. It is a rail junction, and has manufactures of airplanes, automobiles, foundry products, textiles, tobacco, and sugar. It is the seat of a Lutheran bishopric, and has a Gothic cathedral of the 12th–15th centuries. There is also a castle (formerly the episcopal residence) dating from the 15th century. 54,552 (1950).

Linkville (lingk'vil). Former name of Klamath Falls.

Linley (lin'li), Elizabeth Ann. b. at Bath, England, Sept. 7, 1754; d. at Bristol, England, June 28, 1792. English soprano singer. She was the daughter of Thomas Linley (1732–95), and in 1773 married Richard Brinsley Sheridan under romantic circumstances, she having asked him to take her to a convent in France to escape the importunities of suitors.

Linley, George. b. at Leeds, England, 1798; d. at London, Sept. 10, 1865. English composer and poet, best known as the author of numerous popular songs.

Linley, Maria. d. 1784. English concert and oratorio singer; daughter of Thomas Linley (1732–95).

Linley, Mary. b. c1756; d. 1787. English oratorio singer; daughter of Thomas Linley (1732–95).

Linley, Thomas. b. at Wells, England, Jan. 17, 1732; d. at London, Nov. 19, 1795. English composer and teacher of music. He was the author of the music of the opera The Duenna (1775) with his son Thomas (1756–78) as collaborator, The Camp (1778), The Carnival of Venice (1781), The Strangers at Home, and others. In 1776 he left Bath, where he had lived, for London, and with his son-in-law, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, and Richard Ford bought Garrick's share in the Drury Lane Theatre, where he was the director of music for a number of years.

Linley, Thomas. b. at Bath, England, in May, 1756; d. in Lincolnshire, England, in August, 1778. English composer and violinist; son of Thomas Linley (1732–95). His works include the orchestral anthem Let God Arise, An Ode on the Witches and Fairies of Shakespeare, and incidental music for The Tempest. He collaborated with his father on the music for Sheridan's The Duenna (1775).

Linley, William. b. at Bath, England, c1771; d. at London, May 6, 1835. English writer and composer; youngest son of Thomas Linley (1732–95). He was for a time (1790–96, 1800–06) in the service of the East India Company at Madras. He was the author of several operatic pieces, glees, and others, Shakespeare's Dramatic Lyrics (1816), and several novels and poems.

Linlithgow (lin.lith'gō). Royal burgh in S central Scotland, county seat of West Lothian, ab. 15 mi. W of Edinburgh, ab. 411 mi. N of London by rail. Linlithgow Palace, a residence of the sovereigns of Scotland, the birthplace of James V and Mary, Queen of Scots, was built between the 14th and 17th centuries, and forms a square mass with low towers at the angles. 3,731 (est. 1948).

Linlithgow, 1st Earl of. A title of Livingstone, Alexander.

Linlithgow, 1st Marquis of. A title of Hope, John Adrian Louis.

Linlithgowshire (lin.lith'gō.shir). Former name of West Lothian.

Linnaeus (li.nē'us), Carolus. [Latinized name of Karl von Linné (kärl fon li.nā').] b. at Råshult, Småland, Sweden, May 13, 1707; d. at Uppsala, Sweden, Jan. 10, 1778. Swedish naturalist and botanist; founder of the Linnaean or bionomial system of scientific nomenclature. He studied at Lund and Uppsala, where he became (1730) adjunct lecturer for Olaf Rudbeck, professor of botany, who admired Linnaeus's work on the sex of plants. In 1732 he made a journey to Lapland, and later went to the Netherlands to study (1735–38) medicine and botany. He practiced medicine at Stockholm after 1738, became professor of medicine (1741) at Uppsala, and later was professor of botany there. His lectures were extremely popular; it is estimated that they tripled the normal attendance at the university. Linnaeus published more than 180 works, developing and expanding his system of scientific nomenclature, which brought order to what had been a chaotic field. Although Linnaeus made mistakes in classification, his principles, which he applied to botany, zoölogy, and mineralogy, are of the greatest importance in clarifying the relationships within the natural kingdoms and in demonstrating an order in nature. His system of generic and specific names, with the use of accurate definition of the species, came at a time when many new plants and animals were becoming known in Europe and was of tremendous use in classifying what would otherwise have been an overwhelming mass of material. Among his works are Systema naturae (1735), Fundamenta botanica (1736), Genera plantarum (1737), Flora lapponica (1737), Philosophia botanica (1751), and Species plantarum (1753).

Linné (li.nā'). Crater in the moon, believed by some astronomers to have undergone change since its first telescopic observations.

Linnell (lin'ĕl), John. b. at London, June 16, 1792; d. at Redhill, Surrey, England, Jan. 20, 1882. English painter in oil and water color, best known for his landscapes.

Linnet (lin'ĕt), Kitty. Poor and pretty actress, the cruel character in Samuel Foote's The Maid of Bath.

Linnhe (lin'ē), Loch. Arm of the sea in W Scotland, in Argyllshire. It is connected with the Sound of Mull on the W and the Firth of Lorne on the S, from which it extends NE to a narrows ab. 5 mi. NW of Ballachulish. Beyond the narrows and continuing in a northeasterly direction ab. 10 mi. to the immediate vicinity of the SW terminus of the Caledonian Canal, the loch is also known as Lower Loch Eil. Length to the narrows, ab. 21 mi.; greatest width, ab. 5 mi.

Lin Piao (lin' byou'). b. at Huangan, Hupeh, China, 1908; d. 1952. Chinese Communist leader, commander of the 4th Field Army. He participated in the Canton uprising (1927) and the Long March (1934–35). He commanded (1945–49) the Communist-led troops which routed Kuomintang forces in Manchuria, and was also victor (1949) at Tientsin, Hankow, Wuchang, Nanchang, and other cities. He was appointed (1949) chairman of the South-Central China administrative area.

Lin Po-ch'ü (lin' bu'chü'). [Also: Lin Pai-ch'ü (bī'-) and Lin Pei-ch'ü (bā'-); formal name, Lin Tsu-han.] b. at Lingling, Hunan, China, 1882—. One of the five "elders" of the Chinese Communist Party. He collaborated (1904–25) closely with Sun Yat-sen. A member since 1922 of the Communist Party, he fled (1927–31) to Moscow, where he was especially active in Chinese language reform. He returned (1931) to become finance minister in the Kiangsi Soviet and later was chairman of the Shensi-Kansu-Ninghsia border region. He was appointed (1949) secretary-general of the state council of the People's Republic of China.

Lins (lēns). City in S Brazil, in the state of São Paulo. 24,170 (1950).

Lin Sen (lin' sun'). b. at Foochow, Fukien, China, c1867; d. at Chungking, China, Aug. 1, 1943. Chinese elder statesman of the Kuomintang, figurehead president (1932–43) of the Kuomintang government of China.

Linsingen (lin'zing.ĕn), Alexander von. b. at Hildesheim, Germany, Feb. 1, 1850; d. 1935. German general who in World War I commanded (1915–18) the armies on Germany's southeastern front, where he prevented a Russian breakthrough. In June, 1918, he was in command of the troops at Berlin (these troops joined the revolutionary forces, Nov. 9, 1918).

Linskill (lin'skil), Mary. [Pseudonym, Stephen Yorke.] b. at Whitby, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 13, 1840; d. there, April 9, 1891. English novelist. Author of Tales of the North Riding (1871), Cleveden (1876), and The Haven under the Hill (1886).

Linth (lint). River in NE Switzerland, flowing through the canton of Glarus and the Lake of Wallenstadt into the Lake of Zurich. Hydrographically, it forms the upper course of the Limmat River. Length, ab. 40 mi.

Linthal (lin'täl). Town in C Switzerland, in the canton of Glarus, on the Linth River. It is a summer resort and the starting point of the Klausen road. Elevation, ab. 2,240 ft.; pop. 1,708 (1941).

Linthicum (lin'thi.kum), John Charles. b. at Linthicum Heights, Md., Nov. 26, 1867; d. Oct. 5, 1932. American legislator responsible for the legal recognition of The Star-Spangled Banner as the official national anthem. He was a member (1911–32) of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Linton (lin'tŏn). City in SW Indiana, in Greene County, ab. 33 mi. SE of Terre Haute. Coal mining is its principal industry. 5,973 (1950).

Linton, Eliza. [Maiden name, Lynn.] b. at Keswick, England, Feb. 10, 1822; d. at London, July 14, 1898. English novelist and author; wife of William James Linton.

Linton, Ralph. b. at Philadelphia, Feb. 27, 1893—. American anthropologist. He served as assistant curator of ethnology (1922–28) at the Field Museum, was professor of anthropology at Wisconsin (1928–37) and at Columbia (1937–43), serving at Columbia as chairman of the department from 1939 to 1943, and has been Sterling professor of anthropology at Yale since 1946. He has done field work in archaeology in New Mexico, Guatemala, New Jersey, Illinois, Colorado, the Marquesas Islands, Ohio, and Wisconsin, and ethnological field research in Polynesia, Madagascar, South Africa, and Oklahoma. Author of The Material Culture of the Marquesas Islands (1924), The Use of Tobacco Among North American Indians (1924), The Study of Man, an Introduction (1936), Acculturation in Seven American Indian Tribes (1940), and The Cultural Background of Personality (1945); editor of Most of the World (1949).

Linton, William. b. at Liverpool, England, April 22, 1791; d. at London, Aug. 18, 1876. English landscape painter and writer. Author of The Scenery of Greece and its Islands (1856), Colossal Vestiges of the Older Nations (1862), and others.

Linton, William James. b. at London, Dec. 7, 1812; d. at New Haven, Conn., Dec. 29, 1897. Anglo-American engraver and author. A republican and a Chartist, he was engaged in journalistic work in England until 1867, when he removed to the U.S., living first at New York, and then at New Haven, Conn., where he had an engraving establishment. His works include Claribel, and Other Poems (1865), A History of Wood-Engraving in America (1882), Poems and Translations (1889), European Republicans (1892), The Life of John Greenleaf Whittier (1893), and Threescore and Ten Years (1894; also published as Memories, 1895).

Lintot (lin'tot), Barnaby Bernard. b. at Southwater, Sussex, England, Dec. 1, 1675; d. at London, Feb. 3, 1736. English bookseller, noted as the publisher of the translations of the Iliad and Odyssey, and other works of Pope. He is a prominent figure in the literary anecdotes of the period.

Lintsang (lin'tsäng'). Chinese name of the Mekong.

Lin Tsu-han (lin' dzu'hän'). Formal name of Lin Po-ch'ü.

Linus (lī'nus), Saint. b. in Tuscany, Italy; d. 76 A.D. Pope from 67 to 76, the immediate successor of Saint Peter.

Linus. Song of lamentation for the death of vegetation or for the "killing" (i.e., cutting or reaping) of the vine and grain, anciently sung in Phoenicia and W Asia at the time of vintage and harvest. Sappho identified Linus with Adonis, and the Linus song with the Adonis songs, sung all over W Asia, Asia Minor, and into Greece and the Mediterranean region as the Adonis cult spread. Sir James G. Frazer suggested that the name Linus was a corruption of the words ai lanu, meaning "woe to us," expressing grief for the death of Adonis, symbolized in the cutting of the grain. Herodotus mentions a like song of mourning being sung by Egyptian reapers.

Linwood (lin'wŭd). Unincorporated community in SE Pennsylvania, in Delaware County. 2,938 (1950).

Linyevich (lē'nyi.vich), Nikolay Petrovich. [Also, Nikolai Petrovitch Linievitch.] b. in the government of Chernigov, Russia, Dec. 24, 1838; d. at St. Petersburg, April 23, 1908. Russian soldier, commander (1900–04) in Manchuria.

Linyu (lin'yü'). [Former name, Shanhaikwan.] Town in NE China, in Hopei province at the Manchurian border, where the Great Wall of China meets the sea. It has long been a strategic fortress town, guarding the NE approach to the North China Plain, and a gate city on the Great Wall. It is now a minor port and a station on the Peiping-Mukden railway. Pop. ab. 30,000.

Lin Yutang (lin' yü'tang'). [Also, Lin Yu-t'ang.] b. at Changchow, Amoy, China, 1895— . Chinese-American writer and philologist. He received a Western education, at St. John's University in Shanghai, at Harvard University in the U.S., and at Leipzig University in Germany. He was professor of English and philology at Peiping University (1923–26), and later a member of the arts faculty at Amoy University before taking up permanent residence in the U.S. in 1928, where, as an author writing in English, he has won popular and critical acclaim. His books include My Country and My People (1936), The Importance of Living (1937), Moment in Peking (1939), With Love and Irony (1940), A Leaf in the Storm (1941), The Wisdom of China and India (an anthology, 1942), Between Tears and Laughter (1943), Chinatown Family (1948), and On the Wisdom of America (1950).

Linz (lints). [Latin, Lentia.] City in N Austria, the capital of the province of Upper Austria and the third largest city in the country, situated on both banks of the Danube River where it leaves the mountains and enters the Linz basin; a station on the railroad line from Vienna to Salzburg. 185,177 (1951).

Chief Buildings. The old city on the right bank of the Danube contains numerous houses with baroque façades. The Landhaus is an early Renaissance building, the cathedral, in neo-Gothic style, was built between 1864 and 1924. The provincial museum for Upper Austria contains prehistoric, Roman, and medieval antiquities. There are many educational institutions, a theater, and a library containing 80,000 volumes, manuscripts, and incunabula.

Industry. The city has metal, machinery, locomotive, furniture, textile, food industries, and breweries. The industrial character of I inz was radically changed during the time of the National-Socialist regime because of the introduction of heavy industry. This was part of the plan to shift the economic center of the so-called Greater Reich toward the east. Linz became the center of a new iron and steel works and attracted a large working population.

History. Originally, the city belonged to the bishops of Passau, then passed to the Dukes of Babenberg, and later to the Hapsburgs. The German Emperor Frederick III died here in 1493. The astronomer Johann Kepler taught here (1612–26). Anton Bruckner was organist (1856–67) at the cathedral. The city was occupied by the French in 1800, 1805, and 1809. Toward the end of World War II, Linz was exposed to numerous Allied air attacks and also to artillery bombardment, preceding the occupation by the Russian army. About one third of the city was destroyed.

Linz. [Also, Linz am Rhein (lints' äm rīn').] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, on the Rhine River at the influx of the Ahr River, ab. 15 mi. SE of Bonn: wine trade; stone quarries; Romanesque church. 5,566 (1946).

Lion (lī'ọn), Gulf of. [Also: Gulf of Lions; French, Golfe du Lion; Latin, Sinus Gallicus.] Arm of the Mediterranean Sea, S of France; erroneously called the Gulf of Lyons.

Lion and the Mouse. One of the most famous of Aesop's fables. A Lion, who has been accidentally awakened by a Mouse, is about to eat him. The Mouse promises some day to help the Lion, if he will only let him go. The Lion, amused, lets him go. Later on the Lion is caught in a net set by hunters. He struggles and roars, but cannot get loose. The Mouse, hearing the roars, hurries to his friend, nibbles the net, and sets the Lion free. The story belongs to the folk-tale type called the Help of the Weak. In other versions sometimes the liberated animal is a bear, fox, wolf, or other beast.

Lionarte (lī.ọ̄.närt'). In the romance of Amadis of Gaul: 1. A king of England, father of Oriana. 2. A son of Esplandian and grandson of Amadis.

Lionel Carteret (lī'ọ̄.nęl kär'tėr.ęt). See Carteret, Lionel.

Lionel Lincoln (ling'kọn). Novel by James Fenimore Cooper, published in 1825.

Lionel of Antwerp (ant'wėrp). See Clarence, Duke of (1338–68).

Lion Hunt. Large painting (1618) by Rubens. A number of men, mounted and on foot, are fighting two lions, which have wounded or killed three of their assailants.

Lion of Chaeronea (ker.ọ̄.nē'ạ). Recumbent figure forming the monument on the common tomb of the Greeks who fell in the battle against Philip of Macedon in 338 B.C.

"Lion of Janina" (yä'nē.nä). See Ali Pasha.

Lion of Lucerne (lō.sėrn'). See Lucerne, Lion of.

Lion of the North. Epithet of Gustavus Adolphus.

Lion of the West, The. Comedy by James Kirke Paulding, produced in 1830.

Lions International. [Full name, International Association of Lions Clubs.] Federation of clubs (founded 1917), the membership of which, recruited by invitation only, consists of business and professional men in various communities. The order has spread to about 30 countries, and comprises several thousand clubs, each of which carries on activities in line with the international organization's aims and purposes, which are in general the furthering of good government and responsible citizenship, and of the civic, economic, educational, and social welfare of their communities and countries, and the promotion of international good will. Assistance and guidance for young people is a particular interest of the Lions. The founder of the order, Melvin Jones, has been its secretary-general since 1917.

Lion's Mouth. Hole or opening in the wall of the antechamber of the Great Council in the Doges' Palace, Venice, through which anonymous accusations were passed.

Liorna (lē.ôr'nä). Spanish name of Leghorn, city.

Liotard (lyo.tär), Jean Etienne. b. at Geneva, Switzerland, 1702; d. there, 1789. Swiss portrait and genre painter of the French school. His portraits in pastel still preserve their color. Among his works are La Belle Liseuse (1746), La Belle Chocolatière (1746), and portraits of the Pope and many of the crowned heads of Europe.

Liouville (lyö.vēl), Joseph. b. at St.-Omer, Pas-de-Calais, France, March 24, 1809; d. at Paris, Sept. 8, 1882. French mathematician, recalled particularly for his proof of the existence of transcendental numbers. He contributed widely to aspects of algebra, analysis, and differential geometry, and he is known for "Liouville's theorem" in statistical mechanics. He was founder and editor of Journal des mathématiques pures et appliquées (1836–75), usually referred to as Liouville's Journal, and it was in this that most of his papers appeared.

Liouwert (lē'ö.wėrt). Frisian name of Leeuwarden.

Lipa (lē.pä'). Municipality in S Luzon, Philippine Islands, in Batangas province. 49,884 (1948).

Lípa (lē'pä), Česká. See Česká Lípa.

Lipan (lī.pan'). North American Indian tribe of the Apache group, formerly inhabiting N Texas. They were forced southward by their enemies, the Comanche. They were protected everywhere by the Spanish missions in their gradual migration southward, and are reported to have reached the Gulf coast by 1796. Here they settled also, until hostile Kickapoo and smallpox depleted them and they retreated into the Guadalupe Mountains. Here they amalgamated with the Mescalero Apache, but they are of closer relation to the Jicarillo Apache than to the Mescalero. Their language, Lipan, along with Jicarillo, comprises a subgroup of the Apachean group of the Southern Athapascan languages.

Lipan (lē.pän') or Lipany (-pä'nē), Battle of. See under Český Brod.

Lipari (lip'ạ.ri; Italian, lē'pä.rē). [Ancient name, Lipara (lip'ạ.rạ).] Chief island of the Lipari Islands, N of Sicily. It was colonized by the Greeks, and was held later by Carthage and Rome. Area, ab. 14 sq. mi.

Lipari. [Ancient name, Lipara.] Town and commune in SW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Sicily, in the province of Messina, the chief place on the small island of the same name and of the entire group of the Lipari Islands, NW of Messina. It produces excellent wines, and has stone quarries; it is a small port. There is a castle, with 15th-century walls, and a Norman cathedral, reconstructed in the 17th century. Pop. of town, 4,530 (1936).

Lipari Islands. [Italian, Isole Eolie, Isole Lipari; ancient name, Aeolian Islands; Latin, Aeoliae (or Vulcaniae) Insulae.] Group of volcanic islands in the Tyrrhenian Sea, N of Sicily, belonging to the Italian province of Messina. The chief islands are Lipari, Stromboli, Panarea, Vulcano, Alicudi, and Filicudi. The chief town is Lipari, on the island of the same name. Wine and fruit are produced, and there are fisheries. According to Greek legend Aeolus kept the winds confined in caves here. During the Fascist regime, the rocky islands, particularly the island of Stromboli, were used for the internment of political prisoners. Area, ab. 45 sq. mi.

Lipetsk (lē'pitsk). City in C U.S.S.R., in the Voronezh oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, on the Voronezh River, ab. 82 mi. SW of Tambov: mineral springs and large iron deposits. It has an iron and steel plant and a tractor works. During World War II German armies advanced to within 40 mi. of the city. 66,625 (1939).

Lipiński (lē.pēn'skē), Karl Joseph. b. at Radzyn, Poland, Oct. 30, 1790; d. near Lvov (now in the Ukraine), Dec. 16, 1861. Polish composer and violin virtuoso. His works include four concertos for violin, chamber music, and an opera.

Lipník (lēp'nēk). [German, Leipnik.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Olomouc, in NE Moravia, on the Bečva River ab. 16 mi. E of Olomouc. There are various small industries. The ruins of Helfenstein Castle are nearby. 6,887 (1947).

Li Po (lē' pō', bô') or Li T'ai-po (tī'-). b. in Szechwan province, China, c700; d. 762. Chinese poet. Many legends concerning him survive, but little is known in detail concerning him, though he supplied some data in a kind of poetic autobiographical sketch addressed to his friend Wei, governor of Kiangsi. It is certain that for a time he was in favor at the imperial court, but apparently he was too proud, too much of an individualist and nonconformist, to adapt easily to the role of a courtier. He was haunted by a sense of the transitoriness of human felicity, but at the same time felt the unity of all life and nature. Evidently (not unlike Walt Whitman some 1,100 years later) he loved to loaf and invite his soul. He liked to roam, and to climb mountains, but he also enjoyed the love of women, the gay company of friends, and especially the wine cup. He was very prolific, and though more than 1,800 of his poems survive, they are thought to be but a fraction of his output. He wrote of human love and pathos, and of the beauty of nature, with delicacy of imagery and phraseology. In the opinion of those able to read and judge his work, he is probably the greatest of Chinese poets. The tradition is that he came to his death by drowning, in an effort, while intoxicated, to embrace the image of the moon in a river.

Lipona (lē.pō'nä), Countress. See Bonaparte, Maria Annunciata.

Lippe (lip'ę). [Also, Lippe-Detmold (lip'ę.det'mōlt).] Former principality of the German Empire, surrounded by the provinces of Westphalia, Hesse-Nassau, Hanover (Prussia), and Waldeck. The capital was Detmold. Area, ab. 469 sq. mi.

Lippe-Biesterfeld (-bē'stėr.felt), Prince Bernhard of. See Bernhard of Lippe-Biesterfeld, Prince.

Lippe River. River in Germany which rises in the Teutoburgerwald and joins the Rhine at Wesel. Length, ab. 158 mi.

Lippert (lip'ėrt), Julius. b. at Braunau, in Bohemia, April 12, 1839; d. at Prague, Nov. 12, 1909. Austrian historian.

Lippi (lēp'pē), Filippino (or Lippino). b. c1460; d. c1505. Italian painter; illegitimate son of Filippo Lippi. His works are chiefly at Florence.

Lippi, Fra Filippo. b. at Florence, c1402; d. at Spoleto, Italy, Oct. 9, 1469. Italian painter. His chief works are frescoes in Prato.

Lippi, Lorenzo. [Pseudonym, Perlone Zipoli, an anagram of his name.] b. at Florence, 1606; d. there, 1664. Italian poet and painter. Under his pseudonym, he published Malmantile Racquistato, a humorous romance written in racy style.

Lippincott (lip'in.kot, -kọt), Joshua Ballinger. b. at Juliustown, N.J., March 18, 1813; d. at Philadelphia, Jan. 5, 1886. American publisher, founder (1836) of J. B. Lippincott and Company, which brought out Lippincott's Pronouncing Gazetteer (1855) and the Universal Pronouncing Dictionary of Biography and Mythology (1870). He established Lippincott's Magazine (1868) and the Medical Times (1870).

Lippincott, Joshua Bertram. b. at Huntington Valley, Pa., Aug. 24, 1857; d. at Philadelphia, Jan. 19, 1940. American publisher; son of Joshua Ballinger Lippincott. He was president (1911–26) and board chairman (1926 et seq.) of J. B. Lippincott and Company.

Lippincott, Sara Jane Clarke. [Pseudonym, Grace Greenwood.] b. at Pompey, N.Y., Sept. 23, 1823; d. at New Rochelle, N.Y., April 20, 1904. American author. Among her works are Greenwood Leaves (1850–52), Poems (1851), Five Years (1867), and New Life in New Lands (1873).

Lippincott's Magazine. Philadelphia literary monthly published from 1868 to 1916.

Lippmann (lip'män), Friedrich. b. at Prague, Oct. 6, 1838; d. at Berlin, Oct. 2, 1903. German connoisseur, curator of the Kupferstichkabinet, a collection of engravings and other prints at Berlin, from 1876. The present great importance of the Berlin collection is due largely to his efforts. He published much, especially in periodical literature. His important independent works are Atlas (1879–82), Zeichnungen alter Meister im königlichen Kupferstichkabinet zu Berlin (1882), Der italienische Holzschnitt im XV. Jahrhundert (1884), Zeichnungen von Sandro Botticelli zu Dantes göttlicher Komödie (1884–87).

Lippmann (lēp.män), Gabriel. b. at Hallerich, Luxembourg, Aug. 16, 1845; d. at Paris, July 13, 1921. French physicist. He invented a capillary electrometer, a galvanometer, and other instruments, enunciated the doctrine of the conservation of electricity, and in 1891 invented a method of color photography for which he received the Nobel prize for physics in 1908. He published Cours de thermodynamique (1886) and Cours d'acoustique et d'optique (1888), among others.

Lippmann (lip'man), Walter. b. at New York, Sept. 23, 1889—. American editor and writer on political subjects. He was associate editor (1914 et seq.) of The New Republic, an editorial staff member of the New York World until 1931, serving as its editor (1929–31) just before its absorption by the Telegram, and a special writer (1931 et seq.) for the New York Herald Tribune. He was assistant (1917) to the U.S. secretary of war, and secretary of the group under Col. Edward H. House which prepared data for the Paris Peace Conference (1918–19). Lippmann's early writing brought him a reputation as one of the foremost liberals in the U.S., but after the early years of the administration of F. D. Roosevelt he became more conservative. Author of A Preface to Politics (1913), Drift and Mastery (1914), The Stakes of Diplomacy (1915), The Political Scene (1919), Liberty and the News (1920), Public Opinion (1922), The Phantom Public (1925), A Preface to Morals (1929), The Method of Freedom (1934), The New Imperative (1935), The Good Society (1937), U.S. Foreign Policy: Shield of the Republic (1943), U.S. War Aims (1944), and The Cold War (1948).

Lipps (lips), Theodor. b. at Wallhalben, Germany, July 28, 1851; d. at Munich, Oct. 17, 1914. German philosopher and psychologist, remembered for his studies on Einfühlungstheorie (theory of empathy). Author of Grundtatsachen des Seelenlebens (1883), Grundzüge der Logik (1893), Die ethischen Grundfragen (1899), Ästhetik (1903–06), Leitfaden der Psychologie (1903), Psychologische Untersuchungen (1907–12), and Philosophie und Wirklichkeit (1908).

Lippspringe (lip'shpring.ę). [Also, Bad Lippspringe.] Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, on the upper Lippe River ab. 6 mi. NE of Paderborn; health resort; has radioactive thermal springs, which are visited by people suffering from pulmonary diseases; small industries. 7,734 (1946).

Lippstadt (lip'shtat). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, on the Lippe River ab. 37 mi. SE of Munster. It has railroad repair shops, iron- and steelworks, and electrical machinery, textile, ceramic, and lumber industries. The population increased in the period 1939–46 by 31.3 percent (it is the only town of Westphalia which survived World War II undamaged). 28,377 (1946), 31,462 (1950).

Lips (lips), Joost. See Lipsius, Justus.

Lipschitz (lip'shits), Rudolf Otto Sigismund. b. at Konigsberg, in East Prussia, May 14, 1832; d. at Bonn, Germany, Oct. 7, 1903. German mathematician who contributed to the theory of numbers, Bessel's functions, potential theory, Fourier series, and analytical mechanics. He was the author of the important Lehrbuch der Analysis (2 vols., 1877–80).

Lipscomb (lips'kŏm). Town in N central Alabama, in Jefferson County, ab. 10 mi. S of Birmingham. 2,550 (1950).

Lipsia (lip'si.ą). Latin name of Leipzig.

Lipsius (lip'sē.ŭs), Justus. [Original Flemish name, Joest Lips.] b. at Overysscbe, near Brussels, Oct. 18, 1547; d. at Louvain, Belgium, March 23, 1606. Flemish philologist and critic. His chief work is an edition of Tacitus (1575; fifth revision, 1606).

Lipsius, Justus Hermann. b. at Leipzig, Germany, May 9, 1834; d. there, Sept. 5, 1920. German classical scholar; brother of Richard Adelbert Lipsius. Author of Das attische Recht und Rechtsverfahren (Attic Law and Legal Procedure, 1905–15).

Lipsius, Richard Adelbert. b. at Gera, Germany, Feb. 14, 1830; d. at Jena, Germany, Aug. 19, 1892. German Protestant theologian; brother of Justus Hermann Lipsius. His chief work is Lehrbuch der evangelisch-protestantischen Dogmatik (1876).

Lipsky (lip'ski), Louis. b. at Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 30, 1876—. American editor and leader of the Zionist movement. He was editor of Maccabean Monthly, official publication of the Federation of American Zionists, and of The New Palestine. He served as chairman (1922–24) and president (1924–30) of the Zionist Organization of America.

Lipton (lip'tŏn), Sir Thomas Johnstone. b. at Glasgow, May 10, 1850; d. at London, Oct. 2, 1931. British merchant and sportsman. After some five years (c1865–c1870) in the U.S. as a laborer and clerk, he began (1871) his business career with a single provision-shop at Glasgow, and extended his operations until he controlled large interests in Great Britain, with branches in Germany, the U.S., India, and elsewhere, as, for example, tea plantations in Ceylon and a packing house in Chicago. He contributed largely to charitable enterprises, and was well known as a yachtsman, having competed unsuccessfully in 1899, 1901, 1903, 1920, and 1930 for the America's Cup with yachts named successively Shamrock I to V.

Lipu Pass (lē'pö). Mountain pass in Tibet, at the W end of the Nepalese border. It crosses the Himalayas and is traversed by an important caravan route from Uttar Pradesh, Union of India, to Tibet. 17,890 ft.

Liqen i Shkodrës (lē'ken ē shkō'drĕs). Albanian name of Scutari, Lake.

Lir (lir). See Ler.

Liri (lē'rē). [In lower course, Garigliano; ancient name, Liris (lir'is).] River in S central Italy, flowing from the Apennines to the Gulf of Gaeta SE of Rome. During World War II there was heavy fighting in the lower Liri valley during the Allied advance on Rome (1943–44). Length, ab. 100 mi.

Liri, Isola del. See Isola del Liri.

Liria (lē'ryä). Town in E Spain, in the province of Valencia, ab. 15 mi. NW of Valencia: wine and olive oil trade; Roman remains. 10,624 (1940).

Lirriper's Legacy (lir'i.pĕrz), Mrs. See Mrs. Lirriper's Legacy.

Lirriper's Lodgings, Mrs. See Mrs. Lirriper's Lodgings.

Lisa (lē'są), Manuel. b. at New Orleans, Sept. 8, 1772; d. at St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 12, 1820. American trader and explorer. He led an expedition (1807) up the Missouri River, erecting Fort Raymond, later known as Fort Manuel, near the mouth of the Big River, the first fort on the upper Missouri. An organizer (1808) of the Missouri Fur Company which traded (1809 et seq.) along the Missouri River, he headed (1811) a search party for Andrew Henry (who had proceeded in 1809 to the Three Forks) and joined the expedition of the John Jacob Astor interests.

Lisaine (lē.zen). [Also, Lusine.] River in E France, in the department of Haute-Saône: a small tributary of the Savoureuse. In its vicinity, near Héricourt, was fought the battle of Belfort (Jan. 15–17, 1871).

Lisbeth Bede (liz'bĕth bēd'). See Bede, Lisbeth.

Lisboa (lēzh.bō'ą). [English, Lisbon (liz'bŏn).] District in W Portugal, in the province of Estremadura. Capital, Lisbon; area, ab. 1,061 sq. mi.; pop. 1,224,022 (1950).

Lisboa (lēz.bō'ą), João Francisco. b. at Pirapemas, Maranhão, Brazil, March 22, 1812; d. at Lisbon, Portugal, April 26, 1863. Brazilian journalist, political and historical writer, and orator.

Lisbon (liz'bŏn). Town in SW Maine, in Androscoggin County. 4,318 (1950).

Lisbon. [Former name, New Lisbon.] Village in E Ohio, county seat of Columbiana County, in a coal and clay mining region: ceramic industry. It was established in 1802, and was the birthplace of Marcus A. Hanna and Clement L. Vallandigham. 3,293 (1950).

Lisbon. [Portuguese and Spanish, Lisboa (Portuguese, lēzh.bō'ą; Spanish, lēz.bō'ä); French, Lisbonne (lēs.bon); German, Lissabon (lis'ä.bōn); ancient names: Olisipo, Felicitas Julia.] Capital of Portugal, and of the district of Lisboa in the province of Estremadura, situated on the estuary of the Tagus River near its mouth. 783,919 (1950).

Commerce and Industry. Lisbon has an excellent harbor, with docks, shipyards, and a naval arsenal, and food, tobacco, textile, ceramic, and metalworking industries. The harbor is the great point of export for the products of Portugal, particularly salt, canned sardines and tunafish, olive oil, and wine. There is considerable passenger traffic; it is the terminus of various steamship lines and has a large airport. Lisbon is the seat of the principal Portuguese banking institutions.

Cultural Institutions. It is the seat of a university and an institute of technology, both founded in 1911. There is an ethnographical and colonial museum, an art museum, a modern art museum, and an archaeological museum. The Biblioteca Nacional de Lisboa, founded in 1796, contains over 600,000 volumes and manuscripts; the Archivo Nacional, founded in 1375, contains valuable documents. There are famous botanical gardens and a number of theaters.

Description; Chief Buildings. The city is beautifully located overlooking a broad bay formed by the estuary of the Tagus River, stretching along a waterfront which extends more than 10 miles and climbing up a number of hills rising behind the shore line. The city falls into five main parts (barrios), the oldest of which is Lisboa Oriental, with the castle of São Jorge, the cathedral (erected 1344–80 and rebuilt in 1755), the Church of São Vicente de Flora, the monastery of the Augustines, containing the archiepiscopal residence and the tombs of the royal house of Portugal, and other ecclesiastical buildings. The rest of the city (Cidade Baixa, Lisboa Occidental, Alcántara, and Belém), rebuilt after the earthquake of 1755, has broad tree-lined avenues, wide plazas, parks, and numerous public buildings showing the architectural characteristics of the 18th and 19th centuries: among the latter are the Teatro Nacional Almeida, Teatro São Carlos, the palace of the Cortes (Parliament), and the former royal palace, now the ministry of the exterior (foreign affairs). In the suburb of Belém is the famous Monastery of Jeronimos de Belém, erected in the rich style of the 16th century; the Palacio de Belém, erected in 1700, is the seat of the president of the republic; the picturesque tower of Belém, erected 1515–21, served formerly as a prison. Many seaside resorts are in the vicinity.

History. Lisbon, in ancient times a Greek colony and a Roman municipium, was in the early Middle Ages occupied by the Visigoths; in 716 A.D. it was taken by the Arabs, but was reconquered by Alfonso I in 1147 with the assistance of a fleet from northern Europe (which had embarked on the second Crusade). It was largely destroyed by Henry II of Castile in 1373. Under King John II Lisbon became the royal residence and the capital of Portugal and rose in the 15th and 16th centuries to prime commercial rank as the great point of collection and distribution in Europe for the wealth of the Portuguese colonies. Declining during the period of Spanish occupation (1580–1640), Lisbon regained its prosperity after the peace of Lisbon (1668). The earthquake of Nov. 1, 1755, destroyed two thirds of the city and cost the lives of more than 30,000 people, but reconstruction proceeded quickly. The French under Junot occupied Lisbon (1807–08), the court fleeing to Rio de Janeiro.

Lisburn (liz'bėrn, lis'-). Urban district in Northern Ireland, in County Antrim, on the river Lagan ab. 8 mi. SW of Belfast. The town is an important center of the linen industry. The cathedral contains a monument to Jeremy Taylor, who died here in 1667. Pop. 14,500 (est. 1949).

Liscow (lis'kō), Christian Ludwig. b. at Wittenberg, Germany, April 27, 1701; d. near Eilenburg, Germany, Oct. 30, 1760. German satirical writer.

Lisenko or Lissenko or Lysenko (lē'seng.kō), Nikolai Vitalievich. b. March 22, 1842; d. at Kiev, Russia, Nov. 6, 1912. Ukrainian (Russian) composer and collector of folk music. His works include the operas Christmas and Winter and Spring, cantatas, choral pieces, and piano compositions.

Lisgar (liz'gär), Baron. Title of Young, John (1807–76).

Lisieux (lē.zyė). [Ancient name, Noviomagus.] Town in NW France, in the department of Calvados, ab. 26 mi. E of Caen. There are woolen and linen industries. The cathedral, built in Norman style in the 12th century, is one of the most beautiful in the region. The center of the town, including a number of once-famous medieval houses, was entirely destroyed in World War II; the Church of Saint Jacques, dating from the 16th century, was heavily damaged. 12,746 (1946).

Liskeard (lis.kärd'). Municipal borough and market town in SW England, in Cornwall, ab. 16 mi. NW of Plymouth, ab. 244 mi. SW of London by rail. It was one of the five coinage towns in Cornwall during the Middle Ages, and was a lead-producing center in Roman times. 4,391 (1951).

Lisle (lēs'lā). See Kuruma.

Lisle or L'Isle (lēl). Former name of Lille.

Lisle (līl, lēl), Viscount. A title of Dudley, John.

Lisle, Lord. See Sidney, Philip.

Lisle, Alice. [Lady Alice Lisle.] b. c1614; d. at Winchester, England, Sept. 2, 1685. Englishwoman executed on the charge of harboring a dissenting minister, John Hicks, who was accused of treason. She was tried before Jeffreys in one of the early cases of the Bloody Assizes, and sentenced to death. She was the wife of John Lisle, one of the judges who condemned Charles I and who served as a member of Cromwell's House of Lords; hence, her attributed title. Her second daughter, Bridget, was the wife of Leonard Hoar, president (1672–75) of Harvard College.

Lisle (lēl), Charles Marie René Leconte de. See Leconte de Lisle, Charles Marie René.

Lisle or L'Isle (lēl), Rouget de. See Rouget de Lisle, Claude Joseph.

Lisle or L'Isle (līl, lēl), William. b. at Tandridge, Surrey, England, c1579; d. in September, 1637. English scholar and poet.

Lismahago (lis.mą.hā'gō), Captain. Proud, disputatious, but honorable Scottish officer, in Tobias Smollett's Humphry Clinker.

Lismore (liz'mōr). Town in E Australia, in NE New South Wales, in a district producing dairy products, fruits, and sugar. 15,214 (1947).

Lismore (liz'mōr, liz.mōr'). Market town in S Irish Republic, in County Waterford, on the river Blackwater ab. 13 mi. W of Dungarvan. It has a castle and a cathedral. 1,194 (1936).

Lismore. Island in W central Scotland, in Argyllshire, in Loch Linnhe, ab. 6 mi. N of Oban. Length, ab. 10 mi.; width, ab. 1 mi.; pop. 350 (1931).

Lissa (lis'ä). German name of Leszno.

Lissa (lēs'sä). Italian name of Vis.

Lissabon (lis'ä.bōn). German name of Lisbon, Portugal.

Lissardo (li.sär'dō). Conceited manservant in Susannah Centlivre's comedy The Wonder. His voluble love affair with Flora forms the underplot of the play.

Lissauer (lis'ou.ėr), Ernst. b. at Berlin, Dec. 10, 1882; d. at Vienna, Dec. 10, 1937. German poet and playwright. His best lyrical work is generally considered to antedate World War I (Der Acker, 1907; Der Strom, 1912). In 1914 he wrote the poem Hassgesang auf England, whose refrain, "Gott strafe England," became a German war cry, was picked up by British soldiers, and finally enriched the English language with the verb "to strafe." Lissauer's plays include Eckermann (1921) and Luther und Thomas Münzer (1929).

Lissenko (lē'seng.kō), Nikolai Vitalievich. See Lisenko, Nikolai Vitalievich.

Lissitzky (li.sit'ski), El. b. at Smolensk, Russia, Nov. 10, 1890—. Russian painter, architect, and writer. He spent several years at Berlin, and there edited Vesch-Gegenstand-Object, and other publications. Among his works are Construction 99 (and many other Constructions), Cover, U.S.S.R. (catalogue of the Soviet Exhibition at Cologne, 1928), and Project for a Skyscraper.

Lissone (lēs.sō'nā). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Milano, between Monza and Desio, NE of Milan. It has furniture, textile, and glass manufactures. Pop. of commune, 15,277 (1936); of town, 13,627 (1936).

Lissu (lē'sö). See Lisu.

Li Ssu-kuang (lē' sö'kwäng'). [Also known as J. S. Lee.] b. in Hupeh, China, c1889—. Chinese geologist and educator. Educated in England, he became (1930) director of the Geological Research Institute of the Academia Sinica and was appointed (1949) vice-president of the People's Academy of Sciences.

List (list), Friedrich. b. at Reutlingen, Württemberg, Germany, Aug. 6, 1789; committed suicide at Kufstein, in the Austrian Tyrol, Nov. 30, 1846. German political economist. For an attack upon the government of Württemberg he was imprisoned in 1822 and again in 1824. He emigrated to the U.S. in 1825, returned to Germany in 1832 as U.S. consul, and resided at Hamburg and later at Leipzig, Paris, and Augsburg. He was a vigorous advocate of a German customs union, and was a proponent of expansion of the railroads and merchant marine. His chief works are Outlines of a New System of Political Economy (1827) and Das nationale System der politischen Ökonomie (1841; Eng. trans., The National System of Political Economy, 1904).

Lista y Aragón (lēs'tä ē ä.rä.gōn'), Alberto. b. at Triana, near Seville, Spain, Oct. 15, 1775; d. at Seville, Oct. 5, 1848. Spanish lyric poet, critic, and mathematician.

Listemann (lis'tę.män), Bernhard. b. at Schlotheim, Thuringia, Germany, Aug. 28, 1841; d. at Chicago, Feb. 11, 1917. American violinist, composer, and conductor. He came (1867) to the U.S., where he toured with the pianist Leopold de Meyer. He organized (1875) the Boston Philharmonic Club, forerunner of the Boston Philharmonic Orchestra. He was concertmaster (1881–85) of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and founder (1881) of the Listemann String Quartet.

Lister (lis'tėr), Joseph. [Title, 1st Baron Lister of Lyme Regis.] b. at Upton, Essex, England, April 5, 1827; d. at Walmer, Kent, England, Feb. 10, 1912. English surgeon, the founder of antiseptic surgery. He obtained his medical degree in 1852, and was professor of surgery at Glasgow (1860), professor of clinical surgery at Edinburgh (1867), and professor of surgery at King's College, London (1877). Lister became interested in antisepsis while studying the problem of gangrenous wounds. He followed the lead of Louis Pasteur in assigning germs as the cause of gangrene and attempted local measures to eliminate these infections. Carbolic acid was used to destroy the gangrene organisms, with the result that the death rate from amputations, compound fractures, and similar wounds declined remarkably. Though Ignaz Semmelweiss had used antiseptic measures earlier in combating puerperal fever, his method was more or less empirical and Lister is credited with being the first to practice antisepsis as a germ-destroying method. He is also responsible for the use of ligatures which are absorbed by the body and for drainage tubes in wounds and incisions, the practice until his introduction of the latter having been to leave long protruding ends on ligatures to facilitate drainage. Lister's methods, combined with the earlier invention of anesthesia, extended the range of surgical intervention and made possible many operations until then impossible.

Lister, Joseph Jackson. b. at London, Jan. 11, 1786; d. Oct. 24, 1869. English wine merchant and optician. He is noted for improvements in the construction of the object-glasses of microscopes made possible by his discovery of the principle of aplanatic foci.

Lister, Philip Cunliffe-. See Swinton, 1st Viscount.

Lister, Thomas Henry. b. near Lichfield, England, 1800; d. at Kent House, Knightsbridge, London, June 5, 1842. English novelist and dramatist.

Lister og Mandal (lis'tėr ô män'däl). Former name of Vest-Agder.

Liston (lis'tǫn), John. b. at London, c1776; d. there, March 22, 1846. English actor. He acted a large number of comic parts, of which the most successful was his Paul Pry, in John Poole's play, a part he created.

Liston, Sir Robert. b. at Overtoun, parish of Kirkliston, Scotland, Oct. 8, 1742; d. near Edinburgh, July 15, 1836. British diplomat.

Liston, Robert. b. at Ecclesmachan, Linlithgowshire, Scotland, Oct. 28, 1794; d. at London, Dec. 7, 1847. Scottish surgeon, professor of chemical surgery in the University of London (from 1835). He was noted especially for his skill as an operator, and as the inventor of a splint, named for him, which is used in cases of dislocation of the thigh.

Listowel (lis.tō'ėl). Town in S Ontario, Canada, ab. 61 mi. N of London. 3,469 (1951).

Lisu (lē'sö). [Also: Lissu; in Burma, Yawyin.] Tibeto-Burman-speaking mountain people of NW Yunnan, China, and the Kachin Hills of N Burma, whence small groups have emigrated to N Thailand (Siam) and to N Laos, in Indochina.

Lisuarte of England (lē.swär'tā). In Amadis of Gaul, the king of England, and the father of Oriana, the wife of Amadis.

Lisuarte of Greece. In Amadis of Gaul, the grandson of Amadis, and son of Esplandian. Two of the books of the Amadis of Gaul romance contain his adventures: the seventh, by Feliciano de Silva (1514); and the eighth, by Juan Díaz (1526).

Liszt (list), Franz. b. at Raiding, Hungary, Oct. 22, 1811; d. at Bayreuth, Germany, July 31, 1886. Hungarian composer and piano virtuoso. His earliest piano teaching came from his father, but after his public debut at the age of nine at Sopron (Ödenburg), several Hungarian nobles agreed to contribute funds toward his further study. He went to Vienna to take lessons in technique from Czerny and in harmony and analysis from Salieri. He appeared in public concerts at Vienna and, either at his second concert in April, 1823, or at a private playing of one of the older master's works, the young Liszt was kissed by Beethoven. He went to Paris to enter the Conservatoire, but Cherubini, the director, was opposed to child prodigies and barred him as a foreigner. Liszt continued his studies privately, making concert tours and becoming acquainted with many of the leading French figures of the day. At Paris he met Chopin, Berlioz, and, most influential on his subsequent career, Paganini, who inspired in him the desire to become as much master of the piano as Paganini was of the violin. He retired from public appearances to practice, and when he reappeared in 1832 his mastery of his instrument made him undeniably the most famous pianist of the era. Liszt had a magnificent personal appearance, which helped to enhance his popularity as a musician and also brought him a succession of mistresses, notoriously the Countess d'Agoult (who wrote, as the rival of George Sand, under the pseudonym Daniel Stern), with whom he eloped to Switzerland in 1835 and who bore him three children (among them Cosima, who was to marry Hans von Bülow and then Richard Wagner), and the Princess Sayn-Wittgenstein, with whom he lived at Weimar from 1848 to 1861. Liszt had liaisons with numerous other women (including one of his students when he was 73 years of age), among them George Sand, Lola Montez, and Marie Duplessis, the original of Dumas's Camille. He retired from the concert stage in 1848 to become musical director at Weimar. There he brought out Wagner's Tannhäuser and Lohengrin and Berlioz's Benvenuto Cellini. He resigned this appointment in 1859 and went to Rome in 1861. There, in April, 1865, he became a Third Order member of the Franciscans; he thenceforward was called the Abbé Liszt. His time was now divided between Rome, Weimar, and Budapest, and was devoted to teaching, at first a select group but afterwards a less exclusive body of pupils. Among his many students were some of the great musicians of the succeeding generations: Saint-Saëns, Smetana, Weingartner, Bizet, Albéniz, Joachim, Joseffy, Moszkowski, Rosenthal, and Siloti. In 1886 he made a triumphal visit to England, but the trip tired him and he died a few months after his return. Liszt is credited with bringing the solo piano concert into being, with fixing the position of the piano sidewise to the audience (he had a fine profile and an impressive head of hair), and with popularizing many of the mannerisms of the pianist intent on his work. He was the inventor of the term (if not of the genre) "symphonic poem" to describe the programmatic orchestral work, and was the developer of the leitmotiv or recurrent theme, the use of which was later brought to prominence in the work of Wagner and Richard Strauss. Among his compositions, numbering probably more than 1,000, are symphonic poems, including Les Préludes, Orpheus, and Mazeppa; the Dante and Faust symphonies; the piano concertos in E flat and A; 19 Hungarian rhapsodies, including the much-played second rhapsody; three Liebesträume, a favorite being the one in A flat major; a sonata in B minor; grand études de concert; many transcriptions of his own and other composers' works, paraphrases, cantatas, oratorios, masses, and other religious music. He published several books, among them Des Bohémiens et de leur musique en Hongrie (1859) and works on Wagner, Franz, Chopin, Schumann, and others.

Li Ta-chao (lē' tä'chou'). b. at Tientsin, China, 1875; executed at Peiping, 1927. Chinese professor of history and librarian at Peiping National University. In an earlier day, he befriended Mao Tse-tung, appointing him as a library assistant. He helped found (1921) the Chinese Communist Party, acted (1925–27) as its spokesman in North China, and was strangled to death (April, 1927) on orders of Chang Tso-lin.

Li T'ai-po (lē' tī'pō', bō'). See Li Po or Li T'ai-po.

Litani (lē.tä'nē). [Also: Litany; ancient name, Leontes.] River in Lebanon, which rises near the city of Zahle and flows S and W into the Mediterranean ab. 4 mi. N of Tyre. It is called near its mouth the Nahr el-Kasimiyeh. Length, ab. 90 mi.

Litauen (lē'tou.ęn). German and Swedish name of Lithuania.

Litchfield (lich'fēld). Town and borough in W Connecticut, county seat of Litchfield County, ab. 27 mi. W of Hartford. Pop. of town, 4,964 (1950); of borough, 1,174 (1950).

Litchfield. City in C Illinois, in Montgomery County, in a coal-mining area: manufactures of stoves, radiators, shoes, and dairy products. 7,208 (1950).

Litchfield. Village in S Minnesota, county seat of Meeker County: shipping point for poultry and livestock; manufactures of dairy products and woolen textiles. 4,608 (1950).

Literary Club. Club founded in 1764 by Sir Joshua Reynolds, Dr. Samuel Johnson, and others. It met originally at the Turk's Head in Gerrard Street, London, and continued to meet there till 1783. After several removals, in 1799 it settled in the Thatched House in St. James's Street. The name was changed to "the Johnson Club," and on the taking down of the Thatched House the club removed to the Clarendon Hotel in Bond Street, where it celebrated its centennial in 1864.

Literary Digest. American weekly magazine (1890–1938) which presented a summary of magazine and newspaper opinion on current affairs. After World War I, the publication inaugurated straw polls for determining reactions to national issues, but its failure accurately to gauge the drift of public opinion before the national election of 1936 resulted in the loss of a considerable body of readers, and thus contributed to its demise.

Literary Magazine and American Register, The. Philadelphia monthly (1803–10) presenting articles on literary and scientific subjects. Under the editorship (1803–07) of Charles Brockden Brown the publication established a policy of news analysis, as distinguished from routine newspaper reporting. In 1807 it was renamed The American Register.

Literaturbriefe (lē''te.rä.tör'brē.fe). [Full name, Briefe die neueste Litteratur betreffend.] German literary magazine appearing (1759–65) at Berlin. It was conceived by Gotthold Ephraim Lessing in coöperation with C. F. Nicolai and Moses Mendelssohn. Although Lessing contributed only 54 of the 333 issues, his were the dominant ideas. These letters, which are considered to have contained the best German literary criticism of the 18th century, were enormously effective in clarifying literary concepts on the eve of the classical period of German literature. It was here that Shakespeare got for the first time in Germany a proper appraisal and all that we have left of Lessing's never completed Faust drama is quoted in the 17th letter.

Liternum (li.tėr'num). In ancient geography, a town in Campania, Italy, on the W coast ab. 14 mi. NW of Naples.

Litherland (liтн'ėr.lạnd). Urban district in NW England, in Lancashire, ab. 5 mi. NW of Liverpool, ab. 198 mi. NW of London by rail. It is a suburb of Liverpool. 22,197 (1951).

Lithgow (lith'gō). Town in SE Australia, in E New South Wales, in the Blue Mountains ab. 65 mi. NW of Sydney. It is a coal-mining center, and has also developed metal-working, arms, woolen textile, and ceramics industries. The iron and steel works formerly here have been moved to Port Kembla on the coast. 14,461 (1947).

Lithgow, William. b. at Lanark, Scotland, 1582; d. probably at Lanark, c1645. Scottish traveler in Europe and the Near East, mostly afoot. He was the author of The Totall Discourse of the Rare Adventures and Painfull Peregrinations of Long Nineteen Years (1614, 1632).

Lithuania (lith.ọ.ā'ni.ạ). [Lithuanian, Lietuva; Estonian, Leedumaa; German and Swedish, Litauen; Polish, Litwa; Russian, Litva; Latin, Lituania; official name since 1940, Lithuanian Soviet Socialist Republic.] Country of Europe, after World War I an independent republic, since 1940 under Russian control as the Lithuanian Soviet Socialist Republic of the U.S.S.R. The surface is a plain, varying from level to rolling. There are numerous lakes and swamps, and dunes along the Baltic coast. It is fundamentally an agricultural country, and more than three fourths of the working population is employed in agriculture and forestry. The chief crops are potatoes, grains (especially rye), and sugar beets. Dairy farming and livestock raising are also specialties. The industries produce chiefly consumer-goods. More than four fifths of the inhabitants are Lithuanians, members of an ethnic group which has been predominant in this area since prehistoric times. In the 13th century the Grand Duchy of Lithuania was established, with its capital at Vilna; during the 14th century this state underwent a remarkable expansion, beginning with the reign of Gediminas or Gedimin (1315–40). It governed a large area E and SE of the present territory of Lithuania, including Kiev, which had been previously occupied by small principalities, and ravaged by the Golden Horde. Lithuania waged campaigns to preserve and to extend its territory against the Teutonic Knights, who occupied the Baltic coast, and against the Khanate of the Golden Horde in the SE; it cleared the lower Dnieper of the Mongols in 1368, was united with Poland under Jagiello in 1386, and was also Christianized under Jagiello. Under Vytautas (1392–1430), it gained Smolensk and acquired still greater power. It was definitely united with Poland by 1501, but the union was not formally completed until 1569. In the late 18th century, the territory of Lithuania was divided between Russia and Prussia in the partition of Poland, and in 1815 the Prussian portion of Lithuania also passed to Russia. With the collapse of Russia in 1917, during World War I, a Lithuanian state was formed under German auspices; in 1918, with the defeat of Germany, Lithuania became an independent republic. In 1920 the Poles occupied Vilna and annexed the surrounding area; this move was never recognized by Lithuania. The capital was moved to Kaunas (Kovno), and the frontier between the two countries was closed until 1938. In 1923 the Lithuanians annexed the internationalized Memel territory, which had belonged to Prussia and had a mixed German and Lithuanian population. This annexation was not recognized by Germany, and in March, 1939, Lithuania acceded to an ultimatum demanding its return to Germany. With the collapse of Poland, in September, 1939, Lithuania received the Vilna area, and the capital was again established at Vilna. In 1940 the Russians occupied Lithuania, and it was annexed to the U.S.S.R., a move which has not been recognized by the U.S. government. In 1941 Lithuania was occupied by the German armies, which remained in the country until the Russian summer offensive of 1944 reconquered the country. Capital, Kaunas; area, ab. 21,494 sq. mi. (1938), ab. 23,670 sq. mi. (1940), ab. 25,200 sq. mi. (1951); pop. 2,549,668 (est. 1938), 2,885,100 (est. 1940).

Lithuanians (lith.ọ.ā'ni.ạnz). Baltic people, numbering (1946) about three million (of whom perhaps 2,200,000 lived in Lithuania). Their language, Lithuanian, belongs to the Baltic subfamily of Indo-European languages. It preserves the most ancient of the Baltic linguistic forms, and still retains the old variable accentuation which is necessary for the meter of the ancient folk songs. It is related to Lettish, but Lettish and Lithuanian are not necessarily mutually intelligible.

Lititz (lit'its). Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Lancaster County, in an agricultural area: manufactures of pretzels, clothing, and other products. 5,568 (1950).

Litolff (lē'tolf), Henry Charles. b. at London, Feb. 6, 1818; d. near Paris, Aug. 6, 1891. Pianist and composer. He entered (1851) the music-publishing business at Brunswick, and originated (1861) inexpensive musical reprints as Collection Litolff. His works include operas, operettas, overtures, an oratorio, orchestral compositions, and chamber works.

Litoměřice (lē'tô.myer.zhi.tse). [German, Leitmeritz.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Ústi, in N Bohemia, opposite the influx of the Ohře (Eger) into the Labe (Elbe) River, ab. 34 mi. N of Prague. It has a number of old churches, among them a cathedral which contains a painting by Lucas Cranach. There are various industries, particularly in foodstuffs. Litoměřice is the chief town of a rich agricultural region and a center for the fruit and hops trade. For a long time it was on the Czech-German linguistic frontier in N Bohemia, but the Sudeten German population was expelled after World War II. 14,402 (1947).

Litomyšl (lē'tô.mish.l). [German, Leitomischl.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Pardubice, in E Bohemia, near the Moravian border, ab. 46 mi. N of Brno. It has textile and shoe industries. 6,384 (1947).

Li Tsung-jen (lē' dzụng'zhun'). b. at Kweilin, Kwangsi, China, 1890—. Chinese general, long close to Pai Chung-hsi but often at odds with Chiang Kai-shek. He held (1924–36) Kwangsi virtually independent of the central government, which he pressed to take a stiffer stand against Japanese encroachment. After the Japanese attack (1937), he supported Chiang Kai-shek, but with the post-war victories of the Communists criticized him for inefficiency and opposed (1948) his candidate to win himself the election as vice-president. He served as acting president of the central government from 1949 to February, 1950, when Chiang overrode his protests and resumed the presidency. In 1952 he was ousted from the Kuomintang.

Litta (lēt'tä), Count Pompeo. b. at Milan, Italy, Sept. 27, 1781; d. there, Aug. 17, 1852. Italian historian.

Littauer (li.tou'ėr), Lucius Nathan. b. at Gloversville, N.Y., Jan. 20, 1859; d. at New Rochelle, N.Y., March 2, 1944. American manufacturer and philanthropist, noted for his gift (1935) of over two million dollars for the establishment of a graduate school of public administration at Harvard. He was head of a glove-manufacturing firm until 1926, and was a member (1897–1907) of the U.S. House of Representatives. Other donations included a gift (1929) of a million dollars to establish the Lucius N. Littauer Foundation for the promotion of better understanding among the peoples of the world.

Littell (li.tel'), Eliakim. b. at Burlington, N.J., Jan. 2, 1797; d. at Brookline, Mass., May 17, 1870. American publisher. He established the periodical Littell's Living Age at Boston in 1844. He earlier published the Philadelphia Register and National Recorder (1819 et seq., under various titles) and the Eclectic Museum.

Littell, Frank Bowers. b. at Scranton, Pa., Feb. 21, 1869—. American astronomer. He was professor of mathematics (1901–33) with the U.S. navy, an astronomer with the U.S. Naval Observatory, and a member of various U.S. eclipse expeditions (1900–26). He made a catalogue of 23,521 stars with W. S. Eichelberger, and vertical circle observations with five-inch altazimuth, the results of which were published in 1939.

Little (lit'l), Arthur Dehon. b. at Boston, Dec. 15, 1863; d. at Northeast Harbor, Me., Aug. 1, 1935. American chemical engineer. He was superintendent (1884–85) and chemist of the first mill to manufacture sulfite wood pulp in America. He was president (1909 et seq.) of Arthur D. Little, Inc., and founded the School of Chemical Engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. During World War I he conducted special research on airplane dopes, acetone production, and smoke filters. He invented processes for chrome tanning, for the manufacture of chlorates by electrolytic means, and for artificial silk, petroleum, and gas.

Little, Charles Coffin. b. at Kennebunk, Me., July 25, 1799; d. Aug. 9, 1869. American publisher. With James Brown, he established (1847, at Boston) Little, Brown and Company, originally important in the field of legal publications and later one of the leading general publishing houses of the U.S.

Little, Sir Charles James Colebrooke. b. at Shanghai, China, June 14, 1882—. British naval officer. During World War I he commanded (1916–18) the Grand Fleet Submarine Flotilla. With the rank (1937 et seq.) of admiral, he was chief (1938–41) of naval personnel. He led (1941–42) the British admiralty delegation at Washington, serving with the combined English and American chiefs of staff.

Little, Clarence Cook. b. at Brookline, Mass., Oct. 6, 1888—. American biologist and educator. He served as president of the University of Maine (1922–25) and the University of Michigan (1925–29), and as head (1929 et seq.) of the Roscoe B. Jackson Memorial Laboratory. He was managing director (1929–45) of the American Society for the Control of Cancer. He is known for his researches on the inheritance of susceptibility to cancer. Author of The Awakening College (1930), Civilization Against Cancer (1939), and other publications.

Little, Frances. Pseudonym of Macaulay, Fannie Caldwell.

Little, Lou. b. at Leominster, Mass., Dec. 6, 1893—. American football coach. He began playing football in high school at Leominster, and continued at the University of Pennsylvania. He thereafter coached and played on professional teams until 1924, when he was appointed football coach at Georgetown University, from which in 1930 he went to Columbia University in New York as chief of the coaching staff. In 1932 he was elected chairman of the Football Coaches' Rules Committee. In 1939 he became president of the American Football Coaches' Association.

Little, Thomas. Pseudonym of Thomas Moore. He published a volume of love poems in 1808 under this name. He was also spoken of as "Master Little."

Little Abaco (ab'ạ.kō). See under Abaco Islands.

Little America (ạ.mer'i.kạ). Base of the Byrd Expeditions to the Antarctic, situated on the Ross Shelf Ice ab. 80 ft. above sea level, in ab. lat. 78°34′ S. and long. 163°56′ W. It was established and named by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd in 1929.

Little Bahama Bank (bạ.hä'mạ, -hä'-). See Bahama Bank, Little.

Little Basses (bas'ẹz). See Basses, Little.

Little Belt (belt). See Belt, Little.

Little Bighorn (big'hôrn). River in N Wyoming and S Montana, flowing N to join the Bighorn River near Hardin, Mont. On its banks occurred the defeat and massacre of General George Custer and his men by the Indians on June 25, 1876. Length, ab. 90 mi.

"Little Blitz" (blits). See under Blitz.

Little Bo-Peep (bō.pēp'). See Bo-Peep, Little.

Littleborough (lit'l.bur.ō, -bėr.ō). [Ancient name, Segelocum.] Urban district in NW England, in Lancashire, on the river Roch and on the Rochdale Canal, ab. 13 mi. NE of Manchester, ab. 197 mi. NW of London. It is a cotton-finishing center, and has manufactures of flannel. The ancient town was a stop on the Roman road later known as Ermine Street. 10,982 (1951).

Little Braklond (brak'lond). See Braklond, Long and Little.

Little Bras d'Or (bra" dôr'). See under Bras d'Or, Lake.

Little Breeches. Poem by John Hay, included in his Pike County Ballads (1871).

Little Briar Rose. English translation of Grimm's title for the Sleeping Beauty story.

Little Britain (brit'ạn). See Britain, Benjamin (or Little).

Little Bukhara (bö.kä'rạ, -ʜä'-). See under Sinkiang.

Little Cayman (kī.mān'). Island in the Caribbean Sea, NW of Jamaica: second largest of the Cayman Islands, a dependency of the British colony of Jamaica. Fishing is the major industry. Area, ab. 9 sq. mi.; pop. 63 (1943).

Little Chute (shōt). Village in E Wisconsin, in Outagamie County, on the Fox River: residential suburb adjoining Kimberly and Kaukauna. 4,152 (1950).

Little Colorado (kol.ọ.rad'ọ, -rä'dō). River rising in W New Mexico and flowing generally NW through E and N central Arizona to join the Colorado River E of the Grand Canyon. In its lower course it flows through an impressive canyon (which is, however, dwarfed by the nearby Grand Canyon). Length, ab. 300 mi.

Little Corn Island. See under Corn Islands.

"Little Corporal." See Napoleon I.

Little Cumania (or Kumania) (kū.mā'ni.ạ). See Cumania, Little.

Little Cumbrae (kum.brā', kum'brā). See Cumbrae, Great and Little.

Little Dawley (dô'li). Local name for Dawley.

Little Dipper. See under Ursa Minor, and Cynosura.

Little Dorrit (dor'it). Novel by Charles Dickens. It was first published serially from December, 1855, to June, 1857. It is an elaborated and highly plotted novel involving, among other things, attacks upon imprisonment for debt and upon the inefficiency and red tape of parliamentary and governmental procedure (which are satirized under "the Circumlocution Office"). George Bernard Shaw called this novel "a more seditious book than Das Kapital."

Little Dunmow (dun'mō). See under Dunmow.

Little Elobey (el.ọ.bā'; Spanish, ā.lō.ʙā'). [Spanish, Elobey Chico.] One of the Corisco islands, in the Bay of Corisco off the coast of Río Muni, W Africa. It is part of the colony of Spanish Guinea. Area, ab. 22 acres.

"Little Em'ly" (em'li). See Emily.

"Little England" (ing'glạnd). See Barbados.

Little Entente. Term used to designate the unit formed in 1920–21 by conventions of alliance between Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania. The unit took form in a series of three treaties: Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia at Belgrade on Aug. 14, 1920; Rumania and Czechoslovakia at Bucharest on April 23, 1921; and Yugoslavia and Rumania at Belgrade on June 7, 1921. Formed initially through fear of the "Hapsburg menace" or the possibility of reconsolidation of the dismembered states of the Central Powers of World War I, it also provided the starting point for a wider network of economic and political treaties with other Central European states. The ties of the Little Entente were with France as the principal Continental power, but with the rise of Hitler Germany the coalition slowly lost its vigor and, despite efforts to keep it alive, fell apart in 1938 after the Munich Conference.

Little Eva (ē'vạ). Daughter of Augustine St. Clare, a child whose friendship for Uncle Tom and whose early death form an important part of the novel Uncle Tom's Cabin (1852) by Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Little Exuma (ek.sö'mạ, eg.zö'mạ). See under Exuma.

Little Falls. City in C Minnesota, county seat of Morrison County, on the Mississippi River ab. 88 mi. NW of Minneapolis. 6,717 (1950).

Little Falls. Township in NE New Jersey, in Passaic County: residential and industrial town; a large laundry is the principal industry. 6,405 (1950).

Little Falls. City in C New York, in Herkimer County, at the falls of the Mohawk River, ab. 64 mi. NW of Albany: manufactures of milking machinery, bookcases, knit goods, felt, breakfast foods, paper, and bicycles. 9,541 (1950).

Little Ferry. Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County. 4,955 (1950).

Littlefield (lit'l.fēld). City in NW Texas, in Lamb County, NW of Lubbock: shipping point for cattle; processing center for cotton and cottonseed oil. 6,540 (1950).

"Little Flower, the." See Saint Thérèse de Lisieux.

Little Flowers of St. Francis. See under Saint Francis of Assisi.

Little Foxes, The. Play (1939) by Lillian Hellman.

Little French Girl (french), The. Novel by Anne Douglas Sedgwick, published in 1924.

Little French Lawyer, The. Comedy by John Fletcher and Philip Massinger, written c1620 and printed in 1647. The plot is from The Spanish Rogue, a novel which was also used by Mateo Alemán in his Guzmán de Alfarache.

Little Gandak (gun'duk). See Gandak, Little.

"Little Giant." Nickname of Douglas, Stephen Arnold.

Little Glacier. See Kelsey Glacier.

Littlehampton (lit'l.hamp.tən). Urban district and seaside resort in SE England, in West Sussex, on the English Channel at the mouth of the river Arun, ab. 62 mi. S of London by rail. It has a small port. 13,948 (1951).

Little Iliad (il'i.ad), The. Greek epic poem of the Trojan cycle, supposedly by Lesches. It continued the story of the Iliad to the fall of Troy.

Little John (jon). In the English Robin Hood ballad cycle, one of the chief followers of Robin Hood, said to have been one John Nailor. He was enormously tall and strong, a devoted friend and supporter of Robin Hood. He is probably best known through the ballad Robin Hood and Little John (Number 125 in Child's English and Scottish Popular Ballads) although he figures in most of the other ballads also.

Littlejohn (lit'l.jon), Hugh. Name given to John Hugh Lockhart, son of John Gibson Lockhart and grandson of Sir Walter Scott, for whom the latter wrote Tales of a Grandfather.

Little Kanawha (ka.nô'a). River in West Virginia which joins the Ohio at Parkersburg. Length, over 150 mi.

Little Karroo (ka.rö'). See Karroo, Little.

Little Khingan Mountains (shing'än'). [Chinese, Hsiao Khingan Shan.] Range of mountains in NE China, in the provinces of Heilungkiang and Sungkiang, E of the valley of the Nonni River. It runs generally N and S. Length, ab. 350 mi.; peak elevation, ab. 4,660 ft.

Little Loch Broom (loch bröm'). See Broom, Big Loch and Little Loch.

Little Lord Fauntleroy (fônt'lę.roi). Title and hero of a novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett, published in 1886. On the death of his father, an English earl, the seven-year-old hero goes to England, where he quickly wins the affection of his grandfather, a gouty and irascible nobleman. The latter, who had bitterly resented the marriage of his son with an American, finally accepts the mother, who had been living a poverty-stricken existence in New York. With his long curls and black velvet apparel, the hero has now come to symbolize for many readers a type of elaborately dressed, too-good-to-be-true child.

Little Men. Novel by Louisa May Alcott, published in 1871.

Little Menderes (men.de.res'). See under Caÿster.

Little Minch (minch). See Minch, Little.

Little Missouri (mi.zö'ri, -rą). River in E Wyoming, SE Montana, NW South Dakota, and W North Dakota. It joins the Missouri ab. 83 mi. NW of Bismarck, N.D. Length, ab. 560 mi.

Little Mohee (mō.hē'). Title and heroine of a popular American ballad, perhaps of English origin but claimed by the folk-song scholar Phillips Barry (1880–1937) to be native American. There are many versions, known and sung everywhere in America. The story is that the singer (a sailor) is asked by the Little Mohee (an Indian girl) to live with her in her coconut grove; but he says he must return to the girl in his own country. He finds that she has not been true, however, and then longs for the love of the Little Mohee. It was a favorite on the arctic whaling ships in the Pacific. The most common tune to which it is sung is the same as that for Old Smoky.

Little Mountain Town. A former name of Mount Sterling, Ky.

Little Mythe (mē'tę). See under Mythen.

Little Namaqualand (na.mä'kwa.land) or Namaland (nä'ma.land). See Namaqualand, Little.

Little Nell (nel). Child character in the novel Old Curiosity Shop, by Charles Dickens. The passage describing her death, in which Dickens unconsciously wrote blank verse, is generally considered one of the classics of Victorian sentimentalism.

Little Norsk (nôrsk), A. Novel by Hamlin Garland, published in 1892.

Little Ormes Head (ôrmz' hed). See Ormes Head, Great and Little.

Littlepage Manuscripts (lit'l.pāj). Trilogy by James Fenimore Cooper. It includes the novels Satanstoe (1845), The Chainbearer (1845), and The Redskins (1846), and deals with the struggle between the landed and propertyless groups in New York which culminated in the Anti-Rent War.

Little Parliament. [Also, Barebone's Parliament.] Parliament convened by Cromwell July 4, 1653, after he had dissolved the Rump Parliament: so called from the small number (about 140) of its members. It constituted Cromwell Lord Protector. It is also called, from Praisegod Barbon or Barebone, one of its members, "Barebone's Parliament."

Little Popo (pō'pō). See Anécho.

Little Rann (or Runn) of Cutch (or Kachh or Kutch) (run; kuch). See under Kutch, Rann of.

Little Rays of Moonshine. See Light Articles Only.

Little Red Horses. Novel by G. B. Stern, published in 1932. It was issued in America under the title The Rueful Mating.

Little Red Ridinghood. See Red Ridinghood, Little.

Little Review, The. Outstanding "little magazine" founded at Chicago by Margaret C. Anderson and published monthly (1914–29). At various periods it was printed at New York and Paris. The publication, which presented James Joyce's Ulysses in serial form, emphasized modern experimental techniques in writing. Contributors included T. S. Eliot, Wallace Stevens, Amy Lowell, and Sherwood Anderson.

"Little Rhody" (rō'di). Nickname of Rhode Island.

Little Rock (lit'l rok). City in C Arkansas, on the Arkansas River, capital of Arkansas and county seat of Pulaski County: the chief commercial center of the state. It has woodworking, chemical, and furniture industries. Little Rock is the seat of St. John's Seminary, Arkansas Baptist College, Philander Smith College, the medical school of the University of Arkansas, and a junior college. Pop. of city, 102,213 (1950); of urbanized area, 153,643 (1950).

Little Russia (rush'a). Name sometimes given to the region of the U.S.S.R. comprising the former governments of Kharkov, Kiev, Pultova, and Chernigov. In some classifications all of the SW part of the U.S.S.R. which is inhabited by the Little Russian (Ukrainian) people is included. The name is no longer in general usage.

Little Scheidegg (shī'dek). See Scheidegg or Scheideck, Little.

Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come, The. Novel by John Fox, published in 1902.

Little Silver. Residential borough in E New Jersey, in Monmouth County, near Red Bank. 2,595 (1950).

Little Sioux (sö). River rising in S Minnesota and flowing S and SW across Iowa to the Missouri River, ab. 30 mi. N of Omaha, Neb. Length, ab. 230 mi.

Little Skellig (skel'ig). See under Skelligs, the.

Little Sodus Bay (sō'dus). See Sodus Bay, Great and Little.

Little St. Bernard (sānt bêr.närd'). See St. Bernard, Little.

Littlestown (lit'lz.toun). Borough in S Pennsylvania, in Adams County, ab. 35 mi. SW of Harrisburg. 2,635 (1950).

Little Tartary (tär'ta.ri) or Tatary (tā'ta.ri). See Tartary, Little.

Little Tennessee (ten'ę.sē, ten.ę.sē'). River rising in N Georgia and flowing across W North Carolina and E Tennessee to join the Tennessee River opposite Lenoir City. Three dams of the Tennessee Valley Authority have been built in the river: Fontana, Cheoah, and Calderwood. Length, over 150 mi.

Little Theater. See Maly Teatr.

"Little Tibet" (ti.bet'). See Baltistan.

Littleton (lit'l.ton). Town in N central Colorado, county seat of Arapahoe County, ab. 9 mi. S of downtown Denver. It is in an irrigated farming area. 3,378 (1950).

Littleton. Town (in New Hampshire the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in N New Hampshire, in Grafton County, on the Ammonoosuc River: resort; trading center for an agricultural region. Pop. of town, 4,817 (1950); of village, 3,819 (1950).

Littleton, Adam. b. at Halesowen, Worcestershire, England, Nov. 2, 1627; d. June 30, 1694. English scholar.

Littleton, Sir Edward. [Title, 1st Baron Littleton.] b. at Munslow, Shropshire, England, 1589; d. at Oxford, England, Aug. 27, 1645. English jurist. He was chief justice of North Wales (1621), and in 1625 entered Parliament. He served as chairman of the grievance committee whose report (1628) formed the basis for the Petition of Right. He became recorder of London (Dec. 7, 1631), solicitor general (Oct. 17, 1634), chief justice of the Common Pleas (Jan. 27, 1640), lord keeper of the great seal (Jan. 18, 1641), and first commissioner of the treasury (May 18, 1641). He argued against Hampden in the ship-money case, and was a firm partisan of Charles I. In May, 1642, he followed the king to York, taking the seal with him.

Littleton, Sir Thomas. b. at Frankley, Worcestershire, England, c1407 (some authorities say 1422); d. there, Aug. 23, 1481. English jurist. He was made justice of the Common Pleas April 27, 1466, and was the author of a famous work (in the French then standard in English law) on tenures, which, with Edward Coke's commentary, was long the authority on the English law of real property.

Little Vehicle. [Sanskrit, Hinayana.] Southern (Ceylon, Burma, Thailand, Cambodia) school of Buddhism.

Little Walachia (wo.lā'ki.ạ). See Oltenia.

Littlewit (lit'l.wit), John. Foolish proctor in Ben Jonson's Bartholomew Fair. He adores his hypocritical wife Winifred.

Little Women. Novel by Louisa May Alcott, published in 1868–69. The story, set against a New England background, depicts the aspirations of the four March daughters, Meg, Jo, Beth, and Amy. Meg finally settles down to married life with John Brooke, the tutor of their neighbor, Laurie. The latter marries Amy after courting Jo in vain. Beth dies and Jo eventually marries a professor while continuing her literary career. The story of the March family is based upon the author's own childhood experiences.

Littmann (lit'män), Enno. b. at Oldenburg, Germany, Sept. 16, 1875—. German Oriental scholar. He accompanied archaeological expeditions to Syria and Ethiopia.

Litton (lit'ọn), Marie. [Original name, Mary Lowe.] b. in Derbyshire, England, 1847; d. at London, April 1, 1884. English actress.

Littoria (lēt.tô'ryä). Former name of Latina.

Littré (lē.trā), Maximilien Paul Émile. b. at Paris, Feb. 1, 1801; d. there, June 2, 1881. French philologist and philosopher. He took up the study of medicine, but his decided taste for literary labors induced him to turn his attention to the acquisition of Greek, Arabic, and Sanskrit. He was a fervent advocate of the doctrine of positivism, and greatly admired Auguste Comte. At the death of Comte, Littré was recognized as head of the positivist school. His great work is the Dictionnaire de la langue française (1863–72). He made a French translation of the works of Hippocrates (10 vols., 1839–61), and also published translations of David Friedrich Strauss's Life of Jesus (1839–40) and Pliny's Natural History (1848). He edited the works of Armand Carrel (1857), and a new Dictionnaire de médecine de Nysten (1855). Besides a number of books and papers on positivism, he wrote Le Choléra oriental (1832), Histoire de la langue française (1862), Études sur les barbares et le moyen-âge (1867), Médecine et médecins (1871), Restauration de la légitimité et de ses alliés (1873), La Science au point de vue philosophique (1873), Littérature et histoire (1875), and De l'établissement et la troisième république (1880).

Littrow (lit'rō), Joseph Johann von. b. at Bischofteinitz (now Horšuv Tyn), in Bohemia, March 13, 1781; d. Nov. 30, 1840. Austrian astronomer, director (1819 et seq.) of the observatory at Vienna. Author of Die Wunder des Himmels (The Wonders of the Heavens, 1836).

Littrow, Karl von. b. at Kazan, Russia, July 18, 1811; d. at Venice, Nov. 16, 1877. Austrian astronomer; son of Joseph Johann von Littrow.

Lituania (lit.ụ.ā'ni.ạ). Latin name of Lithuania.

Litva (lēt.vä'). Russian name of Lithuania.

Litvinov (lit.vē'nọf), Maxim Maximovich. [Also: Litvinoff; original surname, Wallach.] b. at Białystok, Poland (in territory then part of Russia), July 17, 1876; d. Dec. 31, 1951. Russian diplomat. He was arrested by the czarist police in 1901, escaped to Switzerland, returned to participate in the abortive attempt at revolution in Russia in 1905, and thereafter lived for some years in exile in Switzerland and in England, marrying an Englishwoman who had good connections in journalistic and official circles. Shortly after the Bolshevik revolution of October, 1917, he was named Russian diplomatic representative at London, but in 1918 was detained by the British authorities, and subsequently exchanged for a British agent who had fallen into Russian hands. In that same year he became vice-commissar for foreign affairs, in which capacity he negotiated nonaggression treaties with a number of nations and attended several international conferences. As the chief of the Russian delegation to the conference on disarmament at Geneva in 1928, he advanced proposals for speedy reduction and eventual abolition of fighting forces, which the other powers rejected. In 1930 Litvinov succeeded G. V. Chicherin as people's commissar for foreign affairs. He conducted for his government the negotiations which reëstablished diplomatic relations between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S., and those which led to Russian adherence to the League of Nations. In the forum of the League he pleaded for a policy of "collective security" by the "peace-loving nations" threatened by the aggressive preparations of the Axis Powers. When, in view of the failure of Soviet-British-French negotiations to this end, the Moscow government entertained proposals for a German-Soviet understanding, Litvinov, having been the most outspoken critic of the Nazi regime, and being moreover a Jew, was in 1939 replaced as foreign commissar by V. M. Molotov, who negotiated the nonaggression treaty with Germany signed that year. In 1941 Litvinov was named (Russian) ambassador to the U.S., holding that post until 1943. During his term as ambassador he was also deputy foreign minister of the U.S.S.R., and this office he held until 1946.

Litvinov Protocol. Agreement suggested by Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov of the U.S.S.R. to make effective the provisions of the Briand-Kellogg Pact (1928) among the signatories without waiting for the general ratification of the Pact. It embodied the provisions of the Kellogg-Briand Pact and of the parallel Act of Inter-American Arbitration against aggression and was signed at Moscow on Feb. 9, 1929, by the U.S.S.R., Poland, Rumania, Estonia, and Latvia. Later adherents to the Protocol were Lithuania, Turkey, Danzig, and Persia (Iran).

Litwa (lēt'vä). Polish name of Lithuania.

Litzmann (lits'män), Karl. b. at Neu-Globsow, Germany, Jan. 22, 1850; d. 1936. Prussian general who in World War I broke the Russian lines at Brzeziny (1914), and took Kaunas (1915). In 1932 he became a National Socialist member of the Reichstag, becoming president of that body by seniority.

Litzmannstadt (lits'män.shtät). See Łódź, city.

Liuchiu Islands (lyō'chyō'). See Ryukyu Islands.

Liuchow (lyō'jō'). [Former name, Maping.] City in S China, in the province of Kwangsi, on the Lung-Kiang: trade and transportation center, trading in rice, bamboo, tung oil, lumber, and melons. Area of municipality, ab. 186 sq. mi.; pop. 208,447 (1946); pop. of town, 52,618 (1941).

Liu Hsiang (lyō' shyäng'). b. at Tayi, Szechuan, China, 1890; d. 1938. Chinese warlord; uncle of Liu Wen-hui.

Liu-Kiu Islands (lyō'chyō'). See Ryukyu Islands.

Liu Po-ch'eng (lyō' bô'chung'). [Often called the One-Eyed General.] b. in Szechuan, China, c1893—. Chinese Communist military commander. He entered the Szechuan army as a private, soon became an officer, and participated in the 1911 revolution. He joined (1926) the Communist Party, and participated (1927) as chief of staff in the Nanchang uprising. He led (1937–45) guerrilla forces against the Japanese in North China. In 1949 he won the crucial battle of Suchow and other important engagements in the civil war. He was appointed (1949) chairman of the Southwest Administrative Area. He commanded (1950) in the invasion of Tibet.

Liu Shao-ch'i (lyō' shou'chē'). b. in Hunan, China, c1900—. Chinese Communist politician and trade-union leader. A prominent member of the Politburo, reputed to be second only to Mao Tse-tung as a Communist theoretician, he took over Mao's routine work during the latter's illness (winter of 1945–46). He was elected (1925) vice-president of the All-China Labor Federation. Continuing in trade-union and Communist Party activities, he became (1949) honorary president of the Sino-Soviet Friendship Association and one of the six chairmen of the Central People's Government Council in the Peiping government.

Liutprand (lē'ůt.pränd) or Luitprand (lö'it.pränd). fl. 8th century. King of the Lombards from c712 to 744. He campaigned against the Exarchate of Ravenna (which fell to his successor Aistulf, and thus forced an alliance between the Franks and the papacy, resulting finally in the breaking of the Lombard power). Under him the Lombards actually reached their zenith; he took the duchies of Benevento and Spoleto and established a centralized government to protect his subjects from the injustices of their immediate lords. He allied himself with Charles Martel and with the papacy, which he supported during the Iconoclastic controversy, but his growing power caused both allies to turn against the Lombards.

Liutprand or Luitprand. d. 972. Italian chronicler. He served under Hugh of Provence and Berengar, kings of Italy, and under the emperor Otto I, who made him (961) bishop of Cremona. He went on several diplomatic missions, notably to Constantinople in 949 and 968, the latter embassy to arrange for the marriage of Theophano to Otto (later Otto II). His writings include Antapodosis, a history of the years 887 to 950, Historia Ottonis, an account of the years 960 to 964 of Otto I's reign, and Relatio de legatione Constantinopolitana, his most famous and most valuable work, describing his second embassy to Constantinople and containing much valuable material on the Eastern and Western empires of his day.

Liu Wen-hui (lyō' wun'hwā'). b. in Szechuan, China, 1893; d. 1950. Chinese warlord who controlled Sikang and, intermittently, western Szechuan from 1928 until the Communist victories of 1949. In recognition of his de facto control he was appointed (1939) governor of Sikang by the Kuomintang government, whose influence, however, he opposed in his territory.

Livadia (li.vad'i.ą; Greek, lē.vä'ʜyä). See Levadia.

Livadiya (lē.vä'dē.yą). [Also, Livadia.] Coastal resort in SW U.S.S.R., in the Crimea, ab. 1.5 mi. S of Yalta, on the Black Sea coast. It is a noted resort with sanatariums, rest homes, and a beach.

Livens (lē'vęns), Jan. See Lievens or Livens or Lievenz, Jan.

Live Oak. City in N Florida, county seat of Suwannee County, W of Jacksonville; marketing center for tobacco. It is the seat of Florida Memorial College. 4,064 (1950).

Liveright (liv'rīt), Horace Brisbin. b. at Osceola Mills, Pa., Dec. 10, 1886; d. Sept. 24, 1933. American publisher and theatrical producer. He was a founder (1918) with Albert Boni of the firm of Boni and Liveright and served (1918–30) as its president. This firm established (1918) and published (until 1925) the reprint series known as The Modern Library. He became (1924) a theatrical producer with The Firebrand, and produced also Hamlet in Modern Dress (1925), An American Tragedy (1926), Dracula (1927), and The Dagger and the Rose (1927).

Livermore (liv'ėr.mōr). City in C California, in Alameda County, E of San Francisco; principal trade and shipping center of Livermore Valley, noted for its wines. 4,364 (1950).

Livermore, Mrs. Mary Ashton Rice. b. at Boston, Dec. 19, 1820; d. at Melrose, Mass., May 23, 1905. American abolitionist, lecturer, and woman suffragist. During the Civil War she was a leader in the work of the United States Sanitary Commission. She founded and edited The Agitator, a woman-suffrage paper, in 1869, merged it with The Woman's Journal in 1870, was first president of the Illinois Woman Suffrage Association and later president of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, and lectured much on temperance. She published What Shall We Do with Our Daughters! (1883), My Story of the War (1888), and others.

Livermore, Mount. See under Davis Mountains.

Livermore Falls. Town (in Maine the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in SW Maine, in Androscoggin County; paper mills. Pop. of town, 3,359 (1950); of village, 3,015 (1950).

Liverpool (liv'ėr.pōl). City and county borough in NW England, in Lancashire, on the NE shore of the estuary of the river Mersey, ab. 30 mi. W of Manchester, ab. 194 mi. NW of London by rail. It is a very important seaport, ranking second only to London in the British Isles. The port imports over half of the raw cotton used in the British textile industry, and also raw wool, hemp, hides, oilseed from West Africa, grains, foodstuffs, and other items. Exports consist largely of cotton goods, machinery, woolens, and chemicals. Liverpool was formerly the chief translatlantic passenger port in England but has now lost its place to Southampton. It ranks as the fourth city in population in the United Kingdom. Its industries are mostly processing industries, based upon imported raw materials, and manufacturing chemicals, oil and oil cake, flour, refined sugar, and numerous other products. There is an important clothing industry located here (especially the manufacture of work clothing). It is the commercial center for cotton buying, outranking Manchester in this function. Liverpool is connected with its industrial suburbs across the Mersey by rail and vehicular tunnels. St. George's Hall, opened in 1854, a modern classical building, is one of the best-known buildings. Other objects of interest are the Anglican cathedral, designed by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, town hall, exchange, revenue buildings, Liverpool University College (founded 1882), Museum of Japanese Art, Walker and other art galleries, and the very extensive docks (covering 600 acres, and occupying ab. 7 mi. of river front along the Mersey). Liverpool received a charter from King John in 1207 and was incorporated in 1229. It was taken by Prince Rupert in 1644. It developed greatly in the 18th and 19th centuries. It was the birthplace of W. E. Gladstone and Felicia Dorothea Hemans. During World War II the city and port were heavily damaged by bombing raids. Pop. of city, 789,532 (1951); of urbanized area, 1,309,003 (1951).

Liverpool. Village in C New York, in Onondaga County; a northern residential suburb of Syracuse. A large electronic equipment plant adjoins the village. 2,933 (1950).

Liverpool. Seaport and the capital of Queens County, Nova Scotia, Canada, at the mouth of the Mersey River, ab. 70 mi. SW of Halifax. 3,535 (1951).

Liverpool, Earl of. Title held by various members of the Foljambe family.

Liverpool, Earl of. Title held by various members of the Jenkinson family.

Liverpool. A former name of East Liverpool.

Livia (liv'i.ą). In Thomas Middleton's play Women Beware Women, an artful and malicious court lady who, with consummate knowledge of the world, betrays Bianca.

Livia Drusilla (drö.sil'ą). b. c56 B.C.; d. 29 A.D. First Roman empress; wife of Augustus, and mother of Tiberius and Drusus. She was the daughter of Livius Drusus Claudianus, and was married to Tiberius Claudius Nero (the father of her sons Tiberius and Drusus), who was compelled to divorce her (38 B.C.) in order that she might become the wife of Octavianus, the future emperor (as Augustus Caesar). She was accused of committing various crimes, even of hastening the death of her husband in her endeavor to secure the succession to her son Tiberius. For a time after the accession of the latter she was all-powerful in the state, but was soon forced to retire from public affairs.

Livigno Valley (lē.vē'nyō). [Italian, Valle di Livigno; German, Welsch-Livinen.] Upper valley of the Spol River, in the Alps, in the N part of the province of Sondrio, N Italy, bordering on Switzerland.

Living or Lyfing (lē'ving). d. June 12, 1020. Archbishop of Canterbury (1013–20), successor of Ælfheah (Alphege). He crowned Edmund II (1016) and Canute (1017).

Living or Lyfing. d. 1046. Anglo-Saxon prelate, bishop of Crediton (1027), of Cornwall (date uncertain), and also of Worcester (1038). He was a councilor of Canute and his companion in his pilgrimage to Rome, and was later a partisan of Earl Godwin and a supporter of his house.

Livingston (liv'ing.stən). Town in NE Guatemala, on a bay of the Caribbean Sea. Formerly the chief Atlantic port of Guatemala, it has declined since the rail terminus was placed at Puerto Barrios. 5,151 (1940).

Livingston. [Former name, Clark City.] City in S Montana, county seat of Park County, on the Yellowstone River ab. 96 mi. SE of Helena: railroad and trade center for an agricultural, mining, and livestock-raising area. It has also a summer tourist trade of visitors to Yellowstone National Park. 7,633 (1950).

Livingston. Township in NE New Jersey, in Essex County, on the Passaic River: residential suburban community. 9,932 (1950).

Livingston. Town in E Texas, county seat of Polk County, ab. 70 mi. NE of Houston, in an oil and lumber producing region: sawmills.

Livingston, Burton Edward. b. at Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 9, 1875—. American plant physiologist. He served as professor of plant physiology (1909–40) at Johns Hopkins. He was the inventor of the porous cup atmometer for measuring evaporation and an auto-irrigator for automatic control of soil moisture. Author of Role of Diffusion and Osmotic Pressure in Plants (1903); coauthor of Distribution of Vegetation in U.S. as Related to Climatic Conditions (1921).

Livingston, Edward. b. May 28, 1764; d. May 23, 1836. American politician and diplomat, U.S. secretary of state (1831–33) under Andrew Jackson; son of Robert R. Livingston (1718–75) and brother of Robert R. Livingston (1746–1813). He was graduated (1781) from the College of New Jersey (later Princeton), studied law privately, was admitted to the bar (1785), and was elected to Congress in 1794. Reëlected in 1796, he served in that body until 1801, when he became U.S. attorney for the District of New York and mayor of New York City. He resigned from these posts when it was discovered that one of his agents handling financial transactions had absconded with funds during Livingston's absence from office while ill during the yellow-fever epidemic of 1803. Livingston assigned his property to trustees to be disposed of in payment of his debts and set out (December, 1803) for New Orleans, where he resumed the practice of law. Thereafter he was occupied with reducing his debt to the U.S. government, which amounted to some 44,000 dollars, although a judgment recognized as correct by him placed it at 100,000 dollars. During the War of 1812 he served as chairman of the committee on public defense in Louisiana and at the battle of New Orleans acted as Andrew Jackson's aide-de-camp, interpreter, military secretary, and confidential adviser. He was elected (1820) to the Louisiana legislature and performed (1821–25) a notable task in revising the penal laws of the state. His approach was influenced by the ideas of Jeremy Bentham, and Livingston's accomplishment earned him international fame. He was elected (1822) to Congress and was twice reëlected to that body, discharging his debt (1826) to the U.S. government before ending his term in the House of Representatives. He was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1828, serving there until 1831, when he was appointed secretary of state in Jackson's cabinet. He resigned on May 29, 1833, to become minister to France. He served in that capacity until 1835, during which he handled the question of the claims made by American citizens under the treaty of July 4, 1831. See The Complete Works of Edward Livingston on Criminal Jurisprudence (2 vols., 1873) and Life of Edward Livingston, by C. H. Hunt (1864).

Livingston, Henry Brockholst. b. at New York, Nov. 25, 1757; d. at Washington, D.C., March 18, 1823. American jurist; son of William Livingston. He was a justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1806–23).

Livingston, John Henry. b. at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 30, 1746; d. at New Brunswick, N. J., Jan. 20, 1825. American clergyman of the Dutch Reformed Church, president of Rutgers College, New Brunswick.

Livingston, Peter Van Brugh. b. at Albany, N.Y., in October, 1710; d. at Elizabethtown, N.J., Dec. 28, 1792. American merchant; grandson of Robert Livingston (1654–1728) and brother of Philip Livingston and William Livingston. With his brother-in-law, he conducted a profitable privateering business. A supporter of the Revolutionary cause, he was presiding officer (1775) of the first provincial congress of New York.

Livingston, Philip. b. at Albany, N.Y., Jan. 15, 1716; d. at York, Pa., June 12, 1778. American politician, a signer of the Declaration of Independence as member of Congress from New York; grandson of Robert Livingston (1654–1723), and brother of P.V.B. Livingston and William Livingston.

Livingston, Robert. b. at Ancrum, Roxburghshire, Scotland, Dec. 13, 1654; d. Oct. 1, 1728. American public official, founder of the manor of Livingston (now in Dutchess and Columbia counties) in New York. He was appointed (1675) town clerk and secretary of the board of commissioners for Indian affairs at Albany, N.Y., and served as secretary for Indian affairs (1695–1728).

Livingston, Robert R. b. in August, 1718; d. Dec. 9, 1775. American jurist; grandson of Robert Livingston. He was a member (1758–68) of the assembly from Dutchess County, N.Y., was appointed (1759) judge of the admiralty court, and was named (1763) puisne judge of the supreme court of the colony. As chairman of the New York committee of correspondence he drafted the letter to the king opposing the Stamp Act.

Livingston, Robert R. b. at New York, Nov. 27, 1746; d. at Clermont, N.Y., Feb. 26, 1813. American statesman and jurist; son of Robert R. Livingston (1718–75) and brother of Edward Livingston. He was a member of the Continental Congress, was on the committee to draft the Declaration of Independence, and served as secretary of foreign affairs (1781–83). He was chancellor of New York state (1777–1801) and U.S. minister to France (1801–05). As chancellor of New York, he administered Washington's first oath of office as president (April 30, 1789). He negotiated the Louisiana Purchase in 1803, and was associated with Fulton in furthering steamboat navigation, the first successful ship being named for his home.

Livingston, William. b. in November, 1723; d. at Elizabethtown, N.J., July 25, 1790. American politician; grandson of Robert Livingston (1654–1728) and brother of P. V. B. Livingston and Philip Livingston. He became the champion of the Presbyterian and Whig faction in New York and carried on a long struggle against the De Lanceys, who represented the Anglican, Tory interests. He was governor of New Jersey (1776–90), and a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1787.

Livingstone (liv'ing.stŏn). Town in Northern Rhodesia, S central Africa, on the Zambezi River ab. 7 mi. from Victoria Falls and ab. 287 mi. NW of Bulawayo: the S port of entry for the colony and an important tourist center; until 1935 the capital of Northern Rhodesia. Named after David Livingstone, the town was established in 1905. Pop. 10,730, including 1,600 Europeans (1947).

Livingstone. Name given by the explorer Stanley to the Congo River (and proposed by him for the entire Congo region).

Livingstone, Alexander. [Titles: 7th Baron Livingstone, 1st Earl of Linlithgow.] d. April 2, 1622. Scottish statesman, a supporter of Mary, Queen of Scots.

Livingstone, Charles. b. at Blantyre, Lanarkshire, Scotland, Feb. 28, 1821; d. near Lagos, Nigeria, Oct. 28, 1873. English clergyman and missionary; brother of David Livingstone. He went with his brother to Africa, remaining with him until 1863. In 1864 he was appointed British consul at Fernando Póo.

Livingstone, David. b. at Blantyre, near Glasgow, March 19, 1813; d. at Chitambo, in central Africa, April 30, 1873. African missionary and explorer. After working in a cotton mill from the age of ten, he entered college in 1837 and received a medical degree in 1840. He left England in 1840 as medical missionary to Bechuanaland, south Africa. He discovered Lake Ngami in 1849, crossing the Kalahari Desert. In 1851 he traveled down the Zambezi River and in the next several years explored the water system of that part of the continent. In 1855 he again traveled down the Zambezi, from what is now Angola, discovering Victoria Falls, and reaching Quelimane in 1856. The result of these years of exploration was a general filling-in of the map of Africa from the Tropic of Capricorn northward. He returned to England in 1856 and published Missionary Travels and Researches in South Africa (1857). He resigned from the London Missionary Society and in 1858 left as head of a government expedition to the Zambezi. The party explored the Zambezi and Shire rivers and Lake Nyasa, which they discovered in September, 1859. Further exploration in the area revealed widespread slave trading, which Livingstone renewed his resolve to wipe out. On his return (1864) to England, he published Narrative of an Expedition to the Zanzibar and Its Tributaries (1865). Appointed British consul in Central Africa with the express aims of destroying the slave trade and determining the watershed of the Nyasa-Tanganyika region, he returned to Africa in 1866. He explored the Rovuma valley in 1866, the Chambezi in 1867, and lakes Tanganyika, Moero, and Bangweulu in 1867–68. Worn with fever, he spent some months at Ujiji early in 1869, navigated Lake Tanganyika, but was driven back by the Manyema and by slavers to Ujiji, where he arrived Oct. 13, 1871. On Oct. 18, the expedition headed by H. M. Stanley, sent out expressly to find Livingstone, reached Ujiji; the famous encounter of the two men began with Stanley's anticlimactic "Dr. Livingstone, I presume." Together they explored the northern part of Tanganyika; they parted (1872) in Unyamwezi. Livingstone returned to Lake Bangweulu, where in Chief Chitambo's village on the south shore he died of dysentery. His body was brought to England and he was buried in Westminster Abbey April 18, 1874. His journals covering the years 1866–73 were published as Last Journals of David Livingstone in Central Africa (1874). Livingstone's example was followed by many missionary explorers and he may be said to have opened up the African continent. In addition to his exploration, he was influential in reducing the slave trade appreciably.

Livingstone, Fort. Old frontier post in W Manitoba, Canada, near the present town of Swan River. It was the capital of North West Territories from 1875 to 1877.

Living Temple, The. Poem in The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table (1858) by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Livinus (li.vī'nus), Saint. [Also, Lebwin.] b. in Ireland; d. c650. Roman Catholic ecclesiastic. Ordained by Saint Augustine of Canterbury, he went as a missionary bishop to Flanders, where he was martyred by the pagans.

Livius (liv'i.us), Titus. Latin name of Livy.

Livius Andronicus (an.drō.nī'kus, an.dron'i.kus), Lucius. b. at Tarentum, a Greek colony in Italy, c284 B.C.; d. c204 B.C. Early Roman dramatic poet and actor. A manumitted slave, he earned his living as a teacher of Latin and Greek. For his pupils' use he translated the Odyssey into Latin verse. His plays, also, were translated from the Greek.

Livius Drusus (drō'sus), Marcus. See Drusus, Marcus Livius.

Livland (lēf'länt). German name of Livonia, Russia.

Livny (lēv'ni). Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Orel oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, C Russia, on the Sosna River ab. 75 mi. SE of Orel: food-processing center. 15,400 (1936).

Livonia (li.vō'ni.ą). City in SE Michigan, in Wayne County, a western residential suburb of Detroit. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 8,728 (1940), 17,534 (1950).

Livonia. [Also: Lieflan̈d, Livonie; German, Livland.] Former guberniya (government) of Russia, one of the Baltic provinces. The capital was Riga. It was bounded by Estonia on the N, Lake Peipus, Pskov, and Vitebsk on the E, Courland (separated by the Dvina River) on the S, and the Gulf of Riga on the W. The island of Saaremaa (or Ösel) belonged to it. Livonia was the nucleus of the dominions of the Livonian (Sword-Bearer) Knights, who began their settlements in 1201. In 1237 they united with the Teutonic Order. The Prussian and Livonian Knights were separated in 1521. After the dissolution of the order (1558–61) Livonia was for a short time a kingdom. After some changes it became Polish in 1582, passed to Sweden in 1660 (having been conquered by Sweden in 1621–25), and was annexed to Russia in 1721. After World War I it was divided between Latvia and Estonia. Area, ab. 17,070 sq. mi.

Livonians (li.vō'ni.ąnz). [Also, Livs.] Ancient people inhabiting the Baltic shores in the 13th century, descendants of a common Finnic ancestral group, along with the Estonians and Finns. They were conquered, Christianized, and reduced to servitude in the 13th century by the German Livonian Knights. Their language, Livonian, is now practically extinct.

Livorno (lē.vōr'nō). [English and German, Leghorn.] Province in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Tuscany. Capital, Leghorn (Livorno); area, ab. 471 sq. mi.; pop. 249,468 (1936).

Livorno. Italian name of Leghorn, city.

Livourne. French name of Leghorn, city.

Livramento (lē.vrą.mān'tō). [Full name, Santa Anna do Livramento.] City in S Brazil, in the state of Rio Grande do Sul, on the Uruguayan border: livestock, meat-packing, and canning industries. 29,906 (1950).

Livry-Gargan (lē.vrē.gär.gäⁿ). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, E of Paris, in the direction of Château-Thierry. It belongs to the metropolitan region of Paris and has metalworking and other industries. 20,698 (1946).

Livs (livz). See Livonians.

Livy (liv'i). [Latin name, Titus Livius.] b. at Patavium (Padua), 59 B.C.; d. there, 17 A.D. Roman historian, the most important prose writer of the Augustan age. He wrote a comprehensive history of Rome, from the founding of the city to the death (9 B.C.) of Drusus, in 142 books, of which only 35 are extant (1–10 and 21–45), although the content of the lost books (except for two) is known through epitomes, and also several philosophical dialogues and a work on rhetorical training. He spent the greater part of his life (over 40 years of which were given to his history) at Rome.

Lixourion (lēk.sö'rē.ôn). See Lexourion.

Lixus (lik'sus). See under Larache.

Li Yüan-hung (lē' yü.än'húng'). b. at Huangpei, Hupei, China, 1864; d. at Tientsin, China, 1928. Chinese military leader who because of his part in overthrowing (1911) the Manchu dynasty became (1912) vice-president of the Republic. He succeeded (1916) Yüan Shih-k'ai as president but was forced out (1917) by the abortive Manchu restoration. He reassumed (1922–23) the presidency but was forced (1923) to go into retirement.

Liza of Lambeth (lī'zą; lam'bęth). Novel by W. Somerset Maugham, published in 1897. His first novel, it draws upon the author's early experiences as a medical student in London. The work deals with slum life in that city.

Lizard (liz'ąrd), the. [Also: Lizard Head; Latin, Promontorium Damnonium.] Peninsula in SW England, in Cornwall, ab. 15 mi. SW of Falmouth. It terminates in Lizard Point, the southernmost point of England (height, 186 ft.).

Lizardi (lē.sär'ᵺē), José Joaquín Fernández de. See Fernández de Lizardi, José Joaquín.

Lizars (li.zärz'), John. b. at Edinburgh, c1787; d. May 21, 1860. Scottish surgeon, noted for the introduction of the operation for the removal of the upper jaw.

Lizzie Hexam (liz'i hek'sąm). See Hexam, Lizzie.

Ljubljana (lyö'blyä.nä). [Also: Ljubliana, Lyublyana; German, Laibach, Laybach; Italian, Lubiana; Latin, Emona.] City in NW Yugoslavia, the capital of the federative unit of Slovenia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Dravska, situated on a plain on the Ljubljanica River (a tributary of the Sava), near the Sava. On the right bank of the Ljubljanica River is the old city, with its castle, the Church of Saint Nicholas, and the Church of the German Order. In the new city are the University of Slovenia, various technical schools, and theaters. The city is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishopric. There are textile, tobacco, machinery, metal, leather, and ceramic industries. Iron ore is mined in the vicinity. The city was founded by the Romans; it was settled by Slovenes in the 6th century; later, it attracted German colonists. It belonged to the duchy of Carinthia, later to the kingdom of Bohemia, and after 1276 came under Hapsburg rule (interrupted only from 1809 to 1813, when the town was the capital of the Illyrian Provinces of France). In the 19th century it was the capital of the Austrian crownland of Carniola. The International Congress of Laibach took place here in 1821. For many decades, the city was the center of the Slovenian national movement. It was incorporated into the kingdom of Yugoslavia in 1919. During World War II, it was under German occupation. 59,767 (1931); 120,944 (1948).

Llameos (lya.mā'ōs). See Yameos.

Llanberis (lan.ber'is). Town and civil parish in N Wales, in Caernarvonshire, at the S end of Llyn (or Lake) Padarn, at the base of Snowdon, ab. 7 mi. E of Caernarvon, ab. 255 mi. NW of London by rail. Llanberis is a tourist center from which a mountain railway starts to the top of Snowdon (elevation, 3,560 ft.). 2,370 (1931).

Llandaff (lan'daf, lan.daf'). Former city, now a northwestern ward of Cardiff, in S Wales, in Glamorganshire, on the river Taff ab. 150 mi. W of London by rail. Llandaff is said to be the oldest episcopal see in Great Britain, dating from the 6th century. The cathedral, begun in the 12th century, is a small building, representing in its construction all the stages of medieval architecture. It was badly damaged by World War II bombing, but is being restored. 27,762 (1931).

Llandaff, Viscount. Title of Matthews, Henry.

Llandudno (lan.dud'nō, -did'-). Urban district and seaside resort in N Wales, in Caernarvonshire, on Llandudno Bay (an embayment of the Irish Sea), ab. 227 mi. NW of London by rail. Llandudno is perhaps the leading seaside resort on the North Wales coast and has a rapidly growing residential section. 16,712 (1951).

Llanelly (la.nel'i). Municipal borough, seaport, and industrial center in S Wales, in Carmarthenshire, on Burry Inlet (an inlet of Carmarthen Bay), ab. 10 mi. NW of Swansea, ab. 200 mi. W of London by rail. The town exports coal, and there are steel mills here, manufacturing steel bar-stock and tin-plate; there are also chemical and copper-smelting industries. 34,329 (1951).

Llanelwy (la.nel'wi). Former name of St. Asaph.

Llanerch (lan'ėrk). Unincorporated suburban community in SE Pennsylvania, in Delaware County, W of Philadelphia. 4,375 (1950).

Llaneros (yä.nä'rōz). Collective term for a number of North American Indian tribes, of diverse linguistic families, formerly inhabiting the plains of W Texas and E New Mexico. The word itself means "plain-dweller."

Llanes (lyä'nās). Commune in NW Spain, in the province of Oviedo, on the Bay of Biscay ab. 60 mi. E of Oviedo: fisheries, fish-salting and fish-canning establishments. The Gothic cathedral dates from the 14th century. 20,412 (1940).

Llangollen (lan.gol'ẹn). Urban district and market town in N Wales, in Denbighshire, on the river Dee ab. 9 mi. SW of Wrexham, ab. 185 mi. NW of London by rail. Llangollen is an inland holiday resort, noted for its salmon and trout fishing. It has manufactures of flannels. Plas Newydd ("New Place"), the famous timbered house of the "Ladies of Llangollen," now houses the Welsh national theater. 2,997 (est. 1948).

Llano (lan'ō). Town in C Texas, county seat of Llano County, NW of Austin. 2,954 (1950).

Llano (lyä'nō), Gonzalo Queipo de. See Queipo de Llano, Gonzalo.

Llano Estacado (lan'ō es.tạ.kä'dō). [English, Staked Plain.] Extensive flat high plain in NW Texas and SE New Mexico. The name is derived from lines of stakes which were set up to guide travelers, or, according to another account, from the stalks of a yucca plant resembling stakes. The Llano Estacado is remarkable for its flat and featureless appearance. It was originally a grassland, a southern part of the Great Plains. The chief occupation of the region is cattle ranching, though cotton farming has spread to the plain in recent decades. Area, ab. 30,000 sq. mi.

Llanos (yä'nōs). [Eng. trans., "Plains" or "Flat Fields."] Name given in many parts of Spanish America to large tracts of open grassland. Specifically, as a proper name, the Llanos del Orinoco or de Venezuela, in C Venezuela and E Colombia. They cover nearly all the area in the basin of the Orinoco River W of its delta, between the Eastern Andes and the Guiana Highlands, and as far S as the Guaviare, a tributary of the Orinoco River. Most of the Llanos is a flat lowland plain, but some parts of it are varied with table-topped hills a few hundred feet high. During the rainy season large areas along the streams are flooded. The chief industry of the Llanos is grazing, immense herds of cattle being kept in a nearly wild state. Total area, ab. 150,000 sq. mi.

Llanquihue (yäng.kē'wā). Province in S Chile. Capital, Puerto Montt; area, ab. 7,107 sq. mi.; pop. 118,660 (est. 1950).

Llanquihue, Lake. Lake in C Chile, in Osorno and Llanquihue provinces. Area, ab. 225 sq. mi.

Lleras Camargo (yā'räs kä.mär'gō), Alberto. b. at Bogotá, Colombia, July 3, 1906—. Colombian statesman, president (1945–46) of Colombia, and director general (1947 et seq.) of the Pan American Union, Washington, D.C.

Lleu (le'ö). [Also, Llew.] In Brythonic mythology, a son of Gwydion and Arianrhod, regarded as a sun god. He was one of twin boys, of whom the other plunged into the sea and swam off at birth. Arianrhod sought to get rid of Lleu also, because his existence disproved her virginity. She put on him the curses of namelessness, wifelessness, and the fate never to bear arms. Gwydion protected him, however, tricked Arianrhod into naming and arming him herself, and then, with the help of a magician, created a wife for Lleu out of flowers. Lleu is equated to the Old Irish sun god, Lug; the two names are cognate.

Llewellin (lö.el'in), John Jestyn. [Title, 1st Baron Llewellin of Upton.] b. at Chevening, Kent, England, Feb. 6, 1893—. English politician and lawyer. He was parliamentary secretary to the minister of supply (1939–40), to the minister of aircraft production (1940–41), and to the minister of war transport (1941–42). He served as president (1942) of the Board of Trade, and as minister of aircraft production (February–November, 1942), of supply (1942–43) at Washington, and of food (1943–45).

Llewellyn (lö.el'in), Richard. [Pen name of Richard David Vivian Llewellyn Lloyd.] English writer. He served five years in the army, which he left in 1931, and has been employed (1931 et seq.) in the production of motion pictures. During World War II, he was an officer in the Welsh Guards. He published the mystery play Poison Pen (1938). His novels include How Green Was My Valley (1940; scenarized in 1941), None But the Lonely Heart (1943), and A Few Flowers for Shiner (1947).

Llewellyn, Sir William. b. in Gloucestershire, England, 1860; d. Jan. 29, 1941. English portrait painter. In 1918 he became a member of the Royal Academy; he was also a trustee of the National Gallery, the British Museum, the National Portrait Gallery, and the Sloane Museum.

Llewelyn (or Llywelyn) ab Gruffydd (lö.el'in äb gri'fiтн). d. 1282. Prince of North Wales (1246–82); nephew of David II, whom he succeeded. After Henry III had made his son (later to rule as Edward I) Prince of Wales, the advances of royal power into Llewelyn's realm caused him to revolt against the king, his overlord. He supported the English barons under Simon de Montfort against Henry III, and was defeated with them at Evesham in 1265, but was recognized as lord of Wales in the Treaty of Shrewsbury. He refused to do homage to Edward I, whereupon the latter subdued Wales in 1277 and forced Llewelyn to admit that he held the land as a subject of the English king. He subsequently revolted, and fell in battle against the Mortimers.

Lleyn (līn). Peninsula in N Wales, in Caernarvonshire. It projects SW from the Welsh mainland between Caenarvon Bay and Cardigan Bay. Length, ab. 28 mi.; width, ab. 7 mi.

Llorente (lyō.ren'tā), Juan Antonio. b. near Calahorra, in Aragon, Spain, March 30, 1756; d. at Madrid, Feb. 5, 1823. Spanish historian. He was a priest, though holding rationalistic views, and from 1789 to 1801 was general secretary of the Inquisition. Under Joseph Bonaparte he received charge of the confiscated property of the Inquisition and the religious orders, and in 1809 was ordered to examine the archives of the Inquisition and write its history. When the French were driven out of Spain he retired with them to Paris, where his history of the Inquisition was published (1815–18). It was strongly condemned by the Roman Catholic authorities. In 1822 he published a French edition of the principal works of Las Casas, with a biography; and the same year a work on the popes, which was condemned by the government. He was thereupon ordered to leave Paris. He published various other works, principally on Spanish history.

Llorente y Matos (lyō.ren'tā ē mä'tōs), Vicente. b. 1857; d. 1916. Spanish bacteriologist. He founded (1894) the Instituto Llorente de Microbiológia y Seroterapia. The first in Spain to perform (1896–97) intubation of the larynx, he analyzed (1904) 3,500 cases of diphtheria, and with Alexis Carrel carried out (1913) experimental work on tissue cultivation at the Rockefeller Institute, New York.

Lloyd (loid), Charles. b. at Birmingham, England, Feb. 12, 1775; d. at Chaillot, near Versailles, France, Jan. 16, 1839. English poet, a friend and pupil of Coleridge, with whom he lived for some time, and also a friend of Lamb. He became insane (c1815) and died in a madhouse.

Lloyd, David. b. at Manafon, Montgomeryshire, Wales, c1656; d. at Chester, Pa., April 6, 1731. American political leader and lawyer. He was attorney general (1686–1700) and chief justice (1717–31) of Pennsylvania. As leader (1703 et seq.) of the democratic or antiproprietary party, he opposed William Penn and was the author (1704) of the list of grievances sent to him.

Lloyd, Edward. fl. early 18th century. Keeper of a coffee house in Tower Street, London, and later (1692) of "Lloyd's Coffee House" in Lombard Street. His coffee house became the center of ship brokerage and marine insurance. He published a paper, Lloyd's News (September, 1696–February, 1697), which was revived as Lloyd's List (1726), containing shipping and commercial news. From him the association and the corporation now known as Lloyd's were named.

Lloyd, Edward. b. at Thornton Heath, Surrey, England Feb. 16, 1815; d. at Westminster, London, April 8, 1890. London publisher. He founded (1842) Lloyd's Illustrated London Newspaper, and was the proprietor (1876 et seq.) of the Daily Chronicle.

Lloyd, Edward. b. at London, March 7, 1845; d. at Worthing, Sussex, England, March 31, 1927. English tenor singer. He made his first great success in 1871, at the Gloucester festival, singing in Bach's Saint Matthew Passion. He was successful in oratorio and concert music.

Lloyd, Harold (Clayton). b. at Burchard, Neb., April 20, 1894—. American actor. He worked as an extra (c1913) for the Edison Company at San Diego, and soon began to appear in one-reel comedies made by Hal Roach, the noted "Lonesome Luke" comedies. He rose to stardom as the bespectacled, shy young man always in hair-raising difficulties. Lloyd made the first full-length comedy motion picture, Grandma's Boy (1922); his other feature comedies include Safety Last, Why Worry?, The Freshman, and Girl Shy, and, after the arrival of talking pictures, Feet First, The Cat's Paw, The Milky Way, and Mad Wednesday. He founded the Harold Lloyd Corporation (1923) and produced several films.

Lloyd, Henry. b. in Merionethshire, Wales, c1720; d. at Huy, Belgium, June 19, 1783. Welsh soldier of fortune.

Lloyd, Henry Demarest. b. at New York, May 1, 1847; d. Sept. 28, 1903. American writer on social problems, one of the first of the muckrakers. He helped organize (1893) the Milwaukee streetcar workers, and defended Debs for the Pullman strike of 1894. His books include A Strike of Millionaires against Miners (1890), Wealth against Commonwealth (1894), Man, the Social Creator (1906), and A Sovereign People (1907).

Lloyd, Humphrey. b. at Dublin, April 16, 1800; d. there, Jan. 17, 1881. British scientist. He is noted for his researches in optics and magnetism, and particularly for his experimental discovery of conical refraction in biaxial crystals, the existence of which had been theoretically determined by Sir W. R. Hamilton. His works include A Treatise on Light and Vision (1831), Elementary Treatise on the Wave Theory of Light (1857), Treatise on Magnetism, General and Terrestrial (1874), and others.

Lloyd, Morton Githens. b. at Beverly, N.J., Sept. 10, 1874; d. April 26, 1941. American electrical engineer. He was electrical engineer and chief (1917 et seq.) of the safety codes section at the National Bureau of Standards.

Lloyd, North German. See North German Lloyd.

Lloyd, Richard David Vivian Llewellyn. See Llewellyn, Richard.

Lloyd, Robert. b. at Westminster, London, 1733; d. in the Fleet Prison, London, Dec. 15, 1764. British poet. He wrote The Actor: a Poetical Epistle (1760), and others. He was imprisoned for debt in 1763.

Lloyd, William. b. at Tilehurst, Berkshire, England, Aug. 18, 1627; d. at Hartlebury Castle, Worcestershire, England, Aug. 30, 1717. English prelate, bishop successively of St. Asaph (1680), Lichfield and Coventry (1692), and Worcester (1700). He was one of the seven bishops tried on the charge of publishing a seditious libel against the king for refusing to have the Declaration of Indulgence read, and was acquitted June 29, 1688. He was an ardent supporter of the revolution that brought William and Mary to the throne.

Lloyd Barrage. See Sukkur Barrage.

Lloyd George (loid' jôrj'), David. [Title, 1st Earl of Dwyfor.] b. at Manchester, England, Jan. 17, 1863; d. at Llanystumdwy, Wales, March 26, 1945. British Liberal statesman, prime minister (1916–22). He became a solicitor in 1884 and in 1890 was elected for the Caernarvon district to the House of Commons, in which he held a seat for 54 years. He became a leading adversary of established interests, a leader of the fight for Welsh national interests, and was a vociferous opponent of the Boer War. As president of the Board of Trade in Campbell-Bannerman's cabinet (1905–08), he was the outstanding member of the ministry, among other things settling the railway strike of 1906. He became (1908) chancellor of the exchequer in Asquith's cabinet and sponsored the so-called People's Budget of 1909, which relied for its income largely on taxation of wealth and monopoly, thus bringing on one of the deepest constitutional crises in English history. This bill, passed by Commons after a bitter fight, was rejected (Nov. 30, 1909) by the House of Lords. A general election was called in January, 1910, and the Liberals were returned, weakened but still a majority with the aid of the Irish Nationalists. Commons then passed a bill to restrict the veto power of the lords; the upper house made an alternative proposal and thus forced another general election (December, 1910). The House of Lords refused to give in, and only the threat to create a sufficient number of peers to carry the bill forced them to surrender (August, 1911); the veto power of the House of Lords was broken. In 1911, Lloyd George sponsored bills providing for insurance protection against illness and unemployment. With the outbreak of World War I, he first established government credit for the long, expensive war ahead and then (July, 1915) became minister of munitions, a newly created post, in the coalition cabinet under Asquith. After Kitchener's death, he took over (July, 1916) the post of secretary of state for war. An internal cabinet struggle now ensued between Asquith and Lloyd George, the latter attempting to reduce the number of members in the inner war cabinet in order to run the war more efficiently. Asquith resigned and Lloyd George became premier (Dec. 7, 1916). The defeat of Russia in 1917 and the early 1918 offensive of the Germans forced him to throw his reserves into the fight on the Western Front and to call for immediate U.S. help; the appeal brought over (April–May, 1918) two million American soldiers. He supported Ferdinand Foch as supreme Allied commander and gave him the full support of Britain. The war over, he called the Khaki Election of December, 1918, in which the coalition won a clear majority. At the Versailles peace conference, he was one of the Big Four (with Wilson, Clemenceau, and Orlando) and acted as mediator between the two former, to such an extent that he was accused in the press in England of compromising British aims. His postwar ministry was marked by several strikes and the "Black and Tan" trouble in Ireland, but he was able to mediate the strikes and to bring about acceptance of the treaty establishing the Irish Free State. But the partition of Ireland into Free State and Northern Ireland and trouble with the Turks over their repudiation of the Treaty of Sèvres led to the withdrawal of the Conservatives from the coalition and on Oct. 22, 1922, Lloyd George resigned as prime minister. He remained in Commons as a consistent leader of the Liberal viewpoint until he was raised to the peerage a short time before his death. He was the author of War Memoirs (6 vols., 1933–36) and The Truth About the Peace Treaty (2 vols., 1938).

Lloyd-Greame (loid'grām'), Philip. See Swinton, 1st Viscount.

Lloyd's (loidz). Association at the Royal Exchange, London, comprising underwriters, merchants, shipowners, and brokers, for the furtherance of commerce, especially for marine insurance and the publication of shipping news. It originated in meetings at Lloyd's Coffee House about 1688. It publishes Lloyd's List.

Lloyd's, Austrian. Former mercantile company at Trieste, founded in 1833 for the purpose of promoting Austrian commerce. It comprised three sections: insurance; steamship lines in the Mediterranean, Black, and Red seas, and elsewhere; and publication of periodicals.

Lloyd's List. Periodical containing shipping intelligence, issued by Lloyd's (London) since 1726. It has been published daily since 1800.

Lluchmayor (lyōch.mä.yōr'). [Also, Llummayor.] Town in the Balearic Islands, in the Spanish province of Baleares, on the island of Majorca: livestock markets; small handicraft industries. 10,249 (1940).

Llullaillaco (yō.yī.yä'kō). Volcanic mountain in N Chile, on the border of Argentina. Elevation, ab. 22,057 ft.

Llummayor (lyōm.mä.yōr'). See Lluchmayor.

Llwchwr (lō'ċhůr). [Also, Loughor.] Urban district in S Wales, in Glamorganshire, ab. 6 mi. NW of Swansea. It is the former Swansea rural district. 25,737 (1951).

Llyr (lēr). In Brythonic mythology, the personification of the sea, and father of Bran (who was interpreted as a kind of sea deity) and of Manawydan, the old Brythonic sea god. Llyr is cognate with the genetive (Lir) of Ler, father of the Old Irish sea god, Manannan.

Llywarch Hen (li.wärċh' hen'). [Eng. trans., Llywarch the Old.] fl. in the 6th century. British bard and chieftain.

Llywelyn ab Gruffydd (lō.el'in äb grif'iтн). See Llewelyn (or Llywelyn) ab Gruffydd.

Loa (lō'ä). River in N Chile, in Antofagasta and Tarapacá provinces, flowing SW to the Pacific Ocean. It is the only river which traverses the Atacama Desert. It supplies water for consumption and for oasis irrigation, and has been used in hydroelectric power development. Length, ab. 275 mi.

Loadstone (lōd'stōn), Lady. The "magnetic lady" in Ben Jonson's play of that name.

Loaisa or Loaysa (lō.ī'sä), García Jofre de. b. at Placencia, Cáceres, Spain, c1485; d. July 30, 1526. Spanish sea captain.

Loanda (lō.an'dą; Portuguese, lwun'dą). See Luanda.

Loango (lō.äŋ'gō). Region on the W coast of Africa, in the neighborhood of the mouth of the Congo River. It is now divided between the Belgian Congo, Angola (Portuguese), and French Equatorial Africa.

Loango. Seaport in SW French Equatorial Africa, in Gabon territory, a few miles N of Pointe Noire, near the border of Cabinda. In recent years it has been surpassed as a port by Pointe Noire because of the latter's railway connections. Pop. ab. 10,000.

Loano (lō.ä'nō). Village in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Liguria, in the province of Savona, on the coast ab. 39 mi. SW of Genoa. Here, Nov. 23–24, 1795, the French under Schérer defeated the Austrians. The victory was mainly due to Masséna, who commanded the right wing. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II.

Loathly Lady. [In Arthurian legend, Lady Hideous.] Hideous, loathsome, repulsive woman of European folklore, traditional ballad, and medieval romance, who is transformed into one of great beauty and youth by a kiss or by the act of love. Chaucer's Wife of Bath's Tale is this story; Gower's Confessio Amantis also tells it. The English ballad The Marriage of Sir Gawayne is almost the same story, except that here King Arthur promises Sir Gawayne in marriage to the foul hag in return for her help. On being faced with the Loathly Lady, Gawayne does not shrink, but goes to bed with her. She informs him that the loathsomeness is a bewitchment, and gives him his choice of having her remain as she is, ugly, old, and faithful, or become young and beautiful. He leaves the choice to her, with the result that he gets the full reward: a young and beautiful wife who is also faithful. The bewitched Loathly Lady unbewitched by the true love of her lover is also the theme of the Scottish popular ballad Kemp Owyne. The theme is also found in Icelandic saga, and in the Old Irish legends of the kings. In Arthurian romance the Loathly Lady has been called Lady Hideous.

Loaysa (lō.ī'sä), García Jofre de. See Loaisa or Loaysa, García Jofre de.

Loayza (lō.ī'thä) or Loaysa (lō.ī'sä), Geronymo de. b. at Truxillo, Estremadura, Spain, c1500; d. at Lima, Peru, Oct. 25, 1575. Spanish Dominican ecclesiastic.

Lobachevsky (lo.bä.chef'ski), Nikolaus Ivanovich. b. at Makariev, Russia, Nov. 2, 1793; d. at Kazan, Russia, Feb. 24, 1856. Russian mathematician, the founder of the non-Euclidean geometry. He was professor at Kazan (1814 et seq.). He built a geometry about a system of postulates that included the concept that more than one parallel to a given line could be drawn through a point; this geometry was first announced in 1826 and built upon in succeeding years. Among Lobachevsky's books are Geometrische Untersuchungen zur Theorie der Parallellinien (1840) and Pangéométrie (1855).

Lobato (lō.bä'tō), José Bento Monteiro. b. at Taubaté, Brazil, April 18, 1882; d. at São Paulo, Brazil, July 4, 1948. Brazilian novelist, short-story writer, and author of juvenile books. In his best-known book, Urupês (1918), he created the character of Jeca Tatú, now famous as the typical figure of the man of the Brazilian interior.

Lobau (lō'bou). Island in the Danube River, in E Austria, E of the city of Vienna. It was temporarily occupied by the French army after the battle of Aspern and Essling in 1809. Length, ab. 3 mi.

Löbau (lē'bou). [Polish, Lubawa.] Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, ab. 41 mi. E of Dresden. Before World War II it had textile, shoe, paper, button, rubber, machinery, and foodstuff industries. It has churches of the 14th and 15th centuries, and an 18th-century Rathaus (town hall) in the baroque style. 15,361 (1946).

Lobau (lo.bō), Comte de. [Title of Georges Mouton.] b. at Phalsbourg, in Lorraine, France, Feb. 21, 1770; d. at Paris, Nov. 27, 1838. French marshal. He entered the army in 1792, became aide-de-camp to Napoleon in 1805, and in 1809 rendered important service at Lobau, for which he received the title of Comte de Lobau. He took part in the Russian campaign in 1812, and fought at Lützen and Bautzen in 1813, and at Waterloo in 1815. During the July revolution in 1830 he favored the cause of Louis Philippe, who made him a marshal of France in 1831.

Lobe (lō'bę), Johann Christian. b. at Weimar, Germany, May 30, 1797; d. at Leipzig, Germany, July 27, 1881. German composer and musicologist. His compositions include operas, symphonies, chamber works, and overtures.

Löbe (lē'bę), Paul. b. at Liegnitz, Germany (now Legnice, Poland), Dec. 14, 1875—. German politician. A Social Democratic journalist (1899 et seq.), he was a member (1905–19) of the Breslau city council. He was vice-president of the Weimar constitutional assembly (1919–20), and a member (1920–32) of the Reichstag and its president (1924–32). He again became active in German politics after 1945, and took over the editorship of the Social Democratic Party paper at Berlin.

Lobedu (lō.bā'dō). [Also: Balobedu, Lovedu, Lovhedu, Lovelu.] Bantu-speaking people of the E Sotho group in S Africa, inhabiting NE Transvaal, in the Union of South Africa. Their population is estimated at ab. 50,000 (by E. J. and J. D. Krige, The Realm of a Rain Queen, 1943). They are ruled by a queen, who serves also as rain maker. They practice hoe agriculture and cattle herding, with the cattle complex. Their principal food is maize.

Lobeira (lō.bā'rą) or Loveira (lō.vā'rą), Vasco de. b. at Oporto, Portugal, about the middle of the 14th century; d. at Elvas, Portugal, c1403. Portuguese writer and soldier, a reputed author of the famous romance Amadis of Gaul.

Lobengula (lō.beng.gū'lą, lō.beŋg'gū.lą). b. c1833; d. Jan. 23, 1894. King of the Matabele (1870–94). He was long feared as a powerful warrior and opponent of European influence in his kingdom, but finally the British South African Company succeeded in obtaining from him, in exchange for improved firearms and ammunition, permission to settle in a part of his domain and to exploit its gold mines. The company thereupon built Fort Salisbury and supplied it well with men, artillery, ammunition, and provisions, and soon clashed with the Matabele. In the war which ensued, in 1893, the Matabele tribesmen were mowed down by Maxim guns and dispersed by cavalry in several engagements. A decisive battle (in which 500 Matabele and only one white man fell) was fought on October 23, some 30 miles from Bulawayo, Lobengula's capital. The latter was taken without further resistance and the king pursued as a fugitive.

Loberu (lō.bā′rō). See Lobi.

Lobgesang (lōp′gə.zäng). [Eng. trans., "Hymn of Praise."] Orchestral cantata by Felix Mendelssohn, commissioned to be written for the town council of Leipzig as part of a commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the invention of movable type; first sung at Leipzig on June 25, 1850.

Lobi (lō′bē). [Also, Loberu.] Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting a region in E Ivory Coast. Their population is estimated at ab. 70,000 (by H. Labouret, Les Tribus du Rameau Lobi, 1931). They have exogamous matrilineal clans, and chiefs were lacking before the establishment of French rule. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal food is millet. They have adopted Mohammedanism.

Lobito (lō.bē′tō, lō.bē′tö). Town and seaport in Benguela province, Angola, in SW Africa. It has come to the fore since the completion of the Benguela Railway linking it with the rich mining region of the Katanga, Belgian Congo. It is considered one of the best ports on the W African coast. Pop. 17,000 (1946), including 2,000 Europeans.

Lobley (lob′li), John Hodgson. b. at Huddersfield, England, Nov. 28, 1878—. English painter of portraits, landscapes, and figure subjects, an official artist during the last part of World War I. Among his paintings, examples of which are in museums and in military hospitals, are Wounded Arriving at Charing Cross (Imperial War Museum) and The Duke of Wellington's West Riding Regiment Holding the Line at Ypres (Huddersfield).

Lob Nor (lôp′ nôr′). [Also, Lop Nor.] Salt lake in China, in the province of Sinkiang, the terminal lake for the Tarim River. It has no outlet. Two thousand years ago it occupied an area at ab. 90° E. and 41° N., with the now ruined trade city of Loulan on its banks. The river was diverted southward and a new lake developed, leaving the original lake a salt flat. The Tarim has now returned to its earlier course and the original site of Lob Nor is again a lake. The alternation from basin to basin appears to have been the result of sedimentation and of removal of dry silt by the wind. Elevation, ab. 2,550 ft.

Lobo (lō′bō), Francisco Rodrigues. b. at Leiria, Portugal, c1580; drowned in the Tagus (Tejo) River, Portugal, c1622. Portuguese poet and prose writer, generally considered the finest Portuguese lyric poet of the 17th century. His chief works were Églogas (1605), the epic poem O Condestabre (1610); the dialogues Corte na aldeia e noites de inverno (1619), his masterpiece in prose; and his three pastoral novels, A Primavera (1601), Pastor peregrino (1608), and O Desenganado (1614).

Lobo, Jerônimo. b. at Lisbon, Portugal, c1593; d. there, Jan. 29, 1678. Portuguese Jesuit, missionary in Ethiopia.

Lobos Islands (lō′bōs). [Also, Seal Islands.] Group of small islands in the Pacific Ocean, off the NW coast of Peru. They are noted for guano deposits.

Lobositz (lō′bō.zits). German name of Lovosice.

L'Oca del Cairo (lō′kä del kī′rō). See Oca del Cairo, L'.

Locana Valley (lō.kä′nä). See under Cuorgnè.

Locarno (lō.kär′nō). [German, Luggarus.] Town in S Switzerland, in the canton of Ticino, on Lago Maggiore at the mouth of the Maggia River. It has an Italian-speaking population and Italian architecture. It belonged to the Duchy of Milan from 1342, and became part of Switzerland in 1531. Pop. 6,760 (1941).

Locarno, Lake of. See under Maggiore, Lago.

Locarno Pact. Name given to the culminating agreement of a conference (Oct. 5–16, 1925) between Germany, France, Great Britain, Belgium, and Italy which sought to preclude aggression in the Rhineland by guaranteeing the Franco-German and Belgo-German frontiers, as well as the continued demilitarization of the Rhineland. Signed at Locarno on Oct. 16, 1925, the treaty was largely the result of German Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann's initiative and of the British desire to contribute to French security after the failure of the Geneva Protocol of 1924. The treaty paved the way for Germany's entrance into the League of Nations, as well as for the removal of Allied troops from Germany in subsequent years. The conference also produced arbitration treaties between Germany on one side and France, Belgium, Poland, and Czechoslovakia on the other, and treaties of mutual guarantee between France and Poland, and France and Czechoslovakia. The Rhineland agreement was invalidated by Hitler's renunciation of it and the remilitarization of the Rhineland on March 7, 1936.

Locatelli (lō.kä.tel′lē), Pietro. b. at Bergamo, Italy, 1693; d. at Amsterdam, Netherlands, April 1, 1764. Italian violinist and composer. He wrote sonatas, concerti grossi, trios, and caprices.

Loch (loch). Scottish word for "lake" or "arm of the sea": for entries not found immediately below see the distinguishing element of the name.

Loch (loch, lok), Henry Brougham. [Title, 1st Baron Loch of Drylaw.] b. in Scotland, May 23, 1827; d. at London, June 20, 1900. British colonial official. He served (1857) on the embassy staff in China, and with Sir Harry Smith Parkes conducted (1860) negotiations leading to surrender of the Taku forts. He was seized, imprisoned, and tortured by Chinese officials; the European troops in Peiping retaliated by burning the Summer Palace. He was governor (1863–82) of the Isle of Man, governor (1884–89) of Victoria, and governor (1889–95) of Cape Colony and high commissioner in South Africa, where he assisted in the expeditions which led to the annexation of Matabeleland and Mashonaland, and obtained (1894) the release of British subjects being held by the Boer government.

Lochaber (loch.ä′bėr, -ab′ėr). Mountainous district in N central Scotland, in Inverness-shire. It extends from SW to NE, S of Glen More nan Albin. It has an extensive hydroelectric power development.

Lochaber No More. Tune claimed by both Scotland and Ireland, of which some two or three versions are extant.

Loches (losh). Town in W central France, in the department of Indre-et-Loire, on the Indre River ab. 22 mi. SE of Tours. The castle, one of the most important medieval fortresses of France, has massive walls and towers. It includes the château royal, in Renaissance style, where many of the kings of France, from Charles VII to Louis XII, resided. The Chapel of Saint Ours dates from the 12th century. The town is a center for trade in wine and grain. 5,525 (1946).

Lochfyne (loch.fīn′). See Fyne, Loch.

Loch Garman (loch gär′mən). Irish name of Wexford.

Lochgelly (loch.gel′i). Police burgh in SE Scotland, in Fifeshire, ab. 7 mi. NE of Dunfermline, ab. 418 mi. N of London by rail: coal mining. 9,687 (est. 1948).

Lochgilphead (loch.gilp′hed). Burgh in SW Scotland, in Argyllshire, at the head of an arm of Loch Fyne. It is a resort and a small fishing port. 974 (1931).

Lochiel (loch.ēl′). See Cameron of Lochiel.

Lochiel's Warning. Poem by Thomas Campbell; so called from its subject, Donald Cameron of Lochiel.

Lochinvar (loch.in.vär′, lok′in.vär). Ballad in the poem Marmion by Sir Walter Scott; so called from the name of its hero, the young Lochinvar.

Lochleven (loch.lē′vən). See Leven, Loch.

Lochmoor (lok′mör). Former name of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Lochnagar (loch.nə.gär′). Mountain in E central Scotland, in Aberdeenshire, ab. 36 mi. NW of Dundee. 3,768 ft.

Lochner v. New York, 198 U.S. 45 (1905) (lok′nėr). U.S. Supreme Court decision declaring unconstitutional a New York law fixing maximum work-hours in bakeries on the ground that it impaired liberties guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment. The majority decision delivered by Justice Rufus W. Peckham stressed the right of free contract and effectively limited the exercise of the state police power in the social and economic realm. The case is notable for the dissenting opinion of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who declared: "The case is decided upon an economic theory which a large part of the country does not entertain. . . . The Fourteenth Amendment does not enact Mr. Herbert Spencer's Social Statics. . . . United States and state statutes and decisions cutting down the liberty to contract by way of combination are familiar to this court. . . . Some of these laws embody convictions or prejudices which judges are likely to share. Some may not. But a constitution is not intended to embody a particular economic theory, whether of paternalism and the organic relation of the citizen to the state or of laissez faire."

Lochy (loch'i), Loch. Lake in C Scotland, in Inverness-shire, in Glen More nan Albin (the Great Glen of Scotland). Elevation, ab. 93 ft.; length, ab. 9 mi.

Locke (lok), Alain LeRoy. b. at Philadelphia, Sept. 13, 1886—. American professor of philosophy and writer on Negro culture. He was a Rhodes scholar at Oxford (1907–10), and served as professor of philosophy (1917 et seq.) at Howard University. Author of Race Contacts and Interracial Relations (1916), The New Negro (1925), The Negro in America (1933), The Negro and His Music (1936), Negro Art—Past and Present (1937), When Peoples Meet—A Study in Race and Culture Contact (1941), and other books.

Locke, David Ross. [Pseudonym, Petroleum V. Nasby.] b. at Vestal, Broome County, N.Y., Sept. 20, 1833; d. Feb. 15, 1888. American political satirist, author of the "Nasby Letters," the first of which appeared (March 21, 1861) in the Findlay (Ohio) Jeffersonian. The assumed character Petroleum V. (for Vesuvius) Nasby was a caricature of the Copperhead and was represented in the form of a dissolute and hypocritical backwoods preacher. Locke's humorous style was based upon that made popular by Artemus Ward (Charles Farrar Browne). Locke became (1865) editor of the Toledo Blade. Author of The Nasby Papers (1864), The Morals of Abou Ben Adhem (1875), and The Demagogue (1891). He dramatized (1879) The Widow Bedott Papers in Widow Bedott, or a Hunt for a Husband.

Locke, John. b. at Wrington, Somersetshire, England, Aug. 29, 1632; d. at Oates, High Laver, Essex, England, Oct. 28, 1704. English philosopher. Upon graduating from Christ Church College, Oxford, he continued to live in the university town, where he was intermittently a lecturer on Greek and on rhetoric, and censor of moral philosophy. In December, 1665, he accompanied Sir Walter Vane as secretary of a mission to the elector of Brandenburg, and after his return to Oxford in January, 1666, he studied medicine, and even practiced it for a short while, but did not take a medical degree. In 1667 he became a member of the household of Baron Ashley, at first as a physician, later as a confidential agent. Ashley being one of the proprietors of Carolina, in 1669 Locke drew up his celebrated constitution for that colony. When Ashley, in 1672, was created 1st Earl of Shaftesbury and became Lord Chancellor of the realm, Locke was appointed secretary of presentations, and the following year was made secretary of the Board of Trade. After Shaftesbury's fall from power in 1675, Locke went to France, remaining until 1679 and enjoying the company of that country's philosophers and scientists. After his return to England he fell under the suspicion of the government as a supposed radical, and found it necessary to take refuge in Holland, where he remained until 1689. The accession of William of Orange to the English throne led to Locke's return and to his appointment as a commissioner of appeals, but after 1691 he was a member of the household of Sir Francis Masham at High Laver in Essex. Locke's most famous and influential work, the Essay Concerning Human Understanding, published in 1690, was followed by Some Thoughts Concerning Education (1693), and The Reasonableness of Christianity (1695), while his Letters on Toleration appeared on various occasions. Locke engaged in little metaphysical speculation, but his insistence on the senses (or, more precisely, on things, events, or conditions perceived by the senses) as the origin of all knowledge laid the ground for the empiricism which so importantly shaped subsequent British and French thought. In no derogatory sense he has been called a practical philosopher, who thought in terms of human experience and built his system upon observable data, though at the same time he accepted the concepts of Protestant Christianity, including the existence of souls and the belief in personal immortality. He perceived that it is the nature of man to pursue happiness, and he prescribed piety as a check upon the passions. Although he himself wished to bar atheists and Roman Catholics from the area of toleration, he recognized that different men may hold very different views with equal sincerity. However, it is perhaps as a political philosopher that Locke was most important. In the late 17th and in the 18th centuries, when nations were struggling to throw off the surviving dead weight of feudalism, to curb monarchical despotism, and to grapple with new economic problems, his plausible, reasoned, cautiously liberal proposals, with their safeguards for property and their promise of stability and peace, attracted wide attention and approval. Hume and Kant, Voltaire and Rousseau, were among those whom he influenced, as well as the authors of the American Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution of the United States.

Locke, John. b. at Lempster, N.H., Feb. 19, 1792; d. at Cincinnati, Ohio, July 10, 1856. American scientist and inventor of scientific instruments. He was the inventor of a surveyor's compass, level, orrery, and the electromagnetic chronograph requested (1844–48) by the U.S. Coast Survey to facilitate the determination of longitudes. Author of Outlines of Botany (1819) and articles in the American Journal of Science and the Arts, the American Philosophical Society's Transactions, and the Smithsonian Contributions to Knowledge.

Locke, Matthew. b. at Exeter, England, c1631; d. in August, 1677. English composer, a chief forerunner of Purcell. He collaborated with Christopher Gibbons on the music for James Shirley's masque Cupid and Death (1653), and contributed music to William Davenant's Siege of Rhodes (1656).

Locke, Mount. See under Davis Mountains.

Locke, Richard Adams. b. at East Brent, Somersetshire, England, Sept. 22, 1800; d. at Staten Island, N.Y., Feb. 16, 1871. American journalist whose fabricated account of creatures on the moon in the noted "Moon Hoax" (New York Sun, 1835) deceived even scientists. In The Lost Manuscript of Mungo Park (c1836) his attempt to repeat this success failed.

Locke, William John. b. March 20, 1863; d. May 15, 1930. English novelist. He wrote The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne (1905), The Beloved Vagabond (1906), Septimus (1909), A Christmas Mystery (1910), Simon the Jester (1910), The Glory of Clementina Wing (1911), The Joyous Adventures of Aristide Pujol (1912), Stella Maris (1913), The Mountebank (1921), The Great Pandolfo (1925), The Kingdom of Theophilus (1927), Ancestor Jorico (1929), and others.

Locke Amsden, or The Schoolmaster (amz'dęn). Novel by Daniel Pierce Thompson, published in 1847.

Lockerbie (lok'ėr.bi). Police burgh and market town in S Scotland, in Dumfriesshire, ab. 10 mi. NE of Dumfries, ab. 325 mi. N of London by rail. 2,752 (est. 1948).

Locker-Lampson (lok'ėr.lamp'sọn, -lam'-), Frederick. [Original name, Frederick Locker.] b. at London, May 29, 1821; d. at Rowfant, Sussex, England, May 30, 1895. English poet. He married (1874) as his second wife the daughter of Sir Curtis Lampson, and assumed (1885) the name of Locker-Lampson. Among his poems are London Lyrics (1857, 1893). He edited Lyra Elegantiarum (1867) and Patchwork (1879), and contributed to various periodicals.

Locker-Lampson, Oliver Stillingfleet. b. 1880—. English journalist, soldier, and political leader; son of Frederick Locker-Lampson. He served in World War I, and was a parliamentary private secretary (1919). He organized (1931) a blue-shirted, anti-communist organization, the "Sentinels of Empire."

Lockhart (lok'härt). City in C Texas, county seat of Caldwell County, ab. 29 mi. S of Austin. 5,573 (1950).

Lockhart (lok'ạrt, -härt), John Gibson. b. at Cambusnethan, Lanarkshire, Scotland, July 14, 1794; d. at Abbotsford, Roxburghshire, Scotland, Nov. 25, 1854. Scottish author; son-in-law and biographer of Sir Walter Scott. He became an advocate in 1816, joined the staff of Blackwood's Magazine in 1817, married Sophia, the eldest daughter of Sir Walter Scott, in 1820, and edited (1825–53) the Quarterly Review. His principal work is the Memoirs of the Life of Sir Walter Scott (7 vols., 1837–38), generally placed among the best biographies in English. Among his other publications are Peter's Letters to his Kinsfolk (1819), Adam Blair (1822), and other novels, translations of Ancient Spanish Ballads (1823), and The Ballantyne Humbug Handled (1839), a pamphlet defending his account of Scott's relations with his publishers. Lockhart was also a biographer of Robert Burns and of Napoleon.

Lockhart of Carnwath (kärn.woth'), George. b. 1673; killed in a duel, Dec. 17, 1731. Scottish Jacobite. He was named (1706) a commissioner for the union of Scotland and England, joined the rising of 1715 in favor of the Stuart Pretender, and was imprisoned but later freed without trial. While acting as confidential agent (1718–27) to Prince James Francis Edward Stuart in Scotland, he was detected (1727) but escaped to Holland. Author of Memoirs of the Affairs of Scotland from Queen Anne's Succession . . . to the Commencement of the Union . . . 1707 (1714) and Papers on the Affairs of Scotland (1718), which contain much valuable material on the Jacobites.

Lockhart of Lee (lē), Sir William. b. 1621; d. March 20, 1675. British soldier and diplomat. He joined Cromwell, and was appointed (1652) a commissioner for the administration of justice in Scotland. He married (1654) Cromwell's niece. A member of Parliament (1653, 1654–55, 1656–58), he served also as English ambassador (1656–58, 1673–76) at Paris, and commanded (1658) the English forces against the Spanish at Dunkerque, where he was appointed governor after the town's surrender.

Lock Haven (lok hā'vėn). City in N central Pennsylvania, county seat of Clinton County, on the West Branch of the Susquehanna River, ab. 69 mi. NW of Harrisburg: manufactures of paper, textiles, chemicals, furniture, and metal products; railroad shops. 11,381 (1950).

Lockland (lok'land). City in SW Ohio, in Hamilton County: a northern industrial suburb of Cincinnati. 5,736 (1950).

Lockman (lok'mạn), De Witt McClellan. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., July 30, 1870—. American portrait painter. The Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, National Academy of Design, Yale University, U.S. Military Academy, Metropolitan Museum, and other large institutions have examples of his works.

Lockport (lok'pōrt). City in NE Illinois, in Will County: an important canal junction point, with locks connecting the Sanitary and Ship Canal with the canalized Des Plaines River. It has a large petroleum refinery, and other industries. 4,955 (1950).

Lockport. City in W New York, county seat of Niagara County, on the Erie Canal, ab. 22 mi. NE of Buffalo. Manufactures include steel, radiators, thermostats, automobile heaters, paperboard, milk bottles, textile products, and iron castings. 25,133 (1950).

Lockroy (lok.rwá), Édouard Étienne Antoine. [Original surname, Simon.] b. at Paris, July 18, 1838; d. Nov. 22, 1913. French journalist and politician; son of Joseph Philippe Lockroy. He was minister of commerce and industry (1886–87), minister of education (1888–89), and minister of marine (1895–96, 1898, 1898–99). He was vice-president (1902–05) of the Chamber of Deputies.

Lockroy, Joseph Philippe. [Original surname, Simon.] b. at Turin, Italy, Feb. 17, 1803; d. at Paris, Jan. 19, 1891. French dramatist and comedian. He wrote many plays, including some with Scribe.

Locksley (loks'li). Name assumed by Robin Hood at the tournament at Ashby de la Zouche, in Sir Walter Scott's Ivanhoe.

Locksley Hall. Poem by Alfred Lord Tennyson, published in 1842.

Lockwood (lok'wůd), Belva Ann. [Maiden name, Bennett.] b. at Royalton, N.Y., Oct. 24, 1830; d. May 19, 1917. American lawyer and suffragist, the first woman to be admitted to practice before the Supreme Court and to be nominated (1884, 1888) for president. An ardent advocate of women's rights, she aided in the attainment of equal property rights and equal claim to the guardianship of children for the women of the District of Columbia. She was a delegate (1889) to the Universal Peace Congress at Paris, and a member (1892) of the International Peace Bureau at Bern.

Lockwood, James Booth. b. at Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9, 1852; d. at Cape Sabine, Ellesmere Land, April 9, 1884. American arctic explorer. In 1881 he joined, as second in command, Adolphus W. Greely's expedition to Lady Franklin Bay, and in May, 1882, with D. L. Brainard, attained off Greenland lat. 83°24′ N., the highest then reached. He crossed Grinnell Land with Brainard in 1883, but died shortly before rescuers reached the expedition.

Lockwood, Ward. [Full name, John Ward Lockwood.] b. at Atchison, Kan., Sept. 22, 1894—. American painter, etcher, muralist, lithographer, and illustrator, best known for his semiabstract scenes of the Southwest. The Whitney Museum, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Palace of the Legion of Honor at San Francisco, and the Denver Art Museum have examples of his work.

Lockyer (lok'yėr), Sir Joseph Norman. b. at Rugby, England, May 17, 1836; d. at Sidmouth, Devonshire, England, Aug. 16, 1920. English astronomer. In 1868 he recognized in the lines of the solar spectrum a new element, which he named helium, and which was not discovered to exist on earth until much later. He developed a method of daytime spectroscopic observation of solar prominences and one for spectroscopic examination of sunspots; he suggested an explanation for the bands and lines in the solar spectrum, and he was otherwise prominent in physico-chemical solar investigations. Between 1870 and 1905 he headed eight official solar-eclipse expeditions. He published Elementary Lessons in Astronomy (1868), Contributions to Solar Physics (1873), The Spectroscope (1873), Studies in Spectrum Analysis (1878), The Dawn of Astronomy (1894), The Sun's Place in Nature (1897), Recent and Coming Eclipses (1897), Inorganic Evolution (1900), and Stonehenge and other British Stone Monuments Astronomically Considered (1907).

Locle (lokl), Le. See Le Locle.

Locmariaquer (lok.mȧ.ryȧ.ker). Small seaport in NW France, in the department of Morbihan, ab. 11 mi. W by SW of Vannes, celebrated for its megalithic monuments. 1,415 (1946).

Locofocos (lō.kō.fō'kōz). [Also, Loco Foco Party.] In U.S. history of the 1830's, a name applied to the faction within the Democratic Party which vociferously espoused the doctrine of equal rights. It was aligned with the movement of Jacksonian democracy and emerged c1835. The name was given in allusion to an incident which occurred at a tumultuous meeting of the Democratic Party in Tammany Hall, New York, in 1835, when the radical faction, after their opponents had turned off the gas, relighted the room with candles by the aid of locofoco matches, a type of friction match of the period. The Locofocos soon disappeared, but the name was long used for the Democratic Party in general by its opponents.

Locorotondo (lō''kō.rō.tōn'dō). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Bari, SE of Bari: agricultural commune; produces excellent white wines. Pop. of commune, 10,005 (1936); of town, 3,843 (1936).

Locri (lō'krī, lok'rī). [Also, Locri Epizophyrii (ep''i.zō-fir'i.ī).] In ancient geography, a city in S Italy, on the SE coast in what is now the compartimento (region) of Calabria. It was founded (c680 B.C.) by colonists from Greece, was closely allied with Syracuse in the 4th century B.C., and vacillated between Rome, Pyrrhus, and Carthage in the 3rd century B.C. A Greek Ionic temple of Persephone, of the 5th century, was recovered by excavation here.

Locri Epicnemidii (ep''ik.nē.mid'i.ī). Ancient Greek people dwelling along the Malian Gulf, north of Phocis; so named from Mount Cnemis.

Locri Epizephyrii (ep''i.ze.fir'i.ī). Ancient Greek people who left Greece and settled at the SW extremity of Italy. They are famous for having established, in the 7th century B.C., the first legal code known in Europe.

Locrine (lō.krēn', lō'krēn). [Also, Logris.] Legendary king of Loegres, corresponding to modern England. He was the eldest son of Brut or Brutus, and father of the Sabrina celebrated in Milton's Comus. His story is told by Geoffrey of Monmouth in his History of the Kings of Britain.

Locrine. Tragedy published anonymously in 1595, perhaps written by Robert Greene. It has sometimes been ascribed to Shakespeare (from the initials W. S. on the title page), to Marlowe, and to other early Elizabethan dramatists.

Locri Opuntii (lō'krī, lok'rī, ō.pun'shi.ī). Ancient Greek people living N of Boeotia and opposite Euboea; so named from Opus, their chief town. The name is sometimes taken to include also the country of the Locri Epicnemidii.

Locri Ozolae (oz'ō.lē). Ancient Greek people living along the N coast of the Corinthian Gulf, W of Phocis. Its chief towns were Amphissa and Naupactus.

Locris (lō'kris, lok'ris). In ancient geography, name applied to a division of C Greece, occupied by the Locri Epicnemidii, the Locri Opuntii, and by the Locri Ozolae.

Lőcse (lö'che). Hungarian name of Levoča.

Locusta (lō.kus'tą). [Also, Lucusta.] Professional poisoner living at Rome c54 A.D. Juvenal speaks of her as the agent for ridding many a wife of her husband, and Tacitus as "long reckoned as among the instruments of government." She was employed by Agrippina to prepare a poison for the emperor Claudius. She was executed in the reign of Galba (c68 A.D.).

Locust Valley. Unincorporated suburban community in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban areas. The last official enumeration was 2,534 (1940).

Lod (lōd). Hebrew name of Lydda.

Lodelinsart (lod.laṅ.sȧr). Town in S Belgium, in the province of Hainaut, a northern suburb of Charleroi: coal mines, glassworks, metallurgical industry. 10,759 (1947).

Lodève (lo.dev). [Latin, Luteva.] Town in S France, in the department of Hérault, at the S foot of the Cevennes Mountains, ab. 29 mi. NW of Montpellier. It produces olive oil and has mills for spinning and weaving woolens (specialty, cloth for military garments) and other industries. The Cathedral of Saint Fulcran dates from the 13th and 14th centuries. 6,242 (1946).

Lodge (loj), George Cabot. b. at Boston, Oct. 10, 1873; d. Aug. 21, 1909. American poet and dramatist; son of Henry Cabot Lodge (1850–1924). He served in the Spanish-American War. Author of The Song of the Wave, and Other Poems (1898), Poems 1899–1902 (1902), Cain, A Drama (1904), and Herakles (1908). His Poems and Dramas (1911) bears an introduction by Theodore Roosevelt.

Lodge, Henry Cabot. b. at Boston, May 12, 1850; d. at Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 9, 1924. American politician and writer. He was graduated (1871) from Harvard and from that university's law school in 1874, and was admitted to the bar (1875) at Boston. He served (1873–76) as assistant editor of the North American Review under Henry Adams and in 1876 received the first degree of Ph.D. in political science ever granted at Harvard. He published Essays in Anglo-Saxon Law (1876), his Ph.D. dissertation at Harvard, Life and Letters of George Cabot (1877), A Short History of the English Colonies in America (1881), Alexander Hamilton (1882), Daniel Webster (1883), Historical and Political Essays (1892) and The Story of the Revolution (2 vols., 1898). He was elected (1879) to the state legislature, became active as a Republican in national politics, and was elected to Congress in 1886. He served in the House of Representatives until 1893, during which time he performed notable service in behalf of civil service reform. He was chosen in January, 1893, by the Massachusetts state legislature to serve in the U.S. Senate, and thereafter was a member of that body until the end of his life. His chief work was performed in the realm of international relations. He was an intimate adviser of Theodore Roosevelt on matters of foreign policy and after World War I led the Senate forces opposed to the ratification of the Versailles Treaty and the Covenant of the League of Nations. The political antagonism between Woodrow Wilson and Lodge eventually developed into a personal hostility. Lodge, as chairman of the Senate committee on foreign relations, reported the treaty and covenant out of committee to the Senate floor with a series of vitiating reservations, but Wilson's supporters in the Senate defeated the measure, hoping for ratification of the original documents, thus keeping the U.S. out of the League of Nations and resulting in the separate peace with Germany. Lodge's record of the dispute over the treaty and covenant appears in his book The Senate and the League of Nations (1925). He was one of the U.S. representatives at the Washington Conference (1921).

Lodge, Henry Cabot, Jr. b. at Nahant, Mass., July 5, 1902—. American politician; son of George Cabot Lodge. He has been a senator from Massachusetts since 1937 (elected 1936), and was a leader in the group within the Republican Party that secured (1952) the Republican presidential nomination for General Dwight D. Eisenhower. He became (1953) U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Lodge, John Davis. b. at Washington, D.C., Oct. 20, 1903—. American politician; son of George Cabot Lodge. A member (1947–51) of Congress, he was elected (1950) to the governorship of Connecticut. With his brother, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., he was a member of the group within the Republican Party that supported (1952) the presidential nomination of General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Lodge, Sir Oliver Joseph. b. at Penkhull, Staffordshire, England, June 12, 1851; d. at Amesbury, Wiltshire, England, Aug. 22, 1940. English physicist and spiritualist, principal of the University of Birmingham from 1900, especially noted for his investigations in electricity, light, magnetism, and the nature of the ether. He was professor of physics (1881–1900) in University College, Liverpool. He published Elementary Mechanics (1877), Modern Views of Electricity (1889), Pioneers of Science (1893), Electrons (1907), Science and Mortality (1908), The Ether of Space (1909), Reason and Belief (1910), and others. He was president (1901–04) of the Society for Psychical Research.

Lodge, Thomas. b. at West Ham, near London, c1558; d. 1625. English novelist, lyric poet, and dramatist. He studied at Trinity College, Oxford, and entered (1578) Lincoln's Inn, but soon left the study of law for a career as a writer. In 1579 or 1580 he published a reply, Honest Excuses (sometimes called Defence of Poetry, Music and Stage Plays), to Stephen Gosson's attack on the morality of the contemporary stage, The School of Abuse. Gosson's rejoinder was answered by Lodge in the Alarum Against Usurers (1584), to which he appended a novel, The Delectable History of Forbonius and Prisceria. Lodge sailed in the Canaries expedition of 1588 and on a voyage to South America in 1591. He became an M.D. in 1602 and practiced medicine until his death. Among his works are Rosalind, Euphues Golden Legacy (1590), a novel written during the Canaries voyage, the source of Shakespeare's As You Like It; Euphues Shadow: the Battaile of the Sences (1592), and A Margarite of America (1596), novels; The Wounds of Civil War (1594) and A Looking Glasse for London and England (1594, with Robert Greene), plays; Scillaes Metamorphosis (1589) and Phillis (1593), poems; A Fig for Momus (1595), verse satire; and translations of Josephus and Seneca. Lodge's poetry is considered among the most tuneful and original of the Elizabethan period, despite his reliance on Italian and French originals.

Lodge Corollary. [Also known as the Magdalena Bay Resolution.] Statement of U.S. hemispherical policy made in 1912, occasioned by widespread concern over the report that a Japanese company was negotiating with a U.S. company for the purchase of land near Magdalena Bay in Lower California, Mexico. Named for Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who introduced the resolution, this corollary to the Monroe Doctrine for the first time extended the doctrine's application to include an Asiatic power and a foreign company. It was approved Aug. 2, 1912.

Lodi (lō'dī). City in C California, in San Joaquin County, NE of San Francisco, in a rich vineyard area of the San Joaquin Valley. 13,798 (1950).

Lodi (lô'dē). [Celtic, Alanda; Roman, Laus Pompeia.] City and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Milano, on the Adda River SE of Milan. It has dairies (Parmesan cheese); hemp, linen, and other textile industries; and has long been known for majolica manufactures. The cathedral, a Romanesque building of the 12th century, contains several notable murals. The city was built in 1158 by the German Emperor Frederick I (Frederick Barbarossa) ab. 4 mi. from the ancient Lodi, which had been destroyed by the Milanese in 1111; after the downfall of the Hohenstaufen dynasty, it came under the domination of Milan and, after 1556, of Spain. Napoleon I defeated the Austrians here on May 10, 1796. Pop. of commune, 30,636 (1936); of city, 23,053 (1936).

Lodi (lō'dī). Borough in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County: manufactures include dyes, clothing, machinery, and metal products. 15,392 (1950).

Lodi (lô'dē), Battle of. Victory gained May 10, 1796, by the French under Napoleon over the Austrians under Jean Pierre de Beaulieu. Napoleon himself led the charge of the grenadiers (6,000) across the bridge of the Adda. Lannes was the first man across the bridge, Napoleon (who won this day the epithet "Little Corporal") the second. The battle was followed by the capture of Milan.

Lodoletta (lō.dō.lät'tä). Opera in three acts by Pietro Mascagni, with a libretto by Gioacchino Forzano, first performed at Rome on April 30, 1917.

Lodomeria (lod.ọ.mir'i.ạ). [Also: Vladimir, Vladimir in Volhynia.] Medieval principality in Volhynia, which became part of the kingdom of Poland. The emperor of Austria-Hungary bore the title of King of Galicia and Lodomeria.

Lodore Canyon (lọ.dōr'). See under Dinosaur National Monument.

Lodore Falls. Cascade in NW England, in Cumberland, near the S end of Derwent Water, ab. 4 mi. S of Keswick. Robert Southey, who lived at Keswick, wrote (1820) a poem, The Cataract of Lodore, describing the "way the water comes down at Lodore." Height, over 100 ft.

Lodovico (lō.dọ.vē'kō). Kinsman of Brabantio in Shakespeare's Othello.

Lodur (lō'ᴛʜėr). [Also, Lothur.] In Old Norse mythology, one of the gods who helped Odin and Hoenir create the first human pair. Lodur gave them their red blood. In some myths Lodur is identified with Loki.

Łódź (löj, lödz, lodz; Polish, löch). [Also, Lodz.] Województwo (province) in C Poland, bounded on the N by Bydgoszcz, on the NE by Warszawa, on the SE and S by Kielce, on the SW by Katowice, and on the W by Poznań. Capital, Łódź; area, ab. 6,500 sq. mi.; pop., excluding the city of Łódź, 1,475,000 (est. 1950).

Łódź. [Also: Lodz; German name during occupation (1939–45), Litzmannstadt.] City in C Poland, an independent municipality in (but nevertheless capital of) the województwo (province) of Łódź, ab. 67 mi. SW of Warsaw: the center of the Polish cotton and woolen textile industry. New industries developed since World War II include the manufacture of electrical appliances and chemicals. Łódź was a small village at the time of the second partition of Poland in 1793. The growth of the town as a textile center was stimulated by the Russian government after 1814 (development was rapid because Łódź was given a practical monopoly on the entire Russian market). The population is now entirely Polish; the Jewish population was deported by the Germans to concentration camps during World War II, where the majority perished; the German population was expelled after the conclusion of the war. Area of municipality, ab. 82 sq. mi.; pop. 619,924 (1950).

Loeb (lōb), Jacques. b. in Germany, April 7, 1859; d. Feb. 11, 1924. American physiologist, professor in the University of California (1902–10), and head of the department of experimental biology in the Rockefeller Institute, New York, from 1910. He developed the mechanistic theory of tropism to account for behavior. His experimental work includes research in parthenogenesis, in the fertilization of the egg, and in regeneration of lost parts. His works include The Heliotropism of Animals (1890), Physiological Morphology (1891–92), Comparative Physiology of the Brain (1900), Studies in General Physiology (1905), Dynamics of Living Matter (1906), The Mechanistic Conception of Life (1912), and numerous papers on experimental biology.

Loeb, James. b. at New York, Aug. 6, 1867; d. at Murnau, Bavaria, Germany, May 29, 1933. American philanthropist and banker, founder (1910) of the Loeb Classical Library, a series of some 300 Greek and Latin texts edited in pocket size with the original text and a facing translation. He was associated (1888–1901) with the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Company. He resided (1905 et seq.) in Germany. His philanthropies include the establishment (1905) of the American Institute of Musical Art in New York City, later merged with the Juilliard Musical Foundation; the endowment (1902) of the Charles Eliot Norton traveling fellowship for Harvard students to the American School for Classical Studies at Athens, of which he was a trustee; the founding (1911) and subsequent support of the German Institute for Psychiatric Research at Munich; and the bequest to the Fogg Art Museum of Harvard University of his archaeological collection of bronzes and terra cottas.

Loeb, Leo. b. at Mayen, Prussia, Sept. 21, 1869—. American pathologist, director of the pathological department of the St. Louis Skin and Cancer Hospital from 1910. He was professor (1915–37) at Washington University.

Loeb, Louis. b. at Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 7, 1866; d. at Canterbury, N.H., July 12, 1909. American artist and illustrator.

Loeb, Morris. b. at Cincinnati, Ohio, May 23, 1863; d. at New York, Oct. 8, 1912. American chemist, a pioneer in the field of physical chemistry.

Loeb, Sophie Irene. [Maiden name, Simon.] b. at Rovno, Russia, July 4, 1876; d. at New York, Jan. 18, 1929. American social worker, journalist, and author. She was on the staff (1911–20) of the New York Evening World, served as the first president of the New York Child Welfare Board (1915) and of the Child Welfare Committee of America (1924), and was an adviser (1927) on child welfare to the League of Nations. Her books include Epigrams of Eve (1913), Everyman's Child (1920), and Palestine Awake (1926).

Loeb, William. b. at Albany, N.Y., Oct. 9, 1866; d. at Glen Cove, N.Y., Sept. 19, 1937. American government official. He was assistant secretary and afterward secretary to Theodore Roosevelt (1901–09).

Loèche (lo.esh) or Loèche-la-Ville (-lä.vēl). French names of Leuk.

Loèche-les-Bains (lo.esh.le.bañ). French name of Leukerbad.

Loe Dakka (lō'ę dak'ạ). [Also: Dakka, Loi Dakka.] City in E Afghanistan, at the W end of the Khyber Pass. It is located on the S bank of the Kabul River and is a strategic fortress town, as well as a trading center.

Loeffler (lef'lėr), Charles Martin. b. at Mulhouse, in Alsace-Lorraine, Jan. 30, 1861; d. at Medfield, Mass., May 19, 1935. American composer and violinist. He came to the U.S. in 1881 and was associated (1883–1903) with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Among his works are the symphonic poems La Mort de Tintagilea (1897; after Maeterlinck), Avant que tu ne t'en ailles and Villanelle du diable; a suite for violin and orchestra, Les Veillées d'Ukraine (1891; after Gogol); chamber music; and songs.

Loegres (lō'grēz). [Also: Loegria (-gri.ạ), Logres.] Name by which Geoffrey of Monmouth refers to England in his History of the Kings of Britain, from Logris or Locrine, son of the legendary King Brut.

Loeland (lė'län), Rasmus. See Løland, Rasmus.

Loening (lō'ning), Grover Cleveland. b. at Bremen, Germany, Sept. 12, 1888—. American aircraft designer and manufacturer. He was chief aeronautical engineer of the Wright Company at Dayton, Ohio (1913–14) and of the U.S. army air corps (1914–15). He was thereafter president of the Loening Aeronautical Engineering Corporation at New York (1917–18) and of the Grover Loening Aircraft Company (1928 et seq.), becoming in the latter year also a director and consulting engineer of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation. He invented the strut-braced monoplane and the Loening amphibian airplane.

Loerke (lėr'kę), Oskar. b. at Jungen, Germany, March 13, 1884—. German poet and prose writer. He has written stories (Vineta, 1907; Das Goldbergwerk, 1919; Der Prinz und der Tiger, 1920), novels (Der Turmbau, 1910; Der Oger, 1921), and poetry (Wanderschaft, 1911; Pansmusik, 1929; Atem der Erde, 1930).

Loeschcke (lėsh'kę), Georg. b. at Penig, Germany, June 28, 1852; d. at Berlin, Nov. 26, 1915. German archaeologist. Author of Mykenische Tongefässe (Mycenaean Earthen Vessels, 1879, with Adolf Furtwängler), and Mykenische Vasen (Mycenaean Vases, 1886, also with Furtwängler).

Loew (lō), Arthur M. b. at New York, Oct. 5, 1897—. American theater owner and motion-picture producer; son of Marcus Loew. He succeeded his father as vice-president of Loew's, Inc., and of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, and served as president of Loew's International Corporation.

Loew, Marcus. b. at New York, May 7, 1870; d. Sept. 5, 1927. American theater owner and motion-picture producer. He was associated (1904 et seq.) with the actor David Warfield in promoting the then popular peep shows, and later opened playhouses for the showing of the first motion pictures, supplementing them with vaudeville skits. He acquired (1920) the Metro Film Corporation, which was merged (1924) with Goldwyn Pictures and the Louis B. Mayer Company.

Loewe (lē'vę), Johann Karl Gottfried. b. at Löbejün, near Halle, Germany, Nov. 30, 1796; d. at Kiel, Germany, April 20, 1869. German composer, especially of art-ballads arranged for piano and voice. His other works include operas, oratorios, and chamber works. His best-known ballads are Edward, Erlkönig, Der Wirthin Töchterlein, and Archibald Douglas.

Loewe, Wilhelm. [Called Loewe-Kalbe; also: Löwe or Löwe-Kalbe.] b. at Olvenstedt, near Magdeburg, Germany, Nov. 14, 1814; d. at Meran (now Merano), in the Tyrol, Nov. 2, 1886. German politician. He was a member of the Frankfort Parliament (1848), president of the Stuttgart Parliament (1849), and, later, liberal leader in the Reichstag and Prussian Landtag.

Loewenstein (lē'vęn.shtīn), Hubertus Friedrich zu. b. 1906—. German politician. Active in organizing a youth movement against the rising Nazi Party, he was forced to go into exile after 1933. He resided for some years in the U.S. Returning to Germany after the collapse of the Nazi regime, he again became active in politics. Among his books are After Hitler's Fall (1934), A Catholic in Republican Spain (1937), and The Germans in History (1945).

Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U.S. 274 (1908) (lō; lô'lọr). [Also known as the Danbury Hatters Case.] Unanimous decision in which the U.S. Supreme Court for the first time ruled that the Sherman Antitrust Act was applicable to labor combinations. It declared illegal secondary boycotts involving an employer engaged in interstate commerce.

Loewi (lē'vē), Otto. b. at Frankfort on the Main, Germany, June 3, 1873—. German pharmacologist, from 1946 a citizen of the U.S. He was awarded (1936), with his coworker Sir Henry H. Dale, the Nobel prize for medicine and physiology for their work on the nature of the transmission of nerve impulses. He served (1909–38) as professor of pharmacology at Graz. His work during this period included research on carbohydrate metabolism, digitalis, and the transmission of nerve impulses. On March 11, 1938, he was imprisoned by the Nazis, who released him in the same year but confiscated all his property, including the Nobel prize money. After holding posts in England and Belgium, he was offered a professorship by the New York University School of Medicine and came (1940) to the U.S.

Loewinson-Lessing (lē'vin.sọn.les'ing), Franz Yulievich. b. at St. Petersburg (now Leningrad), Russia, March 10, 1861; d. there, Oct. 25, 1939. Russian geologist, authority on petrology and volcanism. He was the author of a petrographic lexicon and of a textbook on petrology, and also of a chemical classification of eruptive rocks.

Loewy (lē.vē), Maurice. b. at Vienna, April 15, 1883; d. at Paris, Oct. 15, 1907. French astronomer, director (1896–1907) of the Paris Observatory. He invented an equatorial telescope.

Loewy (lō'i), Raymond Fernand. b. at Paris, Nov. 5, 1893—. American industrial designer. In 1929 he set up his own firm of design consultants, which since 1943 has been known as Raymond Loewy Associates.

Löffler (lef'lėr), Friedrich August Johannes. b. at Frankfort on the Oder, Germany, June 24, 1852; d. at Berlin, April 9, 1915. German bacteriologist. He was the codiscoverer (with Edwin Klebs, 1884) of the bacillus diphtheriae (called the Klebs-Löffler bacillus), and, with Paul Frosch, determined (1897) a filtrable virus to be the cause of foot-and-mouth disease in animals. He discovered (1883) the glanders bacillus and several other bacterial causes of disease. He developed new techniques and methods and introduced the use of methylene blue as a staining agent.

Loffoden (lō.fō'dęn). See Lofoten.

Löfftz (lefts), Ludwig von. b. at Darmstadt, Germany, June 21, 1845; d. at Munich, Dec. 3, 1910. German historical, landscape, and genre painter and etcher, director (1893–99) of the Academy at Munich. Among his works are Dead Christ, Orpheus and Eurydice, Erasmus of Rotterdam, Peasant in Sunday Clothes, and Greed or Love.

Löfling (lef'ling), Peter. b. at Tollforsbruch, near Walbö, Sweden, Jan. 31, 1729; d. in Venezuela, Feb. 22, 1756. Swedish botanist, a pupil and friend of Linnaeus.

Lofoten (lō.fō'tęn). [Also: Lofoden (lō.fō'dęn), Loffoden.] Group of islands belonging to the fylke (county) of Nordland, Norway, extending SW from Hinnøy W of Narvik. The surface is largely mountainous and rocky. The chief islands are Austvågøy, Vestvågøy, Flakstad, Moskenes, and Værøy. The chief industry is the cod and herring fishery. Area, ab. 523 sq. mi.; pop. 30,000 (1946).

Lofting (lof'ting), Hugh John. b. at Maidenhead, England, Jan. 14, 1886; d. at Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 26, 1947. English writer and illustrator, resident in the U.S. after 1912. Author and illustrator of The Story of Dr. Dolittle (1920), The Voyages of Dr. Dolittle (1922, for which he received the Newbery prize), Dr. Dolittle's Garden (1927), The Twilight of Magic (1930), and Tommy, Tilly, and Mrs. Tubbs (1937).

Loftus (lof'tus). [Also, Lofthouse (lof'tus).] Urban district in NE England, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, ab. 260 mi. N of London by rail. 7,423 (1951).

Loftus, Lord Augustus William Frederick Spencer. b. Oct. 4, 1817; d. March 7, 1904. English diplomat. He was ambassador to Russia (1871–79) during the difficult period in Anglo-Russian relations caused by the Russo-Turkish War (1877–78).

Loftus, Cissie. [Stage name of Marie Cecilia M'Carthy.] b. at Glasgow, Oct. 22, 1876; d. at New York, July 12, 1943. British actress. She played Marguerite in Faust with Sir Henry Irving and Ophelia in Hamlet with E. H. Sothern. She starred in Israel Zangwill's Governess, J. M. Barrie's Peter Pan, Mme. Modjeska's production of Twelfth Night, and Justin H. M'Carthy's If I Were King. She appeared in the Ziegfeld Follies and in such films as The Old Maid, The Blue Bird, and Lucky Partners. She was famed for her performances as a mime.

Loftus, William Kennett. b. at Rye, England, c1820; d. at sea, in November, 1858. English archaeologist.

Log (log, lôg), King. See King Log.

Logan (lō'gạn). City in S central Ohio, county seat of Hocking County, in an agricultural and coal-mining region: manufactures of shoes, pottery, brick, and wood products. It was established in 1816 and made county seat in 1818. Pop. 5,972 (1950).

Logan. City in N Utah, county seat of Cache County, ab. 67 mi. N of Salt Lake City: trading center in an agricultural area producing sugar beets, peas, and grain. It has food-processing, textile and lumber industries. Logan is the site of a Mormon temple and of Utah Agricultural College. It was settled in 1855 and incorporated in 1866. Elevation, ab. 4,500 ft.; pop. 16,832 (1950).

Logan. [Former names, Lawnsville, Aracoma.] City in SW West Virginia, county seat of Logan County: trading center and shipping point for a coal-mining area. 5,079 (1950).

Logan. A former name of Burnham, Pa.

Logan, George. b. at Stenton, near Philadelphia, Sept. 9, 1753; d. there, April 9, 1821. American politician; grandson of James Logan (1674–1751). A physician and farmer, he went to France in 1798 with the design of averting a war with that country. His negotiations were entirely unofficial and caused resentment, especially within the Federalist Party; the result was the so-called Logan Act (1799), banning any such future action by a citizen. He was U.S. senator from Pennsylvania (1801–07).

Logan, James. b. at Lurgan, County Armagh, Ireland, Oct. 20, 1674; d. near Germantown, Pa., Oct. 31, 1751. American colonial politician. He was a member of the Society of Friends, and accompanied William Penn to America as his secretary in 1699. He was chief justice of the supreme court of Pennsylvania (1731–39), and as president of the council was for two years (1736–38) acting governor of the colony. He bequeathed over two thousand volumes to the city of Philadelphia, which now form part of the Philadelphia Library under the title of the Loganian Library. He was a friend of John Bartram and his own work in natural history was recognized by Linnaeus, who named a family (Loganiaceae) and a genus (Logania) of plants for him. He wrote Experimenta et Meletemata de Plantarum Generatione (1739), and others.

Logan, James (or John). [Original name, Tahgahjute.] b. c1725; killed near Detroit, 1780. Indian chief. A Cayuga by birth, he lived many years near Reedsville, Pa., on friendly terms with the settlers, and became a chief among the Mingoes. His family was murdered

(1774) by settlers near the Ohio, whereupon he instigated a war (known as Lord Dunmore's War) against them and became an ally of the British during the Revolution. Logan's famous speech, sent to Lord Dunmore during the negotiations for peace in the war, was called by Thomas Jefferson equal to any by Demosthenes or Cicero. It ends: "There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it. I have killed many. I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country I rejoice at the beams of peace; but do not harbor a thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

Logan, James Harvey. b. near Rockville, Ind., Dec. 8, 1841; d. at Oakland, Calif., July 16, 1928. American horticulturist and jurist, who gave his name to the loganberry. He was district attorney (1870–80) at Santa Cruz, Calif., and judge (1880–92) of the superior court in Santa Cruz County. Experimenting with crossing two species of blackberry with the Red Antwerp raspberry, he produced (1881) seedlings of a new blackberry which he called the Mammoth, and of the loganberry.

Logan, John. b. in Scotland, 1748; d. at London, in December, 1788. Scottish lyric poet. He published a volume of poems, mostly by Michael Bruce, in 1770; in 1781 he published a volume of his own poems which included the "Ode to the Cuckoo." The much-debated question whether the "Ode to the Cuckoo" is the production of Bruce or of Logan is still a matter of some dispute. Logan is credited with writing "The Braes of Yarrow."

Logan, John Alexander. b. in Jackson County, Ill., Feb. 9, 1826; d. at Washington, D.C., Dec. 26, 1886. American soldier and politician, unsuccessful Republican candidate for the vice-presidency in 1884 on the ticket with Blaine. He served in the Mexican War, was a member of Congress from Illinois (1859–61), and served with distinction in the Civil War under Grant in 1862, in the Vicksburg campaign of 1863, and in northern Georgia under Sherman in 1864. He was a member of Congress from Illinois (1867–71) and was U.S. senator (1871–77, 1879–86). He is credited with conceiving the idea of Memorial Day (1868). He published The Great Conspiracy: Its Origin and History (1886), an account of the Civil War.

Logan, Mount. Mountain in extreme SW Yukon Territory, Canada, ab. 26 mi. NE of Mount St. Elias: after Mount McKinley, the highest peak in North America, and the highest point in Canada. 19,850 ft.

Logan, Stephen Trigg. b. in Franklin County, Ky., Feb. 24, 1800; d. at Springfield, Ill., July 17, 1880. American lawyer, senior partner (1841–44) at Springfield, Ill., with Abraham Lincoln. He served (1842–48, 1854–56) in the state legislature, and was a member (1860) of the Republican nominating convention which named Lincoln.

Logansport (lō'gan̦z.pōrt). [Called the "City of Bridges."] City in N central Indiana, county seat of Cass County, at the confluence of the Eel and Wabash rivers, ab. 70 mi. N of Indianapolis. Its manufactures include auto parts, farm implements, food products, and furniture. The place was settled c1828 and was incorporated as a city in 1838. Pop. 21,031 (1950).

Logau (lō'gou), Friedrich von. b. in Silesia, 1604; d. at Liegnitz (now Legnice, Poland), in Silesia, July 25, 1655. German poet. He was councilor to the Duke of Brief and Liegnitz. He belonged to the first Silesian school of poets, and was the principal epigrammatist of the period, and one of the most celebrated in German literature. In 1654 he published, under the title Sinngedichte, a collection of more than 3,500 poems, many of which are, however, only rhymed couplets.

Logistilla (lō.jēs.tēl'lä). In Orlando Furioso, the sister of Alcina and Morgana. She represents Reason or Virtue.

Log of a Cowboy, The. Semiautobiographical novel by Andy Adams, published in 1903.

Logoli (lō.gō'lē). [Also, Maragoli.] Bantu subgroup of the Kavirondo peoples of Kenya, in E Africa. Their population is estimated at ab. 75,000 (by G. Wagner, The Bantu of North Kavirondo, 1949). Under British rule they have been split into four independent chieftaincies.

Logres (lō'grēz). See Loegres.

Logris (lō'gris). See Locrine.

Logroño (lō.grō'nyō). Province in N Spain, bounded by Álava on the N, Navarra on the N and E, Zaragoza on the SE, Soria on the S, and Burgos on the W: part of Old Castile. The province includes the S part of the upper Ebro valley. Capital, Logroño; area, ab. 2,044 sq. mi.; pop. 204,002 (1950).

Logroño. City in N Spain, the capital of the province of Logroño, on the Ebro River, ab. 155 mi. N of Madrid: commercial center of the Rioja plain, with an important trade in wine. It is an old city, believed to occupy a site adjacent to the ancient Roman town of Varia. It was retaken from the Moors by the Christians in 755 A.D. The 12-arch bridge across the Ebro dates from 1138. Pop. 53,925 (1950).

Logroño, Pedro. b. at Guadalajara, Spain; d., probably in Mexico, after 1567. Spanish priest. His Manual de los adultos para bautizar (known only in a fragment) is probably the oldest existing book published in America. It was printed at Mexico City in 1540.

Logroscino or Lo Groscino (lō.grō.shē'nō), Nicola. b. at Naples, Italy, c1700; d. there, 1763. Italian operatic composer, noted in the history of the opera buffa; erroneously said to have been the first to devise extended ensembles as the finales for acts. Among his comic operas are L'Inganno per inganno (1738), La Violante (1741), and Il Governatore (1747).

Lohan (lō'hän). Chinese name for those Buddhist figures who by self-conquest and other exemplifications of the truths of Buddhism have acquired enough spiritual power to save the world. The word signifies "Worthy One." Now commonly 18 in number, they were originally 16, though in some Chinese temples they number 500.

Lohardaga (lō.här.dä'gą). [Also, Lohardugga (lō.här.dug'ą).] Former district in Bihar, Union of India, ab. 150 mi. S of Patna, now included in the Ranchi district. Coal is mined here and the crops include cotton, linseed, maize, and millet. Area, ab. 7,140 sq. mi.

Loheia (lō.hā'ą) or Loheiya or Loheyyah (lō.hā'yą). See Luhaiya.

Lohengrin (lō'ęn.grin). In medieval German legend, a knight of the swan, the son of Parzival, and a knight of the Holy Grail. He is carried in a boat drawn by a swan to Antwerp, where he becomes the husband of the Princess of Brabant, on the condition that she shall never ask who he is. She nevertheless breaks the agreement, and the swan comes with the boat and bears him away to the Grail. Allusion is made to his history at the end of the 13th-century poem Parzival, ascribed to Wolfram von Eschenbach, in which he is Parzival's son. He is also mentioned in the Titurel, written by one Albrecht between 1260 and 1270; and the same legend is the subject of the poem Schwanritter (The Swan Knight), by Konrad von Würzburg (d. 1287), who does not, however, connect his hero with the Grail.

Lohengrin. Romantic drama in three acts, composed (words and music) by Richard Wagner in 1847, and based on the poem Lohengrin. It was first produced at Weimar under the direction of Franz Liszt in 1850. The most famous passage in the work is the wedding march in the second act.

Lohenstein (lō'ęn.shtīn), Daniel Kaspar von. b. at Nimptsch, in Silesia, Jan. 25, 1635; d. at Breslau, April 28, 1683. German writer of plays, novels, and verse. His bombastic and bloody plays (Cleopatra, 1661; Sophonisbe, 1680; Agrippina, 1665; and others) were in keeping with the taste of his time, but attract few modern readers. His 3,000-page novel, Arminius (1689–90; the title alone fills a page), is today merely a literary curiosity.

Lohne (lō'nę). Town and commune in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the free state of Oldenburg, ab. 31 mi. N of Osnabrück: livestock trade; agricultural industries. 11,993 (1950).

Lohr (lōr). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Bavaria, American Zone, in the Regierungsbezirk (government district) of Lower Franconia, situated at the junction of the Lohr and Main rivers, ab. 40 mi. SE of Frankfort on the Main; metal, lumber, glass, shoe, and textile industries. It has a Gothic church and Rathaus (town hall of the 16th century). It became a free imperial city in 1333, passed to the archbishopric of Mainz in 1555, and to Bavaria in 1814. Pop. 11,167 (1950).

Loi Dakka (lō'ē dak'ą). See Loe Dakka.

Loigny-la-Bataille (lwȧ.nyē.lȧ.bȧ.täy'). [Also, Loigny.] Village in N central France, in the department of Eure-et-Loir, S of Chartres. It gives name to the battle of Loigny-Poupry, Dec. 2, 1870, gained by the Germans under Frederick Francis II, Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, over the French under Aurelle de Paladines, and forming part of the battle before Orléans. 252 (1946).

Loir (lwȧr). [Latin, Lidericus.] River in NW France, joining the Sarthe ab. 5 mi. N of Angers. Length, ab. 190 mi.

Loire (lwȧr). Department in E central France, bounded by Allier on the NW, Saône-et-Loire on the N, Rhône and Isère on the E, Ardèche on the S, Haute-Loire on the SW, and Puy-de-Dôme on the W. It formed part of the old province of Lyonnais, and suffered devastation in the civil and religious wars, and also during the French Revolution. The department is traversed by the upper Loire River and is largely mountainous or hilly. The population is concentrated around the basin of St.-Étienne, one of the chief industrial centers of France, owing to its wealth in coal deposits. Capital, St.-Étienne; area, ab. 1,852 sq. mi.; pop. 631,591 (1946).

Loire, Army of the. In the Franco-Prussian War (1870), either of two armies: 1. French army, improvised after the battle of Sedan (Sept. 1, 1870) for the relief of Paris, and commanded by Aurelle de Paladines. 2. After the beginning of December, 1870, the part of the first army commanded by Chanzy (the remaining part being commanded by Bourbaki).

Loire-Inférieure (lwȧr.aṅ.fā.ryėr). Department in W France, bounded by Morbihan and Ille-et-Vilaine on the N, Maine-et-Loire on the E, Vendée on the S, and the Bay of Biscay on the W. The department is situated on the Atlantic coast, on both sides of the estuary of the Loire River. It was formed from parts of the old province of Brittany and passed to the French crown through the marriage of Francis I and Anne, Duchess of Brittany. It was ravaged in the religious and civil wars, and participated (1793) in the royalist insurrection of the Vendée. Agricultural products include grains, vegetables, wines, and fruits. Cattle and sheep are raised. Industry is largely concentrated in and around Nantes, and includes both heavy and light industries; food processing is important, including rice and flour milling and sugar refining. Nantes and St.-Nazaire have large shipyards and ship-repair shops. There are deep-sea fisheries and beach resorts along the coast. Capital, Nantes; area, ab. 2,693 sq. mi.; pop. 697,997 (1946).

Loire River. [Latin, Liger.] Longest river in France. It rises in the Cévennes Mountains, in the department of Ardèche, flows first N and then W, and empties into the Bay of Biscay at St.-Nazaire, ab. 33 mi. W of Nantes. Its chief tributaries are the Allier, Cher, Indre, and Vienne on the left, and the Maine on the right. Length, ab. 623 mi.; navigable for ships to Nantes.

Loiret (lwȧ.re). Department in N central France, bounded by Eure-et-Loir on the NW, Seine-et-Oise and Seine-et-Marne on the N, Yonne on the E, Nièvre, Cher, and Loir-et-Cher on the S, and Loir-et-Cher on the W. It was part of the old province of Orléanais, which was a special appanage of several princely lines of the house of France. In 1870 it was the terminating point of the German invasion, but in 1940 the German armies swept through the department toward the S, and it was again in the path of the Allied invasion armies in 1944. The soil is generally fertile, producing grains, vegetables, fruits, and sugar beets; wine, honey, and poultry are also produced. Food industries, woolen manufactures, paperware factories, and printing establishments are important. The department is traversed by the Loire River, which here reaches its northernmost point. Capital, Orléans; area, ab. 2,629 sq. mi.; pop. 346,918 (1946).

Loir-et-Cher (lwȧr.ā.sher). Department in N central France, bounded by Eure-et-Loir on the N, Loiret on the NE, Cher on the SE, Indre on the S, Indre-et-Loire on the SW, and Sarthe on the NW. It was formed from the old provinces of Blaisois, Vendômois, and parts of Beauce and Sologne. The N and C part of the department, in the vicinity of Blois, is noted for its numerous ancient castles. The SE part, in the vicinity of Romorantin, is densely forested and known for its hunting grounds and its river fisheries. The department is largely agricultural, producing grains, vegetables, fruits, wine, and tobacco. It is also known for its poultry. There are various industries, among which the dairy industry (including also chocolate and candy manufacture), the clothing industry, ceramic and paperware manufactures, and printing establishments are important. Capital, Blois; area, ab. 2,478 sq. mi.; pop. 242,419 (1946).

Loiseau (lwȧ.zō), Jeanne. See Lesueur, Daniel.

L'Oiseau bleu (lwȧ.zō blė). See Blue Bird, The.

Loja (lō'hä). [Also, Loxa.] Province in S Ecuador. Capital, Loja; area, ab. 4,438 sq. mi.; pop. 212,429 (est. 1944).

Loja. [Also, Loxa.] City in S Ecuador, capital of Loja province: noted for cinchona. Elevation, ab. 7,300 ft.; pop. 20,776 (est. 1944).

Loja. [Also, Loxa.] Town in S Spain, in the province of Granada, on the Genil River ab. 30 mi. W of Granada: woolen, silk, paper, and leather manufacture. The town, long in Moorish hands, was recaptured by Ferdinand III of Castile in 1226, lost again, and finally taken from the Moors in 1486. Pop. 23,998 (1940).

Lo-Johansson (lō'yō.hänṡ'sôn), Ivar. b. at Ösmo, Södermanland, Sweden, 1901—. Swedish novelist, short-story writer, and poet. His most famous work is Kungsgatan (King Street, 1935), a story of modern Stockholm from the point of view of a girl stricken by venereal disease. Geniet (The Genius, 1947) is a scathing criticism of the Swedish läroverk (colleges). His other works include Godnatt, jord (Goodnight, Earth, 1933), Statarna (The Tenant Farmers, 1936–37), and Traktorn (The Tractor, 1943).

Loka (lō'ka). In Hindu mythology, a world; one of the triloka, or three worlds, usually regarded as heaven, earth, and hell. Another division gives seven, exclusive of seven hells (patalas). The Sankhya and Vedanta schools recognize eight lokas.

Lokapalas (lō.ka.pä'laz). In Hindu mythology, the eight deities who preside over the eight points of the compass, i.e., the four cardinal and four intermediate. They are: Indra on the east, Agni on the southeast, Yama on the south, Surya on the southwest, Varuna on the west, Vayu on the northwest, Kuvera in the north, and Soma, or sometimes Siva, in the northeast. Each of these has an elephant who helps to protect the region; the elephants are also known as Lokapalas.

Lokeren (lō'kę.rėn). Town in NW Belgium, in the province of East Flanders, on the Durme River ab. 25 mi. NW of Brussels. It has cotton and woolen textile manufactures, a chemical industry, and a grain and cattle trade. The Church of Saint Lawrence dates from the 18th century. Pop. 25,492 (1947).

Loket (lô'ket). [German, Elbogen.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Karlovy Vary, in NW Bohemia, on the Ohře River W of Karlovy Vary. The large castle, formerly in the possession of the margraves of Vohburg, is now used as a prison. There is a town museum and a porcelain factory. Lignite mines are in the vicinity. 2,038 (1947).

Loki (lō'kē). In Old Norse mythology, the god of destruction, fire, mischief, and evil. His father was the giant Farbauti (Old Norse, Fárbauti), his mother Laufey or Nal (Old Norse, Nál). By the giantess Angurboda (Old Norse, Angrbodha) he had three children: Jormungandr, the Midgard-serpent; the Fenris-wolf; and Hel. Loki had throughout a twofold nature. He was of handsome appearance but of evil disposition, and was at the same time the friend and the enemy of the gods. It was Loki who prompted the blind Hoder to cast the mistletoe dart at Balder, thus causing his death. For his evil deeds he was finally seized by the gods and bound in a cave. Over him was set a serpent whose poison would have fallen in drops upon his face had not his wife, Signe, caught them in a bowl. Earthquakes are said to be caused by the writhing of Loki from the drops which fall on him while Signe is emptying the bowl. Loki will remain in this cave until Ragnarok, the end of the world, when he will lead the forces of evil against the gods.

Lokietek (lô.kye'tek), Wladislaw (or Ladislaus). See Wladislaw I (of Poland).

Lokman (lok'man; Arabic, lůk.män'). [Arabic, Luqman; called "Lokman the Wise."] Reputed pre-Islamic compiler of a collection of fables and proverbs in Arabic. Luqman is the title of the 31st surah of the Koran, in the 11th verse of which are found the words "We gave to Luqman wisdom." To this shadowy character have been ascribed the circumstances and sayings of a number of men; hence Lokman has been represented as a nephew of Job or Abraham, a councilor of David or Solomon, Balaam, an ugly Ethiopian slave, a king of Yaman, a tailor, a carpenter, a shepherd. The fables are very like those of Aesop, and still more like those of Syntipas. They were first put into their present form by an Egyptian Christian named Barsuma, probably toward the end of the 13th century. They were first edited (with a Latin translation) by Erpenius (Leiden, 1615). Later editions are by Rödiger (2nd ed., 1839) and Derenbourg (1850).

Loko (lō′kō). Mande-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting NW Sierra Leone. Their population is estimated at ab. 45,000 (by T. N. Goddard, The Handbook of Sierra Leone, 1925).

Lokoja (lō.kō′jạ). Town in W Africa, an important river port in Nigeria, situated at the junction of the Niger and Benue rivers, in Kabba province, Northern Provinces. It receives produce by way of both rivers and is an important shipping point for the inland areas. 8,085 (1931).

Lokuto (lō.kō′tō). [Also: Latuka, Lotuho.] Nilo-Hamitic-speaking people of NE Africa, occupying the plains N and E of Torit, SE of Mongalla in SE Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Their population is estimated at ab. 14,000 (by M. A. Bryan, Distribution of the Nilotic and Nilo-Hamitic Languages of Africa, 1948). Each village has its own hereditary secular chief, one or more "earth chiefs" who allocate clan lands and perform rituals to ensure its fertility, and a "drum chief" for each of its quarters. The Lokuto have exogamous patrilineal clans, and age-grades. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal crops are sorghum and millet.

Løland (lē′län), Rasmus. b. at Ryfylke, Norway, May 24, 1861; d. at Asker, Norway, Oct. 12, 1907. Norwegian writer of children's stories and psychological novels.

Lolland (lô′län). [Also, Laaland.] Island of Denmark, in the Baltic Sea S of Zealand, with Falster Island forming the amt (county) of Maribo. Area, ab. 477 sq. mi.; pop. 87,150 (1945).

Lollards (lol′ạrdz). [Also, Cellites.] Semimonastic society for the care of the sick and the burial of the dead, which originated at Antwerp c1300, and flourished in the 14th, 15th, and early 16th centuries.

Lollards. English followers of John Wycliffe, adherents of a widespread movement, partly political and socialistic, and in some respects anticipating Protestantism and Puritanism, in the 14th and 15th centuries. They were also called "Bible men," from their reverence for the Bible. They differed on some points both among themselves and from Wycliffe, but in the main condemned the use of images in churches, pilgrimages to the tombs of saints, the temporal lordship of the clergy, the hierarchical organization, papal authority, religious orders, ecclesiastical decorations, the ceremony of the mass, the doctrine of transubstantiation, waging of wars, and capital punishment. Some of them engaged in seditious proceedings, and they were severely persecuted for more than a hundred years, especially after the adoption of a special statute (De hæretico comburendo) against them in 1401. Under Henry IV the place of origin and intellectual center of the movement was cut off by close clerical supervision of Oxford University; after that its principal followers were found among the landed gentry and the lower classes. Persecution became more severe under Henry V and in 1414 an uprising took place under the leadership of Sir John Oldcastle, formerly one of Henry's companions. Oldcastle was eventually captured and executed (1417) according to the statute, one of the few who actually was burned. The movement continued, but gradually it lost force, although its doctrines, and its critical spirit towards Roman Catholicism, survived in the Reformation. At the peak of the movement, probably one Englishman in four was a Lollard.

Lolli (lôl′lē), Antonio. b. at Bergamo, Italy, c1730; d. in Sicily, 1802. Italian violinist.

Lollius (lol′i.us). Unknown author from whom Chaucer professed to have derived various things in his poems. He seems to stand for Petrarch, Boccaccio, and others.

Lolly Willowes, or The Loving Huntsman (lol′i wil′ōz). Novel by Sylvia Townsend Warner, published in 1926.

Lolo (lō′lō). [Also: Alolo, Alomwe, Walombwe.] Bantu-speaking people of SE Africa, inhabiting an area E of Lake Chilwa in N Mozambique. Culturally and linguistically they resemble the Makua.

Lolo. [Also, Balolo.] Great Bantu nation in the Belgian Congo, in C Africa, occupying the basins of the Lulonga, Tshuapa, and Lomani rivers in the horseshoe bend of the Congo River, between Lake Leopold II and Stanley Falls.

Lolo. Most refractory of all the non-Chinese tribes of SW China. Their main center is in the Ta-liang-shan region of Szechwan province, though they are also found in N Yunnan and W Kweichow provinces. They have a phonetic writing.

L'Olonnois (lo.lo.nwä), François. [Supposed original name, Jacques Jean David Nau.] d. in Costa Rica, c1668. French buccaneer and pirate. He was transported to the West Indies for crimes, joined the buccaneers as a common sailor, rose to high command among them, and from 1660 ravaged the coasts of Central America. He was eventually wrecked, and was killed by Indians.

Lo Lung-chi (lô′ lúng′jē′). b. at Anfu, Kiangsi, China, 1896—. Chinese educator and journalist. He taught in China and managed several newspapers, including the Roman Catholic Yi Shih Pao. Critical of Chiang Kai-shek's regime, he helped found (1941) the Federation of Democratic Parties. He represented (1946) the liberal elements in the Political Consultative Conference. He was appointed (1949) a member of the administrative council of the People's Republic of China.

Lom (lôm). See also Lom River.

Lom. [Also, Lom Palanka (lôm′ pä.läng′kä).] Town in NW Bulgaria, in the department of Vratsa, on the Danube River at the mouth of the Lom River, ab. 48 mi. NW of Vratsa: railroad and steamship station; chief place of transshipment for NW Bulgaria. 15,182 (1946).

Loma (lō′mä). [Also: Buzi, Toma.] Mande-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting NW Liberia, SE French Guinea, and E Ivory Coast. Culturally they resemble the Kpelle.

Lomami (lō.mä′mē). [Also, Boloko.] River in C Africa, one of the great affluents of the Congo River, which it joins on the S bank midway between Stanley Falls and the Aruwimi River. It has as its source Lake Kisale in SE Belgian Congo, and runs parallel with the Lualaba from S to N. It was discovered by Cameron. Length, ab. 900 mi.

Lomas de Zamora (lō′mäs dā sä.mō′rä). [Also, Lomas.] City in E Argentina, in Buenos Aires province: suburb of Buenos Aires, in the urbanized area of that city. 125,943 (1947).

Lomax (lō′maks), John Avery. b. at Goodman, Miss., Sept. 23, 1870; d. Jan. 26, 1948. American folklorist, a collector and editor of American folk songs. He discovered his vocation while doing graduate work at Harvard University, where he received his M.A. degree in 1907, and pursued his researches while teaching at Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College and after he became secretary of the University of Texas in 1910. Throughout his lifetime he was indefatigable in collecting Western ballads, work songs, Negro songs, prison songs, and all varieties of American folk songs. Many of these first appeared in print in his collections, beginning with Cowboy Songs (1910). Others of his books are Plantation Songs of the Negro (1916), Songs of Cattle Trail and Cow Camp (1918), and The Adventures of a Ballad Hunter (an autobiography, 1947). He was also a collaborator in the preparation of The Book of Texas (1916), American Ballads and Folk Songs (1934), and Negro Folk Songs as Sung by Lead Belly (1937). He lectured extensively on his chosen subject. He was president of the American Folklore Society (1912–13), a founder of the Texas Folklore Society, and a member of the Texas Academy of Letters and of the Modern Language Association of America.

Lombard (lom′bärd). Village in NE Illinois, in Du Page County: a western residential suburb of Chicago. 9,817 (1950).

Lombard (lom′bärd, -bərd, lum′-), Peter. [Also: Peter the Lombard; Latin, Petrus Lombardus. b. at Novara, Italy, c1100; d. at Paris, c1160. Italian theologian, appointed bishop of Paris in 1159. He was called "Master of Sentences," from his work Sententiarum libri IV (Four Books of Sentences). This work, one of the principal theological books of the Middle Ages, is a collection of opinions on various subjects and was widely used as a textbook in theology and widely commented upon. Of especial importance is its section on the sacraments, which sets forth the doctrine adopted as the official Roman Catholic doctrine at the Council of Trent (1546–47).

Lombardi (lōm.bär'dē), I. [Full title, I Lombardi alla prima Crociata.] Opera in four acts by Giuseppe Verdi, with a libretto by Solera, produced at La Scala, Milan, on Feb. 11, 1843. Much of the music was afterward used by him in the opera Gerusalemme.

Lombard League (lom'bärd, -bȧrd; lum'-). Association between Brescia, Bergamo, Mantua, Verona, Cremona, Treviso, and other cities of Lombardy and northern Italy, founded in 1167 for protection against the emperor Frederick I (Frederick Barbarossa). It rebuilt Milan, defeated Frederick at Legnano in 1176, and secured liberties by the peace of Constance in 1183. It was renewed against Frederick II in 1226.

Lombardo (lom.bär'dō), Guy (Albert). b. at London, Ontario, Canada, June 19, 1902—. American dance-band leader. He came to the U.S. early in the 1920's and by 1924 was broadcasting over the radio. Lombardo's Royal Canadians (originally the Canadians), famous for their smooth style and almost unique saxophone tones, have been featured at restaurants and in motion pictures. Lombardo is noted as a speedboat racer.

Lombardo (lōm.bär'dō), Pietro. d. 1515. Venetian architect. The name Lombardo was the patronymic of many north Italian artists who flourished in Venice from the middle of the 15th to the beginning of the 16th century. It is associated with a large class of works peculiar to the early Renaissance in Venice. The most definite personality of the school is Pietro the architect, to whom are attributed two altars in the choir of San Marco (1462, 1471), the Church of Santa Maria dei Miracoli (begun in 1480), the monument to Dante (1482) at Ravenna, the Vendramini Palace, the tomb of Doge Pietro Mocenigo in San Giovanni e Paolo, and the Moro chapel in San Giobbe. He was made director of public works March 15, 1499.

Lombardo-Venetian Kingdom (lom.bär'dō.vẹ.nē'shạn, lum-). Kingdom constituted by Austria in 1815 out of the Italian territories assigned to her by the Congress of Vienna. It comprised Lombardy, Venetia, and Mantua. Lombardy was ceded to Victor Emmanuel II in 1859, and Venetia and Mantua were surrendered to him in 1866.

Lombards (lom'bärdz, -bȧrdz, lum'-). Natives or inhabitants of Lombardy in Italy. The name is used more specifically for descendants of the Langobards, an ancient Germanic people mentioned by Tacitus. Under Alboin, they conquered (568) and settled the part of northern Italy still called Lombardy.

Lombard Street. Street in London, where the north Italian merchants (some, but not all, of whom were Lombards) of the Middle Ages established themselves before the reign of Edward II. In their day, with the Germans of the Hanseatic League at the Steelyard, they had a virtual monopoly of the more profitable branches of English trade. The goldsmiths seem to have had the most ready money. On occasion they lent money on interest, and gradually took up the business of banking, as it was then understood. They did not call themselves bankers, but kept "running cashes" or current accounts. In 1677 there were no less than 37 goldsmiths keeping "running cashes" in Lombard Street. The seizure by Charles I of 200,000 pounds stored in the Tower of London forced them to keep their money in circulation, and thus contributed the origin of modern systematic banking. Lombard Street remains to this day one of the world's great banking centers.

Lombardy (lom'bȧr.di, -bär-, lum'-). Teutonic kingdom, founded in 568 by Alboin, which comprised at its height a large part of N and C Italy. Its capital was Pavia. Various Lombard duchies (such as Benevento) were founded further S in Italy.

Lombardy. Theme (province) of the Byzantine Empire, in the early part of the Middle Ages, situated in SE Italy.

Lombardy. [Italian, Lombardia (lōm.bär'dyä); French, Lombardie (lôṅ.bȧr.dē); German, Lombardei (lom.bär-dī').] Compartimento (region) in NW Italy, containing the provinces of Bergamo, Brescia, Como, Cremona, Mantova, Milano, Pavia, Sondrio, and Varese. It is bounded on the N by Switzerland, on the NE by Trentino-Alto Adige, on the E by Veneto, on the S by Emilia-Romagna, and on the W by Piedmont. It contains beautiful scenery in the northern mountain and lake region, some of the most fertile agricultural lands of Italy in the river valleys, and concentrations of industry in the cities. The agriculture produces ample harvests of grain, including wheat, maize, and rice, fodder, fruits, vegetables, and wine; livestock raising is well developed; the industries, based on Alpine water power, include metallurgical, chemical, leather, textile, and foodstuff industries. Together with Piedmont, the region was the principal seat of the Italian liberation movement of the Risorgimento in the 19th century. It is the most populous compartimento of Italy. Capital, Milan; area, ab. 9,190 sq. mi.; pop. 5,836,479 (1936), 6,550,920 (1951).

Lombok (lom.bok'). [Also: Lomboc; native name, Tanah Sasak.] Island of Indonesia, in the province of Lesser Sunda Isles, separated from Bali on the W by the Strait of Lombok, and from Sumbawa on the E by the Strait of Alas. The surface is generally mountainous, reaching a peak elevation of ab. 12,224 ft. The inhabitants are chiefly Sassaks (Mohammedan). Formerly a Dutch possession, it is now part of the Republic of Indonesia. Chief town, Mataram; area, ab. 1,825 sq. mi.; pop. 701,290 (1930).

Lombos (lōm'bōsh), Philip Alexius László de. See László de Lombos, Philip Alexius.

Lombroso (lōm.brō'sō), Cesare. b. at Venice, in November, 1836; d. at Turin, Italy, Oct. 19, 1909. Italian criminologist and alienist. As the result of long anthropometrical study, he developed the thesis that the criminal falls into a distinct biological type of mankind, forming a special class of the human genus. This subspecies is a degenerate biological phenomenon, according to Lombroso, somewhat below the savage and above the lunatic. The theory, now obsolete, was important in early criminological studies, and, though Lombroso recommended special and separate treatment for the "born" criminal as distinguished from the "circumstantial" criminal, is essentially the basis of the movement to sterilize criminals. Among his works are The Criminal: an Anthropological and Medico-legal Study, The Man of Genius, Epileptic Insanity, Political Crime and Revolutions, and The Physiognomy of the Anarchists.

Lombroso (lom.brō'sō), Jacob (or John). fl. 1656–65. Jewish physician who lived in the colony of Maryland. He practiced his profession and acquired land, was arrested on the charge of blasphemy, but escaped through the general amnesty proclaimed by Richard Cromwell.

Lom d'Arce (lôṅ dȧrs), Louis Armand de. See Lahontan, Baron de.

Lomé (lô.mā'). Principal port and capital of the French trust territory of Togo, on the Bight of Benin, W Africa. It has an excellent harbor capable of accommodating large ships, and is connected with interior points by three short railroad lines. Pop. 32,789, including 1,101 Europeans (1950).

Loménie (lo.mā.nē), Louis Léonard de. b. at St.-Yrieix, Haute-Vienne, France, Dec. 3, 1815; d. at Menton, France, April 2, 1878. French man of letters. Author of Galerie des contemporains (1840–47) and Beaumarchais et son temps (1855).

Loménie de Brienne (lo.mā.nē dẹ brē.en), Étienne Charles de. b. at Paris, Oct. 9, 1727; d. in prison, Feb. 16, 1794. French politician and prelate. He became archbishop of Toulouse in 1763, and succeeded Calonne as comptroller general of finances in 1787. He was made premier and archbishop of Sens in 1788, but was forced to resign the premiership in the same year, after having convoked the States-General for May 1, 1789. He was succeeded by the reinstated Jacques Necker.

Lomi (lō'mē), Orazio. See Gentileschi, Orazio de'.

Lomita (lō.mē'tạ). Unincorporated community in S California, in Los Angeles County, ab. 18 mi. S of downtown Los Angeles. Pop. ab. 9,000 (1950).

Lomme (lom). Town in N France, in the department of Nord, a western suburb of Lille: manufactures textiles. It suffered damage in World War II. 18,469 (1946).

Lommel (lôm'ẹl). Town in NE Belgium, in the province of Limburg, near the Dutch border and the Schelde-Maas (Meuse) Canal, N of Hasselt: agricultural markets. 13,487 (1947).

Lomond (lō'mọnd), Ben. See Ben Lomond.

Lomond, Loch. Lake in S central Scotland, lying along much of the Dunbartonshire-Stirlingshire boundary, ab. 16 mi. NW of Glasgow: the largest lake in Great Britain, famous for its beauty. It is drained by the river Leven, which flows S ab. 5 mi. to the river Clyde. Elevation, ab. 25 ft.; length, ab. 23 mi.; greatest width, ab. 5 mi.; greatest depth, ab. 623 ft.

Lomonosov (lo.mo.nô'sọf). [Former name, Oranienbaum.] Town in NW U.S.S.R., in the Leningrad oblast (region), on the S shore of the Gulf of Finland ab. 18 mi. W of Leningrad. Formerly a summer residence of the czar (18th-century palace), it is now primarily a residential and resort town. 21,900 (1935).

Lomonosov, Mikhail Vasilyevich. b. at Denisovka, Russia, c1711; d. 1765. Russian scientist. He was, in 1741, named professor of chemistry at the University of St. Petersburg, of which he eventually became rector. He is a figure of some importance in the annals of physical science, but he is now remembered chiefly for his influence upon the Russian language. Before his time, there was a wide gap between the ancient, elaborate, static language used in the church and in ecclesiastical writings, and the common speech, which had never been used for literary purposes. Lomonosov in effect created a vital and flexible literary language combining features of the two, and by the sheer power of his work in this medium made it the national standard. His memory is greatly honored in Russia to this day. He wrote a Russian grammar, a work on rhetoric, and a history of Russia.

Lom Palanka (lôm' pä.läng'kä). See Lom.

Lompoc (lom'pōk). City in S California, in Santa Barbara County, NW of Los Angeles, in the commercial flower and seed growing area of the Lompoc Valley. 5,520 (1950).

Lom River (lôm). River in N Bulgaria, joining the Danube W of Ruse (Rustchuk). It was the scene of Turkish victories over the Russians, in August and September, 1877.

Łomża (lôm'zhä). City in NE Poland, in the województwo (province) of Białystok, on the Narew River ab. 78 mi. NE of Warsaw: grain and lumber trade. It passed to Prussia in 1795, to Russia in 1807, and to the new republic of Poland in 1919. In World War I it was taken by the Germans on Aug. 10, 1915; in World War II it was occupied by the Germans on Sept. 11, 1939, then ceded to the Russians, and again occupied by the Germans in 1941. It was returned to Poland in 1945. Pop. 13,772 (1946).

Lonato (lō.nä'tō). Village in N Italy, in the province of Brescia, ab. 14 mi. SE of Brescia. Here on Aug. 3, 1796, the French under Napoleon defeated the Austrians under Wurmser. Buildings of interest to tourists were undamaged in World War II.

Londinum Gothorum (lon.dī'num go.thō'rum). A medieval Latin name of Lund.

London (lun'dọn). [French, Londres (lôṅdr); Italian, Londra (lôn'drä); Spanish, Londres (lōn'drās); Latin, Augusta, Londinium (lon.din'i.um).] Capital of England, and the commercial and cultural center of the British Commonwealth. It is situated in SE England, and comprises the County of London, on both sides of the river Thames, ab. 50 mi. from its mouth. London was first mentioned as a seaport in a charter given by King Ethelbald, dated 734. The early growth of London was due in large part to its position at the head of tidewater navigation on the Thames, to the fact that it is on a natural routeway from the continent of Europe to England, and to the fact that it was situated at the lowest practical point for crossing the Thames (Westminster Abbey is built near the ford which was the chief crossing before London Bridge was built). London was probably an ancient British town. One of the early determining factors of the site of London was the presence of hills which were safe from flood. It appears to have been resettled (c43 A.D.) by the Romans, and Londinium (called also Augusta) was the capital of Britannia in the last part of the Roman period. Watling Street, an important Roman road to Chester, had its S terminus here. After the departure of the Romans (c410) and in the early Saxon period its history is obscure, though there were bishops of London from the 7th century. However, London again became a major political center, this time because of its position of relative isolation from the Welsh and Danish menaces to the Saxon kingdom (it was once plundered by the Danes, but rebuilt by Alfred and Athelstan). It received a charter from William I (William the Conqueror), and many privileges from Henry I. Its lord mayor was one of the signatories of the Magna Charta. By the 14th century its commerce had greatly developed, and trade with the Hanseatic merchants continued until the 16th century. With the later growth of foreign trade, London's advantages and previous experience in the North Sea trade quickly brought the city a leading position in world commerce. London sided with the Yorkists in the Wars of the Roses, and with the Parliamentarians in the English Civil War. It was scourged by the plague in 1665, and was almost entirely destroyed by the great fire of 1666. Fifteen wards, 400 streets, 13,400 buildings, and 89 churches are said to have been destroyed. London is very important in the industrial economy of Great Britain. In 1935, Greater London had 24.8 percent of all industries in Great Britain. Heavy industry and textile manufactures are not present to any great extent, but it has a motor-car industry, machinery and engine manufactures, and manufactures of electrical apparatus. Other important industries include tin-plate manufactures, and lead, copper, brass, bronze, gold, and silver refining. London has 10 percent of all the ferrous and nonferrous metal refineries in the country. Food and tobacco processing are important. London has half of all the workers in England and Wales engaged in the printing and bookbinding trades. It is the leading British wool market (two thirds of all the wool imported into the United Kingdom is landed here), and has a large clothing industry. Shipbuilding, formerly important, is now almost nonexistent, only ship repair being carried on. Most of the industrial enterprises in London employ fewer than 100 workers each. The city is well served by a railroad and subway network radiating to the residential suburbs, and bus lines within the metropolitan district. About two thirds of the water supply for London is taken from the river Thames. Because of the many parks and the prevalence of buildings of from two to five stories, London covers a proportionately greater area than many other large European cities. It suffered heavily during World War II from air-raid and flying-bomb damage, mention of which is made under the headings of the separate metropolitan boroughs and districts of London. (For various objects of interest, such as the British Museum, the Guildhall, the Monument, the National Gallery, the Houses of Parliament, Royal Academy, Saint Paul's Cathedral, the Tower of London, and Westminster Abbey, and for very many local details, see the special headings.)

London. City in SE Kentucky, county seat of Laurel County, ab. 65 mi. SE of Lexington, in a farming and coal-mining region. 3,426 (1950).

London. Village in W Ohio, county seat of Madison County: trading center for a livestock and agricultural area; manufactures of steel wool, tile, and metal products. It was incorporated in 1831. Pop. 5,222 (1950).

London. City in S Ontario, Canada, county seat of Middlesex County, at the junction of the N and S branches of the Thames River, ab. 125 mi. SW of Toronto and ab. 118 mi. NE of Detroit. It is located in the C part of S Ontario and serves as the transportation hub and the commercial, industrial, cultural, and educational center of the richest farming area and most densely populated area in the province. Most of its industries are of the light variety, including the manufacture of cereals, shoes, and paper boxes. It has a library and several large provincial hospitals. The University of Western Ontario is located here. The city has named many of its streets, bridges, and public buildings after similar structures and streets in London, England, and has made an effort to maintain a connection with the great British city. When seen in the 18th century by Governor John Graves Simcoe on one of his tours, the site of the city appealed to him so much that he planned to establish the capital of Upper Canada here, but his plan was never carried out. Pop. of city, 95,343 (1951); of metropolitan area, 121,516 (1951).

London, City of. [Called "the City."] Historical "core" of London, including the area (ab. 380 acres) of the Roman Londinium and of the larger medieval walled London. It contained about one sixth of the total population of London as late as 1801, but its population has since declined drastically with the outward movement to the suburbs, and the virtually complete occupation of the City of London by offices. The first expansion took a westward direction toward Westminster, now a metropolitan borough of the County of London. As late as 1878, the City of London was separated from Westminster by Temple Bar, an archway across Fleet Street. In 1908, the 114 "parishes and places" in the City of London were unified and made one "Parish of the City of London." The City of London is under the control of the Corporation of London's Common Council, legally defined as "The Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of Common Councilmen," consisting of the lord mayor, 25 aldermen, and 206 common councilmen. The Corporation maintains Billingsgate Market (for fish), and the London Central Markets (Smithfield Market; for meat, fish, poultry, provisions, vegetables, and flowers) in the City. In addition, it maintains Spitalfields Market, founded in 1682 (for vegetables, fruit, and flowers) in Stepney metropolitan borough, and the Metropolitan Cattle Market and slaughterhouses, in Islington metropolitan borough, from which meat is sent to Smithfield Market. Spitalfields Market was originally associated with the old fine-silk industry of the area. The City of London is the commercial heart of the British Commonwealth, with the Bank of England situated here. It has its own police force of 700 men, separate from the metropolitan police force of the County of London. The nighttime (resident) population of the City was 5,268 in the 1951 census; the daytime population is over a million. Area of City, ab. 677 acres (slightly over 1 sq. mi.).

London, Convention of. Convention concluded between England and France, Oct. 22, 1832, for the purpose of coercing the Netherlands into withdrawing its troops from Belgium.

London, County of. Area in SE England, forming an administrative county, under the control of the London County Council of 19 aldermen and 118 members (constituted in 1888). The London Government Act of 1899 divided the administrative county of London (with the exception of the City of London) into 28 metropolitan boroughs: Battersea, Bermondsey, Bethnal Green, Camberwell, Chelsea, City of Westminster, Deptford, Finsbury, Fulham, Greenwich, Hackney, Hammersmith, Hampstead, Holborn, Islington, Kensington, Lambeth, Lewisham, Paddington, Poplar, St. Marylebone, St. Pancras, Shoreditch, Southwark, Stepney, Stoke Newington, Wandsworth, and Woolwich (all defined under separate headings). There are 51 parks within the county, the largest of which are Bushy Park, Hyde Park and Kensington Gardens, Regent's Park and Primrose Hill, and Richmond Park and Kew Gardens. Area of county (including the City of London), ab. 117 sq. mi.; pop. 3,348,336 (1951).

London, Declaration of. International codification of the laws of naval warfare, marking an attempt to proceed with the establishment of an international prize court under the Hague Convention of 1907. It never won official adoption, but the London Naval Conference (called in December, 1908) made a serious effort through this Declaration to achieve a formal accord to rules that were in large measure already in effect through custom. In its most controversial feature, relating to blockades, the Declaration provided that blockading forces could bar access to neutral ports or coasts. At the outset of World War I the U.S., then still a neutral nation, proposed that the Declaration of London be considered binding upon both the Central Powers and the Allies, but the proposal failed when Great Britain placed limitations upon her acceptance.

London, Greater. Metropolitan area in SE England, comprising the County of London (including the City of London), and an "Outer Ring" of suburban towns, including all of Middlesex and 40 county boroughs, municipal boroughs, and urban districts in Hertfordshire, Essex, Kent, and Surrey. Area, ab. 722 sq. mi.; pop. 8,346,137 (1951).

London, Jack. [Original name, John Griffith London.] b. at San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 12, 1876; d. Nov. 22, 1916. American author. He was at various times a sailor, gold miner, salmon fisher, and longshoreman, and traveled over and lived in much of the U.S. and Canada, in the East End of London, in Alaska, and in the Pacific. He was addicted to heavy drinking and to fits of depression. His early itinerant life saw him in jail several times. In 1904 he acted as war correspondent in Japan, Korea, and Manchuria, and was a war correspondent (1914) at Vera Cruz, Mexico. In 1906 he set out in the Snark to sail around the world and was gone for two years. London was a Socialist and believed that his doctrinal novels were his important work, but his greatest appeal lies in his stories of raw, brute action. His works include The Son of the Wolf (1900), The God of his Fathers (1901), A Daughter of the Snows (1902), The Cruise of the Dazzler (1902), Children of the Frost (1902), The Call of the Wild (1903), The Kempton-Wace Letters (1903; with Anna Strunsky), The People of the Abyss (1903), The Faith of Men (1904), The Sea-Wolf (1904), The Game (1905), War of the Classes (1905), Tales of the Fish-Patrol (1905), White Fang (1906), Before Adam (1906), Moon-Face (1906), The Iron Heel (1907), Martin Eden (1909), Burning Daylight (1910), Theft, a play (1910), When God Laughs (1911), Adventure (1911), South Sea Tales (1911), The Cruise of the Snark (1911), Smoke Bellew (1912), John Barleycorn (1913), The Abysmal Brute (1913), The Valley of the Moon (1913), The Strength of the Strong (1914), The Human Drift (1917), and Jerry of the Islands (1917).

London, John of. See John of London.

London, Meyer. b. Dec. 29, 1871; d. at New York, June 6, 1926. American politician and labor leader, a founder (1899–1901) of the Socialist Party of America. He was elected (1914, 1916, 1920) to Congress. He served as spokesman and legal counsel in trade union matters for the garment industries, and assisted in the development of the Workmen's Circle, a mutual benefit society.

London, "Outer Ring" of. Outer suburbs of London, which lie outside the County of London. All are included in Greater London. Area, ab. 605 sq. mi.; pop. 4,997,801 (1951).

London, Port of. Port along the estuary of the river Thames, extending ab. 55 mi. upstream from the Nore to London Bridge, including its great docks and other shipping facilities. It is under the control of the Port of London Authority, constituted in 1908. It is one of the greatest ports of the world. The volume of imports is normally more than four times the volume of exports, and warehousing, distribution, and reëxport form a large part of its activities. Of total tonnages landed in the United Kingdom, two thirds of the raw wool (one fourth of total world production), over 90 percent of the tea, three quarters of the rubber, and one half or more of all foodstuffs are landed at the Port of London. Large quantities of its imports of foodstuffs, wines, tobaccos, oils, and petroleum are necessary merely to supply the population of Greater London. It is unique among seaports of the world in that most of the internal traffic is moved by barges which drift with the tide. They are being replaced to some extent by powered barges. It is estimated that well over 90 percent of the water in the estuary merely runs in and out with the tide. There is a high tidal range (ab. 19 ft. at Gravesend, the pilot station) which has proven a disadvantage to modern shipping. Large ships must wait the tide at Gravesend to make the passage from there to London Bridge. Most of the docks are built on the N bank of the river Thames, with the outermost at Tilbury, Essex, ab. 26 mi. downstream from London Bridge. Some of the most important docks are the East India Docks, King George V Dock (the most modern), the London Docks, Millwall Dock, Royal Albert Dock, the Surrey Commercial Docks (built on the S bank of the Thames), the Tilbury Docks, Victoria Dock, and the West India Dock. King George V Dock (formerly known as the Royal South Albert Dock), Royal Albert Dock, and Victoria Dock taken together form the largest expanse of enclosed dock water in the world. Historically, the 19th century ranks as the period of greatest expansion and dock-building. In modern times, many processing industries have grown up along the banks of the Thames, served by these huge dock facilities. Shipbuilding is almost nonexistent, but there are ten drydocks for ship repair. During World War II the Port of London was heavily bombed, and many of its warehouses and dock facilities damaged or destroyed. Port shipping was reduced to about one third the prewar level during this period.

London, Treaty of. Name of a number of 19th-century treaties concluded at London between England and other powers, chief among which are the following: 1. The treaty of July 6, 1827, between England, France, and Russia, whereby those powers agreed to compel Turkey and Greece to accept their mediation with a view to restoring peace in the East. Greece was to be made autonomous under the sovereignty of the sultan, the Mohammedan population was to be removed, and the Greeks were to receive possession of all Turkish property in Greece on the payment of an indemnity. The offer of mediation was rejected by Turkey, which resulted in armed intervention. 2. The treaty of Nov. 15, 1831, between Great Britain, France, Austria, Prussia, and Russia, for the settlement of the Belgian question. It prescribed, among other things, that Belgium and the Netherlands should bear separately the debts which they had contracted before the union, and that they should share the liabilities contracted since. The treaty was eventually carried out. 3. The treaty of 1832 between England, France, Russia, and Bavaria, by which the crown of Greece was given to Otto Friedrich, second son of the king of Bavaria, who reigned as Otto I. 4. The treaty of March 13, 1871, by which the signatory powers of the treaty of Paris of 1856 acceded to the demand of Russia to strike out the clauses neutralizing the Black Sea.

London, Treaty of. Treaty concluding peace negotiations ending the Balkan War of 1912–13 (the First Balkan War) in May, 1913. It was important mainly for Turkish cession of territory W of the Enos-Midia line and cession of the island of Crete. But the treaty did not settle the distribution of the former Turkish territories among the victorious Balkan states. This led to the Second Balkan War (1913).

London, Treaty of. Secret treaty (April 15, 1915) between Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy. As a price for Italian entry into World War I on the side of the Allies this treaty provided that at the peace settlements Italy was to receive South Tyrol, Trieste and a substantial hinterland, northern Dalmatia, and a protectorate over the Albanian port of Valona. In addition to these concessions, which would have turned the Adriatic into an Italian sea and placed a large group of Germans and Slavs under Italian rule, Italy was to receive the Dodecanese Islands, a sphere of influence in Asia Minor, and colonial compensation in the case of Allied annexation of the German colonies. U.S. President Wilson, though yielding on South Tyrol, refused to accept the bulk of the treaty because of its violation of the principle of self-determination. He remained firm on the disposition of Istria and Dalmatia, but after the Italian occupation of Fiume (Rijeka) in 1920 and America's withdrawal from Europe these areas were for years a source of Italo-Yugoslav dispute and negotiation.

London, University of. Educational institution, founded at London in 1836, which confers degrees after examination, but, until 1898, provided no courses of instruction. Among the faculties are those of arts, law, music, medicine, science, and engineering. Among its incorporated and affiliated institutions are the London School of Economics, the School of Oriental Studies, University College, King's College, the Imperial College of Science and Technology, and Goldsmith's College. The university library has more than 400,000 volumes.

London Bridge. Famous bridge across the Thames at London, situated at the head of sea navigation, about half a mile above the Tower of London. The earliest structure of which there is historical record was destroyed (Nov. 16, 1091) by a storm and high tide. The first stone bridge was built (1176–1209) on a wooden foundation. It consisted of 20 arches. The roadway was 926 ft. long, 60 ft. above water, and 40 ft. wide. Houses were built upon it, and in course of time it became a continuous street with three openings on each side to the river. A chapel of Saint Thomas à Becket stood upon the E side. The superstructures were repeatedly devastated by fires, most notably the great fire of 1666. The eleventh span from the Southwark end formed a drawbridge flanked by a tower built in 1426, on the top of which were placed the heads of persons executed for treason. All the superstructures were removed in 1757. The present stone bridge, built by John Rennie and his sons, was begun on March 15, 1824, and opened on Aug. 1, 1831. It stands about 180 ft. upstream from the site of the old structure, which was pulled down in 1832. It is 920 ft. long, 56 ft. wide, and the central span is 150 ft.

"London-by-the-Sea." See Brighton, England.

London Company. Company of merchants and others dwelling in and near London, formed for the purpose of planting colonies in America. It was chartered in 1606, founded a colony at Jamestown in 1607, and was dissolved in 1624.

London Conference. Meeting of the foreign ministers of the "Big Five" (the U.S., Great Britain, the U.S.S.R., China, and France) at London from Sept. 11 to Oct. 2, 1945. The conference, which adjourned without securing even minor agreement, was the first open indication of a division between the U.S.S.R. and her wartime allies after the end of World War II.

London Conference on Reparations. Series of four international conferences (1920–21) attempting to reach a formula for the payment of German reparations after World War I, the two most important taking place in 1921. In the former (Feb. 21–March 14) German Foreign Minister Simons presented a German "counter-proposal" for a 30-billion-mark (7.5-billion-dollar) liability. Allied reaction to this resulted in the French occupation of Düsseldorf, Duisburg, and Ruhrort. The May meeting of the Allied Supreme Council adopted a figure of 132 billion marks, with provisions for part payment by annuities, bonds, and the like.

Londonderry (lun'dŏn.der.i, lun.dŏn.der'i). [Also: Derry, County Derry; Irish, Conndae Dhoire.] Maritime county in Northern Ireland. It is bounded on the N by the Atlantic Ocean, on the E by County Antrim and Lough Neagh, on the S by County Tyrone, on the W by County Donegal (Irish Republic), and on the NW by Lough Foyle. The surface consists of lowlands along the coast and along the E border. Inland it rises to the Sperrin Mountains along the S border (peak elevation, 2,240 ft.). The chief manufacture of the county is linen. Londonderry has large exports of eggs. The famous Londonderry Air was obtained by Jane Ross from an itinerant fiddler at Limavady (ab. 15 mi. E of Londonderry) in 1851. Londonderry is the county seat; area, ab. 804 sq. mi.; pop. 149,630 (1947).

Londonderry. [Also: Derry; Irish, Dhoire.] City, county borough, and seaport in Northern Ireland, county seat of County Londonderry, situated on an eminence known as the Island of Derry, ab. 5 mi. above the head of Lough Foyle, on the river Foyle, ab. 64 mi. NW of Belfast. Londonderry is the second-ranking port of Northern Ireland and a port of call for transatlantic steamers. Its exports include agricultural products and textiles. The town is noted for its linen manufactures. A monastery was founded here by Saint Columba in 546. The city is celebrated for its successful defense (April–August, 1689) by the Irish Protestants for 105 days against James II. The old city walls still stand, and are laid out as a promenade. 48,987 (1947).

Londonderry, 1st Marquis of. Title of Stewart, Robert (1738–1821).

Londonderry, 2nd Marquis of. Title of Stewart, Robert (1769–1822).

Londonderry, 6th Marquis of. Title of Vane-Tempest-Stewart, Charles Stewart.

London Economic Conference. [Also, World Economic Conference.] Conference (June 12–July 26, 1933) of delegates from the U.S., Great Britain, Japan, the various Continental countries, and certain agencies of the League of Nations. It considered problems of currency stabilization and international trade. Agreement on a course of action was largely negated by the U.S. desire for flexible currency settlements to aid its internal stabilization as against the European demand for more decisive measures and by the still unsettled war debts question. A few agreements are attributable to the conference: (1) a resolution by leading silver-producing countries to control stocking of silver and gradually withdraw it from the market, (2) a wheat agreement (reached in August) between principal wheat exporters, and (3) a declaration by British Commonwealth nations favoring general price "reflation" by cheap-money policies and eventual restoration of an international gold standard.

London "Green Belt Scheme." Belt of open lands to surround London roughly as a circle ab. 15 mi. in radius. These lands will eventually encompass ab. 117 sq. mi. and will consist of a succession of open fields, woodlands, parks, and the like, and will, in general, be freely accessible to the public. They will, however, be perpetually preserved from encroachment or building. Ab. 16 sq. mi. of existing open lands are to be included.

London Naval Conference. Meeting called (December, 1908) by Great Britain to write a convention covering the major aspects of naval warfare. With representation from ten major naval powers the conference finished its work with a complete and detailed document on such controversial points as the rules of contraband, but the convention failed to win ratification.

London Naval Conference. Meeting of the U.S., Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan, called (Jan. 21–April 22, 1930) to continue the work of the Washington Naval Conference (1922) by setting limitations on other than heavy vessels. The U.S. and Great Britain were given parity in almost all vessel classes. Japan was roughly in a 5:5:3 ratio to them though granted parity in submarines. An escalator clause, providing expansion by all powers if one asked for it, was included. The agreement concluded was not signed by France or Italy because of French unwillingness to give Italy the equal ratio in other ships that she had in capital ships.

London Naval Disarmament Treaty. Treaty signed on March 25, 1936, by three members of a five-power naval conference held at London beginning on Dec. 9, 1935. The U.S., Great Britain, and France set a maximum limit of 35,000 tons for capital ships and agreed to exchange information pertaining to their naval construction programs. Because Japan withdrew (Jan. 15, 1936) from the conference and Italy refused to sign, the treaty specified that the limits agreed upon might be ignored if a nonsignatory nation exceeded them and had the effect of beginning once more the naval armaments race.

London Please. Collection of four Cockney plays by William Pett Ridge, published in 1925. The volume includes the plays Some Showers, Early Closing, Damages for Breach, and Happy Returns.

London Protocol. Protocol of May 8, 1852, by which the great powers recognized Prince Christian of Glücksburg (later King Christian IX) and his male descendants as heirs to the throne of Denmark, including Schleswig and Holstein. It was not ratified by the German Diet or the estates of Schleswig and Holstein.

London Protocol. Protocol of March 31, 1877, by which the great powers called upon Turkey to make peace with Montenegro and to carry out certain reforms affecting the Christian populations in the sultan's dominions. It was rejected by the Porte (Turkish government), and Russia alone took up arms against Turkey.

"London River." See under London, Port of.

London Symphony Orchestra. Concert ensemble established (1904) by players formerly associated with the Queen's Hall Orchestra. Among the conductors have been Hans Richter, Serge Koussevitzky, Sir Edward Elgar, Wilhelm Furtwängler, Albert Coates, and Sir Thomas Beecham.

London Wall. Roman wall built between 350 and 369 around Londinium (London). It enclosed ab. 380 acres. There were originally two gates in it: the W gate, now Newgate, for the Pretorian Way (Watling Street); and the N gate, now Bishopsgate, for the road to York (Ermine Street). There was also a gate at the bridge at Dowgate, and possibly one at Billingsgate. During the Danish invasion the wall was broken down, but was restored by Alfred in 886. Posterns were then opened at Ludgate, at Cripplegate, and probably at what was later Moorgate. The wall was kept up until comparatively modern times, and fragments of it are still discernible. The most notable portion is in the street now called London Wall, between Wood Street and Aldermanbury.

Londrina (lōn.drē'nạ). City in S Brazil, in the state of Paraná. 33,707 (1950).

Lonely Queen, The. Historical novel by Henry Christopher Bailey, published in 1911.

Lonely Unicorn, The. Novel by Alec Waugh, published in 1922 and issued in America under the title Roland Whately.

Lone Star. Secret society formed in 1848 for the annexation of Cuba and other islands to the U.S. It flourished chiefly in the Southern states and was denounced by the U.S. government. Three filibustering expeditions were organized and ended in failure.

"Lone Star State." Nickname of Texas.

Long (lông), Armistead Lindsay. b. in Campbell County, Va., Sept. 3, 1825; d. at Charlottesville, Va., April 29, 1891. American soldier, military secretary (1861 et seq.) and biographer of General Robert E. Lee. He was promoted (1863) to brigadier general of artillery. Author of Memoirs of Robert E. Lee, His Military and Personal History (1886), a valuable source book.

Long, Breckinridge. b. at St. Louis, Mo., May 16, 1881—. American lawyer and diplomat. He was special assistant (1933) to the U.S. attorney general, ambassador (1933–36) to Italy, and special ambassador to Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay (1938). He served (1940–44) as assistant U.S. secretary of state, and was a member (1944) of the U.S. delegation to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference. Author of Genesis of the Constitution of the United States (1925).

Long, Charles. [Title, 1st Baron Farnborough.] b. 1761; d. at Bromley Hill, Kent, England, Jan. 17, 1838. English politician and connoisseur of art.

Long, Crawford Williamson. b. at Danielsville, Ga., Nov. 1, 1815; d. at Athens, Ga., June 16, 1878. American surgeon, pioneer in the use of ether for anesthetic purposes. Having observed the pain-killing effect of sulphuric ether gas, he performed (1842) his first operation under anesthetic. He published (1849) a record of the first five operations (1842–45) but previous to this time Dr. W. T. G. Morton had given a public demonstration of ether anesthesia and claimed prior discovery.

Long, Earl Kemp. b. at Winnfield, La., Aug. 26, 1895—. American politician; brother of Huey Pierce Long. He was elected (1936) lieutenant governor of Louisiana, served as governor (June, 1939–May, 1940), and was elected governor in 1948.

Long, Edwin Longsden. b. at Bath, England, July 12, 1829; d. at Hampstead, London, May 15, 1891. English painter and royal academician. He excelled as a painter of Oriental scenes.

Long, Gabrielle Margaret Vere. [Pseudonyms: Marjorie Bowen, George Runnell Preedy, Joseph Shearing; maiden name, Campbell.] b. at Hayling, Hampshire, England, 1888; d. at London, Dec. 23, 1952. English writer. She was awarded (1923) the Eve's prize for Windfall. Author of the biographies Mary, Queen of Scots (1929), Patriotic Lady, about Emma Hamilton (1936), This Shining Woman: a Life of Mary Wollstonecroft Godwin (1937), The Cockney's Mirror, about William Hogarth (1936), and books on William Cobbett, John Wesley (1937), and John Paul Jones (1940); of the novels General Crack (1928), My Tattered Loving (1937), Primula (1940), and The Abode of Love (1944); and of the plays Captain Banner and The Rocklitz. Under the pseudonym Joseph Shearing she wrote Forget-Me-Not (1932; American title, Lucile Clery), Moss Rose (1934), Blanche Fury (1939), and The Fetch (1942; American title, The Spectral Bride).

Long, George. b. at Poulton, Lancashire, England, Nov. 4, 1800; d. at Chichester, Sussex, England, Aug. 10, 1879. English classical scholar, historian, geographer, and miscellaneous author. He edited the Penny Cyclopedia and the series of classical texts known as Bibliotheca Classica.

Long, Huey Pierce. b. near Winnfield, Winn Parish, La., Aug. 30, 1893; assassinated at Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 10, 1935. American politician and lawyer, noted as a demagogue and operator of a powerful political machine in Louisiana. After admission (1915) to the bar, he set up in law practice at Winnfield (1915–18) and Shreveport (1918 et seq.). He was governor (1928–31) of Louisiana, and was elected (1930) to the U.S. Senate, where he served until his death. His "Share-the-wealth" plan made him (1934–35) one of the youngest serious contenders in U.S. history for presidential nomination by a major political party. In Louisiana he stressed public works, free hospitalization, free school books; and he used dictatorial techniques, suppressed civil liberties, and "invaded" neighboring states in extending his influence. He drew wide attention in Congressional filibustering, and for the virulence of his radio and Senate attacks on President F. D. Roosevelt.

Long, James. b. c1793; killed at Mexico City, April 8, 1822. American pioneer. He led an expedition (1819) to Texas for American settlement, and there proclaimed (June 23, 1819), at Nacodoches, an independent republic, naming himself president. He surrendered (1821) to Mexican authorities and was taken (1822) to Mexico City, where he was shot by a sentry.

Long, John Davis. b. at Buckfield, Me., Oct. 27, 1838; d. at Hingham, Mass., Aug. 28, 1915. American statesman, U.S. secretary of the navy (1897–1902) under McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt. He was a member of the Massachusetts house of representatives (1875–78), lieutenant governor (1879), and governor (1880–82). He was a U.S. congressman (1883–89), and secretary of the navy (1897–1902). He published a translation of Vergil's Aeneid (1879), After-dinner and Other Speeches (1895), The New American Navy (1903), and others.

Long, John Luther. b. at Hanover, Pa., Jan. 1, 1861; d. Oct. 31, 1927. American author and playwright. He published a number of stories, including Madam Butterfly (1898), which served as the foundation of Puccini's opera of that name, The Fox-Woman (1900), Billy-Boy (1906), and Felice (1908). He also collaborated in the plays The Darling of the Gods (1902) and Adrea (1905), both with David Belasco, and The Dragon Fly (1905) with E. C. Carpenter. Among his other prose writings are The Prince of Illusion (1901) and Baby Grand (1912).

Long, Loch. Arm of the Firth of Clyde, in W central Scotland, lying along much of the Argyllshire-Dumbartonshire boundary. Length, ab. 17 mi.; greatest width, ab. 2 mi.

Long, Stephen Harriman. b. at Hopkinson, N.H., Dec. 30, 1784; d. at Alton, Ill., Sept. 4, 1864. American explorer and railway engineer. He headed (1819–20) an expedition to the Rocky Mountains, discovering Longs Peak. A consulting engineer (1827–30) for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to select the route of the road, he prepared (1828) tables for grades and curvatures. He was chief engineer (1834–40) of the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad and patented (1836) a method of bracing and counterbracing wooden bridges.

Long, Walter Hume. [Title, 1st Viscount Long of Wraxall.] b. at Bath, England, July 13, 1854; d. at Rood Ashton, Wiltshire, England, Sept. 26, 1924. English statesman who, as parliamentary secretary (1886–92) to the Local Government Board, aided passage of the Local Government Act (1888), which created county councils throughout Great Britain. As president (1895–1900) of the Board of Agriculture, he made himself unpopular with dog lovers by successful though bitterly opposed measures to combat rabies (his methods entailed what dog lovers considered arbitrary killing of dogs). He was president of the Local Government Board (1900–05, 1915–16) and chief secretary to Ireland (1905–06), secretary of state for colonies (1916–18), and first lord of the admiralty (1912–21).

Longaville (long'gə.vil). Lord attending on the King of Navarre in Shakespeare's Love's Labour's Lost.

Long Beach. City in S California, in Los Angeles County, on the Pacific coast ab. 20 mi. S of Los Angeles: fifth largest city in the state; an industrial and resort community. Petroleum and natural gas are produced within the city limits; other industries include the manufacture of aircraft, automobiles (assembly), and canned foods. There are shipyards, and deep-sea fishing. The city was platted in 1881 and incorporated as a city in 1897. It is included within the urbanized area of greater Los Angeles. 250,767 (1950).

Long Beach. Town in SE Mississippi, in Harrison County, on the shore of Mississippi Sound ab. 10 mi. W of Biloxi: resort. 2,703 (1950).

Long Beach. City in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island: residential and resort community. 15,586 (1950).

Longbenton (lông.ben'tən). [Also, Long Benton.] Urban district in NE England, in Northumberland, ab. 4 mi. NE of Newcastle, ab. 270 mi. N of London. 28,071 (1951).

Long Braklond (brak'lond). See Braklond, Long and Little.

Long Branch. City in E New Jersey, in Monmouth County, on the Atlantic Ocean ab. 29 mi. S of New York: residential and resort community. 23,090 (1950).

Long Branch. Industrial and residential town in SE Ontario, Canada, ab. 8 mi. W of downtown Toronto. It is a suburb of Toronto. 8,727 (1951).

Long Bridge. Bridge about a mile long across the Potomac River at Washington, D.C. It was the main avenue of communication with the Army of the Potomac during the Civil War, and was strongly fortified.

Long Cay. See Long Island, Bahamas.

Longchamp (lôṅ.shäṅ). [Full French name, Hippodrome de Longchamp.] Race track in the W part of Paris, in the Bois de Boulogne, near the Seine River. It is the scene of the annual race for the Grand Prix de Paris. The site was occupied until the French Revolution by an abbey founded in 1256 by Isabel of France.

Longchamp, William of. d. at Poitiers, Jan. 31, 1197. English prelate, bishop of Ely and chancellor of Richard I. He had served Richard's brother Geoffrey, but left his service for that of Richard and aided in the rebellion against Henry II. He was made joint justiciar of England, with the bishop of Durham, in Richard's absence (1189 et seq.). He ousted his fellow justiciar and obtained the office of papal legate (1190), thus making himself supreme in matters both civil and ecclesiastical. His tyrannous conduct, especially in the arrest of the archbishop of York, caused a revolt under Richard's brother John; William was expelled in 1191. He joined Richard in Germany and remained the king's loyal servant, arranging to have Richard freed from his captivity by the emperor and acting as his ambassador in France, Germany, and Rome.

Longdon (lông'dən). Character in The Awkward Age (1899), novel by Henry James.

Long Eaton (ē'tən). Urban district and manufacturing town in C England, in Derbyshire, ab. 7 mi. SE of Derby, ab. 121 mi. NW of London by rail. It has important manufactures of lace. Other manufactures include pianos, pencils, upholstery, spring seating, electric wire and cables, elastic wear and webbing, and rayon knitwear. 28,638 (1951).

Longfellow (lông'fel″ō), Henry Wadsworth. b. at Portland, Me., Feb. 27, 1807; d. at Cambridge, Mass., March 24, 1882. American poet; son of Stephen Longfellow. From undergraduate days he envisioned literature as his vocation, and was spared the necessity of turning to the law for a livelihood when Bowdoin College, his alma mater, offered to establish a chair of modern languages for his incumbency, on condition that he should further fit himself for the post by study in Europe. This his father made possible, and he spent more than three years in France, Spain, Italy, and Germany before taking up his professorial duties in 1829. In 1834 he accepted a similar chair at Harvard University, beginning his services there in 1836, after a further period of study in England, Holland, Germany, and Switzerland. In 1833–34 he published Outre-Mer, a book of prose sketches of European scenes. Since the age of 13 he had contributed verse to periodicals and newspapers, but his first small volume of poems, Voices of the Night, did not appear until 1839, when he also published Hyperion, a romance in prose. His fame as a poet began with the appearance, in 1841, of Ballads and Other Poems, some of which ("The Skeleton in Armor," "The Wreck of the Hesperus," "The Village Blacksmith," "The Rainy Day," "Maidenhood," and "Excelsior") soon were numbered among the poems known to and loved by millions, if not always approved of by critics. Conscientious in his professorial routine, Longfellow was irked by its demands on his time and energies, by the deferment of his hope of exclusive devotion to writing. In 1842, for his health's sake, he spent six months in Europe, forming a lifelong friendship with the German poet Freiligrath and, in England, meeting Landor and Dickens. Later that year he published a slim volume of Poems on Slavery, which led the Liberty Party to offer him a nomination to Congress. But this he declined, and in fact took no further part in the antislavery movement, for he was by temperament neither controversialist nor crusader. From 1843 he was financially independent of his salary, but it was not until 1854 that he resigned from the Harvard faculty and gave himself altogether to creative work. Already his fame had been enhanced by the publication of The Belfry of Bruges (1846) and Evangeline (1847); it was now made secure by The Song of Hiawatha (1855), The Courtship of Miles Standish (1858), and the first part of Tales of a Wayside Inn (1863). But the death of his second wife in 1861 (his first wife had died in Europe, in 1835) was a heavy blow, and thereafter for some years he sought solace in making a poetic translation of Dante's Divine Comedy, published in 1867. His later publications included New England Tragedies (1868), The Divine Tragedy (1871), Christus (1872), and The Masque of Pandora and Other Poems (1875). During his later years, Longfellow's home in Cambridge was a place of pilgrimage for Americans, for foreign visitors, and especially for children, between whom and the white-bearded poet there seems to have been an especially affectionate rapport (by this time his best-known shorter poems were in the school readers used by practically all American children). The poet's 75th birthday was observed in schools throughout the country; he died less than a month after this heart-warming evidence that his youthful ambition had been realized. Longfellow was a figure of considerable importance in American history, being the first of the young republic's poets to achieve wide recognition abroad. Because it was simple and easily understandable; because it dealt with the most universal human emotions, or with scenes from common life, or with the high romance that everyone loves; because its idealistic and moralistic tone, and its didacticism as well, accorded with American standards in an era when the Bible was still read in almost every home; and because it was easily memorable, lyrical, and full of quotable lines, Longfellow's poetry acquired something of the character of folklore; and despite considerable changes in the fashions of poetry since his death, much of his work continues to hold its place in popular affection. Certainly he was a poet of most uneven quality; the vigor of such compositions as A Psalm of Life and Excelsior is undeniably offset by the banality of phraseology; but the narrative power of The Wreck of the Hesperus and The Skeleton in Armor, the honest sentiment of Maidenhood, The Village Blacksmith, and The Day is Done, and the emotional and thoughtful qualities, combined with adept literary craftsmanship, of some of his sonnets, for instance, will always command merited respect. However, Longfellow's reputation perhaps chiefly rests upon his achievement in one field where he has still few rivals in American literature, namely in the long narrative poem, in which he is able both to sustain interest and maintain a high poetic level, as in Evangeline, in The Song of Hiawatha, and in The Courtship of Miles Standish.

Longfellow, Samuel. b. at Portland, Me., June 18, 1819; d. there, Oct. 3, 1892. American Unitarian clergyman and hymn writer; brother of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. He edited a Life of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1886) and Final Memorials (1887), and published a number of books of hymns, and Thalatta: a Book for the Seaside (with T. W. Higginson, 1853).

Longfellow, Stephen. b. at Gorham, Me., March 23, 1776; d. Aug. 3, 1849. American lawyer; father of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. He served as a representative (1814, 1815) in the Massachusetts General Court (legislature), and was a U.S. congressman (1823–25) from Maine.

Longford (lông'fȯrd). [Irish, Longphort.] Inland county in N central Irish Republic, in Leinster province. It is bounded on the NE by County Cavan, on the SE and S by County Westmeath, on the W by Lough Ree and County Roscommon, and on the NW by County Leitrim. The surface is generally level, covered with much bogland and many lakes. Dairying is extensive, and much butter is produced. The county has limited manufactures of linens and coarse woolen textiles. The S part is crossed by the Royal Canal. County seat, Longford; area, ab. 403 sq. mi.; pop. 34,567 (1951).

Longford. [Irish, Longphort.] Urban district and market town in N central Irish Republic, county seat of County Longford, on a branch of the Royal Canal, ab. 17 mi. NE of Roscommon. 3,857 (1951).

Long Ghost, Dr. Character in Omoo (1847), novel by Herman Melville.

Longhi (lông'gē), Giuseppe. b. at Monza, near Milan, Italy, Oct. 13, 1766; d. at Milan, Jan. 2, 1831. Italian engraver. His best-known works are engravings after Correggio and Raphael.

Long Hunt. Novel by James Boyd, published in 1930.

Longinus (lon.jī'nus), Dionysius Cassius. b. c210 A.D.; executed 273 A.D. Greek critic and philosopher. He taught rhetoric for many years at Athens, among his pupils being the Neoplatonist philosopher Porphyry, though Longinus was himself an adherent of the older Platonism. He later traveled in the East, settling at the court at Palmyra as the tutor to the children of Queen Zenobia. He became her chief adviser and influenced her to break with Rome. The Roman emperor Aurelian put down the revolt and had Longinus executed. Only fragments of his work have survived. The great work entitled On the Sublime, an essay on literary style, has been traditionally credited to him, but modern criticism has demonstrated the improbability of his having written it.

Longinus, Gaius Cassius. See Cassius Longinus, Gaius.

Longis (lon'jis). [Also, Longius (lon'ji.us).] Name given in the legends of the Middle Ages to the soldier who pierced the side of Jesus with his lance.

Long Island. [Also, Long Cay.] Island in the Atlantic Ocean, N of Cuba, part of the British colony of Bahamas. The major industries are fishing and vegetable gardening. Area, ab. 130 sq. mi.; pop. 4,564 (1943).

Long Island. Island forming part of the state of New York. It is separated from Connecticut on the N by Long Island Sound, and from the mainland of New York on the NW and Manhattan Island on the W by Long Island Sound and the East River; it is also bordered on the W by New York Bay and the Narrows. The N part is a rolling glacial plain, the S part a flat, sandy plain, and the coastline is much indented. It is included in four counties, Suffolk, Nassau, Queens, and Kings (coextensive with Brooklyn). The urbanized area of greater New York has extended E ab. 40 mi. from the W end of Long Island, and the remaining part of the island is chiefly devoted to the production of agricultural specialties (potatoes, vegetables, berries, poultry, eggs) largely marketed in the city, and to estates and shore resorts. It was discovered by the Dutch in 1609, and was first settled by them c1623. Length, ab. 118 mi.; greatest width, ab. 23 mi.; area, including smaller islands belonging to the four counties, ab. 1,401 sq. mi.; pop. 5,237,918 (1950).

Long Island. See under Hebrides.

Long Island, Battle of. Battle fought at the western extremity of Long Island, Aug. 27, 1776, in which the British under Howe defeated the Americans under the immediate command of John Sullivan, Lord Stirling (William Alexander), and Israel Putnam.

Long Island City. Former city in SE New York, on Long Island, now forming a community in the W part of the borough of Queens, New York City: commercial and industrial center. It has more than a thousand factories producing food products (especially spaghetti, candy, baked goods, and sugar), furniture, machinery, paints, cut stone, shoes, and other products. It is the E terminus of the Queens Midtown Tunnel and of the Queensboro Bridge, and is also linked to Manhattan by three subway tunnels and the tubes of the Long Island Railroad, which pass under the East River. The region was settled by the Dutch in the first half of the 17th century, four towns later uniting to become Long Island City. It was a separate community until it was absorbed (1898) by the borough of Queens, when that borough was consolidated with New York City.

Long Island Sound. Arm of the Atlantic Ocean which separates Connecticut and the mainland of New York on the N from Long Island on the S. It is connected with the ocean on the E by the Race, and with New York Bay by the East River on the SW. Length, ab. 100 mi.; greatest width, ab. 25 mi.

"Long Knives." See "Big Knives."

Long Lake. Unincorporated community in NE Illinois, in Lake County, N of Chicago. 2,637 (1950).

Longman (lông'mən), Evelyn Beatrice. [Full name, Mary Evelyn Beatrice Longman.] b. at Winchester, Ohio, Nov. 21, 1874—. American sculptor. Her better-known works include bronze doors for the chapel, U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.; Torso, Victory, Henry Bacon (Metropolitan Museum, New York), and Electricity (Toledo Museum).

Longman, Sir Hubert Harry. b. Nov. 29, 1856; d. at London, March 16, 1940. English publisher. He was a partner (1880–1933) in Longmans, Green and Company.

Longman, Thomas. b. at Bristol, England, 1699; d. at London, June 18, 1755. English publisher. He was apprenticed to his uncle, John Osborn, a London bookseller, whose daughter he married (c1723) and with whom he later entered into partnership. He ultimately succeeded (c1734) to control of the business. He was a part owner of Chambers's Cyclopædia and of Johnson's Dictionary.

Longman, Thomas. b. at London, 1730; d. near London, 1797. English publisher; nephew, partner, and successor of Thomas Longman (1699–1755).

Longman, Thomas. b. 1804; d. Aug. 30, 1879. English publisher; son of Thomas Norton Longman (1771–1842). Entering the publishing firm established by Thomas Longman (1699–1755), he became partner (1832 et seq.) and head (1842 et seq.) of the house. During his management, the company published Macaulay's Lays of Ancient Rome and History of England, the novels of Benjamin Disraeli, and many works by distinguished 19th-century authors.

Longman, Thomas Norton. b. at London, 1771; d. at Hampstead, London, Aug. 29, 1842. English publisher; son and successor of Thomas Longman (1730–97). He published, with Owen Rees, Lardner's and Rees's cyclopaedias, Lindley Murray's English Grammar, and works of Scott, Moore, Macaulay, Wordsworth, Southey, and others. After 1826 they were sole proprietors of the Edinburgh Review.

Longman, Thomas Norton. b. at Farnborough Hill, Hampshire, England, June 15, 1849; d. at King's Langley, Hertfordshire, England, Nov. 1, 1930. English publisher; son of Thomas Longman (1804–79). He purchased (1890) the publishing business of the Rivington family, and published the Badminton Library, the Silver Library, the English Historical Review, the 12-volume Political History of England, the Fairy Books of Andrew Lang, the Collected Works of William Morris, and many other notable works.

Longman, William. b. Feb. 9, 1813; d. Aug. 13, 1877. English publisher and author; son of Thomas Norton Longman (1771–1842), and brother of Thomas Longman (1804–79). He entered (1829) the Longman publishing house, becoming a partner in 1839. Author of Journal of Six Weeks' Adventures in Switzerland, Piedmont, and on the Italian Lakes (1856), History of England to the Close of the Reign of Edward II (1869), and Life and Times of Edward III (1869), and an essay, History of the Three Cathedrals Dedicated to St. Paul in London (1873).

Long March. Name given to the march which began Oct. 16, 1934, when the Chinese Communists, under Kuomintang pressure, evacuated their center in Kiangsi and fought their way 8,000 miles to northern Shensi, reached on Oct. 20, 1935. An extensive account of this epic is contained in Edgar Snow's Red Star over China.

Longmeadow (lông'med''ō). Town in S Massachusetts, in Hampden County, on the Connecticut River: a southern residential suburb of Springfield. 6,508 (1950).

Long Meg of Westminster (meg; west'min''stėr). Name given to a noted scold and procuress in the time of Henry VIII. A play with this name was performed at the Fortune Theatre in 1594. The name of "Long Meg" has since been given to a number of things of unusual length, particularly to a column of red freestone near Penrith, England. It is 15 ft. in circumference and 18 ft. high, and is supposed to be part of a Druidical temple.

Longmont (lông'mont). City in N Colorado, in Boulder County: beet-sugar refineries. 8,099 (1950).

Longnon (lôṅ.nyôṅ), Auguste Honoré. b. at Paris, 1844; d. 1911. French historian, notable in the field of French historical geography. His main work was Géographie de la Gaule au VIe siècle (Geography of Gaul in the Sixth Century).

Long Parliament. Parliament which assembled on Nov. 3, 1640, and ruled during the English Civil War. On its showing a disposition to come to terms with the party of Charles I, it was purged (Dec. 6, 1648) by the army-enforced expulsion (Pride's Purge) of a large number of its members. With these members absent, the remaining members then declared the power of the House of Lords void, and appointed the High Court of Justice which tried and condemned the king; later both the House of Lords and the office of king were abolished. The Parliament was forcibly dissolved by Cromwell on April 20, 1653, but was twice restored in 1659, and was finally dissolved March 16, 1660, after providing for the summoning of a free Parliament. In its later history, especially after the 1648 purge, it was known as the Rump Parliament, since less than half of its original members were left.

Longphort (lông'fȯrt). Irish name of Longford.

Long Roll, The. Novel by Mary Johnston, published in 1911.

Longshanks (lông'shangks). Epithet of Edward I (of England).

Longs Peak (lôngz). Peak in the Rocky Mountains, in Colorado, ab. 45 mi. NW of Denver. 14,255 ft.

Longstreet (lông'strēt), Augustus Baldwin. b. at Augusta, Ga., Sept. 22, 1790; d. at Oxford, Miss., July 9, 1870. American clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church, educator, and humorous writer. He is best known for his Georgia Scenes (1835, 1840).

Longstreet, James. b. in Edgefield District, S.C., Jan. 8, 1821; d. at Gainesville, Ga., Jan. 2, 1904. American Confederate general. He was graduated (1842) from West Point and during his service in the Mexican War was wounded in action at Chapultepec. Resigning his commission as major in 1861, he became (June 17, 1861) a Confederate brigadier general and was promoted (Oct. 17, 1861) to the rank of major general in recognition of his performance at First Bull Run. Thereafter he led a division under Joseph E. Johnston and later under Lee, taking part in the battles of Yorktown, Williamsburg, Seven Pines, the Seven Days' Battles, and Second Bull Run. After the battle of Antietam, he was made (Oct. 11, 1862) a lieutenant general and led the 1st corps at Fredericksburg. On several occasions he delayed in complying with Lee's judgment; of these, the most noted is the battle of Gettysburg, where Longstreet's delay in leading the 1st corps in the assault on Cemetery Ridge necessitated the noted and unsuccessful attack on the last day (July 3, 1863) of the battle. He later served at Chickamauga and Knoxville, took part in the battle of the Wilderness, during which he was wounded, and took part in the last defense of Richmond. After the war he entered business life at New Orleans, but fell into disfavor when he joined the Republican Party. Beginning in 1869, he held the following federal offices: surveyor of customs at New Orleans, postmaster of Gainesville (Ga.), minister to Turkey, U.S. marshal for Georgia, and U.S. railroad commissioner.

Long Tom (tom). Forty-two-pound gun, originally part of the armament of the French line-of-battle ship Hoche, captured by the English in 1798, and sold to the Americans. It was used during the French attack on Haiti in 1804, was dismounted till 1812, and was placed on the General Armstrong, which ran the blockade of the British at New Orleans, Sept. 9, 1814.

Long Tom Coffin (kôf'in, kof'in). See Coffin, Long Tom.

Longton (lông'tọn). Former town in C England, in Staffordshire, ab. 34 mi. S of Manchester, ab. 148 mi. NW of London by rail. It has been amalgamated in Stoke-on-Trent county borough since 1910. It has coal mines and manufactures of pottery.

Longueuil (lông.gėl'; French, lôṅ.gėy'). Capital of Chambly County, Quebec, Canada, on the S bank of the St. Lawrence River across from the city of Montreal. It is part of the metropolitan area of Montreal. 11,103 (1951).

Longueuil (lôn.gėy'), Baron de. See Le Moyne, Charles (1656–1729).

Longueuil, Sieur de. See Le Moyne, Charles (1626–83).

Longueville (lôṅg.vēl), Duchesse de. [Maiden name, Anne Geneviève de Bourbon-Condé.] b. at Vincennes, near Paris, Aug. 28, 1619; d. at Paris, April 15, 1679. Sister of Louis, the Great Condé, and one of the chief leaders of the Fronde. She was the mistress of La Rochefoucauld, who left her when she formed a liaison with the Duc de Nemours. She was afterward a leading Jansenist and spent her last years in a convent.

Longus (long'gus). fl. probably 3rd or 4th century A.D. Greek romancer and sophist. He is the reputed author of the pastoral romance Daphnis and Chloe. Nothing is known of his life.

Longuyon (lôn.gē.yôn). Town in NE France, in the department of Meurthe-et-Moselle, near the Belgian and Luxembourg borders, ab. 35 mi. NW of Metz. It has iron, steel, and hardware industries. The town suffered damage in World War II. 4,833 (1946).

Long Valley, The. Title piece of a collection of 13 short stories by John Steinbeck, published in 1938.

Longview (lông'vū). City in E Texas, county seat of Gregg County, SE of Dallas. The city has a petroleum-refining industry, and also manufactures of lumber, farm machinery, and cottonseed oil. It was incorporated in 1872, and had a population of 5,036 in 1930. The discovery of the great East Texas oil field nearby in 1930 has contributed to the growth of the city since, and it is now the chief trading and supply center in this oil-field area. 24,502 (1950).

Longview. City in SW Washington, in Cowlitz County: lumber milling; production of aluminum ingots. 20,339 (1950).

Longwood (lông'wůd). Farmhouse in the interior of the island of St. Helena, the residence of Napoleon in his exile.

Longworth (lông'wėrth), Nicholas. b. at Newark, N.J., Jan. 16, 1782; d. Feb. 10, 1863. American horticulturist and lawyer. He produced (1828) marketable wine from Catawba grapes, and subsequently made a commercial success of wine growing and marketing with his Catawba and Isabella wines. He fostered strawberry production through his discovery that pistillate and staminate plants must be interplanted, and introduced the Ohio Everbearing Black Raspberry. Author of A Letter from N. Longworth . . . on the Cultivation of the Grape, and Manufacture of Wine, also, on the Character and Habits of the Strawberry Plant (1846).

Longworth, Nicholas. b. at Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 5, 1869; d. April 9, 1931. American legislator; great-grandson of Nicholas Longworth (1782–1863). He was a representative (1899–1901) and senator (1901–03) in the Ohio legislature, and U.S. congressman (1903–13, 1915–31) from the first Ohio district. He was the Republican floor leader (1923–25), and served as speaker (1925–31). He married (1906) Alice Lee Roosevelt, daughter of Theodore Roosevelt.

Longwy (lôn.wē). Town in NE France, in the department of Meurthe-et-Moselle, near the Luxembourg border, ab. 34 mi. NW of Metz. It consists of the fortified upper town, besieged 1792, 1815, 1871, and 1914; and the industrial lower town, which is an industrial center of the Lorraine-Luxembourg iron-ore district and has important blast furnaces, iron and steel works, and pottery manufactures. The lower town suffered damage in World War II. 12,150 (1946).

Longxuyen (lum.swin', loum.swēn'). City in S Indochina, in W Cochin-China (South Viet-Nam), ab. 100 mi. SW of Saigon, on one of the branches of the Mekong River. Fish drying and salting is an important trade here. There is also manufacturing of cigarettes and a rice-milling industry. Pop. ab. 150,000.

Longyear City (lông'yir''). [Norwegian, Longyearbyen (lông'yir.bü.ęn).] Settlement in S central Spitsbergen, on the S shore of Isfjord. It is the principal Norwegian coal-mining settlement in Spitsbergen. Winter pop. ab. 600, increased in summer.

Lonigo (lō.nē'gō). Town and commune in NE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Veneto, in the province of Vicenza, ab. 19 mi. E of Verona. There are various architectural monuments of the 15th and 16th centuries, such as the Palazzo Pisani and the nearby Villa Pisani, the latter built (1556–76) after designs by Andrea Palladio. The town, first mentioned in the 10th century, was contested between Ghibellines and Guelphs, Scaligers and Visconti (of Milan), and passed to Venice in 1404. Pop. of commune, 12,393 (1936); of town, 5,303 (1936).

Lönnbohm (lėn'bōm), Eino. Original name of Leino, Eino.

Lönnrot (lėn'rôt), Elias. b. at Sammatti, Nyland, Finland, April 9, 1802; d. there, March 19, 1884. Finnish scholar, one of the founders of modern Finnish literature. He edited collections of Finnish poems, proverbs, and riddles, and published (1874–80) a Finnish-Swedish lexicon. His great work was the collection (1835–49) of ancient folk songs and legends which he organized and published as the Kalevala, considered the Finnish folk epic.

Lono (lō'nō). See Rongo.

Löns (lėns), Hermann. b. at Kulm (now Chełmno, Poland), Aug. 29, 1866; killed at Loivre on the Western Front, Sept. 26, 1914. German writer. He exerted, in his day, considerable influence, especially on the German youth movement. His tale of peasant misery and triumph in the Thirty Years' War, Der Wehrwolf (1910), has become a boys' classic. He wrote nature sketches and poems in Mein goldenes Buch (1901), Mein grünes Buch (1901), Mein braunes Buch (1906), Mein blaues Buch (1909), and Mein buntes Buch (1913). Some of his poems, especially from Der kleine Rosengarten (1911), have been set to music and live on as popular songs. His novels include Der letzte Hansbur (1909), Da hinten in der Heide (1910), Das zweite Gesicht (1911), and Die Häuser von Chlenhof (1912).

Lonsdale (lonz'dāl), Earls and Viscounts of. Titles held by various members of the Lowther family.

Lonsdale, Frederick. b. in Jersey, Channel Islands, Feb. 5, 1881—. English playwright and scenarist. His plays and musical comedies include Spring Cleaning, Madame Pompadour, High Jinks, The King of Cadonia, The Best People, The Last of Mrs. Cheyney, On Approval, and Canaries Sometimes Sing. Among his scenarios are Lovers Courageous, The Devil to Pay, Aren't We All? and On Approval.

Lons-le-Saunier (lôn.lę.sō.nyā). [Latin, Ledo Salinarius.] Town in E France, the capital of the department of Jura, ab. 45 mi. NW of Geneva, Switzerland. It is a tourist center and health resort, as well as a center for trade in wine and in Gruyère cheeses. There are metal and woolen industries. 15,568 (1946).

Loo (lō). See under Apeldoorn.

Loo, Georges Charles Nicolas Marie Hulin de. See Hulin de Loo, Georges Charles Nicolas Marie.

Loochooans (lō'chō'ąnz). See Ryukyuans.

Loochoo Islands (lō'chō'). See Ryukyu Islands.

Look Homeward, Angel. [Full original title, Look Homeward, Angel: A Story of the Buried Life.] Autobiographical novel by Thomas Wolfe, published in 1929. Its sequel is Of Time and the River (1935).

Looking After Joan (jōn). Novel by John Palmer, published in 1923.

Looking Backward: 2000-1887. Utopian romance by Edward Bellamy, published in 1888. In it he sets forth his views of the "next stage in the industrial and social development of humanity."

Looking-Glass for London and England (lun'dọn; ing'glạnd), A. Play by Thomas Lodge and Robert Greene, published in 1594. The plot is the story of Jonah and the Ninevites, with application to London and England. It was probably written c1590.

Lookout (lůk'out), Cape. Cape in North Carolina, projecting S into the Atlantic Ocean, ab. 70 mi. SW of Cape Hatteras.

Lookout Mountain. Ridge in NW Georgia and adjacent parts of Tennessee and Alabama. It rises ab. 1,600 ft. above the Tennessee River at its N end, just SW of Chattanooga, Tenn., and is noted for the view from the mountain over the Tennessee valley. During the Civil War it was the scene of the Battle above the Clouds (which is often referred to as the "Battle of Lookout Mountain"). Peak elevation, ab. 2,126 ft.

Loomis (lō'mis), Alfred Lee. b. at New York, Nov. 4, 1887—. American physicist. He became (1926) physicist and director of the Loomis Laboratories. He served (1940–47) on the National Defense Research Committee. He has conducted researches in high-frequency sound waves.

Loomis, Charles Battell. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Sept. 16, 1861; d. at Hartford, Conn., Sept. 23, 1911. American author. Author of The Four-Masted Catboat (1899), Cheerful Americans (1903), More Cheerful Americans (1904; afterward called Poe's "Raven" in an Elevator), I've Been Thinking (1905), A Bath in an English Tub (1907), The Knack of It (1908), A Holiday Touch (1908), and Little Maude and her Mamma (1909).

Loomis, Elias. b. at Willington, Conn., Aug. 7, 1811; d. at New Haven, Conn., Aug. 15, 1889. American mathematician and physicist. He was professor of mathematics at Western Reserve College (1837–44), of natural philosophy at the University of the City of New York (1844–60), and of natural philosophy and astronomy at Yale (1860–89). He published a series of mathematical textbooks including Plane and Spherical Trigonometry (1848), Elements of Algebra (1851), and Elements of Geometry and Conic Sections (1851).

Loomis, Francis Butler. b. at Marietta, Ohio, July 27, 1861; d. at Burlingame, Calif., Aug. 4, 1948. American journalist and diplomat. He was associated with the New York Tribune, Philadelphia Press, and Cincinnati Daily Tribune. He served as U.S. minister to Venezuela (1897–1901) and to Portugal (1901–02). He was appointed U.S. assistant secretary of state (1902) and served as secretary of state ad interim (1905). He conducted the negotiations leading to final U.S. acquisition from Panama of the Canal Zone.

Loomis, Harvey Worthington. b. at New York, Feb. 5, 1865; d. at Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 25, 1930. American pianist and composer. He wrote and lectured on the music of the North American Indian. Among his compositions are The Traitor Mandolin (1900), a grand opera, and the comic opera The Maid of Athens. He also composed chamber music, cantatas, songs, and piano selections.

Loomis, Mahlon. b. at Oppenheim, N.Y., July 21, 1826; d. at Terre Alta, W.Va., Oct. 13, 1886. American inventor, a pioneer in wireless telegraphy. A dentist, he patented (1854) a kaolin process for the manufacture of artificial teeth. He experimented (1860 et seq.) with electricity, producing charges from the upper air by means of kites. He was the first to demonstrate (1868) wireless communication, and incorporated (1873) the Loomis Aerial Telegraph Company but was forced to discontinue experimentation for lack of financial support.

Loom of Youth, The. Novel by Alec Waugh, published in 1917.

Loonois (lō'o̧.nis). See under Tristan.

Loon-op-Zand (lōn'ôp.zänt'). Commune in S Netherlands, in the province of North Brabant, ab. 5 mi. N of Tilburg: agricultural trade; furniture factory. 10,993 (1939).

Loorits (lō'rits), Oskar. b. at Viljandimaa, Estonia, 1900—. Estonian folklorist. He was founder of the Estonian Folklore Archives and its director until his flight after the Russian occupation of Estonia in 1944; he later resided at Uppsala, Sweden. He is a leading authority on Finno-Ugrian mythology, especially that of the nearly extinct Livonians (or Livs). Author of Liivi rahva usund (The Religion of the Liv People, 3 vols., 1926–29), Der Volksglaube der Esten (Popular Religion of the Estonians, 1949), and many other studies.

Loos (lo.os). Town in N France, in the department of Nord, a western industrial suburb of Lille: textile industry. 14,678 (1946).

Loos (lōs), Anita. b. at Sisson, Calif., April 26, 1893—. American humorous writer and scenarist. She married (1919) John Emerson, with whom she collaborated in writing scenarios. Author of Gentlemen Prefer Blondes (1925) and But Gentlemen Marry Brunettes (1928). She wrote the play Happy Birthday (1946), and was coauthor with her husband of The Social Register (1931), and other books. She adapted the play Gigi (1951) from one of Colette's novels, and published A Mouse Is Born the same year.

Loosjes (lōs'yęs), Adriaan. b. on the island of Texel, Netherlands, 1761; d. at Haarlem, Netherlands, 1818. Dutch novelist and poet. He wrote the volume of poems Minnezangen (Love Songs, 1783), the epic De Reuze (1784), and a number of dramas. His principal work is, however, his romances. These are the historical novels Frank van Borselen en Jacoba van Beijeren (1790–91), Charlotte van Bourbon (1792), Hugo de Groot en Maria van Reigersbergen (1794), Louise de Colligny (1803), and Johan de Witt (1805). They were followed by a series of contemporary character sketches in three parts, under the title Zedelijke Vertalen (Moral Tales, 1804–05). The novel Historie van Mejnfvrouw Susanna Bronkhorst (The History of Miss Susanna Bronkhorst, 1806–07) was in epistolary form. His principal historical novel, Maurits Lijnslager, was the next to appear (1808). This was followed, finally, by four others: Hillegonda Buisman (1808), Lotgevallen van den Heere R.J. van Golstein (The Adventures of Mr. R. J. van Golstein, 1809–10), Robert Hellemans (1815), and Johan Wouter Blommestein (1816).

Looy (lō'ē), Jacobus van. b. at Haarlem, Netherlands, Sept. 12, 1855; d. 1930. Dutch author and painter. He made his literary debut in De Nieuwe Gids with highly picturesque stories, such as Stierengevecht (Bullfight), Nachtcactus (Night Cactus), and De dood van mijn poes (Death of My Cat), among others (1886–89). Later he wrote Feesten (Feasts, 1902) and the fantastic Wonderlikjke avonturen van Zebedeus (Strange Adventures of Zebedeus, 1910). He reached his climax in his description of child life, Jaapje (1917; on his youth in an orphanage), continued with Jaap (1923) and Jacob (1930). He published colorful verses in Gedichten (1932), especially the narrative poem De Ar (The Sleigh), and also did translations of Alfred de Musset and Shakespeare. His painting consisted mainly of portraits, genre scenes, and landscapes. His work is included in collections at Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Dordrecht, and elsewhere.

Lopadusa (lō.pą.dū'są) or Lopadussa (-dus'ą). Latin name of Lampedusa.

Lopamudra (lō.pą.mö'drą). In Hindu mythology, a girl whom the sage Agastya formed from the most graceful parts of different animals and introduced into the palace of the King of Vidarbha, who believed her to be his daughter. When she was grown, Agastya, who had formed her that he might have a wife and sons after his own heart, and thus acquire immortality for himself and his ancestors, asked for her in marriage. Her name is explained as meaning that the animals suffered loss (lopa) by her taking on some of their distinctive beauties (mudra), such as the eyes of the deer.

Lope de Vega (lō'pā dā vā'gā). See Vega, Lope de.

Lopes (lô'pēsh), Fernão. b. in Portugal, c1380; d. c1460. Portuguese chronicler, considered the father of Portuguese historiography and, in point of time, the first great prose writer in Portuguese and one of the first historians in Europe. Entrusted in 1434 by King Duarte (Edward) with the task of writing the chronicles of all the kings of Portugal, he wrote the Crónica del Rei D. Pedro I, the Crónica del Rei D. Fernando, and the first two parts of the Crónica del Rei D. Joao I. Other chronicles, such as the Crónica de Condestabre de Portugal, have been attributed to him.

Lopes, Francisco Higino Craveiro. b. at Lisbon, Portugal, April 12, 1894—. Portuguese soldier, president of Portugal (1951 et seq.). During World War I he fought against the Germans in Mozambique. He served afterwards in the air force, of which he became chief in 1941. A member of the Portuguese Legion, a military organization first activated during the Spanish Civil War and the force that backed the dictatorship of Prime Minister Antonio Salazar, he became the Legion's commander in 1944. On the death of President Antonio Oscar Carmona in 1951, Lopes became the candidate of the government to fill the presidential office and was elected, unopposed, on July 22, 1951.

Lopes de Castanheda (lô'pēsh dę kush.tą.nyä'dą), Fernão. See Castanheda, Fernão Lopes de.

Lopez (lō'pez), Cape. [French, Cap Lopez.] Cape on the W coast of C Africa, on the E side of the Gulf of Guinea, in Gabon territory, French Equatorial Africa. It is generally taken as the S limit of the Bight of Biafra and of the Gulf of Guinea.

López (lō'pes), Carlos Antonio. b. near Asunción, Paraguay, 1790; d. there, Sept. 10, 1862. President of Paraguay, father of Francisco Solano López. He was made first consul March 12, 1841, and from that time was practically dictator. Elected president for ten years in 1844, he was reëlected for three years in 1854, and for seven years in 1857; but these elections were merely nominal, since the congress simply obeyed his orders. His arbitrary acts caused constant quarrels with foreign nations, and in 1859 the U.S. sent a squadron to the Plata to enforce demands against him; in this case he offered to submit the question of damages to arbitration, but subsequently evaded the claim.

López, Francisco Solano. b. at Asunción, Paraguay, July 24, 1826 or 1827; killed near the Aquidaban River, Paraguay, March 1, 1870. Paraguayan soldier and dictator (1862–70); son of Carlos Antonio López. On the death (Sept. 10, 1862) of the elder López, he assumed the executive power by virtue of his father's will, and convoked a congress which elected him president for ten years. Having previously made secret preparations for war, he interfered in the quarrel of Brazil and Uruguay, and finally, without previous declaration of hostilities, seized a Brazilian mail steamer (November, 1864). Soon after this he sent a large force to invade Mato Grosso, a Brazilian province, and made war on Argentina. This led to the alliance of Brazil, Uruguay, and Argentina against Paraguay, and a long and bloody struggle known as the War of the Triple Alliance. Driven at length from Asunción, López retreated to the interior with a small force, was surprised near the river Aquidaban by a Brazilian force, and was killed.

López, Hermógenes. Venezuelan politician, president of the republic (Feb. 20, 1886–Feb. 20, 1888).

López, José Hilario. b. at Popayán, Colombia, c1798; d. at Neiva, Colombia, Nov. 27, 1869. New Granadan (Colombian) general and politician, president (March 7, 1849–March 7, 1853) of New Granada.

López, Luis Carlos. b. at Cartagena, Colombia, 1883—. Colombian poet, author of De mi villorio (1908), Posturas difíciles (1909), Por el atajo (1928), and others.

López, Narciso. b. in Venezuela, 1798 or 1799; executed at Havana, Cuba, Sept. 1, 1851. Spanish-American general and filibuster. He fought against the patriots in Venezuela, and subsequently against the Carlists in Spain, where he was governor of Valencia (1839), and became general in 1840. In 1841 he went to Cuba, became involved in revolutionary plots, and in 1849 fled to the U.S. Thence he organized three filibustering expeditions: the first (1849) was stopped by the U.S. authorities; the others (May, 1850, and August, 1851) left New Orleans and reached Cuba, but resulted disastrously and López was finally captured and shot with many of his followers.

López, Vicente Fidel. b. at Buenos Aires, 1815; d. 1903. Argentine historian, novelist, and politician; son of Vicente López y Planes. Active against the dictator José Manuel de Rosas, he was from 1840 to 1852 an exile in Chile. His chief written work is the ten-volume Historia de la República Argentina (1883–93); he edited the Revista del Río de la Plata.

López Albújar (äl.bō'här), Enrique. b. 1872—. Peruvian novelist, an early and influential regionalist. His tragic tales about the Andean Indians, whom he observed while serving as a provincial judge, were published as Cuentos andinos (1920) and Nuevos cuentos andinos (1937).

López Contreras (kōn.trā'räs), Eleázar. b. at Queniquea, Táchira, Venezuela, May 5, 1883—. Venezuelan soldier and politician, president (1935–41) of Venezuela. Named provisional president upon the death (1935) of Juan Vicente Gómez and elected the following year, he began a series of liberal reforms which marked a turning-point in Venezuelan history after a long, corrupt dictatorial regime (1908–35).

López de Ayala (lō'peth dā ä.yä'lä), Pedro. b. in Murcia, Spain, 1332; d. 1407. Spanish poet, prose writer, and statesman. He was taken prisoner at the battle of Nájera (1367) and carried to England. On his return he was made grand chancellor to Henry II. He was again made prisoner at the battle of Aljubarrota (1385). His principal works are a history, Crónicas de los reyes de Castillas, and a poem, El Rimado de palacio.

López de Ayala y Herrera (ē er.rā'rä), Adelardo. See Ayala y Herrera, Adelardo López de.

López de Cogolludo (lō'peth dā kō.gō.lyō'ŦHō), Diego. See Cogolludo, Diego López de.

López de Gómara (lō'peth dā gō'mä.rä) (or Gómora) (-mō-), Francisco. See Gómara or Gómora, Francisco López de.

López de Legazpe (lō'peŦH dā lā.gäth'pā) (or Legaspi) (lā.gäs'pē), Miguel. b. at Zumarraga, Guipúzcoa, Spain, c1510; d. at Manila, Philippine Islands, Aug. 20, 1572. Spanish conqueror of the Philippines. In 1564 he was made general of the forces destined to conquer and settle the Philippine Islands. He founded San Miguel on Zebu, in May, 1565, took possession of various other islands, began the conquest of Luzon in 1571, and founded Manila in May of that year.

López de Mendoza (lō'peth dā men.dō'ŦHä), Íñigo. See Santillana, Marqués de.

López de Santa Anna (lō'pes dā sän'tä ä'nä), Antonio. See Santa Anna, Antonio López de.

López de Villalobos (lō'peth dā Bē.lyä.lō'Bōs), Rui. d. at Amboina, East Indies, 1546. Spanish navigator.

López de Zúñiga (lō'pes dā thō'nyē.gä), Diego de. b. in Spain, c1520; killed at Lima, Peru, Feb. 20, 1564. Viceroy of Peru (1561–64).

López Domínguez (lō'peth dō.mēng'geth), José. b. at Marbella, Málaga, Spain, 1829; d. at Madrid, 1911. Spanish general and statesman. He participated in the Crimean War, and in the wars in Italy (1859) and in Morocco (1860). In politics he was a partisan of General Serrano's movement (1868–70), continuing his military career as captain-general of Burgos, minister of war (1893), and in the fighting in Cuba (1895). As a collaborator of Canalejas, he founded the democratic party and, when it came to power in 1906, he was made president of the senate. Later he held the portfolio of war and the premiership (1906).

López Pacheco Cabrera y Bobadilla (pä.chā'kō kä.brā'rä ē bō.bä.ŦHē'lyä), Diego. [Titles: Duke of Escalona, Marquis of Villena.] d. after 1643. Spanish administrator, viceroy of Mexico (1640–42).

López-Portillo y Rojas (lō'pes.pôr.tē'yō ē rō'häs), José. b. at Guadalajara, Mexico, 1850; d. 1923. Mexican novelist and politician. Author of La Parcela (1898), Novelas cortas (1900), Los Precursores (1909), and Fuertes y debiles (1919).

López Pumarejo (lō'pes pö.mä.re'hō), Alfonso. b. at Honda, Colombia, Jan. 31, 1886—. Colombian statesman, twice president (1934–38, 1942–45) of Colombia, and representative (1947 et seq.) on the United Nations Security Council. During his first administration, a far-reaching program of social and economic reform was attempted; during his second, internal party dissension arose which caused his resignation before the expiration of his term.

López Velarde (bā.lär'ŦHā), Ramón. b. in Zacatecas, Mexico, 1888; d. 1921. Mexican regional poet. Author of El Minutero (prose) and El Son del corazón, both published posthumously, La Sangre devota (1916), Zozobra (1919), and others.

López y Fuentes (ē fwen'tās), Gregorio. b. in Veracruz, Mexico, 1895—. Mexican novelist of the Revolution. A schoolmaster among the Indians, he was the author of Campamento (1931), Tierra (1933), ¡Mi General! (1934), El Indio (1935; awarded the first national prize in literature), and others.

López y Planes (lō'pes ē plä'näs), Vicente. b. at Buenos Aires, 1784; d. 1856. Argentine politician and patriot, author of the Argentine national anthem; father of Vicente Fidel López. He was president (1827) of the United Provinces of Río de la Plata.

Lop Nor (lôp' nôr'). See Lob Nor.

L'Oracolo (lō.rä'kō.lō). See Oracolo, L'.

Lora del Río (lō'rä del rē'ō). Town in S Spain, in the province of Sevilla, on the Guadalquivir River ab. 30 mi. NE of Seville: phosphate mines; trade in olive oil and citrus fruits. 11,465 (1940).

Lorain (lō.rān'). [Former names, Mouth of Black River, Charleston.] City in N Ohio, in Lorain County, on Lake Erie at the mouth of the Black River: important lake port; manufactures include iron and steel, steam shovels, machinery, clothing, and lake freight ships. It was settled in 1807, incorporated in 1836, and early became important for shipbuilding. 51,202 (1950).

Lorbrulgrud (lôr'brul.grud), The. Capital of Brobdingnag in Swift's Gulliver's Travels.

Lorca (lôr'kä). [Latin, Eliocroca.] City in E Spain, in the province of Murcia, ab. 35 mi. SW of Murcia: lead, silver, and sulfur mines; manufactures of woolen and leather goods, chemicals, and porcelain; medieval fortress. It was the seat of a bishopric as early as c300 A.D. 70,998 (1950).

Lorca, Federico García. See García Lorca, Federico.

Lord (lôrd), Austin Willard. b. at Rolling Stone, Minn., June 27, 1860; d. Jan. 19, 1922. American architect. From 1894 to 1896 he was director of the American School at Rome. He headed (1912–15) the Columbia University School of Architecture.

Lord, Herbert Mayhew. b. at Rockland, Me., Dec. 6, 1859; d. at Washington, D.C., June 2, 1930. American army officer and financial administrator. He served as brigadier general (1919) and director of finance under Major General Goethals during World War I, and was U.S. director of the budget (1922–29).

Lord, Jeremy. Pseudonym of Redman, Ben Ray.

Lord, John. b. at Portsmouth, N.H., Dec. 27, 1810; d. at Stamford, Conn., Dec. 15, 1894. American historian. He wrote Modern History (1850), The Old Roman World (1867), Ancient States and Empires (1869), Ancient History (1876), Beacon Lights of History (1883–94), and others.

Lord, Nathan. b. at Berwick, Me., Nov. 28, 1792; d. at Hanover, N.H., Sept. 9, 1870. American Congregational clergyman, president (1828–63) of Dartmouth College.

Lord, Royal Bertram. b. at Worcester, Mass., Sept. 19, 1899—. American engineer, army officer, and inventor. He was in charge (1935–36) of construction and operations on the Passamaquoddy power project; and was coordinator (1936–38) of the Resettlement and Farm Security Administrations. Appointed chief of operations (September, 1941) and assistant director (April, 1942) of the Board of Economic Warfare, he later served as deputy chief of staff (1944–45) to General Eisenhower, European theater of operations. He invented the Lord portable steel emplacement and portable military cableway used by the U.S. army.

"Lord Fanny" (fan'i). Nickname of Hervey, John (1696–1743).

Lord Howe Island (hou). Island in the Tasman Sea, E of Australia: part of the state of New South Wales. It is a volcanic island with a peak elevation of ab. 2,840 ft. Area, ab. 5 sq. mi.; pop. 179 (1947).

Lord Jim (jim). Novel by Joseph Conrad, published in 1900.

Lord Linlithgow (lin.lith'gō). Novel by Morley Roberts, published in 1900.

Lord of Burleigh (bėr'li). Poem by Alfred Tennyson.

Lord of Misrule. Ruler of the festivities celebrated during the 12 days of Christmas (December 25–January 6 in France, England, Scotland, and parts of northern Europe in the Middle Ages. In all cases he took charge of the mock, burlesque type of merrymaking in which anything and everything was permitted.

Lord of the Isles. See Isles, Lord of the.

Lord Ormont and his Aminta (ôr'mont; a.min'tą). Novel by George Meredith, published in 1894.

Lord Raingo (rāng'gō). Novel by Arnold Bennett, published in 1926.

Lords, House of. See House of Lords.

Lordsburg (lôrdz'bėrg). [Former name, Lordsborough.] Village in SW New Mexico, county seat of Hidalgo County, in a mining area: tourist center. Elevation, ab. 4,245 ft.; pop. 3,525 (1950).

Lord's Cricket Ground. Cricket ground in England, probably the most famous one in the world. It is the contesting field for the most important British and international matches. In 1787 Thomas Lord, a then famous English cricketer, desired to secure a suitable ground for a metropolitan cricket club. He succeeded in obtaining a field now known as Dorset Square, the ground being called "Lord's" and the club the "Marylebone Club." Owing to the expansion of London and the consequent increase of rent, a new ground had to be sought, and the present site, on St. John's Wood Road, a little north of the old field, was purchased. The first recorded match on the original field was played in 1788, and the first contest on the present ground took place June 22, 1814.

Lord's Prayer. [Also: Our Father, Pater Noster, Paternoster.] Most widely known and used of Christian prayers. Its primacy arises from the fact that it is the one prayer which Jesus taught his disciples and instructed them to use. From the time when the Vulgate came into general use in the 5th century until the Reformation in the 16th century, this prayer was always spoken in Latin, even by uneducated persons, and in consequence was universally known as Pater Noster, from the first two words of the Latin version; as the title of the prayer, these two words are sometimes spelled as one, Paternoster. Since the Reformation, it is generally called by English-speaking Protestants the Lord's Prayer, and by English-speaking Roman Catholics the Our Father, from its first two words in English. The prayer derives from two passages in the New Testament, but principally from Matt. vi. 9–13, which are a part of the Sermon on the Mount. Another version appears in Luke, xi. 2–4, briefer than that in Matthew, and differing in other small respects. Saint Jerome believed that Jesus had explicitly commanded the daily recitation of the prayer; in any case, its inclusion in the Mass at an early date ensured its recitation many millions of times every day.

Lord's Supper. See under Eucharist.

Loreburn (lōr'bėrn, lôr'-), 1st Earl of. Title of Reid, Robert Threshie.

Loree (lō'rē), Leonor Fresnel. b. at Fulton City, Ill., April 23, 1858; d. at Bowood, N.J., Dec. 6, 1940. American railroad official. He was president (1901–04) of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, chairman (1906–36) of the executive committee of the Kansas City Southern Railway Company, and president, executive committee chairman, and member of the board of managers (1907–38) of the Delaware and Hudson Company.

Lorel (lō'rel, lor'el). In Ben Jonson's Sad Shepherd, a swineherd, lover of Earine.

Lorelei (lôr'e.lī; German, lō.re.lī'). [Also: Loreley, Lurlei.] Dangerous cliff 430 ft. above the Rhine, between St. Goar and Oberwesel, Germany, the traditional abode of a river nymph. It is the subject of poems by Heine and others, and of operas by Mendelssohn (fragmentary) and Lachner.

Lorena (lō.rā'ną). City in SE Brazil, in the state of São Paulo. 16,541 (1950).

Lorencez (*lo.*räṅ.sā), Comte de. [Title of Charles Ferdinand Latrille.] b. at Paris, May 23, 1814; d. in Béarn, France, April 25, 1892. French general. He distinguished himself in the Crimean War, and commanded (April–November, 1862) the French army of invasion in Mexico.

Lorente (lō.ren'tā), Sebastian. b. c1820; d. at Lima, Peru, in November, 1884. Peruvian historian.

Lorentz (lō'rents), Hendrik Antoon. b. at Arnhem, Netherlands, July 18, 1853; d. at Haarlem, Netherlands, Feb. 4, 1928. Dutch mathematical physicist. He is best known for his improvements in the Maxwell electromagnetic theory of light, for his theory of electrons, by which he explained the Zeeman effect, the "Lorentz principle of correlation," and the "Lorentz transformation" in the theory of relativity. He studied at the University of Leiden, where he received his doctorate at the age of 22 with a thesis on the theory of the reflection and refraction of light. For 35 years he taught at the University of Leiden, beginning in 1878. In 1902 he received, together with Zeeman, the Nobel prize in physics for their investigations regarding the influence of magnetism upon the phenomenon of radiation. He was the author of numerous books, including Leerboek der differentiaal- en integraalrekening (1882), La Théorie électromagnétique de Maxwell (1892), Versuch einer Theorie der electrischen und optischen Erscheinungen in bewegten Körpern (1895), Zichtbare en onzichtbare bewegingen (1901), Ergebnisse und Probleme der Elektronentheorie (2nd ed., 1905), Abhandlungen über theoretische Physik (1907), The Theory of Electrons (1909), and Begunsels der natuurkunde (which appeared in many editions). His Collected Papers appeared at The Hague in nine volumes in 1934–39.

Lorentz (lôr.ents'), Pare. b. at Clarksburg, W.Va., 1905—. American motion-picture director and author. He was a motion-picture critic for some years before becoming (1935) a consultant to the U.S. government in that field, and director (1938–40) of the U.S. Film Service. While in government service he produced the much-admired documentary pictures The Plow that Broke the Plains (1936), The River (1937), and The Fight for Life (1940). Based on the picture, his book The River was published in 1938. He is also the author of The Roosevelt Year (1934) and, in collaboration, of Censored: the Private Life of the Movies (1930).

Lorenz (lō'rents), Adolf. b. in Silesia, April 21, 1854; d. at Vienna, Feb. 12, 1946. Austrian surgeon. He was especially noted for his method of reducing congenital dislocation of the hip-joint without recourse to the knife, but the true worth of his method of manipulative bloodless surgery in this and other instances was disputed by many of his colleagues.

Lorenz, Ottokar. b. at Iglau (now Jihlava), in Moravia, Sept. 17, 1832; d. at Jena, Germany, May 13, 1904. Austrian historian.

Lorenzana y Butrón (lō.ren.thä'nä ē bö.trōn'), Francisco Antonio. b. in León, Spain, Sept. 22, 1722; d. at Rome, April 17, 1804. Spanish prelate and historian. He was archbishop of Mexico (1766–72), and archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain (1772–1800). In 1789 he became a cardinal. During the French Revolution he protected many banished priests, and by direction of Charles IV accompanied and aided the Pope during his French captivity. After 1800 he resided at Rome. His most important works are Historia de Nueva-España (1770; based on the letters of Cortés), and several books (in Latin) on the Mexican ecclesiastical councils.

Lorenzo (lō.ren'zō). Venetian gentleman in love with Jessica, in Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice.

Lorenzo. Principal character in James Shirley's tragedy The Traitor, the kinsman and favorite of the duke; a subtle and traitorous schemer for the duke's death.

Lorenzo (lō.ren'tsō), Piero di. See Piero di Cosimo.

Lorenzo di Credi (lō.ren'tsō dē krā'dē). See Credi, Lorenzo di.

Lorenzo Marques (lō.ren'zō mär'kęs). See Lourenço Marques.

"Lorenzo the Magnificent" (lō.ren'zō). See Medici, Lorenzo de'.

Loreo (lō'rā.ō). Town and commune in NE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Veneto, in the province of Rovigo, in the delta of the Po River, E of Adria. It is the center of a reclaimed district of great fertility. Pop. of commune, 11,468 (1936); of town, 2,008 (1936).

Loreto (lō.rā'tō). [Also, Loretto.] Town and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Marches, in the province of Ancona, ab. 13 mi. S of Ancona. The Chiese della Santa Casa (Church of the Holy House) is a famous place of pilgrimage. According to the legend, the shrine of the Virgin was transported here by angels in 1294. Considerable damage was suffered during World War II by some buildings of tourist interest, including the Santa Casa, which, however, was repairable except for some of the frescoes. Pop. of commune, 7,081 (1936); of town, 3,310 (1936).

Loreto. Department in NE Peru. Capital, Iquitos; area, ab. 119,301 sq. mi.; pop. 358,178 (est. 1950).

Loretteville (lō.ret'vil). Village in S Quebec, Canada, ab. 8 mi. W of the city of Quebec. 4,382 (1951).

Lorhon (lôr'hōn). See Kulango.

Loria (lô'ryä), Achille. b. at Mantua, Italy, March 2, 1857; d. at Luserna San Giovanni, Italy, June 11, 1943. Italian economist and sociologist. Author of I fondamenti scientifici della riforma economica (The Scientific Fundamentals of Economic Reform, 1922), Karl Marx (1924), and Corso di economia politica (Course in Political Economics, 1927).

Loria, Gino. b. at Mantua, Italy, May 19, 1862—. Italian mathematician, author of books and articles on geometry and the history of mathematics.

Lorient (lo.ryäṅ). [Former spelling, L'Orient.] Town in W France, in the department of Morbihan, on an inlet of the Atlantic coast formed by the estuary of the Scorff and Blavet rivers. It is a fishing port, and an important naval station. It was founded in 1628 and became the seat of the French Compagnie des Indes. The commercial importance of Lorient declined after the British conquest of India, but Napoleon I made the town one of the most important strongholds of the French navy. During World War II the Germans established an important submarine base at Lorient, which was heavily bombed in 1943. After the Allied invasion of France, German forces in the town were besieged until the final German surrender on May 8, 1945. The central part of the town and the harbor installations were destroyed or seriously damaged. 45,761 (1936), 11,838 (1946).

Lorimer (lor'i.mėr), George Claude. b. at Edinburgh, June 4, 1838; d. at Aix-les-Bains, France, Sept. 7, 1904. Americau Baptist clergyman. Author of Isms Old and New (1881), Jesus the World's Savior (1883), The People's Bible History (1896), Christianity and the Social State (1898), and Christianity in the Nineteenth Century (1900).

Lorimer, George Horace. b. at Louisville, Ky., Oct. 6, 1868; d. at Wyncote, Pa., Oct. 22, 1937. American editor; son of George Claude Lorimer. He was editor in chief (1899–1937) of The Saturday Evening Post, and vice-president (1927–32), president (1932–34), and chairman of the board (1934 et seq.) of the Curtis Publishing Company. Under his editorship circulation of the Post rose from about 2,000 to over three million. Author of Letters from a Self-Made Merchant to His Son (1902), Old Gorgon Graham (1904), The False Gods (1906), and Jack Spurlock—Prodigal (1908).

Lorimer, Jacques. Possible original name of Laramie, Jacques.

Lorimer, John Henry. b. at Edinburgh, Aug. 12, 1856; d. in November, 1936. Scottish landscape and portrait painter, noted also for his architectural subjects in water color. Among his principal works are Flight of the Swallows (at the Scottish Modern Arts Association), Fête de Grandemère (Musée du Luxembourg), and Portrait of Sir Robert Lorimer (Tate Gallery).

Loring (lôr'ing), William Wing. [Called Loring Pasha.] b. in North Carolina, Dec. 4, 1818; d. Dec. 30, 1886. American soldier. He served in the Mexican War, and later with the Confederate army. He served in the Egyptian army (1869–70), attaining the rank of a general of division. He published A Confederate Soldier in Egypt (1884).

Lorinser (lō'rin.zėr), Karl Ignaz. b. at Niemes, in Bohemia, July 24, 1796; d. at Patschkau, in Silesia, Oct. 2, 1853. German physician, known for his studies of contagious diseases.

Loris-Melikov (lô'ris.mā'lyi.kof), Count Mikhail Taryelovich Tainov. b. at Tiflis (Tbilisi), Russia, Jan. 1, 1826; d. at Nice, France, Dec. 22, 1888. Russian general and statesman. He was appointed commander in chief of the Russian army in Armenia in 1877, was defeated by Mukhtar Pasha in the same year, and stormed Kars in 1877. He was appointed governor general of Kharkov in 1879, and was minister of the interior (1880–81).

Loriti (lō.rē'tē), Heinrich. Original name of Glareanus.

Lorme (lôrm), Marion de. See Delorme, Marion.

Lorn (lôrn), Jennifer. See Jennifer Lorn: A Sedate Extravaganza.

Lorna Doone: a Romance of Exmoor (lôr'nạ dön'; eks'mör). Novel by Richard D. Blackmore, published in 1869.

Lorne (lôrn), Marquis of. A title of Campbell, John George Edward Henry Douglas Sutherland.

Lorne, Firth of. Arm of the Atlantic Ocean in W Scotland, in Argyllshire, lying between the island of Mull and the Scottish mainland. Length, ab. 20 mi.; width, from 3 to 5 mi.

Loron (lō'rōn). See Tegesye.

Lörrach (lėr'äċh). Town in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Baden, French Zone, near the Swiss border, ab. 28 mi. S of Freiburg im Breisgau: cotton textile industry; metalworking, chemical, lumber, toy, and cigar manufactures. 22,689 (1950).

Lorrain (lo.raṅ), Claude. See Claude Lorrain.

Lorrain, Jean. [Pseudonym of Paul Duval: less frequently used pseudonym, Raitif de la Bretonne.] b. at Fécamp, France, 1855; d. at Paris, 1906. French bohemian poet and man of letters. Author of Le Sang des dieux (1882), La Forêt bleue (1883), L'Ombre ardente (1897), and others.

Lorraine (lọ.rān'), Cardinal of. [Title of Charles de Guise.] b. Feb. 17, 1524; d. Dec. 26, 1574. French prelate, diplomat, and politician; brother of François de Lorraine, 2nd Duke of Guise. He became archbishop of Reims in 1538, and cardinal in 1547, and was minister of finance under Francis II and Charles IX. He was, with his brother, the leader of the Roman Catholic party against the Huguenots.

Lorraine. [German, Lothringen; Latin, Lotharingia.] Region in W Europe, which has varied greatly in extent in medieval and modern times, but has always been on the border between the French and German domains. It was originally the realm of Lothair (son of the emperor Lothair I), who inherited it in 855. This kingdom, which existed but for a few years, was included mainly between the Rhine, Schelde, Meuse, and Saône rivers and the Alps. Lorraine appears as a duchy c911, and became an imperial fief under Henry I of Germany (Henry the Fowler). In about 959 the division was made of Lower Lorraine (which developed into the separate duchies of Brabant, Limburg, etc.) and Upper Lorraine. The latter continued an imperial fief. The bishoprics of Metz, Toul, and Verdun were annexed to France in 1552. Lorraine was several times conquered by France in the 17th century. It was given to Stanislaus of Poland in 1737, and on his death in 1766 reverted to France. The region thus annexed constituted a grand government with its capital at Nancy, and was bounded by Luxembourg and Prussia on the N, the Palatinate on the NE, Alsace on the E, Franche-Comté on the S, and Champagne on the W. It was afterward transformed into the departments of Meuse, Moselle, Meurthe, and Vosges. In 1871 part of it (German Lorraine) was ceded to Germany. This formed the Bezirk (district) of Lothringen in Elsass-Lothringen (Alsace-Lorraine), with Metz as capital, having an area of ab. 2,403 sq. mi. In 1919 this was returned to France by the Treaty of Versailles. Lorraine now comprises the departments of Meuse, Moselle, Meurthe-et-Moselle, and Vosges. Area, ab. 9,150 sq. mi.

Lorraine, Battle of. See Frontiers, Battle of the.

Lorraine (lo.ren), Catherine Marie de. See Montpensier, Duchesse de (1552–c1594).

Lorraine, Charles de. [Title, 4th Duke of Guise.] b. Aug. 20, 1571; d. near Siena, Italy, 1640. French soldier; son of Henri de Lorraine, 3rd Duke of Guise.

Lorraine, Charles de. See Aumale, Duc d' (1556–1631).

Lorraine, Claude de. [Title, 1st Duke of Guise.] b. Oct. 20, 1496; d. at Joinville, France, April 12, 1550 French general and politician; son of René II, Duke of Lorraine, and father of Mary of Guise (or Lorraine), mother of Mary, Queen of Scots.

Lorraine, Claude de. See Aumale, Duc d' (1526–73).

Lorraine, François de. [Surnamed Le Balafré; title, 2nd Duke of Guise.] b. Feb. 17, 1519; d. Feb. 24, 1563. French general and statesman; son of Claude de Lorraine, 1st Duke of Guise. He defended Metz (1552–53) against Charles V. He captured Calais in 1558, thus finally driving England from the Continent. He gained the victory of Dreux over the Huguenots in 1562, and was mortally wounded by an assassin at Orléans, Feb. 18, 1563.

Lorraine, Henri de. [Surnamed Le Balafré; title, 3rd Duke of Guise.] b. Dec. 31, 1550; d. at Blois, France, in December, 1588. French general and politician; son of François de Lorraine, 2nd Duke of Guise. One of the instigators of the Saint Bartholomew Massacre (1572), he became head of the Holy League in 1576. In 1588 he entered Paris with an army, with a view to deposing the king, Henry III, and was popularly acclaimed. The residents of Paris rose against the king, who fled. At the instigation of the king, Guise was assassinated at Blois.

Lorraine, Henri de. [Title, 5th Duke of Guise.] b. at Blois, France, April 4, 1614; d. at Paris, in June, 1664. French general and adventurer; son of Charles de Lorraine, 4th Duke of Guise. He took part in the insurrection at Naples (1647–48).

Lorraine (lō.rān') or Lorraine-Hapsburg (-haps'bėrg), House of. See Hapsburg-Lorraine, House of.

Lorraine (lo.ren), Louis de. [Title, Cardinal of Guise.] b. at Dampierre, Jura, France, July 6, 1555; assassinated at Blois, France, Dec. 24, 1588. French ecclesiastic and politician; son of François de Lorraine, 2nd Duke of Guise. His murder, with that of his brother Henri de Lorraine, 3rd Duke of Guise, was procured by Henry III of France.

Lorraine, Louis de. [Title, Cardinal of Guise.] b. c1580; d. at Saintes, France, June 21, 1621. French ecclesiastic; son of Henri de Lorraine, 3rd Duke of Guise.

Lorraine (lō.rān'), Mary of. See Mary of Guise.

Lorris (lo.rēs), Guillaume de. See Guillaume de Lorris.

Lorry (lor'i), Mr. Jarvis. In Charles Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities, a clerk of the London banking firm of Tellson and Company. He is a friend and companion of the Manettes during the period of their tribulations in the French Revolution.

Lorsch (lôrsh). Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Hessen, American Zone, formerly in the free state of Hesse, ab. 9 mi. E of Worms: cigar manufactures and other small industries. It is a very ancient town; the Chapel of Saint Michael dates from the 8th century, and contains tombs of Carolingian and Frankish kings. Pop. 7,763 (1946).

Lortzing (lôrt'sing), Gustav Albert. b. at Berlin, Oct. 23, 1801; d. there, Jan. 21, 1851. German composer of comic opera. Among his operas are Zar und Zimmermann (1837), Der Wildschütz (1842), and Undine (1845).

Losada (lō.sä'ᴛʜä), Diego de. [Also, de Lozada.] b. at San Lucar de Barrameda, Spain, c1520; d. at Tocuyo, Venezuela, 1569. Spanish soldier. He founded Caracas in 1567 or 1568, and carried on a bloody war with the Indians, who submitted only after the death of their chief, Guaicaipuro.

Losada or Lozada (lō.sä'ᴛʜä), Manuel. b. near Tepic, Mexico, c1825; executed there, July 19, 1873. Mexican bandit. Though he often engaged in cattle thieving and highway robbery, his power made him feared, and he was flattered by the various governments; Maximilian even acknowledged his rank as general. Early in 1873 he headed an uprising in which, it is said, 20,000 Indians were engaged. Defeated near Guadalajara, Jan. 28, 1873, he was soon after captured and shot.

Los Alamos (los al'ą.mōs). Unincorporated community in N central New Mexico, county seat of Los Alamos County, situated on a high plateau in the mesas of the Jemez Mountains: center of a 69,000-acre area developed (1942 et seq.) by the U.S. government as part of its atomic energy program. It is owned by the U.S. government and operated by the Atomic Energy Commission. Its plants utilize the raw materials produced by the atomic energy installations at the Hanford Works (near Richland, Wash.) and Oak Ridge, Tenn. The world's first atomic bombs were produced here in 1945. Pop. 9,934 (1950).

Los Alisos (lōs ä.lē'sōs). Arroyo in NW Chihuahua, Mexico, where in 1881, in a bloody encounter between the Mexican forces commanded by Colonel García, and the Apaches led by Geronimo, the latter were defeated.

Los Altos (lōs ál'tōs). Name given to a portion of W Guatemala which, on Feb. 2, 1838, seceded to form a sixth state of the Central American Confederacy. It embraced the departments of Sololá, Totonicapán, and Quezaltenango, corresponding nearly to the present departments of those names, together with Huehuetenango, San Marcos, Retalhuleu, and Suchitepéquez. The state was recognized by El Salvador, and at first by Guatemala, but was destroyed by Carrera in January, 1840, and reincorporated with Guatemala.

Los Andes (lōs än'dās). City in C Chile, in Aconcagua province: center of bag and cordage industry; terminus of the Transandine Railway. 12,409 (1940).

Los Andes. Spanish name of the Andes.

Los Angeles (los an'je.lēz, -les; lōs ang'ge.les, los). [Original Spanish name, El Pueblo de Nuestra Señora la Reina de los Angeles de Porciuncula.] City in S California, county seat of Los Angeles County, and largest city in the western U.S. Los Angeles is noted for its pleasant climate, which has attracted many retired persons from other parts of the U.S. The climate is of the Mediterranean type, with mild winters, having an average winter rainfall of ab. 15 inches, and dry, sunny summers, with temperatures moderated by cool breezes from the Pacific. Most of the city is residential, with many houses and buildings built in a distinctive architectural style showing a Spanish influence. There are numerous parks and hills in the city. N of Hollywood, and extending W beyond the city limits, are the Santa Monica Mountains, partly occupied by scattered mountainside residences. Greater Los Angeles, comprising Los Angeles and many adjacent cities including Pasadena, Burbank, Glendale, Santa Monica, Beverly Hills, and Long Beach, is the major manufacturing area of the U.S. Pacific Coast. Industries include airplane construction, petroleum refining, motion-picture production, automobile assembly, food processing, and the making of automobile tires. The immediate area produces about a third of the total output of the California oil fields, and refines much more, receiving oil by pipe lines from the San Joaquin Valley. The port of San Pedro, the principal harbor, is the second-ranking Pacific Coast port. Los Angeles receives most of its electric power and much of its water supply from dams on the Colorado River, more than 200 miles away. The city has an active cultural life, and has a large public library, museum, and Chinese, Japanese, and Mexican quarters; Olvera Street, across the plaza from the Union Station, has been restored to preserve the charm of the old Spanish town. Los Angeles is the seat of the University of California at Los Angeles (U.C.L.A.), the University of Southern California, Loyola University, Occidental College, and several junior colleges and training schools. It was founded by the Spaniards in 1781, and was occupied by U.S. troops in 1846. It was incorporated in 1850. Area of city, ab. 452 sq. mi.; pop. 1,970,358 (1950); pop. of urbanized area, 3,996,946 (1950).

Los Ángeles (lōs äng′ʜä.lās). [Also, Ánjeles.] City in C Chile, capital of Bío Bío province. 20,979 (1940).

Losanna (lō.zän′nä). Italian name of Lausanne.

Losantiville (lo.san′ti.vil). Former name of Cincinnati.

Los Banos (lōs bä′nōs). City in S central California, in Merced County, ab. 55 mi. NW of Fresno. 3,868 (1950).

Los Barrios (lōs bär′ryōs). Town in S Spain, in the province of Cádiz, near the Bay of Algeciras, NW of Gibraltar: center of an agricultural district. 12,170 (1940).

Los Chiquitos (lōs chē.kē′tōs), Llanos de. See Chiquitos, Llanos de.

Los Duranes (lōs dụ.rä′nās). Unincorporated community in N central New Mexico, in Bernalillo County, near Albuquerque. 2,873 (1950).

Losecoat Field (lōz′kōt), Battle of. See Stamford, Battle of.

Loserth (lō′zėrt), Johann. b. at Fulnek, in Moravia, Sept. 1, 1846; d. at Graz, Austria, Aug. 30, 1936. Austrian historian. Author of Hus und Wiclif (1884) and Reformation und Gegenreformation in den innerösterreichischen Ländern (Reformation and Counter Reformation in the Inner Austrian Countries, 1898).

Los Gatos (los gat′ọs). Town in W California, in Santa Clara County, SW of San Jose. 4,907 (1950).

Loshan (lō′shän′). [Former name, Kiating.] City in W central China, in Szechwan province, on the Min River. It is an important regional trade center and river port. 60,000 (1922).

Lošinj (lô′shēny′). [Italian, Lussino.] Island in NW Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia (formerly in the Italian province of Venezia Giulia, which was ceded to Yugoslavia in the Italian peace treaty of 1947); in the Adriatic Sea SE of the city of Pulj and SW of the island of Cres. Area, ab. 73 sq. mi.; pop. 10,752 (1936).

Lošinj. [Also, Veli Lošinj; Italian, Lussingrande.] Seaport town on the island of Lošinj, in NW Yugoslavia, in Croatia, formerly in the Italian province of Venezia Giulia. It is a picturesque town with old Venetian fortifications. 6,856 (1936).

Losinoostrovsk (lô″si.nọ.ôs′trọfsk). Former name of Babushkin.

Los Lunas (los lö′nạs). Village in W New Mexico, county seat of Valencia County: trading center for alfalfa, sheep, and grains. 889 (1950).

Los Mochis (lōs mō′chēs). City in NW Mexico, in Sinaloa state. 12,937 (1940).

Losonc or Losoncz (lō′shōnts). Hungarian name of Lučenec.

Lo Spagnuolo (lō spä.nywô′lō). See Crespi, Giuseppe Maria; also Martín y Solar, Vicente.

Los Palacios y Villafranca (lōs pä.lä′thyōs ē ʙē.lyäfräng′kä). Town in S Spain, in the province of Sevilla, in the Andalusian plain near the Guadalquivir River, S of Seville: agricultural trade. 10,143 (1940).

Los Ríos (lōs rē′ōs). Province in W Ecuador. Capital, Babahoyo; area, ab. 2,292 sq. mi.; pop. 134,805 (est. 1944).

Los Santos (lōs sän′tōs). Department in S Panama, in E Azuero Peninsula, on the Gulf of Panamá. Capital, Las Tablas; area, ab. 1,411 sq. mi.; pop. 61,174 (1950).

Losser (lôs′ėr). Commune in E Netherlands, in the province of Overijssel, near the German border, ab. 5 mi. NE of Enschede: cotton-spinning mills; stone quarries. 16,407 (1939).

Lossiemouth (los′i.mouth). Burgh in N Scotland, in Morayshire, on the S shore of Moray Firth. It has a fishing port, and is also a seashore resort. 3,915 (1931).

Lossie Thorpe (los′i thôrp′). See Thorpe, Lossie.

Lossing (los′ing), Benson John. b. at Beekman, N.Y., Feb. 12, 1813; d. near Dover Plains, N.Y., June 3, 1891. American historian, journalist, and wood-engraver. Among his works are Pictorial Field-Book of the Revolution (1850–52), History of the United States (1854–56), Pictorial History of the Civil War in the United States (1866–69), Pictorial Field-Book of the War of 1812 (1869), and others.

Lössnitz (lės′nits). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, ab. 17 mi. SW of Chemnitz. It was originally a mining town, but during the 19th century there was a development of wood-carving and toy manufactures, and also of textile and metalworking industries. 7,786 (1946).

Lost Battalion. In World War I, name applied to the 1st Battalion of the 308th Infantry and a detachment of the 307th (both elements of the 77th Division), which were separated from their division during an advance east of Binarville, France. The small force held out against the Germans at Charlevaux from Oct. 2 to Oct. 7, 1918, until their rescue by the 77th Division during the middle phase of the Meuse-Argonne Offensive. Half of the unit's personnel were killed or wounded.

Lost Endeavor. Novel by John Masefield, published in 1910.

Los Teques (lōs tā′kās). City in N Venezuela, capital of Miranda state. 16,351 (1950).

Lost Lady, A. Novel (1923) by Willa Cather.

Lost Leader, The. Poem by Robert Browning, referring to William Wordsworth, supposedly inspired by the latter's acceptance of the poet laureateship.

Lost Leader, The. Play about Charles Stewart Parnell, by Lennox Robinson, published in 1918.

Lost Tales of Miletus (mī.lē′tus, mi-), The. Volume of poems by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, published in 1866.

Lost Word, The. Novel by Evelyn Underhill, published in 1907.

Lot (lot). See also Lot River.

Lot. Department in S France, bounded by Corrèze on the N, Cantal and Aveyron on the E, Tarn-et-Garonne on the S, and Lot-et-Garonne and Dordogne on the W. It was part of the old province of Guyenne. In the 14th and 15th centuries part of the region comprising the present department was in English hands. Many monuments of the past have been preserved, particularly in the city of Cahors. Agriculture and livestock raising are the principal activities. Grain and red wines are exported, but potatoes, vegetables, and tobacco are also produced in considerable quantities. Industrial development is insignificant. Capital, Cahors; area, ab. 2,017 sq. mi.; pop. 154,897 (1946).

Lot (lot). In the Old Testament, the son of Haran and nephew of Abraham. He escaped the destruction of Sodom, but his wife, who looked behind her, athough warned not to, was turned into a pillar of salt. Gen. xiii. 1–12, etc.

Lot. In the writing of Geoffrey of Monmouth, a king of Norway; in Malory's Morte d'Arthur, a king of Orkney. In the first he marries Anne, sister of Arthur; in the second he marries Margawse, the sister of Arthur. Tennyson makes him the husband of Bellicent and king of Orkney.

Lota (lō′tä). Seaport in W Chile, on the Pacific coast, in Concepción province: coal-mining center. It was founded c1865. Pop. 31,087 (1940).

Lotaryov (lo.tär.yôf′), Igor Vasilyevich. See Severyanin, Igor.

Lot-et-Garonne (lo.tā.gȧ.ron). Department in SW France, bounded by Dordogne on the N, Lot and Tarn-et-Garonne on the E, Gers on the S, and Landes and Gironde on the W. It was formed from parts of the old provinces of Guyenne and Gascony, Agénois, and Armagnac. Long a center of French Protestantism (Calvin sought refuge in one of its towns), it passed to the crown of France under Henry IV (Henry of Navarre). The department is predominantly agricultural, with wheat, rye, and corn the chief crops. Specialties include the prunes of Agen, the white wines of Armagnac, and geese. There are wood, metal, ceramic, food, and other industries. Capital, Agen; area, ab. 2,078 sq. mi.; pop. 265,449 (1946).

Lothair (lō.thâr'). [French, Lothaire (lo.ter).] b. 941; d. 986. King of France (954–986); son of Louis IV. The result of his wars against Hugh Capet and the emperor Otto II was to reduce his actual power to nothing. He weakened the Carolingian line to the point where after only one year of the reign of his son Louis V, the Capetians became kings of France.

Lothair. Norman knight in Matthew Gregory Lewis's tragedy Adelgitha.

Lothair. Principal character in Benjamin Disraeli's novel of that name, published in 1870.

Lothair I. [German, Lothar (lō'tär, lō.tär'); French, Lothaire (lo.ter).] b.c795; d. at Prüm, Germany, in September, 855. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (840–855); eldest son of the emperor Louis I (Louis le Débonnaire). On the death of his father, with whom he had been alternately at war and at peace for ten years, a war broke out between him and his brothers, Louis the German (Louis II of Germany) and Charles the Bald (who was to become the emperor Charles II), over the division of the empire. He was defeated by them at Fontenoy (841), and consented to the treaty of Verdun in 843, by which he was left in possession of the imperial title and of the territory included between the Alps, the Rhine, the Meuse, the Saône, and the Rhone.

Lothair II. [Called Lothair the Saxon (sak'sọn).] b. c1070; d. near Trent, in the Tyrol, Dec. 3, 1137. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (1125–37). He was made duke of Saxony in 1106, was elected king of Germany in 1125, and was crowned by the Pope in 1133.

Lothar (lō'tär, lō.tär'). See Clotaire.

Lothar, Ernst. b. at Brünn, Austria (now Brno, Czechoslovakia), Oct. 25, 1890—. Austrian novelist.

Lotharingia (loth.ạ.rin'ji.ạ). Latin name of Lorraine.

Lothario (lọ.thâr'i.ō). Principal male character in Nicholas Rowe's play The Fair Penitent (1703). He is a libertine ("that haughty gallant, gay Lothario"), the seducer of Calista, the fair penitent. His name has become the synonym for a fashionable and unscrupulous rake. He was the original of Richardson's Lovelace in Clarissa Harlowe.

Lothario. German gentleman and aristocrat in Goethe's Wilhelm Meister's Lehrjahre. He bears an undoubted resemblance to Karl August, and is worshiped by Wilhelm Meister.

Lothian (lō'тнi.ạn). Former division of Scotland, reaching at one time from the English border to the Firth of Forth. It was later divided into three counties, East Lothian, Midlothian, and West Lothian.

Lothian, Earl or Marquis of. Title held by various members of the Kerr family.

Lothringen (lōt'ring.ẹn). German name of Lorraine.

Lothringen, Elisabeth von. See Elisabeth von Lothringen.

Lothrop (lō'thrọp), Amy. Pseudonym of Warner, Anna Bartlett.

Lothrop, Daniel. b. at Rochester, N.H., Aug. 11, 1831; d. March 18, 1892. American publisher. He founded (1868) the firm of D. Lothrop and Company, publishers of works by Edward Everett Hale, Thomas Nelson Page, and Margaret Sidney (his wife, Harriett Mulford Lothrop), as well as juvenile books. He established (1875) the juvenile magazine Wide Awake.

Lothrop, Harriett Mulford. [Maiden name, Stone; pseudonym, Margaret Sidney.] b. at New Haven, Conn., June 22, 1844; d. at San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 2, 1924. American writer of juvenile books; second wife of Daniel Lothrop. She is remembered chiefly for Five Little Peppers and How They Grew (1881). Her other works include So As By Fire (1881), Dilly and the Captain (1887), A Little Maid of Concord Town (1898), and A Little Maid of Boston Town (1910).

Lothur (lō'тнėr). See Lodur.

Loti (lo.tē), Pierre. [Pseudonym of Louis Marie Julien Viaud.] b. at Rochefort, Charente-Maritime, France, Jan. 14, 1850; d. at Hendaye, France, June 10, 1923. French novelist. He served in the French navy, traveled extensively, and took part in several campaigns. Because of his shyness, his comrades nicknamed him Loti, after an Indian flower. The settings of his novels are frequently the scenes of his tours of foreign duty. The stories are full of simple characters, grand seascapes, exotic colors, sounds, and smells, of nostalgia for past happiness, and of a brooding preoccupation with death. His works include Aziyadé (1879), Rarahu: idylle polynésienne, the reprint of which was entitled Le Mariage de Loti (1880), Le Roman d'un Spahi (1881), Fleurs d'ennui, Pasquala Ivnovitch, Suleima (1882), Mon Frère Yves (1883), Les Trois dames de la Kasbah (1884), Pêcheur d'Islande (1886), Madame Chrysanthème, Propos d'exil (1887), Japoneries d'automne (1889), Au Maroc (1890), Le Roman d'un enfant (1890), Le Livre de la pitié et de la mort (1891), Fantôme d'Orient (1892), Matelot (1893), Ramuntcho (1897), Judith Renaudin (1898), Les Désanchantées (1906), and others.

Lotichius (lọ.tik'i.us), Petrus Secundus. b. at Niederzell, Germany, 1528; d. 1560. German professor of medicine and neo-Latin poet in the manner of Ovid and Vergil. His elegies and songs were printed in 1551 as Elegiarum liber et carminum libellus.

Lot Kamehameha (lot kä.mā'hä.mā'hä). See Kamehameha V.

Lot of Talk, A. Novel by Helen Ashton, published in 1927.

Lotophagi (lō.tof'ạ.gī). In Greek legend, especially as given in the Odyssey, the name of a people who ate the fruit of a plant called the lotus, conjecturally identified with various plants which have borne that name. Those of the followers of Odysseus (or Ulysses) who ate of it are described as being rendered forgetful of their friends, homes, and native land. The Lotophagi lived on the northern coast of Africa in Tripoli, and on the island of Meninx (Lotophagitis, modern Djerba) in Tunisia.

Lot River (lot). [Ancient names, Altis, Oltis.] River in S France, which joins the Garonne at Aiguillon. Length, ab. 300 mi.

Lötschberg Railway (lėch'berk). Railway in S central Switzerland, between Spiez, in Bern canton, and Brigue, in Valais canton. It was built in 1907–13, and passes through the Bernese Alps by a tunnel ab. 9.1 mi. in length. Length of railway, ab. 46 mi.

Lötschen Valley (l t'shẹn). [German, Lötschental (lėt'shẹn.täl).] Valley in S central Switzerland, in the canton of Valais, traversed by the Lonza, a tributary of the Rhone. Length, ab. 16 mi.

Lotta (lot'ạ). See Crabtree, Lotta.

Lotte (lot'ẹ). Wife of Albert, and the object of the affections of Werther, in Goethe's Die Leiden des jungen Werthers (The Sorrows of Young Werther, 1774). She is the portrait of Charlotte Buff, one of Goethe's friends.

"Lottery Case." See Champion v. Ames, 188 U.S. 321 (1903).

Lotti (lôt'tē), Antonio. b. probably at Venice, c1667; d. there, Jan. 5, 1740. Italian composer. In addition to many church works, he composed a number of operas and published a collection of madrigals.

Lotuho (lō.tō'hō). See Lokuto.

Lotze (lot.sẹ), Rudolf Hermann. b. at Bautzen, Saxony, Germany, May 21, 1817; d. at Berlin, July 1, 1881. German physician, philosopher, and psychologist. He helped set the fashion for "physiologizing" psychology with the publication of his Medicinische Psychologie (1852), "a medical psychology, or psychology of the soul." He opposed, as a physiologist, the theory of a "vital force," and, as a metaphysician, elaborated a system of ideal-realism or teleological idealism. As a psychologist he is perhaps best known for his theory of space perception. He asserted that mind was inherently capable of arranging mental experiences spatially, and is compelled to do so; that the notion of space derives from the intensive aspect of experiences; and that every visual or tactual stimulus sets up an intensive pattern that is specific for the point stimulated. This particular pattern he named a "local sign." By movement of the eyes or body parts, these local signs are related spatially and are brought to mean locality in space; thus, mind uses the local signs to create both space and locality for the experiences. This theory is an antecedent of contemporary functionalism. His books include Metaphysik (1841), Allgemeine Pathologie und Therapie als mechanische Naturwissenschaften (1842), Logik (1843), Allgemeine Physiologie des körperlichen Lebens (1851), Physiologische Untersuchungen (1853), Mikrokosmus (3 vols., 1856–64), and Systeme der Philosophie (2 vols., 1874, 1879).

Lötzen (lĕt'sən). German name of Giżycko.

Loualaba (lwä.lä.bä). French spelling of Lualaba.

Louba (lö.bä). French spelling of Luba.

Loube (löb), Mount. See under Brignoles.

Loubet (lö.be), Émile. b. at Marsanne, Drôme, France, Dec. 31, 1838; d. at La Bégude-de-Mazenc, Drôme, France, Dec. 20, 1929. French political leader and lawyer, president (1899–1906) of the Third Republic, whose administration was marked by establishment (1904) of the Entente Cordiale with Great Britain. He was a deputy (1876–85) and senator (1885–99), and held the premiership (1892) and the cabinet posts of public works (1887–88) and interior (1892–93). He was president (1896–99) of the Senate. A leader of the Republicans and Dreyfusards, he was constantly under attack by the anti-Dreyfus groups, but eventually was able to rally Republican groups to clear Dreyfus and consolidate the republic in the face of its internal opposition. During his administration separation of church and state was accomplished (1905).

Loucheur (lö.shėr), Louis. b. at Roubaix, France, Aug. 12, 1872; d. at Paris, Nov. 22, 1931. French industrialist and political leader, in charge of armaments production in France during World War I. Active in private industry before the war, he was assigned by Alexandre Millerand to the organization of war production. He became (1916) undersecretary of state for war production, was named (1917) minister of armament, was appointed (November, 1917) by Georges Clemenceau a member of the war committee of the cabinet, and served (1918 et seq.) as minister of national reconstruction. While minister of liberated regions (1921–22), he signed with Walther Rathenau important economic agreements for the exchange of goods with Germany. He subsequently held the cabinet posts of the departments of commerce (1924, 1926), finance (1925), labor (1928–30), and national economy (1930–31). As minister of labor, he introduced legislation to improve housing conditions.

Loucheur-Rathenau Agreements (lö.shėr'rä'tẹ.nou). Series of agreements concluded in 1921 between the French minister for liberated regions Louis Loucheur and the German minister for reconstruction Walther Rathenau on methods for paying in kind a share of Germany's World War I reparations obligations.

Loucheux (lö.shė). See Kutchin.

Loudéac (lö.dā.äk). Town in NW France, in the department of Côtes-du-Nord. It is an agricultural trade center. The chapel of the Church of Notre-Dame-des-Vertus dates from the 13th century. 5,876 (1946).

Louderback (lou'dėr.bak), George Davis. b. at San Francisco, April 6, 1874—. American geologist. He conducted geological expeditions into the Chinese interior for the Standard Oil Company and the Chinese government, and discovered benitoite and other minerals.

Loudon (lou'dọn). Town in E Tennessee, county seat of Loudon County: shipping center for farm products; manufactures hosiery and chairs. 3,567 (1950).

Loudon (lou'dọn; German, lou'dȯn), Baron Gideon Ernst von. See Laudon, Baron Gideon Ernst von.

Loudon (lou'dọn), John Claudius. b. at Cambusland, near Glasgow, April 8, 1783; d. at London, Dec. 14, 1843. English landscape gardener and horticulturist. He published Encyclopaedia of Cottage, Farm, and Villa Architecture (1832), Arboretum et Fruticetum Britannicum (1838), and other encyclopedic works.

Loudon, Samuel. b. probably in Ireland, c1727; d. near Middletown Point, N.J., Feb. 24, 1813. American printer and publisher. He established (1776) The New York Packet and the American Advertiser, which became (1792) the Diary or Loudon's Register. He printed (1786) Laws of the State of New York.

Loudonville (lou'dọn.vil). Village in N central Ohio, in Ashland County, on a tributary of the Mohican River, ab. 60 mi. NE of Columbus: manufactures of buses and other motor vehicles. 2,523 (1950).

Loudoun (lou'dọn), Earl of. Title held by various members of the Campbell family.

Loudun (lö.dĕⁿ). Town in W central France, in the department of Vienne, ab. 39 mi. SW of Tours. It was formerly a stronghold of the French Protestants. 5,313 (1946).

Lough (loch). Irish word meaning "lake" or "bay": for entries not found immediately below see the distinguishing element of the name.

Lough (luf), John Graham. b. at Greenhead, Northumberland, England, c1804; d. at London, April 8, 1876. English sculptor.

Loughborough (luf'bur"ō, -bėr.ō). Municipal borough and market town in C England, in Leicestershire, ab. 10 mi. NW of Leicester, ab. 112 mi. N of London by rail. It has manufactures of electrical and railway equipment, worsteds and woolen yarn, and woolen knitwear. Loughborough also is noted for its bell foundry (the great bell of Saint Paul's Cathedral at London was cast here in 1881). Pop. 34,731 (1951).

Loughborough, 1st Baron. A title of Wedderburn, Alexander.

Loughor (luch'ọr). See Llwchwr.

Louhans (lö.äⁿ). Town in E central France, in the department of Saône-et-Loire. It was damaged in World War II. 4,120 (1946).

Louis (lö'is, lö'i), Saint. See Louis IX (of France).

Louis I (of Bavaria). b. at Strasbourg, Aug. 25, 1786; d. at Nice, Feb. 29, 1868. King of Bavaria (1825–48); son of Maximilian I (Maximilian I Joseph). He was a patron of art and literature, a notable contributor to charity, and a sponsor of much public building, especially at Munich. On the outbreak of the revolution in 1848 he abdicated in favor of his son Maximilian II. A liaison with the dancer Lola Montez contributed to his unpopularity.

Louis II (of Bavaria). b. at Nymphenburg, near Munich, Aug. 25, 1845; d. June 13, 1886. King of Bavaria (1864–86); son of Maximilian II. He supported Austria against Prussia (1866) and Prussia against France (1870–71). He joined the North German Zollverein in 1867, and became a member of the German Empire in 1871; it was he who officially (though on the initiative of Bismarck) invited William I to accept the imperial crown. He is chiefly known as the patron of Richard Wagner. As the years passed he became gradually more and more withdrawn from society; he grew to fear assassination and became extravagant in his expenditures on entertainments and gifts; he was ruined financially, was officially declared insane, and was confined (1886) in the palace of Berg on Lake Starnberg, near Munich. He committed suicide by drowning in the lake three days after the declaration of a regency, and was succeeded by his brother Otto.

Louis I (of France). See Louis I (of the Holy Roman Empire).

Louis II (of France) (lö'i; French, lwē). [Called Le Bègue, meaning "the Stammerer."] b. 846; d. at Compiègne, France, April 10, 879. King of France (877–879); son of Charles the Bald (Charles II of the Holy Roman Empire) whom he succeeded as king of the West Franks.

Louis III (of France). b. c863; d. at St. Denis, Aug. 5, 882. King of France (879–882), conjointly with his brother Carloman; son of Louis II. Louis ruled north of the Loire, Carloman to the south; after Louis's death, Carloman ruled the entire kingdom. Together the brothers resisted rival claims and turned back (881) the Northmen at Saucourt.

Louis IV (of France). [Called D'Outre-Mer (dö.trẹ.mer), meaning "from beyond the sea."] b. 921; d. Sept. 10, 954. King of France (936–954); son of Charles III (Charles the Simple). During his reign the kingdom was practically governed by Hugh the Great, Count of Paris, and other powerful vassals. He received his surname from the fact that he was, on the death of his father, carried to England by his mother, Eadgifu, sister of Athelstan, King of England, to avoid falling into the hands of his rival, Rudolph of Burgundy, who had been elected king of France by the nobles. He returned from England on the death of Rudolph in 936. Soon after his accession, he attempted to show his independence of Hugh, who thereupon rebelled, and with the aid of the emperor, Otto I, fought successfully against Louis. Louis was captured (945) and forced to ransom himself by ceding Laon to Hugh, but this caused Otto to side with Louis and he regained control of his realm. The last years of his reign saw a continuation of the internal struggle with Hugh and an invasion (c951) by the Hungarians of southern France.

Louis V (of France). [Called Le Fainéant (lę fe.nā.äṅ), meaning "the Sluggard."] b. c966; d. May, 987. King of France (986–987); son of Lothair of France. He was the last of the Carolingians in France. He left no children and the claims of the Carolingians were then vested in Charles, Duke of Lower Lorraine, his uncle, but Hugh Capet, son of Hugh the Great, was elected king by the nobles.

Louis VI (of France). [Called Le Gros (lę grō), meaning "the Fat."] b. 1081; d. Aug. 1, 1137. King of France (1018–37); son of Philip I. He was associated in the government during the last years of his father's reign and devoted himself during that period and during his own reign to consolidating his position in his own lands, being content with preventing his more powerful vassals from usurping any of his own power. His elimination, through a long and bitter struggle, of the brigand barons controlling the approaches to Paris, his encouragement of the towns and their bourgeois element, and his support of the church gave him a following among all classes except the greater barons. He is sometimes credited with furthering the communal movement in the towns, but his efforts of this nature were confined to the lands of his vassals as an attempt to weaken their power. His principal adviser was at first Étienne de Garlande, who, with his relatives, actually directed French policy, but the opposition of the queen and of St. Bernard of Clairvaux eventually led to the downfall of the Garlandes. Louis raised (c1127) Suger, abbot of St. Denis, to become his chief minister, Suger retaining this post under Louis VII. The chief wars of Louis's reign were against Henry I of England, who held Normandy. Louis supported William Clito against the English claims and, though not victorious, prevented an expansion of English power. Even an alliance between Henry I and the emperor Henry V did not succeed against him; Louis rallied the French barons to his standard and beat off the German invasion. His greatest diplomatic victory was the marriage (1137) of his son Louis (later Louis VII) to Eleanor of Aquitaine, thus balancing with lands south of the Loire the English gain of Anjou, north of the Loire, through the marriage (1128) of Henry's daughter Matilda to Geoffrey of Anjou.

Louis VII (of France). [Called Le Jeune (lę zhęn), meaning "the Young," and Le Pieux (lę pyė), meaning "the Pious."] b. c1121; d. Sept. 11, 1180. King of France (1137–80); son of Louis VI. In 1137 he married Eleanor of Aquitaine and soon afterward came to the throne. A conflict with Pope Innocent II over the filling of a vacant archbishopric led to an interdict; at the same time he engaged (1142–44) in an inconclusive struggle against the count of Champagne. He took part (1147–49) in the second Crusade, leaving his chief minister Suger as regent in his absence. While on this humiliating expedition, he became estranged from his wife and, after Suger's death (1151), he obtained an annulment (1152) of the marriage. Eleanor married in the same year Henry of Anjou, thus bringing to the English crown, which Henry assumed as Henry II in 1154, both Anjou and Aquitaine, and establishing English holdings to the north and south of the French domain. Though there was no major outbreak of warfare, Louis spent the remainder of his reign fighting the English power. He became reconciled to the papacy and gave refuge to Alexander III when he fled from Italy; he supported Thomas à Becket when the prelate was in exile (1164 et seq.) from England; and he intrigued (1173–74) with Henry's rebellious sons, but he gave them no real support. He did succeed in strengthening the power of the monarchy in his own lands and in further subordinating his vassals to the crown.

Louis VIII (of France). [Called Le Lion (lę lyôṅ), meaning "the Lion," and Cœur de Lion (kėr dę lyôṅ), meaning "Lion Hearted."] b. at Paris, Sept. 5, 1187; d. at Montpensier, Auvergne, France, Nov. 8, 1226. King of France (1223–26); son of Philip II (Philip Augustus). He married Blanche of Castile, granddaughter of Henry II of England, in 1200, and in 1216 was offered the English crown by the barons in opposition to John. He landed in England in 1216, but after the death of John the barons gradually went over to the court party, which recognized John's son, Henry III, and he returned to France in 1217. Both before and after he became king Louis took an active part in suppressing the Albigenses. In his struggle against the English power in France, he conquered all the territory north of the Garonne, but the English counterattack regained (1225) all but Poitou, Limousin, and Périgord.

Louis IX (of France). [Known as Saint Louis.] b. at Poissy, France, April 25, 1214; d. near Tunis, Aug. 25, 1270. King of France (1226–70); son of Louis VIII. His minority (1226–36) was spent under the regency of his mother, Blanche of Castile. Her ability maintained the royal power intact against the rebellious attitude of such powerful nobles as the duke of Brittany; and his own armies put down (1241–43) the only serious rising of the barons during his reign, defeating in the course of the campaign the English army of Henry III which had come over to France to aid Hugh of Lusignan. In 1244, Louis declared for a crusade and, after much preparation, left France in 1248. He captured Damietta in 1249, but during an expedition against Cairo was defeated and captured, with the whole of the French army, at Mansura, Egypt, in April, 1250. He was liberated on the evacuation of Damietta and the payment of a ransom, but remained in the East until, hearing of the death (November, 1252) of the queen-regent Blanche, he returned (1254) to France. The remainder of his reign was peaceful and Louis' reputation as a just, noble ruler grew with the years. He was called upon to arbitrate the quarrel of the English barons with Henry III; his decision (1264) at Amiens was in favor of the king. His other arbitrations took place mainly among his own vassals and he was successful in maintaining peace within his realm. He surrendered Périgord, Limousin, and southern Saintonge to Henry III of England by the treaty of Paris (1259), in return for which the latter renounced his claim to Normandy, Anjou, Maine, Touraine, Poitou, and northern Saintonge, and agreed to do homage to the French king for the lands he held in France; Louis intended the settlement to end the English-French quarrel over French lands, but the consolidation of French provinces in the north and the greater English strength in the south left too much unsatisfied and added further impetus to the coming Hundred Years' War. At Corbeil (1258), he renounced French claims to Rousillon and Catalonia and received in return from Aragon a renunciation of claims to Provence and Languedoc. He supported the claim of his brother Charles of Anjou to the throne of Naples, but he did so reluctantly and acted constantly as a brake on the ambitions of that prince. In 1267 Louis declared another crusade which, through the machinations of Charles, sailed against his principal rival, Tunis, in July, 1270. Louis died less than two months afterward of plague. He was canonized by Pope Boniface VIII in 1297. A famous biography of Saint Louis, who has often been called the perfect exemplar of the medieval monarch, was written by his fellow crusader Jean de Joinville.

Louis X (of France). [Called Le Hutin (lę ü.taṅ), meaning "the Quarreler."] b. at Paris, Oct. 4, 1289; d. June 5, 1316. King of France (1314–16); son of Philip IV. He inherited the kingdom of Navarre through his mother, Joan of Navarre, in 1305. His short reign as king of France was in the shadow of his uncle Charles of Valois and was marked by a resurgence of the power of the great nobles. He was succeeded by his posthumous son John I who lived only five days.

Louis XI (of France). b. at Bourges, France, July 3, 1423; d. at Plessis-les-Tours, near Tours, France, Aug. 30, 1483. King of France (1461–83); son of Charles VII. He was married (1436) to Margaret of Scotland, daughter of James I, but the marriage was unhappy and she died in 1445, before he came to the throne. As dauphin, Louis was several times involved in plots against the king. He was a member of the Praguerie (1440); he quarreled with Agnes Sorel, the king's mistress and adviser, and thereafter plotted actively against the king until the plot was discovered and he was sent (1447) into Dauphiné. There he ruled with an iron hand; he allied himself with the bourgeoisie to break the power of the nobility; he entered into foreign intrigues in Italy, his marriage to Charlotte of Savoy in 1452, despite the refusal of the king to the alliance, being part of his diplomatic maneuvering. In 1456 Louis fled to Burgundy, fearing that the king, until then lenient towards his rebellious acts, might have him killed. His accession to the throne of France was followed by a general purge of the ministers of Charles VII. His own ministers were drawn principally from the middle class, although he did reinstate some of the more able of the ministers he had ousted; the reputation of many of these men was not of the best, but their ability was undeniable. Louis destroyed the power of the great feudatories, and laid the foundation of the absolute monarchy which afterward prevailed in France. The arbitrary measures which he adopted provoked a conspiracy of the nobles under the lead of Charles the Bold of Burgundy. The conspirators organized a "league of the public weal," and fought a drawn battle at Montlhéry in 1465, but succumbed to the diplomacy of the king, who detached by bribery the league's leaders, Charles the Bold and the Duke of Berry. While this temporary alliance was maintained, he proceeded to destroy his less formidable opponents. Then he made war on Charles, who had allied himself with Edward IV of England by marrying the king's sister Margaret; Louis captured Normandy but found himself captured (1468) by Charles during an interview. He bought his way out by treaty but inflicted severe punishment on those he held responsible for the fiasco. He supported the English Lancastrians against the Yorkist allies of Charles the Bold, aiding the expedition of Warwick and Margaret that put Henry VI again on the English throne. But Edward regained the throne, and Charles of Burgundy was successful in the fighting in France. The death (1472) of the king's brother Charles, nominally leader of the coalition of nobles against the king, forced Charles of Burgundy to come to terms and permitted Louis to consolidate his hold on the French throne. In the next few years he firmly established, against the claims and military force of Aragon, the French border at the Pyrenees. He maintained a continuous intrigue against Charles the Bold, supporting and encouraging others to fight against him and buying off (1475) Charles's ally Edward IV of England. On the death of Charles at the battle of Nancy against the Swiss in January, 1477, he united the duchy of Burgundy to the French crown, but the marriage of Charles's daughter Mary to Maximilian of Austria (later Maximilian I of the Holy Roman Empire) left Flanders in Austrian hands. In 1480 he annexed the duchies of Anjou and Bar; in 1481, Maine and Provence; in 1482, Picardy, Artois, and Franche Comté. His influence in Italy was great, especially in the north, but his diplomacy failed in Spain, where the marriage (1469) of Ferdinand and Isabella united Aragon and Castile. The last years of his life were spent in fear of murder and in isolation, surrounded by guards and attended by physicians and astrologers.

Louis XII (of France). [Called Le Père du Peuple, meaning "the Father of the People."] b. at Blois, France, June 27, 1462; d. Jan. 1, 1515. King of France (1498–1515); son of Charles d'Orléans and a descendant of the younger son of Charles V, and founder of the branch line of Valois-Orléans. He divorced his wife, Jeanne, daughter of Louis XI, and married (1499) Anne of Brittany, widow of Charles VIII, in order to retain the duchy of Brittany for the crown. In 1499 he expelled Ludovico Sforza (il Moro) and took possession of Milan, to which he laid claim as the grandson of Valentina Visconti. He conquered Naples in 1501 in alliance with Ferdinand V of Castile (Ferdinand the Catholic), but disagreed with his ally over the division of the spoils, with the result that his army was defeated by the Spanish general Gonzalo de Córdoba on the Garigliano in 1503. In 1508 he joined the emperor Maximilian I, Pope Julius II, and Ferdinand the Catholic in the League of Cambrai against Venice. However, the Pope, who feared the presence of the French in Italy, negotiated in 1511 the Holy League with Venice and Ferdinand the Catholic for the expulsion of the French; the league was afterward joined by the emperor and Henry VIII of England. Henry and the emperor defeated Longueville at Guinegate in the "battle of the spurs" (Aug. 16, 1513), and the French were in the same year expelled from Italy; but Louis succeeded in breaking up the league by diplomacy, and was preparing to reconquer Milan when he died. The year before his death he had married Mary Tudor, sister of Henry VIII of England.

Louis XIII (of France). b. at Fontainebleau, France, Sept. 27, 1601; d. at St. Germain-en-Laye, France, May 14, 1643. King of France (1610–43); son of Henry IV. He succeeded under the regency of his mother Marie de' Medici, was declared of age in 1614, and married Anne of Austria, daughter of Philip III of Spain, in 1615. This marriage and that of his sister Elizabeth to the Spanish prince who was later Philip IV were intended to ally France with Spain. In 1614 he summoned the States-General, which were not summoned again before the Revolution of 1789. In 1624 he chose as his prime minister Cardinal Richelieu, whom he maintained in office until Richelieu's death in 1642, despite the hostility toward the cardinal of the queen-mother and Gaston d'Orléans, the king's brother. Mazarin succeeded Richelieu. The chief results of his reign, due to the policy of Richelieu, were the destruction of the political power of the Huguenots, which was completed by the siege and capture of Rochelle (1627–28); the centralization of the government in the hands of the king, who was made independent of the nobles and the parliament; and the lessening of the power of the house of Austria, whose preponderance in Europe was irretrievably lost by the intervention of France and Sweden in the Thirty Years' War. Louis was several times the object of plots, in which Gaston d'Orléans usually figured. The most famous of these was that of the king's favorite, Cinq-Mars, whose plotting with Spain was uncovered through information supplied by Gaston; Cinq-Mars was executed in 1642. Louis was succeeded by his five-year-old son, Louis XIV.

Louis XIV (of France). [Called Le Grand (lę grăn), "the Great," and le Grand Monarque, meaning "the Great Monarch"; also Le Roi Soleil, meaning "the Sun King."] b. at St.-Germain-en-Laye, France, Sept. 5, 1638; d. at Versailles, Sept. 1, 1715. King of France (1643–1715); son of Louis XIII and Anne of Austria. He ascended the throne under the guardianship of his mother, who chose Cardinal Mazarin as her chief minister. The early years of his reign were marked by the end of the Thirty Years' War with the Treaty of Westphalia (1648), the Wars of the Fronde (1648–53), and the cession by Spain of Rousillon in the Peace of the Pyrenees (1659). He was declared of age at 14, but despite popular objection to him retained Mazarin in office until the cardinal's death in 1661, when he assumed personal control of the government. Not once during his 73-year reign did he convene the States-General. He assumed the direction of affairs at a time when the policy inaugurated by Richelieu and continued by Mazarin had made the Bourbons absolute at home and paramount abroad. The reforms of J. B. Colbert, who replaced Nicolas Fouquet as comptroller-general of the finances (1661–83), swelled his treasury while promoting industry and economy; and those of Louvois, his minister of war (1666–91), transformed his army into the most perfect military organization in Europe. His desire of conquest and dreams of a French universal monarchy embroiled him in numerous wars, in which his military forces were led by Turenne, Condé, Luxembourg, Catinat, Villars, Vendôme, and Vauban. His first war, the War of Devolution (1667–68), was fought with Spain on account of the Spanish Netherlands, which he claimed through his wife Maria Theresa, daughter of Philip IV of Spain, whom he had married in 1660. It was ended by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle, and resulted in the acquisition of a number of fortified towns on the Belgian frontier. His second war (1672–78) was directed against Holland supported by the Empire, Spain, Brandenburg, and Sweden, and resulted in the acquisition of territory from Spain and Austria at the peace of Nijmegen. In 1681 he annexed Strasburg and other cities on the Rhine. His third war, the War of the League of Augsburg (1688–97), was with England, the Netherlands, the Empire, Spain, and Savoy, and concerned the Palatinate, to which he laid claim. It was unsuccessful, and was ended by the peace of Ryswick, by which Alsace and Strasbourg were formally ceded to France. His fourth war (1701–14) concerned the succession in Spain, whose throne he claimed for his grandson, Philip of Anjou. This war, the great War of the Spanish Succession, he fought, after 1703, almost single-handed against the bulk of Europe. Faced by such generals as Marlborough and Eugene, the French suffered the great defeats of Blenheim (1704), Ramillies (1706), Oudenarde (1708), and Malplaquet (1709). The peace of Utrecht (1713) and of Rastatt and Baden (1714) secured Spain for his grandson, Philip V, but left Louis with an exhausted treasury and a broken army. As a result of these wars, of the fiscal policy which he introduced after the death of Colbert, and of his bigoted and intolerant policy, including the revocation (1685) of the Edict of Nantes, toward the Huguenots, which drove 50,000 families from France, the country was prostrated, and the way prepared for the French Revolution. The reign of Louis XIV, the longest in European history, has been styled the Augustan Age of France, and certainly the flowering of the arts and the magnificence of the court are unparalleled. Louis is famous for his dictum, "L'état c'est moi" (I am the state), but, while he did possess absolute power, it was through his capable ministers that he succeeded so well in the middle period of his reign. The king's mistresses, Mademoiselle de la Vallière, Madame de Montespan, and Madame de Maintenon, all influenced him greatly.

Louis XV (of France). [Called Le Bien-Aimé, meaning "the Well-Beloved."] b. at Versailles, France, Feb. 15, 1710; d. there, May 10, 1774. King of France (1715–74); successor and great-grandson of Louis XIV, his grandfather, father, and two older brothers having died during the long reign of Louis XIV. During his minority the government was administered by the Duke of Orléans, and in this period occurred (1718–20) the Mississippi Scheme of John Law. Declared of age in 1723, in 1725 he married Marie Leszczyńska, daughter of Stanislas, the dethroned king of Poland. On the death of the Duke of Orléans in 1723, the Duke of Bourbon was appointed prime minister. He was in 1726 superseded by André Hercule de Fleury, the king's ex-tutor, after whose death in 1743, the government was conducted by appointees of the king's mistresses, Madame Pompadour and Madame Du Barry. As a result of French participation in the War of the Polish Succession, France obtained Lorraine at the Treaty of Vienna (1735). In 1741 Louis joined the coalition against Maria Theresa of Austria and was a party to the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle in 1748. This brought nothing to France despite what were popularly thought to be military successes. In 1754 hostilities broke out between the French and the English in America without any declaration of war, and in 1756 he became involved in the Seven Years' War as the ally of Maria Theresa and Russia against Prussia and England. By the treaty of Paris (1763), he lost Canada, Louisiana, and India and at his death left the kingdom impoverished, oppressed, and discontented. Louis' reign saw the growth of deistic thinking among the intellectuals, who were often highly critical of the government. Popular unrest and hatred of the monarchy grew constantly, not at all stilled by the attitude summed up in the saying (which might have been Louis') "Après moi, le déluge" (After me, the flood). The financial manipulations of the court, apparently joined in by the king, began with Law and culminated in an attempt to corner the grain market at a time when starvation was rife. At the same time such political moves as the abolition of the parlements in favor of a group of unpopular, though efficient, courts served merely to prime the coming explosion.

Louis XVI (of France). b. at Versailles, France, Aug. 23, 1754; guillotined at Paris, Jan. 21, 1793. King of France (1774–92); grandson of Louis XV. He married (1770) Marie Antoinette, daughter of Maria Theresa of Austria, who was at first extremely popular, but afterward incurred the dislike of the people, and whose influence was exerted for the maintenance of the system of favoritism which prevailed at the court. On ascending the throne in 1774, he appointed Turgot minister of finance. The finances were in extreme disorder, dating from the closing years of the reign of Louis XIV, and the temper of the nation had been roused by the waste and incompetence under Louis XV. Turgot began a series of reforms which were opposed by the nobility and the clergy, and was superseded by Necker in 1777. Louis recognized the independence of the U.S. in 1778, and sent an army and a fleet to their support, which materially assisted in securing the peace of Paris between the U.S. and Great Britain in 1783. France concluded a separate treaty with Great Britain in the same year. On the conclusion of peace, the French troops which had been employed in America returned enthusiastic for freedom and a republican form of government. In 1781 Necker resigned, owing to the failure of the court to support his financial reforms, and Calonne became minister of finance in 1783. He gratified the court by securing new loans, but the increasing deficit compelled him to resign in 1787. He was followed by De Brienne, who advised the king to convoke the States-General, which had not met since 1614. Necker was recalled (1788), dismissed, and again recalled (1789). The States-General convened at Versailles in May, 1789, and enabled the nation to give expression to the revolutionary tendencies which had been fostered by generations of misrule. The weak and vacillating king, acting on the advice of his queen, refused, until too late, to grant the demands of the popular party, but could not be induced to adopt energetic measures to resist them. The third estate, inviting the other estates to join it, established itself as the National Assembly and, when forced to adjourn, took the Tennis Court Oath (June 20, 1789) to force a constitution from the king. In October, the Parisian mob stormed out of Paris and swept into Versailles, and Louis, under semi-arrest by the troops of Lafayette, was brought back to Paris; the States-General joined him there. During the next year and a half the Assembly gradually transformed itself, under the leadership of the radical groups in its membership, into the Legislative Assembly, forcing a constitution on the king. In June, 1791, Louis attempted to flee with his family to the support of loyal troops in the northeast, but the party was recognized and arrested at Varennes and returned to Paris. Thenceforward Louis was regarded with extreme suspicion and every effort was made, in the name of the Revolution, to keep him from escaping and reëstablishing the monarchy on the old basis. When, in addition, the other monarchs threatened to come to Louis' support, the king's fate was sealed. The outbreak (April, 1792) of the War of the First Coalition caused much ill feeling and in June the Tuileries was attacked by the mob. Again in August the mob stormed the palace, this time massacring the king's Swiss Guard. In September, the monarchy was abolished by the National Convention elected under the constitution, and a republic was declared. The king and his family had been moved to the Temple in August, and in December Louis went on trial before the Convention for treason. On January 16, 1793, he was sentenced to death by a one-vote majority and on January 21, he was guillotined.

Louis XVII (of France). [Called Louis Charles de France.] b. at Versailles, France, March 27, 1785; d. in the Temple, Paris, June 8, 1795. Titular king of France; second son of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette. He became dauphin in 1789, was imprisoned with his family in the Temple in 1792, and was proclaimed king by the émigrés on the execution of his father in 1793. He died in prison, reputedly because of ill treatment by his jailers. The death of the dauphin-king, made mysterious by his burial in an unmarked grave, resulted in many claims in later years by impostors that they were the dauphin. None of the claims were ever substantiated.

Louis XVIII (of France). [Full name, Louis Stanislas Xavier; called Louis le Désiré (lę dā.zē.rā).] b. at Versailles, France, Nov. 17, 1755; d. at Paris, Sept. 16, 1824. King of France (1814–24); younger brother of Louis XVI. Known as the Count of Provence during the monarchy, he was involved in several intrigues, probably the result of his being heir to the throne until 1781. He remained at Paris after 1789, possibly hoping to replace Louis XVI as king under a constitution. He emigrated in 1791, and assumed the royal title on the death of Louis XVII in 1795. His life for the next 20 years was one of intrigue, and flight from Napoleon's ubiquitous armies. He ascended the throne on the fall of Napoleon in 1814, and promulgated a constitution based on the English model. He was expelled by Napoleon in March, 1815, during the Hundred Days, and was restored by the allied armies in June, 1815. His reign was one of moderation and prudence, but as he aged he fell more and more under the influence of the ultraroyalist party.

Louis I (of Germany) (lō'is, lō'i). See Louis I (of the Holy Roman Empire).

Louis II (of Germany). [German, Ludwig der Deutsche.] b. c804; d. at Frankfort, Germany, Aug. 28, 876. King of Germany (843–876); son of the emperor Louis I. On the death of his father he united with his brother Charles I of France (later the emperor Charles II) against Lothair, whom they defeated at the battle of Fontenoy in 841. By the treaty of Verdun in 843, which finally settled the dispute as to the division between the brothers, he received the whole of Germany E of the Rhine, as well as Mainz, Spires, and Worms on the W. He is commonly regarded as the founder of the German kingdom.

Louis III (of Germany). b. at Ottingen, 893; d. 911. King of Germany (900–911); son of the emperor Arnulf. He acceded to the throne at the age of six, and the government was conducted chiefly by Hatto, archbishop of Mainz. During his reign Germany was devastated by the Magyars or Hungarians. He was the last of the Carolingians in Germany.

Louis I (of the Holy Roman Empire). [Called le Pieux, meaning "the Pious," and le Débonnaire, meaning "the Debonair."] b. at Chasseneuil, France, 778; d. on an island in the Rhine, near Mainz, June 20, 840. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (814–840); son of Charlemagne, whom he succeeded. He established (817) an order of succession in accordance with which his eldest son Lothair was to inherit the imperial title with Austrasia and the greater part of Germany, while the rest of the empire was to be divided among his younger sons Pepin and Louis. He married a second wife, Judith of Bavaria, in 819, and in 829 modified the order of succession adopted in 817 in such a manner as to give Charles (later known as Charles the Bald), a child born in 823 of his second marriage, Alamannia, with the title of king. The three elder sons revolted in consequence, and he was compelled to surrender by the defection of his troops on the Field of Lies, near Colmar, in Alsace, in 833. He was later liberated by his son Louis and was restored to the throne in 834.

Louis II (of the Holy Roman Empire). b. c822; d. in Italy, Aug. 12, 875. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (855–875); son of the emperor Lothair I, whom he succeeded in Italy after being joint ruler with him from 850. He was crowned king of Lorraine by the pope in 872, in opposition to his uncles Charles the Bald and Louis II (Louis the German), the throne of Lorraine having been vacated by the death of his brother Lothair in 869.

Louis III (of the Holy Roman Empire). [Called the Blind.] b. c880; d. in Provence, September, 928. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (901–905); son of Boso, king of Provence. He acceded to the throne of Provence in 890, was crowned emperor in 901, and was deposed in 905 by Berengar I of Italy, by whom he was blinded and sent back to Provence.

Louis IV (of the Holy Roman Empire). [Called the Bavarian.] b. c1287; d. near Munich, Oct. 11, 1347. Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire (1314–47); son of Louis II, Duke of Bavaria. He was opposed by Frederick, Duke of Austria, whom he made prisoner at the battle of Mühldorf in 1322. He was crowned emperor in 1328, climaxing a struggle with the pope over the right of the secular princes to choose an emperor. He declared John XXII deposed and set up Nicholas V as pope. In 1338 the electoral princes met at Rense, where they adopted resolutions to the effect that the emperor derived his right to the German and imperial crowns by virtue of his election by the electoral princes, independent of any coronation by the pope.

Louis II (of Monaco). [Full name, Louis II Honoré Charles Antoine de Grimaldi, Prince de Monaco.] b. at Baden-Baden, Germany, July 12, 1870; d. at Monaco, May 9, 1949. Head (1922–49) of the House of Monaco; son of Albert I of Monaco. He was a major general in the French army.

Louis (lwē), Georges. b. at Épernay, Marne, France, March 21, 1847; d. at Paris, April 7, 1917. French diplomat, recalled (1913) by Raymond Poincaré as ambassador to Russia because of his disagreement with czarist support of pan-Slavism. He had been ambassador to St. Petersburg since 1909.

Louis (lō'is), Joe. [Original name Joseph Louis Barrow.] b. at Lafayette, Ala., May 13, 1914—. American prize fighter. He attended grammar school and the Duffield School at Detroit, Mich. At Detroit, where his family had moved (1926), he learned boxing and attracted attention (1932–33) by becoming Golden Gloves light-heavyweight champion. After he won (1934) the National Amateur Athletic Association championship, he became a professional. In the next three years, Louis suffered only one defeat, a knockout (1936) in 12 rounds by former heavyweight champion Max Schmeling; but he defeated all other championship contenders, including the former champions Max Baer, Primo Carnera, and Jack Sharkey, decisively and spectacularly with a devastating two-handed attack combined with a relentless forward movement and an expressionless face, even at the height of action, that won him such epithets as "the Brown Bomber" and "the Dark Destroyer." On June 22, 1937, he knocked out heavyweight champion James J. Braddock in the eighth round at Chicago. He was the second Negro (Jack Johnson was the first) to hold the world's heavyweight championship. In the succeeding 13 years (which were interrupted by more than four years of service in the U.S. army during World War II), Louis defended his title 24 times, more than any previous champion had done, meeting every challenger and scoring 21 knockouts, including one in the first round over Max Schmeling (1938). Louis retired in 1949, but because of financial difficulties soon returned to the ring. His campaign to recapture the championship held, after his abdication, by Ezzard Charles, was ended when Louis, by then well past 35 years of age, was knocked out by a young boxer, Rocky Marciano, in 1951. His autobiography, My Life Story, was published in 1947.

Louis (lwē), Pierre. See Louÿs, Pierre.

Louis, Pierre Charles Alexandre. b. at Aï, Marne, France, 1787; d. at Paris, 1872. French physician.

Louisa Chick (lō.ē'zą chik), Mrs. See Chick, Mrs. Louisa.

Louisa Ulrica (of Sweden) (lō.ē'zą ůl.rē'ką). b. July 24, 1720; d. July 16, 1782. Queen of Sweden (1751–71); wife of Adolphus Frederick of Sweden, and sister of Frederick II of Prussia (Frederick the Great). She was a patron of art and science.

Louisbourg (lō'is.bėrg). A former name of Harrisburg, Pa.

Louisbourg, Fortress of. [Also, Fort Louisbourg or Louisburg.] Ruined fortress on the coast of Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. It was built by the French after the peace of Utrecht (1713), besieged and taken by a New England force under William Pepperell on June 17, 1745, restored in 1748, and again besieged and taken by the British under Jeffrey Amherst on July 27, 1758. It is now in a national historic park (area, ab. 340 acres).

Louisburg (lō'is.bėrg). Town in N North Carolina, county seat of Franklin County, on the Tar River ab. 25 mi. NE of Raleigh: lumber and agricultural products. 2,545 (1950).

Louisburg. [French, Louisbourg.] Small town on E shore of the S peninsula of Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia, Canada: site of the Fortress of Louisbourg. 1,120 (1951).

Louis Charles de France. See Louis XVII (of France).

Louis dei Franchi (lō'is dā'ē fräng'kē). See Franchi, Fabian and Louis dei.

Louis de la Mobile (lō'i. dę lą mō.bēl'), Fort. See under Condé, Fort.

Louise (lō.ēz'). [German, Luise; full name, Auguste Wilhelmine Amalie Luise.] b. at Hanover, Germany, March 10, 1776; d. at Hohenzieritz, in Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Germany, July 19, 1810. Queen of Prussia; wife of Frederick William III. She won great popularity when she urged the king to take a strong stand during the Napoleonic Wars.

Louise. Opera in four acts by Gustave Charpentier, with a libretto by the composer, first produced at Paris in 1900.

Louise, Lake. Lake in SW Alberta, Canada, in Banff National Park, in a mountain valley in the Canadian Rockies. Overlooking the lake is a tourist hotel. Elevation, ab. 5,680 ft.; length, ab. 1½ mi.

Louise of Savoy (są.voi'). b. at Pont-d'Ain, France, 1476; d. c1531. Mother of Francis I of France and Margaret of Navarre. She was twice regent, and negotiated the peace of Cambrai ("Ladies' Peace") in 1529.

Louiseville (lö.ēz'vil). Town in S Quebec, Canada, county seat of Maskinongé County, N of Lake St. Pierre, a widening of the St. Lawrence River. 4,088 (1951).

Louisiade Archipelago (lö.ē.zi.ad'). Archipelago in the S Pacific, SE of New Guinea. From 1888 to 1906 it was a British colony; it is now part of the Australian Territory of Papua. Gold was mined on the largest of the islands, Tagula, before the Japanese occupation during World War II. Area, ab. 800 sq. mi.

Louisiana (lö.ē.zi.an'ą, lö"i.zi-). [Called the "Pelican State"; also, the "Creole State."] State of the S United States, bounded by Arkansas on the N, Mississippi on the E and NE, the Gulf of Mexico on the SE and S, and Texas on the W. It is partly separated from Texas by the Sabine, and from Mississippi by the Mississippi and Pearl rivers.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. Louisiana is divided for administrative purposes into 64 parishes (the appellation "parish" goes back to the early Spanish religious divisions of the area). The state sends eight representatives to Congress, and has ten electoral votes. Leading cities are Alexandria, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, Monroe, New Orleans, and Shreveport. Capital, Baton Rouge; area, 45,177 sq. mi. (48,523 sq. mi., including inland water); pop. 2,683,516 (1950). The state ranks 30th in area, and 21st (on a basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. Louisiana is generally level, in part occupied by swamps and alluvial lands, the highest point in the state being 535 ft., in the NW part. The Mississippi, after forming a portion of the E boundary, flows through the SE part of the state for ab. 300 mi. Levees along its banks guard against floods. Among its tributaries are the Red River, flowing into it diagonally from the NW, and the Ouachita or Washita, flowing NE. Many of the smaller tributary streams, called bayous, are of value in helping to drain off flood waters and for navigation. The state has close to 5,000 mi. of navigable waterways. There are many lakes, Lake Pontchartrain (ab. 600 sq. mi.), the largest and best known, being connected by canal with the Mississippi and by Lake Borgne with the Gulf of Mexico. Because of its location on the Gulf the state has a subtropical climate.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. The state's fertile soil makes agriculture its chief industry. It leads all other states in the production of sugar cane and rice. Its most valuable crop is cotton. Other crops of importance are sweet potatoes, strawberries, and pecans. There is much trapping of fur-bearing animals, particularly muskrat, and Louisiana leads the states in fur production. The state is rich in forests, particularly cypress and oak, and lumbering is an important occupation. Fisheries along the coast are also important, especially for their shrimp and oysters. Louisiana produces sugar, cottonseed products, petroleum, cotton textiles, apparel, industrial alcohol, and lumber products. Oil refineries, sawmills, and metalworks are important. Shreveport, Baton Rouge, and New Orleans are the principal manufacturing cities. New Orleans is one of the nation's most important ports and an air and rail center as well. The state is rich in sulfur, petroleum, and salt, but also has supplies of natural gas and natural gasoline.

History. The area that now comprises the state was probably explored by De Soto (1541) and by Marquette (1673). La Salle first took possession (1682) of Louisiana for France, as part of a far larger area comprising the whole of the Mississippi River basin, naming it after Louis XIV. The first major settlement in what is now Louisiana was made (1718) at New Orleans. The colony was ceded by France to Spain in 1762, except for the region E of the Mississippi, which went (1763) to Great Britain. The Spanish took complete possession in 1769, holding the region until 1800, when it was returned to France. As part of the Louisiana Purchase it was sold (1803) by France to the U.S. The territory of Orleans was set up in 1804. Louisiana was admitted to the Union (as the 18th state) on April 30, 1812. The state was the scene of the final battle of the War of 1812, in which Andrew Jackson defeated the British at New Orleans (before news reached New Orleans that the treaty ending the war had already been signed). Louisiana seceded from the Union on Jan. 26, 1861, and there were various Civil War battles in the state. New Orleans was captured (1862) by Admiral Farragut and General Butler, and much of the state was taken by Union forces in 1863. The state rejoined the Union on July 18, 1868, having nullified secession and abolished slavery in 1864.

Culture. Louisiana is predominantly rural in character, although ab. 55 percent of its population was urban in 1950. Negroes represent a large proportion of its population. The most notable feature of its culture is the still-evident influence of the French and Spanish element (called Creoles). In addition to the many white persons of French and Spanish ancestry, there are Creole Negroes, persons of mixed Negro and Creole blood. Also represented in the population are descendants (called Cajuns) of ab. 4,000 Acadians expelled from Nova Scotia in the 1750's. French is still the language in many places. In the early 1900's many Italians came to work in the strawberry fields. In its culture, New Orleans is still to some extent a French and Spanish city, whose inhabitants still continue many of the old customs of their ancestors. It is known for its Vieux Carré (literally, "Old Square," the early town), the extravagant gaiety of its annual Mardi Gras festival, its historic buildings, and its fine foods and liquors. Many artists have had their studios in the city. At Baton Rouge is the grave of Huey P. Long, former governor of the state and one-time U.S. senator. Not far from Baton Rouge is the U.S. Leprosarium, the nation's only hospital devoted entirely to the treatment of leprosy. Among the state's institutions of higher learning are the state-supported Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Baton Rouge, with the School of Medicine located in New Orleans, and a junior college in Thibodaux; Tulane University (including Sophie Newcomb College, for women), at New Orleans; Loyola University, at New Orleans. The state motto is "Union, Justice, Confidence." The state flower is the magnolia.

Louisiana. City in N Missouri, in Pike County. 4,389 (1950).

Louisiana Purchase. Territory which the U.S. in 1803, under Thomas Jefferson's administration, acquired by purchase from France, then under the government of Napoleon as first consul. The price was 15 million dollars. The purchase consisted of New Orleans and a vast tract extending westward from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains, and from the Gulf of Mexico to British America. The states of Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Oklahoma, and most of Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana lie within the area of the Louisiana Purchase.

Louisiana Purchase Exposition. See St. Louis World's Fair.

Louis Napoleon (lö'i ną.pō'lē.ọn, -pōl'yọn). See Napoleon III; also Napoléon, Louis.

Louis of Nassau (nas'ô). See Nassau-Dillenberg, Count Louis of.

Louis Philippe (lö'i fi.lēp'; French, lwē fē.lēp). [Called Roi Citoyen (rwa sē.twa.yan'), meaning "Citizen King."] b. at Paris, Oct. 6, 1773; d. at Claremont, England, Aug. 26, 1850. King of the French (1830–48); son of Louis Philippe Joseph, Duke of Orléans (known during the French Revolution as Philippe Égalité). He was a descendant on his father's side of Philippe, Duke of Orléans, second son of Louis XIII, and on his mother's side of a son born to Louis XIV and Madame de Montespan. Until 1785 he was known as the Duke of Valois, and subsequently as the Duke of Chartres. When the Revolution came, he joined, as did his father, the movement for freedom. He became a member (1790) of the Jacobin club and his devotion to the events of the day caused him to be looked upon with favor by the members of the National Assembly. He was commissioned in the revolutionary army, fought at Valmy and at Jemappes, and was with Dumouriez at the defeat at Neerwinden (March 18, 1793). He joined with Dumouriez in the abortive attempt at counterrevolution and fled with him to the Austrians. There for a time he went under an assumed name to avoid the anger of the émigré royalists, but the execution of his father (November, 1793) in the Reign of Terror made him Duke of Orléans. He refused, however, to join in any intrigues aimed at making him king and decided to travel. After spending some time in Scandinavia, he left (1796) for the U.S., where he traveled through New England, the Mississippi region, and the Great Lakes. After Napoleon's coup of 1799, he returned to Europe, living in England and then in Italy. There he married (1809) Maria Amelia, daughter of Ferdinand IV of Naples. With Napoleon's fall (1814) he returned to France after an exile of more than 20 years, was confirmed as an army officer, and reëstablished his reconciliation with Louis XVIII. His liberal sympathies in the House of Peers led to two more years of exile (1815–17) in England, but he soon returned to France to live the life of a member of the upper middle-class, building a fortune by investment, having his children educated in the public schools, and otherwise acting the part of a liberal nobleman. During the Revolution of 1830, when Charles X was overthrown, Louis Philippe was selected by Thiers, Lafayette, and other liberal monarchists as "King of the French, by the grace of God and the will of the people," as the confirmation by the Chamber of Deputies in August read. The conduct of the several parties concerned, Louis Philippe included, indicated that kingship was a substitute choice, since the establishment of a republic was impossible because of the antirepublican sentiments of the other European countries. The course of the "July Monarchy" thus established led from liberalism to absolutism. French foreign policy deteriorated from a thorough understanding with France's neighbors to an attempt to reassert (1846) Bourbon ascendancy in Spain and alienation of Great Britain and Belgium. Faced with Bonapartist intrigues on the one hand and with the rise of a strong socialistic movement on the other, he drifted slowly to a policy that alienated large blocs of Frenchmen. The ascendancy of Guizot after 1840 led inevitably to the February Revolution of 1848 and the establishment of a republic. Louis Philippe abdicated, left the palace quietly, and reached England with his wife with nothing but the clothes on their backs. They were provided with an estate by Queen Victoria, and Louis Philippe died there some two years later.

Louis Philippe Robert, Duc d'Orléans (lwē fē.lēp rō.ber, dük dôr.lā.äⁿ). Full name of Orléans, Philippe, Duc d'.

Louis Salvator (sal.vā'tor). [German, Ludwig Salvator; title, Archduke of Austria.] b. at Florence, Italy, Aug. 4, 1847; d. at Castle Brandeis, Germany, Oct. 12, 1915. Austrian writer and traveler; son of Leopold II, Grand Duke of Tuscany. He wrote and illustrated numerous geographical works, most of which were published anonymously. Among his works are Die Balearen (7 vols., 1869–91), Die Liparischen Inseln (1897), and Los Angeles in Süd-Californien (1885).

Louisville (lö'i.vil). [Called the "Falls City"; former name, Falls of the Ohio.] City in N Kentucky, county seat of Jefferson County, at the falls of the Ohio River: largest city in the state. It is the center of the U.S. veneer industry and one of the principal markets for hardwoods and tobacco. It has manufactures of furniture, paint, varnish, machinery, leather, shoes, metal products, cement, bricks, tile, flour, whiskey, and tobacco products. It is the seat of the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, the University of Louisville, the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Ursuline College, Nazareth College, and other educational institutions. Churchill Downs, the scene of the annual Kentucky Derby, is situated here. Louisville was the birthplace of Ellen Churchill Semple and Louis Dembitz Brandeis. Settled c1773, it was incorporated in 1828. Pop. of city, 369,129 (1950); of urbanized area, 472,736 (1950).

Louisville (lö'is.vil). City in E central Mississippi, county seat of Winston County. 5,282 (1950).

Louisville. Village in E Ohio, in Stark County. 3,801 (1950).

Louisville. Former name of Ottumwa, Iowa.

Louis William I (of Baden) (lö'is, lö'i, wil'yąm). b. at Paris, April 8, 1655; d. at Rastatt, Baden, Germany, Jan. 4, 1707. Margrave of Baden. He fought with distinction against the Turks (1683–91), and against the French in the War of the Spanish Succession.

Loukouchiao Incident (lö'kö'chou'). [Also, Marco Polo Bridge Incident.] Incident on the Sino-Manchurian border on the night of July 7, 1937, when Japanese troops on night maneuvers clashed with Chinese, generally recognized as the spark that marked the beginning of the Sino-Japanese War.

Loulé (lō.le'). Town and concelho (commune) in S Portugal, in the province of Algarve, district of Faro, NW of Faro: remains of a Moorish castle, numerous picturesque churches and convents; agricultural trade. Pop. of concelho, 51,900 (1940); of town, 16,585 (1940).

Lounsbury (lounz'ber''i, -bėr.i), Thomas Raynesford. b. at Ovid, N.Y., Jan. 1, 1838; d. April 9, 1915. American scholar and critic. He was an instructor (1870–71) and professor (1871 et seq.) of English at Yale. Among his works are A History of the English Language (1879), Life of James Fenimore Cooper (1882), Studies in Chaucer (1891), Shakespearean Wars (1901–06), Shakespeare and Voltaire (1902), The Standard of Pronunciation in English (1904), and English Spelling and Spelling Reform (1909).

Louny (lō'ni). [German, Laun.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Ústi, in NW Bohemia, on the Ohře (Eger) River ab. 40 mi. NW of Prague. It has sugar, porcelain, and machine factories. 11,447 (1947).

Loup (löp). River in E central Nebraska, flowing generally E to join the Platte just E of Columbus, Neb. It has three principal headstreams, known as the North, Middle, and South Loup rivers. Length, to headstream, ab. 290 mi.

Loupgarou (lö.gȧ.rö). Leader of the giants in François Rabelais's Gargantua and Pantagruel.

Lourdes (lörd). Town in SW France, in the department of Hautes-Pyrénées, situated at the foot of the Pyrenees ab. 13 mi. SW of Tarbes. It is a tourist center, but has become more famous as a place of pilgrimage since a 14-year-old shepherdess, Bernadette Soubirous (Saint Bernadette), was believed to have had (1858) several miraculous visions of the Holy Virgin here. A huge basilica was consecrated (1876) near the grotto where the vision is said to have appeared. The town is visited by hundreds of thousands of pilgrims annually. There is an old castle, situated on a road above the river. 13,974 (1946).

Lourenço Marques (lō.ren'sō mär'kęs; Portuguese, lō.rān'sō mär'kēsh). [Also, Lorenzo Marques.] Town in SE Africa, the capital of the Portuguese colony of Mozambique, situated on Delagoa Bay ab. 70 mi. N of the border of the Union of South Africa, in a district of the same name. It is connected by rail with Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, and is one of the major ports for the transportation and shipping of supplies and machinery to the gold fields and industries of Johannesburg. The commerce with the Union of South Africa has paid for the development of the port, which has been carried out largely by South African interests. The town is also the site of an airport. Pop. of town and suburbs, 69,861 (1940), including non-native pop. 24,791 (1940).

Lourinhã (lō.rē.nyäⁿ'). Town and concelho (commune) in W Portugal, in the province of Estremadura, district of Lisboa, situated near the Atlantic coast NW of Lisbon: sardine and lobster fisheries. Pop. of concelho, 19,461 (1940); of town, 9,654 (1940).

Lousã (lō.säⁿ'). Town and concelho (commune) in C Portugal, in the province of Beira Litoral, district of Coimbra, in the mountains SE of Coimbra: paper industry; churches and palaces in Renaissance and baroque style; resort and tourist center. Pop. of concelho, 14,525 (1940); of town, 8,201 (1940).

Louth (louth). Municipal borough and market town in E central England, in Lincolnshire, in the Parts of Lindsey, ab. 24 mi. NE of Lincoln, ab. 141 mi. N of London by rail. It has a large cattle market. 11,128 (1951).

Louth. [Irish, Lughmhaighe.] Maritime county in NE Irish Republic, in Leinster province. It is bounded on the N by County Armagh (Northern Ireland), on the NE by Carlingford Lough and County Down (Northern Ireland), on the E by the Irish Sea, on the S and SW by County Meath, and on the NW by County Monaghan. The coastline is low and sandy, and indented by Dundalk Bay and several smaller bays. The surface is generally level or rolling except in the NE part, where it rises to an elevation of 1,935 ft. The soil is generally fertile. Crops raised are chiefly potatoes, oats, barley, and wheat. Dairy cattle, sheep, and pigs are also raised. Fisheries are important along the coast. County seat, Dundalk; area, ab. 317 sq. mi.; pop. 68,747 (1951).

Louvain (lö.vaṅ). [Flemish, Leuven, Loven; German, Löwen.] City in C Belgium, in the province of Brabant, on the Dyle River ab. 15 mi. E of Brussels: metalworking and foodstuff industries; brewery; lace manufactures; agricultural trade. 36,640 (1947).

Chief Buildings. There is a university established in 1425 by Duke John IV of Brabant. The university library was destroyed in the German invasion of 1914, rebuilt (1921–26) by gifts from the U.S. and other nations, and again destroyed in World War II. Over 900,000 volumes, manuscripts, incunabula, and documents were lost. The town hall, in rich Gothic style, was built in the period 1448–63. The Church of Saint Peter (1425–97), damaged in 1914, contains paintings by the Flemish master Dierick Bouts, iron and brass work by Jan Matsys. There are other medieval churches, such as Saint Quentin, Saint Michael, Saint Jacques, Saint Gertrude, and various secular buildings of the same period, most of which were heavily damaged during World War II.

History. Louvain became important in the 11th and 12th centuries as the residence of the counts of Louvain, later the dukes of Brabant. It became one of the centers of the Flanders wool trade and cloth industry, and had a powerful weavers' guild. It participated in the revolt of the towns of Flanders in the 14th century. The weavers surrendered to the duke in 1383 and many subsequently emigrated to Holland and England.

Louverture or L'Ouverture (lö.vėr.tür), Dominique François. See Toussaint Louverture, Dominique François.

Louvet de Couvray (lö.ve dę kō.vrā), Jean Baptiste. b. at Paris, June 11, 1760; d. there, Aug. 25, 1797. French revolutionist and novelist, a deputy to the National Convention in 1792. His adherence to the Girondists led to his fleeing from Paris in 1793 but he later returned and was a member and secretary of the Council of Five Hundred. He wrote the novel Les Amours du chevalier de Faublas (1787–89).

Louvière (lö.vyer), La. See La Louvière.

Louviers (lö.vyā). Town in NW France, in the department of Eure, on the Eure River ab. 14 mi. SE of Rouen. It has important textile manufactures, particularly of woolens. The center of town was severely damaged in World War II. 9,642 (1946).

Louvois (lö.vwȧ), Marquis de. [Title of François Michel Letellier (or Le Tellier).] b. at Paris, Jan. 18, 1641; d. July 16, 1691. French statesman, minister of war (1666–91) under Louis XIV. He organized the first French standing army.

Louvre (lövr). Castle (at Paris) of the kings of France from or before the 13th century, and the chief royal palace until Louis XIV built Versailles. The existing palace was begun by Francis I, whose chief architect was Pierre Lescot, in 1541, and was extended (additions being designed by Jacques Lemercier, Louis Levau, and others) by his successors down to Louis XIV, who added much, including the imposing east front, designed by Claude Perrault, with its celebrated Corinthian colonnade, 570 ft. long, with 28 pairs of coupled columns. Napoleon I made some additions, to which Napoleon III added very largely; and a large section of the north wing was rebuilt after it had been burned by the Commune. The whole forms one of the most extensive and historically interesting buildings in the world. The façade on the west side of the court ranks as perhaps the most perfect example of the style of the early French Renaissance; the additions of Catherine de Médicis are also architecturally important. Those of Napoleon III, designed by Visconti and Lefuel, are of great richness, with profuse use of sculpture. In the interior the splendid Galerie d'Apollon, rebuilt by Louis XIV, is one of the few apartments which retain their original aspect. A great part of the interior has been occupied since 1793 by the famous museum, and successive governments have employed the best artists at their command for its decoration.

Louw (lō), N. P. van Wijk. b. 1906—. South African poet and essayist. His volumes Alleenspraak (Soliloquy, 1935), Die Halve Kring (The Half Circle, 1937), and Gestaltes en Dieren (Figures and Animals, 1942) display a fine, dynamic, and individualistic poetic art. The epic Raka (1941) deals with the destructive power of evil. A remarkable chorus play on the Lord's judgment of the Great Trek is Die Dieper Reg (The Inner Justice, 1938). His penetrating essays are collected in Berigte te Velde (Field Information, 1939) and en Loyal Verset (Loyal Resistance, 1939). He is the editor of the literary quarterly Standpunte.

Louÿs (lwē), Pierre. [Pseudonym of Pierre Louis.] b. at Ghent, Belgium, Dec. 10, 1870; d. at Paris, June 4, 1925. French poet and novelist. Author of Les Chansons de Bilitis (1894), Aphrodite (1896), La Femme et le pantin (1898), and Les Adventures du Roi Pausole (1901). He was the founder of the literary reviews La Conque (1891) and Le Centaure (1895, with André Gide, Paul Valéry, and Henri de Régnier). Learned, particularly in classical literature of the decadence, and a gifted translator, he exerted considerable influence on young talents such as Gide and Valéry. His own work, delicate and licentious, has enjoyed double popularity as literature and as erotica.

Lovat (lo.vät'). River in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, flowing N into Lake Ilmen opposite Novgorod. Length, ab. 335 mi.

Lovat (luv'ạt), 12th Baron. Title of Fraser, Simon (1667–1747).

Lovćen or Lovchen (lôv'chen), Mount. Fortified mountain near the former Montenegrin capital of Cetinje which was the key defense point against the Austrian invasion of Montenegro late in 1915 during World War I. Elevation, ab. 5,700 ft.

Love. Play by J. Sheridan Knowles, produced in 1839.

Love à la Mode. Farce by Charles Macklin, written in 1759 and printed in 1793.

Love and a Bottle. Comedy by George Farquhar, produced in 1699.

Love and Business. Miscellany by George Farquhar, printed in 1702.

Love and Death and Love and Life. Companion paintings by George Frederick Watts.

Love and Honour. Play by Sir William D'Avenant licensed in 1634, printed in 1649, and revived with great success after the Restoration.

Love and Life. See Love and Death.

Love and Lucy (lō'si). Novel by Maurice Hewlett, published in 1916.

Love and Mr. Lewisham (lō'i.sham). Semiautobiographical novel by H. G. Wells, published in 1900.

Love at a Venture. Comedy by Susannah Centlivre, printed in 1706. It is founded on Corneille's Le Galant double.

Loveby (luv'bi). "Wild gallant" in John Dryden's play of that name.

Lovech (lō'vech). Town in NW Bulgaria, in the department of Pleven, ab. 20 mi. S of Pleven. 9,420 (1934).

Love Chase, The. Comedy by J. Sheridan Knowles, produced in 1837.

Love Chase, The. Historical novel with a psychological theme by Maurice Hewlett, published in 1905.

Lovedu (lō.vā'dō) or Lovelu (lō.vā'lō). See Lobedu.

Love for Love. Comedy by William Congreve, printed in 1695.

Love in a Forest. Play adapted from William Shakespeare's As You Like It by Charles Johnson in 1723.

Love in a Maze. Comedy by James Shirley, licensed in 1631. The title was borrowed by Dion Boucicault for a comedy in 1844.

Love in a Riddle. Pastoral by Colley Cibber, written in imitation of The Beggar's Opera, printed in 1729, and played at the Drury Lane Theatre, London, on Jan. 7, 1729. It was later converted into Damon and Phillida.

Love in a Village. Comic opera with text by Isaac Bickerstaffe, produced in 1762 and printed in 1763. The music is by Arne, Handel, Galuppi, and others.

Love in a Wood, or St. James's Park (sānt jāmz'ẓez). Play by William Wycherley, produced in 1672.

Love in These Days. Novel by Alec Waugh, published in 1926.

Loveira (lō.ʙā'rä), Carlos. b. in Cuba, 1882; d. 1928. Cuban novelist. His works, which are autobiographical and journalistic, include Los Ciegos (1922) and Juan Criollo (1927).

Loveira (lō.vā'ra), Vasco de. See Lobeira or Loveira, Vasco de.

Lovejoy (luv'joi), Elijah Parish. b. at Albion, Me., Nov. 9, 1802; killed at Alton, Ill., Nov. 7, 1837. American clergyman and journalist, an opponent of slavery; brother of Owen Lovejoy. He was killed by a proslavery mob at Alton.

Lovejoy, Owen. b. at Albion, Me., Jan. 6, 1811; d. at Brooklyn, N.Y., March 25, 1864. American clergyman and antislavery politician; brother of E. P. Lovejoy. He was a member of Congress from Illinois (1857–64).

Lovel (luv'ęl). In Ben Jonson's comedy The New Inn, a soldier and scholar, and a chivalric lover.

Lovel. Name under which Charles Lamb describes his father, John Lamb, in his essay Old Benchers of the Inner Temple.

Lovelace (luv'lās), Countess of. [Title of Augusta Ada Byron.] b. Dec. 10, 1815; d. Nov. 29, 1852. Daughter of Lord Byron.

Lovelace. Principal male character in Samuel Richardson's novel Clarissa Harlowe. He is an unscrupulous libertine whose name became a synonym for characters of that nature. He is an expansion of Rowe's Lothario.

Lovelace, Francis. b. c1621; d. 1675. English official in colonial America. He was governor (1668–73) of New York, and organized (1668) regular sessions of the executive council whose minutes (until 1673) comprise the first such record ever kept at New York. He established the first merchants' exchange, attempted to introduce printing into the middle British colonies, and instituted the first continuous post road between Boston and New York.

Lovelace, Richard. b. in Kent, England, 1618; d. at London, 1658. English Cavalier poet. He was imprisoned by the Parliament in 1642, took part in the siege of Dunkerque in 1646, and was imprisoned on his return to England in 1648. Released after the king's execution, he died in poverty in the vicinity of London, his whole fortune having been spent in the Royalist cause. In 1649 he published Lucasta (from Lux Casta, his name for a lady said to have been Lucy Sacheverell), which was revised while he was in prison. After his death his brother collected and published his poems as Lucasta: Posthume Poems (1659). His name survives chiefly on account of his lyrics To Althea from Prison and To Lucasta on going to the Wars, the former containing the lines and the latter the even more famous

> Stone walls do not a prison make > Nor iron bars a cage,

> I could not love thee, Dear, so much,
> Loved I not Honour more.

Loveland (luv'lạnd). City in N Colorado, in Larimer County: beet-sugar refineries, and fruit and vegetable canneries. Elevation, ab. 4,982 ft.; pop. 6,773 (1950).

Lovel and Holland (luv'ęl; hol'and), 1st Baron. A title of Perceval, Sir John (1711–70).

Loveless (luv'lęs). Character in Colley Cibber's comedy Love's Last Shift, and in its continuation, John Vanbrugh's The Relapse; a debauched libertine.

Loveless, Elder. Principal male character in Francis Beaumont and John Fletcher's play The Scornful Lady.

Loveless, Young. Brother of the Elder Loveless in Beaumont and Fletcher's The Scornful Lady; a heartless, callous prodigal.

Lovell (luv'ęl). Town in N Wyoming, in Big Horn County, on the Shoshone River ab. 60 mi. W of Sheridan: beet-sugar refineries. 2,508 (1950).

Lovell, George William. b. 1804; d. at Hampstead, London, May 13, 1878. English dramatic writer. Among his plays are The Provost of Bruges (1836), Love's Sacrifice (1842), Look before you Leap (1846), The Wife's Secret (1846), and The Trial of Love (1852).

Lovell, Mansfield. b. at Washington, D.C., Oct. 20, 1822; d. at New York, June 1, 1884. American Civil War general in the Confederate service.

Lovell's Pond (luv'ęlz), The Battle of. See Battle of Lovell's Pond, The.

Lovel the Widower (luv'ęl). Novel by W. M. Thackeray, published in 1861.

Lovely (luv'li), Ann. Character in Susannah Centlivre's comedy A Bold Stroke for a Lover; an heiress.

Love Makes the Man, or the Fop's Fortune. Comedy by Colley Cibber, made from John Fletcher and Philip Massinger's The Custom of the Country and The Elder Brother. It was acted and printed in 1701.

Loven (lō'vęn). Flemish name of Louvain.

Love Nest and Other Stories, The. Collection of nine short stories by Ring Lardner, published in 1926.

Lövenich (lė'vẹ.niċh). Village in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the Rhine Province, Prussia, ab. 5 mi. W of Cologne: various industries. It is in the metropolitan area of Cologne. 13,448 (1950).

Lover (luv'ėr), Samuel. b. at Dublin, Feb. 24, 1797; d. at St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands, July 6, 1868. Irish novelist, song writer, and painter. His chief novels are Rory O'More (1837; it was dramatized and had a run of 108 nights) and Handy Andy (1842). His Songs and Ballads were published in 1839, including "The Angel's Whisper," "The Low-backed Car," "The Four-leaved Shamrock," "Molly Bawn," "Father Molloy," and others.

Lover's Complaint, A. Poem supposedly by William Shakespeare, written probably c1594, and published with the sonnets in 1609. No evidence, internal or external, beyond ascription of the poem to him in the 1609 and 1640 editions, connects it to Shakespeare.

Lover's Life, Complaint of a. Poem inserted in the 16th-century editions of Chaucer, and attributed to him. Manuscript authority gives it to John Lydgate.

Lovers' Melancholy, The. Play by John Ford, produced in 1628 and printed in 1629.

Lover's Progress, The. Play by John Fletcher and Philip Massinger, printed in 1647.

Lovers' Quarrels. Play by King, altered from Vanbrugh's The Mistake in 1790.

Lover's Vows. Comedy by Elizabeth Inchbald, produced at Covent Garden Theatre, London, on Oct. 11, 1798.

Love's Contrivance, or Le Médecin Malgré lui (lẹ mād.saṅ mål.grā lwē). Comedy by Susannah Centlivre, acted and printed in 1703. It was taken from Le Médecin malgré lui and Le Mariage forcé by Molière.

Love's Cure, or the Martial Maid. Play, probably by Philip Massinger and Thomas Middleton according to some authorities (others ascribe it to Francis Beaumont and John Fletcher), altered by Massinger. It was produced c1623 and printed in 1647.

Love's Labour's Lost. Comedy by Shakespeare, produced c1595, printed in quarto in 1598. Various changes were made in it in 1597, when it was retouched for a court performance. The title is A Pleasant Conceited Comedie called Love's Labour's Lost as it was presented before her Highness this last Christmas, Newly corrected and augmented by W. Shakespere. Imprinted 1598. This is the first appearance of Shakespeare's name on a play's title page. There is no doubt that an earlier version existed.

Love's Last Shift, or the Fool in Fashion. Comedy by Colley Cibber, produced in January, 1694. Vanbrugh's The Relapse is a sequel to this.

Love's Metamorphosis. Comedy by John Lyly, published in 1601.

Loves of the Angels, The. Poem by Thomas Moore, published in 1822.

Loves of the Plants, The. Second part of the Botanic Garden, a versified treatise on botany, by Erasmus Darwin, published in 1789. The first part, The Economy of Vegetation, did not appear till 1792.

Loves of the Triangles, The. Satirical poem by George Canning and J. H. Frere, published in the Anti-Jacobin. It was in ridicule of Erasmus Darwin and his Loves of the Plants.

Loves Park (luvz). City in N Illinois, in Winnebago County: a northeastern residential suburb of Rockford. It was incorporated in 1947. Pop. 5,366 (1950).

Love's Pilgrimage. Romantic comedy by John Fletcher and another, probably written by 1612. It was printed in 1647.

Lovett (luv'ĕt), Robert Abercrombie. b. at Huntsville, Tex., Sept. 14, 1895—. American banker and government official. He was associated (1921 et seq.) with the National Bank of Commerce, and was a partner in Brown Brothers, Harriman and Company. He served as assistant secretary of war for air (1941–45), undersecretary of state (1947–49), deputy secretary of defense (1950–51), and secretary of defense (1951 et seq.).

Lovett, Robert Morss. b. at Boston, Dec. 25, 1870—. American professor of English literature, editor, and author. He was a member (1893 et seq.) of the English faculty and professor (1909 et seq.) at the University of Chicago. He served as a member (1921–40) of the New Republic editorial board, and was U.S. government secretary (1939–43) to the Virgin Islands. Author of the novels Gresham (1904) and A Winged Victory (1907), and the play Cowards (1917); coauthor with W. V. Moody of A History of English Literature (1902) and A First View of English Literature (1905). His other works include Edith Wharton (1925) and Preface to Fiction (1930), and several anthologies compiled with R. K. Root and Paul R. Lieder, and with Howard Mumford Jones.

Lovett, Robert Scott. b. near San Jacinto, Tex., June 22, 1860; d. June 19, 1932. American railroad official. Appointed (1889) assistant general attorney of the Texas and Pacific Railroad, he rose to become general counsel (1904–09) and chairman of the executive committee and president (1909–13) of the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific railroads, at that time combined as part of E. H. Harriman's railroad empire. He was chairman (1913–18) of the executive committee of the board of directors and president (1919 et seq.) of the Union Pacific system. He served as priorities commissioner (1917–18) of the War Industries Board, and director (1918) of capital expenditures for the U.S. Railroad Administration.

Lovhedu (lō.vā'dö). See Lobedu.

Lovington (luv'ing.tŏn). Town in SE New Mexico, county seat of Lea County, ab. 70 mi. SE of Roswell, in an oil-producing region. 3,134 (1950).

Løvland (lĕv'län), Jørgen Gunnarsson. b. at Lauvland, Norway, Feb. 3, 1848; d. at Oslo, Norway, Aug. 21, 1922. Norwegian political leader and educator, best known for his leadership in the movement in favor of the Norwegian folk language. He was first foreign minister (1905) after the declaration of independence from Sweden. He was twice premier of the Norwegian government at Stockholm (1895, 1907–08). He also held the ministries of labor (1898–1903) and of churches and education (1915–20). He was president (1913–15) of the Storting.

Lovosice (lô'vô.si.tse). [German, Lobositz.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Ústi, in NW Bohemia, on the Labe (Elbe) River W of Litoměřice, ab. 35 mi. NW of Prague. It is a marketing center for a fruit producing region. Near here, in 1756, Frederick the Great of Prussia defeated the Austrians under Field Marshal Maximilian Ulysses von Browne. 4,962 (1947).

Low (lō), Benjamin Robbins Curtis. b. at Fairhaven, Mass., June 22, 1880; d. June 22, 1941. American poet and lawyer. Author of The Sailor Who has Sailed (1911), The Pursuit of Happiness (1919), Broken Music (1920), Darkening Sea (1925), Winged Victory (1927), To the Funeral Pyre of Shelley (1929), Off Soundings (1932), Brooklyn Bridge (1933), Turn of the Road (1933), and Symphony in D Minor (1937).

Low, David. b. at Dunedin, New Zealand, April 7, 1891—. British cartoonist, noted for his political satires in London newspapers. He was on the staff of the Canterbury Times (New Zealand) and The Bulletin (Sydney, Australia), and later worked for the London Star and Daily News. He is best known for his cartoons in The Evening Standard and, more recently, the Daily Herald. Several collections of his cartoons have been published, including Caricatures, The Billy Book, Lloyd George and Co., Man, Low, and I, Lions and Lambs, Political Parade, A Cartoon History of Our Times, Years of Wrath, and Low's Cartoon History, 1945–1953 (1953). Colonel Blimp, the epitome of Toryism, is his creation.

Low, Francis Stuart. b. at Albany, N.Y., Aug. 15, 1894—. American naval officer. During World War II, he was assistant chief of staff to the commander in chief of the fleet (U.S. Navy), and served with the 7th fleet.

Low, Juliette. [Maiden name, Gordon.] b. Oct. 31, 1860; d. Jan. 17, 1927. American woman who founded the Girl Scouts of America. She organized (1912) the first troop of Girl Guides at Savannah, Ga. Headquarters were established at Washington, D.C., and later moved to New York, and the name changed to Girl Scouts.

Low, Maurice. [Full name, Alfred Maurice Low.] b. at London, 1860; d. at Washington, D.C., June 17, 1929. English journalist. In World War I he played a chief part in the Allied propaganda effort in America. Author of Protection in the United States (1904), America at Home (1908), The American People (2 vols., 1909–11), Great Britain and the War (1914), Freedom of the Seas (1915), The Law of Blockade (1916), Blockade and Contraband (1916), and Woodrow Wilson—An Interpretation (1918).

Low, Seth. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Jan. 18, 1850; d. at Bedford Hills, N.Y., Sept. 17, 1916. American educator. He was elected mayor of Brooklyn in 1881 and again in 1883. As president of Columbia University, New York (1890 et seq.), he superintended the removal of the school to its present site on Morningside Heights. He resigned the presidency of the university in 1901 and was anti-Tammany mayor of New York (1902–03). A reformer, he forced elimination of steam engines on railroad trains within the city, tried to eliminate tenements of the worse sort, and caused a shake-up in the police and financial departments of the city.

Low, Sir Sidney. b. at London, Jan. 22, 1857; d. there, Jan. 13, 1932. English journalist, teacher, and historian. He edited (1888–97) the St. James' Gazette. He served in the Ministry of Information as an editorial writer during World War I. Author of The Governance of England (1904), A Vision of India (1906), Political History of England: 1837–1901 (1907), De Quincey (1911), Egypt in Transition (1914), Italy in the War (1916), The Call of the East (1921), The British Constitution (1928), and Indian States and Princes (1929).

Low, Will Hicok. b. at Albany, N.Y., May 31, 1853; d. Nov. 27, 1932. American artist, best known as a figure painter and for his mural decorations. He published A Painter's Progress (Scammon lectures at the Art Institute of Chicago, 1910). A mural by him decorates the rotunda of the New York State Education Building and a frieze is in the Albany Legislative Library.

Low Countries. Name given to the lands occupying the lowland region near the North Sea comprised in the modern Netherlands, Belgium, and Luxembourg.

Low Countries, Battle of the. In World War II, name given to the sudden, spectacularly successful German invasion of the Netherlands, Belgium, and Luxembourg, begun on May 10, 1940. Though the British and French immediately sent expeditionary forces to aid these nations, the key fortress of Eben Emael, near Liége, was taken on May 11, the Meuse River crossed on May 12, and Rotterdam seized on May 13 after ceaseless pounding from the air. The Dutch army was forced to surrender on May 14. The German advance towards the English Channel cut off the British and Belgian troops from their French allies, and Brussels soon fell.

Lowden (lou'dĕn), Frank Orren. b. at Sunrise City, Minn., Jan. 26, 1861; d. at Tucson, Ariz., March 20, 1943. American lawyer and politician, governor (1917–21) of Illinois. He served (1906–11) as a congressman from Illinois.

Lowe (lō), Sir Hudson. b. at Galway, Ireland, July 28, 1769; d. at London, Jan. 10, 1844. British general, governor of St. Helena during the captivity of Napoleon (1815–21). His strict guarding of the former emperor led to charges of overseverity (against which, in the opinion of many of his contemporaries, he never adequately defended himself).

Lowe, Mary. Original name of Litton, Marie.

Lowe, Robert. [Title, 1st Viscount Sherbrooke.] b. at Bingham, Nottinghamshire, England, Dec. 4, 1811; d. at London, July 27, 1892. English politician. He was vice-president of the Board of Trade and paymaster general (1855–59), vice-president of the education board (1859–64), chancellor of the exchequer (1868–73), and home secretary (1873–74). He was a Liberal, but opposed his party as an "Adullamite" on the question of reform in 1866.

Lowe, Thaddeus Sobieski Coulincourt. b. at Jefferson Mills, N.H., Aug. 20, 1832; d. at Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 16, 1913. American inventor and aeronaut. He experimented (1861) with upper air currents in balloon ascensions, sent (1861) the first telegram message from an airship to President Lincoln, and was head of the aeronautic section of the Union army during the Civil War. He erected (1866) a plant for the manufacture of artificial ice and is credited with first commercializing it in America.

Löwe (lē'vẹ) or Löwe-Kalbe (lē'vẹ.käl'bẹ), Wilhelm. See Loewe, Wilhelm.

Lowell (lō'ẹl). City in NE Massachusetts, a county seat (with Cambridge) of Middlesex County, at the falls of the Merrimac River and at its junction with the Concord River, ab. 24 mi. NW of Boston: manufactures of cotton and woolen goods. It was long the chief seat of cotton manufacture in America. It is the seat of Lowell Textile Institute and a state teachers college. Pop. of city, 97,249 (1950); of urbanized area, 106,661 (1950).

Lowell, Abbott Lawrence. b. at Boston, Dec. 13, 1856; d. there, Jan. 6, 1943. American educator, president of Harvard University from 1909 until 1933; brother of Amy Lowell and Percival Lowell. He became professor of the science of government in Harvard University in 1900. He published Essays on Government (1889), Governments and Parties in Continental Europe (1896), The Influence of Party upon Legislation in England and America (1902), The Government of England (1908), and Conflicts of Principle (1932).

Lowell, Amy. b. at Brookline, Mass., Feb. 9, 1874; d. there, May 12, 1925. American poet and critic, associated with the Imagists, noted for her experimental free verse and polyphonic prose, and the biography John Keats (1925); sister of Abbott Lawrence Lowell and Percival Lowell. Having contributed to Des Imagistes (1914), she brought out three numbers (1915, 1916, 1917) of the anthology Some Imagist Poets, and evaluated the principles of the group in Tendencies in Modern American Poetry (1917). Her first collection of poetry, A Dome of Many-Coloured Glass (1912), was followed by Sword Blades and Poppy Seed (1914), Men, Women, and Ghosts (1916), Can Grande's Castle (1918), Pictures of the Floating World (1919), Legends (1921), A Critical Fable (1922), and the posthumous volumes What's O'Clock (1925), East Wind (1926), and Ballads for Sale (1927). Her other works include Six French Poets: Studies in Contemporary Literature (1915) and, with Florence Ayscough, Fir-Flower Tablets: Poems Translated from the Chinese (1921).

Lowell, Edward Jackson. b. at Boston, Oct. 18, 1845; d. at Cotuit, Mass., May 11, 1894. American historian; grandson of Francis Cabot Lowell. Author of The Hessians and the Other German Auxiliaries of Great Britain in the Revolutionary War (1884) and The Eve of the French Revolution (1892).

Lowell, Francis Cabot. b. at Newburyport, Mass., April 7, 1775; d. at Boston, Aug. 10, 1817. American merchant, one of the pioneers of cotton manufacturing at Waltham and Lowell, Mass.; son of John Lowell (1743–1802).

Lowell, James Russell. b. at Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 22, 1819; d. there, Aug. 12, 1891. American poet, essayist, scholar, and diplomat; grandson of John Lowell (1743–1802). He was graduated from Harvard College in 1838. With Robert Carter he founded (1843) The Pioneer, a monthly literary magazine. In January, 1855, on the resignation of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Lowell was elected to his professorship of modern languages at Harvard. He did not assume it at once, but went abroad and spent two years in the study of modern languages, and in perfecting himself in Old French and Provençal poetry. On his return he took the chair of belles-lettres. He was the first editor (1857–62) of the Atlantic Monthly, and was an editor (1863–72) of the North American Review. He was U.S. minister to Spain (1877–80) and to Great Britain (1880–85). He delivered many public addresses both in England and in the U.S., and a course of lectures on the English dramatists at the Lowell Institute in 1887. Among his poetical works are A Year's Life (1841), Poems (1844, 1848, 1849, 1854), Complete Poetical Works (1850, 1858, 1880), The Vision of Sir Launfal (1848), A Fable for Critics (1848), The Biglow Papers (two series, 1848 and 1867), Mason and Slidell (1862), Commemoration Ode (1865), Under the Willows (1868), The Cathedral (1869), Three Memorial Poems (1876), The Cathedral (1877), and Heartsease and Rue (1888). His prose works and essays are collected in Conversations on Some of the Old Poets (1845), Fireside Travels (1864), Among my Books (1870; second series, 1876), My Study Windows (1874), Democracy (1886), and Political Essays (1888). His Letters (2 vols., 1893) were edited by Charles Eliot Norton.

Lowell, John. b. at Newburyport, Mass., June 17, 1743; d. at Roxbury, Mass., May 6, 1802. American jurist and legislator. He was a selectman (1771, 1772, 1774, 1776) of Newburyport, Mass., represented (1778) Boston in the Massachusetts General Court, was a delegate (1779–80) to the state constitutional convention, and served as a member (1782, 1783) of the Continental Congress.

Lowell, John. [Sometimes called the Little Rebel or the Boston Rebel.] b. at Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 6, 1769; d. March 12, 1840. American lawyer and pamphleteer; son of John Lowell (1743–1802). He was a representative (1798–1800) from Boston to the Massachusetts legislature. Author of Review of a Treatise on Expatriation by George Hay Esquire (1814) and the pamphlets Mr. Madison's War (1812), Are You a Christian or a Calvinist? (1815), and An Address Delivered Before the Massachusetts Agricultural Society (1818).

Lowell, John. b. at Boston, May 11, 1799; d. at Bombay, India, March 4, 1836. American merchant; son of Francis Cabot Lowell. He was the founder of the Lowell Institute at Boston.

Lowell, John. b. at Boston, Oct. 18, 1824; d. May 14, 1897. American jurist, expert on bankruptcy law; great-grandson of John Lowell (1743–1802). He was appointed (1865) U.S. district judge for Massachusetts, and named (1878) circuit judge for the First Circuit. Author of A Legal Review of the Case of Dred Scott (1857), with Horace Gray, and A Treatise on the Law of Bankruptcy (1899), completed by his son.

Lowell, Josephine Shaw. b. at West Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 16, 1843; d. at New York, Oct. 12, 1905. American philanthropist. She was a member (1876–89) of the New York State Board of Charities, and was largely instrumental in founding the Charity Organization Society and the New York State Charities Aid Association. She also aided in prison reform. She published Public Relief and Private Charity (1884), Industrial Arbitration and Conciliation (1893), and other works.

Lowell, Percival. b. at Boston, March 13, 1855; d. Nov. 12, 1916. American astronomer, best known for his studies of the planet Mars; brother of Abbott Lawrence Lowell and Amy Lowell. He established the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., in 1894, and was its first director. He was nonresident professor of astronomy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1902. Lowell's prediction of a planet outside Neptune's orbit was confirmed by the discovery (1930) of Pluto. He wrote Chosön (1885), The Soul of the Far East (1886), Occult Japan (1894), Mars (1895), Annals of the Lowell Observatory (3 vols., 1898–1905), The Solar System (1903), Mars and its Canals (1906), Mars as the Abode of Life (1909), The Evolution of Worlds (1909), and others.

Lowell, Robert Traill Spence. b. at Boston, Oct. 8, 1816; d. at Schenectady, N.Y., Sept. 12, 1891. American Episcopal clergyman, poet, and novelist; elder brother of James Russell Lowell. Author of the novel The New Priest in Conception Bay (1858), Fresh Hearts that Failed Three Thousand Years Ago, and Other Poems (1860), Poems (1864; including the well-known "The Relief of Lucknow"), and Antony Brode (1874).

Lowell Institute. Educational institution at Boston, Mass. John Lowell (1799–1836) provided in his will that one half of his property (amounting to about 250,000 dollars) should go "to the maintenance and support of public lectures . . . in Boston . . . for the promotion of the moral and intellectual and physical instruction and education of the inhabitants." The management of the fund was left to one trustee, preferably a male descendant of John Lowell (grandfather of the testator). The free lectures were begun Dec. 31, 1839, by a memorial address on John Lowell by Edward Everett. The trustees of the Lowell Institute also established, under the auspices of the Natural History Society, a Teachers' School of Science; under those of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a School of Practical Design (1872), now transferred to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and a School for Industrial Foremen; and under those of the Wells Memorial Institute, free courses for workingmen. Other courses of a special nature have been established from time to time.

Lowell Thomas Mountains (tom'ąs). Mountains in Antarctica, rising above Joerg Plateau, in ab. 76°30′ S., 70°45′ W. Elevation, ab. 9,500 ft.

Löwen (lė'vęn). German name of Louvain.

Löwenberg (lė'vęn.berk) or Löwenburg (-bůrk). Mountain peak in W Germany, in the Siebengebirge, overlooking the Rhine. Elevation, ab. 1,480 ft.

Löwenberg. German name of Lwówek Śląski.

Lower Alsace (al.sās', al'sas). See Alsace, Lower.

Lower Ammonoosuc (am.ǫ.nō'suk). See Ammonoosuc.

Lower Arrow Lake. See Arrow Lake, Upper and Lower.

Lower Austria (ôs'tri.ą). [German, Niederösterreich.] Province of Austria, bounded on the E by Upper Austria, on the N and NE by Czechoslovakia, on the E by Burgenland, and on the S by Styria. It is traversed by the Danube River. It lies partly within the Bohemian Forest country on the NW and in the Waldviertel, belonging to the eastern Alps, in the SW, but these are merely forested hills and there are no high peaks. In the C and E parts of the province, both N and S of the Danube, are fertile plains. The climate is mild. There is a flourishing agriculture including fruit and wine culture. The prevailing occupation is industry. There are metal, machine, textile, paper, lumber, leather, chemical, and foodstuff factories, breweries, flour mills, and sugar refineries. There are oil deposits and good supplies of water power. The population is predominantly German-speaking and Roman Catholic. Capital, Vienna; area, 7,092 sq. mi.; pop. 1,249,610 (1951).

History. German settlers entered the region in the wake of the armed expeditions of Charlemagne against the Avars, but Germanization succeeded definitely only after the victory of Emperor Otto the Great over the Magyars in 955. Organization of the Bavarian Ostmark (eastern frontier) under the name of Österreich took place at that time. The country N of the Danube was colonized later. In the 16th century the region of Wiener-Neustadt was transferred from Styria to Lower Austria. The province was exposed to Turkish invasions but remained uninterruptedly in the possession of the Hapsburgs until 1918. Small pieces of land around Feldberg and Gmünd were ceded to Czechoslovakia in 1918. The municipal district of Vienna became a separate province in 1920. After World War II Lower Austria was in the Russian zone of occupation in Austria.

Lower Avon (ā'vǫn, av'ǫn). See Avon River, W and SW England.

Lower Bann (ban). See under Bann.

Lower Bavaria (bą.vār'i.ą). [German, Niederbayern.] Regierungsbezirk (government district) of the Land (state) of Bavaria, in S Germany, American Zone, bounded on the E and SE by Czechoslovakia and Austria and traversed by the Danube. The country on both banks of the Danube River is among the most fertile in Bavaria. Capital, Landshut; area, ab. 4,152 sq. mi.; pop. 1,084,289 (1946).

Lower Burgundy (bėr'gun.di). See under Burgundy, 10.

Lower California (kal.i.fôrn'yą). [Spanish, Baja California; sometimes called Old California, Spanish, Vieja California.] Peninsula of North America, projecting into the Pacific Ocean, forming a state of Mexico. It was discovered by Ximenes in 1534, explored by Cortés in 1535, and settled by the Spaniards in the last part of the 17th century. Its surface is largely mountainous, and its climate dry. Length, ab. 790 mi.; area, ab. 55,629 sq. mi.; pop. 287,366 (1950).

Lower Cochin-China (kō'chin.chī'nạ). See Cochin China.

Lower East Side. Section of New York City in the E part of the borough of Manhattan, lying below 14th Street, known since the 19th century as a slum area and the home of poor working-class immigrants. Until the limiting of immigration in the 1920's and until the advent of modern labor legislation its tenements housed sweatshops notorious for their sordid conditions.

Lower Egypt (ē'jipt). [Arabic, Wagh-el-Bahri.] One of the great divisions of Egypt, in NE Africa. Lower Egypt is the name applied to the area in the delta of the Nile River, or approximately that area N of the city of Cairo. It is an ancient term and is still in use today. The region is densely populated and intensively cultivated; irrigation is common throughout the area. Settled area, ab. 8,483 sq. mi.; pop. 8,206,975 (1947).

Lower Empire. See Byzantine Empire.

Lower Ferrar Glacier (fę.rär'). See Ferrar Glacier.

Lower Franconia (frang.kō'ni.ą). [Also: Lower Frankonia; German, Unterfranken; sometimes called Main Franconia, German, Mainfranken.] Regierungsbezirk (government district) of the Land (state) of Bavaria, S Germany, American Zone, bounded by Württemberg-Baden and Hesse on the SW, W, and NW, and by Thuringia on the N. It is traversed by the Main River. It passed to Bavaria in the Napoleonic period. Capital, Würzburg; area, ab. 3,277 sq. mi.; pop. 984,395 (1946).

Lower Germany (jėr'mą.ni). [German, Niederdeutschland.] Region in Germany, approximately identical with N Germany; in a wider sense including all the regions where Low German dialects (plattdeutsche Mundarten) are spoken.

Lower Loch Eil (loch ēl'). See under Linnhe, Loch.

Lower Lough Erne (loch ėrn'). See under Erne, Lough.

Lower Lough Macnean (loch mak.nēn'). See Macnean, Upper and Lower Lough.

Lower Merion (mer'i.ǫn). Suburban township in SE Pennsylvania, in Montgomery County, NW of Philadelphia. 48,745 (1950).

Lower Michigan (mish'i.gąn). See under Michigan.

Lower Norwood (nôr'wůd). Former name of West Norwood.

Lower Palatinate (pą.lat'in.ąt). See under Rhineland-Palatinate.

Lower Paraná (pā.rā.nā'). See Paraná River.

Lower Sandusky (san.dus'ki). Former name of Fremont, Ohio.

Lower Saranac Lake (sar'ą.nak). See Saranac Lake, Lower.

Lower Sunbury (sun'ber''i, -bėr.i). Popular name of Sunbury-on-Thames.

Lower Tunguska (tůn.gōs'kạ). See Tunguska, Lower.

Lowery (lou'ri), Robert. See Laurie, Robert.

Lowerz (lō'vėrts), Lake of. [German, Lowerzer See (lō'vėr.tsėr zā).] Lake in the canton of Schwyz, Switzerland, NE of the Lake of Lucerne. Length, ab. 2¼ mi.

Lower Zambezi Bridge (zam.bē'zi). See under Trans-Zambezia Railway.

Lowes (lōz), John Livingston. b. at Decatur, Ind., Dec. 20, 1867—. American scholar and professor, best known for his critical study of Coleridge, The Road to Xanadu (1927). He was professor of English at Washington University, St. Louis, professor of English at Swarthmore College, and professor of English literature (1918–39) at Harvard. He was the first George Eastman visiting professor (1930–31) at Oxford. His works include Convention and Revolt in Poetry (1919), The Art of Geoffrey Chaucer (1931), Geoffrey Chaucer and the Development of his Genius (1934), and Essays in Appreciation (1936).

Lowestoft (lōs'toft, -tǫf). Municipal borough and fishing port in E England, in NE Suffolk, on the North Sea ab. 10 mi. S of Great Yarmouth, ab. 118 mi. NE of London by rail. It is the most easterly town in England. Although it is most important as a fishing port, it is also a seaside resort, and a manufacturing town with aircraft, shipbuilding, automotive, and food-processing industries. Near Lowestoft in 1665 the British fleet under the Duke of York (later James II) defeated the Dutch. 42,837 (1951).

Low German. See under German.

Low-Heels. See High-Heels and Low-Heels.

Łowicz (lô'vēch). Town in C Poland, in the województwo (province) of Łódź, ab. 45 mi. W of Warsaw: tanneries; potteries; cattle and horse markets. 13,764 (1946).

Lowie (lō'i), Robert Heinrich. b. at Vienna, June 12, 1883—. American ethnologist and teacher. He was assistant curator (1909–13) and associate curator (1913–21) in the department of anthropology at the American Museum of Natural History, was associate professor (1917–18, 1921–25) and professor (1925 et seq.) of anthropology at the University of California, and led several anthropological expeditions in studying the life of North American Indians, especially those of the northern Plains area. Among his works are The Assiniboine (1909), Social Life of the Crow Indians (1912), The Age-Societies of the Plains Indians (1916), Culture and Ethnology (1917), Primitive Society (1920), Primitive Religion (1924), The Origin of the State (1927), Are We Civilized? (1929), The History of Ethnological Theory (1937), and The German People (1945).

Lowin (lō'in), John. b. 1576; d. 1659. English actor, a contemporary of Shakespeare. He played some of the greater characters, including Hamlet, and ended his days keeping the Three Pigeons, a tavern at Brentford.

Lowndes (loundz), Mrs. Belloc. [Pen name of Mrs. Frederic Sawrey Lowndes; maiden name, Marie Adelaide Belloc.] b. 1868; d. at Eversley Cross, Hampshire, England, Nov. 14, 1947. English novelist; sister of Hilaire Belloc. Author of historical works, novels, plays, and especially murder and mystery tales, including The Heart of Penelope (1904), Barbara Rebell (1905), The Chink in the Armour (1912), The Lodger (1913), Who Rides on a Tiger (1936), Lizzie Borden (1940), and A Passing World (1947). She published the autobiography I, Too, Have Lived in Arcadia (1941).

Lowndes, Rawlins. b. on St. Kitts, British West Indies, in January, 1721; d. Aug. 24, 1800. American political leader. He was speaker (1763–65, 1772–75) of the South Carolina legislature, was named (1766) associate judge of the court of common pleas, and served as last president (1788–79) of South Carolina.

Lowndes, William. b. at St. Bartholomew, S.C., Feb. 11, 1782; d. at sea, Oct. 27, 1822. American politician; son of Rawlins Lowndes. He was elected (1810) to Congress, where he served on the committees for commerce and manufactures, for military affairs, and for naval affairs. He was chairman (1815–18) of the committee on ways and means, and as such aided the passage of the tariff bill of 1816. His nomination (1821) for president was the occasion of his famous statement "The Presidency is not an office to be either solicited or declined."

Lowry (lou'ri), Robert. See Laurie, Robert.

Lowth (louth), Robert. b. at Winchester, England, Nov. 27, 1710; d. at Fulham, near London, Nov. 3, 1787. English divine and scholar, bishop of London (1777–87). He was professor (1741 et seq.) of poetry at Oxford, and in his lectures there examined Biblical poetry as poetry, apart from its sacred context; this study was the effective beginning of the examination of the Bible as a literary work. He published Praelectiones de sacra poesi Hebraeorum (Lectures on the Sacred Poetry of the Hebrews, 1753), a translation of Isaiah (1778), and others.

Lowther (lou'ᴛʜėr), Sir Gerard. b. 1589; d. 1660. English chief justice of common pleas (1634–40) in Ireland, impeached (1640) with Lord Chancellor Richard Bolton for conspiring to subvert the laws and parliament of Ireland. This impeachment was abandoned by order of the king. Subsequently Lowther went over to the side of Parliament and served (1654) as one of the three commissioners of the great seal in Ireland.

Lowther, James. [Title: 1st Earl of Lonsdale; called the "Bad Earl."] b. Aug. 5, 1736; d. in Westmorland, England, May 24, 1802. English politician noted for his power in the House of Commons. A member of Parliament (1757–1762, 1768–69, 1774–84), Lowther controlled nine seats in the House of Commons.

Lowther, James. b. at Leeds, England, 1840; d. at Redcar, England, 1904. English politician and sportsman. He was appointed by Disraeli undersecretary of colonies (1874) and chief secretary (1878) to the lord lieutenant of Ireland, where he had won unpopularity for opposing the Irish land bill (1870). He advocated a protective tariff and saw protection of home industry become (1904) a Conservative Party principle. He bred racehorses from 1873 (most successful: King Monmouth, winner of more than 11,000 pounds).

Lowther, Sir John. [Title, 1st Viscount Lonsdale.] b. 1655; d. July 10, 1700. English barrister and public official. A member of Parliament (1676–96), he was a privy councilor (1689) and lord lieutenant of Westmorland, first lord of the treasury (1690), and lord privy seal (1699–1700).

Lowther, Sir Richard. b. 1529; d. at Lowther, Westmorland, England, Jan. 27, 1607. English protector of Mary, Queen of Scots. He refused (1568) to surrender her to Thomas Percy, Earl of Northumberland, and was fined in the Star Chamber for permitting an interview between Mary and Thomas Howard, Duke of Norfolk. He took part (1569) in a scheme to free Mary during a revolt of the northern Roman Catholics.

Lowther, William. [Title, 1st Earl of Lonsdale (of the 2nd creation).] b. 1757; d. at Twickenham, England, March 19, 1844. English nobleman and patron of William Wordsworth; third cousin of James Lowther (1736–1802). Wordsworth dedicated (1814) The Excursion to him, and subsequently also a sonnet upon the Lowther motto "Magistratus Indicat Virum."

Lowther, William. [Title, 2nd Earl of Lonsdale (of the second creation).] b. at Uffington, near Stamford, Lincolnshire, England, July 21, 1787; d. March 4, 1872. English government official. He was junior lord (1809) of the admiralty, first commissioner (1828) of woods and forests, president (1834–35) of the Board of Trade, postmaster general (1841) and president (1852) of council. He was the original of Lord Eskdale in Disraeli's novel Tancred.

Lowther Hills. [Also: Leadhills, Lead Hills, the Lowthers.] Small range of mountains in S Scotland, extending along the Dumfriesshire-Lanarkshire boundary. The highest summits are Green Lowther (2,403 ft.) and Lowther Hill (2,377 ft.).

Lowville (lou'vil). Village in N New York, county seat of Lewis County: storage center for cheese and other agricultural products. 3,671 (1950).

Loxa (lō'ᴋä). See Loja.

Loyal (lwä.yál), Monsieur. Bailiff in Molière's Tartuffe; a very small part made famous by Coquelin.

Loyal Associated Refugees. See Associated Loyalists.

Loyalists. [Also called Tories.] In American history, the colonial adherents of the British government during the Revolutionary period.

Loyal Legion. [Official title, Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States.] Society organized at Philadelphia, April 15, 1865, to commemorate the services and to perpetuate the memory of those who served in the Union army, and to afford relief to soldiers who survived the war. Membership descends to the eldest male lineal descendant according to the rules of primogeniture.

Loyalty Islands (loi'ạl.ti). [French, Îles Loyauté (ēl lwä.yō.tā).] Group of islands belonging to France, in the South Pacific, ab. 60 mi. E of New Caledonia. The chief islands are Lifu, Uvea, and Maré. The group is a dependency of New Caledonia. Area, ab. 740 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 12,000.

Loyang (lô'yäng'). [Former name, Honanfu.] City in N central China, in Honan province, ab. 425 mi. SW of Peiping, once the capital of China. At the center of a rich cultural and historical area of ancient and medieval China, it has numerous ancient tombs and temples. 77,159 (1935).

Loyola (loi.ō'lạ; Spanish, lō.yō'lä), Saint Ignatius of. See Saint Ignatius of Loyola.

Loyola, Martin Garcia Oñez de. b. in Guipúzcoa, Spain, c1548; killed between Imperial and Angol, Chile, Nov. 22, 1598. Spanish cavalier; nephew of Saint Ignatius of Loyola. He went to Peru in 1568, distinguished himself in the campaign against the Inca Tupac Amaru, and finally captured him in 1571. Subsequently he married the Inca's niece. In 1592 he was appointed captain-general of Chile. There he prosecuted the Araucanian war with vigor, but was eventually surprised by the Indians at a camp and killed together with 60 companions.

Loyson (lwä.zôṅ), Charles. [Called Père Hyacinthe.] b. at Orléans, France, March 10, 1827; d. at Paris, Feb.

9, 1912. French pulpit orator. He became a priest in 1851, and afterward entered the order of the Carmelites. He went (c1865) to Paris, where he acquired a reputation for eloquence in the pulpit, and for boldness in denouncing abuses in the Roman Catholic Church. Excommunicated in 1869, for refusing to accept the doctrine of papal infallibility then splitting French Roman Catholics into two camps, he married in 1872, was chosen curate of a congregation of Liberal Catholics at Geneva in 1873, and founded a Gallican congregation at Paris in 1879.

Lozada (lō.thä'тнä). See Losada.

Lozère (lo.zer). Department in S France, bounded by Cantal on the NW, Haute-Loire on the NE, Ardèche on the E, Gard on the SE and S, and Aveyron on the W. It is part of the old province of Languedoc. The surface is largely mountainous, the winters are severe, and the soil is generally poor. The population has been declining in recent decades. Grain, potatoes, and livestock are the main products. The milk production contributes to the cheese manufacture at Roquefort in Aveyron. There are stone quarries and small industries. Capital, Mende; area, ab. 2,000 sq. mi.; pop. 90,523 (1946).

Lozi (lō'zē). [Also: Aluya, Aluyi, Balozi, Barozi, Luyi, Rozi.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting the flood plains of the Zambezi River in the neighborhood of Mongu in W Northern Rhodesia. Their population is estimated at more than 65,000 (by Thomson in 1934). By the conquest of neighboring peoples in the 17th century, they established and ruled the great Rotse empire, after which Barotse is named. They speak the Sotho dialect of the Kololo, who conquered and ruled them from 1836 to 1873. They have bilateral descent, with a bias in favor of patrilineal descent and patrilinean succession to kingship, and no exogamous clans. They practice hoe agriculture, moving their small settlements in accord with the seasonal flooding of the Zambezi. Their principal foods are maize, sorghum, and cassava.

Lualaba (lö.ą.lä'bą). [French, Loualaba.] Name given to the upper part of the Congo River, C Africa, above Stanley Falls where the river flows in a N-S direction.

Luanda (lö.an'dą). [Also: Loanda; full Portuguese name, São Paulo de Loanda.] Seaport and capital of the Portuguese colony of Angola, in SW Africa. Founded in 1575, it has been the capital of Angola since 1627, but is scheduled to lose that distinction when the capital is moved to the new site of Nova Lisboa. The city is an important seaport and is connected with the Katanga province of the Belgian Congo by a railroad. Pop. 66,932, including 9,487 Europeans (1946); 137,139 (1950).

Luangprabang (lwäng'prä.bäng'). [Also, Luang Prabang.] Town in N Indochina, in NW Laos, ab. 250 mi. SW of Hanoi: residence of the king of Laos. There are several zinc mines in the area. It is a starting point for hunting expeditions for tigers and elephants. Pop. ab. 20,000.

Luapula (lö.ą.pö'lą). River in C Africa, main headstream of the Congo River. It rises in Northern Rhodesia, and forms the border between the Belgian Congo and Northern Rhodesia, emptying into Lake Mweru.

Luarca (lwär'kä). Commune in NW Spain, in the province of Oviedo, on the Bay of Biscay, ab. 35 mi. W of Oviedo: small harbor; fisheries; paper and metal industries; agricultural trade. 25,200 (1940).

Luba (lö'bä). [Also: Baluba; French, Balouba, Louba.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, whose powerful empire twice dominated the SE Belgian Congo. Today they are ruled by a number of independent hereditary chiefs, who share political authority with their queen mother and queen sister. They have exogamous matrilineal clans. The Luba practice hoe agriculture, and their principal food is cassava.

Lubań (lö'bäny'). [German, Lauban.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, formerly in Silesia, Germany, situated ab. 40 mi. W of Legnica, in the immediate neighborhood of the German and Czechoslovakian borders. It has textile industries, and horse and cattle markets. The town hall dates from 1541. The town became part of Prussia in 1815, of Poland in 1945. Pop. 17,353 (1939), 8,149 (1946).

Lubang Islands (lo.bang'). Group of islands in the Philippines, belonging to Mindoro province, and lying NW of Mindoro and W of S Luzon. It contains 11 named and 48 unnamed islands and rocks. Area of group, ab. 87.6 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 15,000.

Lubawa (lö.bä'vä). Polish name of Löbau.

Lübben (lüb'en). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, on the Spree River, ab. 45 mi. SE of Berlin. Before World War II it had knitwear, paper, and lumber industries. It is a starting point for excursions in the Spreewald district. 9,433 (1946).

Lubberland (lub'ėr.land). See under Cockaigne.

Lubbock (lub'ok). City in NW Texas, county seat of Lubbock County; processing center for cottonseed, dairy products, meat, poultry, and feed. It was founded in 1891. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 31,853 (1940), 71,747 (1950).

Lubbock, Basil. [Full name, Alfred Basil Lubbock.] b. Sept. 9, 1876; d. Sept. 4, 1944. English soldier, authority on the history of sailing ships; son of Sir John Lubbock (1834–1913), 1st Baron Avebury. Author of The China Clippers (1914), The Colonial Clippers (1921), The Log of the Cutty Sark (1924), Western Ocean Packets (1925), The Down Easters—American Sailing Ships 1869–1929 (1929), The Nitrate Clippers (1932), The Opium Clippers (1933), and The Arctic Whalers (1935).

Lubbock, Sir John. [Title, 1st Baron Avebury.] b. at London, April 30, 1834; d. at Kingsgate, Kent, England, May 28, 1913. English banker, naturalist, educator, and politician. He entered (1848) his father's banking house, becoming head of the firm in 1865. He served as a Liberal member of Parliament for Maidstone (1870–80) and for London University (1880–1900). He entered (1900) the House of Lords. He was vice-chancellor (1872–80) of London University, and principal (1890–92) of the London Workingmen's College. Author of Prehistoric Times (1865), The Origin of Civilization and the Primitive Condition of Man (1870), Ants, Bees, and Wasps (1882), The Pleasures of Life (1887), On the Senses, Instincts, and Intelligence of Animals (1888), The Beauties of Nature (1892), The Use of Life (1894), Peace and Happiness (1909), Marriage, Totemism, and Religion (1911), and other works. In 1891 he compiled a list of The Hundred Best Books, a work which has been reprinted many times.

Lubbock, Sir John William. b. at London, March 26, 1803; d. near Farnborough, Kent, England, June 20, 1865. English astronomer and mathematician. His scientific work, devoted primarily toward simplification of method and the comparison of observations with theoretical predictions, included a study of the tides, of planetary and cometary orbits, of lunar motion. He was an advocate of Laplace's theory of probability and applied the mathematical approach to such problems as life insurance. He wrote On the Theory of the Moon and on the Perturbations of the Planets (1833), and others.

Lubbock, Percy. b. June 4, 1879—. English literary critic and essayist; grandson of Sir John William Lubbock. His works include The Craft of Fiction (1921), Earlham (1922), Roman Pictures (1923), The Region Cloud (1925), Shades of Eton (1929), and Portrait of Edith Wharton (1947).

Lubbock, Sybil Marjorie. See Cuffe, Lady Sybil Marjorie.

Lubec (lo'bek). Town in E Maine, in Washington County, on the Atlantic coast. It contains West Quoddy Head, the easternmost point of the continental U.S. 2,973 (1950).

Lübeck (lü'bek; Anglicized, lö'bek). Former free state in N Germany, comprising the city of Lübeck, a small adjoining territory, and several exclaves. It was bounded by the Baltic Sea, Mecklenburg, Holstein, and the principality of Lübeck, which belonged to Oldenburg. It was incorporated into the Prussian province of Schleswig-Holstein in 1937. Area, ab. 152 sq. mi.

Lübeck. City in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, until 1937 [illegible] a free city of Germany, situated ab. 35 mi. NE of Hamburg. It is connected with the Baltic Sea and the North Sea by waterways, and has trade in lumber, stone and building materials, livestock, coal, chemicals, fertilizer, iron ore, and machinery. It has paper, rubber, textile, shipbuilding, machine, tool, cement, and foodstuff industries. 223,059 (1946), 238,276 (1950).

Architecture. Lübeck, with gates and gabled houses of the Gothic and Renaissance periods, 18th-century residences, and various ecclesiastical and civic monuments, retains even today a uniquely picturesque quality, although some of the finest buildings were severely damaged during World War II. The Dom (cathedral), founded in 1173 by Henry the Lion as a Romanesque basilica church, was rebuilt in the Gothic style in the 14th century; it contains a painting by Memling. The Church of Mary (erected 1280–1304) is one of the foremost examples of the North German brick-Gothic style. The Rathaus (town hall), one of the finest medieval town halls of Germany, is chiefly in the Gothic and Renaissance styles. Most of these buildings need extensive repairs as a result of damage suffered in World War II. The Buddenbrook-Haus and Museum, where the author Thomas Mann was born, was destroyed.

History. Originally a Slavic settlement, Lübeck was first colonized by Germans under Adolf of Holstein in 1143, and rebuilt by Henry the Lion, Duke of Saxony, with the aid of Westphalian merchants, in 1158. It became an imperial free city in 1226 and was soon afterward the leading commercial town in northern Europe, exercising political power far beyond the actual limits of its territorial sovereignty (towns were founded according to its municipal law code along the coasts of the Baltic Sea and in the regions E of the Elbe River, and its citizens guided a large part of the early German colonization effort in the Slavic lands). In the course of the 13th century it became the head of the Hanseatic League, maintaining its position until the 15th and 16th centuries. Social and political antagonisms, the increased power of the Scandinavian monarchies, and the disturbances of the Thirty Years' War destroyed its position. The Reformation was introduced in 1530. The city was sacked by the French in 1806 after the battle of Jena; afterward it was part of the German Bund and of the German Reich as a free city. The Elbe-Trave Canal was opened in 1900, but the city met with increasing competition from the cities of Kiel and Stettin in the 20th century. During the Nazi period a concentration camp was maintained at Lübeck. The city was entered by British troops on May 2, 1945. The separation of Stettin from Germany and the complete destruction of Kiel created a new competitive advantage for Lübeck after 1945. The increase of the population in the period 1939–46, chiefly because of the influx of East German refugees, was 44.1 percent.

Lübeck, Principality of. Former district in Germany, forming part of the dominions of Oldenburg, situated N of the free city of Lübeck. Its chief city was Eutin. Under the old German Empire it was ruled by prince-bishops, and in 1803 was annexed to Oldenburg. It was incorporated into the Prussian province of Schleswig-Holstein in 1937. Area, ab. 202 sq. mi.; pop. 47,494 (1925).

Lubiana (lō.byä'nä). Italian name of Ljubljana.

Lubin (lō'bin; Polish, lyō'bēn). [German, Lüben (lü'bẹn).] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, formerly in Silesia, Germany, ab. 14 mi. N of Legnica, near the new German-Polish border. It has an old castle of the Silesian Piasts. The population declined after 1945 because of mass emigration of Germans. 10,809 (1939), 1,769 (1946).

Lubin (lō'bin), David. b. at Kłodawa, Poland, June 10, 1849; d. at Rome, Jan. 1, 1919. American agricultural organizer. He started (1884) a dry-goods business at Sacramento, Calif. Expanding into fruit growing, he aided in the organization of the fruit growers. He proposed (1896) an organization through which crop information could be pooled and shared by the world's agriculturists. With the help of Victor Emmanuel III of Italy, he established (1910), and served (1910–19) as U.S. delegate to, the International Institute of Agriculture.

Lubin, Isador. b. at Worcester, Mass., June 9, 1896—, American economist and author. He served as special expert (1918–19) to the War Industries Board. He was a member (1922–33) of the Brookings Institute staff, and served (1933–46) as U.S. commissioner of labor statistics. He was associated with the U.S. Central Statistics Board, the Federal Coördinator of Railroads, and other government agencies and administrators. He was deputy director (1940–41) of the labor division of the Office of Production Management, and U.S. representative (1945 et seq.) on the German reparations commission. Author of Miners' Wages and the Cost of Coal (1924), The Absorption of the Unemployed by American Industry (1929), and other books.

Lubitsch (lō'bich), Ernst. b. at Berlin, Jan. 29, 1892; d. at Bel Air, near Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 30, 1947. American motion-picture director and producer. He received stage training in Germany from Max Reinhardt, and subsequently directed German films. He arrived (1922) in the U.S. to direct Mary Pickford in Rosita. He directed such films as Passion (produced in Germany under the title of Madame DuBarry, 1918), Lady Windermere's Fan, Old Heidelberg, The Love Parade, The Smiling Lieutenant, Design for Living, The Merry Widow, Bluebeard's Eighth Wife, Ninotchka, To Be or Not To Be, and That Uncertain Feeling.

Lübke (lüp'kẹ), Wilhelm. b. at Dortmund, Germany, Jan. 17, 1826; d. at Karlsruhe, Germany, April 5, 1893. German historian of art. He was professor of the history of art and of archaeology at Zurich (1861–66), at Stuttgart (1866–85), and at Karlsruhe (1885–93). Among his works are Geschichte der Architektur (History of Architecture, 1855), Grundriss der Kunstgeschichte (Outlines of the History of Art, 1860), and Geschichte der Plastik (History of the Plastic Art, 1863).

Lublin (lō'blin; Polish, lyō'blēn). [Russian, Lyublin.] Województwo (province) in E Poland, bordering on the provinces of Białystok on the N, Warszawa on the NW, Kielce on the W, and Rzeszów on the S, and on the U.S.S.R. on the E. Capital, Lublin; area, ab. 10,525 sq.mi.; pop. 1,650,000 (est. 1950).

Lublin. [Russian, Lyublin.] City in E Poland, in the województwo (province) of Lublin, on the Bistrzyca River, ab. 92 mi. SE of Warsaw: manufactures cloth, machinery, flour, and beverages. It is the marketing center of a fertile grain and livestock producing district. Lublin is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishopric and, since 1918, of a university. The cathedral, erected in the 16th century by the Jesuits, has interior decorations in the Rococo style of the 18th century. Above the city is the former royal castle, used as a prison during the 19th and 20th centuries. Lublin included until World War II one of the oldest Jewish settlements in Poland. The Jewish synods of Poland and Lithuania convened here, and it was the seat of a rabbinical academy founded in the 16th century. Lublin was conquered by the Swedes in 1703, incorporated into Austria in 1795, into Russia in 1814, and passed to the republic of Poland in 1919. In World War I, taken by the Germans and Austrians on Aug. 25, 1914, and again on July 30, 1915, it became seat of the Austro-Hungarian military government of Poland. In World War II, taken by Germans on Sept. 18, 1939, the town and surroundings became a place of assemblage for Jewish deportees from many European countries. The concentration camps of Piaski, Majdaneck, Liepowa, and Sobibor, where several hundred thousand inmates were killed by a variety of devices, are in the vicinity. Lublin was entered by Russian forces on June 25, 1944. Pop. 116,294 (1950).

Lubliner (lō.blē'nėr), Hugo. [Pseudonym, Hugo Bürger.] b. at Breslau, April 22, 1846; d. at Berlin, Dec. 19, 1911. German businessman who turned to the writing of plays and novels. His works, although now largely forgotten, were enormously popular in their day (Der Frauenadvokat, 1873; Die Florentiner, 1876; Das fünfte Rad, 1898; and many others).

Lubliniec (lyō.blē'nyets). [German, Lublinitz (lō.blē'nits).] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Katowice, ab. 30 mi. W of Częstochowa: machine factories; brickyards. It became part of Prussia (Upper Silesia) in 1742, of Poland in 1919. Pop. 11,470 (1946).

Lublinski (lō.blin'skē), Samuel. b. at Johannisburg, Germany, 1868; d. at Weimar, Germany, 1910. German critic and dramatist. He set forth his ideas for the solution of many social problems in Literatur und Gesellschaft im neunzehnten Jahrhundert (4 vols., 1899), in Die Bilanz der Moderne (1904), and in Ausgang der Moderne (1908).

Lubnan (lōb.nän'). Arabic name of the republic of Lebanon.

Luca (lö'kạ). Latin name of Lucca, city.

Luca (lö'kä), Esteban de. b. 1786; d. in a shipwreck, 1824. Argentine poet. An ardent patriot, he supervised the production of war materials for the revolutionary movement against Spain in the early 19th century. Author of Canto lírico a la libertad de Lima (1821) and A pueblo de Buenos Aires (1822).

Luca, Giuseppe De. See De Luca, Giuseppe.

Lucan (lö'kạn). [Full Latin name, Marcus Annaeus Lucanus.] b. at Córdoba, Spain, 39 A.D.; committed suicide, 65 A.D. Roman poet and prose writer, author of the Pharsalia, in 10 books, an epic poem on the civil war between Caesar and Pompey. He was forbidden by Nero, through jealousy, to recite in public, and in revenge joined the conspiracy of Piso. He was betrayed, and by a promise of pardon was induced to turn informer, but, after denouncing his mother and his other accomplices, he was condemned to death. He anticipated his punishment by causing his veins to be opened.

Lucan, Earl of. Title of Sarsfield, Patrick.

Lucan, 3rd Earl of. Title of Bingham, George Charles.

Lucania (lö.kā'ni.ạ). See also Basilicata.

Lucania. In ancient geography, a division of S Italy. It was bounded by Campania, Samnium, and Apulia on the N and NE, the Gulf of Tarentum on the E, Bruttium on the S, and the Tyrrhenian Sea on the SW. The surface is mountainous. The inhabitants were Lucanians (a branch of the Samnites) and, on the coast, Greeks. It was reduced by Rome in the 3rd century B.C.

Lucaris (lö'kạ.ris), Cyrillus (or Cyril). b. in Crete, c1572; murdered at Constantinople, 1638. Reforming prelate of the Greek Church, influenced by Calvinism and therefore a storm center in the Eastern Church. He became patriarch of Constantinople in 1621, and sent the Codex Alexandrinus to England in 1628.

Lucas (lö'kạs), Albert Pike. b. at Jersey City, N. J., 1862; d. at New York, May 2, 1945. American landscape, portrait, and figure painter, and sculptor. His work is represented at the Metropolitan Museum at New York, National Gallery at Washington, D.C., Milwaukee Art Center, Royal Academy at London, and elsewhere.

Lucas, E. V. [Full name, Edward Verrall Lucas.] b. at Eltham, Kent, England, June 11, 1868; d. at London, June 26, 1938. English author and critic. He was connected with the London Globe (1893–1900), with the Academy (1896–1901), and was on the staff of Punch. He was the compiler of The Open Road (1899), and the author of Wisdom While You Wait (1903; with O. L. Graves), Highways and Byways in Sussex (1904), A Wanderer in Holland (1905), The Life of Charles Lamb (1905), A Wanderer in London (1906), Listener's Lure (1906), The Hambledon Men (1907), The Gentlest Art (1907), Her Infinite Variety (1908), Over Bemerton's (1908), A Wanderer in Paris (1909), The Slowcoach (1910), Mr. Ingleside (1910), The Same Star (1924), The More I See of Men (1927), Pleasure Trove (1935), and many other works. He edited (1935) the complete Letters of Charles and Mary Lamb after having earlier (1903–05) published The Works of Charles and Mary Lamb.

Lucas, Frank Laurence. b. at Hipperholme, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 28, 1894—. English scholar and novelist. Author of Cécile (1930) and Doctor Dido (1938). His plays include The Bear Dances (1932) and Land's End (1938). He is author also of Poems (1935), and A Journal Under the Terror (1938).

Lucas, Frederic Augustus. b. at Plymouth, Mass., March 25, 1852; d. Feb. 9, 1929. American naturalist, curator in chief of the museums of the Brooklyn Institute (1904–11), and director of the American Museum of Natural History, New York (1911–29). He was curator of anatomy in the United States National Museum (1893–1904), and acting curator of vertebrate fossils (1901–04). He published papers upon osteological topics, besides books and articles in a popular style on paleontological subjects.

Lucas, John Seymour. b. at London, Dec. 21, 1849; d. there, May 8, 1923. English painter of genre and historical subjects, represented in many British collections. Among his principal works are The Invincible Armada, Charles I before Gloucester, and Old Cronies.

Lucas, St. John Welles. b. at Rugby, Warwickshire, England, Jan. 22, 1879; d. Oct. 23, 1934. English poet, essayist, and editor. Author of The Absurd Repentance (1903), The Vintage of Dreams (1904), Aubrey Ellison (1904), The Florentine Chair (1904), Poems (1904), Quicksilver and Flame (1906), The Marble Sphinx (1906), Gadso (1908), New Poems (1908), The Rose-Winged Hours (1908), Ronsard (1908), The First Round (1909), Saints, Sinners, and the Usual People (1912), The Lady of the Canaries (1913), Heroines and Others (1914), April Folly (1916), The Plunge (1921), and Certain People (1922). He edited the Oxford Book of French Verse (1907; revised and enlarged ed., 1926) and the Oxford Book of Italian Verse (1910).

Lucas van Leyden (lö'käs vän lī'dẹn). [Original name, Lucas Jacobsz.] b. at Leiden, Netherlands, c1494; d. there, 1533. Dutch engraver and painter.

Lucayans (lö.kā'ạnz). [Also, Lucayo (lö.kä'yō).] Aboriginal people of the Bahama Islands, originally numbering ab. 40,000, now extinct. They are believed by many authorities to have been the first Indians encountered by Columbus. They were an Arawak people of simple, peaceful, fishing culture, and their language was the same Arawakan language spoken in the rest of the West Indian Islands.

Lucayos (lö.kä'yōs). Former name of the Bahama Islands.

Lucca (lök'kä). Province in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Tuscany. A former independent principality created by Napoleon I for his sister Elisa Bacciocchi, it was annexed by Tuscany in 1847, and passed to Sardinia in 1860. Capital, Lucca; area, ab. 684 sq. mi.; pop. 352,205 (1936).

Lucca. [French, Lucques; Latin, Luca.] City and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Tuscany, the capital of the province of Lucca, NE of Pisa. It has tobacco, silk, and jute manufactures, and agricultural industries. It is surrounded by Roman and medieval walls and has remains of a Roman aqueduct and amphitheater. Many of the art treasures of Lucca date from the 12th–15th centuries. The cathedral, consecrated in the 6th but built mainly in the 11th century, has a façade built in 1204 by Guidetto and contains sculptures and paintings of the 14th–16th centuries. There are numerous other churches (mostly basilicas), such as San Giusto, San Freddiano, San Michele (the latter with works by Luca della Robbia and Filippino Lippi), all of the 12th century; San Giovanni (with sculptures of the 14th and 15th centuries), San Cristoforo, Santa Maria della Rosa, Santa Maria Forisportam, and others. The Palazzo Publico (1578) contains paintings by Bartolommeo and Filippino Lippi, the Palazzo Pretorio (1492–1509) works by Matteo Civitali; other palaces of the same period are the Palazzi Controni and Michelotti. The town became a Roman colony in 177 B.C., was the capital of the margraviate of Tuscia (later Tuscany) in the 10th and 11th centuries, and was on the Guelphian side in the struggles of the 13th and 14th centuries. The city was occupied by the French in 1799, was awarded to a member of the Spanish Bourbon family in 1815, was ceded to Tuscany in 1847, and was incorporated into Sardinia in 1860. Only slight damage was suffered during World War II by buildings of tourist interest. Pop. of commune, 82,300 (1936); of city, 32,896 (1936).

Lucca, Bagni di. See Bagni di Lucca.

Lucca, Pauline. b. at Vienna, April 25, 1841; d. there, Feb. 28, 1908. Austrian operatic soprano.

Lucchetto da Genova (lök.kät'tō dä je'nō.vä). See Cambiaso, Luca.

Luce (lös). In Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors, a female servant to Adriana.

Luce, Clare Boothe. [Maiden name, Boothe.] b. at New York, April 10, 1903—. American politician, editor, and author. She served two terms (1942–46) as a congresswoman from Connecticut. A highly successful playwright, she was the author of Stuffed Shirts (1933), The Women (1937), Kiss the Boys Goodbye (1938), Margin for Error (1939), and Europe in the Spring (1940). She was managing editor of Vanity Fair in the early 1930's, and in 1935 married (her second husband) Henry R. Luce. She was appointed ambassador to Italy in 1953.

Luce, Henry Robinson. b. in Shantung province, China, April 3, 1898—. American editor and publisher; husband (married 1935) of Clare Boothe Luce. A founder (with Briton Hadden, 1923), editor, and publisher of the weekly news magazine Time, he founded the monthly magazine Fortune (1930), and established the weekly picture magazine Life (1936).

Luce, John. b. 1870; d. near Devises, England, Sept. 23, 1932. English naval officer who commanded H.M.S Glasgow during World War I in battles off Coronel, Chile (Nov. 1, 1914), and the Falkland Islands (Dec. 8, 1914), and caused the destruction of the last ship (Dresden) of the German Asiatic Squadron off Juan Fernández (March 14, 1915).

Luce, Stephen Bleecker. b. at Albany, N.Y., March 25, 1827; d. July 28, 1917. American naval officer. He served in the Union navy during the Civil War, commanding the monitor Nantucket and other vessels, and retired in 1889. From 1884 to 1886 he was president of the Naval War College, of which he was the founder. He was the author of Seamanship (1863), Naval Songs (1902), and others.

Lucena (lö.thā'nä). Town in S Spain, in the province of Córdoba, ab. 37 mi. SE of Córdoba: horse-breeding center; trade in wine and olive oil. It has important pottery manufactures (the earthenware jars used throughout Spain for the storage of oil and wine are produced here) and metalworking industries. The lead mines and sulfur springs of Horcajo are in the vicinity. The Moorish king Boabdil was defeated and captured here by the Castilians in 1483. Pop. 32,687 (1940).

Lucena, Count of. A title of O'Donnell, Leopoldo.

Lučenec (lö'che.nets). [Hungarian, Losonc, Losoncz.] Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Banská Bystrica, in S Slovakia, on the Lučenec River N of the Hungarian border. It is a railroad junction. 12,801 (1947).

Lucentio (lö.sen'shi.ō). In Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, an accomplished young student from Pisa, whose skillful wooing of Bianca forms the underplot of the play.

Lucentum (lö.sen'tum). Latin name of Alicante, city.

Lucera (lö.che'rä). [Ancient name, Luceria.] City and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Foggia, ab. 10 mi. NW of Foggia. There is trade in olive oil, cheese, and silk. The cathedral, in mixed Romanesque and Gothic style, dates from 1300: there are the ruins of a castle, built on the site of the antique citadel by Emperor Frederick II and Charles I of Anjou (1233–83). A Roman town in ancient times, it came later under Lombard and Byzantine rule; it was one of the strongholds of the Hohenstaufen dominion, particularly of Frederick II, who settled here a Saracen colony which fiercely resisted the rule of the Anjous and the crusade against them led by the abbot of Monte Cassino, until settlers from Provence were called in and the Saracenic inhabitants dispersed or reduced to slavery. While under the rule of the Kingdom of Naples and the Two Sicilies, the city repeatedly repulsed assaults by French siege armies; in the 19th century it was a center of republicanism and Italian nationalism. Only slight damage was suffered during World War II by the Roman amphitheater and the castle. Pop. of commune, 18,447 (1936); of city, 17,472 (1936).

Lucera, Duke of. A title of Gallas, Matthias von.

Lucerne (lö.sėrn'; French, lü.sern). [German, Luzern.] Canton in C Switzerland, bounded by Aargau on the N, Zug and Schwyz on the E, Unterwalden on the SE, and Bern on the S and W. Its surface is largely hilly and mountainous. It is one of the four "Forest Cantons," and sends nine representatives to the Swiss national council. The prevailing language is German, and the predominant religion Roman Catholic. Lucerne joined the League of the Forest Cantons in 1332. It took part in the battle of Sempach in 1386, and annexed the Entlebuch at the beginning of the 15th century. It was part of the Helvetic Republic. In 1847 it was the leading member of the Sonderbund, the revolutionary league whose defeat led to the establishment of a strong federal constitution. Area, ab. 576 sq. mi.; pop. 223,249 (1950).

Lucerne. City in C Switzerland, the capital of the canton of Lucerne, situated at the outflow of the Reuss River on the Lake of Lucerne. It is one of the chief tourist centers of Switzerland, and has textile, machinery, and lumber industries. Points of interest include the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Saint Lodegar, the Rathaus (town hall), and the monument of the Lion of Lucerne (a memorial to the 26 officers and 760 soldiers of the Swiss Guard who fell defending Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette at Paris in 1792). Nearby is the Villa Tribschen, where Richard Wagner lived from 1866 to 1872. Pop. 60,526 (1950).

Lucerne, Lake of. [Also: Lake of the Four Forest Cantons; French, Lac des Quatre Cantons; German, Vierwaldstättersee, Vierwaldstätter See.] Lake in C Switzerland, bordering on the four cantons of Lucerne, Schwyz, Uri, and Unterwalden. It is traversed by the Reuss River, which has its outlet at Lucerne. Violent and sudden storms occur on the lake. It is bordered by lofty mountains (Rigi and others), and is famous for its magnificent scenery and for its association with the legendary history of William Tell. Length, ab. 23 mi.; area, ab. 44 sq. mi.; elevation, ab. 1,435 ft.; greatest known depth, ab. 702 ft.

Lucerne, Lion of. Sculpture by Thorvaldsen, commemorating the heroism and devotion of nearly 800 Swiss guards who died to save Louis XVI in the attack on the Tuileries, Aug. 10, 1792. The colossal figure of the crouching lion, transfixed and dying but still faithfully defending the lilied shield of France, is carved in the round in a recess in the face of an upright, vine-draped rock, in a little park, at Lucerne, Switzerland. A commemorative inscription, with the names of the officers killed, is cut in the rock.

Lucetta (lö.set'ą). Waiting woman in Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona.

Luchaire (lü.sher), Denis Jean Achille. b. at Paris, Oct. 24, 1846; d. Nov. 13, 1908. French historian. Among his published works, which deal chiefly with medieval history, the most important are Histoire des institutions monarchiques de la France sous les premiers Capétiens (1883), and four volumes (1904–07) on Pope Innocent III.

Luchana (lö.chä'nä), Count of. A title of Espartero, Baldomero.

Luchazi (lö.chä'zē). [Also: Baluchazi, Luchze.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting the region about the headwaters of the Kuito River (a tributary of the Okavango) in SE Angola. They are related to the Mbwela and Ngangela, file their front teeth, wear skins and baobab cloth, and are clever workers in iron and copper. They obtain their pottery by barter. Their granaries are large, and their villages clean and well built.

Luchino (lö.kē'nō). See Cambiaso, Luca.

Luchon (lü.shôṅ). See Bagnères-de-Luchon.

Luchow (lö'jō'). Former name of Hofei.

Luchuans (lö.chö'ąnz). See Ryukyuans.

Lucia (lö.chē'ä), Santa. See Lucy, Saint.

Lucia (lö'shą). In Thomas Southerne's Sir Anthony Love, or The Rambling Lady, a young girl who disguises herself as a man (Sir Antony) and follows her lover to win him.

Lucia di Lammermoor (lö.chē'ä dē läm.mer.mör'). Opera in three acts by Donizetti, with a libretto by Cammarano, produced at Naples in 1835. The plot is from Sir Walter Scott's The Bride of Lammermoor. The work is well known for the second-act sextet and the "mad scene" in the third act.

Lucian (lö'shąn). b. at Samosata, Syria, c120 A.D.; d. c200. Greek satirist. He was a freethinker, attacking with pungent satire the religious beliefs of his time; for this, according to Suidas, he was called "the Blasphemer," and was torn to pieces by dogs (doubtless a pious invention). He wrote rhetorical, critical, and biographical works, romances, dialogues, and poems. Outstanding among his works are The True History, a parodied travelogue, and the satirical Dialogues of the Gods and Dialogues of the Dead. Auction of Philosophers is the satiric evaluation of various schools of thought. He was author also of Peregrine and Timon.

Lucian. [Called Lucian of Antioch.] b. (according to tradition) at Samosata, Syria, c240; killed at Nicomedia, in Bithynia, Jan. 7, 312. Theologian and Biblical critic, presbyter of Antioch, who was put to death as a Christian under Maximin. Little is known of his career. In exegesis he opposed the allegorizing tendencies of the Alexandrian school. Doctrinally, he probably laid the foundation for the Arian heresy.

Luciana (lö.shi.ā'nạ). In Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors, the sister of Adriana.

Luciani (lö.chä'nē), Luigi. b. at Ascoli Piceno, Italy, Nov. 23, 1840; d. at Rome, June 23, 1919. Italian physiologist. He worked on the physiology of the heart and the circulation of the blood, and described the three major symptoms of cerebellar disease: asthenia, atonia, and astasia (called Luciani's triad). He also described the function of the cerebellum, studied intrathoracic and intra-abdominal pressure, advanced the knowledge of motor and sensory localization in the cerebral cortex, investigated the physiology of the sense organs, and discovered in the isolated frog's heart the periodic movements that are known as "Luciani's phenomenon."

Luciano (lö.sē.ä'nō, -chē-), Charles. [Known as "Lucky" Luciano; actual name, Salvatore Luciana (lö.chyä'nä).] b. in Sicily, Nov. 11, 1896—. American racketeer. He came to the U.S. in 1906 and became, in the course of time, the head of the New York City vice trade. At one time he controlled absolutely the traffic in the city in narcotics and prostitutes. In 1936 he was tried for his criminal activities and, as a result of the vigorous conduct of the trial by the prosecuting district attorney, Thomas E. Dewey, was sentenced to 30 to 50 years' imprisonment. In 1946, Dewey, then governor of New York, commuted the sentence to the time Luciano had served, and he was deported to Italy. Luciano was later seen in Cuba and, when his appearance in Cuba coincided with a rise in the commerce in illegal narcotics, was ordered out of that country. He returned to his native Sicily where, it was said, he continued to direct a large amount of the world's traffic in illegal drugs.

Lucie Manette (lü.sē mä.net). See Manette, Lucie.

Lucifer (lö'si.fėr). [Called Lucifer of Cagliari (kä.lyä'rē).] b. early 4th century A.D.; d. 371. Bishop of Caliris (Cagliari), in Sardinia. He was a fierce controversialist and founder of a sect, named for him, whose chief tenet was that no priest who had conformed to Arianism could exercise his ministry if he returned to orthodoxy and that bishops receiving such a priest were thereby excommunicated.

Lucifer. The morning star; the planet Venus when it appears in the morning before sunrise; when it appears in the evening, it is called Hesperus, or the evening star. The name "day-star" is applied by Isaiah figuratively to a king of Babylon; this was rendered in the authorized version by "Lucifer." From this passage (Isa. xiv. 12) the name was also given to the leader of the fallen angels, and hence to Satan.

Lucilius (lö.sil'i.us), Gaius (or Caius). b. at Suessa Aurunca, Campania, Italy, c180 B.C.; d. at Naples, Italy, 103 B.C. Latin satirical poet, author of Saturae, miscellaneous poems containing a very free criticism of contemporary life. These satires influenced those of Horace, Persius, and Juvenal.

Lucina (lö.sī'nạ). In Roman mythology, the goddess who presided over childbirth, an aspect of Juno, and as such called Juno Lucina. The name was also applied to Diana and to Hecate. She corresponded to the Greek goddess Ilithyia.

Lucin Cut-Off (lö'sin). See Salt Lake Cut-Off.

Lucinde (lü.sañd). Daughter of Sganarelle in Molière's L'Amour médecin.

Lucinde. Daughter of Géronte in Molière's Le Médecin malgré lui. It is to cure her that Sganarelle is obliged to pretend to be a doctor.

Lucio (lö'shi.o). Fantastic and profligate character in Shakespeare's Measure for Measure.

Lucioni (lö.chō'nē), Luigi. b. at Malnate, near Milan, Italy, 1900—. American painter, sometimes called the "Painter Laureate of Vermont" because many of his precisely drawn, clearly colored landscapes have been painted in that state. The winner (1924) of a Tiffany Foundation Fellowship, he painted for nine summers at the Oyster Bay, L.I., estate of the Foundation; he studied the work of the so-called Italian primitives on a trip (1925) to Italy. His paintings, among which Vermont Classic and Route 7 are particularly well known, are represented in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and Whitney Museum of American Art, New York, in the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, in the Addison Gallery of American Art, and elsewhere.

Lucius (lö'shus). fl. 4th century A.D. Bishop of Adrianople. He was expelled (c340) from his see by the Arians, appealed to the Roman Council under Pope Julius I, which ordered his restoration (a decree which was resisted by the Eusebians in his diocese), and was finally reëstablished in his see by Constantius, in accordance with the decision of the Council of Sardica.

Lucius. In Shakespeare's Titus Andronicus, the son of Titus. He has a son who is also named Lucius.

Lucius. In Shakespeare's tragedy Julius Caesar, a boy, servant of Brutus.

Lucius. In Shakespeare's Timon of Athens, a flattering lord; also, in the same play, a servant who waits on Timon's creditors.

Lucius. In Shakespeare's Cymbeline, a general of the Roman forces.

Lucius I, Saint. b. at Rome; d. March 5, 254. Pope from 253 to 254. Exiled at the beginning of his reign, he returned under the emperor Valerian. He permitted those who had lapsed during persecution (lapsi) to be reinstated after doing penance. It is doubtful that he died a martyr.

Lucius II. [Original name, Gherardo Caccianemici dal Orso.] b. at Bologna, Italy; d. at Rome, Feb. 15, 1145. Pope from 1144 to 1145. He was killed by a stone thrown during an insurrection against the papal government.

Lucius III. [Original name, Ubaldo Allucingoli.] b. at Lucca, Italy; d. at Verona, Italy, Nov. 25, 1185. Pope from 1181 to 1185. Created a cardinal by Pope Innocent II in 1141, he performed various diplomatic missions under popes Eugene III and Alexander III, representing the latter at the Congress of Venice, where a settlement was reached with Frederick I. Because of factional fighting he could spend little time at Rome, and in 1184 made his headquarters at Verona. He disagreed with the Emperor Frederick I over the latter's desire to have reappointed the German bishops originally designated by the antipopes during the reign of Alexander III.

Lucius Annaeus Florus (ạ.nē'us flō'rus). Full name of Florus.

Lucius Domitius Ahenobarbus (dō.mish'us ạ.hē.nō-bär'bus, ạ.hen'ō-). Original name of Nero.

Lucius Junius Brutus (jön'yus brö'tus). Tragedy by François Guillaume Jean Stanislas Andrieux, produced (1830) at the Comédie Française.

Lucius Junius Brutus. A pseudonym of Ames, Fisher.

Lucius Junius Brutus, Father of his Country. Tragedy by Nathaniel Lee, produced in 1681.

Lucius Junius Gallio (gal'i.ō). Full name of Gallio.

Luck (lötsk). Polish name of Lutsk, U.S.S.R.

Luckau (lůk'ou). Small town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, ab. 47 mi. SE of Berlin. Here on June 4, 1813, the Prussians and Russians under Von Bülow defeated the French under Oudinot.

Lücke (lůk'ę), Gottfried Christian Friedrich. b. at Egeln, near Magdeburg, Germany, Aug. 23, 1791; d. at Göttingen, Germany, Feb. 14, 1855. German theologian.

Luckenwalde (lůk'ęn.väl.dę). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Brandenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Brandenburg, Prussia, ab. 29 mi. SW of Berlin. Before World War II it had cloth, hat, furniture, paper, piano, and metalworking industries. There is a local museum; the Johanniskirche dates from the 16th century. It belonged until 1648 to the archbishopric of Magdeburg, from 1648 to 1680 to Saxony, after 1680 to Brandenburg. 30,979 (1946).

Luckimpur (luk'im.pör). See Lakhimpur.

Luckner, Count Nikolaus (or Nicolas). b. at Cham, Bavaria, Germany, in January, 1722; guillotined at Paris, Jan. 4, 1794. Bavarian general in the Dutch and German and (after the Seven Years' War) in the French service. He became a marshal in 1791, and was condemned and put to death by the Revolutionary tribunal on a charge of treason (the charge stemmed from the failure of his campaign in Belgium).

Lucknow (luk'nou). [Also, Lakhnau.] Division in E central Uttar Pradesh, Union of India: rice, wheat, sugar, and barley. Capital, Lucknow; area, ab. 12,002 sq. mi.; pop. 6,530,932 (1941).

Lucknow. [Also, Lakhnau.] District in the division of Lucknow, Uttar Pradesh, Union of India. Capital, Lucknow; area, ab. 976 sq. mi.; pop. 1,128,101 (1951).

Lucknow. [Also, Lakhnau.] City in N Union of India, capital of the division and district of Lucknow, on the Gumti River, ab. 48 mi. NE of Cawnpore. Its industries are of comparatively minor importance but commercially it is important as the collecting and distributing center for the agricultural produce of the region. Manufactures include gold and silver brocade, and muslin. Among the chief buildings is the mausoleum Imambara, a great hall dating from the middle of the 18th century. The plan is rectangular, 263 by 145 ft. The vaults are formed in thick, solid masses of concrete, precisely according to the ancient Roman system. Lucknow was the capital and chief town of the princely state of Oudh from 1775 until its annexation by the British in 1856. During the Sepoy Rebellion, Lucknow was defended (at first under Sir Henry Lawrence) against a force of besieging Indian mutineers (July–September, 1857). The garrison was relieved by Henry Havelock on Sept. 25, and again relieved by Sir Colin Campbell on Nov. 17, and evacuated. The city was recaptured by Campbell in March, 1858. Pop. 496,861 (1951).

Luck of Eden Hall (ē'dęn). Drinking cup long preserved at Eden Hall in Cumberland, England. It is a chalice of enameled glass, of 10th-century workmanship, presumably Venetian. There is a legend that it was left for the Musgrave family by the fairies at Saint Cuthbert's Well, and that the family luck depends on its preservation:

If this cup either break or fall,
Farewell the luck of Eden Hall.

Luck of Roaring Camp, The. Story by Bret Harte included in the volume of stories brought out under that title in 1870. It was originally published (1868) in the Overland Monthly.

Luçon (lü.sôṅ). Town in W France, in the department of Vendée, ab. 20 mi. N of La Rochelle, connected with the ocean by a canal. The Cathedral of Notre-Dame, mainly in the Gothic style, has old Romanesque parts and a façade rebuilt in Greco-Roman style c1700. Pop. 7,526 (1946).

Lucques (lük). French name of Lucca, city.

Lucrece (lö.krēs'). Poem by Shakespeare, published in 1594, taken from the Roman story of Lucretia. See also Rape of Lucrece, The.

Lucretia (lö.krē'shą). [Also, Lucrece.] In Roman legend, the wife of Tarquinius Collatinus. She was raped by Sextus Tarquinius and killed herself. This led to the expulsion of the Tarquins and the establishment of the republic.

Lucretia gens. Roman patrician, and later also plebeian, clan. Its surnames were (patrician) Triciptinus, (plebeian) Gallus, Ofella, Vespillo, and Carus.

Lucretia MacTab (mak.tab'), the Hon. Miss. See MacTab, the Hon. Miss Lucretia.

Lucretia, or the Children of Night. Novel by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, published in 1846.

Lucretius (lö.krē'shus). [Full name, Titus Lucretius Carus.] b. at Rome, probably c96 B.C.; d. Oct. 15, 55 B.C. Roman philosophical poet. He was the author of De rerum natura (On the Nature of Things), a didactic and philosophical poem in six books, treating of physics and cosmology, of psychology, and (briefly) of ethics from the Epicurean point of view. He committed suicide probably in a fit of insanity. According to a popular but doubtless erroneous tradition, his madness was due to a love philter administered to him by his wife.

Lucrezia Borgia (lö.krā'tsyä bōr'jä). Opera in two acts by Donizetti, with a libretto by Romani, first produced at La Scala, Milan, in 1833.

Lucrezia Floriani (flō.rē.ä'nē). Novel by George Sand, published in 1846.

Lucrine (lö'krin, -krīn), Lake. In ancient geography, a small salt-water lake in Campania, Italy, ab. 9 mi. NW of Naples.

Luc-sur-Mer (lük.sür.mer). Small resort in NW France, in the department of Calvados, on the English Channel ab. 10 mi. N of Caen. 2,582 (1946).

Lucullus (lö.kul'us), Lucius Licinius. [Surnamed Ponticus.] b. probably c110 B.C.; d. c57 B.C. Roman general. He served under Sulla in the East, and was curule edile in 79 and consul in 74. He defeated Mithridates VI of Pontus in Asia Minor 74–71, defeated Tigranes near Tigranocerta in 69, and was recalled to Rome in 66. He was afterward famous for his wealth and his luxury. His villas at Tusculum and near Neapolis (modern Naples) were famous for their splendor, and he is said to have spent fabulous sums on his table (a rich banquet is still called a Lucullan feast). He is said to have been the first to introduce cherries into Italy. He was also a collector of books and a patron of learning.

Lucus Augusti (lö'kus ô.gus'tī). Ancient name of Lugo, city, Spain.

Lucusta (lö.kus'tą). See Locusta.

Lucy (lö'si), Saint. [Italian, Santa Lucia.] b. c283; killed in 303. Martyr of the primitive church in Syracuse, who perished during the persecution of Diocletian. According to the legend, she rejected a pagan suitor whom her mother desired her to marry, was denounced as a Christian, and was condemned to be outraged, but escaped this fate and died by the sword in 303. She is the patroness especially of those who suffer from distemper of the eyes (the attribution probably comes from the resemblance of her name to Latin lux, light, and has attracted to her the legend that when a nobleman wished to marry her because of her beautiful eyes, she tore them from her head and gave them to him in order to be permitted to live a virgin). She is represented in art with a sword point (thorn) in her neck and sometimes with a salver on which rest her eyes.

Lucy. Rival of Polly in John Gay's The Beggar's Opera.

Lucy. In Richard Brinsley Sheridan's comedy The Rivals, a clever waiting maid of great apparent simplicity.

Lucy, Sir Henry. [Pseudonym, Toby, M.P.] b. at Crosby, Lancashire, England, Dec. 5, 1845; d. Feb. 20, 1924. English journalist and philanthropist. He was a staff member (1881–1916) of Punch, for which he wrote under his pseudonym. In 1903 and again in 1913 he established the Lucy Trust funds to aid parliamentary employees and writers. Author of various parliamentary manuals, a novel, Gideon Fleyce (1882), and Men and Manner in Parliament (1875), Peeps at Parliament (1903), Memories of Eight Parliaments (1908), Sixty Years in the Wilderness (1909–12), Nearing Jordan (1916), and The Diary of a Journalist (3 vols., 1921–23).

Lucy, Sir Thomas. b. April 24, 1532; d. at Charlecote, Warwickshire, England, July 7, 1600. English landowner in Warwickshire and, through his wife, in Worcestershire. He is erroneously said to have entertained Queen Elizabeth at Charlecote in 1575. Lucy is remembered chiefly for his alleged persecution of Shakespeare (c1585) for stealing deer from Lucy's park at Charlecote. Lucy was supposedly later the model of Shakespeare's character Justice Shallow in Henry IV, Part II, although the attribution is questionable. The play on the words "luce" (a pike, borne in the arms of the Lucys) and "louse," then pronounced much the same as now, has been taken by some as evidence of the truth of the story.

Lucy Ashton (ash'tọn). See Ashton, Lucy.

Lucy Bertram (bėr'trąm). See Bertram, Lucy.

Lucy Deane (dēn). See Deane, Lucy.

Lucy Gayheart (gā'härt). Novel by Willa Cather, published in 1935.

Lucy Snowe (snō). See Snowe, Lucy.

Lucy Temple (tem'pl). Sequel to Charlotte Temple (1791), sentimental novel by Susanna Rowson. The book was issued (1828) under the title Charlotte's Daughter.

Lud (lud). In the Bible, in Gen. x, the fourth in the list of the children of Shem.

Lud. [Also: Lludd, Nudd.] Legendary king of Britain, mentioned by Geoffrey of Monmouth in his History of the Kings of Britain as having built, or rebuilt, the walls of London. Ludgate Hill, London, preserves his name.

He is evidently the same character as the Lludd of Brythonic legend, a king of Britain.

Ludbreg (löd'breg). Village and township in N Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Savska, between Varaždin and Koprivnica. Pop. of township, 12,374 (1931).

Ludd (lŭd). Arabic name of Lydda.

Luddites (lud'īts). Name given to the industrial workers who attempted (1811–12, 1816) to destroy machinery at Nottingham and elsewhere in England, so called from Ned Ludd, a Leicestershire "village idiot" who had broken (c1799) some stocking frames.

Luden (lō'dĕn), Heinrich. b. at Loxstedt, near Bremen, Germany, April 10, 1780; d. at Jena, Germany, May 23, 1847. German historian.

Ludendorff (lō'dĕn.dôrf), Erich von. b. at Kruszewina, Germany, April 9, 1865; d. at Munich, Dec. 20, 1937. German general, chief of staff to Hindenburg in World War I. A member of the general staff (1894 et seq.), he aided Hindenburg in defeating the Russians in 1914, and was himself responsible for the victories in Rumania and Italy, especially for the Italian rout at Caporetto (1917). Under his strategy, the Germans came close to victory in France. After demanding an unconditional armistice on Sept. 29, 1918, he was retired in October and fled to Sweden. He returned to Germany in 1919 to become leader (1922–23) of the Deutsch Völkische Freiheitspartei. After the Kapp Putsch (1920), in which he was a leading figure, he was Hitler's associate in the abortive Beer Hall Putsch of 1923. He later abandoned his support of Hitler. He served as a member of the Reichstag (1924–28), and was a candidate for the presidency in 1925 against Hindenburg, receiving about one percent of the vote. He was the author of anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic, and anti-Masonic writings in collaboration with his second wife, Mathilde, and of war memoirs (1919).

Ludendorff, Frederich Wilhelm Hans. b. at Köslin (Koszalin), in Pomerania, May 26, 1873—. German astrophysicist. In addition to scientific contributions such as analysis of variable star periods, he is noted for outstanding work in chronology and the history of astronomy.

Lüdenscheid (lü'dĕn.shīt). City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, ab. 34 mi. NE of Cologne: electrical machinery, plastic, paper, leather, and textile industries. The population increased in the period 1939–46 by 23.1 percent. 49,926 (1946), 51,705 (1950).

Lüderitz (lü'dĕ.rits). [German, Lüderitzland (lü'dĕ.rits.länt).] Region in SW Africa, around Lüderitz Bay, annexed by Germany in 1884. It is now within the territory of South-West Africa, and the term is applied to a strip of land along the coast N and S of the port of Lüderitz. Area, ab. 15,000 sq. mi.

Lüderitz. [Former name, Angra Pequena.] Port in the SW part of South-West Africa, on the W coast of Africa. It is connected with Keetmanshoop (225 mi.) by a branch line of the main railroad system of the territory. It is a seaport and the chief center of diamond mining in South-West Africa. 3,307 (1946).

Lüderitz Bay. Bay in SW Africa, in the coast of South-West Africa: site of the port of Lüderitz.

Lüders (lü'dĕrs), Count Aleksandr. b. Jan. 26, 1790; d. at St. Petersburg, Feb. 13, 1874. Russian general. He defeated the Hungarians at Schlässburg (July 31, 1849) during the suppression of the Hungarian Republic, was commander in chief in the Crimea (1856), and was governor of Poland (1861–62).

Ludgate Hill (lud'gāt). London street running directly W from Saint Paul's.

Ludhiana (lö.di.ä'nạ). District in the Jullundur division, Punjab, Union of India, ab. 100 mi. SE of the city of Lahore: wheat, rice, sugar, and barley. Capital, Ludhiana; area, ab. 1,399 sq. mi.; pop. 808,105 (1951).

Ludhiana. City in NW Union of India, capital of the district of Ludhiana, ab. 100 mi. SE of Lahore, Pakistan: large trading center, served by three railroad lines and two major highways. There are several modern cotton mills in the city. 153,795 (1951).

Ludington (lud'ing.ton). City in W Lower Michigan, on Lake Michigan, county seat of Mason County: shipping point and ferry port on Lake Michigan. It is a trade center in a resort area, and also has manufactures of furniture, clothing, and metal products. 9,506 (1950).

Ludlow (lud'lō). Municipal borough and market town in W England, in Shropshire, ab. 25 mi. S of Shrewsbury, ab. 168 mi. NW of London by rail. The castle is a magnificent ruin, chiefly of the 12th century, with many huge square towers on its outer walls, a great keep with angle turrets, and ruins of a circular Norman chapel. It was the residence of the lords president of Wales, and for a time a royal abode. In English literature, it is noteworthy from the fact that it was the scene of the first presentation of John Milton's Comus and also, in more recent times, the Shropshire town most often mentioned in the poetry of A. E. Housman. 6,455 (1951).

Ludlow. City in N Kentucky, in Kenton County, on the Ohio River, an industrial city in the SW part of the urbanized area of Cincinnati: manufactures include furniture, brass, electrical apparatus, and compressing machines. It was chartered in 1864. Pop. 6,374 (1950).

Ludlow. [Former name, Stony Hill.] Town in S Massachusetts, in Hampden County, adjoining Springfield on the NE. It has manufactures of twine, cord, sacking material, and stationery. 8,660 (1950).

Ludlow, Edmund. b. at Maiden Bradley, Wiltshire, England, c1617; d. at Vevey, Switzerland, 1692. English general and politician. He was one of King Charles I's judges in 1649, and signed his death warrant. Consistently republican, he opposed Cromwell's protectorate and the return of the Stuarts, and lived in exile after 1660. He attempted to return to England in 1689 after William and Mary came to the throne, but, being threatened with arrest, returned to Switzerland. His Memoirs were published (1698–99).

Ludlow, John Malcolm Forbes. b. at Nimach, India, 1821; d. at London, 1911. English social reformer and writer. One of founders of the Christian Socialist movement (1850) and the Working Men's College (1854), where he lectured on law and history, he founded and edited the Christian Socialist (1850). He wrote Popular Epics of the Middle Ages (1865), President Lincoln Self-Portrayed (1866), and The War of American Independence (1876).

Ludlow, Roger. b. in Wiltshire, England, c1590; d. c1664. English lawyer, legislator (1630–54) in America. A founder (c1630) of Dorchester, Mass., he was chosen (1634) deputy governor of the Massachusetts Bay colony. He presided (1636) at Windsor over the first court in Connecticut. He is said to have drafted the Fundamental Orders which remained, as part of the charter of 1662, the basis of Connecticut government until 1818. He compiled (1650) the first codification of Connecticut laws under the name Ludlow's Code or the Code of 1650, was a founder (1639) of Fairfield, Conn., and served as commissioner (1651–53) of the United Colonies of New England.

Ludlow Resolution. Proposal (1937–38), sponsored by Representative L. L. Ludlow of Indiana, for an amendment to the U.S. Constitution calling for a national referendum on a declaration of war, except in instances of actual invasion. While public opinion polls indicated majority popular support for it, and although 218 members of the House of Representatives had signed the petition bringing it to the House floor, the Ludlow resolution was sent back to committee in 1938 by a vote of 209 to 188.

Ludlow's Code. See Code of 1650.

Ludmilla (löd.mil'ä) or Ludmila (-mē'lä), Saint. *b. at Mielnik, c860; d. at Tetin, near Beroun, in Bohemia, Sept. 15, 921. Patron saint of Bohemia; wife of the Christian Duke of Bohemia, Borowoi, with whom she was baptized, probably by Methodius. She was murdered by two noblemen at the direction of her daughter-in-law Drahomira, a pretended Christian, who was jealous of her influence over the young Saint Wenceslaus.

Ludolf (lö'dolf), Hiob. b. at Erfurt, Germany, June 15, 1624; d. at Frankfort on the Main, Germany, April 8, 1704. German Orientalist, noted especially for his works on the language and history of Ethiopia.

Ludovic Lesly (lo dō.vīk les'li, lez'li). See Lesly, Ludovic.

Ludovisi (lö.dō.vē'zē), Alessandro. Original name of Pope Gregory XV.

Ludwich (löt'viċh), Artur. b. at Lyck, Germany, May 18, 1840; d. at Königsberg, in East Prussia, Nov. 12, 1920. German classical scholar. Author of Aristarchs Homerische Textkritik (Aristarchus' Criticism of Homer's Texts, 1884–85); editor of Homer's Odyssey (1889–91) and Iliad (1902–07).

Ludwig (löt'viċh). See Louis for German rulers of this name.

Ludwig, Alfred. b. at Vienna, Oct. 9, 1832; d. 1912. Austrian Sanskrit scholar.

Ludwig, Emil. [Original surname, Cohn.] b. at Breslau, Jan. 25, 1881; d. at Ascona, Switzerland, Sept. 17, 1948. German writer, especially known for his biographies. His subjects included Goethe (1920, 1923), Wagner, Bismarck (Volk und Krone and Die Entlassung, 1922; Genie und Charakter, 1923), Napoleon (1924), William II (1925), Christ (1928), Lincoln, Schliemann, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Michelangelo, Rembrandt, Beethoven, Simón Bolívar, and Freud. He applied the technique of biography to studies of the Nile River and the Mediterranean Sea. Employed by the German government during World War I as a propagandist, he wrote Die Fahrten der Emden und der Ayesha (1915), now remembered chiefly for its glorification of German might. A work written during World War II, The Germans (1941), seeks to demonstrate the schizophrenic character of the German people, and bears the subtitle Double History of a Nation. In 1932 he became a Swiss citizen, and spent his later years in Switzerland and the U.S.

Ludwig, Karl Friedrich Wilhelm. b. near Kassel, Germany, Dec. 29, 1816; d. April 23, 1895. German physiologist. His investigations were primarily concerned with the mechanisms of the body, he being an adherent of the nonvitalistic school and rejecting appeals to theories dependent on special biological processes apart from physical and chemical laws. By use of the kymograph he was able to study blood pressure and other organic processes. He invented the original model of the mercurial sphygamometer. He published Lehrbuch der Physiologie des Menschen (1852–56), and numerous important papers.

Ludwig, Otto. b. at Eisfeld, Germany, Feb. 11, 1813; d. at Dresden, Germany, Feb. 25, 1865. German dramatist and novelist. He began his career by studying music and composed an opera (Die Köhlerin, 1838). Finding that he could not achieve in music the realism he sought, he turned to writing, where he practiced what he called "poetic realism." He introduced the leitmotif into German writing and was the father of the psychological novel in German literature. Over a period of time, however, his chief interest became his critical studies (Shakespearestudien, 1871). He treated Hoffmann's Das Fräulein von Scuderi in dramatic form (1848), but he did not complete his play on Agnes Bernauer (Der Engel von Augsburg). His best drama is generally considered to be Der Erbförster (1853). He dramatized the story of the Maccabees in Die Makkabäer (1853). Many critics believe that his talent displayed itself best in the story Zwischen Himmel und Erde (1856).

Ludwig, Paula. b. at Altenstadt, Vorarlberg, Austria, Jan. 5, 1900—. Austrian writer, known chiefly for her lyrical poetry.

Ludwigsburg (löt'viċhs.bůrk). City in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Württemberg-Baden, American Zone, formerly in the Neckar Kreis (district), of the free state of Württemberg, ab. 8 mi. N of Stuttgart: numerous industries, particularly manufactures of tobacco, and surgical and precision instruments. There are also metallurgical, plastics, knitwear, rubber, toy, organ, furniture, and foodstuff industries. The city was founded at the beginning of the 18th century. It contains a large Versailles-like Schloss (castle) in the baroque style, erected between 1704 and 1733, with valuable art collections. The population increased in the period 1939–46 by 29.5 percent. 49,635 (1946), 58,489 (1950).

Ludwigs Canal (löt'viċhs). [German, Ludwigs-Kanal (-kä.näl').] Canal in Bavaria, S Germany, which joins the systems of the Danube and Main rivers. It connects Bamberg on the Regnitz with Dietfurt on the Altmühl. Nuremberg is the chief city on the canal. Length, ab. 110 mi.

Ludwigshafen (löt'viċhs.hä.fẹn). [Also: Ludwigshafen am Rhein; former name, Rheinschanze.] City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly in the Rhenish Palatinate, Bavaria, on the Rhine River: the twin city of Mannheim. It is an important river port, and a large industrial center. The chemical and pharmaceutical industry, including the huge plants formerly belonging to the I. G. Farben, is foremost; there are also electrical machinery, machine, instrument, tobacco, cement, food, and paper industries. There is trade in wine, grain, foodstuff, fertilizer, metals, and coal. The city was founded in 1843. It was greatly damaged by bombing in World War II, and was entered by American troops on March 22, 1945. The population decreased in the period 1939–46 by 26.2 percent. 105,556 (1946), 123,869 (1950).

Ludwigslied (löt'viċhs.lēt). Poem, in Old High German, on the victory of the Carolingian King Louis III of France over the Normans in 881.

Ludwigslust (löt'viċhs.lůst). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Mecklenburg, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Mecklenburg, ab. 22 mi. S of Schwerin. Before World War II it had important cattle, hog, and horse markets. There is a residential Schloss (castle) and park dating from 1776, and a town church built (1770) in the shape of a Greek temple. The town was founded in 1756 by Duke Frederick of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and served as ducal residence until 1837. Pop. 12,487 (1946).

Luedemann (lü'dẹ.män), Hermann. b. at Lübeck, Germany, Aug. 5, 1880—. German politician and Social Democratic journalist. He was Prussian finance minister (1920–21), and later became a provincial administrator. He was confined from 1933 to 1935 in a concentration camp, and again from 1944 until released by the Russian army. After World War II he reorganized the Social Democratic Party in Mecklenburg. In 1946 he became minister of interior and deputy minister president of Schleswig-Holstein, and in 1947 became its prime minister.

Luel (lö'ẹl). See Carlisle, England.

Luère (lü.er'), Camilla. See Urso, Camilla.

Lufkin (luf'kin). City in E Texas, county seat of Angelina County, NE of Houston: processing center for lumber and cotton; manufactures include oil-pumping machinery, trailers, truck bodies, and lumber. 15,135 (1950).

Lug (lö). [Also, Lugh.] In Old Irish mythology, the sun god, god of light, and god of genius. He was sometimes called Lug Lamfada, or Lug of the Long Hand. He was the grandson of Balor, one-eyed king of the giant Fomorians, whom he killed in the great battle between the Fomorians and the Tuatha De Danann by slinging a stone into the one eye. Lug gave the arts to the Tuatha De Danann, and is therefore often called Lug of All the Arts. His great festival was the Lugnasad, celebrated with harvest games on Aug. 1. In the Ulster cycle legends, Lug was the supernatural father of the hero Cuchulain, and at one time helped his son in battle.

Lugano (lö.gä'nō). [German, Lauis.] Town in S Switzerland, in the canton of Ticino, on Lake Lugano: vineyards, gardens, and country homes. It is a noted tourist center, with Italian-speaking population and Italian architecture. The town became part of Switzerland in 1512. Pop. 17,030 (1941).

Lugano, Lake. [Italian, Lago di Lugano, Lago Ceresio; German, Luganersee (lö.gän'ér.zā); Latin, Cerisius Lacus.] Lake situated partly in N Italy, partly in the canton of Ticino, Switzerland. It drains into Lago Maggiore. It is noted for its beauty. Length, ab. 20 mi.; area, ab. 19 sq. mi.; elevation, ab. 890 ft.; greatest known depth, ab. 945 ft.

Lugansk (lö.gänsk'). Former name of Voroshilovgrad.

Lugansky (lö.gän'ski), Kossack. Pseudonym of Dahl, Vladimir Ivanovich.

Lugard (lö.gärd'), Lady. Title of Shaw, Flora Louise.

Lugard, Frederick John Dealtry. [Title, 1st Baron Lugard.] b. Jan. 22, 1858; d. April 11, 1945. English soldier and colonial administrator in Africa. He served in the Afghan War (1879–80), the Sudan campaign (1884–85), and the Burma campaign (1886–87). He led (1888) an expedition against Arab slave traders in Nyasaland, occupied (1890) Uganda with a military force, and secured (1894) Borgu in West Africa. He commanded (1897–99) the West African frontier force in Nigeria. He was high commissioner and commander in chief of Northern Nigeria (1900–06), governor (1907–12) of Hong Kong, governor (1912–13) of Northern and Southern Nigeria, and governor general (1914–19) of unified Nigeria. He was a member for 14 years (1922 et seq.) of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations.

Lugau (lö'gou). Town in E Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony, Russian Zone, formerly in the free state of Saxony, situated at the foot of the Erzgebirge, ab. 10 mi. SW of Chemnitz. Before World War II it had iron foundries, and cotton textile, hosiery, glove, and chemical factories; coal mines are in the vicinity. 11,459 (1946).

Lugdunensis (lug.dū.nen'sis). [Also, Gallia Lugdunensis.] In ancient geography, a province of the Roman Empire, situated in Gaul. It extended from Lugdunum (modern Lyons) N to the line of the lower Seine (including Paris), and NW through Brittany to the ocean, including the upper course of the Seine and nearly the entire course of the Loire. It was conquered (58–51 B.C.) by Julius Caesar.

Lugdunum (lug.dū'num). Ancient name of Lyons.

Lugdunum Batavorum (bat.ạ.vō'rum). Latin name of Leiden.

Lugdunum Clavatum (klạ.vā'tum). A Latin name of Laon.

Lügenfeld (lü'gẹn.felt). [Eng. trans., "Field of Lies."] Name given to the field near Colmar, Alsace, where in 833 the emperor Louis I (Louis the Pious) was led by treachery to surrender to his sons.

Luggarus (lu.gä'rus). German name of Locarno.

Luggnagg (lug'nag). Imaginary island mentioned in Gulliver's Travels by Jonathan Swift.

Lughmhaighe (lü'vạėh). Irish name of County Louth.

Lugii (lö'ji.ī). [Also, Lygii (lij'i.ī).] Collective name of an ancient Germanic people, first mentioned by Strabo. They occupied SE Germany, the region between the middle and upper Vistula and the Oder, in what is now C and W Poland. The Burgundii formed their northern part. Northeast of them, across the Vistula, were the Goths. They are mentioned by Tacitus as embracing numerous tribes, and as being separated from the Suevi by a range of mountains. Early in the 1st century the Lugii were under the sovereignty of Maroboduus, the Marcomannic king.

Lugnasad (lö'nạ.sạ). See under Lug.

Lugné-Poë (lü.nyā.po.ā), Aurélien François. b. at Paris, Sept. 26, 1869; d. 1940. French producer, stage director, and actor, founder and manager of the experimental Théâtre d'Art and Théâtre de l'Oeuvre (1893) at Paris. His production of Maeterlinck's Pelléas et Mélisande (May 17, 1893) at the Théâtre d'Art insured the triumph of symbolism in stage art, and with his staging of such plays as Ibsen's Rosmersholm (Oct. 10, 1893) and Wilde's Salomé (world première, Feb. 11, 1896) he also introduced foreign symbolist drama into France. Lugné-Poë broke with symbolism in 1897 and thenceforth produced plays written in other than symbolist styles. He also introduced the work of many European playwrights to the French public, as well as the art of Eleonora Duse, Isadora Duncan, and Ruth Draper.

Lugnetz Valley (lùg'nets). [German, Lugneztal (lùg'nets.täl).] Valley in the W part of the canton of Graubünden, Switzerland, S of Ilanz. Length, ab. 18 mi.; pop. ab. 4,000.

Lugo (lö'gō). Town and commune in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna, in the province of Ravenna, ab. 14 mi. W of Ravenna. It is the trade center of a fertile agricultural district, and has notable wine cellars. It has the fortified castle of the Este family, who acquired the town in 1437; it fell to the States of the Church in 1598. Considerable damage was suffered during World War II by the churches of San Domenico, L'Ascensione, San Francesco, and others; the Palazzo San Lorenzo was destroyed. Pop. of commune, 30,125 (1936); of town, 12,966 (1936).

Lugo. Province in NW Spain, bounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the N, Oviedo and León on the E, Orense on the S, and Pontevedra and La Coruña on the W; part of the region of Galicia. The surface is generally mountainous, the climate oceanic; there are sardine and tuna fisheries along the coast. Emigration to South America has been considerable. Capital, Lugo; area, ab. 3,815 sq. mi.; pop. 508,963 (1950).

Lugo. [Ancient name, Lucus Augusti.] City in NW Spain, the capital of the province of Lugo, on the Miño River ab. 45 mi. SE of La Coruña: cattle markets, meatpacking plants, tanneries, and manufactures of woolen and linen goods. It is the seat of a bishopric and was formerly the capital of Galicia. Roman walls and towers are preserved. 53,743 (1950).

Lugoj (lö'gôzh). [Also, Lugos (lö'gōsh).] Town in NW Rumania, in the province of Banat, on the Timiş River, ab. 32 mi. SE of Timişoara. It is in a wine-growing district, and has silk-spinning mills, and leather, chemical, textile, and tile industries. It is the seat of a Greek Catholic bishopric, and has a theater. Then in Hungary, it was the last place at which the Hungarian revolutionary government sat in 1849. Pop. 26,707 (1948).

Lugones (lö.gō'nās), Leopoldo. b. at Río Seco, Argentina, June 13, 1874; d. by suicide, Feb. 19, 1938. Argentine poet, most famous of the modernists, usually coupled by critics with his friend Rubén Darío of Nicaragua. His nine volumes of poetry and his 20 prose works bespeak not only his literary energy but also his activities as statesman and educator. Author of Las Montañas de oro (1897), Los Crepúsculos del jardín (1905), La Guerra gaucha (1905), Odas seculares (1910), Romancero (1924), and Poemas solariegos (1928).

Luguballia (lö.gū.bal'i.ạ) or Luguvallium (-val'i.um) or Luguvallum (-val'um). Latin names of Carlisle, England.

Luhačovice (lö'hä.chô.vi''tse). Town in Czechoslovakia, in the kraj (region) of Gottwaldov, in SE Moravia, situated in the mountains SE of Gottwaldov (Zlín). It is a health resort and has alkaline-muriatic mineral springs. 3,633 (1947).

Luhaiya (lö.hī'yạ). [Also: Loheia, Loheiya, Loheyyah.] Seaport in NW Yemen, SW Arabian peninsula, on the Red Sea ab. 150 mi. N of Mocha: a small port for coastal trade. Pop. under 10,000 (est. 1940).

Lu Han (lö' hän'). b. at Chaotung, Yunnan, China, 1908—. Chinese politician; half brother of Lung Yün, who alternately coöperated and competed with him. In a coup (1945) engineered by Chiang Kai-shek, Lu replaced Lung. He later forced Chiang to provide additional assistance by holding his son as hostage and threatening to join the Communists, which he eventually did (December, 1949).

Luhan (lö'hän), Mabel. [Maiden name, Ganson; known as Mabel Dodge Luhan.] b. at Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 26, 1879—. American writer. She is the author of Lorenzo in Taos (1932) and of an autobiographical series under the general title Intimate Memories, which includes Background (1933), Winter in Taos (1935), European Experiences (1935), Movers and Shakers (1936), and Edge of Taos Desert (1937).

Luhrasp (lö.räsp'). In the Shahnamah, the name of the fourteenth Iranian king; successor of Kaikhusrau, and a descendant of Kaipishin, third son of Kaiqubad. He is said to have enlarged and beautified Balkh (or Bactra), and to have there built a fire temple called Adar Burzin. He had two sons, Gushtasp and Zarir. To the former, represented as the patron of Zoroaster, he left his kingdom, retiring to his fire temple at Balkh.

Luian (lö'yạn). [Also, Luwian.] Ancient language of S Asia Minor, known only through cuneiform writings, and of obvious Hittite relation. It is classified as belonging to the extinct Anatolian subfamily of Indo-European languages.

Luichow Peninsula (lwā'jō'). Peninsula in S China, in the province of Kwangtung, bordered by the South China Sea on the E and by the Gulf of Tonkin on the W. It is separated from the island of Hainan by the Hainan Strait. Length, ab. 80 mi.; width, ab. 30 mi.

Luik (lœk). Flemish name of Liége.

Luimneach (lim'nạėh) or Luimnigh (lim'niėh). Irish name of Limerick.

Luini (lo.ē'nē) or Luvini (lo.vē'nē), Bernardino. b. at Luino, Italy, c1475; d. c1535. Italian painter of the Lombard school. Many of his works are at Milan.

Luino (lö.ē′nō). [Also, Luvino.] Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Como, on Lago Maggiore ab. 43 mi. NW of Milan. It is a resort, and has cotton and silk textile industries. The Chiesa del Carmine dates from the 15th century. Luino was the scene of a battle between the Roman army and the Austrians in August, 1848. Pop. of commune, 12,468 (1936); of town, 5,381 (1936).

Luis (lwēs), Washington. See Luiz or Luis, Washington.

Luisa Miller (lö.ē′zä mil′ėr). Opera in three acts by Verdi, with a libretto by Cammarano, first produced at Naples on Dec. 8, 1849. It is based on Kabale und Liebe, a drama by Schiller.

Luise (lö.ē′zę). German form of Louise.

Luitpold (lö′it.polt). b. at Würzburg, Bavaria, Germany, March 12, 1821; d. at Munich, Dec. 12, 1912. Bavarian regent; third son of Louis I of Bavaria, and uncle of Louis II and Otto I; prince regent of Bavaria (1886–1912) during Otto's lifelong insanity.

Luitprand (lö′it.pränd). See Liutprand.

Luiz or Luis (lwēs), Washington. [Full name, Washington Luiz Pereira de Souza.] b. at Macaé, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Oct. 26, 1869—. Brazilian politician, president (1926–30) of Brazil. He served as state deputy of São Paulo (1904, 1912), and was state secretary of justice (1906–12), governor (1920–24) of São Paulo, and senator (1924–26) from São Paulo. While president, he tried unsuccessfully to improve economic conditions by means of increased import duties and valorization of coffee. Deposed (1930) by a revolution led by Getulio Vargas, he lived in Europe and the U.S. as an exile until 1947.

Luk (lök). Micronesian god, known especially in the Carolines. He figures locally as creator, highest deity, and father of Olofat. On Truk, however, Luk is the elder beneficent brother of the mischievous, destructive Olofat. Elsewhere little is known of him except the name, whose variants, as Luke-lang, Lugweilang, emphasize his dwelling in the sky (lang being equivalent to "sky").

Lukaris (lö′ką.ris), Cyrillus. See Lucaris, Cyrillus.

Lukas (lö′kąs), Paul. b. at Budapest, Hungary, May 26, 1895—. American actor. He has starred on the stage (Watch on the Rhine, Call Me Madam, and others) and in motion pictures (Strictly Dishonorable, Little Women, The Lady Vanishes, and others).

Lukchun (lůk′chůn′). See Turfan.

Luke (lök), Saint. Author, according to tradition, of the third gospel and also of the Acts of the Apostles. He has been regarded as identical with the Luke several times mentioned in the New Testament as a companion of Saint Paul (called in Colossians "the beloved physician"). Of his life little is known. According to tradition he was a painter as well as a physician, and the only one of the apostles not of Jewish origin. Whether or not he suffered martyrdom is uncertain. His symbol is the ox (often winged), which was given him as an emblem of sacrifice and priesthood because "he devised about the priesthood of Jesus Christ."

Luke, Gospel of. Third gospel, attributed by tradition to Luke, the companion of Saint Paul. The literary merit of this gospel is universally recognized.

Luke Frugal (frö′gąl). See Frugal, Luke.

Luke Havergal (hav′ėr.gąl). Poem by Edwin Arlington Robinson, published in The Children of the Night (1897).

Luke Limp (limp), Sir. See Limp, Sir Luke.

Lukeman (lök′mąn), Augustus. [Full name, Henry Augustus Lukeman.] b. at Richmond, Va., Jan. 28, 1871 (or 1872); d. at New York, April 3, 1935. American sculptor, best known for his portraits. Included in his works are Confederate Memorial, Stone Mountain, Ga.; Women of the Confederacy, Raleigh, N.C.; the statues Jefferson Davis, Senator J. Z. George, McKinley, Professor Joseph Henry, Kit Carson, Franklin Pierce, and many war and other memorials.

Lukki (luk′ī). See Lycians.

Lukmanier (lůk.män′yėr). Pass on the border of the cantons of Graubünden and Ticino, Switzerland. It connects the valley of the Rhine with the valley of the Ticino, and has an automobile highway. Elevation, ab. 6,290 ft.

Luków (lö′köf). Town in E Poland, in the województwo (province) of Lublin, formerly in Russia, ab. 58 mi. SE of Warsaw: leather industry. A concentration camp was established here during World War II. 8,513 (1946).

Luks (luks), George Benjamin. b. at Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 13, 1867; d. Oct. 30, 1933. American genre painter, member of "The Eight" and of the Association of American Painters and Sculptors (Armory Show, 1913), groups whose exhibitions launched a return to realism in American painting. His subjects were taken from his own experiences in mines and prize ring and from the streets, shops, and saloons near his New York studio. He was a student at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, at the Düsseldorf Academy, Germany, and at Paris and London, became (1895–96) a war correspondent-illustrator in Cuba for the Philadelphia Bulletin, and later drew the series McFadden's Flats and other cartoons for the New York Herald. Long an instructor at the Art Students League of New York, he also established his own art school. He painted The Wrestlers, The Spielers (dancing children), and others. See monographs by E. L. Cary (1931) and G. P. du Bois (1931).

Lukshun (lůk′shůn′). See Turfan.

Lukuga (lö.kö′gą). River in S central Africa, the W outlet of Lake Tanganyika into the Congo system. It flows W from the lake to join the Lualaba, or upper Congo, River at Kongolo. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Lule (lö′lę). [Swedish, Luleälv (lö′lę.elv).] River in N Sweden, in the län (county) of Norrbotten, which flows into the Gulf of Bothnia. Length, ab. 280 mi.

Luleå (lö′lę.ō). Town in N Sweden, the capital of the län (county) of Norrbotten, on the Gulf of Bothnia, at the mouth of the Lule River (Luleälv). It is a seaport, exporting iron ore from the Kiruna district, and timber. It has a shipyard, iron-smelting works, railroad repair shops, and wood-pulp factories. 22,514 (1950).

Lules (lö′lās). Group of South American Indians formerly occupying the Chaco and now believed to be extinct. As a linguistic stock they have been designated variously by various scholars since 1806, as Lule or as Vilela; but the classification Lule-Vilela is now generally acceptable. There were two branches of Lule languages and 11 Vilela languages and dialects. Some scholars believe that Lule-Vilela may eventually be classified in a newly proposed Macro-Guaicuru phylum, which will include several linguistic families formerly considered independent and unaffiliated.

Lule-Vilela (lö′lā.vę.lā′lą). See under Lules.

Luling (lö′ling). City in S central Texas, in Caldwell County, S of Austin, in a petroleum area. It was founded in 1874. Pop. 4,297 (1950).

Lulio (lö′lyō), Raimundo. Spanish name of Lully, Raymond.

Lull (lul), Richard Swann. b. at Annapolis, Md., Nov. 6, 1867—. American paleontologist. He was professor (1911–36) at Yale and director (1922–36) of the Peabody Museum. Author of Ways of Life (1925), Ancient Man (1929), Fossils (1931), and other publications.

Lullitpur (lul′it.pör). See Lalitpur.

Lully (lü.lē), Jean Baptiste. [Original name, Giovanni Battista Lulli.] b. at Florence, Nov. 29, c1633; d. at Paris, March 22, 1687. French composer, chiefly of operas. He is credited with being the founder of the French grand opera. At the age of 14, with little formal schooling, he became a ballet dancer and musician at the court of Louis XIV, and subsequently became leader of the king's band of 24 violins. Named (1653) composer to the king, he also held other court posts, and in 1661 was naturalized. He inaugurated and was head (1672–87) of the Académie Royale de Musique, later the Paris Opéra. He is noted for his development of the operatic overture and the recitative with accompaniment. Among his operas are Cadmus et Hermione (1673), Alceste (1674), Thésée (1675), Psyché (1678), Proserpine (1680), Phaéton (1683), Amadis de Gaule (1684), Roland (1685), and Acis et Galathée (1686). He also composed ballets, pastorales, divertissements, and religious music.

Lully (lůl′i), Raymond. [Latin, Raimundus Lullus; Catalan, Ramón Lull; Spanish, Raimundo Lulio; French, Raimond Lulle.] b. at Palma, Balearic Islands, c1235; d. at Bougie, Africa, June 30, 1315. Spanish scholastic, missionary to the Mohammedans. His early life as a scion of a rich family was spent, according to him, in dissipation, but in 1266, after several visions of the crucified Christ, he turned to religion and resolved to become a missionary. He studied Arabic for nine years and taught it for ten more. From 1287 to 1289 he taught at Paris, becoming known as an eccentric; at last, in 1291, he traveled to Tunis, where he expounded Christian doctrine. In 1292 he was jailed and then expelled. He attempted to obtain aid for his objectives at Rome, Paris, Cyprus, Genoa, and Lyons, but failed. He returned to Africa and was again imprisoned; he lectured again at Paris and elsewhere in France and Italy and in 1314 again went to Africa. He was stoned to death by Moslems who objected to his proselytizing. His Ars Magna is a treatise on symbolic logic, but this and the rest of his serious work are marked by an obscuring mysticism; this mysticism is present also in his purely literary work, which includes a Utopian novel, Blanquerna, and such poetry as El Desconort and Lo Cant de Ramon. Lully's eccentricity resulted in the attribution to him of many works on alchemy and the occult which are not his.

Lulonga (lö.lông'gą). [Also, Lulongo (lö.lông'gō).] River in C Africa, in the Belgian Congo, an E affluent of the Congo River; it drains the country inside the bend of the Congo. It joins the main stream ab. 40 mi. above the town of Coquilhatville.

Lulu Bett (lö'lo͞ bet'), Miss. See Miss Lulu Bett.

"Lumber State." Occasional nickname of Maine.

Lumberton (lum'bėr.tọn). Town in S North Carolina, county seat of Robeson County: manufactures of textiles and fertilizer; processing center for tobacco; shipping point for tobacco and agricultural produce. 9,186 (1950).

Lumbwa (lŏm'bwä). See also Kipsigis.

Lumbwa. [Also: Arusha, Oliokop, Eloikob, Kwafi, Meru.] Subgroup of the Masai, a Nilo-Hamitic-speaking people of N Tanganyika, in E Africa. They have abandoned nomadic pastoralism for agriculture. Their name Lumbwa, which means "farmers," is sometimes inaccurately applied to the Kipsigis. They are also to be distinguished from the Meru, a Bantu-speaking people of C Kenya. Their population is estimated at more than 45,000 (by M. A. Bryan, Distribution of the Nilotic and Nilo-Hamitic Languages of Africa, 1948).

Lumholtz (lům'hôlts; Anglicized, lum'hōlts), Carl Sopheus. b. near Lillehammer, Norway, April 23, 1851; d. at Saranac, N.Y., May 5, 1922. Norwegian explorer and author. He wrote Among Cannibals, Unknown Mexico, and others.

Lumière (lü.myer), Antoine. b. near Besançon, France, 1840; d. at Paris, in April, 1911. French photographer and landscape painter, inventor of a successful process of color photography.

Lumière, Auguste Marie Louis Nicolas. b. at Besançon, France, 1862—. French inventor, industrialist, and chemist; brother of Louis J. Lumière. With his brother Louis Jean, he invented the cinematograph (1895), an instrument important in the history of motion-picture projectors, since it was the first in which the image was thrown on a screen before an audience. He was administrative director of the photographic manufacturing firm of Lumière and Jougla.

Lumière, Louis Jean. b. at Besançon, France, Oct. 5, 1864; d. at Bendol, Var, France, June 6, 1948. French industrialist and chemist, best known for his development of techniques of motion pictures and color photography; brother of A. M. L. N. Lumière. He invented (1884) a type of photographic plate, patented (1895) a moving-picture machine (cinematograph), and developed (1904–07) a three-color screen for direct color photography. He was a leading French manufacturer of photographic film.

Lummer (lům'ėr), Otto. b. at Gera, Germany, July 17, 1860; d. at Breslau, July 5, 1925. German physicist, noted for his studies in optics and radiation. He developed a type of interferometer and a photometer using prisms. His work with Ernst Pringsheim on experimental verification of mathematical approaches to the problems of radiation led to Max Planck's quantum theory.

Lummi (lum'i). Tribe of North American Indians belonging to the Salishan linguistic stock. Their specific language, Lummi, was classified by the anthropologist F. Boas as one of the Coast Salish languages, a group which he designated as Lhungen. C. F. Voegelin has renamed this group Lummi-Songish-Clallam, for the three languages included in it. A small group of Lummi Indians survive on a reservation in the state of Washington.

Lummis (lum'is), Charles Fletcher. b. at Lynn, Mass., March 1, 1859; d. Nov. 25, 1928. American author and editor. He was the city editor (1885–88) of the Los Angeles Daily Times, and founder and editor (1894 et seq.) of Out West (until 1902 The Land of Sunshine). Between 1888 and 1894 he spent some time among the Pueblo Indians and in Peru and Bolivia. He was librarian (1905–10) of the Los Angeles public library. He established the Southwest Museum at Los Angeles. Among his works are Birch Bark Poems (1879), A New Mexico David (1891), A Tramp Across the Continent (1892), Some Strange Corners of Our Country (1892), The Land of Poco Tiempo (1893), The Spanish Pioneers (1893), The Man who Married the Moon, and Other Pueblo Folk Stories (1896), The Gold Fish of Gran Chimu (1896), The King of the Broncos, and Other New Mexico Stories (1897), The Enchanted Burro (1897), The Awakening of a Nation: Mexico Today (1898), My Friend Will (1911), Spanish Songs of Old California (2 vols., 1923–28), and Mesa, Cañon and Pueblo (1925).

Lummi-Songish-Clallam (lum'i.song'ish.klal'ąm). See under Lummi.

Lummox (lum'ọks). Novel by Fannie Hurst, published in 1923.

Lumpkin (lump'kin), Tony. In Oliver Goldsmith's comedy She Stoops to Conquer, an ignorant, noisy, conceited country squire, both loutish and vicious.

Luna (lö'ną). [Modern site name, Luni.] In ancient geography, a city in Italy, on the coast E of what is now La Spezia. It was founded by the Etruscans and became a Roman town in the 2nd century B.C. It was an important place, and later the seat of a bishopric. It was destroyed by the Saracens in 1016. Some ruins remain.

Luna. In Roman mythology, the goddess of the moon. She had at Rome an ancient sanctuary on the Aventine Hill and a temple on the Palatine. The latter was illuminated at night. She figured in calendar computation especially, but had no strong cult.

Luna (lö'nä), Álvaro de. b. 1388; d. at Valladolid, Spain, June 2, 1453. Spanish courtier and poet. He became (1408) a page at the court of John II of Castile, rising quickly to the position of favorite and minister. He was made constable of Castile in 1423, but was exiled through the influence of the grandees in 1427. Recalled in 1430, he was made grand master of the order of Saint James of Compostela, was exiled in 1439, and recalled in 1445 and entrusted with the command of the army. Having lost the favor of the king, he fell a victim to a conspiracy of the court nobles, was arrested at Burgos (April 5, 1453), and shortly after was executed at Valladolid.

Luna, Pedro de. Original name of the antipope Benedict XIII.

Lunacharsky (lö.nä.chär'ski), Anatoli Vasilyevich. b. at Poltava, Russia, Nov. 24, 1875; d. at Menton, France, Dec. 26, 1933. Russian revolutionist, philosopher, and educator. A Social Democrat, he was a member of the Bolshevik faction that split the International in 1903, but within which he found himself opposed to the more conservative tendencies of Lenin. He was one of the group that engineered the November revolution of 1917 that overthrew the Kerensky government in Russia. He was the Soviet commissar of education from 1917 to 1929, and sponsored the widening of the system of education; he preserved many Russian works of art during the period of civil war. A dramatist himself, he became the especial sponsor of the theater.

Lunalilo (lö.nä.lē'lō), William C. b. at Honolulu, Jan. 31, 1835; d. there, Feb. 3, 1874. King of the Hawaiian Islands (1873–74).

Lunar Eclipse, At a. See At a Lunar Eclipse.

Luna y Arellano (lo͞ nä ē ä.rā.lya nō), Tristán de. b. in Aragon, Spain, early in the 16th century; fl. c1530–c1561. Spanish captain. He served under Coronado in northern Mexico in 1539. In 1559 he was given command of an expedition intended to conquer and colonize Florida, of which he was made governor and captain-general. He sailed from Veracruz in June, with 13 ships and a force variously given at from 500 to 2,000 men, and in August formed a settlement. Most of his ships were shortly after lost in a hurricane; the men, after great suffering, mutinied; and in 1561 the enterprise was abandoned.

Lund (lund; Swedish, lůnd). [Medieval names, Lundia, Lundona, Londinum Gothorum.] City in S Sweden, in the län (county) of Malmöhus, NE of Malmö. It is primarily a cultural and commercial center, but has some industries, including iron foundries, furniture factories, and sugar refineries. It is the seat of a university, founded in 1668, with a library of more than 500,000 volumes and manuscripts. The town was a residence of the Danish kings until 1658, when it was ceded to Sweden; Charles XI of Sweden defeated the Danes here in 1676; the peace of Lund was concluded in 1679. A monument of reconciliation was erected on the battlefield in 1876. Pop. 33,954 (1950).

Lund (lůn), Peter William. b. at Copenhagen, June 14, 1801; d. at Lagoa Santa, Minas Gerais, Brazil, May 5, 1880. Danish naturalist.

Lund, Troels Frederik. See Troels-Lund, Troels Frederik.

Lunda (lön'dä). [Also: Alunda, Arunda, Balunda.] Bantu-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting S Belgian Congo, W Angola, and N Northern Rhodesia. The powerful Lunda was founded by a Luba chief, according to Lunda tradition, and offshoots from it established the Chokwe and Sonyo groups of the Belgian Congo, and the Ngola of Angola. The queen mother and queen sister share political authority with the king. The Lunda differ from the neighboring peoples in that descent is patrilineal. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal crops are millet and cassava.

Lundeberg (lůn'dę.bery'), Christian. b. at Forsbacka, Sweden, July 14, 1842; d. at Stockholm, Nov. 10, 1911. Swedish political leader and landowner, the premier who carried through the dissolution (1905) of the union between Norway and Sweden. Elected (1885) to the Riksdag (parliament) as a Conservative, he strongly favored high protective tariffs. He headed (August-November, 1905) a coalition government, and served (1909 et seq.) as president of the first chamber of the Riksdag.

Lundenburg (lůn'dęn.bůrk). German name of Břeclav.

Lundkvist (lůnd'kvist), Artur. [Full name, Nils Artur Lundkvist.] b. at Oderljunga, Skåne, Sweden, 1906—. Swedish poet, literary critic, and prose writer. He has been strongly influenced by the American Carl Sandburg, whose work he translated into Swedish. Among his poetical works are Glöd (Embers, 1928), Naket liv (Naked Life, 1929), Svart stad (Black City, 1930), Jordisk prosa (Earthly Prose, 1930), Vit man (White Man, 1932), Nattens broar (The Bridges of the Night, 1936), and Eldtema (Theme of Fire, 1939).

Lundmark (lůnd'märk), Knut Emil. b. at Alfsbyn, Sweden, June 14, 1889—. Swedish astronomer, noted for determinations of stellar absolute magnitudes and of distances of galaxies.

Lundy (lun'di), Benjamin. b. in Sussex County, N.J., Jan. 4, 1789; d. at Lowell, Ill., Aug. 22, 1839. American Abolitionist and editor. He formed (1815) the early Abolitionist Union Humane Society at St. Clairsville, Ohio. He contributed to and was an editor (1819) of The Philanthropist, and was founder and editor of the antislavery periodicals The Genius of Universal Emancipation (1821–35, 1838–39) and The National Enquirer and Constitutional Advocate of Universal Liberty. He lectured (1820 et seq.) in many places in the U.S. against slavery. He traveled (1825–35) intermittently to Haiti, Canada, and Texas to find sites for the establishment of free Negro settlements.

Lundy Isle. [Also: Lundy, Lundy Island.] Civil parish and small island in SW England, in Devonshire, at the mouth of Bristol Channel. Length, ab. 3 mi.; area, ab. 2 sq. mi.; pop. 21 (1931).

Lundy's Lane. Road in Ontario, Canada, leading westward from the Niagara River, near Niagara Falls. Here on July 25, 1814, a battle was fought (called also the battle of Bridgewater or of Niagara) between the Americans (2,600) under Jacob J. Brown and the British (4,500) under Gordon Drummond. The British were repulsed, but afterward returned and kept possession of the field. American loss, 852; British, 878.

Lüneburg (lü'nę.bůrk). Former principality and later government district in the E part of the former province of Hanover, Prussia. The surface is generally level. It was the ancient inheritance of the Welf (Guelph) family. The duchy of Lüneburg grew into the electorate, later the kingdom, of Hanover.

Lüneburg. Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the province of Hanover, Prussia, ab. 26 mi. SE of Hamburg: agricultural trade; river port; chemical, metal, paper, lumber, and textile industries. It is an old city, with many gabled houses of the Gothic and Renaissance periods. The town became a member of the Hanseatic League in the 14th century. It was occupied by Duke George of Calenberg in 1637, and passed to Hanover in 1705. Lüneburg suffered only slight damage during World War II. 58,139 (1950).

Lüneburg Heath. [German, Lüneburger Heide (lü'nę.bůr.gėr hī'dę).] Extensive sandy moor in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, S of the Elbe River and W of Lüneburg. It has frequently been used for military exercises and maneuvers.

Lunel (lü.nel). Town in S France, in the department of Hérault, ab. 15 mi. NE of Montpellier. In the heart of a winemaking region, it has a considerable trade in muscatel wines. 7,775 (1946).

Lünen (lü'nęn). [Also, Lünen an der Lippe (än dėr lip'ę).] Town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia. British Zone, formerly in the province of Westphalia, Prussia, on the Lippe River ab. 25 mi. S of Münster: coal mines; iron, copper, cement, machine, chemical, lumber, and textile industries. 61,305 (1950).

Lunenburg (lö'nęn.bėrg). Town in SW Nova Scotia, Canada, the county seat of Lunenburg County, situated on the SE coast, ab. 40 mi. SW of Halifax. It is a boatbuilding town and the headquarters of the Canadian cod-fishing fleet. 2,816 (1951).

Lunéville (lü.nā.vēl). Town in NE France, in the department of Meurthe-et-Moselle, on the Meurthe River, ab. 16 mi. SE of Nancy. It is an industrial center producing railroad equipment, cotton textiles, gloves, hosiery, lace, pottery, and toys. There is also trade in wine, grain, and lumber. As part of the duchy of Lorraine, the town prospered in the 18th century under Duke Leopold II and Duke Stanislas; the castle and its gardens date from this period. The Peace of Lunéville between Austria and France was concluded (1801) here. The town suffered some damage in World War I, but was spared in World War II. 20,377 (1946).

Lunéville, Peace of. Treaty which the emperor Francis II of Austria concluded with France at Lunéville on Feb. 9, 1801. France received the left bank of the Rhine. The arrangements made with Austria by the peace of Campo Formio were confirmed; Tuscany was ceded to Parma; and the Cisalpine, Ligurian, Helvetic, and Batavian republics were recognized. It was the beginning of the end of the Holy Roman Empire, which disappeared in 1806. By this treaty also France obtained possession from Spain of the Louisiana territory, which was sold in 1803 to the U.S.

Lunga (löng'gä), Isola. An Italian name of Dugi Otok.

Lungchi (lůng'chē'). See Lungki, China.

Lungchingtsun (lůng'jing'tsůn'). Former treaty port in E Manchuria, NE China, in Kirin province, near the Korean border, opened in 1910. Most of the population is Korean. Chinese pop. 4,059 (1931); total pop. ab. 26,000 (c1940).

Lungchow (lůng'jō'). [Also, Lungtsin.] Former treaty port in S China, in SW Kwangsi province, near the border of Indochina: export trade. 13,600 (1931).

Lungchuan (lůng'chwän'). Village in Chekiang province, China, ab. 160 mi. SW of Hangchow. It was the ceramic center which, according to traditional Chinese accounts, produced the fine-grained, light gray porcellaneous ware with grayish to bluish-green glaze in the range of colors known in the West as celadon, and called Lungchuan by the Chinese. Other wares were made in the area, and wares of Lungchuan type were made elsewhere; but the type name is now generally used. The site appears to have been active from Sung through Ming times; and the ware was widely exported to the Pacific islands and the Near East.

Lunge (lůng'ę), Georg. b. at Breslau, 1839; d. at Zurich, Switzerland, 1923. German industrial chemist. His treatises Coal Tar and Ammonia (1867–1912) and Sulfuric Acid and Alkali (1879–1916) became standard works.

Lungki (lůng'kē'). [Also: Lungchi; former name, Changchow, also spelled Chang-Chau, Chincheu, Chinchew, Chinchu.] City in SE China, in the province of Fukien, ab. 35 mi. W of Amoy. It is an important center of the silk trade. 56,000 (1922).

Lungkiang (lůng'jyäng'). See Tsitsihar.

Lungkow (lůng'kō'). Seaport and former treaty port in NE China, on the N coast of the Shantung peninsula, ab. 50 mi. W of Chefoo. Although it has a natural deep-water harbor, it is not important in international trade because its mountainous hinterland makes it difficult to reach from the interior. 10,676 (1931).

Lungmen (lůng'mun'). Name of a defile in Honan province, China, in the I River, ab. 10 mi. S of Loyang, and of the group of Buddhist cave temples carved in the cliff on the left bank. These were begun in 494 when the Northern Wei capital was moved south from Tatung; and the close-grained, dark gray limestone of this area is seen in some of the finest Chinese Buddhist sculpture from that date on into T'ang times.

Lungshan (lůng'shän'). Town in Shantung province, China, ab. 25 mi. E of Tsinan. The name has been given to the so-called black pottery culture of China as represented by extensive finds at the nearby site of Chengtzu Yai. The distinguishing ware is a black, highly polished, wheel-make pottery in small vessels averaging no more than 3 mm. in thickness. Two distinct culture levels are evident, and while the second (Lungshan II) seems to have been contemporary with early Chou, the age of the first is uncertain and controversial. The black pottery has been compared with that of Yangshao, in attempts to push the date back; but the presence of ox and sheep scapulae bored for divination (though not inscribed) and a certain type of white pottery appear to link it with Shang. The best present guess is that Lungshan II may have been contemporary with the beginning of Shang.

Lungtsin (lůng'tsin'). See Lungchow.

Lung Yün (lůng' yün'). b. at Chaotung, Yunnan, China, 1888—. Chinese warlord who controlled (1927–45) Yunnan. Descendant of an aboriginal Yi chieftain, he became a protégé of Yunnan's governor T'ang Chi-yao but supplanted (1927) his benefactor. During World War II, to counter the spread of Kuomintang influence, he became a patron of the Democratic Leaguers and other liberals. When his troops were sent (1945) to northern Indochina by Chiang Kai-shek to take the Japanese surrender, he was deposed and replaced by Lu Han. He joined (1948) the Revolutionary Committee of the Kuomintang and became (1949) a member of the central government of the People's Republic of China.

Luni (lö'nē). See Luna, Italy.

Lunn (lun), Hugh Kingsmill. Original name of Kingsmill, Hugh.

Lunn, Louisa Kirby. b. at Manchester, England, Nov. 8, 1873—. English contralto singer.

Lunt (lunt), Alfred. b. at Milwaukee, Wis., May 26, 1893—. American actor; husband (married 1922) of Lynn Fontanne. He starred with his wife in The Guardsman, Sweet Nell of Old Drury, Elizabeth the Queen, Design for Living, Idiot's Delight, Amphitryon 38, The Taming of the Shrew, O Mistress Mine, and other plays.

Luo (lö'ō). See also Lwo.

Luo. [Also: Jaluo, Luwo, Nilotic Kavirondo, Nipe, Nyifwa.] Nilotic-speaking people of SW Kenya and N Tanganyika, in E Africa, inhabiting the E shore of Lake Victoria. Their population is estimated at ab. 500,000 (by E. E. Evans-Pritchard, The Rhodes Livingston Journal, vol. 7, 1949). They are divided into some 30 independent subgroups, including the Karacuonyo, Kano, Alego, Gem, Samia, and Ungeya. Within these subgroups, as among the Nuer, true chiefs are lacking. They have patrilineal clans with exogamous lineages, while age grades and circumcision are lacking. They practice hoe agriculture and herding, with the cattle complex.

Luoravetlany (lö'ô.rä.vet''lä.ni). See Chukchi.

Lupacá (lö.pä.kä'). One of the more powerful Aymará Indian tribes in pre-Inca times, occupying the region S and SW of Lake Titicaca, in South America. Formerly they spoke one of the most important Aymará dialects of the region. Modern Lupacá Indians, however, have given it up for Quechua or Spanish.

Lupatia (lö.pā'shą). Ancient name of Altamura.

Lupercal (lö'pėr.kąl). Cave or grotto near the W angle of the Palatine Hill, in ancient Rome, dedicated, according to tradition, by the original Arcadian settlers to Lupercus, a fertility deity. It was said to be the den of the she-wolf that suckled Romulus and Remus. As time went on the Lupercal was adorned architecturally, and its decoration was renewed by Augustus. Near the Lupercal was the Ficus Ruminalis, the fig tree beneath which Romulus and Remus were left by the retiring waters of the Tiber, and above it was the primitive thatched hut preserved to imperial days as a relic of Romulus.

Lupercalia (lö.pėr.kā'li.ą). One of the most ancient of Roman festivals, celebrated every year on the 15th of February. The origin of the festival is older than the legend of Romulus and Remus and the wolf, with which, as with the Greek cult of Lupercus (or Faunus, or Inuus, or Pan), it was associated. It was regarded also as a purification ceremony of the Palatine city and the surrounding land. It is said that human victims were sacrificed in the Lupercal cave near the Porta Romana, after having been conducted around the walls. In historic times the sacrificial victims were goats and a dog (both symbolizing fertility) and the celebrants ran around the old line of the Palatine walls, striking all whom they met with thongs cut from the skins of the slaughtered animals. These blows were reputed to endow women with fertility.

Lupercus (lö.pėr'kus). In Roman mythology, a fertility god, often identified with Faunus, or with Inuus, or with Pan, as the protecting deity of shepherds. The festival called Lupercalia was celebrated in his honor.

Lupescu (lö.pe'skö), Magda. b. at Iaşi, Rumania, c1904—. Wife of Carol II, one-time king of Rumania. She was the wife of an army officer, and Carol, heir apparent to the Rumanian throne, was the husband of the Princess Helen of Greece, when they formed a liaison, about 1921. Under pressure because of this, Carol renounced his right to the throne in 1925. Mme. Lupescu had meanwhile divorced her husband. They lived at Paris and at Neuilly, France, from 1925 to 1930, when Carol, whose marriage to Queen Helen was dissolved in 1928, returned to Rumania and displaced his son Michael, who had succeeded to the crown in 1927. Mme. Lupescu also returned to Rumania, and during Carol's reign was supposed to have had a considerable influence on public affairs. After a period of bitter political struggle, Carol was forced to abdicate in 1940. He and Mme. Lupescu fled to Spain, and subsequently sojourned in Cuba, in Mexico, and in Brazil. In 1947, during an illness in which Mme. Lupescu's life was despaired of, they were married at Rio de Janeiro; and thereafter, having established a home in Portugal, they were married a second time, at Lisbon, in 1949.

Lupiae (lö'pi.ē). Ancient name of Lecce, city.

Lupino (lö.pē'nō), Ida. b. at London, Feb. 14, 1916—. English motion-picture actress; daughter of Stanley Lupino. In England, she appeared on the stage in Her First Affair, High Finance, The Ghost Camera, and I Lived with You. She came to Hollywood to play in Search for Beauty, Peter Ibbetson, Anything Goes, Artists and Models, The Light that Failed, Ladies in Retirement, Escape Me Never, and Roadhouse, among others.

Lupino, Stanley. b. at London, May 15, 1894; d. there, June 10, 1942. English actor, playwright, and producer. He starred (1915–23) on the English stage, and appeared (1926 et seq.) in the U.S. He played in Sleeping Beauty, Naughty Riquette, The Nightingale, The Love Race, and other productions, and wrote and produced musical comedies.

Lupot (lü.pō), Nicolas. [Called the French Stradivarius.] b. at Stuttgart, Germany, 1758; d. at Paris, 1824. French violinmaker active (1794 et seq.) at Paris. His instruments were copies of the better known styles, especially those of Stradivarius.

Lupus (lö'pus). See also Hugh of Avranches.

Lupus. Southern constellation, the Wolf, recognized anciently and representing a beast held by the hand of the Centaur. It has two stars of the third magnitude.

Luqman (luk.man'). Arabic name of Lokman.

Luque (lö′kā). City in W central Paraguay, in the capital district, E of Asunción city. Pop. ab. 25,000.

Luquillo (lö.kē′yō), Sierra de. See Sierra de Luquillo.

Lur (lör). See Alur.

Luray (lö.rā′). Town in N Virginia, county seat of Page County, in the Shenandoah Valley. It is a resort and tourist center for nearby Luray Caverns. 2,731 (1950).

Luray Caverns. Cave in N Virginia, in Page County, near Luray, ab. 78 mi. SW of Washington, D.C. It consists of numerous chambers extending over a large area, and is especially remarkable for its enormous stalactites. It was discovered in 1878.

Lurçat (lür.sä), Jean André. b. at Bruyères, Vosges, France, July 1, 1892—. Belgian painter, illustrator, architect, and designer. He first studied medicine, but gave it up for art. Employing cubist and surrealist devices, he endows his paintings with a sense of vast space, applying the same vision also to cartoons for tapestries. He was chiefly responsible for reviving the Manufacture des Gobelins at Paris. He has illustrated many books, including Baroque and Toupies (for which he also wrote texts), C. A. Cingria's Les Limbes, and P. Soupault's Adrift and The Lost Body. Other works include Portrait of Chester Dale, Enchanted Isle, designs for the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, and designs for Aubusson tapestries.

Lurcy (lür.sē), Lafond de. See Lafond, Gabriel.

Lure (lür). Town in E France, in the department of Haute-Saône. It is an old town which developed adjacent to an abbey founded in 610. The town has cotton textile industries and embroidery and lace manufactures. 5,277 (1946).

Lurewell (lör′wel), Mistress. Character in Farquhar's comedy The Constant Couple; a jilt with a strong desire to wreak vengeance on men for the wrongs done her.

Lurgan (lėr′gạn). Urban district and linen-manufacturing center in Northern Ireland, in County Armagh, ab. 18 mi. SW of Belfast. 15,500 (est. 1949).

Luristan (lö.ri.stän′). Region and former province in W Iran, bordering on Iraq, N of Khuzistan: oil wells. The surface is mountainous. An earthquake occurred here on Jan. 23, 1909, in which ab. 5,000 people were reported killed. Capital, Burujird; area, ab. 15,893 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 500,000.

Lurlei (lür′lī). See Lorelei.

Lurline (lėr.lēn′). Opera in three acts by W. Vincent Wallace, with a libretto by E. Fitzball, first produced at Covent Garden Theatre, London, in 1860.

Lurton (lėr′tọn), Horace Harmon. b. at Newport, Ky., Feb. 26, 1844; d. at Atlantic City, N.J., July 12, 1914. American jurist. He was justice of the supreme court of Tennessee (1886–93), and chief justice in 1893. He served (1893–1910) as a judge for the sixth U.S. judicial circuit. In 1910 he was appointed associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Lusaka (lö.sä′kạ). Capital of Northern Rhodesia, S central Africa, situated on the main railroad line of the colony, ab. 76 mi. S of Broken Hill and ab. 579 mi. N of Bulawayo, Southern Rhodesia. It became the capital of the colony in 1935 and is essentially a modern town of growing importance, with air-line connections to various other parts of Africa; also possesses several fine government buildings, churches, schools, and a hospital. It is the agricultural distributing center for the Europeans settled in the surrounding areas. Elevation, ab. 4,200 ft.; pop. 10,313, including 2,553 Europeans (1947).

Lusambo (lô.säm′bō). Town in S central Belgian Congo, capital of Kasai province; founded as a trading post in 1889. Elevation, ab. 1,590 ft.; pop. 6,839, including 283 Europeans (1949).

Lusasavoritch (lö.sä.sä′vô.rich), Gregor. See Saint Gregory.

Lusatia (lö.sā′shä). [German, Lausitz.] Region in N Europe, in the German Länder (states) of Saxony and Brandenburg, Russian Zone, and in SW Poland, comprising chiefly the districts around the upper Spree River (Spreewald). Its early inhabitants were Slavs, and, though now almost entirely Germanized, it still has a small population of Slavs called Wends, or Sorbs, who have retained their particular language and folk customs. In the Middle Ages, it was a mark or march on the border of the empire. Upper Lusatia (Ober-Lausitz), in the S part, was acquired by Brandenburg from Bohemia c1253. Lower Lusatia (Nieder-Lausitz), in the N part, was acquired by Brandenburg early in the 14th century. Upper Lusatia was gained by Bohemia in 1346, and Lower Lusatia in 1373. With Bohemia it passed to the house of Hapsburg in 1526. It was ceded by Austria to Saxony in 1635. Lower Lusatia and part of Upper Lusatia were ceded by Saxony to Prussia in 1815.

Lusatians (lö.sā′shạnz). [Also, Sorbs.] Slavic people living in the region of E Germany and SW Poland called Lusatia. They are descended from the ancient Wends, but less than half of them still speak Wendish. Their language, Wendish or Sorbish, belongs to the Western group of the Slavic subfamily of Indo-European languages. This group of modern Lusatian Wends also maintains tenaciously its own original culture.

Luschan (lö′shän), Felix von. b. at Hollabrunn, near Vienna, Aug. 11, 1854; d. at Berlin, Feb. 7, 1924. Austrian anthropologist and ethnologist. Author of Anleitung zu ethnographischen Beobachtungen (Instruction for Ethnographic Observations, 1899, 1904), Rassen und Völker (Races and Nations, 1915), and Die Altertümer von Benin (The Antiquities of Benin, 1919).

Luscinus (lu.sī′nus), Caius Fabricius. See Fabricius Luscinus, Caius.

Lushais (lö.shāz′). Group of Indochinese peoples of the border regions of S Assam, W Burma, and Bengal. Their language, Lushai (or Lushei), falls into an Assamese-Burman grouping of the Indochinese family of languages.

Lüshun (lü′shün′) or Lüshunkow (lü′shün′kō′). Chinese name of Port Arthur.

Lusiad (lö′si.ad), The. [Portuguese, Os Lusíadas.] Most famous work in Portuguese literature, an epic poem in ten cantos of oitavas (ottava rima) by Luiz de Camões; it celebrates the discovery of the sea route to India by Vasco da Gama, the Portuguese navigator, and praises the Portuguese nation for its past accomplishments. First published in 1572, The Lusiad has had scores of editions and has been translated into nearly every European language. Sir Richard Fanshawe made the first English translation (1655). Mickle's translation appeared in 1776, Musgrave's in 1826, Quillinan's (five cantos) in 1853, and Sir Thomas Mitchell's in 1854. A recent one, by William C. Atkinson, appeared in 1952.

Lusignan (lü.zē.nyäṅ). Noble French family, originating in Poitou, which ruled in Cyprus from 1192 to 1475 and in Jerusalem during the Crusades. Guy of Lusignan married (1180) Sibylla, heiress of the crusaders' kingdom of Jerusalem, and on the death of Baldwin V, her son, became king, despite an earlier ruling barring him from the succession. He was deposed (1192) when first Conrad of Montferrat and, on his death, Henry of Champagne, married Isabella, Sibylla's sister and heiress of the kingdom. Guy bought the island of Cyprus from the Templars and reigned there until his death in 1194. His brother Amalric, who succeeded him in Cyprus, married the again-widowed Isabella in 1197 and became king of Jerusalem as well. After 1269 members of the house of Lusignan claimed both thrones; after 1342 they also claimed the kingdom of Armenia, in which five of their number had ruled for a short time. In 1489, some years after the death of the last of the line, Cyprus was ceded to the republic of Venice by the Venetian mother of the last king. The legend of the serpent-woman Mélusine is attached to the family's castle in Poitou, her name supposedly being derived from Mère des Lusignes, "mother of the Lusignans."

Lusignan. Town in W France, in the department of Vienne, situated on a high hill above the Vonne River, ab. 16 mi. SW of Poitiers. The now-ruined castle belonged to the knightly family of Lusignan, which was prominent at the time of the Crusades. 2,070 (1946).

Lusignan, Aymer de. See Aymer de Valence (or de Lusignan).

Lusignan, Guy (or Gui or Guido) of. See Guy (or Gui or Guido) of Lusignan.

Lusine (lü.zēn). See Lisaine.

Lusitania (lö.si.tā′ni.ạ). In ancient geography, the country of the Lusitanians, comprising the modern Portugal N to the river Durius (Douro), and adjoining parts of W Spain. In a later, more extended use, it was one of the Roman provinces into which Hispania was divided by Augustus.

Lusitania. British passenger vessel (Cunard Line, 40,000 gross tons) which was sunk during World War I (May 7, 1915) by a German submarine, with little or no warning, ab. 10 mi. off the Old Head of Kinsale, on the S coast of Ireland. The sinking aroused intense feeling in the U.S. and did much to destroy the considerable body of pro-German sentiment which existed in America during the early period of World War I. The vessel was carrying a crew of more than 600 and upwards of 1,250 passengers (including 188 Americans), of whom 1,198 (including 128 Americans) are said to have been lost. The ship was unarmed and was carrying a cargo which included small-arms cartridges and shrapnel, but no heavy guns, high explosives, or loaded shells of large caliber. The German embassy at Washington, D.C., had placed an advertisement in leading U.S. newspapers on May 1, 1915 (the day the Lusitania sailed from New York) warning U.S. citizens not to travel on British ships, and the German government at first insisted that the sinking was justified as carried out on the grounds that the Lusitania was armed and was carrying munitions. However, a rising clamor in the U.S. for war and the dispatch of three notes (May 13, June 9, July 21, 1915) elicited from the Germans a pledge (May 4, 1916) that no more passenger or merchant ships would be sunk without warning. The sinking led to the resignation (June 8) of Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan, who considered the U.S. position not only untenable according to international law but also one that would lead inevitably to war. He was succeeded by Robert Lansing.

Lusitano (lö.sē.tä'nō), Candido. Pseudonym of Freire, Francisco José.

Lusk (lusk), Graham. b. at Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 15, 1866; d. July 18, 1932. American physiologist, expert on nutrition. Author of Elements of the Science of Nutrition (1906).

Lusk, William Thompson. b. at Norwich, Conn., May 23, 1838; d. June 12, 1897. American obstetrician. He was professor (1871–97) of obstetrics, diseases of women, diseases of infancy, and clinical midwifery, and president (1889) of the faculty at Bellevue Hospital Medical College. Author of The Science and Art of Midwifery (1882).

Luska (lus'kạ), Sidney. Pseudonym of Harland, Henry.

Lussigny (lü.sē.nyē), Baron de. See Ancre, Marquis d'.

Lussingrande (lös.sēn.grän'dā). Italian name of Lošinj, town.

Lussino (lös.sē'nō). Italian name of Lošinj, island.

Lustenau (lůs'tẹ.nou). Town in W Austria, in Vorarlberg, situated in the Rhine valley near the influx of the Rhine River into the Lake of Constance. It is a textile town and manufactures embroidery, hosiery, stockings, curtains, and upholstery. 10,309 (1951).

Luster Fjord (lü'stėr). [Former spelling, Lyster Fjord.] Northeastern arm of the Sogne Fjord, in W Norway. Length, ab. 25 mi.

Lustigen Weiber von Windsor (lůs'ti.gẹn vī'bėr fon vint'zôr), Die. [English title, The Merry Wives of Windsor.] Opera in three acts by Otto Nicolai with a libretto by Hermann von Mosenthal adapted from Shakespeare's play, first performed at the Hofoper at Berlin on March 9, 1849.

Lust's Dominion, or the Lascivious Queen. Play published in 1657. It was attributed to Christopher Marlowe, and was published as his in 1657; but it is probably the same play as The Spanish Moor's Tragedy, sometimes attributed to Thomas Dekker, William Haughton, and John Day, published Feb. 13, 1600. Although the play as it exists dates from 1600, it appears to be based on an older one.

Lut (löt), Bahr. Arabic name of the Dead Sea.

Lutennu (lö.ten'nö). See Rutennu.

Lutetia-Paris (lö.tē'shạ.par'is). Asteroid (No. 21) discovered by Goldschmidt at Paris, Nov. 15, 1852.

Luteva (lö.tē'vạ). Latin name of Lodève.

Luther (lö'tėr), Hans. b. at Berlin, March 10, 1879—. German statesman. Mayor of Essen (1918), he became (1922) minister of food and agriculture, and minister of finance in Stresemann's cabinet, and was instrumental in rehabilitating German finances in the decade after World War I. In January, 1925, he became reichschancellor; he led the German delegation at Locarno, and resigned in May, 1926. He was president (1930–33) of the Reichsbank, and until 1937 served as German ambassador to the U.S.

Luther (lö'thėr; German, lö'tėr), Martin. b. at Eisleben, Germany, Nov. 10, 1483; d. there, Feb. 18, 1546. German religious reformer and translator of the Bible. His father, who was a miner by trade, removed with his family to Mansfeld the year after the birth of the son. His early education was obtained at Magdeburg and at Eisenach (1497). In 1501 he matriculated at Erfurt for the study of jurisprudence. He took his examination in 1505, and subsequently delivered lectures on the physics and ethics of Aristotle. In that same year, against the wishes of his family, he determined to become a monk and entered the Augustinian monastery at Erfurt. In 1507 he was consecrated a priest and in 1508 was called as professor of philosophy to the University of Wittenberg. In 1511 he went to Rome on business connected with his monastic order. In 1512, after his return to Wittenberg, he was made doctor of theology. His first important action in the direction of ecclesiastical reform was his publication (Oct. 31, 1517), on the church door at Wittenberg, of 95 theses against the sale of indulgences by the Dominican Johann Tetzel. His propositions were immediately condemned as heretical, and violent attacks were made upon him from various quarters, both before and after a summons to Rome (which he did not obey). In 1520 he published three tracts: Address to the Christian Nobles of the German Nation, On the Babylonian Captivity of the Church of God, and Christian Liberty. These tracts are known as his "Primary Works" and contain the first principles of the Reformation. The material principle of the Reformation was justification by faith. The formal principle was that the Bible is the only rule of faith and practice. Another fundamental principle was the priesthood of all believers. In 1520, with his adherents, he was excommunicated by Pope Leo X, and his writings were burned at Rome, Cologne, and Louvain. He retaliated by publicly burning, at Wittenberg, the bull of excommunication and the decretals of the Pope, to whom he now renounced all allegiance. At the Diet of Worms (April, 1521), whither he was summoned by the emperor Charles V, he made the celebrated speech which ended with: "Here, I stand. I cannot do otherwise. God help me. Amen." In spite of his vigorous defense of his doctrines, he was proscribed by the emperor. On his return from Worms through the Thuringian Forest he was, by order of his friend Frederick III, Elector of Saxony, ostensibly taken prisoner and conveyed to the Wartburg, at Eisenach, where he remained in disguise the following ten months under the name of Junker Georg. During this time he translated the New Testament into German, and had already completed it when he left the Wartburg in March, 1522. At this time, in spite of a new proscription by the emperor, he returned to Wittenberg, and delivered there a series of sermons against the fanaticism of the puritanical image-breakers. Here, too, was published in 1523 the translation of the New Testament. He had already begun the translation of the Old Testament, of which the books of Moses were put into print in 1523 and the Psalms in 1524; and in the latter year appeared also his first hymnbook. In 1524, further, he laid aside his cowl, and in 1525 married Katharine von Bora, a nun who had renounced her vows and left the convent. From 1526 to 1529 he was engaged in the preparation of a new church service. In 1529 he issued two catechisms. In this year also he engaged in the conference at Marburg with Zwingli and other Swiss divines. The Lutheran translation of the whole Bible, completed in 1532, was finally published in 1534. It was revised in 1541, and the subsequent editions of 1543 and 1545 also received a few amendments. During the whole of his struggles for the Reformation, he wrote numerous polemical pamphlets which exhibited him as a most powerful though passionate controversialist. His Tischreden (Table-Talk) contains his opinions on a variety of subjects, the principal source of the material being Lauterbach's Tischbuch (Diary) from 1538. In 1530 he began to make a new version, in prose, of Aesop's and other classical fables. Besides prose, he also wrote a number of sacred hymns, whose prototype in construction and melody he found in the folk songs. The Hymn-Book of 1524 contains four hymns written by him; that of 1545 thirty-seven. In the edition of 1528 was published for the first time the most celebrated of his hymns, Ein feste Burg ist unser Gott (A Mighty Fortress Is Our God), written probably in 1527, the melody of which he is also said to have composed. Luther may also be regarded as the founder of the present literary language of Germany, that is, of so-called New High German. In his Tischreden he states his language to be that of the Saxon Chancery, to which in reality his early writings closely conform. It is, however, not the language of the court, but of the people, and much of the vocabulary of the Bible translation was drawn from Low German as well as from High German sources. His own language, contrasted in his early and later writings, shows a distinct progression toward a more consistently normalized and universal form. Books were written afterward, notably in Switzerland, in dialect, but they were an ever decreasing minority, and writers and printers in all parts of German-speaking territory soon accepted the language of Luther as a standard to which they consciously or unconsciously conformed. A good complete edition of his works is that published at Erlangen (1826–57) in 67 volumes. Other editions are Weimar Ausgabe of Luther's Works, Luther's Works (Lenker English Edition), and Works of Luther (Muhlenberg Press).

Lutherans. Members of the Evangelical (as opposed to the Reformed or Calvinist) church, the followers of the doctrines of Martin Luther. Basically all Lutherans adhere to the Apostles', the Nicene, and the Athanasian creeds, and to the Augsburg Confession. Lutheranism essentially is based on belief in individual responsibility to God for adherence to the truth as expressed in the Bible and on salvation by the grace of God alone.

Luther v. Borden, 7 Howard 1 (1848) (lö'thėr; bôr'dẹn). Decision of the U.S. Supreme Court, significant for the high court's declaration that it was not its function to settle political questions. The case arose from Dorr's Rebellion in Rhode Island. Chief Justice Taney's opinion has served as an important precedent on occasions when the Supreme Court has defined the extent of its jurisdiction over legislative and executive powers.

Lütke (lüt'kẹ), Count Fyodor Petrovich. b. at St. Petersburg, Sept. 17 (O.S.), 1797; d. there, Aug. 8 (O.S.), 1882. Russian navigator. His narrative of his journey (1826–28) around the world was published (1834–36).

Luton (lö'tọn). Municipal borough and manufacturing town in C England, in Bedfordshire, ab. 30 mi. NW of London by rail. It is a large producer of automobiles, especially commercial vehicles, and also manufactures refrigeration equipment, vacuum cleaners, and chemicals. 110,370 (1951).

Lutrin (lü.trañ), Le. [Eng. trans., "The Lectern."] Mock-heroic poem by Nicolas Boileau-Despréaux, published in 1674.

Lutsk (lötsk). [Also: Lutzk; Polish, Łuck.] Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, ab. 90 mi. NE of Lvov, on the Styr River: food processing. 35,000 (est. 1940).

Lutter (lü.ter). French name of the Lauter.

Lutter am Barenberge (lůt'ėr äm bä'rẹn.ber.gẹ). [Also, Lutter.] Village in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Lower Saxony, British Zone, formerly in the free state of Brunswick, ab. 23 mi. SW of Brunswick. Here on Aug. 27, 1626, the Imperialists under Tilly defeated the Danes under Christian IV. Pop. 2,547 (1946).

Lutterworth (lut'ėr.wėrth). Village in C England, in Leicestershire, ab. 7 mi. NE of Rugby, ab. 90 mi. N of London by rail. John Wycliffe was rector of the parish for the last ten years (1374–84) of his life. 2,395 (1931).

Lüttich (lüt'ich). German name of Liége.

Lüttringhausen (lüt'ring.hou.zẹn). Former town in W Germany, in the Land (state) of North Rhine-Westphalia, British Zone, ab. 23 mi. NE of Cologne. It is a former northern suburb, now administratively included in the city of Remscheid.

Lüttwitz (lüt'vits), Walther von. b. Feb. 2, 1859—. German general. He held a command in World War I and crushed the Spartacist (Communist) uprising at Berlin in January, 1919. In 1920 he refused to obey the government's order to disband the Ehrhardt free corps, and proclaimed himself minister of defense during the abortive Kapp Putsch. He fled from Germany, but returned after he had been amnestied in 1925.

Lutuamian (lö.tö.am'i.ạn). Linguistic stock of North American Indians, including the Klamath and Modoc tribes.

Lutynia (lö.ti'nyä). Polish name of Leuthen.

Lutz (löts), Frank Eugene. b. at Bloomsburg, Pa., Sept. 15, 1879; d. at New York, Nov. 27, 1943. American entomologist. He served (1921–43) as chairman and first curator of the Department of Insects and Spiders of the American Museum of Natural History, with which he was associated from 1909 to 1943. He was noted for his studies of insect flight and diurnal rhythms. Author of Field Book of Insects (1917).

Lützelburg (lüt'sẹl.bůrk). Former spelling of Luxembourg.

Lützen (lüt'sẹn). Town in C Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony-Anhalt, Russian Zone, formerly in the province of Saxony, Prussia, ab. 11 mi. SW of Leipzig. Two important battles took place here: victory by the Swedes under Gustavus Adolphus over the Imperialists under Wallenstein, on Nov. 16, 1632, and on May 2, 1813, a victory by the French under Napoleon over the allied Russians and Prussians under Wittgenstein. The latter battle is frequently called the battle of Grossgörschen. 5,739 (1946).

Lutzk (lötsk). See Lutsk.

Lützow (lüt'sō), Baron Ludwig Adolf Wilhelm von. b. at Berlin, May 18, 1782; d. there, Dec. 5–6, 1834. Prussian general, commander of the Lützow "free corps" or "black troop" against Napoleon in 1813.

Luverne (lö.vėrn'). City in SW Minnesota, county seat of Rock County: manufactures of fire trucks; grain and creamery coöperatives. 3,650 (1950).

Luvini (lö.vē'nē), Bernardino. See Luini or Luvini, Bernardino.

Luvino (lö.vē'nō). See Luino.

Luvua (lö.vö'ạ). River in SE Belgian Congo, C Africa, flowing from Lake Mweru NW to join the Lualaba. It is actually the lower course of the Luapula River. Length, ab. 250 mi.

Luwian (lö'i.ạn). See Luian.

Luwo (lö'wō). See Luo, and Lwo.

Lux (lůks), Adam. b. at Obernburg, Bavaria, Germany, 1766; guillotined at Paris, Nov. 4, 1793. Girondist deputy to the Convention from Mainz in 1793.

Luxembourg (luk'sẹm.bėrg; French, lük.säñ.bör). [Flemish and German, Luxemburg (lůk'sẹm.bůrk).] Province of Belgium, bounded by Liége on the N, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg on the E, France on the S, and Namur on the W. It is hilly and is traversed by the Ourthe, Lesse, and Semois rivers. The soils are not fertile, and agriculture is little developed. A considerable area is occupied by the Ardennes Forest. There are mineral deposits, particularly iron ore, and slate quarries. The population is French-speaking, for the most part; a number of German-speaking villages are found near the E border. Capital, Arlon; area, ab. 1,705 sq. mi.; pop. 213,478 (1947).

Luxembourg. [Also: Grand Duchy of Luxembourg; local name, Letzeburg; former spelling, Lützelburg; German, Luxemburg.] Small country in W Europe, between Belgium, France, and Germany: a constitutional monarchy. Capital, Luxembourg; area, ab. 999 sq. mi.; pop. 298,578 (est. 1950).

Terrain, Agriculture, and Industry. The surface is generally hilly; the N part of the country belongs to the Ardennes region, and has forests, heath and pasture lands, and some cropland; the S part has good soils and is included in the huge iron-ore field of Lorraine. About one third of the population is occupied in agriculture, producing chiefly grain and potatoes. There is cattle and pig raising. The mining and metallurgical industries are extremely important; iron ore, pig iron, and steel are produced in large quantities. The number of blast furnaces in 1947 was 15, of steelworks, seven.

History. The counts of Luxembourg (or Lützelburg) are first mentioned in the 10th century. One of them was elected emperor of the Holy Roman Empire in 1308, as Henry VII. His son Johann (John) married the daughter of Wenceslaus III of Bohemia in 1311, thus bringing Bohemia under the house of Luxembourg. Subsequently the emperors Charles IV, Wenceslaus, and Sigismund were of the same house. Following the meanderings of dynastic history, the country of Luxembourg proper passed to the house of Burgundy in 1443, to the house of Hapsburg in 1477, and to the Spanish branch of the house of Hapsburg in 1555. It remained, however, under the loose overlordship of the Holy Roman Empire. Parts of Luxembourg passed to France in 1659; the entire country was under French rule from 1684 to 1697; from 1697 to 1794 it belonged again to the Hapsburgs, from 1794 to 1815 again to France. The Congress of Vienna made Luxembourg part of the German Bund under the sovereignty of the king of the Netherlands. The country participated in the Belgian revolution of 1830, and the French-speaking western part of the then larger country was ceded to Belgium in 1839 (this now constitutes the Belgian province of Luxembourg). The remainder of the country, the present grand duchy, became independent in 1866, when the German Bund was dissolved. Napoleon III intended to buy the country in 1867, but was prevented from doing so by the protest of the Prussian chancellor Bismarck. In return, however, the Prussian garrison was removed and the fortifications razed, although Luxembourg remained part of the German customs union until 1919. The personal union with the Netherlands lasted until 1890, when Adolf, Duke of Nassau, became Grand Duke of Luxembourg. The Germans occupied the country in World Wars I and II. The latter occupation lasted from May 10, 1940, to Sept. 10, 1944.

Government. The country is a constitutional monarchy. There is a council of state and a chamber of deputies. Luxembourg is now a member of the economic union of the Benelux countries.

Culture. The majority of the population is Roman Catholic. The people speak a German dialect, but the French language is widely understood. Both languages, German and French, are used in official documents and in the schools.

Luxembourg. [Local name, Letzeburg; German, Luxemburg; former spelling, Lützelburg.] Capital of the grand duchy of Luxembourg, on the Petrusse and Alzette rivers, in the S part of the duchy. Picturesquely located on steep cliffs, it consists of an upper and a lower town connected by viaducts. It has an iron and steel industry, and metal, textile, and foodstuff manufactures; gloves are produced as a specialty. It is the seat of a bishopric and has a theater, library, and archaeological and natural history museums.

Luxembourg (lük.säⁿ.bör), Duc de. [Title of François Henri de Montmorency-Bouteville.] b. at Paris, Jan. 8, 1628; d. at Versailles, France, Jan. 4, 1695. French marshal; a cousin and companion of Louis de Bourbon, the Great Condé. He served in the wars against Spain and Holland, defeated the Prince of Waldeck at Fleurus in 1690, and defeated William III of England at Steenkerke in 1692 and at Neerwinden in 1693.

Luxembourg (luk'sem.bėrg), Palace of the. Palace in Paris, built (1615–20) by Debrosse for Marie de Médicis. There are three stories, the lowest arcaded, with entablatures and coupled pilasters between the windows. Since the French Revolution this former royal palace has served as the House of Peers, of the senate, and of the Council of the Republic. It long contained a museum of art (Musée du Luxembourg).

Luxemburg (luk'sem.bėrg). Unincorporated community in E Missouri, in St. Louis County, adjoining St. Louis on the S. Pop. of census tracts, 15,206 (1950).

Luxemburg (lük'sem.bürk), Rosa. b. in Poland, March 5, 1870; killed at Berlin, Jan. 15, 1919. German socialist theoretician and politician. A graduate of the University of Zurich, she became a contributor to Karl Kautsky's Neue Zeit and was considered one of the outstanding Marxist theoreticians of her day. As a result of her antimilitarism she was imprisoned (1915–18) during World War I. With Karl Liebknecht she founded the Communist Spartacus Party, and edited with him Die Rote Fahne. Both were arrested after street demonstrations had broken out at Berlin (January, 1919) and were killed by soldiers who were taking them to prison. The collected works of Rosa Luxemburg were edited by her close associate, Clara Zetkin, in 1923. Her letters from prison were published in 1920.

Luxeuil-les-Bains (lük.sėy'.lā.baⁿ). [Also: Luxeuil; Latin, Luxovium.] Town in E France, in the department of Haute-Saône. It is a health resort known since Roman times for its thermal springs. The old abbey church of Saint Pierre dates from the 13th century. 5,724 (1946).

Luxor (luk'sôr, lük'-). [Arabic, El Uqsor, El Qusur, meaning "The Castles."] City in NE Africa, in Upper Egypt, on the E bank of the Nile River, ab. 454 mi. S of Cairo by rail. Its position near the site of the ancient city of Thebes has made it the chief center for tourists visiting these ruins. 20,757 (1937).

Luxovium (luk.sō'vi.um). Latin name of Luxeuil-les-Bains.

Luyi (lö'yē). See Lozi.

Luynes (lü.ēn), Duc de. [Title of Charles d'Albert.] b. at Pont-St.-Esprit, Gard, France, Aug. 5, 1578; d. at Longueville, in Guienne, France, Dec. 15, 1621. French courtier, a favorite of Louis XIII. He plotted the murder (1617) of Concino Concini, Duc d'Ancre, and was the influence that caused the banishment of the queen mother, Marie de Médicis, to Blois. The quarrel between the queen mother and de Luynes was mediated (1619) by Richelieu, but de Luynes found himself the center of court intrigues to destroy his influence. Appointed (1621) constable of France, he began an expedition against the Protestants but died, during its course, of a fever.

Luynes, Duc de. [Title of Honoré Théodoric Paul Joseph d'Albert.] b. at Paris, Dec. 15, 1802; d. at Rome, in December, 1867. French archaeologist.

Luz (luz). Original name of Bethel, Palestine.

Luz (lüz). See also Luz-St.-Sauveur.

Luzern (lö.tsern'). German name of Lucerne.

Luzerne (lö.zėrn'). [Former name, Hartseph.] Borough in E Pennsylvania, in Luzerne County, ab. 5 mi. NW of Wilkes-Barre; anthracite coal mining. 6,176 (1950).

Luzon (lö.zon'; Spanish, lö.sōn'). Largest island of the Philippines. The surface is generally mountainous, but there are some intensively cultivated plains. It contains Manila, the national capital. It was the first island of the Philippines attacked by the Japanese in 1941. Area, ab. 40,420 sq. mi.; pop. 7,374,798 (1939).

Luz-St.-Sauveur (lüz.saⁿ.sō.vėr). [Also, Luz-St.-Sauveur-les-Bains (-lā.baⁿ).] Town (actually twin communities, but administratively a unit) in SW France, in the department of Hautes-Pyrénées, situated near the junction of the Bastan and upper Pau rivers, which here form a gorge, in beautiful mountainous surroundings, ab. 26 mi. S of Tarbes. Luz is a summer resort and a tourist center, and has an old Templar's Church dating from the 13th century. St. Sauveur is a small health resort. 1,006 (1946).

Luzzara (löt.tsä'rä). Village in N Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Emilia-Romagna, in the province of Reggio nell'Emilia, on the Po River ab. 14 mi. SW of Mantua. It was the scene of a drawn battle between the Imperialists under Eugene of Savoy and the French and Spanish forces under Louis Joseph, Duc de Vendôme, Aug. 15, 1702.

Luzzatti (löt.tsät'tē), Luigi. b. at Venice, March 1, 1841; d. at Rome, March 29, 1927. Italian financier and economist. He was minister of finance under Rudinì (1891–92, 1896–98), Giolitti (1903–05), and Sonnino (1906). He also served as minister of agriculture (1909–10) and prime minister (March 31, 1910–March 29, 1911).

Lvov (lvôf'). Oblast (region) in the U.S.S.R., in W Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic (in Poland prior to World War II), centered ab. 275 mi. W of Kiev. Most of the area is covered with low hills, the N foothills of the Carpathian Mountains. The area is predominately agricultural, with wheat, sugar beets and flax the largest crops. Hogs are raised and there is some mining of potash and a small production of oil. The area is well served by railroad lines and highways. Capital, Lvov; area, ab. 4,500 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 1,530,000.

Lvov. [German, Lemberg; Polish, Lwów; Latin, Leopolis.] City in the U.S.S.R., in W Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, capital of the Lvov oblast (region); industrial and trading center. It has machinery, textile, woodworking, and food-processing industries. It contains a university and polytechnic institutes. It was founded in the 13th century, occupied by Casimir III of Poland in 1340, besieged by the Cossacks in 1648 and by the Turks in 1672, taken by the Swedes in 1704, annexed by Austria in 1772, and bombarded in the revolutionary outbreak of 1848. It went to the new republic of Poland in 1919, and to the U.S.S.R. in 1945. The city suffered some damage in World War II, and was occupied by the Germans from June, 1941, until July, 1944. Pop. 318,000 (1939).

Lvov, Aleksey Fyodorovich. b. at Tallin, Estonia, May 25, c1799; d. near Kaunas, Lithuania, Dec. 16, 1870. Russian composer. He wrote the music of the Russian national hymn (1833), operas, violin pieces, songs, and others.

Lwo (lō'ō). [Also: Dyoor, Jur, Luo, Luwo.] Nilotic-speaking people of NE Africa, inhabiting an area N and E of the province of Wau in SE Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Their population is estimated at ab. 15,000 (by M. A. Bryan, Distribution of the Nilotic and Nilo-Hamitic Languages of Africa, 1948). They are not to be confused with the Nilotic Kavirondo, nor with the Mittu and other non-Nilotic peoples who are also called Jur, a Dinka word for "stranger" or "foreigner." They consider themselves a branch of the Shilluk, to whom they are linguistically related. They practice agriculture and animal husbandry, and goats and sheep are their chief domestic animals.

Lwów (lvôf). Polish name of Lvov.

Lwówek Śląski (lvô'vek shlôń'skē). [German, Löwenberg.] Town in SW Poland, in the województwo (province) of Wrocław, formerly in Silesia, Germany, ab. 64 mi. W of Wrocław (Breslau). It is a health resort, with an agricultural trade and some industries. 6,328 (1939); 3,364 (1946).

Lxor (ęl.ksôr'). See Alcazarquivir.

Lyaeus (lī.ē'us). In Greek mythology, the "loosener," the god of wine and song who loosens care; an epithet or surname of Dionysus.

Lyakhov (lyä'ʜof). [Also: Great Lyakhov; Russian, Bolshoi Lyakhov.] Large island in the S part of the New Siberian group, in the Arctic Ocean, between the East Siberian Sea and the Laptev Sea.

Lyall (lī'ąl), Sir Alfred Comyn. b. in Surrey, England, 1835; d. on the Isle of Wight, England, April 10, 1911. English administrator (in India) and writer. As lieutenant governor of the United Provinces (1882–87), he carried out land reforms and a scheme of local self-government. He served as a member of the India Council at London (1887–1902). Author of Verses Written in India (1889), Asiatic Studies, a study of Indian culture (1882, 1889), Rise and Expansion of the British Dominion in India (1893), and biographies of Hastings (1889), Tennyson (1902), and the Marquis of Dufferin (1905).

Lyall, David. Pseudonym of Reeves, Helen Buckingham.

Lyall, Edna. Pseudonym of Bayly, Ada Ellen.

Lyapchev (lyäp'chef), Andrei. b. at Resna, Turkey, 1866; d. at Sofia, Bulgaria, 1933. Bulgarian statesman. He served (1926–31) as prime minister.

Lyapunov (lyä.pö.nôf'). See Liapunov.

Lyautey (lyō.tā), Hubert. [Full name, Louis Hubert Gonzalve Lyautey.] b. at Nancy, France, Nov. 17, 1854; d. at the Château de Thorey, Meurthe-et-Moselle, France, July 27, 1934. French soldier, known particularly as a military commander and administrator in the French colonies. He was French resident general in Morocco in the critical period from 1912 to 1925, except for a brief period (December, 1916–April, 1917) as French war minister. During World War I, he maintained French dominance in Morocco despite German activity among the native population, extended the area under French control, and sent troops, laborers, and food supplies to France. Promoted (1921) to the rank of marshal, he remained in Morocco till the Riff revolt of Abd-el-Krim was contained (1925).

Lybyssa (li.bis'ą). See Libyssa.

Lycabettus (lik.ą.bet'us, lī.ką-) or Lykabettos (-os). Red rocky hill rising in the E part of Athens to a height of ab. 910 ft. above the sea, or ab. 670 above the city. It is a very conspicuous object in the landscape, presenting from most points of the city the general form of an abrupt, slightly concave cone; there is, however, beyond a slight depression, a long ridge N of it. Upon the top stands a small chapel of Saint George. On the S slope is the large reservoir built by Hadrian and Antoninus Pius, which still supplies the city.

Lycaeus (lī.sē'us). In Greek mythology, a surname of Zeus. The cult of Zeus Lycaeus is thought to have been an ancient pre-Hellenic cult with cannibalistic ritual, later syncretized with Zeus worship.

Lycaon (lī.kā'on). In Greek legend, a king of Arcadia, who was visited by Zeus in disguise, because of either the impiety of his sons or his own impiety. The most common story is that Lycaon (or his sons) suspected the divinity of the guest, and to test it served the god with human flesh. Zeus punished the insult by striking the sons with thunderbolts and changing Lycaon into a wolf. This is thought to be the etiological myth for the cult of Zeus Lycaeus.

Lycaonia (lik.ą.ō'ni.ą, lī.ką-). In ancient geography, a province in S central Asia Minor. It was bounded by Galatia on the N, Cappadocia on the E, Cilicia on the S, Pisidia on the SW, and Phrygia on the W. Sometimes it included Isauria, and sometimes it was included in Cappadocia. Chief city, Iconium.

Lyceius or Lyceus (lī.sē'us). In Greek mythology, an epithet of Apollo, meaning "wolfish." It refers to his function (as god of shepherds and herdsmen) as wolf-slayer. At one time also when Athens was overrun with wolves, Apollo was said to have rid the city of them.

Lyceum (lī.sē'um). Gymnasium and exercise ground of ancient Athens, lying on the right bank of the Ilissus, at the place now called Ilissia, a short distance E of the palace garden. It was dedicated to Apollo Lyceius, and was already the chief gymnasium of Athens in the time of Pisistratus. It was noted for its fine groves of plane trees. Aristotle and his disciples formed the habit of discussing their philosophy while following the shady walks of this gymnasium, and hence received the name of Peripatetics.

Lychnidus (lik'ni.dus) or Lychnitis (lik.nī'tis). Latin names of Ohrid.

Lycia (lish'ą). In ancient geography, a division of SW Asia Minor, bordering on the Mediterranean and on Caria, Phrygia, Pisidia, and Pamphylia. The Lycians were one of the peoples of Asia Minor who invaded Egypt in the time of Ramses II and Merneptah. Its 23 cities formed the Lycian League.

Lycian League (lish'ąn). See under Lycia.

Lycians (lish'ąnz). [Also, Lukki.] Inhabitants of ancient Lycia, in SW Asia Minor. These people are first met as the Lukki in the Tel el-Amarna tablets of 1400 B.C. and in the list of invaders of Egypt from the E Mediterranean. Their occupation of Lycia took place probably at a later date. The attempt by the Lydians to subdue them failed, but they later were conquered by Harpagus, a general of Cyrus. Although they had to acknowledge the suzerainty of Persia, they remained practically independent. They were incorporated into Alexander's empire, but even after the Roman conquest (189 B.C.) they preserved their federal institutions until the time of Augustus. Classification of their language was long a matter of conjecture, but it is now classified as belonging to the extinct Anatolian subfamily of Indo-European languages.

Lycidas (lis'i.dąs). Shepherd in Vergil's third Bucolic.

Lycidas. Elegiac poem by John Milton, one of the most famous elegies in English literature. It was published in 1637, and commemorates the death of Milton's friend Edward King.

Lyck (lik). German name of Ełk.

Lycomedes (lī.kō.mē'dēz). In Greek legend, a king of Scyros, to whose court Achilles was sent to hide among the women. There he was found by Odysseus and enlisted to join the Greek expedition against Troy. Lycomedes was the treacherous slayer of Theseus, when Theseus came to Scyros.

Lycon (lī'kon). fl. in the 3rd century B.C. Greek Peripatetic philosopher.

Lycophron (lī'kō.fron). b. at Chalcis, in Euboea; fl. in the 3rd century B.C. Alexandrian tragic poet and grammarian. His only extant poem is the Alexandra or Cassandra, comprising about 1,400 iambic verses, in which Cassandra predicts the results of the voyage of Paris to Sparta.

Lycopolis (lī.kop'ō.lis). Ancient city in Egypt, whose ruins are near the modern city of Asyut.

Lycurgus (lī.kėr'gus). fl., according to tradition, in the 9th century B.C. Spartan legislator, the traditional author of the laws and institutions of Sparta. The effect of his laws was to make Sparta into a military state in which all the economy and political institutions were aimed at preserving Spartan hegemony in the Peloponnesus. It is thought that the laws may have resulted from the Messenian revolt in the 7th century. Also, the probability that some of the laws attributed to Lycurgus are actually from the 6th century casts doubt on his historicity and leads to the hypothesis, held by some, that he was a legendary personage to whom the reforms were attributed.

Lycurgus. b. at Athens, c396 B.C.; d. c323 B.C. Attic orator; son of Lycophron of the aristocratic family of the Eteobutadae. With Demosthenes and Hypereides he was a leader of the anti-Macedonian party. He was thrice appointed manager of the Athenian finances for terms of five years each. Only one entire oration of Lycurgus is extant.

Lydd (lid). Municipal borough in SE England, in Kent, on the coast ab. 20 mi. SW of Dover. It is noted as the site of the development of lyddite (a high explosive consisting chiefly of picric acid). It suffered bomb damage in World War II. 2,431 (1948).

Lydda (lid'ą). [Hebrew, Lod; Arabic, Ludd.] Town in Israel, ab. 11 mi. SE of Tel Aviv-Jaffa: railroad junction and the site of an important international airport. In the Biblical period, Lydda was in the territory of Benjamin. In Acts it is mentioned in connection with a miracle performed by Peter. During the Judeo-Roman war it was destroyed by Cestius Gallus. After the uprising of Bar-Cochba it became the seat of a Talmudical school. It was also an episcopal see, and in 445 a council was held there at which Pelagius defended himself. Tradition makes it the birthplace of Saint George and his burial place as well. In 1191 it was destroyed by Saladin, and in 1271 sacked by the Mongols. A predominantly Arab town until the outbreak of hostilities in 1947–48, Lydda is now an Israeli city. Pop. 12,150, including 11,000 Jews (1950).

Lydekker (lī.dek'ėr), Richard. b. 1849; d. April 16, 1915. British geologist, connected with the Geological Survey of India (1874–82). An authority on fossil vertebrates, he published A Manual of Palaeontology (1889, with H. A. Nicholson). With W. H. Flower he wrote the Royal Natural History (1893–96); he also catalogued the collections of vertebrate fossils (mammals, birds, amphibians, reptiles) for the British Museum.

Lydgate (lid'gāt), Doctor. Physician in George Eliot's Middlemarch. He is ambitious, but a selfish wife takes the savor out of his ambition; he dies comparatively young and obscure.

Lydgate, John. b. at Lydgate, near Newmarket, Suffolk, England, c1370; d. c1451. English poet. He entered the church in 1389, and gained a position as poet at the court of Henry IV, which he held during the reign of Henry V and after the accession of Henry VI. After 1390 he made the acquaintance of Geoffrey Chaucer, often calling himself "Chaucer's disciple." His numerous works include Falls of Princes, a narrative poem written between 1430 and 1438; Troy Book, in heroic couplets, containing a panegyric on Chaucer (1412–20; first printed by Pynson in 1513); The Story of Thebes, intended as an additional Canterbury tale (1420); The Life of Our Lady, a religious narrative poem, printed by Caxton in 1484; The Dance of Death, from the French, printed first in 1554 (also, with Holbein's drawings, in 1794); The Court of Sapience, a philosophical work printed by Caxton (c1481); The Temple of Glass, printed by Caxton (c1479); and a number of lives of saints, allegories, fables, historical and political poems, and satires. The Complaint of the Black Knight, which was once attributed to Chaucer, is by Lydgate, and also a number of the minor poems which have been attributed to Chaucer.

Lydia (lid'i.ą). [Early name, Maeonia.] Ancient country, later a Roman province, on the W coast of Asia Minor, bordering on the Aegean Sea and on Mysia, Phrygia, and Caria. The earliest known inhabitants were Phrygians. Later it was invaded by Semites, who gave it the name of Lydia (compare the Old Testament Lud, descendants of Shem, Gen. x. 22). The name Maeonia was afterward confined to the E part of the country near the upper Hermus River, and Lydia to the W. About 700 B.C. a revolution overthrew the Semitic reign, and brought the native dynasty of the Mermnadae to the throne, with Gyges as first king. Under them Lydia rose to the position of a mighty kingdom extending from the coast to the river Halys (modern Kizil Irmak), with Sardis as capital. The prosperous Greek cities were brought either to subjection or alliance. But under the fifth and best-known of the dynasty, Croesus, the Lydian empire was brought to a sudden end by the Persian conqueror Cyrus, who in 546 B.C. captured Sardis and the king himself. From the Persians Lydia passed over, through Alexander the Great, to Syria, and later to Eumenes of Pergamum. During the Roman period Lydia formed a separate province, with Sardis as capital. Sardis was a prominent episcopal see (compare Rev. iii. 1), but was destroyed by Tamerlane in 1402 A.D.

Lydia Bennet (ben'ėt). See Bennet, Lydia.

Lydia Languish (lang'gwish). See Languish, Lydia.

Lydians (lid'i.ąnz). People of ancient Lydia, in W Asia Minor. They are noted for having had a high level of civilization, attaining great wealth, and perhaps for instituting the first coined money. Their language, Lydian, is classified as belonging to the extinct Anatolian sub-family of Indo-European languages.

Lye (lī), Edward. b. at Totnes, Devonshire, England, 1694; d. at Yardley-Hastings, Northamptonshire, England, Aug. 19, 1767. English philologist.

Lyell (lī'ęl), Sir Charles. b. at Kinnordy, Forfarshire, Scotland, Nov. 14, 1797; d. at London, Feb. 22, 1875. British geologist. He is especially famous as an opponent of the older theory of catastrophism in geology, preferring rather to base his theory of geological development on forces observable in the world today; this theory of uniformitarianism is considered a foundation stone of modern geology. Lyell was the first to divide the Tertiary period into its now-recognized three divisions: Eocene, Miocene, Pliocene. His works include The Principles of Geology (3 vols., 1830–33), Elements of Geology (1838; later editions called A Manual of Elementary Geology), Travels in North America (1845), A Second Visit to the United States of North America (1849), The Antiquity of Man (1863), and The Student's Elements of Geology (1871).

Lyell, Mount. Peak of the Sierra Nevada, in California, on the E boundary of Yosemite National Park. It was named for the geologist Sir Charles Lyell. Elevation, ab. 13,090 ft.

Lyfing (lü'ving). See Living.

Lygdamis (lig'da.mis). fl. in the 6th century B.C. Greek tyrant of Naxos.

Lygii (lij'i.ī). See Lugii.

Lying Lover, or the Ladies' Friendship, The. Comedy by Richard Steele, produced in 1703. It was taken from Corneille's Le Menteur.

Lying Valet, The. Play by David Garrick, adapted by him from P. A. Motteux's Novelty.

Lykabettos (lik.ą.bet'os). See Lycabettus.

Lykens (lī'kęnz). Borough in E central Pennsylvania, in Dauphin County: manufactures of shirts, hosiery, and paper boxes. It was founded in 1826. Pop. 2,735 (1950).

Lyly (lil'i), John. b. in the Weald of Kent, England, c1554; d. at London, in November, 1606. English dramatist and novelist. He graduated at Oxford (Magdalen College) in 1573, went to London, where he entered upon literary work and endeavored to establish himself at court, championed the bishops in the "Martin Marprelate" controversy, and became a member of Parliament in 1589, reëlected in 1593, 1597, and 1601. His principal work is Euphues, or the Anatomy of Wit (1579), and its sequel, Euphues and his England (1580), which brought into prominence the affected style named from it Euphuism, consisting of an overuse of figures of speech, and much admired (and burlesqued) and imitated in its own day. In the Marprelate controversy he wrote Pappe with an Hatchet. He also wrote a number of plays, including Alexander and Campaspe, Mother Bombie, Midas, The Woman in the Moon, Sapho and Phao, and Endymion, the Man in the Moon. These plays, the last effective high comedy in English, are considered the best of the type before Shakespeare; Lyly's use of prose instead of verse in these comedies was followed by later writers.

Lyme Regis (līm′ rē′jis). Municipal borough and seaside resort in SW England, in Dorsetshire, situated on the English Channel ab. 26 mi. E of Exeter, ab. 152 mi. SW of London by rail. The Duke of Monmouth (James Scott) landed here in his rising of 1685. Pop. 2,925 (est. 1948).

Lymington (lim′ing.tọn). Municipal borough, market town, and seashore resort in S England, in Hampshire, ab. 11 mi. SW of Southampton, ab. 97 mi. SW of London by rail. It is noted for its yacht-building yards. 22,674 (1951).

Lymm (lim). Urban district in W England, in Cheshire, ab. 5 mi. SE of Warrington, ab. 187 mi. NW of London by rail. 6,410 (1951).

Lymodin (lē.mo.dañ), Sieur de. Title of Jodelle, Étienne.

Lympne (lim). Village in SE England, in Kent. It is the site of a civil airport and also has a ruined castle. 598 (1931).

Lynbrook (lin′brůk). Village in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island: residential community. 17,314 (1950).

Lyncestes (lin.ses′tēz), Alexander. See Alexander (fl. 4th century B.C.).

Lynceus (lin′sē.us). In Greek mythology, the husband of Hypermnestra, the only one of the 50 daughters of Danaus to spare her husband after Danaus had ordered them all killed. Lynceus was among the heroes of the Argonaut expedition. He had such keen eyesight that he could see through a stone wall or look into the earth and see buried treasure.

Lynch (linch). Unincorporated community in SE Kentucky, in Harlan County. Coal mining is the principal industry. Pop., including adjacent Benham, 7,952 (1950).

Lynch (lēnch), Benito. b. 1885—. Argentine novelist, the most popular of contemporary gaucho writers. Author of Los Caranchos de la Florida (1916), El Inglés de los güesos (1924), and others.

Lynch (linch), Charles. b. 1736; d. Oct. 29, 1796. Virginia planter and colonel. He was a justice of the peace in Bedford County, where, in 1780, a company of Loyalists was uncovered. The state of the countryside being what it was, Lynch and his fellows realized that sending the Tories to be tried by the regular courts would inevitably mean their escape or rescue on the roads. He therefore presided over a court that handed down severe and summary punishment, much beyond the power of a justice of the peace to decree. This extralegal justice, usually a sentence of flogging, was later justified by special act of the state legislature. The entire occurrence is said by many to be the origin of the expression "lynch law," though several other plausible explanations have been made.

Lynch (lēnch), Patricio. b. 1824; d. at sea, in May, 1886. Chilean naval officer. He entered the Chilean navy (1838), but was permitted to take service with the British navy (1840–47). In 1865 he fought against the Spaniards. In 1880, during the war against Peru, he ravaged the northern coast regions of Peru; he subsequently commanded a division in the attack on Lima, and was military governor of that city for the Chileans from May 4, 1881, to Oct. 22, 1883. He deposed and imprisoned President Francisco García Calderón (November, 1881), and in 1883 invested Iglesias with supreme power. He carried away a vast amount of plunder. From 1884 to 1886 he was minister to Spain.

Lynch (linch), Robert Clyde. b. at Carson City, Nev., Sept. 8, 1880; d. near Richmond, Ky., May 12, 1931. American laryngologist, noted for the development of the "Lynch operation" on the frontal sinus. He improved suspension laryngoscopy, aided in the operative treatment of cancer of the larynx, and made the first successful motion pictures of the larynx and vocal cords.

Lynch, Thomas. b. in Prince George Parish, S.C., Aug. 5, 1749; lost at sea, 1779. American politician, a signer of the Declaration of Independence as delegate to Congress from South Carolina in 1776.

Lynch, William Francis. b. in Virginia, April 1, 1801; d. at Baltimore, Oct. 17, 1865. American naval officer. He commanded an exploring expedition to the Jordan River and Dead Sea in 1848, and published (1849) a narrative of the expedition. Later he was in the Confederate service.

Lynchburg (linch′bėrg). Independent city in C Virginia, geographically (but not administratively) in Campbell County, on the James River ab. 91 mi. SW of Richmond: marketing center for tobacco; manufactures of shoes, tannin, machinery, foundry products, lumber, paper, flour, cotton and silk textiles, and hosiery. It is the seat of Virginia Theological Seminary and College, Lynchburg College, and Randolph-Macon Woman's College. It was settled in 1757 and became a village in 1786. The Confederates used it as a supply base in the Civil War. 47,727 (1950).

Lynd (lind), Helen Merrell. [Maiden name, Merrell.] American sociologist; wife (married 1921) of Robert Staughton Lynd, with whom she wrote Middletown—a Study in Contemporary American Culture (1929) and Middletown in Transition (1937).

Lynd, Robert. b. at Belfast, Ireland, April, 20, 1879; d. at London, Oct. 6, 1949. Irish writer and journalist; husband of Sylvia Lynd. He was literary editor of the London News Chronicle and contributor, as John O'London, to John O'London's Weekly, and the author of Irish and English: Portraits and Impressions (1908), Home Life in Ireland (1909), Rambles in Ireland (1912), Old and New Masters (1919), Solomon in All His Glory (1922), Dr. Johnson and Company (1928), It's a Fine World (1930), Searchlights and Nightingales (1939), Life's Little Oddities (1941), and Things One Hears (1945).

Lynd, Robert Staughton. b. at New Albany, Ind., Sept. 26, 1892—. American sociologist; husband (married 1921) of Helen Merrell Lynd. He was managing editor (1914–18) of Publishers' Weekly, and served as professor (1931 et seq.) of sociology at Columbia. He was coauthor with his wife of the sociological studies of a Middle Western city (Muncie, Ind.) Middletown—a Study in Contemporary American Culture (1929) and Middletown in Transition (1937). He is the author of Knowledge for What? (1939) and articles in sociological journals.

Lynd, Sylvia. [Maiden name, Dryhurst.] b. at London, 1888—. English writer; wife of Robert Lynd (1879–1949). Author of The Chorus (1916) and The Swallow Dive (1921), novels; The Mulberry Bush (1925), short stories; The Goldfinches (1920), The Yellow Placard (1931), and The Enemies (1934), volumes of poetry. She was editor of the anthology The Children's Omnibus (1932).

Lynden (lin′dẹn). Town in NW Washington, in Whatcom County: shipping center for eggs, strawberries, dairy products, and flower bulbs. 2,161 (1950).

Lyndhurst (lind′hėrst). Township in NE New Jersey, in Bergen County: industrial and residential community. 19,980 (1950).

Lyndhurst. Village in NE Ohio, in Cuyahoga County: eastern suburb of Cleveland. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than tripled. 2,391 (1940), 7,359 (1950).

Lyndhurst, Baron. Title of John Singleton Copley (1772–1863).

Lyndon (lin′dọn). Town (in Vermont the equivalent of township in many other states) in NE Vermont, in Caledonia County. It is a predominantly rural town, including the villages of Lyndon Center (pop. 321), the seat of a teachers college, and Lyndonville (pop. 1,506). Pop. of town, 3,360 (1950).

Lyndora (lin.dō′rạ). Unincorporated community in W Pennsylvania, in Butler County: a southwestern suburb of Butler. Pop., with adjacent Highfield, 5,410 (1950).

Lyndsay (lin′zi), Sir David. See Lindsay, Sir David.

Lynedoch (lin′doch), Baron. Title of Graham, Thomas.

Lynette (li.net′). See Linet.

Lyngby-Taarbæk (lüng′bü.tôr′bek). Suburban commune (including the towns of Lyngby and Taarbæk) in E Denmark, on the island of Zealand, ab. 7 mi. N of the center of Copenhagen. It has a 13th-century Romanesque church, the 18th-century castle of Sorgenfri (a summer residence of the royal family), and an open-air museum illustrating Danish peasant architecture. It is included in the metropolitan area of Copenhagen. 34,531 (1945).

Lyngen Fjord (lüng′ẹn). Scenic fjord in N Norway, in Troms fylke (county), indenting the N coast. It is bordered by rugged mountains. It marked the W limit of the area completely devastated by the German "scorched-earth" retreat of 1944–45 in N Norway. Length, ab. 60 mi.

Lynmouth (lin'muth, lim'uth). Seaside resort and fishing village in SW England, in Devonshire, on Bristol Channel. Pop., with adjacent Lynton, 1,957 (1948).

Lynn (lin). [Original township name, Saugus.] City in E Massachusetts, in Essex County, on Lynn harbor, ab 10 mi. NE of Boston: extensive manufactures of shoes, leather, and electrical appliances. It was settled in 1629, became a city in 1850, and was devastated by fire in 1889. Lynn is included in the Boston urbanized area. 99,738 (1950).

Lynn or Lynn Regis (lin' rē'jis). See King's Lynn.

Lynn, Eliza. See Linton, Eliza.

Lynn Canal. Fjord in SE Alaska, extending N from near Juneau. Skagway is at the head of its E arm. Length, ab. 80 mi.

Lynton (lin'tọn). Urban district and seaside resort in SW England, in Devonshire, ab. 245 mi. SW of London by rail and bus. 2,123 (1951).

Lynwood (lin'wụd). City in S California, in Los Angeles County: a southern residential suburb of Los Angeles. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 10,982 (1940), 25,823 (1950).

Lynx (lingks). Small northern constellation, introduced by Hevelius in 1690, the name presumably being chosen because the sharp-sightedness of a lynx is required to distinguish any of its stars. Actually within its boundaries are one third-magnitude star and seven other stars brighter than the fifth magnitude. It is between Ursa Major and Auriga, N of Gemini.

Lyon (lī'ọn), Louis. Original name of Aldrich, Louis.

Lyon, Mary. b. at Buckland, Mass., Feb. 28, 1797; d. at South Hadley, Mass., March 5, 1849. American teacher, founder of Mount Holyoke Female Seminary, South Hadley, Mass. (now Mount Holyoke College), of which she was principal (1837–49).

Lyon, Matthew. b. in County Wicklow, Ireland, July 14, 1750; d. at Spadra Bluff, Ark., Aug. 1, 1822. American pioneer and politician, noted for his prosecution under the Sedition Act (1798). Coming to America in 1765, he settled in Connecticut and later in Vermont, where he took part in pioneer life and served with Ethan Allen at Ticonderoga. During the Canadian border fighting in the Revolutionary War, he was cashiered by General Horatio Gates, but was later reinstated and served creditably in the operations around Saratoga in 1777. Resigning from the army after Burgoyne's surrender, he became active in Vermont political and military life, and after 1783 managed a number of business enterprises at Fair Haven. He was elected (1797) to Congress and, as a Republican, soon clashed with Federalist members of the House. He was prosecuted under the Sedition Act for a letter critical of the administration he had published (July 31, 1798) in the Vermont Journal, and was sentenced (Oct. 9, 1798) to four months in jail and a fine of 1,000 dollars. The Lyon case became a cause célèbre. He was reëlected to Congress and, in 1840, his heirs were refunded the fine by action of Congress. In 1801 he moved to Eddyville, Ky., where he established successful business ventures. He served (1802) in the Kentucky legislature and from 1803 to 1811 sat in the House of Representatives. His opposition to the War of 1812 caused his defeat for reëlection. In 1820 he was sent to the Arkansas Territory as factor to the Cherokee Indians. See Matthew Lyon: The Hampden of Congress, by J. F. McLaughlin (1900).

Lyon, Nathaniel. b. at Ashford, Conn., July 14, 1818; killed at Wilson's Creek, Mo., Aug. 10, 1861. American general. He served in the Mexican War, and at the beginning of the Civil War rendered efficient service to the Union cause as commander of the U.S. arsenal at St. Louis. He captured a Confederate force at Camp Jackson, Mo., in May, 1861, was appointed commander of the Department of Missouri in June, 1861, and defeated a Confederate force at Booneville (June 17, 1861).

Lyonesse (lī.ọ.nes'). [Also, Leonnoys.] Legendary region west of Cornwall, England. Tradition has it that it is now more than 40 fathoms under water between Land's End and the isles of Scilly, the sea having gradually encroached upon the land.

Lyonnais (lē.ọ.nā'; French, lyo.ne). Region and former province of France. It was bounded by Burgundy on the N, the Saône and Rhone rivers on the E, Languedoc on the S, and Auvergne and Bourbonnais on the W. It comprised Lyonnais proper, Forez, and Beaujolais, and corresponded essentially to the modern departments of Rhône and Loire. Lyonnais proper was a medieval county. It was united to France by Philip IV in 1307. The capital and chief town was Lyons.

Lyons (lī'ọnz, lē.ôñ'). [French, Lyon (lyôñ'); ancient name, Lugdunum.] City in E central France, the capital of the department of Rhône, situated at the junction of the Saône and Rhone rivers. It is divided by the rivers into three parts: the old city, on the right bank of the Saône; the central city, between the Saône and the Rhone; and the new city, on the left bank of the Rhone; the three parts are connected by numerous bridges. In the hilly old city are the Church of Saint Pau, built in the 13th and 14th centuries, and the library, which has more than 700,000 volumes, manuscripts, and incunabula. The social and business center is in the central city; here are located the Bourse, the Hôtel de Ville (town hall), the Palais des Arts, with many collections in the field of the arts, and the Musée historique des Tissus, with famous textile collections from many civilizations. In the new city are the university and numerous industries. Lyons is the seat of an archbishopric. It is the third largest city of France, a railroad hub, and a commercial and industrial center of first rank. It was long the silk capital of the world, and silk factories, now producing rayon and nylon materials along with natural silk, are still the mainstay of its economic life. Cotton and woolen manufactures are supplementary. Lyons is also outstanding in the goldsmith's craft and in making costume jewelry. Other important industries are chemical, metal, chocolate, and candy manufactures, and the printing trade. Lyons holds an annual international fair. Lugdunum was founded by the Romans in 43 B.C., and was made the capital of Gaul under Augustus. It was one of the earliest strongholds of Christianity N of the Alps. In the Middle Ages the city belonged successively to Burgundy, Provence, and the Holy Roman Empire; it passed to the crown of France in 1312. The silk industry was introduced from Italy at about this time. During the French Revolution Lyons was bloodily contested, and was partly destroyed. It suffered damage again in World War II. Pop., with suburbs, ab. 700,000 (1946).

Lyons (lī'ọnz). City in E Georgia, county seat of Toombs County, ab. 75 mi. W of Savannah, in a region producing lumber and farm products. 2,799 (1950).

Lyons. Village in NE Illinois, in Cook County: suburban community W of Chicago. 6,120 (1950).

Lyons. City in C Kansas, county seat of Rice County. 4,545 (1950).

Lyons. Village in W New York, county seat of Wayne County, ab. 33 mi. SE of Rochester. 4,217 (1950).

Lyons, Edmund. [Title, 1st Baron Lyons.] b. at Burton, Hampshire, England, Nov. 29, 1790; d. at Arundel Castle, Sussex, England, Nov. 24, 1858. British admiral and diplomat. He was minister at the court of Athens (1835–49), to the Swiss Confederation (1849–51), and then to Sweden. In 1853 he was appointed (then a rear admiral) second in command in the Mediterranean. He was in full command in 1854 and played an important part in the Crimean War, becoming naval commander in chief in January, 1855.

Lyons, Gulf of. See under Lion, Gulf of.

Lyons, Joseph Aloysius. b. near Stanley, Tasmania, Australia, Sept. 15, 1879; d. at Sydney, Australia, April 7, 1939. Australian political leader, prime minister (1932–39) of Australia. He taught school in Tasmania (1896–1909) and became an ardent advocate of educational reform. In 1909 he was elected a Labour member of the Tasmanian house of assembly, and subsequently became treasurer, minister of railways, and minister of education (1914–16). He was anticonscriptionist (1916), the leader of the opposition (1916–23), and premier, treasurer, and minister of railways (1923–28). He was elected for Labour to the federal house of representatives in 1929, served as postmaster general and as minister of works and railways in the Scullin government (1929), and as acting treasurer (1930). He resigned from cabinet and Labour Party in 1931 in a dispute over antidepression financial policy and over personalities. With his followers he joined the opposition to form the United Australia Party; he was elected its leader, and won the general election (November, 1931), becoming prime minister and treasurer. As prime minister he was chiefly concerned with economic recovery and, after 1937, with defense.

Lyons, Richard Bickerton Pemell. [Titles: 2nd Baron and 1st Earl Lyons.] b. at Lymington, England, April 26, 1817; d. at London, Dec. 5, 1887. English diplomat; son of Edmund Lyons. He was minister to the U.S. (1858–65), and ambassador to Turkey (1865–67) and to France (1867–87).

Lyra (lī'ra). [Also, the Harp.] Ancient northern constellation, representing the lyre of Hermes or of Orpheus. The brightest star of this constellation is Vega (α Lyrae), with a magnitude of 0.14, fourth brightest in the sky. With the fourth-magnitude stars ϵ and ζ Lyrae it forms a small equilateral triangle. ϵ Lyrae is the celebrated "double-double" star, a keen eye resolving it into two components, a telescope into four. Lyra contains the "Ring Nebula."

Lyre (līr), Pinchbeck. A pseudonym of Sassoon, Siegfried.

Lyrical Ballads. Collection of poems by William Wordsworth and Samuel Taylor Coleridge, including the latter's Ancient Mariner, published in 1798. Wordsworth's preface to the second edition (1800) was the manifesto of the new romantic school of poetry. It forms, with the poems, one of the landmarks of English literary history.

Lys (lēs). [Flemish, Leie, Leye.] River in NE France and W Belgium, which joins the Schelde at Ghent. Length, ab. 127 mi.; navigable for ab. 98 mi.

Lys, Battle of the. Military operation on the Western Front, in World War I. The initial German thrust took place on April 9, 1918, and developed into an offensive which was for a few days more perilous to the Allies than any other German drive of that year. Originally intended by Ludendorff as a diversion below Ypres, it developed as the Germans were unexpectedly able to press their gains and inflict very heavy losses on British troops. The offensive strength lost by the British in this three-week battle forced them to call reserves from the Near East and Italy.

Lysander (lī.san'dėr). Killed near Haliartus, in Boeotia, Greece, 395 B.C. Spartan commander. He gained the victory of Notium in 407, and that of Aegospotami in 405 and took Athens and destroyed its walls in 404, thus ending the Peloponnesian War. The rapid extension of oligarchies throughout Greece made him, the military man of the day, extremely powerful in Greece and caused his recall to Sparta. He avoided attempts to keep him in obscure positions and was plotting to substitute an elective for the hereditary monarchy when war with Thebes broke out. He captured Orchomenus but died in a hopeless attack on strongly fortified Haliartus.

Lysander. In Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream, a young Athenian in love with Hermia.

Lys dans la Vallée (lēs däⁿ là vȧ.lā), Le. [Eng. trans., "Lily in the Valley."] Novel by Honoré de Balzac, written in 1835–36.

Lyse Fjord (lü'sę). Interior fjord in SW Norway, in the fylke (county) of Rogaland, E of Stavanger. It is bordered by high mountains, and is visited by tourists because of its imposing scenery. Length, ab. 23 mi.

Lysenko (li.seng'kō; Russian, lē'sin.kọ), Nikolai Vitalievich. See Lisenko or Lissenko or Lysenko, Nikolai Vitalievich.

Lysias (lis'i.ạs). d. c380 B.C. One of the ten Attic orators. He lived at Thurii until about 412, and later at Athens, and lived in exile under the rule of the Thirty Tyrants, 404. He returned (403) to make a speech, still extant, against the tyrant Eratosthenes.

Lysicrates (lī.sik'rạ.tēz), Choragic Monument of. Small building at Athens, on the Acropolis, built in 335 B.C. It consists, above a cubical base, of a cylindrical structure 9 ft. in diameter with six engaged Corinthian columns. The roof is cut from a single block of marble, and is crowned by a rich anthemion-acroterium.

Lysimachus (lī.sim'ạ.kus). b. probably at Pella, in Macedonia, c361 B.C.; killed at the battle on the plain of Corus, Asia Minor, 281 B.C. General under Alexander the Great. After the latter's death, he received the kingdom of Thrace. He joined the league against Antigonus in 315, assumed the title of king in 306, and was one of the victors at Ipsus in 301, when Antigonus was killed. In the division of Antigonus's realm, Lysimachus received a large part of Asia Minor. He obtained Macedonia (287–286), and was finally defeated by Seleucus Nicator, his ally at Ipsus.

Lysippus (lī.sip'us). fl. c372–316 B.C. Greek sculptor, a native of Sicyon. According to Pliny he revised the canon of Polyclitus, making the head smaller, the legs longer, and adjusting details to a greater elongation. This new canon has been preserved in the Apoxyomenus of the Vatican, thought to be discovered in 1849, a very perfect copy of the great bronze original placed by Agrippa before his baths in Rome. Lysippus also developed and fixed the extreme athletic type in Hercules, whom he repeatedly represented. A small table figure of Hercules in bronze was made for Alexander, who carried it about with him in his campaigns. It was afterward owned by Hannibal and Sulla. The Torso Belvedere is supposed to have been copied from this figure by Apollonius of Athens. Through Chares of Lindus his characteristics were transmitted to the great Rhodian school which produced the Laocoön. Lysippus was the favorite sculptor of Alexander the Great, and author of most of his portraits in sculpture.

Lysis (lī'sis). Dialogue of Plato; the narration by Socrates of a conversation on friendship which took place in a palestra outside the walls of Athens, between himself, the youthful friends Lysis and Menexenus, Hippothales, and Ctesippus.

Lysistrata (lī.sis'trạ.tạ, lis.i.strä'tạ). Comedy by Aristophanes, exhibited in 411 B.C.

Lyskamm (lēs'käm). Peak in the Valais Alps, on the Italian-Swiss border, immediately W of Monte Rosa. Elevation, ab. 14,888 ft.

Lys-lez-Lannoy (lēs.lā.là.nwȧ). Town in N France, in the department of Nord, near the Belgian border, SE of Roubaix. It has textile industries. 6,950 (1946).

Lyster Fjord (lü'stėr). Former spelling of Luster Fjord.

Lystra (lis'trạ). Ancient city, now in ruins, in S Turkey, ab. 20 mi. SW of Konya: the site of a city of Lycaonia, much mentioned in the Old Testament, and an important archaeological site. It was here that Paul, on his third journey, was stoned and left for dead (Acts, xiv. 8–19).

Lysva (lis'vạ). City in the U.S.S.R., in the Molotov oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, in the Urals ab. 55 mi. E of Molotov. It is one of the older iron-smelting centers of the Urals, founded in 1785. Under the Five Year Plans steel, machinery, and metalworking industries have been developed. 51,192 (1939).

Lyte (līt), Henry Francis. b. at Kelso, Scotland, June 1, 1793; d. at Nice, France, Nov. 20, 1847. British hymn writer, author of Abide with Me and others.

Lytham St. Anne's (liтн'ạm sānt anz'). [Also: Lytham St. Annes, Lytham.] Municipal borough and seaside resort in NW England, in Lancashire, situated on the estuary of the river Ribble, ab. 5 mi. S of Blackpool, ab. 223 mi. NW of London by rail. It comprises the former urban districts of Lytham and St. Anne's-on-Sea. It has boot and shoe manufactures, and is famous for its golf courses. 30,298 (1951).

Lyttleton (lit'ẹl.tọn). Borough and seaport in E South Island, New Zealand, just SE of the city of Christchurch, for which it functions as a port. 3,686 (1951).

Lyttelton, Alfred. b. at Hagley, Worcestershire, England, Feb. 7, 1857; d. July 5, 1913. English lawyer and statesman. As colonial secretary in the Balfour cabinet (1903–05), he sanctioned, despite opposition, the introduction (1904) of Chinese coolies as laborers in the mines of the Rand, South Africa. He was the son of George William Lyttelton. He was appointed (1900) chairman of a commission to South Africa to investigate concessions granted by the Boers to business companies.

Lyttelton, Edith Joan. [Pseudonym, G. B. Lancaster; maiden name, Balfour.] b. in Tasmania, c1865; d. at London, Sept. 2, 1948. English writer and public official; wife (married 1892) of Alfred Lyttelton. She was British substitute delegate (1923, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1931) to the League of Nations Assembly. Her books include Our Superconscious Mind (1931), Some Cases of Prediction (1937), and a book on her travels in Japan, Korea, China, and India. Among her plays are Warp and Woof, The Thumbscrew, and Peter's Chance.

Lyttelton, George. [Title, 1st Baron Lyttelton of Frankley.] b. at Hagley, Worcestershire, England, Jan. 17, 1709; d. there, Aug. 22, 1773. English author and politician; brother of William Henry Lyttelton. He was chancellor of the exchequer (1755–56). His chief works are Observations on the Conversion and Apostleship of St. Paul (1747), Dialogues of the Dead (1760), History of Henry II (1767–71), and poems.

Lyttelton, George William. [Title, 4th Baron Lyttelton of Frankley (of the 2nd creation).] b. at London, March 31, 1817; committed suicide at London, April 19, 1876. English educator and public official; grandson of William Henry Lyttelton.

Lyttelton, Oliver. b. 1893—. English politician and soldier; son of Alfred and Edith Joan Lyttelton. He was privy councilor and president (1940–41, 1945) of the Board of Trade, and minister of state (1941–42) and of production (1942–45). He was coadministrator (1942) with Donald Nelson of the British-American Board of Production and Resources. He became (1951) colonial secretary in the Churchill cabinet.

Lyttelton, Thomas. [Title: 2nd Baron Lyttelton; called the Wicked Lord Lyttelton.] b. at Hagley, Worcestershire, England, Jan. 30, 1744; d. at London, Nov. 27, 1779. English politician; son of George Lyttelton. A member (1774–79) of the House of Lords, he supported the government's policy toward the American colonies, although he denounced (1775) the employment of German mercenaries in America.

Lyttelton, William Henry. [Title, 1st Baron Lyttelton of Frankley (of the 2nd creation).] b. Dec. 24, 1724; d. at Hagley, Worcestershire, England, Sept. 14, 1808. English barrister and colonial minister; brother of George Lyttelton. He served as governor of South Carolina (1755–62) and of Jamaica (1762–66). He was a friend of Samuel Johnson and of Mrs. Thrale. Author of An Historical Account of the Constitution of Jamaica (1792).

Lytton (lit'ŏn), Edward George Earle Lytton Bulwer-. See Bulwer-Lytton, Edward George Earle Lytton.

Lytton, Edward Robert Lytton Bulwer-. See Meredith, Owen.

Lytton, Sir Henry Alfred. b. at London, Jan. 3, 1867; d. there, Aug. 15, 1936. English actor, chiefly known for his roles in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. He appeared first (1884) with his wife in the D'Oyly Carte production of Princess Ida at Glasgow, and made his New York debut (1890) in The Gondoliers. He was engaged for a period (1899–1907) in stage management, but returned to be a member (1908) of the Savoy Company, and toured the world with the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company.

Lytton, Victor Alexander George Robert. [Title, 2nd Earl of Lytton.] b. at Simla, India, Aug. 9, 1876; d. at Knebworth, Hertfordshire, England, Oct. 25, 1947. British administrator and diplomat; son of Owen Meredith (Edward Robert Lytton Bulwer-Lytton). He was undersecretary for India (1920–22), governor of Bengal (1922–27), and viceroy and acting governor of India (April–August, 1925). He was appointed (1931) British delegate to the League of Nations, and became (1931) president of the League of Nations commission on Japanese aggression in Manchuria, which published the Lytton Report. Author of a biography of his son (killed in an air crash, 1933) entitled Antony Viscount Knebworth: A Record of Youth (1935). His other books include Life of Edward Bulwer, First Lord Lytton (1913), The Web of Life (1938), and Pundits and Elephants (1942).

Lytton Report. Report to the League of Nations, rendered by a commission of five on Oct. 2, 1932, on its findings in the Far East during the Manchurian crisis. The report asserted that Japan's military operations were not in legitimate self-defense, that the "independence" movement in the area had not been genuine, and that the government which was alleged by the Japanese to have been based on this movement was not acceptable. Without arguing for the status quo before Japanese intervention, the report nevertheless recommended an autonomous Manchuria within the Chinese Republic after direct negotiation between Japan and China. The committee was headed by V. A. G. R. Lytton, 2nd Earl of Lytton (for Great Britain), and included members from Italy, France, the U.S., and Germany.

Lyublin (lyö'blin). Russian name of Lublin.

Lyublino (lyö'bli.nŏ). City in the U.S.S.R., in the Moscow oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic: a southern industrial and residential suburb adjoining Moscow. 64,332 (1939).

Lyublyana (lyö'blyä.nä). See Ljubljana.

M

Ma (mä). Mother goddess of ancient Cappadocia in Asia Minor, identified with Cybele. The focus of her cult was her sanctuary at Comana, where her festivals were celebrated and where she was attended by a great troop of priests, priestesses, and sacred prostitutes. Roman soldiers, after they entered Cappadocia, identified her with their own Bellona, and called her Ma Bellona.

Maan (mą.än'). [Also, Ma'an: former name, Ahamant.] Town in SW Jordan, terminus of the railroad line, ab. 120 mi. S of Amman. It is a trading center served by a modern highway which follows an old Roman road built over the "king's highway" of Moses's time.

Ma-ao (mä.ou'). Inland town in NW Negros, Philippines, in the province of Negros Occidental: center of a sugar-cane growing area. 24,089 (1948).

Maarseveen (mär'sę.vān), J. H. van. b. Aug. 3, 1894—. Dutch lawyer and statesman. He was minister of justice (1946–48), minister of the interior (1948), and minister of overseas territories (1949).

Maartens (mär'tęns), Maarten. Pseudonym of Van der Poorten-Schwarz, J. M. H.

Maas (mäs). Dutch name of the Meuse River.

Maass (mäs), Otto. b. at New York, July 8, 1890—. Canadian physical chemist. Author of Introduction to Physical Chemistry (1931).

Maastricht (mäs'trĭcht, mäs.trĭcht'). [Also: Maestricht; German, Mastricht; Latin, Trajectum Superius; medieval name, Trajectum ad Mosam.] City in SE Netherlands, the capital of the province of Limburg, situated on the W bank of the Meuse (Maas) River, near the Belgian border: cotton textile, glass, porcelain, furniture, beverage, tobacco, and machinery industries. It has cattle and butter markets. 79,490 (est. 1951).

Chief Buildings and Institutions. A number of medieval buildings are preserved, including the 6th-century Church of Saint Servatius, the oldest church in the Netherlands. The old Stadhuis (town hall) dates from the 15th century, the new town hall from the 17th century; there are remains of the old walls and gates.

History. It was a Roman river-crossing town, and later a Frankish royal residence. Afterward held by the dukes of Brabant and bishops of Liège, it was taken by the Spanish under Alessandro Farnese, Duke of Parma, in 1579, by Prince Frederick Henry of Orange in 1632, and attached to the Netherlands by the Peace of Westphalia, in 1648. It was conquered by the French in 1673 and 1748, and again by the French under Kléber in 1794.

Maat (mä'at). In Egyptian mythology, the goddess of truth; child of the sun god, Ra. She wore on her head the feather symbolizing truth. She was often called "the Two Truths."

Mab (mab), Queen. In English fairy lore and folklore, the queen of the fairies. According to one folklore theory (q.v.), that fairies are the ancient gods and heroes in lesser but supernatural roles, this Queen Mab is a descendant of the great Queen Medb (pronounced mayv) of Old Irish legend. She is first mentioned as Queen Mab in Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet. Drayton introduces her in his Nymphidia, written several years later, and Ben Jonson in his Entertainment of the Queen and Prince at Althrope. Shakespeare represents her not only as adroit in all kinds of teasing and mischief, but as the hag Nightmare herself. In literary allusion, she is the fairies' midwife, that is, the fairy whose duty it is to deliver the fancies of men and to produce dreams by driving over the sleeper in her chariot. Titania, the fairy queen, is not the same person. In Shelley's Queen Mab she has a wider sphere, and is made to rule over men's thoughts.

Mabery (mā′bẹ.ri), Charles Frederic. b. at New Gloucester, Me., Jan. 13, 1850; d. at Portland, Me., June 26, 1927. American chemist, an authority on petroleum. He published papers on petroleum and electrochemistry in various learned and technical journals.

Mabie (mā′bi), Hamilton Wright. b. at Coldspring, N.Y., Dec. 13, 1845; d. Dec. 31, 1916. American author, critic, editor, and lecturer. He was on the editorial staff of the Christian Union (later the Outlook) from 1879, and became its associate editor in 1884. His works include My Study Fire (1890; 2nd series, 1894), Under the Trees and Elsewhere (1891), In the Forest of Arden (1891), Books and Culture (1896), William Shakespeare, Poet, Dramatist, and Man (1900), The Great Word (1905), Works and Days (1902), American Ideals, Character and Life (1913), and Japan To-Day and To-morrow (1914).

Mabiha (mä.bē′hä). See Mavia.

Mabillier (mȧ.bē.lyā), Étienne de Grellet du. Original name of Grellet, Stephen.

Mabillon (mȧ.bē.yôṅ), Jean. b. at St.-Pierremont, Ardennes, France, Nov. 23, 1632; d. at Paris, Dec. 27, 1707. French scholar and historian, a member of the Benedictine order. He lived after 1664 in the Abbey of St.-Germain-des-Prés at Paris. His De re diplomatica (1681) is still a classic work; in it Mabillon founded the study of diplomatic history and also of paleography and the authentication of documents. His other works include Acta sanctorum ordinis S.-Benedicti (1668–1702), Vetera analecta (1675–85), and Musaeum Italicum (1687–89).

Mabinogion (mab.i.nō′gi.ọn), The. Title of the compilation of English translations of old Welsh tales made (1838–49) by Lady Charlotte Guest. Mabinogion is the plural of the Welsh word mabinogi, which means "tale of a hero," the word being derived from mab, a boy or youth. The great collection of these tales is at Jesus College, Oxford, in a manuscript volume of the 14th century, known as the Red Book of Hergest. The Mabinogion contains Welsh redactions, made c1200, of three of the French Arthurian prose romances, namely, The Lady of the Fountain, Peredur, the Son of Evrawc, and Geraint, the Son of Erbin. The Guest collection also contains two British tales, Kilhwch and Olwen (written c1100 from a 10th-century text), and the Dream of Rhonabwy, probably of the 13th century. The rest are tales in which King Arthur does not appear, or is named only as by interpolation, namely, Pwyll, Prince of Dyved, Branwen, the Daughter of Llyr, and Math, the Son of Mathonwy. The rest, composed in a later period, include the Dream of Maxen Wledig and Lludd and Llevelys. The tale of Taliesin is as late as the 16th century, although dealing with the story of a 6th-century bard.

Mablethorpe and Sutton (mā′bl.thôrp; sut′ọn). Urban district in C England, in Lincolnshire, on the North Sea ab. 138 mi. N of London by rail. Within the urban district are the three small seashore resort communities of Mablethorpe, Trusthorpe, and Sutton-on-Sea. 5,394 (1951).

Mably (mȧ.blē), Abbé Gabriel Bonnot de. b. at Grenoble, France, March 14, 1709; d. at Paris, April 23, 1785. French publicist; elder brother of Étienne Bonnot de Condillac. He wrote Parallèle des Romains et des Français (1740), Droit publique de l'Europe (1748), Observations sur les Romains (1751), Entretiens de Phocion (1763), and Observations sur l'histoire de France (1765).

Mabui (mä.bö′ē). See under Biliran.

Mabuse (mȧ.büz). [Original name, Jan Gossaert (or Gessart).] b. at Maubeuge, in what is now Nord, France, probably c1470; d. at Antwerp, Belgium, 1541. Flemish painter. He went to England, where he painted the Marriage of Henry VII and Elizabeth of York, and portraits of the king's children.

Mac- (mak). Element, usually a conjoined prefix, in many Scottish and Irish names, cognate with the Welsh Ap-, signifying "son," and being thus equivalent to the English suffix -son or -s. The Irish prefix O' more commonly means "grandson" or "male descendant"; thus the O'Neills are descendants of Niell. Fitz- (from the French fils, son) was used in the 12th century, especially by English families of Norman descent, to mean "illegitimate son." It was used only by the illegitimate sons of royalty and nobility. The prefix Mac- is either written in full or abbreviated to Mc- or Mᶜ-, which in works printed in the British Isles often appears as M'-, the abbreviated form being followed by a capital letter, while Mac- takes rarely a capital after it. Thus a name may be variously spelled as Macdonald (rarely MacDonald), McDonald, or M'Donald, so also Mackenzie, McKenzie, or M'Kenzie.

Mac. Pseudonym of MacManus, Seumas.

Maca (mä′kạ). Family of South American Indian languages, formerly called Guana, later called Enimaga, and still later, Cochabot. Guana was dropped because of confusion with an Arawakan language of the same name; Enimaga was dropped because many of the languages included differed from Enimaga proper; Cochabot is recognized by scholars, but Maca is becoming more usual. Maca is now classified as forming one group of the Macro-Guaicuru phylum, Mataco being the other.

Macabre (mȧ.käbr), Danse. See Danse Macabre.

Macaca (mȧ.kä′kä). See Sierra Maestra.

Macaire (mȧ.ker). Chanson de geste, written in a mixed French and Italian dialect. The manuscript was discovered at Venice and was published (1866) by Guessard at Paris. It contains the original of the well-known story of the dog of Montargis, who discloses the murderer of his master, though the motif is much more ancient in folk tale, being found in Plutarch.

Macaire, Robert. Typical villain in French comedy, originally an assassin heavily loaded with crimes. He was transformed (1834) by Frédéric Lemaître into an adroit highwayman and fripon (an amiable diminutive of "thief").

Macalister (mạ.kal′is.tẻr), Sir Donald. b. at Perth, Scotland, May 17, 1854; d. Jan. 14, 1934. Scottish physician and anatomist. Author of Nature of Fever (1887), Antipyretics (1888), Echoes (1907), Romani Versions (1928), and other works, especially in pharmacology. He edited Ziegler's Pathological Anatomy, and helped prepare the British Pharmacopœia (1898; revised, 1914).

Macalister, Robert Alexander Stewart. b. at Dublin, July 8, 1870; d. April 26, 1950. Irish archaeologist. Among his published works are Studies in Irish Epigraphy (1897–1907), Bible Side-Lights from the Mound of Gezer (1906), Two Irish Arthurian Romances (1908), The Crosses of Clonmacnois (1909), and many papers on archaeological subjects.

Macallum (mạ.kal′um), Archibald Bruce. b. at Belmont, Ontario, Canada, 1859; d. April 5, 1934. Canadian educator. He collaborated with Norman B. Laughton on the isolation of a new hormone used in reducing the amount of blood sugar in diabetic patients.

MacAlpine (mạk.al pīn). See Kenneth I (of Scotland).

Macao (mạ.kou′). [Portuguese, Macau.] Portuguese colony, comprising a province and city, situated on a peninsula at the mouth of the Canton River, China: a seaport, formerly the center of important commerce, and seat of a college and a seminary. The province, based on the Chinese-Portuguese treaty of 1887, includes the city and the small islands of Taipa and Colôane. It was occupied by the Portuguese in 1557, and is thus the oldest surviving European colony in the Orient. Area, ab. 6 sq. mi.; pop. 187,772 (1950).

Macarians (mạ.kār′i.ạnz). Followers of the monastic system or customs of the elder Macarius of Egypt, or of the younger Macarius of Alexandria, contemporary monks of the 4th century A.D. who were noted for their severe asceticism.

Macarians. Followers of the Monothelite Macarius, patriarch of Antioch in the 7th century A.D.

Macarsca (mä′kär.skä). Italian name of Makarska.

MacArthur (mạk.är′thẻr), Arthur. b. at Springfield, Mass., June 2, 1845; d. at Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 5, 1912. American soldier, lieutenant general in the U.S. army from 1906; father of Douglas MacArthur. He served in the Union army in the Civil War, rising to the (volunteer) rank of lieutenant colonel in 1865, entered the regular army in 1866 as lieutenant, served in the Philippines (1898–1901), and was military governor of the Philippines (May, 1900–July, 1901).

MacArthur, Charles. b. at Scranton, Pa., Nov. 5, 1895—. American playwright; husband (married 1928) of Helen Hayes. He was a reporter (1914–23) for the Chicago Herald and Examiner, Chicago Tribune, and New York American. He began writing plays in 1924, and has been a writer and producer of motion pictures since 1929. Coauthor with Edward Brewster Sheldon of Lulu Belle (1926); with Sidney Howard of Salvation (1927); and with Ben Hecht of The Front Page (1928), Twentieth Century (1933), Ladies and Gentlemen (1939), Swan Song (1946), and other plays.

MacArthur, Douglas. b. at Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 26, 1880—. American army officer; son of Arthur MacArthur. He was graduated (1903) from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, and in June, 1918, during his World War I service with the 42nd (Rainbow) Division in France, was appointed to the rank of brigadier general (temporary). He was named commander of the 42nd Division in November, 1918, and in 1919, after serving with the U.S. army of occupation in Germany, was appointed superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy and promoted (1920) to the permanent rank of brigadier general. He left the West Point post in 1920 for a tour of duty in the Philippines, where he became (1928) commanding general of the Philippine Department. He served (1930–35) as chief of staff, U.S. army, and was military adviser (1935–37) to the Philippine Commonwealth. After having retired (1939) from the service, he returned to active duty (July, 1941) as general in command of U.S. forces in the Far East. During the Japanese invasion of the Philippines (1941–42) he was commander in chief of the U.S. and Philippine forces on the islands. He was named (March, 1942) supreme commander of Allied land, sea, and air forces in the Southwest Pacific. In December, 1944, he was appointed general of the army (five-star general). He accepted the Japanese surrender in August, 1945, and subsequently served as supreme commander of the occupation forces in Japan. With the outbreak of war in Korea in June, 1950, MacArthur became commanding officer of the United Nations troops supporting the Republic of Korea against the North Korean, and later the Chinese Communist, armies. His repeated critical utterances, combined with sharp reverses in the field, brought his removal from command by President Truman in April, 1951. MacArthur became the focus of antiadministration sentiment and, on his return to the U.S. in April, was greeted by cheering demonstrations and made a speech before both houses of Congress criticizing the policies of the president. He was mentioned prominently as a candidate for the presidency and was nominated before the Republican National Convention in 1952 but received only a few votes.

Macarthur (mąk.är'thėr), John. b. near Plymouth, England, 1767; d. at Camden Park, New South Wales, Australia, April 10, 1834. Australian soldier, a pioneer in the Australian wool industry. In 1789 he was appointed a lieutenant in the New South Wales Corps, especially formed for service in the penal colony. He resigned from the army in 1805 and acquired land and stock; he pioneered in sheep-breeding as well as in the promotion of wool sales in England. He is perhaps most vividly remembered in Australia for his remarkably quarrelsome disposition and for the furious, implacable hatreds which led him to engineer the recall of governors Hunter and King and the treasonable overthrow (1808) of Governor William Bligh. He was never actually brought to justice for these escapades or others of minor character, although the Bligh incident cost him eight and a half uncomfortable years of "exile" in England.

Macartney (mą.kärt'ni), George. [Title, 1st Earl Macartney.] b. at Lissanoure, County Antrim, Ireland, May 14, 1737; d. at Chiswick, England, March 31, 1806. British diplomat and colonial official, appointed first British envoy to China in 1792.

Macartney, James Adolphus. Hero of Maurice Hewlett's novel Love and Lucy (1916).

Macas (mä'käs). City in SE Ecuador, capital of Santiago-Zamora province, in Oriente. Pop. under 5,000 (est. 1944).

Macassar (mą.kas'ąr). See Makassar.

Macassarese (mą.kas.ąr.ēz', -ēs'). Malayo-Polynesian-speaking, Moslem people of S Celebes, Indonesia, closely related in language and customs to the Buginese. 642,720 (1930).

Macau (mą.kou'). See Macao.

Macaulay (mą.kô'li), Catharine. [Also known as Catharine Macaulay Graham; maiden name, Sawbridge.] b. in Kent, England, 1733; d. June 22, 1791. English historian, author of History of England (8 vols., 1763–83) and others.

Macaulay, Fannie Caldwell. [Pseudonym, Frances Little.] b. at Shelbyville, Ky., in November, 1863; d. 1941. American author. She taught for five years in the kindergarten of the girls' school at Hiroshima, Japan. Author of The Lady of the Decoration (1906), Little Sister Snow (1909), The Lady and Sada San (1912), and The House of the Misty Star (1914).

Macaulay, Rose. b. at Cambridge, England, c1889—. English novelist, poet, critic, and essayist. Author of books of poetry, including The Two Blind Countries (1914), Three Days (1919), and Poems (1927); and of Non-Combatants and Others (1916), A Casual Commentary (1925), Catchwords and Claptrap (1926), Some Religious Elements in English Literature (1931), The Minor Pleasures of Life (1934), John Milton (1934), and The Writings of E. M. Forster (1938), literary criticism, essays, and biography. She wrote the novels Abbots Verney (1906), The Furnace (1907), The Secret River (1909), The Valley Captives (1911), The Lee Shore (1912), Views and Vagabonds (1912), The Making of a Bigot (1914), What Not (1919), Potterism (1920), Dangerous Ages (1921; winner of the 1922 Femina-Vie Heureuse prize), Mystery at Geneva (1922), Told by an Idiot (1923), Orphan Island (1924), Crewe Train (1926), Keeping Up Appearances (1928; American title, Daisy and Daphne), Staying With Relations (1930), They Were Defeated (1932; American title, The Shadow Flies), Going Abroad (1934), And No Man's Wit (1940), and The World My Wilderness (1950).

Macaulay, Thomas Babington. [Title, 1st Baron Macaulay of Rothley.] b. at Rothley Temple, Leicestershire, England, Oct. 25, 1800; d. at Kensington, London, Dec. 28, 1859. English historian, essayist, poet, and statesman; son of Zachary Macaulay. A precocious child, he had made a historical compendium and had written a poem in three cantos before he was eight. He entered Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1818, and was called to the bar in 1826. In 1823–24 he contributed to Knight's Quarterly Magazine, but made his first success as a writer with his essay on Milton for the Edinburgh Review (August, 1825), to which journal he continued to contribute for many years. A Whig, he was a member of Parliament (1830–34, 1839–47, and 1852–57), being raised to the peerage in 1857. He served (1834–38) as a member of the supreme council in India, and was responsible for the drawing up of an excellent criminal code which was adopted in 1860. He was secretary at war (1839–41) in Melbourne's cabinet and paymaster general (1846–47) under Lord John Russell. His chief work is The History of England from the Accession of James the Second (vols. I and II, 1848; vols. III and IV, 1855; vol. V, posthumously 1861; an unfinished work), in which, despite the apparent Whig prejudices of the author, his attempt to apply the techniques of the historical novel through reconstruction of incident and anecdote and the social and cultural background, succeed in making a vivid picture of the period. In addition to his Lays of Ancient Rome (1842), he wrote numerous essays and historical sketches, including pieces on Dryden (1828), Byron (1830), Walpole (1834), Bacon (1837), Warren Hastings (1841), Frederick the Great (1842), and Addison (1843). His complete works, including his speeches, were edited in eight volumes by his sister, Lady Trevelyan (Hannah More Macaulay). See life by his nephew, George Otto Trevelyan (2 vols., 1876).

Macaulay, Zachary. b. 1768; d. in England, 1838. English philanthropist, abolitionist, colonial administrator, and writer; father of Thomas Babington Macaulay. While manager of a Jamaica estate, he was impressed by the miseries of the slaves. Thereafter, as governor of Sierra Leone (1793–99) and secretary to the Sierre Leone Company (1799–1808), he became a vigorous opponent of slavery. As editor (1802–16) of the Christian Observer, he sought to abolish the British slave trade and halt slave trade abroad. He was secretary to the African Institute (1807–12), and an organizer of the Anti-Slavery Society (1823).

Macbeth (mak.beth', mąk-). Killed at Lumphanan, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, c1057. Scottish king (1040–c1057). He killed Duncan (c1040) and was proclaimed king of Scotland. He was defeated by Siward at Dunsinane, Perthshire, in 1054, and was defeated and killed by Siward and Duncan's son, Malcolm III. He is the central figure of Shakespeare's Macbeth.

Macbeth. Tragedy by Shakespeare. Its first recorded production is April 20, 1610, but it is thought to have been played before and revised by Shakespeare in 1606. It was printed in the 1623 folio. The story is from Raphael Holinshed's Chronicle of Scottish History. The character of Macbeth is that of a man tempted by ambition to treachery and murder. Before he commits the crime he wavers and shudders at both end and means; but, once made resolute through the courage of his wife, he goes forward to subsequent murders through fear of discovery and defeat.

Macbeth. Opera in four acts by Verdi, with a libretto by Piave, Maffei, and the composer, first produced at Florence on March 14, 1847, and at Paris in 1865.

Macbeth, Florence. b. at Mankato, Minn., c1891—. American coloratura soprano.

Macbeth's Castle. See under Dunsinane.

MacBride (mąk.brīd'), Ernest William. b. at Belfast, Ireland, Dec. 12, 1866; d. at Alton, Hampshire, England, Nov. 19, 1940. English zoölogist. He was known for his researches in the predetermination of sex in lower forms of life.

Maccabaeus (mak.ą.bē'us), Jonathan. See Jonathan Maccabaeus.

Maccabaeus, Judas. See Judas Maccabaeus.

Maccabees (mak'ą.bēz). Family of Jewish heroes who became the deliverers of Judea and Judaism during the bloody persecutions of the Syrian king Antiochus I (Antiochus Epiphanes), and established a dynasty of priest-kings which lasted until supplanted by Herod in 40 B.C. The original name of the family was the Hasmoneans. It consisted of the aged Mattathias and his five sons, Jochanan (or John), Simon, Judas, Eleazar, and Jonathan, living at Modin, a small town near Jerusalem. When the sufferings of the Judeans at the hands of the Syrians became unbearable, and the existence of the Jewish religion was at stake, Mattathias and his sons became the leaders of an open rebellion against Antiochus. On Mattathias and his sons being summoned by Apelles, one of the Syrian overseers, to sacrifice to the gods, Mattathias answered, "If all the people in the kingdom obey the order of the monarch to depart from the faith of their fathers, I and my sons will abide by the covenant of our forefathers." When one of the Judeans approached the altar to sacrifice to Zeus, Mattathias rushed upon the apostate and killed him at the altar. His sons then fell upon Apelles and his troops, killed them, and destroyed the altar. Gradually an army of religious patriots rallied around these hero-leaders, and carried on a kind of guerrilla warfare against the oppressing Syrians. Mattathias died in 167, appointing Judas as his successor in the command, and Simon as the man of counsel. Judas bore the name "Maccabi," either made up of the initials from the Hebrew words mî kamocha baëlim Jehovah ("Who is like thee among the gods, Jehovah?"), or derived from the Hebrew word makeb, "a hammer," expressive of his heroism, and gave by his genuinely heroic bearing his name to this whole epoch of Jewish history.

Maccabees, Books of the. Last two books of the Old Testament Apocrypha. They contain a record of the struggles of the Maccabees from 168 to 135 B.C. The first book was written in Hebrew, the second in Greek.

Maccabees, The. [German title, Die Makkabäer.] Opera by Anton Rubinstein, first produced at Berlin in 1875.

MacCalain More (mą.kal'ąn mōr'). Name given to the earls, marquises, and dukes of Argyll.

MacCameron (mą.kam'ėr.ọn), Robert Lee. b. at Chicago, Jan. 14, 1866; d. at New York, Dec. 29, 1912. American portrait and figure painter. Among his principal works are Groupe d'Amis (Corcoran Gallery, Washington) and The Daughter's Return (Metropolitan Museum, New York).

MacCarthy (mą.kär'thi), Denis Florence. b. at Dublin, May 26, 1817; d. at Blackrock, near Dublin, April 7, 1882. Irish poet, known for his political verses and for his translation of works by the Spanish dramatist Calderón. His contributions to various periodicals were variously signed "Desmond," "Vig," "Trifolium," "Antonio," or "S.E.Y." Author of Ballads, Poems, and Lyrics (1850), An Ode on the Death of the Earl of Belfast (1856), The Bell-founder (1857), Under-glimpses (1857), and The Centenary of More (1880). His translations include Justina (1848), Dramas (1853), Love, the Greatest Enchantment (1861), and The Wonder-working Magician (1873).

MacCarthy, Sir Desmond. b. 1877; d. at Cambridge, England, June 7, 1952. English dramatic and literary critic. He was editor of the New Quarterly and the Eye Witness (later called the New Witness), and was with the New Statesman as staff writer, literary editor, and dramatic critic. He was a contributor to the Sunday Times, delivered talks on literature for the British Broadcasting Corporation, and was coeditor of Life and Letters. Author of The Court Theater: 1904–1907 (1907), Remnants (1918), Portraits (1931), Criticism (1932), Experience (1935), Leslie Stephen (1937), Drama (1940), critical essays and studies. He edited Lady John Russell—A Memoir, with Selections from her Diaries and Correspondence (1910) and Letters of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith (1933), and translated (1914) Jules Romains's The Death of a Nobody (Mort de Quelqu'un, 1911).

MacCarthy, Hamilton Thomas. b. at London, 1847; d. at Ottawa, Canada, Oct. 24, 1939. Canadian sculptor. He studied in England before going (1885) to Canada, joined (1890) the Royal Canadian Academy, and founded the Gallery of Sculpture at Ontario. Meanwhile he lectured on art throughout Canada and the United Kingdom. Among his principal works are the public monuments to Sir John A. MacDonald in Queen's Park, Toronto, and the monument to Alexander MacKenzie on Parliament Hill, Ottawa, as well as many portrait busts of prominent persons for the Royal Ontario Museum.

MacChesney (mąk.ches'ni), Nathan William. b. at Chicago, June 2, 1878—. American lawyer, diplomat, and author. He served (1932–33) as U.S. minister to Canada and as consul general (1924–41) in Siam.

Macchiavelli (mak''i.ą.vel'i), Niccolò. See Machiavelli or Macchiavelli, Niccolò.

Macclesfield (mak'lz.fēld). Municipal borough, market town, and manufacturing center in W England, in Cheshire, on the river Bollin ab. 16 mi. S of Manchester, ab. 166 mi. NW of London by rail. It is the center of the British silk industry. Other textile manufactures include cotton and mixed cloths. Macclesfield also has manufactures of silk textile machinery, and of paper and plastics. 35,981 (1951).

Macclesfield, 1st Earl of. A title of Gerard, Charles (c1618–c1693).

Macclesfield, 2nd Earl of. Title of Gerard, Charles (c1659–1701).

MacCormick (mą.kôr'mik), Austin Harbutt. b. at Georgetown, Ontario, Canada, April 20, 1893—. American penologist, New York City commissioner of correction (1934–40). He collaborated with Thomas Mott Osborne in studies of penal conditions and administration, particularly at the U.S. naval prison at Portsmouth, N.H. With Paul W. Garrett, he wrote The Handbook of American Prisons and Reformatories (1929). He accomplished (1934–37) sweeping reforms at the Welfare Island Penitentiary, and superintended construction of the new institution on Riker's Island, both at New York City.

MacCracken (mą.krak'ęn), Henry Mitchell. b. at Oxford, Ohio, Sept. 28, 1840; d. at Orlando, Fla., Dec. 24, 1918. American clergyman, author, and educator, vice-chancellor and chancellor of New York University (1885–1910).

Macculloch (mą.kul'ọch, -ọk), Horatio. b. at Glasgow, in November, 1805; d. at Edinburgh, June 24, 1867.

Scottish landscape painter. Among his pictures are Inverlochy Castle, Evening, and A Lowland River.

Macculloch, John. b. in Guernsey, Channel Islands, Oct. 6, 1773; d. in Cornwall, England, Aug. 20, 1835. Scottish geologist. He was employed by the government in various scientific capacities, being appointed (c1814) geologist to the trigonometrical survey. In 1826 he was commissioned by the government to prepare a geological map of Scotland, it was published in 1836. Among his works are A Description of the Western Isles of Scotland, including the Isle of Man (1819) and Highlands and Western Isles of Scotland (1824).

MacCunn (mą.kun'), Hamish. b. at Greenock, Scotland, March 22, 1868; d. at London, Aug. 2, 1916. Scottish composer. His works include operas such as Jeanie Deans (1894) and Diarmid and Ghrine (1897), cantatas, orchestral compositions, and songs.

MacCurdy (mą.kėr'di), George Grant. b. at Warrensburg, Mo., April 17, 1863; d. at Plainfield, N.J., Nov. 15, 1947. American anthropologist. He headed (1930) an archaeological expedition to N Spain, where bone engravings of the Magdalenian epoch were discovered.

Macdhui (mąk.dö'i), Ben. See Ben Macdhui.

MacDonald (mąk.don'ąld), Arthur. b. at Caledonia, N.Y., July 4, 1856; d. at Washington, D.C., Jan. 17, 1936. American anthropologist and psychophysicist. He was engaged (1892–1904) by the U.S. Bureau of Education as a specialist in the education of the abnormal. Author of Abnormal Man (1893), Criminology (1894), Emile Zola (1899), Statistics of Crime, Suicide, and Insanity (1903), Juvenile Crime and Reformation (1908), and Mentality of Nations and Social Pathology (1912).

MacDonald, Carlos Frederick. b. at Niles, Ohio, Aug. 29, 1845; d. May 29, 1926. American alienist, professor of mental diseases in Bellevue Hospital Medical College from 1887. He was instrumental in improving the system of caring for the dependent insane, and in establishing separate hospitals for insane criminals.

Macdonald (mąk.don'ąld), Sir Claude Maxwell. b. June 12, 1852; d. Sept. 10, 1915. British soldier and diplomat, ambassador to Japan from 1905 (minister 1900–05). He served in the Egyptian campaign (1882) and in the Suakin expedition (1884–85), held various diplomatic positions (1887–96), and was minister (1896–1900) at Peiping. He was in command against the Chinese during the siege (June–August, 1900) of the foreign legations at Peiping in the Boxer rebellion.

Macdonald (mąk.do.nąl), Étienne Jacques Joseph Alexandre. [Title, Duc de Tarente.] b. at Sancerre, Cher, France, Nov. 17, 1765; d. at his château, Courcelles, near Guise, Loire, France, Sept. 25, 1840. French marshal. He adopted the cause of the French Revolution and fought as colonel at Jemappes in 1792, becoming brigadier general in the same year and general of division in 1795 for his services under Pichegru. He fought on the Rhine and in Italy in 1796, was made governor of the Roman States in 1798 and of Naples in 1799, and was defeated by Suvorov at the Trebbia (June 17–19, 1799). He was especially distinguished at Wagram (July 6, 1809), where he earned the rank of marshal, and served in the campaigns of 1813–14. He was defeated at the Katzbach (Kocaba) River in 1813.

Macdonald (mąk.don'ąld), Flora. b. 1722; d. at Kingsburgh, Scotland, March 5, 1790. Scottish Jacobite heroine. She was the daughter of Ranald Macdonald, a farmer in South Uist, an island of the Hebrides. She assisted Prince Charles Edward Stuart, the Young Pretender, who was a fugitive after the battle of Culloden Moor, to escape, disguised as her female attendant, from the island of Benbecula to Skye, June 27, 1746.

Macdonald, George. b. at Huntley, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Dec. 10, 1824; d. at Ashstead, Surrey, England, Sept. 18, 1905. Scottish poet, novelist, and writer of books for juveniles; a friend of Emerson, Carlyle, Tennyson, Ruskin, and Matthew Arnold. Author of At the Back of the North Wind (1871), The Princess and the Goblin (1872), and The Princess and Curdie (1873), for juveniles; Within and Without (1855), Poems (1857), Phantastes (1858), and The Diary of an Old Soul (1880), poetry; David Elginbrod (1863), Alec Forbes (1865), Robert Falconer (1868), Malcolm (1875), The Marquis of Lossie (1877), and Sir Gibbie (1879), novels of Scottish life; and Thomas Wingfold (1876), Paul Faber (1879), and Lilith (1895), novels of English life.

Macdonald, Sir Hugh John. b. at Kingston, Ontario, Canada, March 13, 1850; d. at Winnipeg, Canada, March 29, 1929. Canadian statesman and police magistrate, noted for his leadership in defending his section of Canada, at the age of 16 against Fenian raids, and as a leader in the suppression of Indian and other uprisings along the Winnipeg and Saskatchewan rivers; son of Sir John Alexander Macdonald.

Macdonald, John. [Title, 11th Earl of Ross.] d. c1498. Fourth and last Lord of the Isles.

Macdonald, John. [Called the "Apostle of the North."] b. at Reay, Caithness, Scotland, Nov. 12, 1779; d. at Urquhart, Morayshire, Scotland, April 16, 1849. Scottish Presbyterian clergyman. He was a man of great influence as a maintainer and promoter of evangelical religion in the north of Scotland.

Macdonald, Sir John Alexander. b. at Glasgow, Jan. 11, 1815; d. at his residence, Earnscliffe Hall, near Ottawa, Canada, June 6, 1891. Canadian politician. He was prime minister (1857–58); Cartier assumed the premiership in the latter year, the ministry being known as the "Cartier-Macdonald" government until its downfall in 1862. He was again prime minister (1868–73 and 1878–91), this time of the Dominion of Canada, which he had helped create by supporting vigorously the British North America Act. He was one of the British commissioners who signed (1871) the treaty of Washington concerning the Alabama claims.

Macdonald, John Sandfield. b. at St. Raphael, Ontario, Canada, Dec. 12, 1812; d. at Cornwall, Ontario, Canada, June 1, 1872. Canadian lawyer and politician, prime minister of Canada and an opponent of Canadian federation (1862–64). After federation he served (1867–71) as premier of Ontario.

Macdonald, Lawrence. b. at Gask, Perthshire, Scotland, 1798; d. at Rome, March 4, 1878. Scottish sculptor.

Macdonald, Lucy Maud. [Maiden name, Montgomery.] b. at Clifton, Prince Edward Island, Canada, 1874; d. at Toronto, April 24, 1942. Canadian novelist. Author of Anne of Green Gables (1908).

MacDonald (mąk.don'ąld), Malcolm John. b. at Lossiemouth, Scotland, 1901—. British statesman, high commissioner (1941–46) for the United Kingdom in Canada; son of Ramsay MacDonald. He was secretary of state for colonies (1935, 1938–41) and for dominion affairs (1935–38, 1938–39).

MacDonald, Ramsay. [Full name, James Ramsay MacDonald.] b. at Lossiemouth, Scotland, Oct. 12, 1866; d. at sea, Nov. 9, 1937. British statesman, first Labour prime minister (1924) of England. An illegitimate child, he spent his childhood in poverty. In 1888 he established himself at London, where as a member (from 1886) of the Fabian Society he spoke often for the moderate Socialist program. MacDonald joined (1894) with Keir Hardie and others in the Independent Labour Party, the basis of the Labour Party, of which he was secretary (1900–12) and treasurer (1912–24). He was elected (1906) a member of Parliament and was leader (1911–14) of the Labour Party, resigning from the latter post because of his opposition to the granting of war credits. He was a pacifist and became known as an opponent of the war and a pro-German, although his stand was essentially one of winning the war while preserving social gains. In the "Khaki election" of December, 1918, he lost his seat in Commons. The failure of the Lloyd George government brought him back (1922) to Parliament and to leadership of the Labour Party. The fall of Stanley Baldwin's cabinet in 1923 brought a general election, in which Labour and the Liberals won control of the House of Commons; MacDonald formed (January, 1924) a cabinet in which he was prime minister and secretary for foreign affairs. His emphasis was on foreign policy, attempting the rehabilitation of the German economy and a rapprochement with the U.S.S.R. The Russian commercial treaty was opposed by the Liberals, and the Labour cabinet, the first in English history, fell in November. His defeat in the election was to a large extent the result of the publication of the so-called Zinoviev letter, a document calling for a revolution in England and supposedly signed by the head of the Comintern, but probably a forgery. MacDonald, never a believer in direct action by labor, nevertheless supported the general strike of 1926 and regained the confidence of much of the labor group. In the general election of 1929, Labour for the first time had a clear majority in Parliament and MacDonald formed his second ministry. He carried through a program of improvement of workers' conditions (improved unemployment insurance, public housing, agricultural wages board), but the deepening of the economic depression of the 1930's resulted eventually in a budget calling for a cut in unemployment benefits (the dole). This split the Labour Party and resulted in MacDonald's forming, after an attempt to resign, the National (coalition) government of 1931. He was read out of the Labour Party and for the remainder of his life was attacked as a renegade by the Socialists who formed the core of the party. MacDonald, Philip Snowden, and J. H. Thomas headed a National Labour Party and in the general election of 1931 the coalition government won a tremendous majority. Under MacDonald the National government passed the Statute of Westminster, establishing the dominions of the British Commonwealth as more or less independent members, abandoned the gold standard, and dropped the free-trade principle. The failure of the World Economic Conference (1933) and the necessity to rearm in the face of growing German militarism resulted in MacDonald's retirement (1935) as prime minister. He held (1935–37) the post of lord president of council in the National cabinet now headed by Stanley Baldwin. He wrote Socialism and Society (1905), Socialism (1907), Socialism and Government (1909), The Awakening of India (1910), The Social Unrest (1913), and others.

MacDonald, William. b. at Providence, R.I., July 31, 1863; d. at New York, Dec. 15, 1938. American historian and editor. He was professor (1893–1901) of history and political science at Bowdoin, professor (1901–17) of history at Brown University, and associate editor (1918–20), acting literary editor (1929), and editorial writer (1930–31) for The Nation. Author of History and Government of Maine (1902), Jacksonian Democracy (1905), From Jefferson to Lincoln (1913), Reconstruction in France (1922), Three Centuries of American Democracy (1923), and The Menace of Recovery (1934).

Macdonell (mak.dō.nel'), Alastair Ruadh. [Called Pickle the Spy.] b. c1725; d. Dec. 23, 1761. Scottish chieftain and spy. He joined (1743) Lord Drummond's regiment of Royal Scots Guards and was employed (1745) by Highland leaders on a secret mission to Prince Charles Edward Stuart. After his capture and imprisonment (1745–47) by the English, he spied (1749–54) on Charles for the English.

MacDonnell (mąk.don'ęl), Antony Patrick. [Title, Baron MacDonnell of Swinford.] b. 1844; d. 1925. British administrator in India and Ireland. He was lieutenant governor of the Northwestern Provinces and Oudh (1895–1901). As permanent undersecretary of state for Ireland (1902–08), he sought unsuccessfully to end Irish political feuds and assisted in the shaping of the Irish Land Purchase Bill (1903).

MacDonnell (mąk.don'ęl; also, in Scotland, mak.dō.nel'), Sorley Boy. b. at Ballycastle, Ireland, c1505; d. there, 1590. Scots-Irish chieftain. He was lord of the Route (northern Antrim), and constable of Dunluce Castle. By overtures (1560) to Queen Elizabeth, he sought to secure the Hebridean Scots settlements on the Antrim coast against Shane O'Neill, his rival. However, O'Neill attacked him and laid waste the settlements (1564–67). MacDonnell was defeated (1575) by Walter Devereux, 1st Earl of Essex. After subsequent successes (1576–84) threatened to make Ulster a second Scotland, he was forced to flee (1585) to Scotland. He admitted (1586) his lack of legal right to Ulster and submitted to the government, receiving a grant of land in return.

MacDonough (mąk.don'ō), Thomas. b. at The Trap (now MacDonough), Del., Dec. 31, 1783; d. at sea, Nov. 10, 1825. American naval officer, noted for his victory at the battle of Plattsburg (Sept. 11, 1814). He entered the navy (1800) as a midshipman, took part in the West Indies operations against the French and in the Tripolitan War, and in 1807 received the rank of lieutenant in the regular navy. After a furlough in 1810, he took a merchantman to the East Indies. In the War of 1812 he commanded the naval station at Portland, Me., for a brief time and then was assigned to the command of the fleet on Lake Champlain. Here, in Plattsburg Bay, he defeated (Sept. 11, 1814) a superior British naval force in a battle that witnessed the surrender of the British Confiance to MacDonough's Saratoga. This action ranks as one of the most important engagements in U.S. naval history. In recognition of his accomplishments, MacDonough received the thanks of Congress and was promoted to a captaincy. He later served as commandant of the Portsmouth, N.H., navy yard, commanded (1818) the frigate Guerrière on a voyage to Russia, and in 1820 took command of the Ohio. He died at sea after leading a squadron to the Mediterranean, and was buried at Middletown, Conn.

MacDougal (mąk.dō'gąl), Daniel Trembly. b. at Liberty, Ind., March 16, 1865—. American botanist, director of the department of botanical research of the Carnegie Institution from 1905. He was connected (1902–05) with the desert botanical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution. His studies relate especially to plant physiology, heredity, and organic evolution.

MacDowell (mąk.dou'ęl), Edward Alexander. b. at New York, Dec. 18, 1861; d. there, Jan. 24, 1908. American pianist and composer. He studied at New York and Paris, and at Frankfort on the Main, where he was much influenced by Raff. In 1888 he returned to America, and in 1896 was appointed professor of music at Columbia University, a post which he resigned in 1904. The most important of his compositions are the orchestral tone-poems Hamlet and Ophelia, Lancelot and Elaine, Lamia, The Saracens, and The Fair Aldâ; two suites, of which the second, Opus 48, is based largely on Indian melodies; choruses; and many songs and piano pieces, among which are the Eroica, Tragica, and Keltic sonatas, two suites, and two concertos with orchestra. His To a Wild Rose remains a favorite among light piano pieces.

MacDowell, Katherine Sherwood. [Maiden name, Bonner; pseudonym, Sherwood Bonner.] b. at Holly Springs, Miss., Feb. 26, 1849; d. there, July 22, 1883. American writer of regional fiction. Author of the novel Like unto Like (1878) and two volumes of collected short stories, Dialect Tales (1883) and Suwanee River Tales (1884).

Macdowell (mąk.dou'ęl), Patrick. b. at Belfast, Ireland, Aug. 12, 1799; d. at London, Dec. 9, 1870. Irish sculptor. He executed marble statues of the younger William Pitt, and designed the group typical of Europe for the Albert Memorial in Hyde Park, London.

Macduff (mak.duf'). fl. in the 11th century. Scottish hero, thane or earl of Fife. According to tradition, he was the chief instrument in overthrowing the usurper Macbeth at the battle of Lumphanan in Aberdeenshire, Aug. 15, 1057, and in restoring Malcolm III (Malcolm Canmore) to the Scottish throne. For this service he was granted, among other privileges, that of a sanctuary to which he and his successors might flee in case of committing unpremeditated slaughter. This sanctuary consisted of a cross, called the Cross Macduff, which stood north of Newburgh, in the pass leading to Strathearn. Its pedestal still remains; the cross itself was destroyed in 1559. He appears in Shakespeare's Macbeth as a man once mild and compassionate, but divested of human kindness by the extermination of his family.

Macedo (mä.sā'dō). See Clovio, Giorgio Giulio.

Macedo (mą.sā'dō), Joaquim Manuel de. b. at Itaboraí, Brazil, June 24, 1820; d. at Rio de Janeiro, April 11, 1882. Brazilian romantic novelist and playwright, often referred to as the father of the Brazilian novel. He was a physician, but did not practice, and became a college professor of history. Author of A moreninha, his most popular novel (1844), O moço louro (1845), Os dois amores (1848), Vicentina (1853), O forasteiro (1855), besides other novels and several volumes of plays.

Macedonia (mas.ę.dō'ni.ą). [Also, Macedon (mas'ę-dọn).] In ancient geography, a country in SE Europe, of varying limits. It lay N of the Aegean Sea and Thessaly, E of Illyria, and W of Thrace, separated from Illyria by the Scardus Mountains. The chief rivers were the Axius (Vardar) and Strymon; the chief cities, Edessa, Pella, and Thessalonica. Macedonia was not originally a part of Hellas. It first became powerful under Philip II.

Its possession was contested by Alexander's successors, and was finally obtained (c278) by Antigonus II (Antigonus Gonatas). The Macedonians were defeated by Rome at Cynoscephalae in 197, and finally at Pydna in 168, and Macedonia was made a Roman province in 146. Parts of it are now in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, and Greece.

Macedonia. Diocese in the S part of the later Roman prefecture of Illyricum (Macedonia, Epirus, and Greece).

Macedonia. [Greek, Makedhonia, Makedonia; Serbo-Croatian, Makedonija; French, Macédoine (mȧ.sā.dwȧn); German, Mazedonien.] Region occupying the S central part of the Balkan Peninsula, comprising mainly the valleys of the Vardar, Vistritsa, and Strymon (or Struma) rivers and the surrounding mountainous country, having its base on the N shore of the Aegean Sea. The region has fertile valleys and partly wooded mountain ranges, and is famous for its tobacco. In antiquity, King Philip II of Macedonia united the country and made the Macedonian army the best-trained army of his time. He became the master of Greece. His son Alexander the Great conquered and dominated the entire Near East, making Macedonia the motherland of one of the greatest empires of history. After his death, Macedonia was contended for by his successors, and finally defeated (168 B.C.) by the Roman Empire. Later it passed to the Byzantine Empire, was then overrun by Slavic tribes, and came, during the 14th century, under Turkish rule. During the 19th century, the Christian population of Macedonia (Greeks, Bulgarians, and Serbs) was in chronic revolt and there were frequent uprisings, mostly in the nature of guerrilla warfare. The Inner Macedonian Revolutionary Organization, sponsored by Bulgaria, was particularly powerful and very dangerous to the Turkish regime. In the same period the Turkish reform party of the Young Turks originated in Macedonia. The bloody anarchy reached its peak in the first decade of the 20th century. The Balkan Wars broke out in 1912. The Turks were driven out quickly but the victorious Serbians, Greeks, and Bulgarians fought for the spoils. The region was subsequently embroiled in World Wars I and II. The division of the country into a Greek Macedonia (to the south, along the Aegean coast), a Yugoslav Macedonia (to the north along the Vardar and Vistritsa rivers), and a smaller Bulgarian Macedonia (to the east, along the Strymon River) was not altered after World War II. Greek immigration into Greek Macedonia, Yugoslav immigration into Yugoslav Macedonia, and large-scale population transfers have stabilized the ethnic situation along more permanent lines. Area, ab. 25,000 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 3,250,000.

Macedonia. [Greek, Makedhonia, Makedonia.] Dhiamerismon (district) in N Greece, including the nomoi (departments) of Agion Oros, Kavalla, Chalcidice, Drama, Florina, Kilkis, Kozani, Pella, Serrai, and Thessaloniki. Area, ab. 13,360 sq. mi.; pop. 1,731,889 (1940).

Macedonia. [Serbo-Croatian, Makedonija; Greek, Makedhonia, Makedonia.] Federative unit in the Federal People's Republic of Yugoslavia, established 1945, comprising the S part of the former banovina (province) of Vardarska. It is bounded on the N by Serbia, on the E by Bulgaria, on the S by Greece, and on the W by Albania. The surface is generally hilly or mountainous, and is traversed by the Vardar River. The most rugged mountain region lies along the Albanian border. The climate is continental, with hot summers and cold winters. Economically the region is the most backward in Yugoslavia, although it is potentially rich in agricultural and mineral resources and in water power. Macedonian hemp and tobacco are widely known, and there are copper mines in Trepka near Skoplje. There is no significant industrial development and the population is chiefly occupied with agriculture and the raising of livestock. Macedonia is of great commercial as well as strategic importance because the valley of the Vardar provides the only easy connection between the Danubian countries to the north and the Aegean Sea, particularly the port of Salonika. The population was formerly ethnically and religiously mixed, with Serbians, Bulgarians, Albanians, Greeks, Turks, Jews, and Gypsies forming separate communities. However, in recent decades many of the non-Serbian nationalities (with the exception of the Albanians) emigrated, and Serbian peasants were settled on the S frontier. The region was under Turkish sovereignty for centuries; it was conquered and occupied by Serbia during the Balkan Wars, and was defended against the Bulgarians; it was occupied by the Germans and Austrians during World War I and again during World War II. Capital, Skoplje; area, ab. 10,229 sq. mi.; pop. 1,152,986 (1948).

Macedonian Empire (mas.ę.dō'ni.ȧn). Empire built up by Philip II (who reigned 359–336 B.C.) and his son Alexander the Great (336–323). It included at its greatest extent Macedonia, Greece, Thrace, Asia Minor, Syria, Egypt, Mesopotamia, Babylonia, Assyria, part of Armenia, and the countries comprised in what are now Iran, Afghanistan, Baluchistan, W India, and a large part of C Asia. The empire was divided under Alexander's successors, the chief divisions being Macedonia, Egypt, Syria, Pergamum, Bithynia, Rhodes, and Greek states.

Macedonians. Natives or inhabitants of ancient Macedonia, by the 14th century a mixture of Greeks, Albanians, Serbs, Bulgarians, Turks. Hellenic culture predominated, and they also used the Greek language.

Macedonians. [Also: Marathonians, Pneumatomachi.] Followers of Macedonius, bishop of Constantinople in the 4th century A.D., who denied the distinct existence and Godhead of the Holy Spirit, which he conceived to be a creature or merely a divine energy diffused through the universe. The Semi-Arians were often called by this name.

Macedonian Wars. Wars between Rome and Macedonia: 1. 214–205 B.C., when Philip V fought in alliance with Carthage; 2. 200–197 B.C., when Philip V was defeated by Flamininus at Cynoscephalae (197); 3. 171–168 B.C., when Perseus was defeated by Aemilius Paulus at Pydna (168); 4. 149–148 B.C., soon after which Macedonia was made a Roman province.

Macedonius (mas.ę.dō'ni.us). fl. c350 A.D.; d. c364. Patriarch (342–360) of Constantinople, founder of the sect of Macedonians. Intruded into the see of Constantinople by the Arians (342), after the expulsion of bishop Paul by Constantius, Macedonius persecuted both Catholics and Novatians, because they believed the equality of the Son with the Father. His own sect, founded toward the end of his life, denied the divinity of the Holy Ghost (hence another name, Pneumatomachi, "opponents of the Spirit"). Macedonius was deposed in 360 by the Acaian party because of his cruelty and misconduct.

Maceió (mä.sā.ô'). City in NE Brazil, capital of the state of Alagoas: export port for cotton and sugar. It has sugar-refining, cotton textile, and tobacco industries. 102,301 (1950).

Maček (mä'chek), Vladimir. b. in Croatia, Austria-Hungary (in territory now part of Yugoslavia), 1879—. Yugoslav political leader and head (1928 et seq.) of the Croat Peasant Party.

Maceo (mä.sā'ō), Antonio. b. at Santiago de Cuba, July 14, 1848; d. near Mariel, Cuba, Dec. 2, 1896. Cuban military leader, distinguished in the Ten Years' War (1868–78) against Spain; brother of José Maceo. He lived successively in Jamaica, the U.S., South America, and Costa Rica, returning to Cuba in 1895, with his brother, to support the rebellion of that year.

Maceo, José. b. at Santiago de Cuba, 1846; d. July 5, 1896. Cuban patriot; brother of Antonio Maceo. He fought in the Ten Years' War (1868–78), was one of the leaders of the insurrection of 1879, and was deported to Spain, but escaped from the Balearic Islands, where he was imprisoned, and went to Costa Rica in 1885. In 1895 he went to Cuba, raised a large force, and, with his brother, inflicted defeats on the Spaniards in May and in September.

Macerata (mä.chā.rä'tä). Province in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Marches. Area, ab. 1,071 sq. mi.; pop. 290,057 (1936).

Macerata. City and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Marches, the capital of the province of Macerata, S of Ancona. An agricultural trade center, it also has manufactures of musical instruments. It has a college of law, with the rank of a university, founded in the 13th century, a Jesuit college, an art museum, an ornithological museum, a museum of the Risorgimento, and several libraries. There are various buildings of architectural interest, mainly of the Renaissance period (15th and 16th centuries), including the churches of Santa Maria delle Vergini and Santa Maria della Misericordia, the Palazzo Marefoschi, and others; these were undamaged in World War II. Pop. of commune, 26,708 (1936); of city, 14,472 (1936).

Mac Erc (mak ārk'), Fergus. See Fergus mac Erc.

Maceroni (mä.chā.rō'nē), Francis. b. at Manchester, England, 1788; d. at London, July 25, 1846. English inventor and military adventurer. He was an aide-de-camp to Joachim Murat, King of Naples, in 1814, and afterward was in the service of the Republic of Colombia, for which he procured supplies of men and arms at Paris and London. He invented an improved steam coach for common roads, which was, however, rendered valueless by the introduction of railways.

MacEwen (mąk.ū'ęn), Walter. b. at Chicago, 1860; d. 1943. American painter. He painted portraits and many landscapes and genre subjects, notably a series done in the Netherlands, and he assisted in the decoration of the buildings of the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893.

Macfarlane (mąk.fär'ląn), Alexander. b. at Blairgowrie, Scotland, April 21, 1851; d. Aug. 28, 1913. American mathematician.

Macfarlane, Charles William. b. at Philadelphia, Nov. 5, 1850; d. May 15, 1931. American economist.

Macfarren (mąk.far'ęn), Sir George Alexander. b. at London, March 2, 1813; d. there, Oct. 31, 1887. English composer and writer on music. Among his works are the operas The Devil's Opera (1838), Don Quixote (1846), Robin Hood (1860), and Jossy Lea (1863), and the oratorios Saint John the Baptist (1873), The Resurrection (1876), and Joseph (1877), besides a number of cantatas and numerous cathedral services. He also published Rudiments of Harmony (1860) and Six Lectures on Harmony (1866), and harmonized Chappell's Popular Music of the Olden Time. From about 1860 he was totally blind.

Macfirbis (mak.fėr'bis), Duald. b. 1585; d. 1670. Last of the hereditary chroniclers of Ireland. His chief work is a treatise on Irish genealogy, completed in 1650.

MacFlecknoe, or a Satire on the True Blue Protestant Poet T. S. (mak.flek'nō). Satirical poem by John Dryden (1682), directed against Thomas Shadwell. It served as a model for the Dunciad of Alexander Pope. Flecknoe was a Roman Catholic priest very much addicted to scribbling verses. His name has been chiefly preserved by this satire, in which the author has depicted Shadwell as the literary son and heir of this "wretched poetaster."

MacGahan (mą.gan'), Januarius Aloysius. b. in Ohio, June 12, 1844; d. at Constantinople, June 9, 1878. American journalist and war correspondent. He was correspondent for the New York Herald during the Franco-Prussian War (1870–71), went on the Russian expedition against Khiva in 1873, described in Campaigning on the Oxus, and the Fall of Khiva (1874), and accompanied the Arctic expedition on the Pandora in 1875, described in Under the Northern Lights. In 1876 he began a celebrated series of letters to the London Daily News, collected in The Turkish Atrocities in Bulgaria (1876).

Macgill (mą.gil'), Patrick. b. in County Donegal, Ireland, 1890—. Irish poet, novelist, and playwright. His writings include Gleanings from a Navvy's Scrap Book, Songs of a Navvy, Songs of the Dead End, Children of the Dead End, The Rat-Pit, The Great Push, Soldier Songs, Songs of Donegal, and Sid Puddiefoot. Among his plays are Moleskin Joe (1921), Suspense (1930), and So Said the Women (1938).

Macgillicuddy's Reeks (mą.gil'i.kud.iz rēks'). See Macgillycuddy's Reeks.

MacGillivray (mą.gil'i.vrā), William. b. at Old Aberdeen, Scotland, Jan. 25, 1796; d. at Aberdeen, Scotland, Sept. 4, 1852. Scottish naturalist, noted as an ornithologist. His chief work is a History of British Birds (5 vols., 1837–52). He aided J. J. Audubon in preparing Birds of America.

Macgillycuddy's Reeks or Macgillicuddy's Reeks (mą.gil'i.kud.iz rēks'). Mountain range in SW Irish Republic, in County Kerry, ab. 10 mi. SW of Killarney. It contains Carrantuohill, the highest summit in Ireland (elevation, 3,414 ft.).

MacGowan (mą.gou'ąn), Kenneth. b. at Winthrop, Mass., Nov. 30, 1888—. American theatrical and motion-picture producer, dramatic critic, and author. He was dramatic critic (1910–25) for such newspapers as the Boston Transcript, Philadelphia Evening Ledger, and New York Globe, and the magazines Vogue and Theatre Arts. He established himself (1927–29) as an independent producer, was an associate (1933–35) with RKO-Radio Pictures, for which he produced Little Women, La Cucaracha, Becky Sharp, and other films, and was an associate (1935–41) with Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, for which he produced Lloyd's of London and Manhunt. Author of The Theatre of Tomorrow (1921), Footlights Across America (1929), and other books.

MacGrath (mą.grath'), Harold. b. at Syracuse, N.Y., Sept. 4, 1871; d. Oct. 29, 1932. American novelist. Among his works are Arms and the Woman (1899), The Puppet Crown (1901), The Grey Cloak (1903), The Man on the Box (1904), Half a Rogue (1906), The Lure of the Mask (1908), The Goose Girl (1909), A Splendid Hazard (1910), and The Carpet from Bagdad (1911).

Macgreegor (mą.greg'ọr), Wee. See under Bell, John Joy.

MacGregor (mą.greg'ọr), Charles Winters. b. at Dayton, Ohio, May 25, 1908—. American mechanical engineer.

Macgregor (mą.greg'ọr), John. b. at Gravesend, England, Jan. 24, 1825; d. at Boscombe, near Bournemouth, England, July 16, 1892. English traveler. He invented (c1865) the "Rob Roy" canoe, in which he made trips in many parts of the world, publicizing it in such books as A Thousand Miles in the Rob Roy Canoe on Rivers and Lakes in Europe (1866), The Rob Roy on the Jordan, Red Sea, and Gennesareth (1869), and others.

Macgregor or Campbell, Robert. [Commonly called Rob Roy.] b. in Buchanan parish, Scotland, 1671; d. at Balquhidder, Scotland, Dec. 28, 1734. Scottish outlaw. He was the younger son of Donald Macgregor, a lieutenant colonel in the army of James II. He got his name Roy from his red hair. After the accession of William III he obtained a commission from James II, and in 1691 made a descent on Stirlingshire. In 1712 he was evicted and outlawed on a charge of embezzlement. He became a Highland freebooter, and was included in the Act of Attainder. Under the protection of the Duke of Argyll, he continued to levy blackmail on the Scottish gentry. He is the subject of a novel by Sir Walter Scott (published in 1818).

Mach (mäch), Ernst. b. at Turas, in Moravia, Feb. 18, 1838; d. near Munich, Feb. 19, 1916. Austrian physicist. He contributed to psychology by way of actual experimentation, and is known for his epistemological theory of the relation of psychology to physics. His experimental contribution is reported in his Lehre von den Bewegungsempfindungen (1875), in which he describes his experiments on the perception of rotation, the apparatus used in the study, and a theory of the functioning of the semicircular canals. In his Analyse der Empfindungen (1886) he held that sensations were the data of all science, and that a scientific law was a correlation between observed data. This work had a direct influence on O. Külpe and on E. B. Titchener, the American psychologist. It also anticipated some of Karl Pearson's views on science, and, possibly to a lesser extent, the views of Gestalt psychology. The Mach number, important in the theory of flight, especially of flight at speeds above sound velocity, is named for him. Among his works are Optischakustische Versuche (1873–1908), Die Mechanik in ihrer Entwickelung (1883), Beiträge zur Analyse der Empfindungen (1886; republished in 1903 as Die Analyse der Empfindungen und das Verhältnis des Physischen zum Psychischen), Die Prinzipien der Wärmelehre (1900), and Erkenntnis und Irrtum: Skizzen zur Psychologie der Forschung (1905).

Macha (mä'ha). See Morrigan.

Machado (mą.shä'dö), Augusto d'Oliveira. b. at Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 27, 1845; d. there, March 28, 1924. Portuguese composer. He composed a symphonic ode, piano selections, operas, and about 20 operettas, among which are O Sol de Navarra (1870) and O Espadachin do Outeiro (1910).

Machado, Bernardino Luiz. b. at Rio de Janeiro, 1851; d. 1944. Portuguese politician, scholar, and writer, president (1915–17) of the Portuguese republic. From the beginning (1882) of his political career sympathetic to the republican party, he was appointed foreign minister in the government which followed the 1910 revolution and served (1914) as prime minister. Forced by a revolution to surrender the presidency, he was later again prime minister (1921) and president (1925–26) but was banished in 1927 from Portugal for participation in activity against the government.

Machado, Diogo Barbosa. See Barbosa Machado, Diogo.

Machado (mä.chä'ᵺō), Manuel. b. at Seville, Spain, Aug. 29, 1874; d. at Madrid, Jan. 20, 1947. Spanish librarian and writer; brother of Antonio Machado Ruiz. He wrote under the influence of the French symbolists and the Latin-American modernist Rubén Darío. His retratos (portraits) of great historical figures are among the best compositions in Spanish literature. He collaborated with his brother in writing several plays. Author of Caprichos (1905–08) and Sevilla y otros poemas (1918).

Machado de Assís (mą.shä'dō dē ą.sēs'), Joaquim Maria. See Assís, Joaquim Maria Machado de.

Machado Ruiz (mä.chä'ᵺō rö.ēth'), Antonio. b. at Seville, Spain, 1875; d. in exile in France, 1939. Spanish poet; brother of Manuel Machado, with whom he collaborated in writing several plays. Although Andalusian by birth, he is considered the poet of Castile because of his close harmony with the landscape of that austere region and its profound influence on his mood. Most of his poetical works have been collected in Poesías completas.

Machado y Morales (mä.chä'ᵺō ē mō.rä'lās), Gerardo. b. at Santa Clara, Cuba, Sept. 29, 1871; d. at Miami Beach, Fla., March 29, 1939. President of Cuba (1924–33). In the final struggle of the Cuban people against Spanish rule he fought among the insurrectos, and during that time became, in 1896, mayor of the city of Santa Clara, holding office for several years. Prospering in the tobacco industry, he continued to take a hand in political affairs, was elected governor of Santa Clara province in 1908, and became president of Cuba in 1924. He worked especially to end U.S. economic hegemony over Cuba, by means of nullification of the Platt Amendment and by developing Cuban industry. Once in office, he is alleged to have developed dictatorial tendencies. As a candidate for the presidency he had promised not to seek a second term, but he brought about a constitutional amendment to extend a president's incumbency to six years. Secret societies plotted against his administration, and in 1931 there was an abortive revolt in which organized workers and university students were to the fore. Machado, having put down this movement, was accused of instigating reprisals so ruthless and brutal that U.S. intervention ensued, and when a general strike and a mutiny in the army left him powerless, he fled to the U.S. in 1933.

Machala (mä.chä'lä). City in SW Ecuador, capital of El Oro province: center of a gold-mining area; trade in cacao, coffee, and hides. 7,730 (est. 1944).

Ma Chan-shan (mä' jän'shän'). b. in Liaoning, China, 1887; d. Nov. 29, 1950. Chinese soldier who achieved fame for resisting the Japanese invasion (1931) of Manchuria, accepting (1932) for 42 days the post of war minister in the puppet Manchukuo government, and then again, in possession of funds and information, turning against the invaders. Forced out of northern Manchuria, he and his troops were permitted by the U.S.S.R. to traverse Siberia and reënter (1933) China via Sinkiang.

Machar (mä'ʜär), Josef Svatopluk. b. at Kolín, in what is now Czechoslovakia, 1864; d. 1942. Czech poet and essayist. His most extensive work is a cycle of poems, Svědomí věků (The Conscience of the Ages, 1901–21), which deals with the development of mankind from Babylon to the present century. The binding thread is the author's contrast between classical and Christian civilization, and it provides an opportunity for the exploration of the many social and political themes in which Machar was interested. He is best known for his critique of Catholic culture, his opposition to romantic nationalism, and his exaltation of antiquity.

Machault (mä.shō'), Fort. See under Franklin, Pa.

Machault or Machaut (mä.shō), Guillaume de. See Guillaume de Machault (or Machaut).

Macheath (mak.hēth'), Captain. Principal character in John Gay's Beggar's Opera: a gay and dissolute highwayman.

Machecourt (mäsh.kör). Pseudonym of Lavedan, Henri Léon Émile.

Machen (mak'ęn), Arthur. b. at Caerleon, Monmouthshire, England, 1863; d. at Beaconsfield, England, Dec. 15, 1947. English novelist and essayist, noted for his stories of fantasy.

Machen, John Gresham. b. at Baltimore, July 28, 1881; d. at Bismarck, N.D., Jan. 1, 1937. American theologian, founder (1936) of the Presbyterian Church of America. He taught until 1929 at Princeton Theological Seminary, but never reached the rank of full professor, since the general assembly of the church refused (1926) to ratify his appointment on the grounds of his fundamentalism. Although this led to an investigation of the Seminary and the formation of a new board of control, he withdrew (1929) to become professor of New Testament at Westminster Theological Seminary at Philadelphia, which he founded and of which he was president. As a protest (1931) against the liberalism of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions he established (1933) an independent board. Having as a result been found guilty of disciplinary misdemeanors by a special church court he was suspended (1935). His subsequent secession with a group of followers led to his establishment of the new church group.

Machias (mą.chī'ąs). Town in SE Maine, county seat of Washington County: lumbering and boatbuilding center. 2,063 (1950).

Machiavelli or Macchiavelli (mak''i.ą.vel'i; Italian, mä.kyä.vel'lē), Niccolò. b. at Florence, Italy, May 3, 1469; d. there, June 22, 1527. Florentine statesman and author. His father, a lawyer, was the hereditary owner of a small farm south of the city. Niccolò received a good education of the humanist type, of which no precise details have reached us. He came first into public view in June, 1498, on his appointment as secretary both of the Second Chancery and of the Ten in Charge of War. Although these were purely administrative posts, his zeal and marked political acumen gradually won him an important share in shaping policy, especially after Piero Soderini became (1502) gonfalonier (chief executive) for life. When the Florentine republic fell (1512) and the Medici returned to power he was dismissed from office and never again employed. As politics were the breath of life to him, he solaced himself by turning to the theoretical study of politics with its focal center in the state. His leading works in this field are Il Principe (The Prince), Arte della Guerra (Art of War), and Discorsi sopra le Prima Deca di Tito Livio (Discourses on the First Ten Books of Livy). With the Istorie fiorentini (History of Florence) he ventured with much less success into the field of history, and with a number of comedies, of which La Mandragola is the outstanding example, he took rank among the leading dramatists of his time. Of the many editions of his works the handiest to consult is Tutte le Opere Storiche e Letterarie a cura di Guido Manzoni e Mario Casella (Florence, 1929). There are English versions of all his works, particularly of The Prince. With his story of the functioning of the state, particularly as presented by The Prince, Machiavelli stirred up a furore which has not subsided down to our day. The reason is simple: throughout the Middle Ages political writers, theologically inspired, had accepted the state as a divine agency and had concerned themselves with expounding how, in view of its origin, it ought to act, but living in a new and frankly secular age, Machiavelli faced a new kind of state, the absolute monarchy, and with cold, scientific detachment set himself to describe its actual behavior. He had no difficulty in showing that the state which had recently taken over the many small principalities of Italy and, far more strikingly, the great monarchies of France, Spain, and England, practiced an unlimited sovereignty, the goal of which was power. Consequently, he deduced that modern states, no longer checked by considerations of religion and morality, dealt with one another on the level of unadulterated power politics. While this contention, commonly called Machiavellianism or Machiavellism, was and has continued to be heatedly rejected by many political scientists, it has so frequently been found to be in accord with the facts that its author has throughout the ages been alternately vilified and praised. The outstanding biography is Niccolò Machiavelli e i suoi Tempi, by P. Villari (3 vols., 1877–82; Eng. trans. by Linda Villari, 2 vols., 1898).

Machico (mą.shē'kō). Town and concelho (commune) in the Madeira Islands, belonging to Portugal, situated on the E coast of the island of Madeira, NE of Funchal. Pop. of concelho, 19,820 (1940); of town, 12,420 (1940).

Machigonne (mach.i.gon'). Indian name of Portland, Me.

Machin (mā'kin) or Macham (-kąm), Robert. Legendary discoverer of Madeira. He is represented as an English squire who fled from England with his inamorata, Anna d'Arset or Dorset, daughter of a powerful noble at the court of Edward III. The vessel in which he sailed was driven by stress of weather to the coast of an unknown island, where he landed with part of the crew at a port which they named Machico. During their absence the ship was driven out to sea, and Anna, who had remained on board, died of grief and fatigue, while Machin and his companions made their way to Spain and thence to England. His story incited the Spanish and the Portuguese to search for the island, which was found by Gonsalvez Zarco in 1419. The legend was first printed in the Descobrimentos of Antonio Galvano (1503–57), of which Hakluyt published a translation in 1601.

Machinjiri (mä.chēn.jē'rē). See Chinjiri.

Machmal (mäch.mäl'), Jebel el-. See under the Lebanon range.

Machpelah (mak.pē'lą). In Old Testament history, a cave in Hebron, Palestine (now in W Jordan); the burial place of the patriarchs. Gen. xxiii. 9.

Machu Picchu (mä'chö pēk'chö). Large Inca site, now in ruins, on a high ridge near Cusco, Peru. The site consists of a complex of terraces, courts, temples, dwelling compounds, and fortifications; most of the structures are of rough stone, though some are constructed of carefully cut and fitted pieces.

Macias el Enamorado (mä.thē'äs el ā.nä.mō.rä'ŦHŌ). Spanish gentleman and troubadour of the first half of the 15th century. He is supposed to have been killed in prison by a knight of Porcuna whose wife he loved and had serenaded with amorous verses composed in her honor. His few poems were at one time greatly admired and his fate was for a time a popular literary theme.

Macia y Llusa (mä.sē'ä ē lyö'sä), Francisco. b. at Villanueva y Geltrú, Spain, Oct. 21, 1859; d. at Barcelona, Spain, Dec. 25, 1933. Spanish statesman. When he joined the separatist party of Catalonia to become a member of the Cortes in 1907 he gave up an army career to be the collaborator of Cambó in the Acción Catalán. In 1924 he was forced to leave Spain for his activities but continued working from Paris for Catalan independence. In 1926 he was arrested for plotting armed intervention. After the fall of Primo de Rivera in 1930 he returned to Barcelona, but was soon rearrested by General Berenguer. The amnesty of 1931 freed him once more and his record made him the ideal candidate for the presidency of an independent Catalan republic which was proclaimed by Esquerra, the leading leftist party, on April 14, 1931. He became president of the Catalan government called Generalitat and remained at its head during negotiations with the Madrid government for Catalan autonomy. This was arranged in 1932 and Macia then rejoined the Cortes. He was beloved by peasants and workers, and became truly "the granddad" (El Avi) of the Catalan separatist movement.

Macie (mā'si), James Lewis (or Louis). See Smithson, James.

Maciejowski (ma.che.yôf'skē), Waclaw Alexander. b. 1793; d. Feb. 10, 1883. Polish historian.

Maciel Parente (mą.syel' pą.rān'tę), Bento. b. c1570; d. in Rio Grande do Norte, Brazil, in February, 1642. Portuguese soldier in Brazil.

Macintosh (mak'in.tosh), Charles. b. at Glasgow, Dec. 29, 1766; d. at Dunchattan, near Glasgow, July 25, 1843. Scottish chemist and inventor, chiefly known as the inventor of the waterproof fabric called macintosh or mackintosh cloth, patented in 1823. He introduced from the Netherlands the manufacture of sugar of lead (lead acetate) in 1786, started the first alum works in Scotland in 1797, and in 1828 assisted J. B. Neilson in bringing into use his "hot-blast" process for converting iron into steel.

Macintosh, Douglas Clyde. b. at Breadalbane, Ontario, Canada, Feb. 18, 1877—. American theologian. He was professor of theology (1916–42) at Yale, and chairman of the department of religion (1920–38) at Yale Graduate School.

Macintyre (mak'in.tīr). See Darling.

Mačiulis (mä.chö'lis), Jonas. [Pseudonym, Maironis.] b. at Pasandravis, Šiluva township, Lithuania, Nov. 2, 1862; d. at Kaunas, Lithuania, June 28, 1932. Lithuanian poet. He was the author of the collection Pavasario balsai (Voices of Spring, 1894). This collection began a new period in Lithuanian literature and was published many times.

MacIvor (mąk.ē'vọr), Fergus. Highland chief, a character in Sir Walter Scott's novel Waverley.

MacIvor, Flora. Sister of Fergus MacIvor, and the principal female character, in Sir Walter Scott's novel Waverley.

Mack (mak), Connie. [Full name, Cornelius McGillicuddy.] b. at East Brookfield, Mass., Dec. 23, 1862—. American professional baseball player and manager. He became a professional player when he joined (1884) the Meriden, Conn., team, was a catcher (1886–89) for the Washington, D.C., team, manager (1891–96) of the Pittsburgh team, catcher and manager (1897–1900) of the Milwaukee team, and became (1901) manager of the Philadelphia Athletics in the newly formed American League. Under his leadership the team won nine league pennants (in 1902, 1905, 1910, 1911, 1913, 1914, 1929, 1930, and 1931), and won the World Series in 1910, 1911, 1913, 1929, and 1930. He retired at the end of the 1950 season.

Mack, Norman Edward. b. at Buffalo, N.Y., July 24, 1858; d. Dec. 26, 1932. American newspaper proprietor. He founded (1879) the Buffalo Sunday Times, and established (1883) and edited (1883–1929) the Buffalo Daily Times.

Mackail (mą.kāl'), Denis George. b. June 3, 1892—. English novelist; son of John William Mackail. Author of Romance to the Rescue (1921), Bill the Bachelor (1922), What Next? (1923), The "Majestic" Mystery (1924), The Fortunes of Hugo (1926), Tales from Greenery Street (1928), How Amusing! (1929), Having Fun (1933), The Wedding (1935), London Lovers (1938), Tales for a Godchild (1944), Huddleston House (1945), and We're Here! (1947).

Mackail, John William. b. at Ascog, Buteshire, Scotland, Aug. 26, 1859; d. 1945. British scholar; father of Angela Thirkell and of Denis George Mackail. He published Select Epigrams from the Greek Anthology (1890), Biblia Innocentium (1891–93), Latin Literature (1895), Life of William Morris (1899), a translation of the Odyssey (1903–10), The Springs of Helicon (1909), and Lectures on Greek Poetry (1910).

Mackay (mą.kī'). Town in E Queensland, Australia: a seaport with trade in sugar, pineapples, and bananas. 13,486 (1947).

MacKay, Alexander Howard. b. at Mount Dalhousie, Nova Scotia, May 19, 1848; d. May 19, 1929. Canadian biologist, superintendent of education in Nova Scotia from 1891.

Mackay (mą.kī'), Alexander Murdoch. b. at Rhynie, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Oct. 13, 1849; d. in Usambiro, Africa, Feb. 8, 1890. Scottish missionary in Africa.

Mackay, Charles. b. at Perth, Scotland, March 27, 1814; d. at London, Dec. 24, 1889. Scottish poet. He was editor (1844–47) of the Glasgow Argus, editor (1852–59) of the Illustrated London News, and special New York correspondent of the London Times during the Civil War. He revealed in the Times in 1862 the existence of the Fenian conspiracy in America. Among his works are The Salamandrine, or Love and Immortality (1842), Voices from the Crowd (1846), Voices from the Mountains (1847), and History of the Mormons (1851).

Mackay (mak'i), Clarence Hungerford. b. at San Francisco, April 17, 1874; d. at New York, Nov. 12, 1938. American capitalist; son of John William Mackay. He was chairman of the board of the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, and president of the Commercial Cable Company, Commercial Pacific Cable Company, Mackay Companies, and others. After the consolidation of the several companies, he was a director of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation.

Mackay (mą.kī'), Donald James. [Title, 11th Baron Reay.] b. at The Hague, Netherlands, Dec. 22, 1839; d. 1921. British statesman and scholar.

Mackay, Hugh. b. at Scourie, Sutherlandshire, Scotland, c1640; killed at Steenkerke, Belgium, July 24, 1692. Scottish general. He was commander (1688) of the English and Scots division in William III's expedition into England, and commander in chief (1689) of the forces in Scotland. He was defeated (1689) at Killiecrankie by Graham of Claverhouse, Viscount Dundee, who was killed. He led the Steenkerke attack (July 24, 1692), where he and most of his division were slain.

Mackay, Sir Iven Giffard. b. at Grafton, New South Wales, Australia, April 7, 1882—. Australian army officer. He headed (1940–41) the sixth division of the Australian army, which was active in Lybia, Greece, and Crete. He was commander in chief (1941–42) of the Australian home forces, and when the army was reorganized (March, 1942), he was named one of the two commanders covering the complete Australian continent. He was commander (1943) of the New Guinea forces.

Mackay, James. b. in the parish of Kildonan, Sutherlandshire, Scotland, c1759; d. March 16, 1822. Scottish explorer in America. He came (c1776) to Canada, and explored the region of the upper lakes and the far West for the British. As head (1795–97) of the Spanish expedition along both sides of the Missouri River and to the Pacific coast, he prepared a map later used by Lewis and Clark.

Mackay, James Lyle. See Inchcape, 1st Earl.

Mackay, John Henry. b. at Greenock, Scotland, June 2, 1864; d. at Berlin, May 16, 1933. German poet and prose writer, at one time a naturalist and later (as a disciple of Max Stirner) known as an anarchist. He was taken from Scotland to live in Germany at the age of two. His first poems, Arma parata fero (1886), fell afoul of the German antisocialist law and were forbidden. Die Anarchisten (1891) portrays London proletarian conditions. He wrote a biography of Stirner in 1898.

Mackay (mak'i), John William. b. at Dublin, Nov. 28, 1831; d. at London, July 20, 1902. American miner and financier, notable for his spectacular success (1873) in the California mining fields and for organization of the Postal Telegraph Company. He moved (1851) to California, and obtained (1865) control of the Hale and Norcross mine, site of the "Big Bonanza" (1873) of the Comstock lode. Moving (1876) to New York, he founded (1883) with James Gordon Bennett the Commercial Cable Company, laid (1884) two submarine cables to Europe, and organized (1886) the Postal Telegraph Cable Company, breaking the monopoly of Jay Gould and the Western Union Company.

Mackay (mą.kī'), Mary. See Corelli, Marie.

Mackay (mak'i), William Andrew. b. at Philadelphia, July 10, 1878; d. Aug. 7, 1939. American mural painter. His work includes murals in the Senate Reading Room of the Library of Congress, the Minneosta House of Representatives at St. Paul, the Roosevelt memorial, New York, the State Office Building at Albany, N.Y., and the Chicago Opera House.

MacKaye (mą.kī'), Benton. b. at Stamford, Conn., March 6, 1879—. American forester and authority on regional planning, who proposed (1921) construction of the Appalachian Trail from Mount Katahdin, in Maine, to Mount Oglethorpe, in Georgia. He planned (1930) a highway system that would avoid towns and carried out such plans in western Connecticut (1931–32). He also worked on regional planning for the Tennessee Valley Authority (1934–36) and with the Rural Electrification Administration (1942–43).

MacKaye, Percy. b. at New York, March 16, 1875—. American dramatist and poet; son of Steele MacKaye. He has written The Canterbury Pilgrims (1903), A Modern Rendering into Prose of Chaucer's Tales (1904), Prologue to the Saint-Gaudens Masque (1905), Fenris the Wolf (1905), Jeanne d'Arc (1906), Sappho and Phaon (1907), The Playhouse and the Play (1909), Steele MacKaye (1911), The Civic Theatre (1911), and others. His blank-verse tetralogy, The Mystery of Hamlet, King of Denmark, or What We Will, set in the period preceding that of Shakespeare's Hamlet, was published in 1950.

MacKaye, Steele. [Full name, James Morrison Steele MacKaye.] b. at Buffalo, N.Y., June 6, 1842; d. at Timpas, Colo., Feb. 25, 1894. American actor and playwright. He studied at Paris under Delsarte. He appeared in 1872 on the stage at London, and later built and managed the Madison Square Theater (1880) and the Lyceum Theater (1885) at New York, and the Spectatorium at the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago (1893). He also founded (1885) the first school of acting in America. Among his plays, in some of which he acted the chief role, are Marriage (1872), Won at Last (1877), Hazel Kirke (1880), Paul Kauvar (1887), Money Mad (1889), An Arrant Knave (1890), and The World-Finder (1893).

Macke (mäk'ę), August. b. at Meschede, Germany, Jan. 3, 1887; d. in Champagne, France, Sept. 26, 1914. German painter. He studied at the Düsseldorf Academy, then traveled to Italy, Paris, and Berlin. Later he went to Munich, and in 1914 went to North Africa with Paul Klee. His early works were impressionistic, but later he was influenced by cubism, futurism, and expressionism. Among his works are Portrait of Franz Marc, Four Women, and Boulevard.

Mackellar (mą.kel'ąr), Patrick. b. in Scotland, 1717; d. in Minorca, Oct. 22, 1778. English military engineer. He accompanied (1754) General Edward Braddock to America, where he assisted in constructing roads and bridges in advance of the army, moving from Alexandria, Va., across the Alleghenies. He was appointed (1756) chief engineer of the frontier forts, and was taken captive at Oswego. He succeeded Bastide as engineer in command at the capture (1758) of Louisburg, was chief engineer (1759) under General James Wolfe at the capture of Quebec, where he was wounded, was chief engineer (1762) under General Robert Monckton at the capture of Martinique, where he conducted siege operations, and was engineer (1762–63) under George Keppel, 3rd Earl of Albemarle, at the siege of Havana, where he constructed underground defenses.

MacKellar (mą.kel'ąr), Thomas. b. at New York, Aug. 12, 1812; d. Dec. 29, 1899. American printer and poet. Author of The American Printer (1866) and five volumes of poetry: Droppings from the Heart (1844), Tam's Fortnight Ramble and Other Poems (1847), Rhymes Atween-Times (1873), Hymns and a Few Metrical Psalms (1883), and Faith, Hope, Love, These Three (1893).

Mackensen (mäk'ęn.zęn), August von. b. at Leipnitz, Germany, Dec. 6, 1849; d. at Falkenwalde, Germany, Nov. 8, 1945. German general. He was at one time the history teacher of Kaiser William II, whom he accompanied on a visit to Palestine in 1898. At the outbreak of World War I he served on the Eastern front. He was in command in Galicia (1915) during the breakthrough at Gorlice. He occupied Serbia in 1916, and was military governor (1917–18) of Rumania.

Mackenzie (mą.ken'zi). District of the Northwest Territories, Canada. It is bounded by Beaufort Sea and other Arctic waters on the N, Keewatin district on the E, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia on the S, and the Yukon Territory on the W. It has many lakes, the Great Slave and the Great Bear being the largest. The Great Slave River flows NW from N Alberta into Great Slave Lake, and the Mackenzie NW from Great Slave Lake into Mackenzie Bay. Other rivers are the Liard (an affluent of the Mackenzie), the Coppermine, the upper waters of the Back, and the Kazan. The W part of the district is densely forested. The climate is of an extreme continental type, with long, bitterly cold winters and short, warm summers. The territory is rich in mineral resources. Gold and silver are mined at Yellowknife; radium and uranium are mined near the E shore of Great Bear Lake. Oil is produced at Norman Wells. Area, ab. 527,490 sq. mi. (including ab. 34,265 sq. mi. of water); pop. 10,279 (1951).

Mackenzie, Sir Alexander. b. c1755; d. at Mulnain, near Dunkeld, Perthshire, Scotland, March 11, 1820. Scottish explorer. He entered the service of the Northwest Fur Company in 1779, and in 1789 commanded an exploring expedition to the Northwest, during which he discovered the Mackenzie River, June 29, 1789. He afterward conducted an expedition from Fort Chippewayan to the Pacific coast, which he reached near Cape Menzies, June 22, 1793, being the first white man to make the overland journey. He published Voyages on the River St. Lawrence and through the Continent of North America to the Frozen and Pacific Oceans in the years 1789 and 1793 (1801).

Mackenzie, Alexander. b. at Logierait, near Dunkeld, Perthshire, Scotland, Jan. 28, 1822; d. at Toronto, Canada, April 17, 1892. Canadian Liberal politician. He emigrated to Canada in 1842, became editor of the Lambton Shield at Sarnia, Ontario, in 1852, and was elected to the provincial parliament of Ontario in 1861. He entered the first Dominion House of Commons in 1867, and served as premier (1873–78).

Mackenzie, Sir Alexander Campbell. b. at Edinburgh, Aug. 22, 1847; d. at London, April 28, 1935. British composer. As principal (1888–1924) of the Royal Academy of Music and as conductor of the London Philharmonic (1892–99), he is credited with supplying much of the impetus behind the renaissance of English music. He composed operas, oratorios, cantatas, orchestral overtures, a pibroch for violin and orchestra, songs, and piano pieces.

Mackenzie, Alexander Slidell. [Original name, Alexander Slidell.] b. April 6, 1803; d. Sept. 13, 1848. American naval officer and author; brother of John Slidell. As officer on the Terrier, he assisted (1824) in suppressing piracy in the West Indies. He was court-martialed but exonerated for executing (1842) three seamen suspected of plotting mutiny on the Somers. Author of A Year in Spain (1829), Popular Essays on Naval Subjects (1833), The American in England (1835), Spain Revisited (1836), Life of Paul Jones (1841), Life of Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry (1840), and The Life of Stephen Decatur (1846).

Mackenzie, Arthur Stanley. b. at Pictou, Nova Scotia, Sept. 20, 1865; d. at Halifax, Nova Scotia, Oct. 2, 1938. Canadian physicist and educator, president (1911–31) of Dalhousie University.

Mackenzie, Compton. b. at West Hartlepool, England, Jan. 17, 1883—. English writer. During World War I, he served (1915) with the Dardanelles expedition, was military control officer (1916) at Athens, and was director (1917) of intelligence service in Syria. He was literary critic (1931–35) of the Daily Mail. His plays include The Gentleman in Grey (1906), Carnival (1912), Columbine (1920), and The Lost Cause (1931). Author of the novels The Passionate Elopement (1911), Carnival (1912), Sinister Street (1913), Guy and Pauline (1915), Sylvia Scarlett (1918), Sylvia and Michael (1919), The Altar Steps (1922), The Parson's Progress (1923), The Heavenly Ladder (1924), Vestal Fire (1927), Gallipoli Memories (1929), The Four Winds of Love (1937–45), A Musical Chair (1939), The Monarch of the Glen (1941), The Vital Flame (1946), Whiskey Galore (1947), and others. He also published Poems (1907).

Mackenzie, Henry. b. at Edinburgh, in August, 1745; d. there, Jan. 14, 1831. Scottish novelist. He wrote The Man of Feeling (anonymous, 1771), The Man of the World (1773), and Julia de Roubigné (1777). He wrote several plays, of which The Prince of Tunis (1773) achieved some success, but is principally known for his first-named novel, a very successful book.

Mackenzie, James Cameron. b. at Aberdeen, Scotland, Aug. 15, 1852; d. at New York, May 10, 1931. American educator, organizer and headmaster (1882–99) of the Lawrenceville School for boys at Lawrenceville, N.J.

Mackenzie, Sir Morell. b. at Leytonstone, Essex, England, July 7, 1837; d. at London, Feb. 3, 1892. English physician. He was invited to Berlin in 1887 to attend the Crown Prince of Germany (afterward Frederick III), who was attacked with a malady which eventually proved to be cancer of the throat, and which terminated fatally June 15, 1888. Among his works are Use of the Laryngoscope (1865) and Manual of Diseases of the Throat and Nose (1880–84).

Mackenzie, Ranald Slidell. b. at New York, July 27, 1840; d. at New Brighton, Staten Island, N.Y., Jan. 19, 1889. American soldier and Indian fighter; son of Alexander Slidell Mackenzie. While participating in the Texas campaigns against Indians he crossed (1873) the Rio Grande, wiped out an Indian camp, and precipitated a diplomatic crisis with Mexico. He was engaged (1876–77) with the Powder River expedition against the Indians in Nebraska.

Mackenzie, Robert Shelton. b. at Drews Court, County Limerick, Ireland, June 22, 1809; d. at Philadelphia, Nov. 30, 1880. Irish author.

Mackenzie, William Douglas. b. at Fauresmith, in Orange River Colony, South Africa, July 16, 1859; d. March 29, 1936. American theologian and Congregational clergyman. He was president (1904–30) of the Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Mackenzie, William Lyon. b. in Scotland, March 12, 1795; d. at Toronto, Canada, Aug. 28, 1861. Canadian politician and journalist, a leader of the Canadian rising (1837–38). He emigrated (1820) to Canada, settling at Queenston, Ontario, as a merchant. In 1824 he published the first number of the Colonial Advocate, calling for reform of the government of Upper Canada. In 1828 he was elected to the Canadian parliament, but was expelled; his reëlection and expulsion occurred five times. In 1832 he traveled to England to publicize his views on Canadian reform. He was elected (1834) mayor of Toronto, and later in the same year a member of parliament. He lost his seat in the Tory victory in the general election of 1836. He began publication of the Constitution, an extreme reform journal, in which he came eventually to advocate open revolt. In December, 1837, he headed an insurrection aimed at seizing control of the Toronto government, but the revolt failed and Mackenzie fled to the U.S. He occupied, with his followers, Navy Island in the Niagara River between the U.S. and Canada and thus precipitated a crisis between the two countries: the rebels used a U.S.-owned ship, the Caroline, for supplies, but a group of Canadian loyalists crossed the river to the U.S. side and burned it. Mackenzie served almost a year in a U.S. prison for violation of the neutrality laws. He was amnestied in 1849 and returned to Canada, where he sat in parliament from 1851 to 1858, when he resigned.

Mackenzie, William Warrender. See Amulree, 1st Baron.

Mackenzie Mountains. Rugged mountain system in NW Canada, in E Yukon Territory and W Mackenzie district, Northwest Territories. The climate is very severe, and trees are found only in the lower valleys. Peak (known) elevation, ab. 9,049 ft.; length, ab. 500 mi.

Mackenzie of Rosehaugh (rōz'hô, rō.zôch'), Sir George. [Called "the Bloody Mackenzie."] b. at Dundee, Scotland, 1636; d. at London, 1691. Scottish lawyer. He became (1677) king's advocate in Scotland. He strained his powers as prosecutor to excess, especially against the Covenanters. He remained loyal to James II until the defeat at Killiecrankie (1689) of the Stuart hopes and was therefore barred from office by William III. He retired as a student to Oxford, where he pursued a career of essay writing and the preparation of legal and historical works.

Mackenzie River. River in the Mackenzie District of the Northwest Territories, Canada. It rises in several main headstreams on the E slope of the Rocky Mountains, which drain into Great Slave Lake. It issues thence as the Mackenzie, flowing NW into the Arctic Ocean. It was named for its discoverer, Sir Alexander Mackenzie. Length, ab. 1,120 mi.; to headwaters of the Finlay, ab. 2,514 mi.

Mackey (mak'i), Albert Gallatin. b. at Charleston, S.C., March 12, 1807; d. at Old Point Comfort, Va., June 20, 1881. American Freemason and writer. Author of A Lexicon of Freemasonry (1845), Principles of Masonic Law (1856), A Text Book of Masonic Jurisprudence (1859), Manual of the Lodge (1862), The Symbolism of Freemasonry (1869), Encyclopedia of Freemasonry (1874), Masonic Parliamentary Law (1875), and others.

Mackinac or Mackinaw (either, mak'i.nô), Straits of. [Former name, Strait of Michilimackinac.] Strait connecting Lakes Michigan and Huron, and separating the northern (upper) and southern (lower) peninsulas of Michigan. Width at narrowest point, ab. 4 mi.

Mackinnon Road (mą.kin'ọn). Station in Kenya colony, East Africa, ab. 63 mi. NW of Mombasa on the Kenya-Uganda Railway. Coal was discovered near here in 1910. The British military forces maintain a large military supply depot here.

Mackintosh (mak'in.tosh), Sir James. b. at Aldourie, near Inverness, Scotland, Oct. 24, 1765; d. at London, May 30, 1832. Scottish philosopher. A physician, he came to London in 1788 and in 1791 published a reply to Burke's attack on the French Revolution that was recognized as meritorious even by Burke. He was admitted to the bar at Lincoln's Inn, London, in 1795, accepted the recordership of Bombay in 1803, and was commissioned judge in the court of vice-admiralty at Bombay in 1806. He returned to England in 1811, entered Parliament in 1813, and was professor of law at Haileybury (1818–24). Among his works are Dissertation on the Progress of Ethical Philosophy (1830) and History of the Revolution in England in 1688 (1834).

Macklin (mak'lin), Charles. [Original surname, McLaughlin.] b. in Ireland, c1697; d. at London, July 11, 1797. English actor and dramatist. He rose steadily in public favor till his famous appearance as Shylock in 1741. From this time he played constantly in tragedy, comedy, and farce for nearly 50 years. When about 90 years old he created the part of Sir Pertinax Macsycophant in his own play The Man of the World, one of the most arduous roles in his very large repertory. He also wrote plays, taught acting, and kept a coffee-house for some years in Covent Garden. He wrote King Henry VII (produced 1746), Love à la Mode (1759), and The Man of the World (1781; originally The True-born Scotchman, 1766).

Mackonochie (mą.kon'ō.ki), Alexander Heriot. b. at Fareham, Hampshire, England, Aug. 11, 1825; d. near Ballachulish, Scotland, Dec. 17, 1887. English clergyman.

MacKubin (mą.kub'in), Florence. b. at Florence, Italy, March 19, 1861, of American parents; d. at Baltimore, Feb. 2, 1918. American portrait and miniature painter.

Mack von Leiberich (mäk fon lī'bę.riċh), Baron Karl. b. at Nenslingen, in Franconia, Germany, Aug. 24, 1752; d. at St. Pölten, Austria, Oct. 22, 1828. Austrian general. In 1798 he commanded the Neapolitan army against the French. He was sent as prisoner of war to Paris, whence he escaped in 1800. As leader of the Austrian army in Bavaria, he capitulated (Oct. 17, 1805) at Ulm to Napoleon.

Maclaren (mą.klar'ęn), Archibald. b. in the Highlands of Scotland, March 2, 1755; d. at London, 1826. Scottish playwright.

Maclaren, Charles. b. at Ormiston, Scotland, Oct. 7, 1782; d. at Edinburgh, Sept. 10, 1866. Scottish editor and author. He founded (1817) The Scotsman, an Edinburgh political newspaper which he edited (1820–45). He also edited (1820) the sixth edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica. Author of Topography of the Plain of Troy (1822), Geology of Fife and the Lothians (1839), and similar works.

MacLaren (mą.klar'ęn), Duncan. b. at Renton, Dumbartonshire, Scotland, 1800; d. at Edinburgh, 1886. British politician.

Maclaren (mą.klar'ęn), Ian. Pseudonym of Watson, John (1850–1907).

Maclaurin (mąk.lô'rin), Colin. b. at Kilmodan, Argyllshire, Scotland, in February, 1698; d. at Edinburgh, June 14, 1746. Scottish mathematician and physicist. He did important work in calculus, especially on maxima and minima, and indicated the solution of the problem of tides, the shape of the earth, and other phenomena connected with the revolution of a fluid body. He wrote Geometria Organica, sive Descriptio Linearum Curvarium Universalis (1720), A Treatise of Fluxions (1742), A Treatise of Algebra, with an Appendix De Linearum Geometricarum Proprietatibus Generalibus (1748), and An Account of Sir Isaac Newton's Philosophy (1748).

Maclay (mą.klā'), Edgar Stanton. b. at Foochow, China, April 18, 1863; d. Nov. 2, 1919. American writer, chiefly on naval subjects. The third volume of his History of the United States Navy (1901) occasioned the Schley court of inquiry and his dismissal (1901) from the New York navy yard. Author of The Maclays of Largan (1889), Journal of William Maclay (edited 1890), Reminiscences of the Old Navy (1898), A History of American Privateers (1899), Life and Adventures of "Jack" Philip, Rear Admiral, U.S.N. (1903), Moses Brown, Captain, U.S.N. (1904), and A Youthful Man-O'-Warsman (1910).

Maclay, Robert Samuel. b. at Concord, Franklin County, Pa., Feb. 7, 1824; d. Aug. 18, 1907. American Methodist Episcopal missionary and educator.

Maclay, William. b. at New Garden township, Chester County, Pa., July 27, 1734; d. at Harrisburg, Pa., April 16, 1804. American statesman and lawyer, remembered chiefly for the detailed diaries (published 1880) kept during his term in the Senate, the only such document available. He was a senator (1789–91) to the first Congress held under the Constitution.

Maclean (mą.klān'), Sir Donald. b. at Farnworth, Lancashire, England, Jan. 9, 1864; d. at London, June 15, 1932. English politician. He served (1906–32) as a member of Parliament. He was chairman of the Liberal Parliamentary Party (1919–22), and is credited with preserving the party after its crushing defeat in the 1922 election. He was president of the board of education (1931–32).

MacLean (mą.klēn'), George Edwin. b. at Rockville, Conn., Aug. 31, 1850; d. at Washington, D.C., May 3, 1938. American educator and English scholar.

MacLean (mą.klān'), James Alexander. b. at Mayfair, Ontario, Canada, 1868; d. at London, Ontario, Jan. 18, 1945. Canadian educator, president of the universities of Idaho (1900–13) and Manitoba (1913–34).

Maclean (mą.klān'), John. b. at London, c1835; d. there, March 15, 1890. English actor.

Maclean, Walter A. Original name of Potter, Paul Meredith.

MacLeary (mą.klār'i), Bonnie. b. at San Antonio, Tex., 1892—. American sculptor. Among her principal works are Aspiration (Metropolitan Museum, New York) and Ouch! (Brooklyn Museum).

Maclehose (mak'lę.hōz), Agnes. [Also: M'Lehose; maiden name, Craig.] b. at Glasgow, April 17, 1759; d. at Edinburgh, Oct. 22 or 23, 1841. Scottish beauty, the "Clarinda" of Robert Burns. She is known for the correspondence she carried on with Burns, who was "Sylvander" to her "Clarinda"; she inspired the poet's song Ae Fond Kiss (1791), which Scott declared contained the "essence of a thousand love tales." Mrs. Maclehose first met Burns at a party in Edinburgh on Dec. 7, 1787, a meeting that was followed by mutual infatuation and a correspondence that lasted until July 25, 1794, although personal contact had ceased in 1791. Author of a few short poems, enclosed in her letters, such as When First You Saw Clarinda's Charms, Talk Not of Love!, and To a Blackbird Singing on a Tree.

MacLeish (mąk.lēsh'), Archibald. b. at Glencoe, Ill., May 7, 1892—. American poet and librarian. He served (1917–19) in World War I, was an editor of Fortune magazine, and was librarian of Congress (1939–44) and assistant U.S. secretary of state (1944–45). Author of The Happy Marriage (1924), The Pot of Earth (1925), Streets in the Moon (1926), The Hamlet of A. MacLeish (1928), New Found Land (1930), Frescoes for Mr. Rockefeller's City (1933), Public Speech (1936), America Was Promises (1939), Actfive (1948), and other volumes of verse. His narrative poem Conquistador (1932) was awarded a Pulitzer prize in 1933. His verse plays include Nobodaddy (1925), Panic (1935), The Fall of the City (1937), and Air Raid (1938), and he has published collections of prose essays such as The Irresponsibles (1940), The American Cause (1941), and American Opinion and the War (1942). He won a second Pulitzer prize in 1953, with Collected Poems—1917–1952.

Macleod (mą.kloud'), Fiona. Pseudonym of Sharp, William.

MacLeod (mą.kloud'), Henry Dunning. b. at Edinburgh, 1821; d. July 16, 1902. Scottish political economist. He wrote Theory and Practice of Banking (1856), Elements of Political Economy (1858), Principles of Economical Philosophy (1873), Elements of Banking (1876), Elements of Economics (1881–86), Theory and Practice of Banking (1883–86), and others.

Macleod (mą.kloud'), John James Rickard. b. near Dunkeld, Perthshire, Scotland, Sept. 6, 1876; d. at Aberdeen, Scotland, March 17, 1935. Scottish physiologist who shared the Nobel prize (1923) with Frederick G. Banting for the discovery (1922) of insulin. He received (1902) a degree in public health from Cambridge, and served as professor of physiology at Western Reserve, Cleveland (1903–18), University of Toronto (1918–28), and University of Aberdeen (1928–35). His works include Practical Physiology (1903), Diabetes, Its Pathological Physiology (1913), Fundamentals of Human Physiology (1916, with R. G. Pearce), Physiology and Biochemistry in Modern Medicine (9th ed., 1941), and Carbohydrate Metabolism and Insulin (1926).

Macleod, Norman. b. at Campbeltown, Argyllshire, Scotland, June 3, 1812; d. at Glasgow, June 16, 1872. Scottish clergyman. He was parish minister successively of Loudoun, in Ayrshire; Dalkeith, near Edinburgh; and Barony parish, Glasgow; and was editor of the Edinburgh Christian Instructor from 1849, and of Good Words from 1860. In 1867 he was sent by the General Assembly to visit the mission stations in India. Among his works are Parish Papers (1862), Wee Davie (1864), The Starling (1867), Reminiscences of a Highland Parish (1867), Character Sketches (1872), and others.

Maclise (mą.klēs'), Daniel. [Pseudonym, Alfred Croquis.] b. at Cork, Ireland, Feb. 2, 1806; d. at London, April 25, 1870. British historical and figure painter. He left a bank clerkship for the studio of the Cork Society of Arts. In 1828 he entered the Royal Academy at London, and won the gold medal (1831) for his historic composition The Choice of Hercules. He was made an academician in 1840. He painted a portrait of Dickens (1839), but his later years were chiefly engrossed with the decorations of the House of Parliament, especially with the famous water-glass pictures The Meeting of Wellington and Blucher and The Death of Nelson.

Maclure (mą.klör'), William. b. at Ayr, Scotland, Oct. 27, 1763; d. at San Ángel, near Mexico City, March 23, 1840. American geologist. Memoirs of his geological survey of the U.S. were published in 1809 and 1817.

MacMahon (mąk.mą.ôn), Marie Edmé Patrice Maurice, Comte de. [Also, Duc de Magenta.] b. at Sully, Saône-et-Loire, France, June 13, 1808; d. at Paris, Oct. 17, 1893. Marshal of France, second president (1873–79) of the third French republic. He was the descendant of an Irish family which fled to France on the fall of the Stuarts, and was of noble birth, his father being a peer of France. He entered the army in 1825, served (1830–50) in Algeria, and in the siege of Sevastopol, during the Crimean War, led the division which stormed the Malakoff (Sept. 8, 1855). He commanded an army corps in Italy during the war of France and Sardinia against Austria in 1859, in which year he was made a marshal of France and created Duke of Magenta as a reward for his services at the battle of that name. He was governor general of Algeria (1864–70), and at the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian War was placed in command of the first army corps. He was defeated at Wörth (Aug. 6, 1870) and was overwhelmed at Sedan (Sept. 1, 1870). He was for a time a prisoner of war (1870–71) in Germany, suppressed the Commune at Paris in 1871, and was elected president (1873) of the French republic. He was a royalist and in constant conflict with the republicans during his term of office. His ministries were continuously royalist, even after the election of 1877 gave the republicans a clear majority. A clash occurred over eliminating some of the more reactionary elements in the government and MacMahon resigned, Jules Grévy succeeding him.

MacManus (mąk.man'us), Seumas. [Pseudonym, Mac.] b. in County Donegal, Ireland, 1869—. Irish writer of prose and verse. He is the author of Through the Turf Smoke (1899), In Chimney Corners (1899), Donegal Fairy Stories (1900), The Bewitched Fiddle, and Other Tales (1900), A Lad of the O'Friels (1903), The Red Poocher (1903), Dark Patrick (1939), and many shorter stories.

Macmanus (mąk.man'us), Terence Bellew. b. c1823; d. at San Francisco, 1860. Irish patriot noted for his active role in the short-lived Tipperary civil war (1848), in the battle of widow McCormick's cabbage garden. Arrested when trying to escape to the U.S., he was tried and convicted of high treason. The death sentence was commuted to transportation for life to Van Diemen's Land (Tasmania). He escaped (1852) therefrom and went to San Francisco, where he lived in poverty.

Macmillan (mąk.mil'ąn), Daniel. b. at Upper Corrie, Arran, Scotland, Sept. 13, 1813; d. at Cambridge, England, June 27, 1857. Scottish bookseller and publisher, founder of the Macmillan firm. After serving (1837–43) his apprenticeship at Cambridge and London, he established (1843) with a brother the firm of Macmillan and Company at London. The firm began to publish books in 1844. Specializing at first in religious, scientific, and technical books, he made publishing history with Charles Kingsley's Westward Ho! (1855) and Thomas Hughes's Tom Brown's Schooldays (1857).

MacMillan (mąk.mil'ąn), Donald Baxter. b. at Provincetown, Mass., Nov. 10, 1874—. American arctic explorer. He accompanied R. E. Peary on the successful expedition to the North Pole (1908–09), and himself led expeditions (1913–47) to Labrador, Iceland, Greenland, Newfoundland, Baffin Land, and other arctic regions. Author of Four Years in the White North (1918), Etah and Beyond (1927), Kahda (1929), How Peary Reached the Pole (1932), Eskimo Place Names and Aid to Conversation (1943), and other books.

MacMillan, Sir Ernest Campbell. b. at Mimico, Canada, Aug. 18, 1893—. Canadian composer, conductor (1931 et seq.) of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra. His compositions include choral and orchestral works, songs, and chamber music. Among his publications is Twenty-one Chansons and Carols of French Canada.

Macmillan (mąk.mil'ąn), Sir Frederick Orridge. b. Oct. 5, 1851; d. at London, June 1, 1936. English publisher; son of Daniel Macmillan. Admitted to partnership in 1874, he became chairman of Macmillan and Company, Ltd., and was a director of the Macmillan Company, a New York branch which had become independent in 1890.

Macmillan, George Augustin. b. at Cambridge, England, Aug. 1, 1855; d. at Danby, Yorkshire, England, March 3, 1936. English classical scholar and publisher; nephew of Daniel Macmillan. He became (1879) a partner in the Macmillan publishing firm. He was elected (1879) honorary secretary of the Hellenic Society, a post he held for 40 years.

MacMillan (mąk.mil'ąn), Harvey Reginald. b. at Newmarket, Ontario, Canada, Sept. 9, 1885—. Canadian government administrator and lumber executive.

Macmillan (mąk.mil'ąn), Maurice Crawford. b. at Cambridge, England, April 19, 1853; d. at London, March 30, 1936. English publisher; son of Daniel Macmillan. For many years, until his death, he was a director of both Macmillan and Company, Ltd., at London, and the Macmillan Company at New York, an independent branch since 1890.

Macmillen (mąk.mil'ęn), Francis. b. at Marietta, Ohio, Oct. 14, 1885—. American violinist. Among his compositions are Barcarolle and Liebeslied.

MacMonnies (mąk.mon'iz), Frederick William. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Sept. 28, 1863; d. March 22, 1937. American sculptor. He studied at New York, Paris, Munich, and London. Among his principal works were a fountain at the Columbian Exposition, Nathan Hale (City Hall park, New York), Victory (West Point), Diana, Bacchante, Pan of Rohallion, equestrian statues of Theodore Roosevelt and General McClellan. the monument commemorating revolutionary battles at Princeton, and the memorial monument on the Marne battlefield.

MacMullan (mąk.mul'ąn), Charles Walden Kirkpatrick. Original name of Munro, Charles Kirkpatrick.

MacMunn (mąk.mun'), Sir George Fletcher. b. at London, Aug. 14, 1869; d. at East Grinstead, Sussex, England, Aug. 24, 1952. English soldier who served (1919–20) as British commander in chief in Mesopotamia. He was quartermaster general (1920–24) in India. He is the author of books on India and on military campaigns and figures.

MacMurray (mąk.mur'i), John. See Murray, John (1745–93).

MacMurray, John Van Antwerp. b. at Schenectady, N.Y., Oct. 6, 1881—. American diplomat. He was chief of the division of Far Eastern affairs (1919–24) of the U.S. department of state, U.S. minister to China (1925–29) and to Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania (1933–36), and ambassador to Turkey (1936–42).

Macnaghten (mąk.nô'tęn), Sir William Hay. b. in August, 1793; murdered at Kabul, Afghanistan, 1841.

English diplomat who was slain in a plot that led to the massacre of the British forces at the Khyber Pass (1841). He went to India (1809) and, while serving in minor posts, studied Asiatic tongues. He was secretary to Lord William C. Bentinck (1830–33), governor of Bengal, and adviser (1837) to Lord Auckland, governor general of India. He served as envoy and minister to the Afghan court at Kabul (1838). While he was governor of Bombay (1841), rebellion broke out in Afghanistan after the reduction of subsidies granted to the Afghan chiefs. Macnaghten accepted the terms of the rebels, and met with the chiefs at Kabul to discuss the situation. He was shot by Akbar Khan, the deposed amir's son, and the massacre of the British army of 3,000 or more in retreat through the Khyber Pass followed.

MacNally (mąk.nal'i), Leonard. b. at Dublin, 1752; d. Feb. 13, 1820. Irish playwright and political informer. He worked with the Irish revolutionary leaders, and served at the same time as a secret agent of the British government. He was in London during the Gordon Riots (June, 1780), and rescued at risk of his own life Dr. Thurlow, brother of the lord chancellor, whom the rioters had suspected as being a Catholic agent. He was editor (1782) of the Public Ledger, and a contributor (1792) of rebellious verses to the Northern Star. He betrayed Irish revolutionary leaders to the government and defended them (notably 1797, 1798, and 1803) as their lawyer. These double dealings were so skillfully handled that they were not discovered until after his death.

Macnean (mąk.nēn'), Upper and Lower Lough. Two lakes on the Irish Republic-Northern Ireland border, lying between Counties Cavan and Leitrim (Irish Republic) and County Fermanagh (Northern Ireland). Length of Upper Lough Macnean, ab. 5 mi.; width, ab. 2 mi. Length of Lower Lough Macnean, ab. 3 mi.; width, ab. 1 mi.

MacNeice (mąk.nēs'), Louis. b. at Belfast, Ireland, Sept. 12, 1907—. English poet and classical scholar. He was lecturer in classics (1930–36) at Birmingham, lecturer in Greek (1936–40) at Bedford College for Women, and feature writer and producer (1941 et seq.) for the British Broadcasting Corporation. His works include Blind Fireworks (1929), Poems (1935), Out of the Picture (1937), The Earth Compels (1938), Zoo (1938), Autumn Journal (1939), Plant and Phantom (1941), Christopher Columbus (1944), and Holes in the Sky (1948). He translated Aeschylus's Agamemnon (1936). Coauthor with W. H. Auden of Letters from Iceland (1937). His critical studies include Modern Poetry (1938) and The Poetry of W. B. Yeats (1941).

MacNeil (mąk.nēl'), Carol Brooks. b. at Chicago, Jan. 15, 1871; d. June 22, 1944. American sculptor; wife of the sculptor Hermon Atkins MacNeil. Among her principal works are Cloudy Day, Water Baby, and Tulip Baby.

MacNeil, Hermon Atkins. b. at Chelsea, Mass., Feb. 27, 1866—. American sculptor. He assisted in the decoration of the buildings of the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, and executed many monumental works, the most important being the McKinley memorial at Columbus, Ohio. His most interesting statues have been of Indian subjects, as The Moqui Runner, The Sun Vow, and Coming of the White Man.

Macneill (mąk.nēl'), Hector. b. at Rosebank, Midlothian, Scotland, Oct. 22, 1746; d. at Edinburgh, March 15, 1818. Scottish poet, pamphleteer, and novelist. Author of On the Treatment of Negroes in Jamaica, a pamphlet defending slavery (1788), of The Harp (1789), Scotland's Scaith, or the History of Will and Jean (1795), and The Waes o' War, or the Upshot of the History (1796), poetry, and of Memoirs of Charles Macpherson (1800) and The Scottish Adventurers (1812), novels. His reputation rests on a few songs, among which are My Boy Tammy, I Lo'ed Ne'er a Laddie but Ane, Come Under My Plaidie, and Mary of Castlecary.

MacNeill (mąk.nēl'), John Gordon Swift. b. at Dublin, March 11, 1849; d. there, Aug. 24, 1926. Irish historian. He was an active parliamentarian (1890–1917), and was responsible for procuring (1906) the abolition of flogging in the Royal Navy and for establishing (1906) the principle that ministers of the Crown should not hold directorships in public companies. He was professor of constitutional law and of the law of public and private wrongs (1909–26), and dean of the faculty of law (1912–26) at the National University of Ireland. Author of The Irish Parliament, What it was and what it did (1885), English Interference with Irish Industries (1886), The Constitutional and Parliamentary History of Ireland (1917), Studies in the Constitution of the Irish Free State (1925), and What I Have Seen and Heard (1925).

Macneven (mąk.nev'ęn), William James. b. in County Galway, Ireland, March 21, 1763; d. July 12, 1841. American physician and author.

Macnish (mąk.nish'), Robert. b. at Glasgow, Feb. 15, 1802; d. there, Jan. 16, 1837. Scottish medical and miscellaneous writer.

Macomb (mą.kōm'). City in W Illinois, county seat of McDonough County: manufacturing center for pottery, porcelain insulators, and sheet metal. It is the seat of a state teachers college. 10,592 (1950).

Macomb, Alexander. b. at Detroit, Mich., April 3, 1782; d. at Washington, D.C., June 25, 1841. American major general. He defeated the British under Sir George Prevost at Plattsburg, Sept. 11, 1814, and was commander in chief of the army (1828–41).

Mâcon (mä.kôṅ). [Latin names, Matisco, Castrum Matisconense.] Town in C France, the capital of the department of Saône-et-Loire, on the Saône River between Lyons and Chalon-sur-Saône. It is a river port and has naval construction yards, paper mills, and metal and machinery industries. It also has trade in Burgundy wines. There are a number of medieval monuments, an art museum, and an industrial museum. Formerly part of Burgundy, Mâcon passed to the French crown under Louis XIII. Some damage was done in World War II. 21,073 (1946).

Macon (mā'kọn). City in C Georgia, county seat of Bibb County, on the Ocmulgee River ab. 80 mi. SE of Atlanta. It is a leading textile manufacturing center, and has clothing, lumber, foodstuff, cotton-processing, and clay-products industries. Macon is also important as a railway and commercial center. It is the seat of Wesleyan College and Mercer University. It was the home of Sidney Lanier. Pop. of city, 70,252 (1950); of urbanized area, 93,499 (1950).

Macon. City in N Missouri, county seat of Macon County: manufactures of carriages and chairs. 4,152 (1950).

Macon, Bayou. River rising in SE Arkansas, and flowing S across NE Louisiana to join the Tensas. It is a sluggish stream on the Mississippi flood plain, and is open to river navigation in its lower course. Length, ab. 150 mi.

Maçon (mà.sôṅ), Le. Comic opera by Daniel François Auber, with a libretto by Scribe and Delavigne, produced in 1825.

Macon (mā'kọn), Nathaniel. b. in Edgecombe (now Warren) County, N.C., Dec. 17, 1758; d. there, June 29, 1837. American politician and Revolutionary soldier. He served (1776) with the New Jersey militia, which he left (1777) to take up the study of law in North Carolina, and in 1780 joined the Revolutionary forces and took part in the battle of Camden. He was elected (1781) to the North Carolina Senate, to which he was twice reëlected, served as a member (1790) of the House of Commons, and was elected (1791) to the U.S. House of Representatives, of which he served as speaker from 1801 to 1807. He was for many years the leader of the Republicans in that body and was an intimate of Thomas Jefferson. His Congressional service covered 37 years, of which the last were spent in the Senate. During his last two years in the Senate he was president pro tempore.

Maconaquah (mā.kọ.nä'kwą). American Indian name of Slocum, Frances.

Mâconnais (mä.kọ.nę). Former district of the province of Burgundy, France, now included in the department of Saône-et-Loire. It was united to France under Louis XI.

Macon Plateau (mā'kọn). Archaeological site in the Ocmulgee National Monument, near Macon, Ga.; type site for the Macon Plateau culture of the Temple Mound I period (c1300–1600 A.D.) in central Georgia. The outstanding feature of this site is a circular lodge, made of logs and covered with earth, which has been restored by the National Park Service.

Macorís (mä.kō.rēs′) or Macorix (-rēks′). See San Pedro de Macorís, Dominican Republic.

Macorix (mä.kō.rēks′) or Macorís (mä.kō.rēs′). In the early history of Hispaniola, a region or "province" which, at the time of the Spanish conquest, was under the chief Guarionex. It was in the interior, S of the settlement of Isabela, and included a large part of the Vega Real.

Mac Orlan (mȧ.kôr.läñ), Pierre. [Original name, Pierre Dumarchey.] b. at Peronne, France, 1883—. French poet, novelist, and cartoonist. Author of Les Poissons morts (1917), Le Manuel du parfait adventurier (1920), La Cavalière Else (1921), La Vénus internationale (1923), and others. Essentially a humorist, he has been most successful in satire.

MacPhail (mąk.fāl′), Sir Andrew. b. at Orwell, Prince Edward Island, Canada, Nov. 24, 1864; d. at Montreal, Sept. 23, 1938. Canadian pathologist and writer. He was professor of the history of medicine (1906–37) at McGill. His books include Essays in Puritanism (1905), The Vine of Sibmah (1906), Essays in Politics (1909), Essays in Fallacy (1910), The Book of Sorrow (1916), Three Persons (1929), and The Bible in Scotland (1931). He translated Louis Hémon's Maria Chapdelaine.

Macpherson (mąk.fėr′sọn), James. b. at Ruthven, Inverness-shire, Scotland, Oct. 27, 1736; d. in Inverness-shire, Feb. 17, 1796. Scottish writer, the alleged translator of the Ossianic poems. In 1759, while a schoolmaster in his native village, he showed to Alexander Carlyle (Jupiter Carlyle) and John Home some fragments of Gaelic verse with translations. They were published (Fragments of Ancient Poetry collected in the Highlands of Scotland, and translated from the Galic or Erse Language) in 1760, and excited so much interest that he was sent to the Highlands for the purpose of discovering more of these poems. The result was the Poems of Ossian, consisting of Fingal, an Ancient Epic Poem in six books (1762), and Temora, an Ancient Epic Poem in eight books (1763), purporting to be translations from the Gaelic of the 3rd-century poet Ossian (or Oisin). At once a controversy arose over their genuineness as Gaelic remains; Samuel Johnson, no Scottish enthusiast, declared them to be a fabrication based on fragments of stories and poems, and they were also attacked by Thomas Gray and others. Macpherson was challenged to produce his originals, but he never did so nor did he successfully refute the arguments against the authenticity of his Ossianic works. Regardless of their legitimacy, the poems, written for the most part in rhythmic prose (a reaction to the rhymed couplets of the Augustan age), had tremendous influence on the romantic revival then setting in, especially on the Continent, where the Germans, led by Herder and Goethe, were ardent admirers of the melancholy and descriptive power of the writing. In 1764 Macpherson was sent as governor general to the Floridas; in 1779 he was made agent to Mohammed Ali, Nabob of Arcot; and in 1780 he entered Parliament, where he sat for ten years. His other writings include a translation in prose of the Iliad (1773) and Original Papers, containing the Secret History of Great Britain from the Restoration to the Accession of the House of Hanover (1775).

Macpherson, Sir John. b. at Sleat, on the island of Skye, Scotland, 1745; d. at Brompton Grove, near London, Jan. 12, 1821. Scottish politician. He became a writer in the East India Company's service at Madras in 1770, was appointed to the supreme council at Calcutta in 1781, and on Warren Hastings's resignation succeeded to the governor-generalship of India as senior member of the council in 1785.

Macquarie Island (mą.kwor′i). Island in the S Pacific, ab. 1,000 mi. SE of Tasmania, Australia, and belonging to that state. It has a weather station. Peak elevation, ab. 1,421 ft.; length, ab. 20 mi.; area, ab. 50 sq. mi.

Macquarie River. River in E central New South Wales, Australia, flowing generally NW and N from the Blue Mountains to join the Darling River. Length, ab. 600 mi.

MacQueen (mą.kwēn′), Robert. [Title, Lord Braxfield.] b. near Lanark, Scotland, 1722; d. at Edinburgh, 1799. Scottish judge and expert in feudal law.

Macready (mą.krē′di), William Charles. b. at London, March 3, 1793; d. at Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, England, April 27, 1873. English tragedian. His father was an actor and manager of the theater at Birmingham where Macready made his first appearance in 1810. In 1816 he appeared at London at Covent Garden. In 1837 he had advanced to the front rank of his profession, having for many years struggled for supremacy with Kean, Young, and Charles Kemble. He then undertook the management of the Covent Garden Theatre, and produced Shakespeare's plays. After two seasons he abandoned it and played in the provinces and in Paris. He managed (1841–43) the Drury Lane Theatre. He made several visits to America, during the last of which occurred the famous Astor Place riot, the cause being the jealousy of Edwin Forrest. In 1851 he left the stage. He was noted for his Macbeth, Cassius, Lear, Henry IV, Iago, Virginius, Richelieu, and other parts.

Macrembolitissa (mak.rẹm.bol.i.tis′ą), Eudocia. See Eudocia Macrembolitissa.

Macrinus (mą.krī′nus), Marcus Opelius. b. at Caesarea, in Mauretania, 164 A.D.; killed in Cappadocia, 218. Roman emperor (217–218). He was of humble origin, was admitted to the service of the emperor Septimius Severus at the instance of the favorite Plautianus, and was appointed prefect of the praetorians by Caracalla, whose murder he instigated and whom he succeeded. He was signally defeated by the Parthians at Nisibis, and was defeated and killed by the partisans of Heliogabalus, who succeeded him.

Macro (mā′krō), Naevius Sertorius. Killed c38 A.D. Prefect of the Roman praetorians under Tiberius and Caligula.

Macrobius (mą.krō′bi.us), Ambrosius Theodosius. fl. probably at the beginning of the 5th century. Roman grammarian. His extant works are a collection of essays, Saturnaliorum conviviorum libri septem (imperfect), and a commentary on Cicero's Dream of Scipio.

Macro-Chibchan (mak′rō.chib′chąn). See under Meso-American.

Macro-Guaicuruan (mak′rō.gwī.kö.rö′ąn). Newly proposed and accepted term for a phylum of South American Indian languages, to include several heretofore classified as independent. These are Mataco, Maca, and Guaicuru. Other languages of the region may be included later.

Macro-Otomanguean (mak′rō.ō.tō.mang′gē.ąn) or Macro-Penutian (-pẹ.nö′shąn). See under Meso-American.

MacSarcasm (mak.sär′kaz.ẹm), Sir Archy. Character in Charles Macklin's Love à la Mode.

MacSwiney (mąk.swē′ni), Terence. b. 1879; d. at London, Oct. 25, 1920. Irish Nationalist politician and agitator. A member of Sinn Fein from the time (1905) of its formation, he was one of the organizers of the Easter Rebellion (1916) at Dublin, and was arrested after it failed. He became mayor of Cork and in 1920 was again arrested, this time on charges under the wartime Defence of the Realm Act. Sentenced (August, 1920) to two years' imprisonment for sedition, he, along with others, went on a hunger strike that lasted for more than two months and culminated in his death.

Macsycophant (mak.sik′ō.fąnt), Sir Pertinax. Hard, worldly old man in Charles Macklin's Man of the World, ambitious for his son. Macklin created the part himself when about 90 years old.

MacTab (mak.tab′), the Hon. Miss Lucretia. One of the principal characters in Colman's Poor Gentleman. She is a proud and prudish old maid.

Mactan (mäk.tän′). Low coral island of the Philippines, located just E of the city of Cebu, and belonging to the province of Cebu. It was the scene of the slaying of Ferdinand Magellan by natives on April 27, 1521. Area, ab. 24 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 40,000.

Maculla (mą.kůl′ą). See Mukalla.

Macusis (mä.kö.sēz′). Group of South American Indians of Cariban linguistic stock, inhabiting the territory between British Guiana and Brazil and southward to the upper Parimé-Marua River. They are divided into five large groups. Their language, called Macusi, belongs to the Roraima group of the Central branch of the Northern Cariban languages.

MacVeagh (mąk.vā′), Charles. b. at West Chester, Pa., June 6, 1860; d. near Santa Barbara, Calif., Dec. 4, 1931. American diplomat and lawyer; son of Isaac Wayne MacVeagh. He was general solicitor and assistant general counsel (1901–25) to the U.S. Steel Corporation, and served as U.S. ambassador (1925–29) to Japan.

MacVeagh, Franklin. b. near Phoenixville, Chester County, Pa., Nov. 22, 1837; d. July 6, 1934. American cabinet officer; brother of Isaac Wayne MacVeagh. He engaged (1866 et seq.) in the wholesale grocery business at Chicago till 1909, when he became secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of President W. H. Taft.

MacVeagh, Isaac Wayne. b. at Phoenixville, Chester County, Pa., April 19, 1833; d. Jan. 11, 1917. American politician. He was U.S. minister to Turkey (1870–71), U.S. attorney general under President Garfield in 1881, and ambassador to Italy (1893–97). He was chief counsel for the U.S. in the arbitration before the Hague tribunal in 1903 concerning the claims of Great Britain, Germany, and Italy against Venezuela.

MacVeagh, Lincoln. b. at Narragansett Pier, R.I., Oct. 1, 1890—. American publisher and diplomat; son of Charles MacVeagh. Associated (1915–17, 1919–23) with Henry Holt Company, he was later president until 1933 of Dial Press. He was U.S. minister to Greece (1933–41), Iceland (1941–42), and the Union of South Africa (1942–43). He was appointed U.S. ambassador to Greece and Yugoslavia (1943), Greece (1944), Portugal (1948), and Spain (1952). Coauthor of Greek Journey (1937).

MacWhirter (mąk.hwėr'tėr), John. b. near Edinburgh, 1837; d. at London, Jan. 28, 1911. Scottish painter, best known for his representations of Highland scenes. Among his works are Lady of the Woods, Lord of the Glen, and Dark Loch Coruisk.

Macy (mā'si), Anne Mansfield Sullivan. [Maiden name, Sullivan.] b. at Feeding Hills, near Springfield, Mass., April 14, 1866; d. at Queens, N.Y., Oct. 20, 1936. American teacher and lifelong friend of Helen Adams Keller; wife (married 1905) of John Albert Macy. She was chosen (1887) as the teacher of the deaf, dumb, and blind Helen Keller and became in time her closest companion.

Macy, Jesse. b. near Knightstown, Ind., June 21, 1842; d. Nov. 3, 1919. American political scientist. As professor (1884–1912) of political science at Grinnell College, Iowa, he was the first advocate of demonstrating by the observation of local government the teaching of civics in the public schools. Author of Civil Government in Iowa (1881), Institutional Beginnings in a Western State (1884), Our Government (1886), The English Constitution (1897), Political Parties in the United States 1846–61 (1900), and Party Organization and Machinery (1904).

Macy, John Albert. b. at Detroit, Mich., April 10, 1877; d. at Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 26, 1932. American literary critic and author; husband (married 1905) of Anne M. Sullivan Macy, teacher of Helen Keller. He was literary editor of the Boston Herald (1913–14) and of the Nation (1922–23), and literary adviser (1926–32) to the publishing firm of William Morrow and Company. He was editor (1903) of Helen Keller's The Story of My Life. Author of The Spirit of American Literature (1913), The Critical Game (1922), The Story of the World's Literature (1925), The Romance of America as Told in Our Literature (1930), and About Women (1930).

Madaba (mad'ą.bą). See Medeba.

Madách (mô'dăch), Imre. b. 1823; d. 1864. Hungarian poet and dramatist. Author of The Tragedy of Man (1861), a dramatic poem dealing with the rise and fall of the human race.

Madagascar (mad.ą.gas'kąr). French territory and island in the Indian Ocean, E of S Africa, from which it is separated by the Mozambique Channel. The surface in the interior is generally elevated and mountainous. The produce is tropical, the main export products being coffee, rice, sisal, sugar, and vanilla. Tamatave is the chief port. The inhabitants and language are predominantly Malagasy, among whom the Hovas are the leading tribe; there are also Negro tribes and mixtures of the two ethnic elements. Madagascar was early visited by the Arabs, and was discovered by the Portuguese in 1506. The introduction of Christianity under Radama I (1810–28) was followed by a persecution of the Christians under Queen Ranavalona I (1828–61). A war with France (1883–85) was terminated by a treaty (Dec. 12, 1885) establishing a French protectorate. In 1896 Madagascar became a French colony, and in February, 1897, the queen was deposed. In 1947 there was a brief armed revolt of natives. Government is administered by a governor general, assisted by a government council of officials, and a representative assembly of Europeans and Madagascans chosen by electoral colleges. For administrative purposes it is divided into five provinces. Madagascar is represented in the French national assembly, in the Council of the Republic, and in the Assembly of the French Union by five delegates respectively. Capital, Tananarive; area of territory, ab. 227,750 sq. mi.; pop. 4,149,200, including 17,238 Europeans, 16,829 Asians (1948).

Madai (mad'ā.ī, mā'dī). In the Bible, a name given in Gen. x. as that of the third son of Japheth: commonly regarded as the eponymic ancestor of the Medes.

Madame Bovary (mą.dąm bo.vą.rē). Novel by Gustave Flaubert, published in 1857. Notable as an expression of realism, it is the story of Emma Bovary who, unhappy as the wife of a dull small-town doctor, indulges in extramarital affairs and incurs many debts. When her actions place her in a position from which she can see no escape, she commits suicide.

Madame Butterfly. Tragedy in one act (1900) by David Belasco and John Luther Long, based upon a story (1897) by Long. Giacomo Puccini based his opera (1904) upon the play.

Madame Butterfly. [Italian title, Madama Butterfly.] Opera in three acts by Giacomo Puccini, with a libretto by Illica and Giacosa based on a story by John Luther Long and a drama by Long and David Belasco, and first produced at Milan on Feb. 17, 1904.

Madame Delphine (del.fēn'). Novelette by George Washington Cable, published in 1881.

Madame Sans-Gêne (mą.dąm sąn.zhen). Opera in three acts by Umberto Giordano, with a libretto by Renato Simoni, first performed at the New York Metropolitan Opera House, on Jan. 25, 1915.

Madame Tussaud's Waxworks (tō.sōz'). See Tussaud's Waxworks, Madame.

Madan (mad'ąn), Martin. b. 1726; d. at Epsom, Surrey, England, May 2, 1790. English Methodist divine. He was called to the bar in 1748, but shortly abandoned law in order to enter the ministry, and was for many years chaplain to the Lock Hospital. He is chiefly known as the author of Telyphthora, or A Treatise on Female Ruin (1780), in which he advocated polygamy.

"Mad Anthony" Wayne (an'thǫ.ni wān'). See Wayne, Anthony.

Mad'arsko (mä'dyär.skô). Czech name of Hungary.

Madawaska (mad.ą.wos'ką). Town (in Maine the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in NE Maine, in Aroostook County, at the Canadian border: paper manufacture. Pop. of town, 4,900 (1950); of village, 2,975 (1950).

Madawaska River. River in SE Ontario, Canada, flowing generally E to the Lac des Chats, an expansion of the Ottawa River, ab. 32 mi. W of Ottawa. Length, ab. 250 mi.

Maddalena (mäd.dä.lā'nä), La. See La Maddalena.

Maddaloni (mäd.dä.lō'nē). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Campania, in the province of Napoli, ab. 15 mi. NE of Naples. It is an agricultural commune. It has a medieval castle and an aqueduct erected in the 18th century. It was the scene of an encounter between Garibaldi's adherents and defenders of the house of Bourbon in 1860. Pop. of commune, 23,366 (1936); of town, 19,558 (1936).

Maddaloni, Monte di. [Ancient name, Tifata.] Low mountain range near Capua, Italy, ab. 17 mi. NE of Naples. Near it, in 83 B.C., Sulla defeated the Marian general Norbanus.

Madden (mad'ęn), Sir Charles Edward. b. Sept. 5, 1862; d. at London, June 5, 1935. English naval officer. He served in the Egyptian War (1882), and under Jellicoe at the battle of Jutland (1916). Appointed (1917) second in command of the grand fleet, he was commander in chief (1919–22) of the Atlantic fleet. He was first sea lord of the admiralty and chief of naval staff (1927–30).

Madden, Sir Frederic. b. at Portsmouth, England, Feb. 16, 1801; d. at London, March 8, 1873. English antiquary and paleographer. He became assistant keeper of manuscripts in the British Museum in 1828, and head of the manuscript department in 1837. He edited Havelok the Dane (1828), Layamon's Brut (1847), Matthew Paris's Historia Anglorum (Rolls Series, 1866–69), and, with Josiah Forshall, Wyclif's Bible (1850).

Madden, Sir George Allan. b. at London, Jan. 3, 1771; d. at Portsmouth, England, Dec. 8, 1828. British general.

Madden, Katherine Cecil. See Thurston, Katherine Cecil.

Maddox (mad'ọks), Ernest Edmund. b. 1860; d. Nov. 10, 1933. English ophthalmologist who developed (1931) treatment for squint or cross-eyes in children by means of a coördinating instrument (cheiroscope). His books include The Clinical Use of Prisms, Tests and Studies of the Ocular Muscles, and Golden Rules of Refraction.

Madeba (mad'ẹ.bạ). See Medeba.

Madeira (mạ.dir'ạ, -dār'-). Village in SW Ohio, in Hamilton County, near Cincinnati. 2,689 (1950).

Madeira (mạ.dir'ạ; Portuguese, mạ.dā'rạ). Chief island of the Madeira Islands, belonging to Portugal, in the Atlantic Ocean ab. 440 mi. W of Morocco. The island is of volcanic origin, with deep ravines, and rugged peaks rising to an elevation of ab. 6,106 ft. The climate is mild, and agriculture is intensive, producing the famous Madeira wines, sugar cane, grain, bananas, pineapples, and vegetables. The island is well known also as a resort. The population is a mixture of Portuguese stock with Negroes, Moroccans, and Italians. Known as early as the 14th century, the island was occupied by the Portuguese in 1419 and subsequently colonized. From 1580 to 1640 it was under Spanish domination, in 1801 and 1807–14 British, and since 1814 has been once again Portuguese. Area, ab. 281 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 246,000.

Madeira Islands. Group of islands forming a district (Funchal) of Portugal, including the inhabited islands of Madeira and Porto Santo and the uninhabited Desertas and Salvages islands, in the Atlantic Ocean SW of the mainland of Portugal and W of Morocco. Capital, Funchal; area, ab. 308 sq. mi.; pop. 250,124 (1940).

Madeira River. [Also, Cayarí.] River in W Brazil, largest tributary of the Amazon, flowing NE to join it. The chief headstreams are the Mamoré, Beni, and Guaporé. Total length, including the Mamoré, ab. 2,100 mi.

Madeleine (mȧd.len). Stage name of Brohan, Émilie Madeleine.

Madeleine (mad'ẹ.lin; French, mȧd.len), Church of the. Church in Paris, begun under Louis XV and Louis XVI, but not finished until 1842.

Madeleine (mȧd.len), Îles de la. See Magdalen Islands.

Madeleine, La. See La Madeleine.

Madelin (mȧd.laṅ), Émile Louis Marie. [Called Louis Madelin.] b. at Neufchâteau, France, 1871—. French historian. Author of Fouché (1901), Rome de Napoléon (1904), Les Hommes de la révolution (1928) and Le Consulat et l'empire (1932).

Madeline Bray (mad'e.lin brā'). See Bray, Madeline.

Madelon (mȧd.lôṅ). One of the précieuses ridicules in Molière's play Les Précieuses Ridicules. She takes the more romantic name of Polixène.

Madelung (mä'dẹ.lụng), Georg. b. 1889—. German aeronautical engineer. He was engineer (1915–18) for the Deutsche Versuchanstalt für Luftfahrt Flugzeugmeisterei, and served in a similar capacity for the Junkers plant at Dessau (1919–21), the Glenn L. Martin Company at Cleveland (1921–24), and the Junkers Company at New York (1924).

Mademoiselle de Belle-Isle (dẹ bel.ēl). Play by Alexandre Dumas père, produced in 1839.

Mademoiselle de Maupin (dẹ mō.paṅ). Novel by Théophile Gautier, published in 1835.

Madennassena (mä''de.nä.sā'nä). See Galikwe.

Madera (mạ.dār'ạ). City in California, county seat of Madera County, in a rich irrigated agricultural area, noted for its vineyards. The principal product is sweet wine. There is also a lumber industry based on nearby pine forests. 10,497 (1950).

Madero (mä.ŦHā'rō), Francisco Indalecio. b. near Parras, Coahuila, Mexico, Oct. 18, 1873; shot at Mexico City, Feb. 23, 1913. Mexican liberal political leader, president (1911–13) of Mexico. He was educated principally at a Jesuit college in Mexico, and at the University of California. In 1889 he visited Europe and spent six years in France. On his return to Mexico he became a cotton planter and made a fortune, which he spent freely in furthering the revolutionary cause. He took an active part in politics, and wrote articles against Porfirio Díaz, and a book entitled The Presidential Succession in 1910 (1898). Opposing Díaz in the 1910 election, he was arrested and escaped to the U.S. Revolution broke out openly (November, 1910) and after a prolonged struggle the rebels, with Madero at their head, captured Ciudad Juárez and established the capital there while compelling Díaz to resign in May, 1911. Madero became the leader of the Constitutional Progressive Party, and was elected president of Mexico (Oct. 14, 1911). He was deposed and imprisoned (February, 1913) by Victoriano Huerta after a bloody rebellion and was shot in a street of Mexico City, in an alleged attempt to escape.

Madetoja (mä'de.tô.yä), Leevi Antti. b. at Oulu, Finland, Feb. 17, 1887—. Finnish composer. He was appointed (1926) professor of music in the Helsinki Conservatory, at which he had previously studied, taught at Helsinki University, and was music critic (1916–32) of the Helsingin Sanomat. Among his compositions are an opera, songs, a pantomime, choral music, cantatas, three symphonies, and symphonic poems, among which is Kullervo.

Madgearu (mäd'jä.rö), Virgil. b. in Rumania, 1887—. Rumanian economist and politician, secretary of the National Peasant Party and member of the government in various cabinet posts (1928–33).

Madge Wildfire (maj wīld'fīr). See Wildfire, Madge.

Madhava (mä'dạ.vạ) or Madhavacharya (-vä.chär''yạ) Hindu scholar of the 14th century. He was the author, or reputed author, of great commentaries on the Vedas and other works.

Mad Heracles (her'ạ.klēz) (or Hercules) (hėr'kụ.lēz), The. Tragedy by Euripides, exhibited c420 B.C.

Madhya Bharat (mäd'yạ bu'rut). State in N central Union of India, formed in 1948 by the merger of 25 former Indian states, of which the chief ones were Gwalior and Indore. Area, ab. 46,478 sq. mi.; pop. 7,954,154 (1951).

Madhya Pradesh (prā'desh). State of the Union of India, composed of the former Central Provinces and Berar (98,574 sq. mi.) plus the incorporated native states known collectively as the Chhatisgarh states, and the Bhopal agency (total newly incorporated area, ab. 31,749 sq. mi.). The incorporation took place in 1948, and the former province became a state in 1950. Capital, Nagpur; total area, ab. 130,323 sq. mi.; pop. 21,327,898 (1951).

Madi (mä'dē). Sudanic-speaking people of NE Africa, occupying both banks of the Albert Nile S of Kajo-Kaji (a town ab. 90 mi. S of Mongalla), in NW Uganda and S Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. They are divided into numerous subgroups, including from one to 40 small villages. They have exogamous patrilineal clans. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal crops are eleusine, sesame, and millet. They are not to be confused with the Amadi of NE Belgian Congo, who occupy the N bank of the Uele River near Amadi, nor with the town of Amadi in the province of Mongalla in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

Madill (mạ.dil'). City in S Oklahoma, county seat of Marshall County. 2,791 (1950).

Madison (mad'i.sọn). Town in N Florida, county seat of Madison County, W of Jacksonville: center of a sea-island cotton area. 3,150 (1950).

Madison. Village in SW Illinois, in Madison County: steel mills. It is included in the urbanized area of greater St. Louis. 7,963 (1950).

Madison. City in SE Indiana, county seat of Jefferson County, on the Ohio River ab. 38 mi. NE of Louisville: auction center for the county's output of Burley tobacco. 7,506 (1950).

Madison. Town (in Maine the equivalent of township in many other states) and unincorporated village in W Maine, in Somerset County, on the Kennebec River: manufactures of textiles and paper. Pop. of town, 3,639 (1950); of village, 2,554 (1950).

Madison. [Called the "Rose City."] Borough in N New Jersey, in Morris County, ab. 23 mi. W of New York: residential community. It is the seat of Drew University. 10,417 (1950).

Madison. City in E South Dakota, county seat of Lake County: tourist resort and trading center for flour, livestock, and dairy products. It is the seat of a state teachers college. 5,153 (1950).

Madison. Unincorporated community in C Tennessee, in Davidson County: a northeastern residential suburb of Nashville. Madison College is nearby. Under the new urban definition established for use in the 1950 census it was counted with adjoining urban areas; the last official enumeration was 2,992 (1940).

Madison. City in S Wisconsin, capital of Wisconsin and county seat of Dane County, situated between Lakes Mendota and Monona. It is primarily a cultural, political, and commercial center but also has diverse manufactures including machine tools, balancing machines, dry-cell batteries, automobile parts, and furniture; there are meat-packing plants. It was settled in 1837 after the site had been selected for the territorial capital, and was named for President James Madison. It is the seat of the University of Wisconsin. Pop. of city, 96,056 (1950); of urbanized area, 110,111 (1950).

Madison. A former name of Orange, Tex.

Madison, Dolly (or Dolley). [Maiden name, Dorothea Payne.] b. in Guilford County, N.C., May 20, 1768; d. at Washington, D.C., July 12, 1849. Wife of President James Madison, celebrated as a hostess. After the death (1793) of John Todd, Jr., her first husband, she married Madison in 1794. While he was secretary of state (1801–09) she assisted Thomas Jefferson at presidential dinners. She entertained (1809–17) as first lady. When forced to flee the White House by the British attack on Washington (1814), she managed to save documents of state.

Madison, James. b. in Rockingham County, Va., Aug. 27, 1749; d. March 6, 1812. American bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, president (1777–1812) of William and Mary College.

Madison, James. b. at Port Conway, Va., March 16, 1751; d. at "Montpelier," Va., June 28, 1836. Fourth president of the U.S. (1809–17), known as the architect of the federal Constitution. He was schooled privately and at the College of New Jersey (now Princeton), from which he was graduated in 1771. He was elected to the Committee of Safety for Orange County, Va., and in 1776 was chosen for the Virginia convention, in which he served on the committee which drafted the constitution and the declaration of rights. He served as a member of the first state assembly, was elected (1778) to the governor's council, and in 1780 went to the Continental Congress, where he sat until December, 1783. An industrious member of that body, his recommendation in regard to employing population rather than land values as a basis for state contributions included the noted "⅗ ratio" which later became a part of the federal Constitution as the provision for the Congressional representation of slaves as free persons. After leaving Congress, he devoted himself to the study of law and was elected (1784) to the Virginia House of Delegates, in which he served until 1786. He quickly became a leader in the assembly, championed Western interests, and with much foresight urged Congressional power to regulate commerce. His efforts contributed much to the interstate meetings which culminated in the federal convention (1787), to which he was a delegate after serving in Congress from February to May, 1787. His recommendations on the structure and powers of a national government, as outlined in letters to Washington, Jefferson, and Edmund Randolph in March–April, 1787, were incorporated in what was later known at the Constitutional Convention as the Virginia or Randolph Plan. From the outset, Madison was the leader of the convention forces supporting a strong central government. In addition to elucidating doctrine and making constructive suggestions, he kept an unofficial record of the convention's proceedings (Journal of the Federal Convention) which is invaluable to scholars and historians. Madison was an ardent supporter of ratification, and in the service of that cause made his noted contributions to The Federalist. His essays are an outstanding contribution to the nature and meaning of popular government. He was a delegate (1788) to the Virginia convention, where he was influential in securing the vote for ratification of the Constitution. He was a member of the first U.S. Congress, in which he served until 1797, and took a prominent part in drafting the first ten amendments (Bill of Rights) to the Constitution. His views on financial policy led him to abandon the Federalists in favor of the Jeffersonian party. He was married (Sept. 15, 1794) to Dolly Payne Todd, a young Philadelphia widow. In 1798 he drafted the Virginia Resolutions which, while specifically directed against the Alien and Sedition Acts, upheld the right of the states to express judgment of the constitutionality of Congressional acts. After Jefferson's election, Madison was appointed (March 5, 1801) secretary of state, and in this position was responsible, together with Jefferson, for guiding American foreign policy during the contest between France and Great Britain. He took part in formulating the Embargo Act (Dec. 22, 1807) and afterward favored a firm policy toward Great Britain and France. As presidential successor to Jefferson, he took office on March 4, 1809, facing a deteriorating international situation which finally led to a declaration of war (June 18, 1812) against Great Britain. The American effort was marked by military muddling and a want of national unity. The New England Federalists contemptuously spoke of "Mr. Madison's war" and held the Hartford Convention, which briefly threatened secession, while Southern Republicans were hardly more enthusiastic about the progress and aims of the war. The War of 1812 saw the capture of Washington by the British, but the balance was retrieved by the triumph of American arms at Baltimore, Plattsburg, Fort Erie, and New Orleans. The treaty of peace with Great Britain was signed on Dec. 24, 1814, following negotiations at Ghent. After the war the administration became Federalist in color, with Madison signing bills for a Second Bank of the United States and for the tariff act of 1816. Leaving office in 1817, he retired from politics, emerging to take part only in the Virginia constitutional convention of 1829. He helped Jefferson in the latter's efforts in behalf of the University of Virginia and became its rector in 1826. See Writings of James Madison, edited by Gaillard Hunt (9 vols., 1900–10), The Life of James Madison, by Gaillard Hunt (1902), History of the U.S. of America, by Henry Adams (Vols. VI–IX, 1890–91).

Madison, Lucy Foster. b. at Kirksville, Mo., April 8, 1865; d. March 16, 1932. American writer. Author of A Maid of the First Century (1899), A Maid at King Alfred's Court (1900), A Colonial Maid (1902), In Doublet and Hose (1904), Peggy Owen (1908), A Tale of Two Cousins (1913), Time's Follower (1914), A Life of Joan of Arc, for young people (1918), A Life of Lafayette, for young people (1920), and Abraham Lincoln—an American Epic (1927).

Madison Heights. Unincorporated community in W central Virginia, in Amherst County: eastern suburb, across the James River, of Lynchburg. 2,830 (1950).

Madison River. River in SW Montana, rising in several headstreams in NW Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming, and flowing generally N to join the Gallatin and Jefferson rivers near Three Forks, Mont., forming the Missouri. Length, ab. 200 mi.

Madison Square. Public park, ab. 6 acres in extent, in New York City, bounded by Fifth Avenue, 23rd Street, Madison Avenue, and 26th Street. It was originally the junction of the Bloomingdale Road and old Boston Road.

Madisonville (mad'i.sən.vil). City in W Kentucky, county seat of Hopkins County: marketing center for tobacco; shipping point for hardwood. It was named for President James Madison. 11,132 (1950).

Madjapahit (mä.ja.pa hit'). See Majapahit.

Mädler (mād'lėr), Johann Heinrich von. b. at Berlin, May 29, 1794; d. at Hanover, Germany, March 14, 1874. German astronomer.

Mad Lover, The. Play by John Fletcher, produced before 1618, and printed in 1647. It is founded on Josephus's Antiquities of the Jews, xviii.

Madoc (mad'ok, mä'dok). [Also, Madog.] Legendary Welsh prince, said to have discovered America c1170 (Welsh-speaking American Indians have been "discovered" to support the story, but the "evidence" thus far available has left U.S. scholars unconvinced). He is the subject of a poem, Madoc (1805), by Robert Southey.

Madoera (mä.dö'ra). See Madura.

Mador (mād'ėr), Sir. In Arthurian romance, a Scottish knight slain by Sir Lancelot of the Lake because he had accused Guinevere of poisoning his brother.

Madou (mä.dö'), Jean Baptiste. b. at Brussels Jan. 26, 1796; d. there, April 3, 1877. Belgian genre painter and lithographer. He published a number of illustrated works, Scenes of Society, Picturesque Views, and others, from 1821 to 1840.

Madoz (mä.ᴛʜōth′), Pascual. b. at Pamplona, Spain, May 17, 1806; d. at Genoa, Italy, Dec. 11, 1870. Spanish author and liberal politician. As minister of finance (1855 et seq.) he played a large part in expropriating church lands to secular use. He published Diccionario geográfico, estadístico é histórico de España (1848–50).

Mad Parliament. See Parliament, Mad.

"Mad Priest." Epithet of Ball, John.

Madras (mą.dras′, -drās′). State in S Union of India, bordering the E or Coromandel coast, occupying a part of the Deccan, and extending to the W or Malabar coast. The principal mountains are the Eastern Ghats and the Nilgiri Hills; the chief rivers, the Godavari, Cauvery, and Kistna. The leading occupation is agriculture; rice, wheat, millet, tobacco, indigo, nuts and coffee are produced. Government is administered by a state governor and an elected legislative assembly. The inhabitants are chiefly Hindus. The former province of Madras was formed from the states of the Carnatic, Tanjore, parts of Mysore, and others, in the last half of the 18th century and the beginning of the 19th. In 1950 the province became a state of the Union of India. Area, ab. 127,790 sq. mi.; pop. 57,016,002 (1951).

Madras. City in S Union of India, capital of the state of Madras and a seaport on the Bay of Bengal. It is the third largest city of India and the chief port of the state. Several railroads connect it with the other parts of the country. There are cotton mills and many tanning plants in the city, and also tobacco, cotton-processing oil-cake, and metal industries. The University of Madras is located in the city. Madras was founded by Francis Day of the East India Company in 1639, was made a presidency in 1653, was unsuccessfully attacked by the natives in 1702 and 1741, was captured by Labourdonnais in 1746, and restored to the British in 1748, and was unsuccessfully besieged by the French in 1758–59. Lord Cornwallis and Eli Yale were former governors. Pop. of city and district (coextensive), 1,416,056 (1951).

Madrazo (mä.ᴛʜrä′thō), José de. b. at Santander, Spain, April 28, 1781; d. May 8, 1859. Spanish historical and portrait painter.

Madrazo, Raimundo de. b. at Rome, July 24, 1841; d. 1920. Spanish genre and portrait painter; son and pupil of Federico Madrazo y Kunt. Among his works are The End of a Masked Ball (1878), Pierrette (1878), La Soubrette (1882), and The Domino (1883).

Madrazo y Kunt (ē könt′), Federico. b. Feb. 12, 1815; d. June 11, 1894. Spanish historical and portrait painter; son of José de Madrazo. He was court painter and professor at the Madrid Academy. Among his works are Godefroy de Bouillon Proclaimed King of Jerusalem (1839), Maria Christina as a Nun (1843), The Women at the Sepulcher (1845), and many portraits of noted persons.

Madre (mä′drā), Isola. [Eng. trans., "Mother Island."] One of the two chief islands of the Borromean Islands, in Lago Maggiore, Italy. The other is Isola Bella.

Madre (mä′ᴛʜrā), Sierra. See Sierra Madre.

Madre de Deus (mä′drę dę dā′ös), Gaspar da. b. at Santos, Brazil, 1714; d. in São Paulo, Brazil, 1804. Brazilian Benedictine monk and historian. He is best known for his Memorias para a historia da capitania de S. Vicente (Lisbon, 1797; Rio de Janeiro, 1847), a work of great historical value.

Madre de Dios (mä′ᴛʜrā dā dyōs′). Department in SE Peru, bordering on Brazil and Bolivia: mineral and forest wealth, including rubber. It was made a department in 1912. Capital, Puerto Maldonado; area, ab. 58,842 sq. mi.; pop. 26,349 (est. 1950).

Madre de Dios River. River in SE Peru, flowing NE to the Beni River, in Bolivia. Length, ab. 900 mi.

Madrid (mą.drid′; Spanish, mä.ᴛʜrēᴛʜ′). Province in C Spain, bounded by Segovia on the NW, Guadalajara on the NE, Cuenca and Toledo on the S, and Ávila on the W: part of New Castile. It includes the mountainous Sierra de Guadarama region in the NW, and part of the Castilian plateau country. The climate is dry and continental, with cold winters and hot summers. Capital, Madrid; area, ab. 3,089 sq. mi.; pop. 1,911,014 (1950).

Madrid. [Arabic, Majrit; medieval Latin name, Majoritum.] City in C Spain, the capital of Spain and of the province of Madrid, situated on the Manzanares River, on an elevated and undulating plateau ab. 2,150 ft. above sea level. It is close to the geographical center of the peninsula, nearly equidistant from the Bay of Biscay, the Mediterranean Sea, and the Atlantic Ocean. 1,609,524 (1950).

Commerce and Industry. The most important industry is the manufacture of leather goods; there are also tanning, tobacco, textile, chemical, porcelain, paper, metalworking, and foodstuff industries. There is a stock exchange and a number of banking institutions. The city is the most important railroad junction of Spain.

Cultural Institutions. Madrid is the seat of an archbishopric and of a university, founded in 1508, with schools of law, philosophy, medicine, mathematics, natural science, and others; it grew particularly after 1836–37 when the former university of Alcalá de Henares was transferred to the capital. Associated with the university is the preparatory school of San Isidro, created (1621–65) by Philip IV. There are numerous other scientific and educational institutions, such as schools of agriculture, architecture, civil and mining engineering, veterinary medicine, fine arts, and music; the school of military engineering is at Guadalajara. The national library and the former royal library contain more than one and a half million volumes and manuscripts. The Prado Museum (Museo del Prado) is one of the outstanding art galleries of the world, renowned for its collection of Spanish, Italian, and Flemish masters; the Academy of Fine Arts also has a collection of paintings, particularly the works of Murillo.

Chief Buildings and Monuments. Madrid consists of the old city, with narrow streets, the new city, and various suburbs. There are many churches and convents, among which the Church of San Francisco El Grande (1261–84), the Cathedral of San Isidro (1651), and the Church of San Geronimo el Real (1460) are outstanding. The Plaza Mayor, built in 1619, was formerly the scene of tournaments, bullfights, and autos da fé. The royal palace, begun in 1737, is imposing from its great size and its fine situation on a lofty terrace above the river Manzanares. The bronze statue of Philip IV, by Montañes (19 ft. high), in the Plaza del Oriente, cast in Florence in 1640, ranks as one of the finest equestrian statues existing: the horse prances, with no support but his own hind legs.

History. Madrid was a Moorish outpost, taken from the Moors in 1083. It was without major importance during the Middle Ages. First used as a royal residence under Henry III of Castile, it became the seat of government after the death (1516) of Ferdinand V of Castile (Ferdinand the Catholic); it was definitely declared the capital under Philip II, in 1560. A number of important diplomatic treaties were concluded at Madrid, such as the treaty of Madrid between the emperor Charles V and Francis I of France (1526), the treaty between Spain and Venice (1617), and that between Spain and Portugal (1800). In 1808 the city revolted against the French Marshal Murat. In more recent times, it achieved note for the bitter fighting that took place near it and in it during the Spanish Civil War. Four Nationalist army columns converged upon the city in 1936 (a remark made at the time by General Mola, that he had a "fifth column" in the city itself, added a new phrase to many languages), the fall of the city seemed imminent, and the government was moved to Valencia on Nov. 9, 1936. However, the city resisted vigorously, despite bombardments, air raids, and food shortages, and the Loyalist government returned to the city in February, 1939. The city finally surrendered to General Franco on March 29, 1939.

Madrid, Duke of. Title of Carlos, Don (1848–1909).

Madrid, José Fernández. See Fernández Madrid, José.

Madrigal Society. Organization established (1741) at London by John Immyns. The oldest musical society at London, it confines its membership, with few exceptions, to singers in the cathedral choirs.

Madriz (mä.ᴛʜrēs′). Department in Nicaragua. Area, ab. 531 sq. mi.; pop. 33,286 (1950).

Madura (mą.dur′ą). [Dutch, Madoera.] Island of Indonesia, NE of Java, forming a part of the province of East Java. Area, with smaller islands, ab. 2,112 sq. mi.; pop. 1,962,462 (1930).

Madurai (mạd'ū.rī). [Former name, Madura (-rạ).] District in Madras, Union of India, ab. 100 mi. NE of Cape Comorin: cotton, tobacco, millet, nuts, and wheat. Capital, Madurai; area, ab. 4,883 sq. mi.; pop. 2,891,817 (1951).

Madurai. [Former name, Madura.] City in S union of India, capital of the district of Madurai, ab. 100 mi. NE of Cape Comorin. There are several cotton-weaving mills here and the manufacture of copper and brass vessels is important. The great temple was built for the most part in the early 17th century. Madurai was the capital of the Pandyan kingdom of S India from the 5th century B.C. until it fell to the Moslems in 1324 A.D. It passed finally to the British in 1801. Pop. 361,781 (1951).

Madurese (mạ.dör'ēz, -ēs). Native Moslem people of Madura and parts of E Java in Indonesia. Their language, called Maduran, belongs to the SW Malagassy branch of the Indonesian group of Malayo-Polynesian languages. They have been estimated in recent years to number ab. two million.

Madvig (mäŦн'vig), Johan Nicolai. b. at Svaneke, Bornholm, Denmark, Aug. 7, 1804; d. at Copenhagen, Dec. 13, 1886. Danish philologist and statesman. He was professor at Copenhagen, at first (1829) of the Latin language and literature, and later of classical philology. He served as minister of public worship (1848–51), and later as inspector of public instruction. His chief works are a Latin grammar (1841), Adversaria critica (1871–73), and Die Verfassung und Verwaltung des römischen Staats (1881).

Mad Woman of Chaillot (shạ.yō'), The. English title of Folle de Chaillot, La.

Mad World, My Masters, A. Dialogue by Nicholas Breton, printed in 1603.

Mad World, My Masters, A. Play by Thomas Middleton, probably produced in 1606. It was printed in 1608. Aphra Behn copied it in The City Heiress (1682), and it was used by Charles Johnson in Country Lasses.

Maeander (mē.an'dėr). [Modern Turkish, Menderes.] In ancient geography, a river of W Asia Minor, flowing, with many windings, generally SW and W through Phrygia and Ionia to the Aegean Sea. The name is the origin of the word "meander." Length, ab. 250 mi.

Maeatae (mē.ā'tē). In ancient times, a warlike tribe in the south of Scotland and north of England, just beyond the Roman Wall.

Maebashi (mä.ye.bä.shē). City in C Honshu, Japan, ab. 60 mi. NW of Tokyo, at the extreme NW corner of the Kwanto Plain. It is the capital of Gumma ken (prefecture), and has a silk industry. 97,394 (1950).

Maecenas (mē.sē'nạs), Gaius (or Caius) Cilnius. d. 8 B.C. Roman statesman and patron of literature. He was descended from an ancient Etruscan family, and belonged to the equestrian order. He appears in 40 as the agent of Octavian (afterward emperor under the title of Augustus) in negotiating a marriage with Scribonia, daughter of Libo, the father-in-law of Sextus Pompeius. He was entrusted with the administration of Rome during the absence of Octavian on an expedition against Pompey in 36; and after the battle of Actium in 31, when Octavian made himself master of the Roman world, urged him to establish an empire instead of restoring the republic. He remained, with Agrippa, the chief adviser of Augustus down to 16, when he became estranged from his master and retired to private life. He was the friend and patron of Horace and Vergil, and wrote a number of works, fragments only of which are extant. His name has become a synonym for the generous patron of the arts.

Maël (mä.el), Pierre. Pseudonym of Vincent, Charles.

Maelstrom (māl'strọm). [Also: Moskenström; Norwegian, Malstrøm.] Whirlpool caused by the tidal current off the NW coast of Norway, S of the island of Moskenes, formerly supposed to suck in and destroy anything that approached it at any time, and still considered dangerous to small craft. In ancient Germanic legend the Maelstrom was caused by the two magic millstones which ground out so much salt for the Viking Mylsingr that the load sank his ship. It is said that they are still grinding away under water, grinding out the salt which makes sea water salty, and causing the turbulent whirlpool.

Maelzel or Mälzel (mel'tsęl), Johann Nepomuk. b. at Regensburg, Germany, Aug. 15, 1772; d. July 21, 1838. German inventor of mechanical instruments, particularly for use by musicians (and perhaps most notably the Panharmonion, for which his friend Beethoven composed a martial symphonic composition, The Battle Symphony). His other devices included the metronome, ear trumpets, a mechanical trumpet, and an automatic chess player, all built while he was mechanician (1808 et seq.) to the court at Vienna.

Maenads (mē'nadz). See Bacchae or Bacchantes.

Maeonia (mē.ō'ni.ạ). Early name of Lydia, Asia Minor.

Maeotis (mē.ō'tis), Palus. Ancient name of Azov, Sea of.

Maercker (mer'kėr), Georg. b. at Baldenburg, Germany, Sept. 21, 1865; d. at Dresden, Germany, Dec. 31, 1924. German general. He was in charge of military protection of the Weimar constitutional assembly and put down Communist uprisings in 1920.

Maerlant (mär'länt), Jacob (de Coster) van. b. probably at Maerlant, on the island of Voorne; d. at Damme, near Bruges, after 1291. Flemish poet. He was apparently a sacristan in Maerlant, as is inferred from the title "de Coster" given him in one of his works. He became, ultimately, town clerk at Damme, where he died, and where a statue has been erected to him. He was the founder of the didactic school of poetry in the Netherlands. His principal work is the long poem (after a Latin original) Spieghel Historiael (Mirror of History), begun in 1283 and left uncompleted at his death. Among his other works are the romantic poems Troyen and Alexander (after French originals), Der Naturen Bloeme (Flowers of Nature), Heimelijkheid der Heimelijkheiden (The Secret of Secrets), Rijmbijbel (Rhyme Bible), all after Latin originals; a strophic dialogue, Wapene Martijn; and the poem Van den Lande van over Zee (Of the Lands over the Sea), a summons to the Crusades. He has been called "the father of Dutch poets."

Maeshowe (māsʹhou). Prehistoric burial mound in the Orkney Islands, on Mainland (Pomona). Pottery and flint artifacts were found in the mound, which has several chambers.

Maesteg (mīs.tāg'). Urban district in S Wales, in Glamorganshire, ab. 7 mi. SE of Neath, ab. 174 mi. W of London by rail. It is a trade center and a coal-mining district. 23,124 (1951).

Maestra (mä.ās'trä), Sierra. See Sierra Maestra.

Maestricht (mās.triċht'). See Maastricht.

Maeterlinck (mā'tėr.lingk, met'ėr-; French, mā.ter.laṅk; Flemish, mā'tėr.lingk), Count Maurice. b. at Ghent, Belgium, Aug. 29, 1862; d. near Nice, France, May 6, 1949. Belgian dramatist, essayist, and poet. After practicing law at Ghent, he went to Paris in 1886, where he came under the influence of Villiers de l'Isle Adam and became a member of a group of symbolist writers. The pessimism of his earlier works is in contrast to the calm optimism of his mature writings. He was the author of such dramas as Pelléas et Mélisande (1892), the basis of the opera (1902) by Claude Debussy, Monna Vanna (1902), and L'Oiseau bleu (The Bluebird, 1909), all concerned with problems of the soul. His interest in nature is represented by La Vie des abeilles (1901), generally considered a classic in popular nature-study, L'Intelligence des fleurs (1907), La Vie des termites (1927), and La Vie des fourmis (1930). Among his other works, nearly all of which have been translated into English, are Serres chaudes (poems, 1889), La Princesse Maleine (1889), L'Intruse (1890), Les Sept Princesses, La Quenouille et la besace, Trois Petites Drames pour marionettes, dramas; and various critical works. He also wrote La Mort de Tintagiles (1894), Aglavaine et Sélysette (1896), Le Trésor des humbles (1896), La Sagesse et la destinée (1898), Sœur Béatrice (1899), Le Temple enseveli (1902), Joyzelle (1903), Le Double Jardin (1904), Le Miracle de Saint Antoine (1905), Mary Magdalene (1910), La Mort (1912), L'Hôte inconnu (1917), Le Grand Secret (1921), and others. He was awarded (1911) the Nobel prize in literature for his contributions to the drama.

Mafeking (maf'ę king). Town in NE Cape of Good Hope province, Union of South Africa, ab. 871 mi. by rail NE of Capetown, near the border of the Transvaal. It is the seat of the government of Bechuanaland protectorate, and the headquarters of the railway system between Kimberley and Bulawayo. The siege of Mafeking during the Boer War was one of the notable events of that war. Pop. 5,864 (1946), including 3,010 Europeans.

Maffei (mäf.fā'ē), Marquis Francesco Scipione di. b. at Verona, Italy, June 1, 1675; d. there, Feb. 11, 1755. Italian archaeologist and author. He wrote the tragedy Merope (1713), influential in the history of Italian drama, Verona illustrata (1731–32), and others.

Maffitt (maf'it), John Newland. b. at sea, Feb. 22, 1819; d. May 15, 1886. American officer in the Confederate navy. He was on sea duty (1838 et seq.), and resigned to enter the Confederate service. He was promoted (1863) to commander in recognition of his successful running of the blockade at Mobile in the insufficiently equipped Florida, and also performed notable feats of blockade running (1865) in the Owl. Author of the novel Nautilus, or Cruising under Canvas (1871).

Mafia (mä'fi.ą; Italian, mä.fē'ä). See Black Hand.

Mafra (mä'frą). Town and concelho (commune) in W Portugal, in the province of Estremadura, Lisboa district, ab. 18 mi. NW of Lisbon. The royal palace, founded in 1717 in emulation of the Escorial, is an enormous rectangle, the long side measuring ab. 770 ft., and contains 863 rooms, the finest of which is the great library. The domed church is well proportioned and incrusted with colored marbles. Pop. of concelho, 32,687 (1940); of town, 6,016 (1940).

Magadan (mag'ą.dan). See also Magdala.

Magadan (mä.gä.dän'). City in NE U.S.S.R., in the Khabarovsk Territory of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, on the N shore of the Sea of Okhotsk, ab. 1,395 nautical mi. from Vladivostok. It is a transportation and administrative center, connected by road with the gold-producing region of the upper Kolyma River Valley.

Magadha or Magada (mag'ą.dą). Ancient Hindu empire in N India, comprising what is now the area of Bihar and Oudh. Its capital was Pataliputra. It reached its zenith under Aśoka in the 3rd century B.C.

Magadhi (mä'gą.dē). Language of the people of ancient Magadha. It was a Prakrit language and ancestor of Bengali, Oriya, and others belonging to the Indic group of the Indo-Iranian subfamily of Indo-European languages.

Magadi (mą.gä'dē). Town in Kenya colony, British East Africa, in the S central part of the colony at the end of a branch line of the Kenya-Uganda Railway. It is situated on the E shore of Lake Magadi, and is the headquarters for shipping carbonate of soda taken from the lake.

Magadi, Lake. Lake in E Africa, in S Kenya, in the Great Rift Valley ab. 55 mi. SW of Nairobi. It is an interior lake, with no outlet, and is exploited for the natural soda deposits along its shores. Area, ab. 40 sq. mi. (larger after wet seasons).

Magadoxo (mag.ą.dok'sō). See Mogadishu.

Magalhães (mu.gą.lyĩs'), Benjamin Constant Botelho de. [Also: Magelhães; called Benjamin Constant.] b. at Rio de Janeiro, 1838; d. there, Jan. 22, 1891. Brazilian republican, one of the leaders of the revolution of Nov. 15, 1889.

Magalhães, Domingos José Gonçalves de. [Title, Viscount of Araguaya.] b. at Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 13, 1811; d. at Rome, July 10, 1882. Brazilian poet and diplomat, regarded by most critics as the initiator of romanticism in Brazilian literature with his manifesto entitled Discurso sôbre a história da literatura no Brasil and his book of poems Suspiros poéticos e saudades, both published at Paris in 1836. Four years before, he had published his first book of poetry, Poesias, along classical lines. In 1856 he published the Confederação dos Tamoios, an epic poem in blank verse.

Magalhães, Fernão de. See Magellan, Ferdinand.

Magalhães, José Vieira Couto de. b. at Diamantina, Brazil, Nov. 1, 1837; d. at Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 14, 1898. Brazilian anthropologist, historian, explorer, and statesman. Among his works are Os guaianases ou a fundação de São Paulo (1860), Viagem ao Rio Araguaia (1863), Dezoito mil milhas no interior do Brasil (1872), Ensaio de antropologia (1874), and O selvagem (1876), his most important book. He was president of four Brazilian provinces, took part in the war against Paraguay, and was appointed honorary brigadier general.

Magallanes (mä.gä.yä'nās). Province in S Chile, occupying the southernmost sixth of the country. It borders the Strait of Magellan. Capital, Punta Arenas; area, ab. 52,285 sq. mi.; pop. 51,887 (est. 1950).

Magallanes. Former name of Punta Arenas, Chile.

Magallanes, Estrecho de. Spanish name of Magellan, Strait of.

Magallanes, Fernando de. Spanish name of Magellan, Ferdinand.

Magallanes Moure (mō'rā), Manuel. b. 1878; d. 1924. Chilean poet. Author of Facetas (1902), Florilegio (1921), and others.

Magan (mä.gän'). [Also, Makan.] Geographical name occurring in cuneiform inscriptions. Its meaning is not certain, but it probably designated the Arabian coast.

Magarac (mag'ą.rak), Joe. See Joe Magarac.

Magazine (mag'ą.zēn), Mount. [Also, Magazine Mountain.] Summit in W Arkansas, in Logan County, in the Ouachita Mountains; the highest summit in the state. Elevation, ab. 2,800 ft.

Magda (mag'dą). Name of the English version of Heimat, a drama by Hermann Sudermann, published in 1893. A translation by Charles Edward Amory Winslow was published in 1895.

Magdala (mag'dą.lą). Former fortress town in N central Ethiopia. It was the national capital (1855–68) under the emperor Theodore, and was attacked and captured in 1868 by the British under Sir Robert Napier, who in consequence was created Baron Napier of Magdala.

Magdala. [Also: Magadan; Hebrew, Migdal; Arabic, El Majdal.] In Biblical geography, a town in Palestine (now in NE Israel), near the W shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Magdala, Mary of. See Mary Magdalene.

Magdalen (mag'dą.lęn), Mary. See Mary Magdalene.

Magdalena (mäg.dä.lā'nä). Department in N Colombia, on the N bordering on the Caribbean Sea and on the E on Venezuela. Capital, Santa Marta; area, ab. 20,819 sq. mi.; pop. 458,800 (est. 1950).

Magdalena Bay Resolution (mag.dą.lē'ną; Spanish, mäg.dä.lā'nä). See Lodge Corollary.

Magdalena Mountains (mag.dą.lē'ną). Mountain range in W central New Mexico, W of the Rio Grande. Its greatest elevation is ab. 10,798 ft.

Magdalena River (mäg.dä.lā'nä). Chief river of C Colombia. It flows N into the Caribbean Sea. Length, ab. 1,060 mi.; navigable to the vicinity of Honda (ab. 620 mi.).

Magdalen College (môd'lin). [Full name, St. Mary Magdalen College.] College of Oxford University, England, founded in 1457 by Bishop William of Waynflete. The charter was issued in 1458 and the foundation stone was laid May 5, 1474.

Magdalene (mag'dą.lęn, -lēn), Mary. See Mary Magdalene.

Magdalene College (môd'lin). College of Cambridge University, England, founded in 1519. The Pepysian Building in the second court contains Samuel Pepys's library, the manuscript of his Diary, and many other literary treasures and curiosities.

Magdalenian Period (mag.dą.lē'ni.ąn). Postglacial late Paleolithic culture, later than the Solutrean and generally succeeding the Aurignacian. The period has become famous for its works of art, such as the cave paintings of Altamira, which are believed to be Magdalenian. This period marks the end of the last glaciation and the rise of the Mesolithic and Neolithic cultures. The Magdalenians were hunters and made wide use of bone, antler, and ivory implements to supplement their stone tools; their artistic sense led them to decorate their bone tools with engraving and even their stone tools are finely finished. A specialization of tools occurs; the bow and arrow first appear, as do harpoons, spear throwers, and the like.

Magdalen Islands (mag'dą.lęn). [French, Îles de la Madeleine.] Group of small islands in SE Canada, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, NE of Prince Edward Island, forming a county of the province of Quebec. The chief occupation is fishing. Area, ab. 102 sq. mi.; pop. 9,999 (1951).

Magdeburg (mag'dę.bėrg; German, mäg'dę.bůrk). City in E central Germany, in the Land (state) of Saxony-Anhalt, Russian Zone, formerly the capital of the province of Saxony, Prussia, situated on the Elbe River ab. 32 mi. W of Berlin. It is a river port, connected through various canals with Berlin, Hanover, and the Ruhr. It was before World War II a center of the German sugar trade, and also a center of trade in grain, potash, fertilizer, lumber and coal. There were also considerable industries, especially machine and locomotive works, construction works, instrument industries, sugar refineries, chocolate factories, and printing establishments. The medieval town was completely destroyed in the Thirty Years' War; only the Dom (cathedral), the Church of Our Lady, and two other buildings remained standing. The Dom, on a foundation dating from 955, is in its present form a Gothic building of the 13th–15th centuries. The jurisdiction and the laws of Magdeburg were widely esteemed and adopted in the Middle Ages, becoming dominant in Brandenburg, Lusatia, Silesia, Bohemia, Prussia, and Poland. Its modern development began in the 19th century. The decrease of population between 1939 and 1946 was 25.3 percent. 236,326 (1946).

Magdeburg, Centuries of. Ecclesiastical history of the first 1,300 years of the Christian era, in which the records of each century occupy a volume. It was compiled by a number of Protestants at Magdeburg, Germany, and was published (1560–74) at Basel, Switzerland.

Magdeburg, Mechtilde von. See Mechtilde von Magdeburg.

Magee (mą.gē'), William Kirkpatrick. [Pseudonym, John Eglinton.] b. at Dublin, 1868—. Irish essayist and poet. Author of Irish Literary Portraits (1935), Letters of George Moore (1942), and others.

Magellan (mą.jel'ąn), Ferdinand. [Portuguese, Fernão de Magalhães; Spanish, Fernando de Magallanes.] b. at Saborosa, Traz-os-Montes, Portugal, c1480; d. on the island of Mactan, Philippine Islands, April 27, 1521. Portuguese navigator in the Spanish service, discoverer of the Strait of Magellan and of the Philippine Islands. Born to the nobility, he grew up at the Portuguese court, and served with the Portuguese forces in the East Indies (1505–12) and in Morocco (1513–14). Having fallen from favor with King Manuel I of Portugal, he was unable to secure the latter's backing for a project to find a western passage to the Moluccas. He went therefore to Spain, where he argued that those islands were not in the hemisphere which by treaty had been recognized as the Portuguese zone for conquest, but rather in the Spanish zone. His idea interested Charles I of Spain (later the emperor Charles V), who appointed him and another Portuguese adventurer to joint command (which presently became Magellan's sole command) of a squadron of five ships and 265 men which sailed from Sanlúcar de Barrameda, Portugal, on Sept. 20, 1519. The expedition reached the bay of Rio de Janeiro in December, 1519; explored the Río de la Plata in January and February, 1520; and on March 31 cast anchor in the port of San Julián on the Patagonian coast, where Magellan decided to winter. The captains and crews of three of his ships, and the inspector who accompanied the expedition, mutinied against this order but were subdued. Soon thereafter one of the ships, reconnoitering southward, disappeared. The Spaniards had occasional light encounters with hostile Indians (whom they described as a race of giants). With the return of spring to the Southern Hemisphere the squadron set sail again, and on Oct. 21 came upon the entrance to a westward passage, which Magellan named Todos los Santos, but which has long been known as the Strait of Magellan. Through this they passed, with the loss of another ship, which became separated from the squadron and returned to Spain; and on Nov. 28, 1520, they entered an ocean which Magellan named the Pacific. They sailed northward, then northwestward, and finally westward, suffering from bad food and water, ravaged by scurvy, discovering the Ladrones and other islands, but because of misinformation concerning the location of the Moluccas, persistently missing that group. The voyage was not, however, without notable results, for good and ill. On March 16, 1521, Magellan and his diminished company discovered the Philippines. The king of Cebu, one of these islands, received the voyagers cordially, made a formal act of allegiance to Spain, and was baptized, with several hundred of his people. But when Magellan took sides with one group of natives against another group on the island of Mactan, he was killed in battle, on April 27, and seven other Spaniards with him. The king of Cebu, evidently thinking better of the confidence he had at first reposed in these strange and violent visitors, revolted, killing 27 more of them, including two captains. The survivors of these events, after burning one of their ships, resumed their wanderings in the two remaining vessels. Discovering Borneo on the way, they finally reached the Moluccas. There they loaded with spices; one ship, the Trinidad, set its course for Panama but was wrecked. The other, appropriately named Victoria, rounded the African continent and, with her complement reduced to 18 men, sailed into harbor at Sanlúcar on Sept. 6, 1522, thus completing the first circumnavigation of the globe.

Magellan, Strait of. [Spanish, Estrecho de Magallanes.] Strait in SE Chile between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, separating the mainland of South America from the group of Tierra del Fuego. Discovered (1520) by Ferdinand Magellan, it has been used by mariners in rounding South America. Its chief port, Punta Arenas, is the most southerly city in Chile. Length, ab. 370 mi.

Magendie (mą.zhäṅ.dē), François. b. at Bordeaux, France, Oct. 15, 1783; d. at Paris, Oct. 7, 1855. French physiologist, especially noted for his experiments on the physiology of the nerves, and on the uses of various drugs, such as morphine, in treating illnesses. Among his works are Précis élémentaire de physiologie (1816), Leçons sur les phénomènes physiques de la vie (1835–38), and Leçons sur les fonctions et les maladies du système nerveux (1839).

Magenta (mą.jen'tą; Italian, mä.jen'tä). Town and commune in NW Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Lombardy, in the province of Milano, W of Milan. Industrial establishments include a rayon factory. A member of the Lombard Federation, it was destroyed by Emperor Frederick I (Frederick Barbarossa) in 1167. In the battle of Magenta, June 4, 1859, the French and Piedmontese under MacMahon defeated the Austrians under Gyulai. The Austrians fell back and left Lombardy to the victors. Pop. of commune, 13,021 (1936); of town, 10,470 (1936).

Magenta, Duc de. Additional title of MacMahon, Marie Edmé Patrice Maurice, Comte de.

Magerøy (mä'gėr.ė.i). Northernmost island of Norway, on which is North Cape. Area, ab. 111 sq.mi.; pop. 3,501 (1946).

Magersfontein (mä'gėrs.fôn.tān'). Locality in the Union of South Africa, in Cape of Good Hope province just W of the border of Orange Free State, and N of the Modder River. Here the British under Paul Sanford Methuen were disastrously defeated (Dec. 11, 1899) by the Boers under General Piet Cronje.

Maggie: A Girl of the Streets (mag'i). Novel by Stephen Crane, printed privately in 1893 under the pseudonym Johnston Smith, and published in 1896.

Maggie Tulliver (tul'i.vėr). See Tulliver, Maggie.

Maggini (mäd.jē'nē), Giovanni Paolo. b. in Italy, 1580; d. at Brescia, Italy, c1630. Italian violinmaker.

Maggiore (mäd.jō'rā), Lago. [Also: Lago di Verbano; French, Lac Majeur; German, Langensee; Latin, Lacus Verbanus.] Second largest lake of N Italy, mostly in Italy and partly in the canton of Ticino, Switzerland. It is traversed by the Ticino River. It contains the Borromean Islands, and is famous for picturesque scenery. On its banks are several towns, including Luino, Locarno, Intra, and Pallanza. Its N part is sometimes called the Lake of Locarno. Elevation, ab. 633 ft.; length, ab. 37 mi.; area, ab. 82 sq. mi.; greatest known depth, ab. 1,220 ft.

Maghiana (ma.gē.ä'na). See Jhang-Maghiana.

Maghrib (mä'grib). [Also, Maghreb (-greb).] Arabic word for "sunset" and "west," applied by Arabs to Morocco and to all NW Africa and Spain.

Magi (mā'jī). Members of the learned and priestly caste of Medians in ancient Persia, who had official charge of the sacred rites, practiced interpretation of dreams, professed supernatural arts, and were distinguished by peculiarities of dress and insigna. They are believed to have been originally pre-Zoroastrian but their beliefs are embodied in Zoroastrianism, and Zoroastrian priests were Magi. The word "magic" is derived from Magi. The first Biblical reference to the Magi occurs in Jer. xxxix. 3, 13, where a Babylonian rab-mag, or chief of the Magi, is mentioned in connection with the siege, capture, and rule of Jerusalem.

Magi. "Wise men" who, according to the Gospel of Matthew (ii. 1, 2), came from the East to Jerusalem to do homage to the new-born King of the Jews. A tradition as old as the 2nd century (resting on Ps. lxxii. 10, Isa. xlix. 7) makes them kings, and at a later period the names Melchior, Gaspar, and Balthazar became attached to them. As the first of the pagans to whom the birth of the Messiah was announced, they are honored at the feast of the Epiphany; in the calendar, however, the three days immediately following the first of the new year are called after them. See also Cologne, Three Kings of.

Magic Flute, The. English title of Zauberflöte, Die.

Magindanao (mä.ĦĕN.dä.nä'ō). Native Moslem (Moro) people of S Mindanao (Cotabato province and the S part of Zamboanga Peninsula), Philippine Islands. Their language, also called Magindanao, belongs to the N Malagassy branch of the Indonesian group of Malayo-Polynesian languages.

Maginn (mą.gin'), William. b. at Cork, Ireland, July 10, 1793; d. at Walton-on-Thames, England, Aug. 21, 1842. Irish author. He contributed (1819 et seq.) to Blackwood's Magazine. He founded, with Hugh Fraser, Fraser's Magazine in 1830. He is known chiefly as the author of The City of Demons and Bob Burke's Duel with Ensign Brady. His Miscellanies were edited by Dr. Shelton Mackenzie (1855–57). Maginn was the original of Captain Shandon in Thackeray's Pendennis.

Maginnis (mą.gin'is), Charles Donagh. b. at Londonderry, Ireland, 1867—. American architect, noted for his Roman Catholic churches in New England. He served on the Boston Municipal Art Commission (1909–17) and the Massachusetts State Art Commission (1911–20); was also a trustee of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and president of the American Institute of Architects (1937–48); and was appointed president of the International Congress of Architects by President F. D. Roosevelt.

Maginot (mä.zhē.nō; Anglicized, maj'i.nō), André. b. at Paris, Feb. 17, 1877; d. there, Jan. 7, 1932. French political leader, sponsor of the legislation under which the French fortification system known as the Maginot Line was built. A moderate republican deputy (1910 et seq.), he was undersecretary of state for war (1913–14), served at the front as a sergeant and was severely wounded (Nov. 9, 1914), and was crippled for the rest of his life. He was minister of pensions (1920–24), minister of war (1922–24, 1929–32), and minister of colonies (1917, 1928–29).

Maginot Line. System of fortifications along the eastern frontier of France, named for André Maginot. Essentially the system consisted of a series of great fortresses built into hills or otherwise concealed, connected by subterranean galleries. Each fortress contained quarters for troops and storage for supplies against a siege as well as for weapons and ammunition, and emplacements, sometimes in turrets, for heavy artillery, antiaircraft guns, antitank guns, and machine guns. Numerous smaller structures of the nature of blockhouses or bunkers, designed mainly as cover for machine-gun fire, covered the approaches, and the whole length of the fortified zone was further protected by antitank obstacles and by barbed wire. After the military collapse of France in 1940, it was widely alleged that the Maginot Line had been in fact a military liability in that it had bred a false sense of security. But actually the invaders breached the Line at only two points; they were able to overrun northern France by going through Belgium and simply outflanking the Line, which had not been extended along the Franco-Belgian boundary; and military opinion, upon second thought, has tended to reverse the unfavorable opinion formed during the first bitter days of French defeat.

Maginulf (mä'gi.nůlf). Original name of the antipope Sylvester IV.

Magione (mä.jō'nā). Village and commune in C Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Umbria, in the province of Perugia, near the E shore of the Lake of Trasimeno, W of Perugia. Some damage was suffered during World War II by buildings of tourist interest. Pop. of commune, 10,611 (1936); of village, 1,362 (1936).

Maglemosian (mä.glą.mō'zi.ąn). [Also, Maglemosean.] Mesolithic culture of N Europe, known from artifacts found on the island of Zealand, Denmark. It represents a fairly comfortable material culture. The Maglemosian people hunted small game and fished extensively with barbless bone spears and hooks; they had wood-cutting tools, heavy axes of stone or flake, and dug-out canoes. In art, however, they show marked deterioration from their Paleolithic predecessors. Maglemosian is usually regarded as a transitional period between the Paleolithic and Neolithic cultures.

Magliabechi (mä.lyä.bā'kē), Antonio. b. at Florence, in October, 1633; d. July 4, 1714. Italian bibliophile. He was for many years librarian of Cosimo III (Cosimo de' Medici), Grand Duke of Tuscany, and was famous for his vast and varied knowledge of languages and antiquities. He bequeathed to the Grand Duke a valuable collection of manuscripts and early editions, which now forms part of the Biblioteca Nazionale at Florence.

Maglie (mä'lyā). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Lecce, on the Salentina peninsula ab. 15 mi. SE of Lecce: an agricultural commune. Pop. of commune, 11,279 (1936); of town, 10,305 (1936).

Maglione (mä.lyō'nā), Luigi. b. at Casoria, Italy, March 2, 1877; d. at Rome, Aug. 22, 1944. Italian churchman and envoy. He was named (March 12, 1939) secretary of state to the Vatican.

Magloire (mą.glwär), Paul E. b. at Cap-Haïtien, Haiti, July 19, 1907—. Haitian soldier, president of Haiti (1950 et seq.). He began (1929) as a schoolteacher, but in 1930 became a cadet in the army and held a number of military posts. In 1944 he was chief of police of the national capital, Port-au-Prince, and he served (1944–48) as deputy commander at the National Palace. In 1950, as the result of the financial difficulties into which the country had fallen, a military junta overthrew President Dumarsais Estimé and in October, 1950, Magloire, who had headed the revolutionaries, was elected president in the first election ever held in Haiti in which universal suffrage was permitted.

Magna (mag'nạ). Unincorporated community in N Utah, in Salt Lake County: processing of ores from Bingham Canyon. Dead Man's Cave, the home of a prehistoric Pueblo people, is nearby. 3,502 (1950).

Magna Britannia (bri.tan'i.ą). A Latin name of Great Britain; see also under Labrador.

Magna Charta or Magna Carta (kär'tą). Great charter of England, granted and sealed by King John in a conference between him and his barons at Runnymede, June 19, 1215. Its importance lies not so much in its actual provisions (which scholars in the field of English constitutional law have shown to be actually a reversion to ancient feudal privileges rather than a conscious forward step to freedom) as in the general principle implicit in its acceptance, that the king recognized a higher principle than his own personal will, the principle of law. The charter was based on a series of articles drawn up by the insurgent barons and presented to the king on June 8, 1215. From June 15 to 19 the charter was written, article by article (63 are generally recognized), on the basis of the barons' demands, principally by William Marshal for the king and Stephen Langton, Archbishop of Canterbury, for the barons. The most famous section is article 39, which provides that "No freeman shall be arrested, or detained in prison, or deprived of his freehold, or outlawed, or banished, or in any way molested; and we [the king] will not go forth against him, nor send against him, unless by the lawful judgment of his peers and by the law of the land." Research has demonstrated that the language used is such that the intention was to have it apply only to the upper classes, but traditionally (and in the subsequent development of the English constitution) it was held to grant jury trial to all freemen; similarly the other articles, misread though they were through lack of knowledge of the period, were held to grant freedoms on a wider basis than that originally intended by the barons, who, scholars have pointed out, were interested primarily in protecting against royal encroachment their own right to tyrannize. The charter's weakness lay in its lack of provision for enforcement and in August, 1215, John obtained an annulment of the charter from Pope Innocent

III. John died during the ensuing civil war against the barons, but in November, 1216, the charter was reissued in the name of Henry III, who later confirmed it several times, as did subsequent kings.

Magna Graecia (grē'shą). [Eng. trans., "Great Greece."] In ancient geography, the name given to the part of S Italy colonized by Greeks. Among the leading cities were Cumae, Crotona, Sybaris, Metapontum, Locri, Rhegium, Tarentum, Thurii, Heraclea, and Neapolis. Colonization began in the 8th century B.C. and the most flourishing period was the 7th and 6th centuries B.C.

Magnalia Christi Americana (mag.nā'li.ą kris'tī ą.mer.i.kā'ną). [Eng. trans., "The Mighty Works of Christ in America."] Ecclesiastical history of New England, by Cotton Mather, published in 1702.

Magnan (mą.nyäṅ), Bernard Pierre. b. at Paris, Dec. 7, 1791; d. there, May 29, 1865. French marshal. He repressed the insurrection at Lyons in 1849, and aided in the coup d'état of 1851 that established Louis Napoleon (later Napoleon III) as French dictator.

Magnard (mą.nyär), Francis. b. at Brussels, Belgium, Feb. 11, 1837; d. at Neuilly-sur-Seine, France, Nov. 18, 1894. French journalist.

Magnavilla (mag.ną.vil'ą), William de. See Mandeville, William de.

Magnentius (mag.nen'shus). d. 353 A.D. Roman emperor (350–353). He murdered Constans and usurped the western provinces of the empire in 350, but was defeated by Constantius at Mursa in 351, and committed suicide to avoid capture in 353.

Magnes (mag'nęs), Judah Leon. b. at San Francisco, July 5, 1877; d. at New York, Oct. 27, 1948. American rabbi and educator. He was the leader (1912–20) of the Society for the Advancement of Judaism, and served (1909–22) as chairman of the executive committee of the New York City Jewish Community. He was chancellor (1925–35) and president (1935 et seq.) of Hebrew University, Jerusalem.

Magnesia (mag.nē'zhą, -shą). In ancient geography, the easternmost district of Thessaly, Greece, bordering on the Aegean Sea and the Pagasean Gulf.

Magnesia. [Sometimes called Magnesia ad Maeandrum (ad mē.an'drum).] In ancient geography, a city in Ionia, W Asia Minor, ab. 14 mi. SE of Ephesus. The temple of Artemis Leucophryne, the remains of which still exist, was one of the most magnificent of ancient monuments, rebuilt c300 B.C. The frieze, now in the Louvre, bears reliefs of combats between Greeks and Amazons. There are also remains of a theater of the 4th century B.C., with later modifications, and of a large stadium.

Magnesia or Magnesia ad Sipylum (ad sip'i.lum). See Manisa, city.

Magnetic Lady, or Humours Reconciled, The. Comedy by Ben Jonson. It was licensed and acted in 1632, but not published till 1640.

Magnificat (mag.nif'i.kat). Song or hymn of the Virgin Mary in Luke, i. 46–55, beginning "My soul doth magnify the Lord." It is very similar to the song of Hannah (Sam. ii. 1–10), which has accordingly been called the Old Testament Magnificat. The Magnificat was in use in the hours or daily service of the Christian church as early as c500 A.D. In the Greek Church it is called the Ode of the Theotocos.

Magnificent Ambersons (am'bėr.sonz), The. Novel by Booth Tarkington, published in 1918 and awarded a Pulitzer prize in 1919. It is the second part of the Growth trilogy which also embraces The Turmoil (1915) and The Midlander (1923).

Magnin (mą.nyaṅ), Charles. b. at Paris, Nov. 4, 1793; d. there, Oct. 8, 1862. French dramatic critic. He wrote Les Origines du théâtre en Europe (1838) and Histoire des marionettes (1852).

Magnitogorsk (mäg.nē.tọ.gôrsk'). City in the U.S.S.R., in the Chelyabinsk oblast (region) of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, in the Urals. It is the greatest iron mining, and also the chief iron and steel producing, center of the Urals. It also has chemical and machine-building industries. Although the iron ore of Magnitogorsk had been discovered by the 18th century, it was not mined on a large scale until the early 1930's. Pop. 145,870 (1939).

Magnolia (mag.nōl'yą, -nō'li.ą). City in SW Arkansas, county seat of Columbia County: cotton textiles. 6,918 (1950).

"Magnolia State." Nickname of Mississippi.

Magnus I (of Denmark and Norway) (mag'nus). [Called Magnus the Good.] fl. 11th century. King of Norway (1035–47) and of Denmark (1042–47); son of Olaf II (Saint Olaf). On the death of Canute II, Hardecanute came to the throne of Denmark and Sweyn to that of Norway, but the Norwegians rejected Sweyn in favor of Magnus. He concluded with Hardecanute an agreement whereby the survivor after the death of one or the other would succeed to his predecessor's crown. Hardecanute died in 1042 and Magnus came to the Danish throne and would have pressed Hardecanute's claim to the English kingdom had not Danish objections to his kingship in Denmark occupied his attention.

Magnus III (of Norway). [Called Magnus the Barefoot; Norwegian, Magnus Barfod (mäng'nůs bär'fōt).] d. Aug. 24, 1103. King of Norway (1093–1103). He conquered the Orkneys and the Hebrides, and was killed before Dublin during an invasion of Ireland.

Magnus VI (of Norway). [Called Magnus the Reformer of the Laws; Norwegian, Magnus Lagabøter (mäng'nůs lä'gä.bė.tėr).] b. 1238; d. May 9, 1280. King of Norway (1263–80). He collected and published a new code of laws.

Magnus VII (of Norway). See Magnus II (of Sweden).

Magnus II (of Sweden). [Also Magnus VII (of Norway); called Magnus Smek (smāk), meaning Magnus the Petted (from smek, "to caress").] b. in 1316; d. at sea, Dec. 1, 1374. King of Norway (1319–43) and of Sweden (1319–65). He succeeded his grandfather Haakon V of Norway in 1319 when he was three years of age, and was chosen king also by the Swedes, who deposed their king, Birger, in 1319. The regency of Magnus's mother ended in 1332 when the young king was declared of age, but as a result of the long period of regency and the weak policy of his advisers, the power of the throne was weakened and that of the nobility strengthened. His principal attention was given to Sweden, and the resulting unrest among the Norwegian nobility caused him in 1343 to surrender the Norwegian crown to his three-year-old son, Haakon VI. Magnus retained the regency in Norway until Haakon reached his majority in 1355. In 1356 Magnus was dethroned by his son Eric XII, regained the crown on Eric's death (1359), and was deposed (1365) by the royal council in favor of Albert of Mecklenburg, his nephew. Magnus was imprisoned for a time but escaped (1371) to Norway where he spent his last years.

Magnus (mäg'nůs), Eduard. b. at Berlin, Jan. 7, 1799; d. there, Aug. 8, 1872. German portrait painter and writer on art.

Magnus (mag'nus), Gerhardus. Latinized name of Groot, Gerhard.

Magnus (mäg'nůs), Heinrich Gustav. b. at Berlin, May 2, 1802; d. there, April 4, 1870. German chemist and physicist. He published in Poggendorff's Annalen and in the proceedings of the Berlin Academy of Sciences a number of important papers on chemistry and physical topics. His studies include work on platinum-ammonium compounds, absorption of gases in the blood, and thermal phenomena in relation to gases.

Magnus (mag'nus), Sextus Pompeius. See Pompeius Magnus, Sextus.

Magnusen (mag'nu.sen) or Magnússen (mäg'nos.sen), Finnur (or Finn). See Magnússon, Finnur (or Finn).

Magnus Felix Ennodius (mag'nus fē'liks e.nō'di.us). See Ennodius, Magnus Felix.

Magnus-Levy (mäg'nůs.lā'vē), Adolf. b. at Berlin, Sept. 9, 1865—. German clinical physiologist. He introduced experimental methods of determining thyroid disturbances (1895), opening a new epoch in the study of metabolism by focusing interest on the relations of metabolism and internal secretion. He made important studies of diabetic coma (1899) and showed the heightened metabolism in hyperthyroidism and the reduction of metabolism in myxedema which can be corrected by the administration of desiccated thyroid. He introduced the basal metabolism test.

Magnússon (mäg'nös.sôn), Arne (or Árni). b. in Iceland, 1663; d. at Copenhagen, in January, 1730. Icelandic historian and archaeologist. He made a notable collection of Icelandic manuscripts.

Magnússon or Magnusen, Finnur (or Finn). [Also, Finnur (or Finn) Magnússen.] b. at Skalholt, Iceland, Aug. 27, 1781; d. at Copenhagen, Dec. 24, 1847. Icelandic archaeologist. He was the author of important works on the elder Edda, and on Norse mythology, literature, and antiquities.

Magnus Troil (mag'nus troil). See Troil, Magnus.

Magny (mȧ.nyē), Olivier de. b. at Cahors, France; d. c1560. French poet. Author of Les Amours (1553), Les Gayetés (1554), Les Soupirs (1557), and Les Odes (1559).

Mago (mā'gō). fl. 6th century B.C. Carthaginian general, reputed organizer of the military system of Carthage.

Mago. fl. 4th century B.C. Carthaginian naval commander, distinguished in the wars with the Syracusans (396–392), and later suffete (chief magistrate) of Carthage.

Mago. fl. 4th century B.C. Commander of the Carthaginian forces in Sicily 343 B.C., the ally of Hicetas in his struggle with Timoleon. His conduct of the campaign was marked by cowardice, and on his return to Carthage he committed suicide.

Mago. d. 203 or 193 B.C. Carthaginian general; younger brother of Hannibal. He accompanied his brother to Italy in 218 B.C., supported Hasdrubal in Spain in 215 B.C., and was defeated by Scipio Africanus at Silpia in 206 B.C.

Magoffin (mȧ.gof'in), Beriah. b. at Harrodsburg, Ky., April 18, 1815; d. there, Feb. 28, 1885. American politician. As governor (1859–62) of Kentucky, he refused (1861) to order the invading Confederates to withdraw.

Magog (mā'gog). City in S Quebec, Canada, at the N end of Lake Memphremagog near the Vermont border. It has textile mills, sawmills, and creameries. 12,423 (1951).

Magog. According to the prophet Ezekiel (xxxviii. 2), the land of Gog, the chief prince of Tubal and Meshech. God is the Gugu of the Assyrian inscriptions, identified by the English philologist A. H. Sayce with the Gyges of the Greeks. Magog, therefore, would be the kingdom of Lydia. The name is evidently a compound of that of Gog; it may represent the Assyrian Mat Gugi, or "country of Gugu."

Magog. See also Gog and Magog.

Magonigle (mȧ.gon'i.gl), Harold Van Buren. b. at Bergen Heights, N.J., Oct. 17, 1867; d. at Bain Harbor, Vt., Aug. 29, 1935. American architect and sculptor. Among his principal works are the Liberty Memorial at Kansas City, Mo., the U.S. embassy and consulate at Tokyo, and the McKinley National Memorial at Canton, Ohio.

Magoon (ma.gön'), Charles Edward. b. in Minnesota, Dec. 5, 1861; d. at Washington, D.C., Jan. 14, 1920. American administrator, provisional governor of Cuba (October, 1906–January, 1909). He was general counsel of the Isthmian Canal Commission (1904–05), and governor of the Canal Zone (May, 1905–October, 1906).

Magrath (mȧ.grath'), Andrew Gordon. b. at Charleston, S.C., Feb. 8, 1813; d. there, April 9, 1893. American Confederate politician. He was secretary of state (1861–64) of the Confederacy, was elected (1864) governor of South Carolina, and advocated (1865) submission to the federal authorities.

Magritte (mȧ.grēt), René. b. at Lessines, Belgium, 1898—. Belgian surrealist painter, one of the leaders of that movement in his country. He participated in the surrealist shows at Paris from 1926 on. The Path of the Air, The Voice of the Winds, The False Mirror, Mental Calculus, The State of Man, The Eye, and many illustrations and magazine covers are among his works.

Magruder (mȧ.grö'dėr), John Bankhead. b. at Winchester, Va., Aug. 15, 1810; d. at Houston, Tex., Feb. 18, 1871. American Confederate general. He was graduated (1830) from West Point, served in the Seminole War and in the Mexican War, and subsequently served on tours of duty in Maryland, California, and Rhode Island. Resigning (March 16, 1861) from the U.S. army, he became a colonel in the Confederate army and in May, 1861, took command of the forces on the Virginia Peninsula. In that month he won the battle of Big Bethel, the first engagement of the Civil War. He became a brigadier general shortly thereafter and was promoted (October, 1861) to the rank of major general. He played a creditable role in the Peninsular Campaign's opening phases, but beginning with the Seven Days' Battle erred in failing to pursue promptly the retreating federal forces. He was transferred (Oct. 10, 1862) to the command of the district of Texas and after the Civil War went to Mexico, where he became a major general under the emperor Maximilian. He settled at Houston, Tex., in 1869.

Magruder, Julia. b. at Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 14, 1854; d. at Richmond, Va., June 9, 1907. American novelist. Her works include Across the Chasm (1885), Princess Sonia (1895), The Violet (1896), A Realized Ideal (1898), Dead Selves (1898), Struan (1899), A Beautiful Alien (1900), A Manifest Destiny (1900), and A Sunny Southerner (1901).

Mag Tured (mä tö'rę). Irish form of Moytura.

Magua (mä'gwa). Indian enemy of Uncas in The Last of the Mohicans (1826), novel by James Fenimore Cooper.

Maguaque (mä.gwä'kā), Rodrigo Cota de. See Cota de Maguaque, Rodrigo.

Maguire (mȧ.gwīr'), John Francis. b. at Cork, Ireland, 1815; d. there, Nov. 1, 1872. Irish journalist and author.

Maguntchi (mą.gun'chi). A former name of Emmaus, Pa.

Maguntiacum (mā.gun.tī'ą.kum). A Latin name of Mainz.

"Magus of the North" (mā'gus). See Hamann, Johann Georg.

Magwitch (mag'wich), Abel. [Assumed name, Provis.] In Charles Dickens's Great Expectations, a convict, Pip's anonymous benefactor.

Magyar (mag'yär, mod'yär). See Hungarian.

Magyar (mô'dyôr), László. b. at Subotica (Maria-Theresiopel), Austria-Hungary (now in Yugoslavia), 1817; d. at Cuio, near Benguela, West Africa, Nov. 9, 1864. Hungarian traveler in Africa. Author of Reisen in Südafrika, 1849–57 (Vol. 1, 1859).

Magyarkanizsa (mô'dyôr.kô'nē.zhô). See Stara Kanjiža.

Magyar Köztársaság (mô'dyôr kêst'är'shô.shäg) or Magyarország (mô'dyôr.ōr'säg). Hungarian names of Hungary.

Magyaróvár (mô'dyôr.ō'vär). See Mosonmagyaróvár.

Magyars (mag'yärz, mod'yärz). [Also, Hungarians.] People of Hungary, belonging to the Finno-Ugric linguistic stock. Their language, called Hungarian or Magyar, belongs to the Ugric group of the Finno-Ugric family of languages. The Magyars were a nomadic people who migrated from the Urals into N Caucasia in the 5th century, whence they were driven (in the 9th century) by the Petchenegs (a Turkic people) westward into what is now Rumania, and from there northward into Hungary. They were well settled in Hungary by the end of the 9th century.

Mahabaleshwar (mą.hä.bą.lesh'wąr). Health resort in the state of Bombay, Union of India, ab. 90 mi. SE of Bombay, in the Western Ghats. 5,090 (1941).

Mahabharata (mą.hä'bä'rą.tą). One of the two great epics of ancient India, the other being the Ramayana. It contains over 100,000 distichs, divided into 18 parvans ("knots" or "joints," and then "sections," "chapters"). It is about eight times as large as the Iliad and Odyssey together. The tales originally composing it were probably first circulated in prose, and put later into metrical form. It was composed between 200 B.C. and 200 A.D. Scarcely a fourth of the poem is taken up by the main narrative. The rest consists of inserted episodes and diverse accretions, which are, aside from minor additions, narratives of the mythical or legendary history of India, theogony and cosmogony, or didactic and religious lore. To the first class belong the episodes of Nala and Shakuntala, to the third the Bhagavadgita. Thus through constant accretion the Mahabharata became a sort of encyclopedia of India, intended by the Brahmanic authors for the Kshatriya or military caste. The leading subject is the great war between the Kauravas and the Pandavas (who were descendants of the lunar race) for the possession of a kingdom occupying the region around Delhi. The following is a brief summary of the main story: The two brothers Dhritarashtra and Pandu were brought up in their royal home at Hastinapura, ab. 60 mi. NE of Delhi. Dhritarashtra, the elder, being blind, Pandu became king. Pandu had five sons: Yudhishthira, Bhima, and Arjuna by Kunti, and Nakula and Sahadeva by Madri. These are called the Pandavas, or the five Pandava princes, and are types of heroic excellence. Dhritarashtra had 100 sons, of whom the chief was Duryodhana. These are called the Kauravas, and are represented as altogether bad. After Pandu's death the Pandavas were brought up with the Kauravas by Dhritarashtra, who made his nephew Yudhishthira heir apparent. Yudhishthira's exploits having excited the ill will of the Kauravas, the Pandavas went to the King of Panchala, whose daughter Draupadi became their common wife. After this alliance, in order to reconcile the feud, Dhritarashtra divided his kingdom, giving Hastinapura to his sons, and to his nephews a district in the southwest, where they built Indraprastha, the modern Delhi. Here the Pandavas lived for a time happily under the rule of Yudhishthira. Once, however, Dhritarashtra held at his capital a great assembly to which came the Pandavas. In a game of dice with Duryodhana, Yudhishthira lost wealth, kingdom, brothers, and wife, when by a compromise the Pandavas agreed to give up their portion of the kingdom for 12 years and remain incognito for a 13th. They retired with Draupadi to the Kamyaka forest on the Sarasvati, and dwelt there 12 years. In the fourteenth year they demanded their possessions, but in vain; hence the great war in which they overthrew the reigning house, slew Duryodhana, and won back their kingdom. The story of the combat is extended through several books. When Yudhishthira is crowned in Hastinapura, Bhishma, leader of the Kauravas, though mortally wounded, instructs him on the duties of kings through 20,000 distichs and then dies. In the seventeenth book the Pandavas renounce the kingdom, and in the eighteenth, the last, they ascend to heaven with Draupadi.

Mahabhashya (mä.hä.bä'shyạ). [Eng. trans., "Great Commentary."] In Sanskrit literature, Patanjali's commentary on the grammatical sutras of Panini, written some time between 140 B.C. and 60 A.D. It is a paramount authority in all matters relating to classical Sanskrit grammar.

Maha Chulalongkorn (mä.hä' chö.lä.lông'kôn). See Rama V.

Mahadeva (mä.hä.dā'vạ). See also Shiva.

Mahadeva. In the history of Buddhism, a schismatic teacher who is said to have lived 200 years after Buddha's death.

Mahadevi (mä.hä.dā'vē). Name of Devi, the wife of Shiva, meaning literally "the great goddess."

Mahaffy (mạ.haf'i), Sir John Pentland. b. in Switzerland, July 12, 1839; d. April 30, 1919. Irish classical scholar. He wrote Social Life in Greece (1874), Greek Antiquities (1876), A History of Greek Classical Literature (1880), The Story of Alexander's Empire (1890), The Petrie Papyri Deciphered and Explained (1891–1905), Problems in Greek History (1892), Empire of the Ptolemies (1896), An Epoch in Irish History (1904), The Silver Age of the Greek World (1906), and others.

Mahalla el Kubra (mạ.häl'ạ el kō'brạ). [Also: Mahalla, Mahalla el Kobra (kō'brạ).] City in NE Africa, in Lower Egypt, on the delta between the Rosetta and Damietta branches of the Nile River, ab. 65 mi. N of Cairo. It is in the heart of a rich agricultural area. 115,509 (1947).

Mahamankut (mä.hä.mäng.köt') or Maha Mongkut (mä.hä' mông.köt'). See Rama IV.

Mahamaya (mä.hä.mä'yạ). Mother of Buddha. She was the daughter of the rajah of Koli, and she and her younger sister were the principal wives of Suddhodana, rajah of the Sakhya clan.

Mahan (mạ.han'), Alfred Thayer. b. at West Point, N.Y., Sept. 27, 1840; d. at Washington, D.C., Dec. 1, 1914. American naval officer and writer on naval history; son of Dennis Hart Mahan. He became midshipman in 1859, lieutenant in 1861, lieutenant commander in 1865, commander in 1872, captain in 1885, and retired in 1896. He was made lecturer on history, strategetics, and tactics in, and president of, the U.S. Naval War College, Newport, R.I. In 1894 he was in command of the Chicago. Mahan's books did not limit the discussion of sea power to battles but showed how naval power affected the general course of war and also of commerce and peaceful expansion. His thesis has been adopted by several historians and by advocates of large navies. He wrote The Gulf and Inland Waters (1883), The Influence of Sea Power upon History 1660 1783 (1890), The Influence of Sea Power upon the French Revolution and Empire 1793-1812 (1892), Life of Admiral Farragut (1894), Life of Nelson (1897), Interest of America in Sea Power (1897), Lessons of the War with Spain (1899), Problem of Asia (1900), The War in South Africa (1901), Retrospect and Prospect (1902), Sea Power in its Relations to the War of 1812 (1905), From Sail to Steam (1907), Naval Administration and Warfare (1908), The Interest of America in International Conditions (1910), Naval Strategy (1911), Armaments and Arbitration (1912), and others.

Mahan, Dennis Hart. b. at New York, April 2, 1802; d. near Stony Point, N.Y., Sept. 16, 1871. American military engineer; father of Alfred Thayer Mahan. He was professor of engineering at West Point from 1832 until his death, holding also the office of dean after 1838. He committed suicide by drowning. Among his works are Treatise on Field Fortifications (1836) and Military Engineering (1865–67).

Mahan, Milo. b. at Suffolk, Va., May 24, 1819; d. at Baltimore, Sept. 3, 1870. American clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, brother of Dennis Hart Mahan.

Mahanadi (mạ.hä'nạ.di). [Also, Mahanuddy.] River in E central Union of India. It rises in Madhya Pradesh, flows E, and empties through a delta into the Bay of Bengal, near Cuttack. Length, over 500 mi.

Mahanaim (mā.hạ.nā'im). In Old Testament geography, a place in Palestine, E of the Jordan and N of the Jabbok. Its exact position is unknown. It was taken by Shishak (Sheshonk I of Egypt). Gen. xxxii. 2.

Mahanoy City (mä'hạ.noi). Borough in E central Pennsylvania, in Schuylkill County, ab. 109 mi. NW of Philadelphia; coal mining; manufactures of clothing and beer. It was incorporated in 1863. Pop. 10,934 (1950).

Mahapralaya (mä.hä.prä'lạ.yạ). In Hindu belief, the total destruction of all things at the end of a kalpa (i.e., a day and a night of Brahma, or 2,160,000,000 years), when the seven Lokas (worlds) and their inhabitants, saints, gods, and Brahma himself, are reabsorbed in the primeval cosmos.

Mahapuranas (mä.hä.pö.rä'nạz). The Vishnupurana and Bhagavatapurana, the "great puranas" of Hindu religious literature.

Maharajpur (mä.hä.räj'pör). Village in Madhya Bharat, Union of India, formerly in the state of Gwalior, ab. 51 mi. S of Agra. Here in December, 1843, the British under Sir Hugh Gough defeated the Mahrattas.

Mahasabha (mä.hä.sä'bä), Hindu. See Hindu Mahasabha.

Mahatma Gandhi (mạ.hat'mạ gan'di; mạ.hät'mạ gän'di). See Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand.

Maha Vajiravudh (mä.hä' vä.jē.rä.vōd'). See Rama VI.

Mahavira (mä.hä.vē'rạ). Literally, "great hero": an epithet of Indra in the Rig-Veda; but the name is especially that of Mahavira Vardhamana or Jina, the 24th or last deified saint of the Jains, who died c500 B.C. His legendary history is given in the Kalpasutra and the Mahaviracharitra, sacred books of the Jains. The points of contact between his legend and that of Buddha have led some to identify the two. Most scholars are now of the opinion that Mahavira was a contemporary of Gautama Buddha, and that the Jains were an independent skeptical sect a little antecedent to the Buddhists.

Mahayana (mä.hä.yä'nạ). Sanskrit name of the Great Vehicle.

Mahdi (mä'dē). [Sometimes spelled Mehdee.] According to Mohammedan belief, a spiritual and temporal ruler destined to appear on earth at the end of the world and save the faithful. Some sects hold that the Mahdi has appeared, and in concealment awaits the time of his manifestation. There have been a number of professed Mahdis, of whom the latest of importance was Mohammed Ahmed, whose armed followers resisted the advance of the British troops into the Sudan in 1884–85, and overthrew the Egyptian power in that region.

Mahdia (mä.dē.ạ). Town in E Tunisia, North Africa, on the Mediterranean Sea ab. 45 mi. SE of Sousse. It is a small port, once a haven of the Barbary pirates. Pop. ab. 9,000.

Mahé (mä.hā'). Chief island of the Seychelles group, Indian Ocean, a British colony ab. 800 mi. SE of the Somalia coast of Africa. The chief exports are copra, cinnamon, patchouli oil, and guano. Chief town, Victoria; area, ab. 55½ sq. mi.; pop. ab. 30,000.

Mahé. Seaport and small settlement belonging to France, on the W coast of India, ab. 280 mi. SE of Goa. There has been no foreign trade in the past few years except through the adjoining port of Tellicherry. Mahé was the scene of a riot in October, 1948, inspired by pro-Indian natives agitating for union with the Union of India. Area, ab. 23 sq. mi.; pop., 14,700 (1946).

Mahé (mȧ.ā), Bertrand François. See La Bourdonnais or La Bourdonnaie, Bertrand François Mahé, Comte de.

Maher Pasha (mä.her' pȧsh'ȧ), Ali (or Aly). Egyptian politician. A member of the bar (1905) and a judge (1907), he was a professor of international law (1923) and dean of the law school. In 1924 he served as undersecretary of state for education, and he was minister of education (1925–26), of finance (1928–29), and of justice (1930–32). He was a member of parliament (1924 et seq.) and a senator (1930–32, 1936, 1939–46). Maher Pasha, a close adviser of the king, headed the royal cabinet (1935, 1937) and was premier and minister of foreign affairs and of the interior (1936, 1939–40). In 1940 he resigned as premier rather than follow a course that might bring Egypt directly into World War II. In 1952 he again became premier, but in less than a month was forced to resign; however, some months later, in July, 1952, a coup led by General Naguib again made Maher Pasha prime minister for two months. He resigned in September, 1952, in the face of growing demands for a complete reform of the Egyptian government.

Mahi (mä'hē). Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting N Dahomey.

Mahican (mȧ.hē'kȧn). [Also, Mohican.] Confederacy of North American Indian tribes formerly inhabiting the upper Hudson River valley, mainly in the E part, as far as Lake Champlain. The language was of the Algonquian family, and their culture was typical Eastern Woodlands culture. They became gradually dispersed after the arrival of the white man. Some moved westward to Ohio and there merged with the Delaware, some joined the Iroquois confederacy in New York, and some settled at Stockbridge, Mass.

Mahidol (mä.hi.dôl'), Ananda. See Rama VIII.

Mahidpore (mä.hēd'pōr). See Mehidpur.

Mahi Kantha (mä'hē kän'tȧ). Former group of native states now incorporated into the state of Bombay, Union of India, situated N of Ahmedabad. The group formed a part of Sabar Kantha. Area, ab. 3,125 sq. mi.

Mahillon (mȧ.ē.yôṅ), Charles Victor. b. at Brussels, Belgium, March 10, 1841; d. at St.-Jean, France, June 17, 1924. Belgian expert on musical instruments. He was named (1877) head curator of instruments at the Brussels Conservatory, and was author of various works on instruments and sound.

Mahler (mä'lėr), Gustav. b. at Kalischt, in Bohemia, July 7, 1860; d. at Vienna, May 18, 1911. Austrian conductor and composer. He conducted the opera in various German cities from 1883 to 1897. From 1897 to 1907 he was the chief conductor at the Imperial Opera at Vienna. He composed nine symphonies (and sketches for a tenth), which aroused controversy over their unconventional methods and structure, and several songs with orchestra, including the song cycle Das Lied von der Erde (1908). In 1888 he brought out the opera Die drei Pintos, which he finished after Weber's sketches. Among his most important works are a set of Humoresken for orchestra, and a cantata, Das klagende Lied.

Mahler, Hedwig Courths-. See Courths-Mahler, Hedwig.

Mahlern (mä'lėrn), Discourse der. See Discourse der Mahlern.

Mahlmann (mäl'mȧn), Siegfried August. b. at Leipzig, Germany, May 13, 1771; d. there, Dec. 16, 1826. German poet, whose verse works (1825) have been set to music by many composers and have thus been preserved in songs. Besides stories and fairy tales (1802), he also parodied Kotzebue in the play Herodes vor Bethlehem (1803).

Mahmoud (mä.möd', mä'möd). See Mohammed.

Mahmud (mä.möd'). See also Mohammed.

Mahmud I. b. 1696; d. 1754. Sultan of Turkey (1730–54); son of Mustafa II, and nephew of Ahmed III, whom he succeeded. He compelled (1739) Austria to cede Belgrade at the end of a war (1736–39) against Russia and Austria.

Mahmud II. b. July 20, 1785; d. at Constantinople, July 1, 1839. Sultan of Turkey (1808–39); brother of Mustafa IV whom he succeeded. At the beginning of his reign he fought (1809–12) an unsuccessful war against Russia, losing Bessarabia and much influence in the Danube area, but eliminating Russian interference in Serbia. But in 1821 the Greeks began a war of independence and he was forced to call upon Mehemet Ali, his vassal in Egypt, to suppress the rebels. In 1826 he smashed the power of the Janizaries by massacring nearly 10,000 of them and thus once more established the power of the throne. However, the European powers now came to the aid of the Greeks and at Navarino (Oct. 20, 1827) French, English, and Russian ships destroyed most of the Egyptian fleet. Russia declared war on Turkey in 1828 and in August, 1829, captured Adrianople, forcing Mahmud to sign the peace of Adrianople, which secured the independence of Greece. Mahmud was now confronted with the problem of Mehemet Ali, who realized that he now held the most powerful military force in the Turkish empire; in 1832 open conflict broke out when the Egyptians under Ibrahim Pasha invaded Syria. Turkey was forced to ally herself with Russia (July, 1833) and to grant further concessions, but this could not stop the Egyptians, and Mahmud died soon after receiving news of the defeat of the Turks at Nesib (June 24, 1839).

Mahmud of Ghazni (gäz'nē). b. c971; d. at Ghazni, Afghanistan, 1030. Sultan of Ghazni (997–1030); son of Subuktigin. He was appointed (994) governor of Khurasan, and on Subuktigin's death (996) drove out his brother Ismail, who was his father's heir in Ghazni. He was an ardent Moslem and spent his career attempting to carry Islam into neighboring areas, especially into India, which he attacked (1000 et seq.) repeatedly. His most famous expedition was that against Somnath (1024–26), where he destroyed the temple of Shiva and smashed the idol of the god there; legend states that when he split the idol with his battle-ax gold and gems spilled out. Certainly his 17 expeditions into India, which eventually brought the Punjab and other sections of India under Afghan suzerainty, gave to Ghazni tremendous riches in the form of plunder and slaves and made it one of the most important centers of the Moslem world. Mahmud fought also in central Asia and won victories from the Tigris to the Ganges and from the Indian Ocean to the Oxus. He was a notable patron of the arts, Firdausi's Shahnamah being dedicated to him.

Mahmud Shevket Pasha (mä.möd' shev.ket' pä.shä'). b. at Baghdad, c1857; assassinated June 11, 1913. Turkish general and statesman. Sympathetic to Western ideas, he used his influence as governor of Kosovo to support the Young Turk revolution (1908–09), during which he led his troops against Constantinople and brought the downfall of Sultan Abdul Hamid II. He served (1910–12) as minister of war and became (1913) grand vizier and war minister.

Mahomed (mȧ.hom'ẹd) or Mahomet (mȧ.hom'ẹt). See also Mohammed.

Mahomet (mȧ.o.met). Play by Voltaire, produced at Brussels in 1741.

Mahomet Boabdelin (bō.äb'dẹ.lin). See Boabdelin, Mahomet.

Mahón (mȧ.hōn'; Spanish, mä.ōn'). [English, Port Mahon; ancient name, Portus Magonis.] Town in the Balearic Islands, the chief place on the island of Minorca, situated on the E coast: seaport and naval station. It has beautiful churches, an art collection, and a theater. It was taken by the English under James Stanhope in 1708, by the French in 1756, restored to Great Britain in 1763, conquered by Spain in 1782, and finally ceded to Spain in 1802. Pop. 17,459 (1940).

Mahon (mą.hön′, -hōn′), Lord. Courtesy title held from the early 18th century by the eldest sons of the earls of Stanhope.

Mahon, Charles James Patrick. [Called the O'Gorman Mahon.] b. at Ennis, County Clare, Ireland, March 17, 1800; d. at London, June 15, 1891. Irish politician and adventurer. He was member of Parliament for Ennis (1847–52), served as a soldier under the Russian, Turkish, and Austrian flags, was a general in the government army during the civil war in Uruguay, commanded a Chilean fleet against Spain, was a colonel in the Brazilian service, fought in the Union army during the American Civil War, was a colonel under Louis Napoleon, became an intimate of Bismarck, and was member of Parliament for Clare (1879–85), and for Carlow from 1887 until his death.

Mahon, Christy. Farmer's son, the hero of John Millington Synge's one-act play The Playboy of the Western World (1907).

Mahon (mą.ôn), Duc de. Title of Crillon, Louis des Balbes de Berton.

Mahone (mą.hōn′), William. b. in Southampton County, Va., Dec. 1, 1826; d. at Washington, D.C., Oct. 8, 1895. American politician. He served in the Confederate army during the Civil War, obtaining the rank of major general. Afterward he became the leader of the Readjuster Party in Virginia, and was U.S. senator from Virginia (1881–87).

Mahoning (mą.hō′ning). River in E Ohio and W Pennsylvania, flowing in a winding course to join the Shenango near New Castle, Pa., forming the Beaver River. Length, ab. 100 mi.

Mahony (mä′ọ.ni), Francis. [Pseydonym, Father Prout.] b. at Cork, Ireland, c1804; d. at Paris, May 18, 1866. Irish journalist and poet. He was educated for the priesthood at Paris and Rome, and was ordained, but gave up (c1834) his calling and began to write on the staff of Fraser's Magazine. The articles which he contributed were published as Reliques of Father Prout in 1836; a final volume was published in 1876 by Blanchard Jerrold. He contributed to Bentley's Magazine, and wrote to the Daily News from Rome for some years. These letters were published as Facts and Figures from Italy, by Don Jeremy Savonarola, Benedictine Monk, in 1847. He retired to a monastery in 1864, and died there. Among his original poems is The Bells of Shandon.

Mahrattas (mą.rä′tąz). [Also: Marathas, Marhattas.] People of W central India. They were the dominant power in India by the end of the 17th century, but were conquered by the British in 1818. Their language is Marathi.

Mähren (mä′rẹn). German name of Moravia.

Mähren-Schlesien (-shlā′zyẹn). German name of Moravia-Silesia.

Mahrholz (mär′holts), Werner. b. at Berlin, Dec. 1, 1889; d. at Merano, Italy, April 20, 1930. German literary historian, editor, and critic. He produced more than a dozen major works and numerous articles on literary, political, sociological, religious, academic, and other subjects of public interest. He wrote Der deutsche Pietismus (1921), Der Student und die Hochschule (1919), Dostojewskij (1922), Literaturgeschichte und Literarwissenschaft (1923), and Die deutsche Dichtung der Gegenwart (1926).

Mährisch-Ostrau (mä′rish.os′trou). German name of Moravská Ostrava; see under Ostrava, Czechoslovakia.

Mährisch-Schönberg (-shẹn′berk). German name of Sumperk.

Mährisch-Weisskirchen (-vīs′kir.ċhẹn). A German name of Hranice.

Mahu (mä′hū). Fiend alluded to in Shakespeare's King Lear.

Ma Hung-k'uei (mä′ hung′kwā′). b. at Hochow, Kansu, China, 1892—. Chinese Moslem warlord who controlled (1931–49) Ninghsia. He differed with the Ma Pu-fang group in religious and other matters, and coöperated with Fu Tso-yi and the Kuomintang, but opposed extension of its influence into his area. He fought the Communists, for some time successfully, but was driven out in 1949.

Mahy (mä.ē), Thomas de. See Favras, Marquis de.

Mai (mä′ę), Angelo. b. at Schilpario, province of Bergamo, Italy, March 7, 1782; d. near Rome, Sept. 9, 1854. Italian cardinal, noted as a philologist and antiquary. He discovered various manuscripts and palimpsests, including Cicero's De republica (1822), which he also edited.

Maia (mā′yą, mī′ą). In Greek mythology, a daughter of Atlas. She was the eldest of the Pleiades, mother by Zeus of Hermes, and the nurse of Arcus after the death of Callisto. She became identified with a primitive Italian goddess who was associated with fertility and growth. As such the Romans called her Maia Majesta, and because of the fertility association identified her with the Phrygian mother goddess, Cybele, and their own Bona Dea.

Maiano (mä.yä′nō), Benedetto da. See Benedetto da Majano (or Maiano).

Maida (mī′dä). Town in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Calabria, in the province of Catanzaro, ab. 13 mi. W of Catanzaro. Here on July 4, 1806, the British defeated the French under J. L. E. Reynier. Pop. ab. 4,000.

Maidanek (mī.dä′nek). [Polish, Majdanek.] Village in E Poland, in the województwo (province) of Lublin. It became known during World War II as the seat of one of the largest German concentration camps for Jewish and other civilian prisoners, many (perhaps 1½ million) of whom were murdered here in the period 1940–44. Maidanek was occupied by the Russians in July, 1944.

Maidenhead (mā′dẹn.hed). Municipal borough and riverside resort in S England, in Berkshire, on the river Thames ab. 24 mi. W of London by rail. It is one of an almost continuous line of towns on the Thames from London to Reading. The town is mainly residential. 27,125 (1951).

Maiden Lane (mā′dẹn). Street in London, between Covent Garden and the Strand. Andrew Marvell, J. M. W. Turner the landscape painter, and Voltaire lived here at various times. The name is said to have been given in reference to an image of the Virgin which once stood there.

Maiden Lane. Street in New York City, running from Broadway, opposite Cortlandt Street, SE to the East River.

Maidens, the. [Also, Hulin Rocks.] Group of small rocky islets belonging to County Antrim, Northern Ireland, in North Channel ab. 7 mi. NE of Larne. There is a lighthouse.

Maid in the Mill, The. Comedy by John Fletcher, produced in 1623.

Maid Marian (mär′i.ąn). In the English Robin Hood ballad cycle, Robin Hood's sweetheart. She was the daughter of an earl, and loved Robin Hood when he was Earl of Huntingdon. When he was outlawed for debt she dressed herself as a page and followed him, living with his company as a virgin huntress till the marriage rites could be performed. This is a late legend concerning her. The ballad which tells the story is Robin Hood and Maid Marian, Number 150 in the Child collection. Originally she was the May Queen in the early English May Day dances and games. Only since Tudor times has she become Robin Hood's sweetheart and supplanted Matilda Fitzwalter as wife of Robert, Earl of Huntingdon.

Maid of Artois (är.twä′), The. Comic opera in three acts by Michael William Balfe, with a libretto by Alfred Bunn, produced at London in 1836. It contains the song The Light of Other Days.

Maid of Athens (a.th′ẹnz). Daughter of Theodore Macri, a consul at Athens. She made Byron's acquaintance, and he is said to have addressed to her the song beginning "Maid of Athens, ere we part."

Maid of Bath (bath), The. Comedy by Samuel Foote, produced in 1771. The play holds up to ridicule (as Mr. Flint) Walter Long for his ungallant treatment of the Maid of Bath, Elizabeth Ann Linley, who afterward married Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

Maid of Honour, The. Play by Philip Massinger, printed in 1632.

Maid of Honour, The. Opera by Michael William Balfe, produced in 1847. The subject is the same as that of Friedrich von Flotow's Martha.

"Maid of Kent." See Barton, Elizabeth.

Maid of Mariendorpt (mą rē.ẹn.dôrpt), The. Play in verse by James Sheridan Knowles, produced in 1838.

Maid of Norway (nôr wā′). See Margaret (of Scotland).

Maid of Orleans (ôr'lē.ənz). Joan of Arc: so named on account of her efforts for the relief of Orléans. Schiller produced a play with the title Die Jungfrau von Orleans (1801).

Maid of Saragossa (sar.ə.gos'ə). See Agustina.

Maid of Sker (skėr), The. Novel by Richard D. Blackmore, published in 1872.

Maid of the Mill, The. Play by Isaac Bickerstaffe, printed in 1765. It was founded on Samuel Richardson's Pamela.

Maid of the Mist. Character in Sir Walter Scott's novel Anne of Geierstein, from whom the novel takes its name.

Maids and Mistresses. Novel by Beatrice Kean Seymour, published in 1932.

Maidstone (mād'stōn, -stən). Municipal borough in SE England, the county seat of Kent, on the river Medway ab. 40 mi. SE of London by rail. Maidstone is situated in the middle of a hop-growing district and has breweries supplying London; other manufactures include paper and agricultural machinery. 54,026 (1951).

Maid's Tragedy, The. Play by Beaumont and Fletcher, first acted not later than 1611 and printed in 1619.

Maidu (mī'dö). Group of North American Indians of California, formerly numbering ab. 9,000, of whom ab. 800–900 survive today on the Round Valley Reservation in California. They belong to the Penutian linguistic stock, and formerly comprised three divisions: southern, northwestern, and northeastern. The southern Maidu called themselves Nisinan, were the most numerous, most advanced, and best known; the two northern branches called themselves Maidu. Both words mean "people." The term Pujunan occurs in old books as a designation for the Maidu collectively, but was abandoned because it was based on the name of one village only. The Maidu were of typical California culture. They were basket-makers, had two types of houses (small bark or brush lean-tos and large earth-covered structures), were deer-hunters and fishers, and made acorn mush and soups. Their religion was shamanistic and embraced the beliefs and rituals of the secret Kuksu cult which prevailed in most of California.

Maiduguri (mī.dö'gù.ri). Town in W Africa, the administrative center of Bornu province, Northern Provinces, NE Nigeria, situated SW of Lake Chad near the Cameroons border. It is a commercial center and has a large market; the chief export items are peanuts, cotton, and hides. 43,000 (est. 1950).

Maiella (mä.yel'lä). One of the loftiest groups of the Apennines, in C Italy, SW of Chieti and S of the Gran Sasso. Elevation, ab. 9,170 ft.

Maienfeld (mī'ən.felt). [Also, Mayenfeld.] Old town in E Switzerland, in the canton of Graubünden, in the valley of the Rhine S of Liechtenstein. Pop. ab. 1,500.

Maier (mār), Guy. b. at Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 15, 1892—. American pianist. He has appeared (1916 et seq.) in two-piano concerts with Lee Pattison, and performed in recitals and with orchestras in Europe and the U.S.

Maier (mī'ėr), Johann. See Eck, Johann.

Maigret (me.gre). Hero of the detective fiction of Georges Simenon.

Maigrot (me.grō), Émile. See Henriot, Émile.

Maikala Mountains (mī'kə.lə). [Also, Maikal Mountains (mī'kəl).] Range of mountains in the Union of India, in Madhya Pradesh. They extend NE to SW for ab. 150 mi. and reach a height of 3,698 ft.

Maikop (mī.kôp'). [Also, Maykop.] City in the U.S.S.R., in the Krasnodar Territory of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, ab. 165 mi. S of Rostov: important oil-producing center. It also has food-processing and sawmilling industries, and machine construction. During World War II the city was occupied by German forces from August, 1942, until January, 1943; the industries and the town were severely damaged. 67,302 (1939).

Mailand (mī'länt). German name of Milan, Italy.

Mailáth (mô'ē.lät), Count János. b. at Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 3, 1786; committed suicide in the Starnbergersee, Bavaria, Germany, Jan. 3, 1855. Hungarian historian and poet. His chief works are Geschichte der Magyaren (1828–31) and Geschichte des österreichischen Kaiserstaats (1834–50).

Mailer (mā'lėr), Norman. b. at Long Branch, N.J., Jan. 31, 1923—. American author. During World War II he served with intelligence units in the Pacific area; in The Naked and the Dead (1948) he used his wartime experiences as the basis of one of the first major novels to come from World War II. Author also of Barbary Shore (1951).

Maillart (mä.yär), Louis. [Called Aimé Maillart.] b. at Montpellier, France, March 24, 1817; d. at Moulins, France, May 26, 1871. French operatic composer, notably of the comic opera Les Dragons de Villars (1856). His other works include Gastibelza (1847), La Croix de Marie (1852), and Lara (1864), as well as cantatas.

Maillaud (mä.yō), Pierre. [Pseudonym, Pierre Bourdan.] b. at Perpignan, France, May 13, 1909; d. by drowning near Toulon, France, July 13, 1948. French political leader and journalist, best known as one of the Free French announcers over the London radio (1940 et seq.). He was minister for youth, arts, and letters (1947).

Maillet (mä.ye), Jacques Léonard. b. July 12, 1823; d. Feb. 15, 1894. French sculptor. He executed a number of decorative groups at the new Louvre, the Opera House, the churches of Saint Séverin, Sainte Clotilde, Saint Leu, and others.

Maillol (mä.yol), Aristide. b. at Banyuls-sur-Mer, France, Dec. 25, 1861; d. there, Oct. 10, 1944. French sculptor and illustrator. One of the leading sculptors of the 20th century, he revived in his work the spirit of ancient Mediterranean art, adapting it to modern times. He began as a painter and made designs for tapestries; he became a sculptor at the age of 40. Among his many works are Pomona and Île de France (both at Paris), Three Graces (at Bern), his monument to Cézanne, called Fame, and Torso and Kneeling Woman at the Museum of Modern Art, New York. He illustrated with woodcuts the works of Vergil, Horace, and Verlaine.

Mailly (mä.yē), Marie Anne de. See Châteauroux, Duchesse de.

Mailly (mā'li), William. b. at Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 22, 1871; d. Sept. 4, 1912. American Socialist politician and journalist. With Eugene V. Debs, he was a founder (1898) of the Social Democratic Party; in 1903 he became its national secretary. After managing the campaign of 1904, which marked the emergence of socialism as a significant U.S. political force, he was managing editor (1907–09) of the New York Worker and then of the Evening Call, resigning (1909) to become dramatic critic for the Twentieth Century Magazine.

Maimachin or Maimaichin or Maimatchin (mī.mä-chēn'). Former name of Altan Bulak.

Maimana (mī.mä'nä). [Also, Maimene.] Minor province of Afghanistan, in the NW part. It includes the foothill region of the NW Hindu Kush, and a desert plain, with some oases. The area is inhabited chiefly by nomadic herders. Sulfur deposits have been found here. Chief town, Maimana.

Maimana. [Also, Maimene.] Town in NW Afghanistan: chief town of the province of Maimana. It is a collecting center for wool and animal products.

Maimansinh (mī'men.sing). See Mymensingh.

Maimbourg (mañ.bör), Louis. b. at Nancy, France, c1610; d. at Paris, Aug. 13, 1686. French Jesuit church historian. He was expelled (1682) from the Jesuit order because of a work on church history in which he defended the Gallicans against the power of Rome.

Maimene (mī.mē'nē). See Maimana.

Maimonides (mī.mon'i.dēz). [Full name, Moses ben Maimun; also called Maimuni (mī.mö'nē), and RaMbaM (from the initials of the words Rabbi Moses ben Maimun).] b. at Córdoba, Spain, March 30, 1135; d. at Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 13, 1204. Jewish rabbi, Talmudic scholar, and philosopher. His family had to flee Spain to escape the persecutions of the fanatical Mohammedan sect of the Almohades. For some years they lived at Fez in Morocco, under the necessity of concealing their religion. Here the young Moses, by association with Moslem scholars, became acquainted with the Aristotelian philosophy. In 1165 the family emigrated from Fez, by way of Palestine, to Egypt, settling at Cairo, where the father died, leaving Moses to support the family, first as a trader in jewels, subsequently by the practice of medicine, in which he was so successful that he became physician to the sultan. He also became chief rabbi of Cairo, and found time to devote to his Talmudic and philosophical studies and writings. Before his 23rd year he had written a treatise on the Jewish calendar and another on the terms used in logic. In 1168 he published a commentary in Arabic on the Mishnah, but his greatest work, the Mishneh Torah (Repetition of the Law), also known among scholars as "Yad Hahazagah" (The Strong Hand), appeared in 1180, having been ten years in the writing, in Hebrew. This is a masterly systematic exposition in 14 books of the whole of the Jewish law as contained in the Pentateuch and in the vast Talmudic literature. It was preceded by a short introduction in Arabic, entitled Sefer ha-Micvoth (Book of the Commandments), being a treatise on the 613 precepts of the law. Almost equally famous, and perhaps even more widely influential, was his philosophical work in Arabic, Dalalt al Hairin (Guide of the Perplexed; Hebrew, More Nebuchim). This is divided into three parts. The first treats of the anthropomorphic expressions found in the Bible, and of the religio-philosophical sects; the second, of eternity and the creation of the world; while the third contains a rational explanation of the commandments of Scripture. His lesser writings included Iggereth ha-Shemad (An Epistle on Apostasy), in which, making the point that Mohammedanism is not as reprehensible as paganism, he excuses such feigned accommodation to Islam as he and his family and so many others had to make; Iggereth Teman (An Epistle to Yemen), an exhortation to the Jews of southern Arabia not to be led astray by false Messiahs; Pirke Mosheh (A Treatise of Moses), which deals with medical subjects; Perakim be-Haclachah (A Treatise on Happiness); and Ma'amar ha-Yihud (A Treatise on the Unity of God). In Maimonides the scientific development of Judaism in the Moslem world reached its height. He brought order and system into the chaotic mass of Talmudic literature, and gave direction to religio-philosophical study with the aim of bringing Judaism and philosophy into harmony. The Guide of the Perplexed was stated to be written for "religious persons who, adhering to the Torah, have studied philosophy and are embarrassed by contradictions between the teachings of philosophy and the literal sense of the Torah." He sought to harmonize reason and those beliefs which Jews accepted as revealed truths. He advanced reasons for believing in the necessary existence of God, and of one God only, and for belief in the creation of the universe out of nothingness. He asserted that evil could not have originated with God, since it is a wholly negative thing, that is, the absence of good or of a capacity for good; and he strongly upheld the concept of free will. Tolerant himself, he urged tolerance, and dared to tell the Jews that salvation was not reserved for them alone, but that virtuous individuals of all nations would be rewarded in a future life. Optimistic and eupeptic, he saw happiness as the objective of existence, and regarded the Commandments as designed to assure this end. His writings caused acrimonious controversies among the Jews; many considered him a heretic, and in some places his works were burned. But in the end he came to be called "the Light of the West" and "the Great Eagle," and the saying arose that "from Moses (the lawgiver) to Moses (Maimonides) there has been none like unto Moses." His condensation of the dogmatical tenets of Judaism into 13 articles, which have been adopted into the Jewish liturgy, was a great service to his own people. But many of his thoughts, such as those on the nature and origin of evil, on divine providence, and on the communion of man with God, greatly influenced Christian theologians, and it has been said that if there had been no Maimonides, there might have been no Aquinas.

Main (mān; German, mīn). [French, Mein; Latin, Moenus.] River in W central Germany, the most important of the right-hand (E) tributaries of the Rhine. It is formed by the union of the White Main and Red Main near Kulmbach, Bavaria, and joins the Rhine opposite Mainz. It is navigable to its junction with the Regnitz (ab. 244 mi.). The chief towns on its banks are Schweinfurt, Würzburg, Aschaffenburg, Offenbach, and Frankfort on the Main. Length, ab. 325 mi.

Maina (mī'nạ). [Also: Cahuapana, Mayna, Rimachu.] Tribe of South American Indians, in Peru and Ecuador. They were frequently attacked by the Spaniards in the 16th and 17th centuries, and by 1636 were reduced in numbers to ab. 2,000 individuals. They are now extinct. They have usually been classified as of Zaparoan linguistic stock and culture (however, the term Cahuapana is now supplanting the term Maina as the language name).

Maine (mān; French, men). Region and former government in NW France; the country of the ancient Cenomanni. Including Perche, it was bounded by Normandy on the N, Orléanais on the E, Touraine and Anjou on the S, and Brittany on the W, corresponding generally to the modern departments of Mayenne and Sarthe. It was a countship in the Middle Ages, was conquered by William of Normandy (later William I of England) in 1063, was united (1110) to Anjou, and with Anjou became united to England in 1154. Philip II of France conquered it c1204, and after several separations it was finally reunited to France in 1481. The capital was Le Mans.

Maine (mān). [Called the "Pine Tree State"; also, the "Lumber State."] Northeasternmost state of the United States, bounded by the Canadian provinces of Quebec on the NW and N, and New Brunswick on the E, by the Atlantic Ocean on the SE and S, and by New Hampshire on the W: a New England State.

Population, Area, and Political Divisions. Maine is divided for administrative purposes into 16 counties. It sends three representatives to Congress, and has five electoral votes. The institution of the governor's council, which shares some of the executive authority, dates from Colonial times. As in other New England states, the township (here called a town) is a powerful local unit of government. Leading cities are Auburn, Augusta, Bangor, Biddeford, Lewiston, and Portland. Capital, Augusta; area, 31,040 sq. mi. (33,215 sq. mi., including water); pop. 913,774 (1950). The state ranks 38th in area, and 35th (on the basis of the 1950 census) in population.

Terrain and Climate. The surface of Maine is largely hilly, and in the NW and N mountainous, the highest point in the state being Mount Katahdin (5,268 ft.) in the N central part. The mountains of the W are the White Mountains, which extend into the state from New Hampshire. There are some areas of rolling lowland plain in the S, S central, and NE parts of the state, which are the chief farming areas. Off the state's rocky coast lie many islands, also rocky. On Mount Desert Island, off the SE coast, is Bar Harbor, a summer resort greatly damaged by fire in 1947. Also on the island is Acadia National Park (ab. 45 sq. mi.; established 1929), containing high, rounded granite peaks. Among the state's rivers are the St. John, which forms part of the N boundary; the St. Croix, forming part of the E boundary; the Penobscot, which rises in the E central part of the state and flows S into Penobscot Bay on the Atlantic; the Kennebec, flowing S from Moosehead Lake into the Atlantic; the Androscoggin, which rises on the Maine-New Hampshire boundary, the portion in Maine flowing S and E into the Kennebec and the Atlantic; the Salmon Falls River, which forms part of the SW boundary. Maine has hundreds of lakes, many frequented by fishermen and other sportsmen; the largest is Moosehead Lake. The Rangeley Lakes in the extreme W include Rangeley, Lower Richardson, Mooselookmeguntic, Umagog, and Upper Richardson. Grand, Chamberlain, Sebago, and Millinocket lakes are also well known. The state is more heavily forested (ab. 80 percent) than any other state. Maine has cold winters with heavy snows, but pleasant warm summers. The state has much fish and game, deer and bear being especially abundant.

Industry, Agriculture, and Trade. Maine raises more potatoes than does any other state in the Union; the chief potato-raising district (in Aroostock County) is the largest specialized center of potato production in the U.S. Its rocky hills are not suited to agriculture, but the fertile river valleys produce hay, oats, buckwheat, apples, and blueberries. Poultry and livestock raising are given much attention. Maine's fishing industry is another major phase of its economy, second only to the fishing industry of Massachusetts. The state produces a large part of the nation's lobsters, as well as clams, salmon, herring, menhaden, cod, and halibut. Lumbering is a sizable industry, and Maine ranks high in pulp and paper products, which are its chief manufacture. The manufacture of cotton and woolen textiles, foundry and machine shop products, and boots and shoes, and fish canning and preserving are also important. The state is rich in stone, lime, clay, gravel, sand, and slate, and quarrying, particularly of granite, is a major occupation. Portland is a shipping and rail center, with exports predominating. Annual income in the state from agriculture ranges as high as 155 million dollars; from manufacturing, as high as 750 million; from mineral output, as high as three million.

History. The coast of Maine was visited by many explorers (Verrazano, Gosnold, Pring) in the 16th and 17th centuries, and it is said that the Cabots touched there as early as 1496. An attempt at colonization was made by Du Monts. Maine was granted (1606) to the Plymouth Company, which sent (1607) out a colony that settled at the mouth of the Kennebec, but soon failed. The first permanent settlement dates from c1623. After existence under various grants, Sir Ferdinando Gorges held the part of the region between the Piscataqua and Kennebec rivers, while the E part went finally (1664) to the Duke of York. Portions were gradually annexed by Massachusetts until 1691 when the entire region up to the St. Croix was made a district of the province of Massachusetts Bay. Late in the 17th century and early in the 18th century the N part was harassed by the French, who for some time claimed the area N of the Penobscot. Maine was the scene of numerous battles during the American Revolution; many towns were captured by the British. The state entered the Union (as the 23rd state) on March 15, 1820, as a free state under the Missouri Compromise. A northern boundary dispute with Great Britain was settled (1842) by the Webster-Ashburton Treaty; the international boundary along the SE coast was fixed in 1910. The first state law prohibiting the sale of liquor was passed (1851) in Maine. Its first constitution, adopted in 1819, is still in force.

Culture. Maine's population shows an almost equal division between rural and urban elements (51.7 percent urban in 1950). Its foreign group consists mainly of French-Canadians, and a considerable part of the population is of French-Canadian or Acadian descent. The state's lakes and streams have made it a popular summer vacation center. Among the institutions of higher learning are the state-supported University of Maine, at Orono; Bates College, at Lewiston; Bowdoin College, at Brunswick; Colby College, at Waterville. The state motto is Dirigo, meaning "I Direct." The state flower is the pine cone and tassel.

Maine. U.S. battleship (6,682 tons, launched in 1890), blown up in the harbor of Havana on Feb. 15, 1898. The incident helped precipitate the Spanish-American War. The naval court of inquiry appointed by the U.S. government reported (March 22) that "the Maine was destroyed by the explosion of a submarine mine, which caused the partial explosion of two or more of her forward magazines." She was raised (1910–11), examined, and sunk at sea on March 16, 1912.

Maine, Sir Henry James Sumner. b. Aug. 15, 1822; d. at Cannes, France, Feb. 3, 1888. English jurist. He studied at Cambridge, where in 1847 he became regius professor of civil law, a position which he held until 1854. He was called to the bar in 1850, became reader on Roman law and jurisprudence at the Inns of Court, London, in 1852, was legal member of council in India (1862–69), was Corpus professor of jurisprudence at Oxford (1869–78), was elected master of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, in 1877, and in 1887 became Whewell professor of international law at Cambridge. Among his works are Ancient Law (1861), Village Communities (1871), Early History of Institutions (1875), Dissertations on Early Law and Custom (1883), Popular Government (1885), and International Law (1888).

Maine de Biran (men dẹ bē.rän). [Original name, Marie François Pierre Gonthier de Biran.] b. at Bergerac, France, Nov. 29, 1766; d. at Paris, July 16, 1824. French royalist politician and philosophical writer. He was one of the administrators of the department of Dordogne in 1795, and a member of the Council of Five Hundred in 1797.

Maine-et-Loire (men.ā.lwär). Department in W France, bounded by Mayenne and Sarthe on the N, Indre-et-Loire on the E, Vienne, Deux-Sèvres, and Vendée on the S, and Loire-Inférieure on the W. It was part of the old province of Anjou. The department is predominantly agricultural, with abundant harvests of grains, wine grapes, fruits, and hemp. The leather and shoe, metallurgical, and liquor industries are of importance. Capital, Angers; area, ab. 2,811 sq. mi.; pop. 496,068 (1946).

Maine River (mān; French, men). River in the department of Maine-et-Loire, France. It is formed by the union of the Mayenne and Sarthe, and joins the Loire near Angers. Length, ab. 7 mi.

Maine Woods (mān), The. Autobiographical narrative by Henry David Thoreau, published posthumously in 1864, dealing with three journeys to Maine made in 1846, 1853, and 1857.

Main Franconia (mān' frang.kō'ni.ạ) or Mainfranken (mīn'fräng'kẹn). See Lower Franconia.

Mainistir Fheara Muighe (mon'is.tir fer mō'i). Irish name of Fermoy.

Mainistir na Coran (mon'is.tir nạ kō'rạn). Irish name of Midleton.

Mainland (mān'land, -lạnd). [Also, Pomona.] Largest of the Orkney Islands, in N Scotland. It lies, at its nearest point, ab. 18 mi. N of John O'Groat's House, on the Scottish mainland. The chief towns are Kirkwall and Stromness. Length, ab. 27 mi.; greatest width, ab. 15 mi.; area, ab. 190 sq. mi.; pop. 13,352 (1931).

Mainland. Largest of the Shetland Islands, in N Scotland. It lies, at its nearest point, ab. 100 mi. NE of John O'Groat's House, on the Scottish mainland. Lerwick is the chief town. Length, ab. 55 mi.; greatest width, ab. 21 mi.; area, ab. 370 sq. mi.; pop. 15,172 (1931).

Main Plot. Conspiracy in 1603 in favor of Arabella Stuart, cousin of the king, against James I of England. Sir Walter Raleigh was implicated in it, and was imprisoned. It was the principal or "main" plot of two (the Main and the Bye) organized against James on his accession.

Mainpuri (mīn'pù.ri). [Also, Mynpuri.] District in Uttar Pradesh, Union of India, ab. 100 mi. NW of Cawnpore: rice, wheat, sugar, barley, and cotton. Area, ab. 1,679 sq. mi.; pop. 993,890 (1951).

Mainpuri. [Also, Mynpuri.] Capital of the district of Mainpuri, ab. 100 mi. NW of the city of Cawnpore: trading center. Pop. ab. 19,000.

Main Street. Novel by Sinclair Lewis, published in 1920, satirizing the narrow parochialism of the Midwestern American small town.

Maintenon (mañt.nôñ). Town in W central France, in the department of Eure-et-Loir, on the Eure River ab. 37 mi. SW of Paris. The chateau, built in the 16th century, belonged to Madame de Maintenon. There are also ruins of an aqueduct erected by Louis XIV. Both were damaged in World War II. 2,066 (1946).

Maintenon, Madame de. [Original name, Françoise d'Aubigné, title, Marquise de Maintenon.] b. in a prison at Niort, France, Nov. 27, 1635; d. at St.-Cyr, near Versailles, France, April 15, 1719. Mistress and second wife of Louis XIV of France. She was the granddaughter of Théodore Agrippa d'Aubigné, general under Henry IV of France, and the daughter of Constant d'Aubigné, a Huguenot imprisoned as a malcontent. Her mother, a Roman Catholic, had her baptized in that faith. She lived with her father in Martinique from 1639 to 1645, returned to France with her mother, and was brought up by her aunt as a Protestant. She was reconverted to Roman Catholicism within a short time. On the death (1650) of her mother she found herself in poverty, and was married in 1652 to the wit and poet Paul Scarron, who offered either to pay for her entrance to a convent or to make her his wife. She lived nine years with him, and their salon was frequented by the intellectual society of the time. In 1660 he died, and left her again in poverty. Her pension was discontinued in 1666 at the death of Anne of Austria, who had augmented it, and it was not till 1669 that Madame de Montespan gave her the charge of her son by Louis XIV. She was given a large income and a house at Vaugirard in which to bring up this child and another, born later, in secrecy. She was devoted to them, and established an ascendancy over the heart of the king, who advanced her to various positions in the court. In 1674 she purchased the estate of Maintenon, and in 1678 the king made it a marquisate. Soon afterward she replaced Madame de Montespan as the king's mistress. In 1685, two years after the death of the queen, who died in Madame de Maintenon's arms, she married

Louis privately. Her influence was almost unbounded in matters both of church and state, and she was a patroness of letters and the fine arts. Her somewhat questionable position induced her to behave with rigid propriety, and her reputation for orthodoxy was extreme. She founded a home for the daughters of poor gentlemen at St.-Cyr, and on the death (1715) of the king she retired there for the rest of her life.

Main-Travelled Roads. Collection of short stories by Hamlin Garland, published in 1891.

Mainwaring (mān'wār.ing). Novel by Maurice Hewlett, published in 1920.

Mainz (mīnts). [French, Mayence; Latin, Mogontiacum, Maguntiacum.] City in W Germany, in the Land (state) of Rhineland-Palatinate, French Zone, formerly the capital of the free state of Rhine-Hesse, situated on the W bank of the Rhine River, opposite the mouth of the Main River, ab. 20 mi. W of Frankfort on the Main. It is a river port, and has manufactures of automobile parts, railroad equipment, precision instruments, chemicals, furniture, paperware, and foodstuffs. It is a center of the German wine trade. Mainz has a university, newly founded by the French occupation authorities after World War II, an art academy, music conservatory, theater, library, and archives. The Dom (cathedral), begun in 975, added to in the 13th–15th centuries, and restored in the 19th century, contains many statues of emperors and electors. There are other partly Romanesque, partly Gothic churches (Saint Christopher, Saint Stephen, Saint Quentin), and beautiful buildings of the baroque period of the 17th and 18th centuries. However, many buildings were either entirely destroyed or severely damaged in World War II. 75,020 (1946), 88,369 (1950).

History. Mainz was founded (c13 B.C.) as a Roman military camp by Drusus Germanicus; the archbishopric was founded (c747) by Saint Boniface and was from the start a center of ecclesiastical influence in Germany. The city was occupied by the Swedes (1631–35), and was conquered by the French (1644, 1688, 1792, and 1797). It passed to Karl von Dalberg in 1802, and to Hesse-Darmstadt in 1816. After World War I, it was occupied (1918–30) by the French; in World War II it was entered by American troops on March 21, 1945. The population decreased by 39.9 percent in the period 1939–46.

Maiobanex (mī.ō.bä.neks'). See Mayobanex.

Maipo (mī'pō). [Also, Maipú (mī.pö').] River in Chile, rising in the Andes, crossing the province of Santiago ab. 14 mi. S of the city of Santiago, and flowing W to the Pacific. It gave its name to a battle fought on a plain (Llanos de Maipo or Maipú) by its northern bank, April 5, 1818, in which 5,000 patriots under San Martín defeated 5,500 Spaniards under Osorio, and thus practically secured the independence of Chile. Length, ab. 155 mi.

Maipuré (mī.pö.rā'). [Also, Maypuré.] Important tribe of South American Indians of the upper Orinoco in Venezuela. Their language, Maipuré, belongs to the Orinoco group of the Northern Amazon division of the Arawakan family of languages. In the 18th century Maipuré was often used as a synonym for Arawak and Arawakan.

Maiquetía (mī.kā.tē'ä). City in N Venezuela, in the Distrito Federal. 36,878 (1950).

Maire (mer), Jean Le. See Lemaire or Le Maire, Jean.

Mairet (me.re), Jean. b. at Besançon, France, c1604; d. there, Jan. 31, 1686. French dramatist. He has been called "the French Marston." His most noted play, Sophonisbe, appeared in 1634.

Maironis (mī.rō'nis). Pseudonym of Mačiulis, Jonas.

Mais (māz), Stuart Petre Brodie. b. July 4, 1885—. English lecturer, journalist, and writer. He taught (1909–20) in various schools, and became literary critic on the Evening News (1918) and the Daily Express (1921–23), literary editor (1923–26) of the Daily Graphic, and book reviewer and editorial writer (1926–31) on the Daily Telegraph. He is author of April's Lonely Soldier (1916), Eclipse (1925), Frolic Lady (1930), Raven Among the Rocks (1939), Who Dies? (1948), and others.

Maison (me.zôñ), Nicolas Joseph, Marquis de. b. at Épinay, near Paris, Dec. 19, 1771; d. at Paris, Feb. 13, 1840. French marshal. He served in the Napoleonic campaigns, and commanded the expedition to the Peloponnesus (1828–29). He later served in several diplomatic and ministerial posts.

Maison Carrée (me.zôñ kä.rā). Ancient building at Nîmes, France, perhaps the most perfect of surviving Roman temples. It is assigned to the 2nd century.

Maisonneuve (me.zo.nèv), Sieur de. [Title of Paul de Chomedey.] d. at Paris, Sept. 9, 1676. Governor of Montreal (1642–64). He was a native of Champagne, entered the French army in his youth, and was the leader of a band of colonists who arrived at Quebec in 1641 and settled at Montreal in 1642. He remained governor of the colony at Montreal until 1664, when he was removed from office and returned to France.

Maisonneuve, Jules Germain François. b. c1809; d. 1894. French surgeon.

Maisons-Alfort (me.zôñ.àl.fôr). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, between the Seine and Marne rivers, near their junction. It is a southeastern suburb of Paris. 36,485 (1946).

Maisons-Lafitte (me.zôñ.là.fēt). Town in N France, in the department of Seine-et-Oise, on the Seine River ab. 10 mi. NW of Paris. It has a race track. The chateau was built (1642–51) by Mansart. The town suffered some damage in World War II. 13,074 (1946).

Maistre (mestr), Joseph Marie, Comte de. b. at Chambéry, in Savoy (now in France), April 1, 1754; d. at Turin, Italy, Feb. 26, 1821. French statesman, writer, and philosopher. His family was of French origin, but had settled in Savoy as early as the 17th century, and had sworn allegiance to the king of Sardinia. On completing his classical studies under the Jesuits, he left home and took up the study of law at Turin. In 1788 he became senator of Savoy, but at no time was he in sympathy with the judiciary duties of his office. He emigrated at the time of the French Revolution, and spent several years in Switzerland and northern Italy. After residing some time in Sardinia in a diplomatic capacity, he finally went to St. Petersburg as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary (1802–17) of King Victor Emmanuel I of Sardinia. One of his earlier publications that had made his name known throughout Europe was the Considérations sur la révolution française (1796). During the period of his residence at the Russian capital he kept up a voluminous correspondence. He wrote Essai sur le principe générateur des institutions humaines (1810), Des délais de la justice divine (1815), Du pape (1819), De l'église gallicane (1821), Soirées de Saint-Pétersbourg (1821), and Examen de la philosophie de Bacon (1835). He was a royalist in politics, and in his writings opposed the rationalist thought of the 18th century. On the ex-minister's return to Turin, the king of Sardinia bestowed numerous honors upon him. His letters were edited many years after his death, and afford a valuable insight into his thought and life. Two separate publications were brought out: Lettres et opuscules inédits du Comte Joseph de Maistre (1851) and Mémoires politiques et correspondance diplomatique de Joseph de Maistre (1858).

Maistre, Xavier, Comte de. b. at Chambéry, in Savoy (now in France), in October, 1764; d. at St. Petersburg, June 12, 1852. Savoyard soldier and author; brother of Joseph Marie de Maistre. He served in his youth in the army of Piedmont, and, after the occupation of Piedmont by the French in 1798, took part in the Austrian and Russian campaign in Italy (1799). In the same year he went to Russia, where he rose to the rank of major general. He wrote Voyage autour de ma chambre (1794), Le Lépreux de la cité d'Aoste (1812), La Jeune Sibérienne (1815), Prisonniers du Caucase (1815), and Expédition nocturne autour de ma chambre (1825).

Maisur (mī.sör'). See Mysore, India.

Maitland (māt'land). Municipality in SE Australia, in New South Wales, on the Hunter River ab. 83 mi. NE of Sydney. The principal coal field of Australia lies just S of Maitland. Pop. (including East and West Maitland), 19,151 (1947).

Maitland, Charles. [Title, 3rd Earl of Lauderdale.] d. June 9, 1691. Scottish nobleman. After assisting (1674–81) his brother in management of Scottish affairs, he was accused (1681) of perjury and deprived of his position.

Maitland, Sir Frederick Lewis. b. at Rankeilour, Fifeshire, Scotland, Sept. 7, 1777; d. off Bombay, India, Nov.

30, 1839. British naval officer. He was stationed off Rochefort in command of the Bellerophon after the battle of Waterloo, under instructions to intercept Napoleon, who opened negotiations with him on July 10, 1815, for permission to sail for the U.S. He refused his consent in the absence of instructions from the government, but offered to carry Napoleon to England. Napoleon embarked in the Bellerophon July 15, and on Aug. 7 was transferred to the Northumberland off Berry Head.

Maitland, Frederic William. b. May 28, 1850; d. on Grand Canary, Canary Islands, Dec. 21, 1906. English jurist, professor of English law at Cambridge from 1888; grandson of Samuel Roffey Maitland. His works include Gloucester Pleas (1884), Justice and Police (1885), Bracton's Note-book (1887), History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I (with Sir F. Pollock, 1895), Domesday Book and Beyond (1897), Township and Borough (1898), Canon Law in England (1898), Political Theories of the Middle Ages (1900), English Law and the Renaissance (1901), Life and Letters of Leslie Stephen (1907), and Constitutional History of England (1908).

Maitland, James. [Titles: 8th Earl of Lauderdale, Baron Lauderdale of Thirlestane.] b. at Ratho, Midlothian, Scotland, Jan. 26, 1759; d. in Berwickshire, Scotland, Sept. 13, 1839. Scottish politician and author. He became a Scottish representative peer (1790). An opponent of Pitt's hostile policy toward France, he was created (1806) Baron Lauderdale of Thirlestane when the Whig Party gained power. He served as lord high keeper of the great seal of Scotland, and privy councilor (1806). Author of Inquiry Into the Nature and Origin of Public Wealth (1804; enlarged ed., 1819) and numerous tracts on political issues and political economy.

Maitland, Sir John. [Title, 1st Baron Maitland of Thirlestane.] b. c1545; d. at Thirlestane, Scotland, Oct. 3, 1595. Scottish politician. He became lord privy seal of Scotland in 1567, and spiritual lord of session in 1568. He supported the cause of Mary, Queen of Scots, against the Presbyterian party. In 1587 he was made chancellor by James VI (afterward James I of England); he was raised to the peerage as Lord Maitland of Thirlestane in 1590. By his advice James consented to the act establishing the church on a strictly Presbyterian basis.

Maitland, John. [Titles: 2nd Earl and 1st Duke of Lauderdale.] b. at Lethington, Scotland, May 24, 1616; d. at Tunbridge Wells, England, Aug. 20 (or 24), 1682. Scottish politician; grandson of Sir John Maitland. He was one of the commissioners for the Solemn League and Covenant in 1643, and a member of the joint committee of the two kingdoms in 1644. He afterward joined Prince Charles in his exile, but was captured at the battle of Worcester (1651) and kept in prison until 1660. On the Restoration (1660), he became the chief adviser on Scottish affairs to Charles II, a position which Maitland used to establish the absolutism of the crown both in the church and in the state. He suppressed the Covenanters, beat down the conventicles, and made himself almost an absolute ruler in Scotland. He was a member of the Cabal, Charles's unofficial ministry, and through intrigue managed to keep his influence at court though his attention was focused on Scotland. He was attacked in Parliament and was intensely disliked by other ministers, because of both his high-handed attitude and his debauchery and dishonesty. Eventually he lost the support of the king by voting to condemn William Howard, Viscount Stafford, and resigned all his offices in 1682.

Maitland, Sir Peregrine. b. in Hampshire, England, 1777; d. at London, May 30, 1854. English general and colonial governor. He was lieutenant governor (1818–34) of Upper Canada, lieutenant governor (1828–34) of Nova Scotia, commander in chief (1836–38) of the Madras army, and governor and commander in chief (1843–46) at the Cape of Good Hope.

Maitland, Sir Richard. [Title, Lord Lethington.] b. 1496; d. March 20, 1586. Scottish lawyer, poet, and collector of early Scottish poetry. He was blind from October, 1560, until his death but continued to hold important posts and to discharge state duties, serving (1562–67) as keeper of the great seal. He is remembered by his collection of early Scottish verse, in two large volumes, in the Pepysian Library at Magdalene College, Cambridge. His Satire on Town Ladies and The Blind Baron's Comfort are his best-known poems.

Maitland, Richard. [Title, 4th Earl of Lauderdale.] b. June 20, 1653; d. at Paris, 1695. English Jacobite; son of Charles Maitland (d. 1691). He refused to agree to the revolutionary settlement that brought William and Mary to the throne, was outlawed (1694) by the court of justiciary, and retired to Paris.

Maitland, Samuel Roffey. b. at London, Jan. 7, 1792; d. at Gloucester, England, Jan. 19, 1866. English clergyman, and theological and historical writer. He was librarian (1838–48) to the archbishop of Canterbury. Among his works are The Dark Ages (1844) and The Reformation in England (1849).

Maitland of Lethington (leth'ing.tọn), William. b. c1528; d. at Leith, June 9, 1573. Scottish politician. He became secretary of state to the Scottish regent, Mary of Guise, in 1558, but in 1559, joined her opponents, the lords of the congregation, whose ambassador he was to Elizabeth of England. Then, as later, he worked for a union of England and Scotland; this, his life's work, he approached with his full capabilities, keeping clear of religious factional disputes as being not to the point; he later based his plans on recognition of Mary, Queen of Scots as heir to the English throne. He served (1561–69) as secretary of state to Mary, Queen of Scots. He was implicated in the murders of Rizzio and Darnley and, because he feared Bothwell, fought against the queen at Langside (1568), but he came to her aid afterward and urged the marriage with Norfolk. He was arrested (1569) for his part in the Darnley murder, but escaped to Edinburgh Castle with the aid of friends. He helped to defend the castle against the siege of the regent Morton and the English, and died soon after its surrender in May, 1573.

Maître de Santiago (me.trę dę sän.tyä.gō), Le. Play (1948) by Henry de Montherlant.

Maittaire (me.ter), Michel. b. in France, 1668; d. at London, Sept. 18, 1747. French bibliographer and classical editor.

Maizeroy (mez.rwä), René, Baron. [Original name, René Jules Jean Toussaint.] b. at Metz, France, May 2, 1856; d. at Paris, 1918. French novelist. He was a prolific author and wrote such novels as Le Capitaine Bric-a-brac (1880) and Le Mal d'aimer (1882), regarded as of minor importance by critics of the day.

Majacca (mä.yäk'kä). See Yaka.

Majaijai (mä.hī'hī). See Banahao.

Majano (mä.yä'nō), Benedetto da. See Benedetto da Majano (or Maiano).

Majapahit (mä.jä.pä'hēt). [Also: Madjapahit, Modjopahit; Eng. trans., "Bitter Fruit."] Indonesian empire (1294–1389) named for a village on the Brantam River, East Java. It was founded by Prince Vijaya of Singhasari after his kingdom's defeat by the neighboring kingdom of Kadiri in 1292. The Majapahit empire still is looked back upon by many Javanese as their country's golden age. In the less than hundred years of its power it extended over the coastal regions of a large part of the Malay Archipelago. King Vijaya's grandson Hayam Wuruk (1350–89), a ruler overshadowed by his prime minister, Gajah Mada (1331–64), extended the realm over an even larger area, from the Malay Peninsula to the Moluccas. But already the Islamic conquests, beginning in northern Sumatra before the end of the 13th century, had begun to encroach upon this realm of Hindu culture. Malacca was conquered by Indian Moslems in 1414, northern Java in the middle of the 15th century, and the heart of the kingdom in central Java in 1478. Javanese historians look to Majapahit in the 14th century as the flowering of a purely Javanese civilization.

Majdanek (mī.dä'nek). Polish name of Maidanek.

Majeur (mä.zhėr), Lac. French name of Maggiore, Lago.

Majnun (mäj.nön'). See Laila and Majnun.

Major (mā'jọr), Charles. [Pseudonym, Edwin Caskoden.] b. at Indianapolis, Ind., July 25, 1856; d. Feb. 13, 1913. American novelist. Among his works are When Knighthood was in Flower (1898), Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall (1902), Yolanda, Maid of Burgundy (1905), and A Gentle Knight of Old Brandenburg (1909).

Major, Richard Henry. b. at London, Oct. 3, 1818; d. at Kensington, London, June 25, 1891. English historian and geographer.

Majorano (mä.yō.rä'nō), Gaetano. See Caffarelli.

Major Barbara (bär'bą.rą). Play (1905) by George Bernard Shaw.

Majorca (mą.jôr'ką). [Spanish, Mallorca; Latin, Balearis Major.] Largest of the Balearic Islands, in the Mediterranean Sea between Catalonia and Algeria, ab. 105 mi. SE. of the coast of Spain. The surface is generally mountainous or hilly (the highest elevation reaches ab. 4,740 ft.) and a large part of the coastline is rocky. The center of the island contains fertile lowlands and hill country. Citrus fruits, olives, and wine grapes are cultivated; sheep and pigs are raised. Fisheries and the extraction of salt from the sea are the major occupations along the coast. Lignite, copper, lead, and iron ore are mined in small quantities. Silver work and pottery are the chief industries. Majorca is a resort favored for its natural beauty and its mild climate. The inhabitants (Mallorquiños) speak a Catalan dialect. Capital, Palma; area, ab. 1,405 sq. mi.; pop. 327,120 (1940).

Majorca, Kingdom of. See under Baleares.

Majorian (mą.jō'ri.ąn). [Full Latin name, Julius Valerius Majorianus.] Roman emperor of the West (457–461). He was elevated by Ricimer in 457, defeated the Vandals on the coast of Campania in 458, but lost his fleet through treachery to the Vandal Genseric at the battle of Cartagena in 460. He was forced to abdicate by Ricimer, who viewed with concern his growing popularity. He died shortly after, probably put to death by order of Ricimer.

Majoritum (mā.jǫ.rī'tum). Medieval Latin name of Madrid, Spain.

Majrit (mäj.rēt'). Arabic name of Madrid, Spain.

Majuba Hill (mą.jō'bą). Height in the Drakensberg, in NW Natal, Union of South Africa. Here ab. 450 Boers, with slight loss, defeated (Feb. 27, 1881) ab. 700 British. Of the latter 92, including General Sir G. P. Colley, were killed, and ab. 150 wounded.

Majunga (mą.jung'gą). One of the chief ports of Madagascar, situated on the NW coast of the island and connected by a highway with Tananarive, the capital. It has meat-packing, soap, edible oil, and textile industries. 27,181 (1948).

Majuro (mą.jůr'ō). Atoll of the Marshall Islands, C Pacific Ocean. It is composed of ab. 57 islets fringing a lagoon of ab. 114 sq. mi. It is the most populous atoll of the Marshalls. Land area, ab. 3.5 sq. mi.; pop. 1,537 (1948).

Makah (mä.kô'). Tribe of North American Indians of coastal NW Washington. They belong to the Wakashan linguistic stock and represent the southernmost branch of that family of languages. Their culture is the typical Northwest Pacific culture. Only about 450 Makah Indians now survive on the reservation on Cape Flattery, Wash.

Makahiki (mä.kä.hē'kē). Harvest festival period of the ancient Hawaiians, lasting for four lunar months, from October or November of our calendar to February or March. The festival was in honor of the god of agriculture, Lono (corresponding to Rongo elsewhere in Polynesia). Lono was represented by the paramount chief or king of each island. The festival was divided into two periods. First came a tabu period, during which both work and sports were forbidden. Offerings of food, bark cloth, mats, and feathers were laid on stone altars that marked the district boundaries. Then priests carried an image of Lono entirely around each island. At the boundary altars, the chiefs of each district presented the offerings. Because the highest chief represented Lono, this part of the proceedings was equivalent to a tax levy. At the end of the prayer accepting the offerings, the tabu was lifted. Then followed the second part of the festival, marked by athletic contests (boxing, wrestling, dart-throwing, and others), hula dancing, and feasting. Finally, the king went offshore in a canoe, then returned. On landing, he was attacked with a volley of spears. It was believed that unless he and his guardsmen could parry them, he was no longer worthy to represent Lono. Kamehameha I was famous for meeting this test alone.

Makalaka (mä.kä.lä'kä) or Makaranga (mä.kä.räng'gä). See Karanga.

Makallah (mą.kal'ą). See Mukalla.

Makan (mą.kan'). See Magan.

Makanga (mä.käng'gä). See Kanga.

Makapuu Point (mä.kä.pō'ō). Cape at the E extremity of the island of Oahu, Hawaiian Islands. It has a lighthouse.

Makarov (mä.kä'rǫf), Stephen Ossipovich. b. at Kiev, Russia, Dec. 29, 1848; d. off Port Arthur, Manchuria, April 12, 1904. Russian admiral. He was in command of a cruiser in the Russo-Turkish War of 1877–78, and in 1890 was made inspector general of artillery. He introduced a number of inventions and improvements in guns and projectiles, and was the designer of the ice-breaker Ermak. For a time he was military governor of Kronstadt, commanded in the Far East (1894–95), and in 1896 was made vice-admiral and afterward commander in chief in the Baltic. He took command of the Russian fleet at Port Arthur in 1904, and was killed in the sinking of the battleship Petropavlovsk by a mine off the mouth of the harbor.

Makarska (mä'kär.skä). [Italian, Macarsca; Latin, Mocrum.] Seaport town and township in W Yugoslavia, in the federative unit of Croatia, formerly in the banovina (province) of Primorska, situated on the Adriatic coast of Dalmatia, ab. 34 mi. SE of Split. It has fisheries. 11,658 (1931).

Makart (mä'kärt), Hans. b. at Salzburg, Austria, May 28, 1840; d. at Vienna, Oct. 3, 1884. Austrian historical and figure painter. He settled at Vienna in 1869 at the request of the emperor, who in 1879 gave him the title of professor.

Makassar (mą.kas'ąr). [Also, Macassar.] Former native kingdom in Celebes, later a department in the Dutch residency of Celebes and now part of the province of Celebes, Republic of Indonesia.

Makassar. [Also, Macassar.] City in SW Celebes, Indonesia, capital of the province of Celebes and chief seaport of the island, exporting copra, coffee, spices, rubber, and sandalwood. The Portuguese traded here in the 16th century, and Dutch settlers arrived in 1607. These colonists were massacred in 1618, but the Dutch regained control in 1667. The town was occupied by Japanese forces in February, 1942, and was not recovered until the end of World War II. In the years 1946–49 there were serious conflicts in the area between the Dutch and the Indonesian nationalists. 84,855 (1930), 250,000 (1951).

Makatea (mä.kä.tā'ä). [Also: Makatéa; former name, Aurora.] Island of French Oceania, in the Tuamotu Archipelago ab. 140 mi. NE of Tahiti. Phosphate is produced on the island. Area, ab. 10 sq. mi.; pop. 1,826, including 1,129 natives (1946).

Makedhonia or Makedonia (mä''ke.ᴛʜô.nē'ä). See Macedonia.

Makedonija (mä.ke.dô'nē.yä). Serbo-Croatian name of Macedonia.

Makeevka (mä.kā'yif.ką). See Makeyevka.

Makemie (mą.kem'i, -kā'mi), Francis. b. near Ramelton, County Donegal, Ireland, c1658; d. 1708. Irish clergyman in America, sometimes credited with the founding of Presbyterianism in America. He arrived (1683) in Maryland, and traveled as an evangelist (1683–98) in the South. Settling in eastern Virginia, he became minister of two churches in Virginia and five in Maryland, and organized (1706) the first American Presbytery. He was arrested (January, 1707) for unlicensed preaching in New York but was acquitted.

Makeyevka (mä.kā'yif.ką). [Also: Makeevka; former name, Dmitrievsk.] City in the U.S.S.R., in the Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic, on the Donets Basin ab. 9 mi. NE of Stalino. It is the center of a coal-mining region, and has one of the largest iron and steel plants in the Donets Basin, using iron ores from Krivoi Rog and Kerch. It also has a chemical industry based on the by-products of the coke ovens. During World War II the city was in German hands from October, 1941, until September, 1943, and it suffered heavy damage. 240,145 (1939).

Makhachkala (mä.ʜäch'kä.lä'). [Also: Makhach-Kala; former name, Petrovsk.] City in the U.S.S.R., capital of the Dagestan Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic, on the W shore of the Caspian Sea, ab. 240 mi. NW of Baku. It has fish-canning, oil-refining, and machinery industries, and is an important oil-shipping port, having a pipe line from the Grozny oil fields. 86,847 (1939).

Makhoca or Makhosa (mä.kō'sä). See Khosa.

Makin (mā'kin, mug'in). [Also, Buraritari.] Atoll in the Gilbert Islands, the first island recaptured in World War II from the Japanese in the C Pacific Ocean. Used as a Japanese seaplane base, it was attacked on Nov. 20, 1943, by the 27th Infantry Division under Major General Ralph Smith. The Japanese garrison was overcome in four days.

Making of Americans, The. Novel by Gertrude Stein, written between 1905 and 1908 and published in 1925.

Making of an American, The. Autobiography of Jacob Riis, published in 1901.

Makiritari (mä.kē.rē.tä'rē). See under Maquiritari.

Makka or Makkah (mäk'ka). See Mecca.

Makkabäer (mäk'ä.bā.ėr), Die. German title of Maccabees, The.

Makó (mo'kō). Town in SE Hungary, near the Maros River and the Rumanian and Yugoslav borders, ab. 15 mi. SE of Szeged. It is a center for trade in grain, onions, fruit, and wine. 34,052 (1948).

Mako (mô'kō). See under the Pescadores islands.

Makololo (mä.kō.lō'lō). See Kololo.

Makonde (mä.kōn'dā). [Also: Konde, Wamakonde.] Bantu-speaking people of SE Tanganyika, inhabiting an area between the Rufiji and Rovuma rivers. They are not to be confused with the Ngonde of N Nyasaland, who are also known as Konde. They have exogamous matrilineal clans and age grades based on circumcision. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal crops are maize and millet.

Makonnen (mä.kô'nẹn), Ras Taffari (or Tafari). See Haile Selassie I.

Makorekore (mä.kō'rā.kō'rā). See Korekore.

Makrakra (mä.krä'krä). See Zande.

Makran (mä.krän'). [Also, Mekran.] Dry region bordering on the N coast of the Arabian Sea, in SW Pakistan and SE Iran, corresponding in part to the ancient Gedrosia.

Makrisi (mäk.rē'zē), al-. [Also, al-Maqrizi.] b. c1366; d. 1442. Arab historian. The name Makrisi is derived from his birthplace, Makris near Baalbek (now in Lebanon). His Egyptian History and Topography is still an important work, and some of his works have been translated into Latin and French.

Makro Teikho (mä'krô tē'ċhô). See under Cnossus.

Makua (mä'kö.ä). See also Ubangi.

Makua. [Also: Kua, Wamakua, Wakua.] Bantu-speaking people of SE Africa, inhabiting N Mozambique and SE Tanganyika. They have exogamous matrilineal clans and age grades based on circumcision. They practice hoe agriculture and their principal foods are maize and millet.

Makwengo (mä.kweng'gō). See Hukwe.

Makyu (mä'kyö). See under the Pescadores islands.

Malabar (mal'ạ.bär). District of Madras state, Union of India, on the Malabar Coast: coconuts, rice, pepper, rubber, tea, and fruits. The chief city in the district is Coimbatore. Capital, Calicut; area, ab. 5,790 sq. mi.; pop. 4,758,342 (1951).

Malabar Coast. West coastal region of S India, extending from Goa to Cape Comorin, bordering on the Arabian Sea and bounded on the E by the Western Ghats. The region has a humid tropical climate, with a dry season in winter. Coconuts are a major crop of the sandy littoral areas; rice is the principal food crop of the alluvial lowlands, and pepper, cardamom and other spices, rubber, and chinchona are commercial products. There are also coastal fisheries. There are no first-class ports, and few good natural harbors along the coast; commerce is handled chiefly by small boats. Length, ab. 550 mi.

Malabari (mä.lä.bä'rē), Behramji Maharbanji (or Merwanji). b. 1854; d. 1912. Hindu poet and social reformer, a Parsee (Zoroastrian) by birth. He was instrumental in procuring enactment of the "Age of Consent" Act (which forbade marriages involving child brides), and championed the movement to remove the restrictions on the remarriage of Indian widows. He was editor (c1880–1900) of the Indian Spectator and also edited (1901–12) East and West. Author of Origin and Growth of Religion (1898) and The Indian Eye on English Life (1893).

Malaca (mal'ạ.kạ). Ancient name of Málaga, Spain.

Malacca (mạ.lak'ạ). See also Malay Peninsula.

Malacca. Territory (British settlement) in the Federation of Malaya, on the W coast, between Singapore and Penang. Rubber and rice are the most important crops. Capital, Malacca; area, ab. 640 sq. mi.; pop. 239,356 (1947).

Malacca. Seaport, capital of the territory (British settlement) of Malacca, situated on the Strait of Malacca, ab. 150 mi. NW of Singapore. It exports tin, rubber, and rice. It was formerly under Portuguese rule, and later under Dutch rule. 54,358 (1947).

Malacca, Strait of. Shallow sea passage linking the Andaman Sea with the South China Sea, and separating the island of Sumatra from the Malay Peninsula. Lying on the shortest direct route from Europe to the Far East, it is one of the busiest seaways of the world. Length, ab. 500 mi.; least width, ab. 23.5 mi.

Malachi (mal'ạ.kī). [Also, Malachias (mal.ạ.kī'ạs), Malachy.] Last of the minor Hebrew prophetical books of the Old Testament. The author is unknown, the name apparently being a misconstrual of a Hebrew word meaning "my messenger"; the date is conjectural.

Malachi Malagrowther (mal.ạ.grou'ᴛʜėr). See Malagrowther, Malachi.

Malachy (mal'ạ.ki), Saint. b. in Armagh, Ireland, c1094; d. at Clairvaux, France, Nov. 2, 1148. Irish prelate, archbishop of Armagh and papal legate in Ireland. He was assistant to Archbishop Celsus of Armagh, under whom he brought the usages of the Roman Catholic Church to the archdiocese, and whom he succeeded (1132–36). He later served as bishop of Down, fighting paganism and instituting reforms to bring Irish practice into consonance with that of the Continent. He went (1140) to Rome to secure the pallium as the symbol of the subjection of the Archdiocese to the Roman rule, but Pope Innocent II refused to grant it without full subjection from a general council. On this journey Malachy began his friendship with St. Bernard of Clairvaux, who later wrote his biography. He returned to Ireland as papal legate and in 1148, after working through the intervening years to achieve his aim of conformity, was authorized by a synod to go to Rome once more to seek the pallium. He died at Clairvaux while en route. In 1152 the pallium was granted; Malachy was canonized in 1190.

Malad City (mạ.lad'). Village in SE Idaho, county seat of Oneida County: formerly a stop of the Overland Stage Coach. 2,715 (1950).

Malade imaginaire (mȧ.lȧd ē.mȧ.zhē.ner), Le. [Eng. trans., "The Imaginary Invalid."] Comedy by Molière, produced in 1673.

Maladetta (mä.lä.dā'tä). [Also: Maladeta; French, Monts-Maudits; Spanish, also, Montes Malditos.] Group of the C Pyrenees, on the Spanish side, S of the main range. It contains the highest summit of the Pyrenees, the Pico de Aneto (ab. 11,168 ft.).

Málaga (mal'ạ.gạ; Spanish, mä'lä.gä). Province in S Spain, bounded on the E by Granada, on the S by the Mediterranean Sea, on the W by Cádiz, and on the N by Sevilla and Córdoba: part of the region of Andalusia. The surface is largely mountainous, and the climate of the Mediterranean type, with mild winters and hot, dry summers. Wheat, sugar cane, grapes, and citrus fruit are grown. Iron ore and lead are mined; there are a number of industries. Capital, Málaga; area, ab. 2,813 sq. mi.; pop. 750,322 (1950).

Málaga. [Ancient name, Malaca.] City in S Spain, the capital of the province of Málaga, situated on a small, fertile coastal plain, on the Mediterranean Sea ab. 66 mi. NE of Gibraltar: a chief Mediterranean seaport of Spain (second only to Barcelona), exporting fresh and dried fruit, wine, olive oil, iron, and lead. Raw materials, grain, and machinery are imported. There are large cotton mills, construction and smelting works, iron foundries, tanneries, hat factories, distilleries, sugar refineries, and chemical and soap factories. Founded by the Phoenicians, the city was subsequently occupied by Carthaginians, Romans, and Visigoths; in 711 it passed into the possession of the Moors. It was conquered by Ferdinand V and Isabella of Castile in 1487. In 1810 it was sacked by the French. It was conquered by the Nationalist General Queipo de Llano on Feb. 8, 1937, in the Spanish Civil War. 276,222 (1950).

Malagasy (mal.ą.gas'i). Native peoples of Madagascar, numbering upwards of 2,500,000 and divided into various tribes, the largest of which are the Hova, Betsileo, and Betsimisaraka. The languages of Madagascar collectively, and the principal language, that of the Hova tribe, belong to the Malagasy branch of the Indonesian group of the Malayo-Polynesian family of languages.

Malagigi (mä.lä.jē'jē). In the Charlemagne cycle of romances, an enchanter and magician, the cousin of Rinaldo.

Malagrowther (mal.ą.grou'ᴛʜĕr), Malachi. Pseudonym of Sir Walter Scott in "Three Letters by Malachi Malagrowther" on paper money, first published in the Edinburgh Weekly Journal in 1826. In 1830 a fourth letter was added. Sir Mungo Malagrowther is a malicious old courtier in Scott's novel The Fortunes of Nigel.

Malahide (mal'ą.hīd). Ancient fortified mansion near Dublin, Ireland, formerly the residence of the Talbot family. It is one of the best specimens of pure Norman architecture in the British Isles.

Malakand Pass (mul'ą.kund). [Also, Malakhand Pass.] Mountain pass in the Northwest Frontier Province of Pakistan, N of Peshawar.

Malakhov (mä.lä'kof). [Also, Malakoff.] Hillside fortress in the U.S.S.R., in the Crimea, overlooking the city of Sevastopol on the SE. During the Crimean War it was besieged by the French, and finally captured on Sept. 8, 1855.

Malakoff (mą.lą.kof). Town in N France, in the department of Seine, adjoining Paris on the S. It is part of the metropolitan area of Paris, and has diverse industries. 27,459 (1946).

Malakoff, Duc de. Title of Pélissier, Aimable Jean Jacques.

Malan (mą.län'), Daniel François. b. May 22, 1874—. South African statesman. He served as minister of the interior under J. B. M. Hertzog and went out of office in 1939 with Hertzog over the question of South African participation in World War II. Malan succeeded Hertzog as head of the Nationalist Party. In 1946, a parliamentary inquiry into his alleged pro-Nazi activities during the war cleared him of the principal charges. He succeeded J. C. Smuts as premier of the Union of South Africa in May, 1948, holding also the portfolio of external affairs; he at once began instituting the program of apartheid (absolute separation of Europeans and natives) on which his Nationalists had fought and won the election. Malan's policies caused bitter protests throughout the world and brought censure from many quarters, but he persisted. The official treatment of Indian nationals living in South Africa resulted in official protests and in debates in the United Nations. The Malan government also incurred a vote of censure from the General Assembly of the United Nations for its refusal to place the formerly mandated territory of South-West Africa under United Nations trusteeship; even a decision of the Hague Court of International Justice did not prevent the South African government from administering the area as part of the Union. In December, 1951, as a protest against what he deemed insults and interference, Malan withdrew the South African delegation from the General Assembly and threatened, through the government press, to withdraw completely from the United Nations.

Malaprop (mal'ą.prop), Mrs. Vain, good-natured woman in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's The Rivals, remarkable for her misapplication of words.

Malaquais (mą.lą.kā), Jean. b. in Poland, 1908—. Polish novelist writing in French. He is author of Les Javanais (1939; Eng. trans., The Men from Java, 1941, and also Men from Nowhere, 1943), Journal de Guerre (1943; Eng. trans., Jean Malaquais' War Diary, 1944), and Tentations (1943). Both his national origin and his gift for creating atmosphere around international-wanderer characters have led critics to compare him with Joseph Conrad.

Mälar (me'lar), Lake. Swedish, Mälaren.] Lake in E Sweden, draining into the Baltic Sea at Stockholm. It contains over 1,200 islands. Stockholm is situated at its E end. Length, ab. 80 mi.; elevation, ab. 1 ft.; area, ab. 440 sq. mi.

Malartic (mą.lär.tēk'). Gold-mining town in the Val d'Or district of SW Quebec, Canada, ab. 65 mi. E of the Ontario boundary and ab. 17 mi. W of Val d'Or. 5,983 (1951).

Malashkin (mä.läsh'kin), Sergey Ivanovich. b. at Khomyakovo, Tula, Russia, July 3, 1890—. Russian writer of fiction. His novel To the Right, the Moon (1926), dealing with the demoralization of certain sections of Communist youth, was very popular in its day.

Malaspina (mä.lä.spē'nä). See Canlaon.

Malaspina, Alejandro. b. c1750; d. at Cádiz, Spain, c1810. Spanish navigator who, from 1789 to 1794, commanded a surveying expedition on the western coast of South and North America. He penetrated as far north as Alaska in search of a passage from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and subsequently returned to Spain by way of the East Indies. The Malaspina Glacier in Alaska is named for him.

Malaspina Glacier. Glacier in SE Alaska, ab. 240 mi. NW of Juneau. It lies between the St. Elias Range and the Pacific Ocean, being separated from the latter by a fringe of forested moraines five or six miles wide, except at Icy Cape, where the ice cliffs are washed by the waves. It was named in honor of Alejandro Malaspina. Length, ab. 22 mi.; width, ab. 27 mi.

Malatesta (mä.lä.tes'tä). Italian family ruling in Rimini, Italy, and in other parts of the Romagna, from the 13th to the 16th century. Among its principal members were Malatesta da Verucchio (d. 1312) who, as chief magistrate (1239 et seq.) of Rimini, supported the Guelphs; Gianciotto Malatesta, husband and slayer of Francesca da Rimini and his brother Paolo Malatesta, her lover; and Sigismondo Pandolfo Malatesta (1417–68), one of the most powerful of the condottieri of Renaissance Italy and an opponent of Pope Pius II, who excommunicated him in 1460.

Malatesta, Enrico. b. at Santa Maria Capua Vetere, Italy, Dec. 4, 1853; d. at Rome, July 22, 1932. Italian revolutionist, friend and favorite pupil of Bakunin. He joined (1872) the International Socialists, and later founded the reviews Volontà at Ancona, La Révolte at Paris, and La Question Sociale in the U.S.

Malatya (mä.lä.tyä'). Il (province or vilayet) in E central Turkey, in W Anatolia: a dry, hilly semidesert area with fine irrigated land along the Euphrates River, which bisects the il. It is known for its fine fruit crops and production of opium. Capital, Malátya; area, ab. 8,208 sq. mi.; pop. 481,386 (1950).

Malatya. [Also: Malatia, Malatiyeh; ancient name, Melitene.] City in E central Turkey, capital of the il (province or vilayet) of Malátya, ab. 12 mi. S of the Euphrates River and ab. 100 mi. N of the Syrian border. It is a trade center and a rail junction, and has textile industries; exports include wool and rugs which are made on home looms. The ancient city of Melitene was included in the Roman province of Cappadocia, and was an important garrison town. The Persians were defeated (577) here by the Byzantine forces. In 1893 the city was almost completely destroyed by an earthquake. Elevation, ab. 2,620 ft.; pop. 49,077 (1950).

Malaviya (mä.lä.vē'yä), Pandit Madan Mohan. b. at Allahabad, India, 1861—. Indian political leader, teacher, and editor. He was president (1909, 1918, 1933) of the Indian National Congress and served (1939 et seq.) as rector of Benares University.

Malay (mā'lā). See also Deutero-Malay, and Southern Mongoloid.

Malay. [Also, Malayan (mą.lā'an).] Member of a Moslem, rice-growing, seafaring people found chiefly in the coastal regions of E Sumatra (3,500,000) and the Malay Peninsula (more than 2,000,000), but in smaller numbers also in Borneo and elsewhere in Indonesia, in Cambodia, and in Thailand (Siam). The Malays have played an important role in the propagation of Islam in the East Indies. Their language, Malay, is one of the principal languages of the Indonesian group of the Malayo-Polynesian family, and is used as a lingua franca throughout Indonesia. They are a southern Mongoloid people.

Malaya (mą.lā′ą), Federation of. [Former name, Union of Malaya.] British protectorate in the S end of the Malay Peninsula, a federation consisting of the former Union of Malaya. The Union came into force on Oct. 10, 1945. It was composed of the former Federated Malay States (Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang), the former unfederated Malay States (Johore, Kedah, Kelantan, and Trengganu), and Malacca and Penang of the Straits Settlements. The name was changed to the Federation of Malaya upon the reorganization of the Union of Malaya in February, 1948. The states and settlements, individually under Malay rulers, are represented on the legislative council, which includes the British high commissioner and decides matters concerning the Federation as a whole. The chief products are rice, rubber, coconuts, copra, tin, tungsten, gold, and silver. Capital, Kuala Lumpur; area, 50,746 sq. mi.; pop. 5,420,738 (est. 1951).

Malayalam (mä.lą.yä′ląm). Dravidian language spoken by about nine million people in S India, mainly in the state of Travancore and Cochin and adjoining parts of the SW coast of India. It developed in the 9th century A.D. from a dialect of Tamil. There is a Malayalam alphabet.

Malay Archipelago (mā′lā). [Also: East Indian (or Indian) Archipelago, Malaysia; French, Insulinde.] General name for the vast group of islands in the Eastern Hemisphere lying between the SE coast of Asia, and Australia and New Guinea, including Sumatra, Java, Borneo, Celebes, and the Molucca, Lesser Sunda, and Philippine islands. Area, ab. 770,000 sq. mi.; pop. ab. 100 million.

Malay-Mongoloid (-mong′go.loid). See Deutero-Malay.

Malayo-Polynesian (mą. lā′o̧.pol.i.nē′zhąn, -shąn). [Also, Austronesian.] Linguistic family whose local forms are spoken from Easter Island across the Pacific Ocean to the Malay Peninsula, with an offshoot in Madagascar. Four main branches are recognized: Malay or Malayan, which includes the native languages of Malaya and of the Indonesian islands from Java to the Philippines; Melanesian, which includes languages of Melanesian islands such as the Solomons and parts of Fiji; Micronesian (sometimes grouped linguistically with Melanesia), spoken in the Gilbert, Marshall, Caroline, and Marianas islands; and Polynesian, the native language of islands from New Zealand on the S to Hawaii on the N, and from Easter Island on the E to parts of Fiji, with outliers still farther west. The range of variation among these languages is wide, from the phonetically and structurally simple Polynesian to languages such as that of Yap in the western Carolines, which is decidedly complicated in both sound and structure. Some scholars consider the family related to the Munda languages of India and the Mon-khmer of SE Asia; they propose the name Austric for a group comprising all of these.

Malay Peninsula (mā′lā). [Also: Malacca; ancient name, Chersonesus Aurea.] Peninsula at the SE extremity of Asia, connected with Burma and Thailand (Siam) by the Isthmus of Kra, and terminating at the strait separating the peninsula from Singapore Island. It lies between the Gulf of Siam and the China Sea on the E and the Bay of Bengal and the Strait of Malacca on the W, is traversed by mountain ranges, and is divided politically between Thailand and the Federation of Malaya. A treaty between Great Britain and Siam, signed March 10, 1909, provided for the transfer to British protection of Kelantan, Trengganu, and Kedah. The chief peoples are Malays, Siamese, Chinese, and Negritos. Length, ab. 700 mi.; area, ab. 70,000 sq. mi.

Malaysia (mą.lā′zhą, -shą). See Malay Archipelago.

Malaysian (mą.lā′zhąn, -shąn). See Proto-Malay.

Malay States (mā′lā), Federated. Former federation under British protection. It included the states of Perak, Selangor, Negri Semblian, and Pahang, in the Malay Peninsula. These states are now in the Federation of Malaya. Area, ab. 27,540 sq. mi.; pop. 2,212,052 (est. 1941).

Malâzkirt (mä.läz.kirt′). [Also: Malazgirt (-girt′), Manzikert.] Village and former town in E Turkey, in the il (province or vilayet) of Muş, situated on the Murat, a principal headstream of the Euphrates, ab. 27 mi. NW of Lake Van. It was the scene of a decisive battle (1071) in which the Byzantine emperor Romanus Diogenes was defeated and captured by the Seljuk Turks.

Malbodium (mal.bō′di.um). Latin name of Maubeuge.

Malbone (mal.bōn′), Edward G. b. at Newport, R.I., in August, 1777; d. at Savannah, Ga., May 7, 1807. American portrait painter.

Malbork (mäl′bôrk). [German, Marienburg.] Town in N Poland, in the województwo (province) of Gdańsk, formerly in East Prussia, situated on the Nogat River ab. 26 mi. SE of Danzig (Gdańsk). It is a river port, with paper, chemical, and lumber industries, a sugar refinery, and livestock markets. The town is dominated by a huge castle of the Teutonic Order. The entire structure, which had fallen into ruin, was reconstructed in 1817–30 and 1882–1914. The town itself contains medieval walls and gates, and a Gothic town hall. The town and castle, founded in 1274, became the seat of the Grand Master of the Teutonic Order in 1309. The fortifications withstood Polish sieges in 1410 and 1454, but fell into Polish hands in 1457. The town fell to Prussia in 1772, voted for Germany in the plebiscite of 1920, and passed to Poland in 1945. The town suffered extensive damage in World War II, and was entered by Russian forces in the spring of 1945. Pop. 27,318 (1939), 10,017 (1946).

Malbrough or Malbrook (either, mäl.brōk). Celebrated French song, commencing "Malbrough s'en va-t-en guerre." The authors of words and music are not certainly known, but it probably dates from c1709. Beethoven repeated it in his Battle Symphony (1813), as the symbol of the French army. The air is that to which "We won't go home till morning" and "The bear went over the mountain" are sung.

Malchin (mäl.ċhen′). Town in NE Germany, in the Land (state) of Mecklenburg, Russian Zone, on the Peene River ab. 57 mi. E of Schwerin. Before World War II it had sugar and lumber industries. 6,825 (1946).

Malchus (mal′kus). Original name of Porphyry.

Malcolm I (of Scotland) (mal′kọm). [Also, Malcolm I MacDonald.] d. in 954. King of Scotland (943–954). He annexed Moray to the Scottish kingdom in 943, but lost Northumbria in 954.

Malcolm II (of Scotland). [Also, Malcolm II MacKenneth.] d. Nov. 25, 1034. King of Scotland (1005–34); son of Kenneth II. He gained the throne by defeating and killing Kenneth III at Monzievaird, Perthshire, in 1005. He was repulsed with great slaughter by Uchtred, son of Waltheof, ealdorman of Northumbria, in an attack on Durham in 1006. In 1008 he married his daughter to Sigurd, jarl of Orkney. During his reign Lothian and Cumbria north of the Solway were annexed to Scotland. He submitted to Canute in 1031.

Malcolm III (of Scotland). [Also Malcolm III MacDuncan; called Canmore.] d. near Alnwick, Northumberland, Nov. 13, 1093. King of Scotland (1054–93); son of Duncan I. He ascended the throne on the defeat of the usurper Macbeth by Earl Siward of Northumbria July 27, 1054, which was followed by his own victory at Lumphanan in Aberdeenshire, where Macbeth was slain. He was crowned at Scone April 25, 1057, and in 1058 married as his second wife Saint Margaret, sister of Edgar Atheling, through whose efforts the Roman Catholic ritual was introduced into Scotland. In 1070 he supported the cause of his brother-in-law and invaded Northumberland, but was defeated and obliged to do homage to William I (William the Conqueror) at Abernethy in 1072. He continued his depredations in Northumbria and was forced by William II, who invaded Scotland, to do homage in 1091. He was defeated and slain by Morel of Bamborough near the Alne, at a place which afterward received the name of Malcolm's Cross. Shakespeare introduces him in Macbeth. His sons, Duncan II, Edgar, Alexander I, and David I, all were kings of Scotland; his daughter Matilda became the queen of Henry I of England.

Malcolm IV (of Scotland). [Surnamed The Maiden.] b. in 1141; d. at Jedburgh, Dec. 9, 1165. King of Scotland (1153–65); son of Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, and grandson of David I, whom he succeeded. He was compelled to surrender to Henry II of England at Chester in 1157 the fiefs granted to his grandfather by Matilda, mother of Henry II of England and Malcolm's grandaunt.

in return for the assistance of the Scots against Stephen. In 1159 Malcolm served as an English baron in the expedition against Toulouse.

Malcolm, Howard. b. at Philadelphia, Jan. 19, 1799; d. there, March 25, 1879. American Baptist clergyman and writer.

Malcolm, Sir John. b. at Burnfoot, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, May 2, 1769; d. May 30, 1833. Scottish politician. He received a commission in the East India Company's military service in 1781, and later distinguished himself as a diplomat in Persia and as a soldier in the native wars in India. He was governor of Bombay (1827–30), and was a member of Parliament for Launceston (1831–32). He wrote Political History of India (1811), History of Persia (1815), and others.

Malcolm Graeme (grām). See Graeme, Malcolm.

Malcontent, The. Play by John Marston, printed in 1604. Another edition, with an induction by John Webster, appeared the same year.

Malczewski (mäl.chef'skē), Antoni. [Also, Malczeski (mäl.ches'kē).] b. in Volhynia, Poland, 1793; d. at Warsaw, Poland, May 2, 1826. Polish poet; a leading representative of the Ukrainian school of Polish romanticism and author of the Byronic ballad Marya (1825; Eng. trans., 1934).

Malda (mäl'dạ). [Also, Maldah.] Former district in Bengal, India, ab. 150 mi. N of the city of Calcutta: rice, jute, wheat, and oil seeds. In 1947 the district was divided between the Union of India and Pakistan; the portion remaining in the Union of India is a district of the state of West Bengal, and bears the original name. Total area, ab. 2,004 sq. mi. (1941); pop. 1,232,618 (1941). Area in West Bengal, ab. 1,394 sq. mi.; pop. 937,580 (1951).

Maldegem (mäl'de.ċhem). Town in NW Belgium, in the province of East Flanders, situated near the Dutch border, E of Bruges. It is a grain-marketing center, and also has lace and linen manufactures. 12,550 (1947).

Malden (môl'dẹn). City in E Massachusetts, in Middlesex County, ab. 5 mi. N of the center of Boston: manufactures include confectionery, chemicals, knit goods, and rubber footwear. It is part of the urbanized area of greater Boston. Malden became a town in 1649 and was incorporated as a city in 1881. Pop. 59,804 (1950).

Malden. City in SE Missouri, in Dunklin County: processing and shipping point for cotton. 3,396 (1950).

Malden, Viscount. Title of Capel, Arthur (1631–83).

Malden and Coombe (köm). Municipal borough in SE England, in Surrey, ab. 10 mi. SW of Waterloo Station, London: a southwestern residential suburb, included in Greater London. 45,559 (1951).

Malden Island. Small uninhabited island in the Pacific, NW of the Marquesas: a British possession. Area, ab. 35 sq. mi.

Maldonado (mäl.dō.nä'ᴛʜō). See also Puerto Maldonado, Peru.

Maldonado. Department in S Uruguay. Capital, Maldonado; area, ab. 1,587 sq. mi.; pop. 68,070 (est. 1947).

Maldonado. City in SE Uruguay, capital of Maldonado department, a port on the Atlantic Ocean: exports grain, sealskins, and wool. Pop. ab. 8,000.

Malea (mạ.lē'ạ). In ancient geography, the southernmost point of the island of Lesbos.

Malea (mä.le'ä), Cape. Promontory at the SE extremity of the Peloponnesus, Greece.

Malebolge (mä.lā.bōl'jā). In Dante's Inferno, the eighth circle of Hell. It consisted of ten concentric bolgie, or trenches.

Malebranche (mål.bränsh), Nicolas. b. at Paris, Aug. 6, 1638; d. there, Oct. 13, 1715. French metaphysician, a follower of Descartes. He sought to overcome the dualism of the Cartesian philosophy by the doctrine that God is the real ground of all being and knowing, and that we "see all things in him." His principal work is Recherche de la vérité (1674).

Malecite (mal'ẹ.sīt). [Also, Amalecite.] North American Indian tribe, inhabiting parts of what is now New Brunswick, Canada. Their language belongs to the Algonquian stock. French settlers intermarried freely with the Malecite in the 17th century. About 1,050 Malecite Indians survive today in the St. John River valley in New Brunswick.

Malenkov (mal'ẹn.kôf; Russian, mä'lyin.kọf), Georgi Maximilianovich. b. at Orenburg (now Chkalov), Russia, Jan. 8, 1902—. Russian Communist politician, premier of the U.S.S.R. (1953 et seq.). He joined the Communist Party in 1920 and during the civil war was assigned as a political commissar to the Red Army. By 1922 he was in charge of the Eastern and Turkistan front, investigating the political activity of the military in his area and indoctrinating the troops with the philosophy of the newly established government. He attended technical school, then for a time served as personal assistant to Joseph Stalin, and in 1925 became a member of the central committee of the Communist Party. In 1930 he was a member of the organizing department of the party in the Moscow area and in 1939 became a member of the Orgburo, the party's apparatus for organization as the Politburo is for politics. He served at the outbreak of World War II in Russia as an alternate member of the Politburo and as a member of the state defense committee with Stalin, Molotov, Voroshilov, and Beria, and during the war was in charge of military production. At the end of the war he became a full member of the Politburo and one of the vice-chairmen of the council of ministers of the U.S.S.R. In 1952 he became chairman of the Orgburo and in 1953, on the death of Stalin, became premier of the U.S.S.R.

Malente-Gremsmühlen (mä.len'tẹ.grems'mü.lẹn). Town in NW Germany, in the Land (state) of Schleswig-Holstein, British Zone, formerly in the province of Schleswig-Holstein, Prussia, situated ab. 15 mi. SE of Kiel: a tourist resort in the lake region called the "Holsteinian Switzerland." It has knitwear, paper, and metal industries. 11,798 (1950).

Maler Kotla (mä'lėr kot'lạ). Former native state in India, one of the Punjab States, ab. 150 mi. NW of Delhi. Sheep, camels, and cattle are raised in the region. It was merged into the Patiala and East Punjab States Union of the Union of India in 1948. Former capital, Maler Kotla; area, ab. 165 sq. mi.; pop. 88,109 (1941).

Maler Müller (mä.lėr mül'ėr). See Müller, Friedrich (1749–1825).

Malesherbes (mål.zerb). Small town in N central France, in the department of Loiret, on the Essonne River ab. 11 mi. NE of Pithiviers. Near it are the Château de Malesherbes (17th century) and the Château de Rouville (15th century). 2,373 (1946).

Malesherbes, Chrétien Guillaume de Lamoignon de. b. at Paris, Dec. 6, 1721; guillotined at Paris, April 22, 1794. French statesman. He was president of the "cour des aides" and was entrusted by his father, the chancellor, with the post of director of the press. It was through his assistance that Diderot and his colleagues were enabled to put out the Encyclopédie (1751–72). He objected strongly to the dissolution of the parlements in 1771 and was banished from the court. He was minister under Louis XVI and resigned his offices in 1788 to retire to his country home. He volunteered to act as counsel (1792–93) for the king before the Convention, and was granted permission to do so. He was arrested December, 1793, and condemned to death by the Revolutionary tribunal on a charge of treason. He was executed along with his daughter, her husband, and their children, all condemned for their relationship to him.

Maleshova (ma.le.shō'va), Sejfulla. b. in Albania (then part of Turkey), 1900—. Albanian poet and writer.

Communist political leader and minister of propaganda (1944–47). He was associated (1924) with the government of Fan Stylian Noli, later studied at Moscow, but lost favor (1947) with the Albanian Communist regime.

Malet (mȧ.le), Claude François de. b. at Dôle, France, June 28, 1754; executed at Paris, Oct. 29, 1812. French general. An ardent republican, he was head of an unsuccessful conspiracy against Napoleon in October, 1812.

Malet (mal'ęt), Sir Edward Baldwin. b. at The Hague, Netherlands, Oct. 10, 1837; d. at Chorley Wood, Hertfordshire, England, June 29, 1908. English diplomat. He arranged the meeting (1871) between Jules Favre and Bismarck to discuss the terms of the French surrender in the Franco-Prussian War, and was in charge (March–June, 1871) of the embassy at Paris. He also helped settle rival German and British claims in the Congo and Samoa as British envoy (1884–95) at Berlin.

Malet, Lucas. Pseudonym of Kingsley, Mary St. Leger.

Maleventum (mal.ę.ven'tum). Original name of Benevento, city.

Malevich (mä.lā'vich), Kazimir Severinovich. b. at Kiev, Russia, Feb. 11, 1878; d. at Leningrad, Russia, 1935. Russian painter. He taught at the Moscow Academy, and later at the Academy at Leningrad (1921–35).

Malevole (mä.lā'vō.lā). Name assumed by Giovanni Altofronto, former Duke of Genoa, a character in John Marston's play The Malcontent, to which he gives its name.

Malham Tarn (mal'ąm tärn'). See under Aire River, England.

Malherbe (mȧ.lerb'), D. F. b. 1881—. South African poet and novelist. Among his volumes of poetry are Klokgrassies (Harebells, 1914), Die Timmerman (The Carpenter, 1921), Rivier en Veld (1922), and Die Skaduwee van 'n Vrou (The Shadow of a Woman, 1923). His powerful novel on the Boer War, Vergeet nie (Don't Forget, 1913), was extremely successful. In 1926 he published Die Meulenaar (The Miller) and in 1929 Hans-die-Skipper. A Biblical trilogy, Saul, appeared 1933–37. A broad description of the Great Trek was presented in En die wawiele rol (And the Wagon Wheels Roll, 1945).

Malherbe (mȧ.lerb), François de. b. at Caen, France, 1555; d. at Paris, Oct. 16, 1628. French poet. His studies, begun in his native city, were continued at Paris, and completed at Basel and Heidelberg. He was married in 1581, and spent much of his time in southern France. One of his first compositions, Les Larmes de Saint-Pierre, was published at Paris in 1587. Before the close of the century he had written his ode to Dupérier entitled Consolation sur la mort de sa fille, and had addressed odes to Henry IV and Marie de Médicis. His ambition to become court poet was realized c1605. He was presented to the king, and remained in residence at court till the death of Henry IV in 1610, and was then retained during the minority of Louis XIII.

Malherbe, Henry. b. 1886—. French novelist. Author of La Flamme au poing (1917), Le Jugement dernier (1920), and other works.

Malheur Lake (mal'hūr). Lake in SE Oregon, in Harney County. It receives water from several streams, and overflows into Harney Lake. Area, ab. 28 sq. mi.

Malheur River. River in E Oregon, flowing generally E to join the Snake at Ontario. Length, ab. 225 mi.

Mali (mä'lē). [Also: Melle, Mellestine.] Greatest of the former Sudanese empires of W Africa. The Mali empire was established by the Malinke people, with its capital at Kangaba (or Joliba), a village in W French Sudan nearly midway between Bamako and Siguiri on the left bank of the upper Niger. The present king (mansa) of Kangaba, although the ruler of only one of the Malinke kingdoms, probably represents a dynasty which has enjoyed more than 13 centuries of almost uninterrupted rule. The Mali empire dominated a large part of the W Sudan from the latter part of the 11th century until the middle of the 15th century, when it declined in the face of Songhai expansion. It excelled all other empires of the W Sudan in size, power, and renown, and during the height of its influence in the 14th century, under Mansa Gongo Musa, it controlled most of the area of the Sahara and the W Sudan.

Maliacus Sinus (mą.lī'ą.kus sī'nus). Latin name of Lamia, Gulf of.

Malian Gulf (mā'li.ąn). See Lamia, Gulf of.

Malibran (mȧ.lē.brąn), Madame Maria Felicia. [Maiden name, García.] b. at Paris, March 24, 1808; d. at Manchester, England, Sept. 23, 1836. French operatic contralto; daughter and pupil of Manuel del Popolo Vicente García. She made her operatic debut (June 7, 1825) at London, made a great sensation, and was at once engaged for the rest of the season. Shortly after this she went to New York with her father. In the midst of a successful season there he married her to a businessman named Malibran, who soon became bankrupt. In 1827 she left him and returned to France. She sang with increasing success at Paris, London, and other cities till the time of her death. In 1836 she married the violinist Charles Auguste de Bériot, with whom she had lived from 1830.

Malignants. In English history, name sometimes applied to the adherents of Charles I and his son Charles II during the English Civil War, generally known as the Royalists or the Cavaliers. They were so called by the Parliamentarians (or Roundheads), the opposite party.

Maligne Lake (ma.lēn'). Lake in W Alberta, Canada, in Jasper National Park, in the Canadian Rockies. It drains into the Athabaska River. Length, ab. 15 mi.

Malik (mä'lik), Jacob (or Yakov) Aleksandrovich. b. at Kharkov, Russia, 1906—. Russian diplomat. He served as an assistant in the press department of the foreign office (1937–39) and then went to Tokyo as counselor to the Russian embassy. In 1942 he became ambassador to Japan, serving until the U.S.S.R. entered the war against Japan in 1945. He was political adviser to the Russian representative on the council ruling Japan, before becoming deputy foreign minister in charge of Far Eastern affairs at Moscow in 1946. He became representative of the U.S.S.R. to the United Nations in 1948, serving on the Security Council and the commission on atomic energy. During his term at the United Nations the Korean War broke out and Malik's return to the Security Council as presiding officer, soon after the beginning of the war and breaking a Russian boycott of the council's meetings, marked a new climax in relations between the Communist and non-Communist countries; in 1951 it was Malik who advanced the possibility of a truce in Korea and opened the way to the conferences at Kaesong. He became (1952) a member of the central committee of the Communist Party.

Malik (mä'lēk), Sardar Hardit Singh. b. at Rawalpindi, West Punjab, India, 1894—. Indian diplomat and administrator, first Indian trade commissioner (1935) to the U.S., high commissioner (1947) to Canada, and ambassador (1949 et seq.) to France. He served as deputy commissioner (1922–30) of the Indian Civil Service in Punjab, as prime minister (1944–47) of Patiala, and as leader of the Indian delegation to the Havana conference (1947) of the United Nations.

Malinche (mä.lēn'chā). See also Marina.

Malinche. [Also: Malintzi, Malintzin, Malinzín; Indian name, Matlalcueyatl.] Mountain in C Mexico, on the border between the states of Puebla and Tlaxcala, NE of Puebla. It is an old volcanic cone, now much eroded. Elevation, ab. 14,636 ft.

Malindang (mä.lēn.dăng'). Volcano in N Mindanao, Philippine Islands. Elevation, 7,956 ft.

Malindi (ma.lin'di). [Also: Melinda, Melinde.] Town in British East Africa, in Kenya protectorate, on the E coast ab. 80 mi. N of Mombasa. Mombasa has sapped much of the trade of this port, making it a secondary one. Malindi was successively an Arabian, Portuguese, and Zanzibari trading place, and at one time the capital of Portuguese East Africa. 1,500 (1946).

Malines (mȧ.lēn). French name of Mechelen, Belgium.

Malines, Gerard. See Malynes or Malines or de Malines, Gerard.

Malin Head (mal'in). Promontory in NW Irish Republic, in County Donegal. It is the most northerly point of the Irish mainland. Elevation, ab. 226 ft.

Malinke (mä.lēng'kā). [Also: Manding, Mandingo, Mandinke.] Mande-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting French Guinea and French Sudan. Their population is estimated at ab. 620,000 (by Y. Urvoy, Petit atlas ethno-démographique du Soudan, 1942). Their empire, known as Mali, excelled all of the others of the W Sudan in size, power, and renown, and its fame reached Europe as a result of the lavish pilgrimages of two of its rulers, Mansa Musa and Gongo Musa, to Mecca in the 13th and 14th centuries. Today the Malinke are divided into numerous subgroups ruled by independent hereditary kings. The Malinke and Bambara in the W, like the Mossi in the center of the W Sudan, have resisted Mohammedanism. Less than one fifth have become Mohammedans. They practice hoe agriculture and cattle herding, and their principal food is millet.

Malinov (mä.lē′nŭf), Aleksandr. b. in Bessarabia, 1867; d. at Sofia, Bulgaria, March 20, 1938. Bulgarian political leader who, as head of the Democratic Party, served as prime minister (1908–11, 1918, 1931) and president of the national assembly (1931–34). He signed the armistice with the Allies Sept. 30, 1918.

Malinowski (mal.i.nof′ski), Bronislaw Kasper. b. at Kraków, Poland, April 7, 1884; d. at New Haven, Conn., May 16, 1942. American anthropologist, professor (1927 et seq.) at London and Yale universities. Malinowski's work (1914–18) among the Trobriand Islanders is of supreme importance not only as a study of a primitive culture but also as a critique of certain concepts until then taken for granted as universal among anthropologists. His later work was concerned with cultural change resulting from the contact of different cultures. Author of The Family Among the Australian Aborigines (1913), The Natives of Mailu (1915), Argonauts of the Western Pacific (1923), Sex and Repression in Savage Society (1926), Sexual Life of Savages in Northwest Melanesia (1929), The Dynamics of Culture Change (1945), and others.

Malintzi (mä.lēn′tsē) or Malintzin (-tsēn). See Malinche.

Malintzin. Indian name of Marina.

Malinzín (mä.lēn.sēn′). See Malinche.

Malipiero (mä.lē.pyā′rō), Francesco. b. at Venice, March 18, 1882—. Italian composer. Among his works are the symphonic drama Pantea (1920), L'Orfeide, an operatic trilogy, and San Francesco d'Assisi (1921), a choral drama.

Malis (mā′lis). In ancient geography, a district of Greece, S of Thessaly, N of Doris, and W of Locris. Lamia and Heraclea were the chief cities.

Mall (môl), Franklin Paine. b. at Belle Plaine, Iowa, Sept. 28, 1862; d. at Baltimore, Nov. 17, 1917. American anatomist and leader in medical education. He was professor of anatomy at the Johns Hopkins University Medical School (1893–1917). He introduced actual dissection of the body in the anatomical laboratory instead of demonstration by a prosector, and reduced lectures to a minimum. He also made original contributions to the understanding of the structure of the heart, spleen, and liver.

Mall (môl, mal), the. Broad promenade in St. James's Park, London, planted with rows of trees. The name is also given to a somewhat similar promenade in Central Park, New York City, containing several sculptures and an orchestra shell at which summertime concerts are given, especially by the band of Edwin Franko Goldman.

Mall, the. Park in Washington, D.C., lying between the Capitol and the Washington Monument. It is the oldest of the parks in Washington, and contains several institutional and governmental buildings. Length, ab. 1 mi.; width, ab. 0.3 mi.

Malla (mal′ạ). Irish name of Mallow.

Mallalieu (mal′ạ.lö), Willard Francis. b. at Sutton, Mass., Dec. 11, 1828; d. 1911. American Methodist Episcopal clergyman.

Mallarino (mä.yä.rē′nō), Manuel María. b. in Cauca, Colombia, 1798; d. at Bogotá, Colombia, Jan. 6, 1872. Politician of New Granada (Colombia), president (1855–57).

Mallarmé (mà.làr.mā), Stéphane. b. at Paris, March 18, 1842; d. at Fontainebleau, France, Sept. 8, 1898. French poet, one of the most prominent of the group known as the decadents, and the leader of the symbolist movement. In his attempts to free poetry from the limitations of language, he became more and more obscure, his later work is almost incomprehensible without aid, but his influence on other writers, such as Valéry, was tremendous. He wrote much for Le Décadent and Le Parnasse Contemporain. Among his works are L'Après-midi d'un faune (1876), which inspired Claude Debussy's orchestral work, Les Dieux antiques (1880), Poésies (1887), Pages (1890), Vers et prose (1892), Les Divagations (1897), and a translation of the poems of Poe (1888).

Malleco (mä.yā′kō). Province in S central Chile: cattle, lumber, wheat, and some gold. It has extensive woodlands and was formerly inhabited by Araucanian Indians. Capital, Angol; area, ab. 5,512 sq. mi.; pop. 148,381 (est. 1950).

Mallee Country (mal′ē). [Also called The Mallee.] Region in S Australia, including parts of Victoria, New South Wales, and South Australia, characterized by the growth of mallee scrub, a species of eucalyptus.

Mallet (mal′ęt), David. [Original name, Malloch.] b. at Crieff, Perthshire, Scotland, c1705; d. in England, April 21, 1765. Scottish poet and author. He wrote the plays Eurydice (1731), Mustapha (1739), and Elvira (1763). Alfred, a Masque was written with James Thomson (1700–48), with music by Thomas Arne, and "Rule, Britannia," one of the songs contained in it, has been claimed for both. Among his poems were The Excursion (1728), The Hermit (1747), and several volumes of miscellaneous verse.

Mallet, John William. b. at Dublin, Oct. 10, 1832; d. at Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 7, 1912. American chemist, professor of chemistry in the University of Virginia (1868–83 and 1885–1908).

Mallet, Sir Louis. b. at London, March 14, 1823; d. at Bath, England, Feb. 16, 1890. English economist.

Mallet (mà.le), Paul Henri. b. at Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 20, 1730; d. there, Feb. 8, 1807. Swiss historian and student of Scandinavian antiquities.

Mallet (mal′ęt), Rowland. Character in Roderick Hudson (1876), novel by Henry James.

Mallet du Pan (mà.le dü pän), Jacques. b. near Geneva, Switzerland, 1749; d. at Richmond, Surrey, England, May 10, 1800. Swiss journalist. He founded (1779) the Mémoires Historiques, Politiques, et Littéraires at Geneva, and went (1783) to Paris, where he founded, with Pankoucke, the Journal Historique et Politique, later combined with the Mercure de France (suppressed in 1792). He fled from France in 1792, and settled (1798) at London, where he founded the Mercure Britannique.

Malletts (mal′ęts), The. See Bridge Dividing, The.

Malleus Haereticorum (mal″ē.us hē.ret.i.kō′rum). See Faber, Johann.

Malleus Maleficarum (mal″ē.fi.kār′um). Treatise (1487) on witchcraft and demonology by Henry Kramer and James Sprenger, inquisitors to northern Germany.

Malloch (mal′ǫch, -ǫk), David. Original name of Mallet, David.

Mallock (mal′ǫk), William Hurrell. b. in Devonshire, England, 1849; d. April 2, 1923. English author. Among his works are The New Republic (1877), The New Paul and Virginia (1878), Lucretius (1878), Is Life Worth Living? (1879), Poems (1880), A Romance of the Nineteenth Century (1881), Social Equality (1882), Property and Progress (1884), Landlords and the National Income (1884), Atheism and the Value of Life (1884), The Old Order Changes (1886), Labour and the Popular Welfare (1893), Classes and Masses (1896), Aristocracy and Evolution (1898), Tristram Lacy (1899), Doctrine and Doctrinal Disruption (1900), Religion as a Credible Doctrine (1902), The Veil of the Temple (1904), The Reconstruction of Belief (1905), Critical Examination of Socialism (1907), An Immortal Soul (1908), and The Nation as a Business Firm (1910).

Mallorca (mä.lyôr′kä). Spanish name of Majorca.

Mallory (mal′ǫ.ri), Stephen Russell. b. in Trinidad, West Indies, c1813; d. at Pensacola, Fla., Nov. 9, 1873. American politician. He was a Democratic U.S. senator from Florida (1851–61), resigning on the secession of his state from the Union. He was appointed (1861) by President Jefferson Davis secretary of the navy of the Confederate States, a position which he held until the end of the war in 1865.

Mallory, Trafford Leigh Leigh-. See Leigh-Mallory, Trafford Leigh.

Mallow (mal′ō). [Irish, Malla.] Urban district and market town in SW Irish Republic, in County Cork, on the river Blackwater, ab. 18 mi. NW of Cork. It has warm mineral springs. 5,564 (1951).

Malmaison (mäl.me.zôn). Former hamlet W of Paris, now a suburban district in the town of Rueil-Malmaison, noted for its castle, the residence of the empress Josephine from 1798 to 1814.

Malmberg (mälm'bery'), Bertil-Frans Harald. b. at Härnösand, Sweden, 1889—. Swedish poet, essayist, and critic. Malmberg represents the last Swedish generation that drew its spiritual sustenance from German thought and art (after World War II the country oriented itself towards the English-speaking world). His poetry is often pessimistic and often deeply religious; for a while he belonged to the Oxford Group movement. Among his works are Bränder (Firebrands, 1908), Dåd och dröm (Deed and Dream, 1912), En blödande jord (A Bleeding Earth, 1917), Slöjan (The Veil, 1927), Dikter vid gränsen (Poems On the Frontier, 1935), all poetry. Best known of his prose works is perhaps Åke och hans värld (Åke And His World, 1924), short stories.

Malmédy (mäl.mā.dē). Commune and town in E Belgium, in Liége province, near the German border, ab. 25 mi. SE of Liége and ab. 25 mi. S of Aachen, Germany. It was formerly German, but since 1919 has been part of the Belgian district of Eupen-Malmédy. In World War II it suffered severely during the Ardennes offensive; of 1,413 buildings existing in 1939, 1,275 were damaged. The predominant language of the inhabitants is Walloon. Pop. of commune, 5,391 (1947).

Malmesbury (mämz'bėr.i). Municipal borough and market town in S England, in Wiltshire, on the Avon ab. 14 mi. NW of Swindon, ab. 94 mi. W of London by rail. It was at one time a small center of the silk industry, and now produces farm implements of various kinds. It formerly contained a Benedictine monastery, established c673, and now in ruins. 2,509 (1951).

Malmesbury, Earl of. Title held by various members of the Harris family.

Malmgren (mälm'gren), Finn. b. at Falun, Sweden, 1895; d. 1928. Swedish meteorologist. He accompanied (1922) Roald Amundsen on his voyage to the north polar basin, was meteorologist with the Harald Sverdrup Arctic expedition, and was on the flight (1926) in the airship Norge across the north polar basin. He accompanied General Umberto Nobile in the airship Italia, which passed over the North Pole on May 24, 1928, and crashed on the following day. Severely injured, he died after attempting to reach Cape North to secure a rescue party.

Malmö (mäl'mė''). City in S Sweden, the capital of the län (county) of Malmöhus, situated on the Öresund ab. 16 mi. SE of Copenhagen, Denmark, with which it is connected by ferry. It is the third largest city of Sweden, and a major seaport, exporting agricultural products, lumber, matches, and chemicals. It has herring fisheries. Industries include shipyards, textile mills, leather and rubber factories, food-processing, and cement plants. The Church of Saint Peter dates from 1319, restored in 1890; Malmöhus Castle from 1434; the town hall, in Renaissance style, from 1546, rebuilt in the period 1864–69. The old part of the city is surrounded by canals. It was ceded by Denmark to Sweden in 1658. Pop. 192,498 (1950).

Malmöhus (mäl'mė.hös). Southernmost län (county) of Sweden, bordering on the Baltic Sea, the Öresund, and the Kattegat. It is part of a fertile agricultural region, producing grain, sugar beets, and potatoes. Area, ab. 1,872 sq. mi.; pop. 578,968 (1950).

Malmquist (mälm'kvist), Karl Gunnar. b. at Ystad, Sweden, Feb. 21, 1893—. Swedish astronomer. With a collaborator, he determined the sun's motion from the radial velocity of stars. Much of his work has been in the determination of absolute magnitudes.

Malmström (mälm'strėm), Bernhard Elis. b. in Nerike, Sweden, March 14, 1816; d. at Uppsala, Sweden, June 21, 1865. Swedish poet and writer. His first work was the epic poem Ariadne, which appeared in 1838. In 1840 he was awarded the prize of the Swedish Academy for the elegiac cycle Angelica. Among his other poetical works are the narrative poem Fiskarflickan från Tunnelsö (The Fisher Maid of Tunnelsö) and a number of lyrics. In the field of criticism he is the author of Literaturhistoriska Studier (Studies in Literary History) and the collection of lectures Grund-dragen af Svenska Vitterhetens Historia (Elements of the History of Swedish Literature, 5 vols., 1866–68; published after his death).

Maloja (mä.lō'yä). [Italian, Maloggia (mä.lôd'jä)] Pass in SE Switzerland, in the canton of Graubünden, connecting the Upper Engadine Valley with Chiavenna (in Italy). Elevation, ab. 5,960 ft.

Malojaroslavetz (mä''lọ.yä.rọ.slä'vits). See Maloyaroslavets.

Malo-les-Bains (mà.lō.lā.bañ). Town in N France, in the department of Nord, on the English Channel, ab. 1 mi. NE of Dunkerque; seaside resort. It suffered heavy damage in World War II. 10,997 (1946).

Malolos (mä.lō'lōs). Municipality in S central Luzon, Philippine Islands, the capital of Bulacan province. It is situated at the head of the Pampanga delta, on the N shore of Manila Bay. 38,779 (1948).

Malone (mạ.lōn'). Village in NE New York, county seat of Franklin County. It has paper, lumber, footwear, clothing, and dairy-products industries. 9,501 (1950).

Malone, Dudley Field. b. at New York, June 3, 1882; d. at Culver City, Calif., Oct. 5, 1950. American lawyer. He was city attorney at New York (1909) and became third assistant secretary of state in 1913. From 1913 to 1917 he was collector of the Port of New York, but resigned on principle when Woodrow Wilson refused to give his full support to the woman's suffrage amendment. Malone, known widely as an exponent of liberal ideas, was a member of the defense legal staff at the Scopes trial in Tennessee, when the question of the teaching of evolution in that state was the subject of judicial review; he was an antiprohibitionist and a proponent of the recognition of the U.S.S.R. by the U.S. government. Malone looked sufficiently like Winston S. Churchill to portray him in the motion picture Mission to Moscow (1943).

Malone, Dumas. b. at Coldwater, Miss., Jan. 10, 1892—. American historian and editor. He was professor of American history (1926–29) at the University of Virginia, and professor of history (1945 et seq.) at Columbia. He served as editor in chief (1931–36) of the Dictionary of American Biography. Author of The Public Life of Thomas Cooper (1926), Saints in Action (1939), Edwin A. Alderman: A Biography (1940), and other works. He collaborated on The Interpretation of History (1943). His Jefferson the Virginian, the first panel in a multi-volume biography, was published in 1948.

Malone, Edmund (or Edmond). b. at Dublin, Oct. 4, 1741; d. at London, April 25, 1812. Irish literary critic and Shakespearian scholar. He graduated at Trinity College, Dublin, and in 1763 went to London and became a law student in the Inner Temple. Returning to Ireland, he was called to the Irish bar in 1767. Not long after this his father's death left him in possession of a small estate and sufficient money to live upon. He therefore returned to London to devote himself to literature. He soon entered political and literary society, and counted among his friends Samuel Johnson, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Bishop Percy, Burke, Canning, Horace Walpole, and others. His edition of Shakespeare was published in 1790, but he had previously written Attempt to ascertain the order in which the plays of Shakespeare were written (1778), a supplement to Johnson's edition of Shakespeare (1780), containing observations on the Elizabethan stage and the text of five plays wrongly ascribed to Shakespeare. He published an edition of Sir Joshua Reynolds's works in 1797, and an edition of Dryden, four volumes of which appeared in 1800. Malone was an excellent literary detective and was one of the first to decry the spurious antiquity of Thomas Chatterton's poems and the purported Shakespearian works of William Ireland. Besides writing a number of minor works, he found time to devote himself to book-collecting, and accumulated a large library. After his death the greater part of it was sent to Oxford. He left material for another edition of Shakespeare, which was published by James Boswell the younger in 1821, and is known as the "third variorum Shakespeare," sometimes as "Boswell's Malone."

Malone, Kemp. b. at Minter, Miss., March 14, 1889—. American philologist; brother of Dumas Malone. He served as associate professor of English (1925–26), professor of English philology (1926–47), and professor of English (1947 et seq.) at Johns Hopkins. A cofounder, with Louise Pound, of American Speech, he served as a member of the advisory board of the Middle English Dictionary and of the Linguistic Atlas of the U.S. He is the author of The Literary History of Hamlet (1923), The Phonology of Modern Icelandic (1923), Ten Old English Poems (1941), and others. He contributed the section on Old English literature to The Literary History of England (1948), and has edited several texts, including Deor (1933) and Widsith (1936). He was editor of etymologies for the American College Dictionary (1947).

Malone, Walter. b. in Desoto County, Miss., Feb. 10, 1866; d. at Memphis, Tenn., May 18, 1915. American lyric poet and lawyer, best known for his poem Opportunity (1905). Author of Claribel and Other Poems (1882), The Outcast and Other Poems (1886), Narcissus and Other Poems (1892), Songs of Dusk and Dawn (1894), Songs of December and June (1896), Songs of North and South (1900), Songs of East and West (1906), the epic poem Hernando De Soto (1914), and The Coming of the King (1897), a volume of short stories.

Malory (mal'ō.ri), Sir Thomas. fl. in the latter part of the 15th century. English author of the medieval prose romance entitled by William Caxton (the printer) Morte d'Arthur. Malory is said to have written this in prison. His own original title for the eight romances included was The Book of King Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table.

Malot (mä.lō), Hector Henri. b. at La Bouille, France, May 20, 1830; d. at Vincennes, France, July 19, 1907. French novelist. His works include La Vie moderne en Angleterre (1862), a trilogy entitled Les Victimes de l'amour (1859), Souvenirs d'un blessé (1872), Sans famille (1878; crowned by the French Academy), Mondaine (1888), Justice (1889), Mère (1890), Le Prince (1894), Amours de jeune (1895), Amours de vieux (1895), Le Roman de mes romans (an autobiography, 1896), and La Beauté (1897).

Malou (mä.lö), Jules Édouard Xavier. b. at Ypres, Belgium, Oct. 19, 1810; d. at Brussels, July 11, 1886. Belgian politician. He was premier in 1884.

Malouines (mäl.wēn), Îles. French name of the Falkland Islands.

Maloyaroslavets (mä"lọ.yä.rọ.slä'vits). [Also, Malojaroslavetz.] Town in the U.S.S.R., in the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, ab. 70 mi. SW of Moscow. Here on Oct. 24, 1812, Napoleon was checked by the Russians. In World War II it fell to the Germans in October, 1941, and was retaken by the Russians in January, 1942. Pop. 10,500 (1937).

Malpeque Bay (môl'pek). Inlet of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, indenting the N coast of Prince Edward Island, Canada. Length, ab. 12 mi.

Malpighi (mäl.pē'gē), Marcello. b. near Bologna, Italy, March 10, 1628; d. at Rome, Nov. 29, 1694. Italian anatomist and physiologist, the founder of microscopic anatomy. He was lecturer on medicine at Bologna (1656), professor of Pisa (1657), at Bologna (1660), at Messina (1662), and again at Bologna (1666–91). In 1691 he went to Rome as physician to Pope Innocent XII. He is credited with being the first to view (1661) the capillary circulation of blood on the surface of the lung, the structure of which organ he first announced. He demonstrated the mechanism of glandular secretion, discovered the Malpighian layer in the epidermis, the Malpighian tufts or coils of capillaries in the kidneys, the Malpighian corpuscles in the spleen. He described the structure of the brain and spinal cord, the development of the chick in the egg, and the anatomical changes in the silkworm during metamorphosis.

Malplaquet (mäl.plä.ke). Hamlet in N France, in the department of Nord, near the Belgian frontier, ab. 20 mi. E of Valenciennes. It was the scene, Sept. 11, 1709, of a victory of the allied English, Dutch, and Austrian forces (ab. 120,000) under John Churchill, 1st Duke of Marlborough, and Prince Eugene of Savoy over the French (ab. 90,000) under Claude Louis Hector de Villars. The loss of the Allies was ab. 20,000; that of the French, probably from 11,000 to 14,000.

Malraux (mäl.rō), André. [Full name, Georges André Malraux.] b. at Paris, Nov. 3, 1901—. French novelist. He is the author of Les Conquérants (1928; Eng. trans., The Conquerors, 1929), La Voie royale (1930; Eng. trans., The Royal Way, 1935), La Condition humaine (1933; Eng. trans., Man's Fate, and also Storm over Shanghai, both 1934), Le Temps du Mépris (1935; Eng. trans., Days of Contempt, and also Days of Wrath, both 1936), L'Espoir (1937; Eng. trans., Days of Hope, and also Man's Hope, both 1939), and Les Noyers de l'Altenburg (1943). His novels combine intense action with much metaphysical discussion of man's place in the universe. They are based on his own experiences in Asia, Spain, and elsewhere. A graduate of the Paris School of Oriental Languages, Malraux went to Indochina (1924) as an archaeologist, and returned to participate in political ferments there and in China, where he is said to have served (1926) with Chiang Kai-shek on the Committee of Twelve. He served in the Republican aviation in the Spanish Civ. War, as a private in the French army in World War II, and subsequently as a colonel in the Resistance. After the war he became an adviser on public relations to General Charles de Gaulle. Since 1941 his published writing has been exclusively about art: La Psychologie de l'art (3 vols., 1947–50; Eng. trans., The Psychology of Art, 1949 et seq.), of which a revised and enlarged edition in one volume, Les Voix du silence (The Voices of Silence), was published in 1951.

Malstatt-Burbach (mäl'shtät.bör'bäch). Former town in the Saar Territory, formerly Saarland, Germany, situated on the Saar River, now a NW part of Saarbrücken, with a railroad station.

Malstrøm (mäl'strėm). Norwegian name of the Maelstrom.

Malta (môl'tą). [Also, Maltese Islands.] British crown colony in the Mediterranean Sea S of Sicily, consisting of the islands of Malta, Gozo, Comino, and adjacent islets. Capital, Valetta; area, ab. 122 sq. mi.; pop. (civil only), 305,991 (1948); (total), 308,929 (est. 1948).

Malta. [Ancient name, Melita.] Chief island of the British crown colony of Malta, in the Mediterranean Sea ab. 60 mi. S of Sicily. The terrain is hilly, rising to an elevation of ab. 800 ft. near the S coast. The underlying rock is chiefly porous limestone, and there are neither rivers nor lakes on the island, but springs are numerous. Cultivation is intensive, occupying nearly three fourths of the area of the island. The range of crops is remarkably diversified, including wheat, barley, potatoes, vegetables, and temperate and subtropical fruits. Malta is an important British naval and air base, and its foreign trade is influenced by this fact: a large proportion of the exports are used for provisioning of ships. About 60 percent of foreign trade is with the British Commonwealth and its fleet. Malta was colonized by the Phoenicians probably before 1000 B.C. Greek colonies were established in the 7th century B.C. but the Greeks were driven out by the Carthaginians and the island remained a Carthaginian stronghold until taken by Rome in 218 B.C. during the Second Punic Wars. Saint Paul was shipwrecked on Malta (58 A.D.) and converted many of the inhabitants to Christianity. At the division of the Roman Empire, Malta was assigned to the Byzantine Empire. It was invaded first by the Vandals, and then by the Ostrogoths in the 5th century, but was reconquered by the Byzantines in 533 A.D. In 870 the island was finally taken by the Arabs; in 1090 it passed to the Normans; in 1194 to the Kingdom of Sicily, which in 1283 passed to Aragon; in 1530 Malta was assigned by Charles V to the Order of the Hospitalers of Saint John of Jerusalem, who had been driven from Rhodes by the Turks. They fortified the island and defended it against attacks by the Turks and by the Barbary pirates. In 1798 the French occupied Malta, but, hindered by a revolt and blockaded by the British, they surrendered to the British in 1800. Malta was confirmed as a British possession by the treaty of Paris (1814). During World War II Malta was subject to repeated and severe bombing attacks by the Germans. Malta is rich in historic buildings and old fortifications; traces may be found of every major group which has occupied the island. The population, of mixed origin, speaks a language which has both Semitic and Italian elements and is believed to have originally derived from Phoenician. The predominant religion is Roman Catholic. Area, ab. 95 sq. mi.; pop. 281,014 (est. 1948).

Malta. Paleolithic site situated on the left bank of the Belaya River, near Irkutsk, Siberia. It was first excavated in 1928, by M. M. Gerasimov. Remains of dwellings, household articles, and animal and human bones were found in profusion.

Malta, Knights of. See Hospitalers of Saint John of Jerusalem, Order of the.

Maltby (môlt'bi). Urban district in N central England, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, ab. 6 mi. E of Rotherham, ab. 165 mi. N of London. 12,485 (1951).

Malte-Brun (mäl'tẹ.brön'; French, mäl.tẹ.brœ̃), Conrad. [Original name, Malte Conrad Bruun.] b. at Thisted, Denmark, Aug. 12, 1775; d. at Paris, Dec. 14, 1826. French geographer and publicist, author of Précis de géographie universelle (commenced 1810, continued by Huot), collaborator with Mentelle and Herbin in Géographie mathématique (1803–07), and founder of the Annales des voyages (1808).

Malte-Brun, Victor Adolphe. b. 1816; d. 1889. French geographer; son of Conrad Malte-Brun.

Malten (mäl'tẹn), Therese. [Original surname, Müller.] b. at Insterburg, in East Prussia, June 21, 1855; d. at Dresden, Germany, Jan. 2, 1930. German operatic soprano. She made her debut (1873) as Pamina in Mozart's The Magic Flute at the court theater at Dresden, where she continued to sing for 30 years, distinguishing herself by her interpretation of Wagnerian roles. She created (1882) the role of Kundry at the Parsifal première at Bayreuth.

Maltese (môl.tēz'). Language of the native people of the island of Malta. It is a West Arabic dialect, with a large percentage of Italian admixture; it belongs to the Arabic group of the Semitic family of languages.

Maltese Islands. See Malta, colony.

Malthus (mal'thus), Thomas Robert. b. near Guildford, Surrey, England, Feb. 17, 1766; d. at St. Catharine's, near Bath, England, Dec. 23, 1834. English political economist. He graduated from Cambridge in 1788, and became a fellow of Jesus College in 1793. In 1798 he took orders, and was made curate of Albury, Surrey. In 1798 he published the first edition of An Essay on the Principle of Population as it affects the Future Improvement of Society, with Remarks on the Speculations of Mr. Godwin, M. Condorcet, and other Writers. This principle he defined to be that population increases in a geometrical ratio and the means of subsistence in an arithmetical ratio, and that vice and crime, war and disease, are necessary checks of this increase in numbers (the so-called Malthusian doctrine). He published in 1803 a revision of the Essay on Population, in which he suggested "moral restraint" as another check on population. In 1805 he was made professor of history and political economy at Haileybury. His other works include The Nature and Progress of Rent (1815) and Political Economy (1820). In politics he was a Whig; he supported the Catholic emancipation, and accepted the Reform Bill.

Maltitz (mäl'tits), Baron Apollonius von. b. at Gera, Germany, June 11, 1795; d. at Weimar, Germany, March 2, 1870. German poet, dramatist, and novelist; brother of Franz Friedrich von Maltitz.

Maltitz, Baron Franz Friedrich von. b. at Nuremberg, Germany, June 6, 1794; d. at Boppard, Prussia, Germany, April 25, 1857. German dramatic and lyric poet; brother of Apollonius von Maltitz.

Maltitz, Baron Gotthilf August von. b. at Königsberg, in East Prussia, July 9, 1794; d. at Dresden, Germany, June 7, 1837. German poet.

Malton (môl'tọn). Urban district and market town in NE England, in the North Riding of Yorkshire, on the river Derwent ab. 17 mi. NE of York, ab. 209 mi. N of London by rail. It includes New Malton, Old Malton (where there are remains of a priory founded in 1150), and Norton. 4,235 (1951).

Maltz (môlts), Albert. b. at Brooklyn, N.Y., Oct. 8, 1908—. American writer and scenarist. Coauthor with George Sklar of Merry-Go-Round (1932), Peace on Earth (1934), and Black Pit (1935). His novels include The Underground Stream (1940), The Cross and the Arrow (1944), and The Journey of Simon McKeever (1949); his film scenarios, Pride of the Marines (1945) and The House I Live In. He has also published one-act plays and short stories. Maltz, one of the "Hollywood 10," was sentenced (1950) to a year in jail and was fined for his refusal to testify before a Congressional committee.

Maltzan (mäl'tsän), Baron Adolf Georg Otto von. b. at Klein Varchow, July 31, 1877; d. in an airplane crash at Schleiz, Germany, Sept. 23, 1927. German statesman, secretary of foreign affairs who served as German ambassador to Washington (1925) during Stresemann's Locarno negotiations. Maltzan favored a German-Russian understanding.

Maltzan, Heinrich Karl Eckardt Helmuth von. [Title, Baron zu Wartenberg und Penzlin.] b. at Dresden, Germany, Sept. 6, 1826; committed suicide at Pisa, Italy, Feb. 22, 1874. German traveler, ethnologist, philologist, and archaeologist. He published works descriptive of his travels in Arabia, northern Africa, and the East generally (including Meine Wallfahrt nach Mekka, 1865).

Malus (mä.lüs), Étienne Louis. b. at Paris, June 23, 1775; d. there, in February, 1812. French physicist and engineer, noted for discoveries in optics, especially the polarization of light by reflection. In 1810 he published a paper on double refraction in crystals.

Malvasia (mäl.vä.zē'ä). See Monemvasia.

Malvern (mal'vėrn). City in C Arkansas, county seat of Hot Spring County: produces shoe linings, lumber products, and bricks. 8,072 (1950).

Malvern (môl'vėrn, mô'-). [Also, Great Malvern.] Urban district and spa in W England, in Worcestershire, ab. 7 mi. SW of Worcester, ab. 128 mi. NW of London by rail. It includes the town of Great Malvern and several villages, situated on the slopes of the Malvern Hills. Malvern is famous for its annual festival of drama, perpetually dedicated to George Bernard Shaw, many of whose plays were first produced in the Malvern theater. It has a priory church, and a college and other schools. 21,681 (1951).

Malverne (mal'vėrn). Suburban village in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island. 8,086 (1950).

Malvern Hill (mal'vėrn). Ridge near the James River, in Virginia SE of Richmond. Here, July 1, 1862, Union forces under G. B. McClellan defeated the Confederates under R. E. Lee (the last of the Seven Days' Battles).

Malvern Hills (môl'vėrn, mô'-). Range of hills in W England, on the Herefordshire-Worcestershire border. Highest point, Worcestershire Beacon (1,395 ft.). Length, ab. 9 mi.

Malvinas (mäl.bē'näs), Islas. Spanish name of the Falkland Islands.

Malvolio (mal.vō'li.ō). In Shakespeare's comedy Twelfth Night, Olivia's steward, a conceited, grave, self-important personage forced into comic situations.

Malvy (mål.vē), Louis Jean. b. at Figeac, Lot, France, Dec. 1, 1875; d. at Paris, June 9, 1949. French politician; father-in-law of Marcel Peyrouton. Minister of interior (1914–17) during World War I, he was forced out of office by Georges Clemenceau because of his policy of avoiding conflict with labor and extremist groups. He was aligned with Joseph Caillaux in favoring a negotiated peace with Germany. Tried by the senate sitting as a high court of justice, he was acquitted (August, 1918) of charges of treason, but was sentenced to five years' banishment. He was reëlected (1924) to the Chamber of Deputies after his return from exile in Spain, received (1924) a full pardon from Premier Édouard Herriot, and was again minister of interior (1926). First elected a deputy in 1906, he was minister of commerce (1913–14).

Malwa (mäl'wä). Former kingdom and region in C India, in the area now occupied by the S part of Madhya Bharat. It was an ancient kingdom, with its capital at Ujjain. In 1235 it was invaded by the Moslems, and the entire area was conquered by Delhi c1300. During the 15th century it was again independent, with its capital at Mandu, but it fell to the Moguls under Akbar in 1562, and in the 18th century the area passed to the Mahrattas.

Malynes or Malines or de Malines (dẹ ma.lēn'), Gerard. fl. 1586–1641. English merchant and economist. In 1586 he was commissioner of trade in the Low Countries, and in 1609 was appointed commissioner of the mint. He was one of the first English economists to recognize the laws on which modern economics is based, and was a strong exponent of mercantilism. Among his works are A Treatise of the Canker of England's Commonwealth (1601), St. George for England (1601), The Maintenance of Free Trade (1622), Consuetudo vel lex mercatoria (1622), and

The Center of the Circle of Commerce, or the Balance of Trade (1623).

Maly Teatr (mä'li tyi.ä'tėr). [English, Little Theater.] Oldest theater in Russia, dating from 1824. The emphasis here was always on acting, and the theater was rarely influenced by new forms. It preferred no special system or style, and had no single guiding genius. A. N. Ostrovski remained its leading playwright. In 1923 a branch was founded in SE Russia, the Safonov Theatre, in response to the movement to take drama to the people.

Mälzel (mel'tsęl), Johann Nepomuk. See Maelzel or Mälzel, Johann Nepomuk.

Mam (mam). [Also: Mames, Mams.] Division of the Maya Indians, located in Totnicapán, Guatemala. Their language, Mam, belongs to the Mamoid group of the Mayan linguistic stock.

Mama (mä'mą). In Inca mythology and legend, the name of the four sisters of the four brothers who trekked across Peru on a long journey seeking fertile land. Literally the word means "mother." Eventually the four Mamas and Manco, one of the brothers, founded the city of Cusco. Mama occlo married her brother Manco, and gave birth to a son who was the first royal Inca. This established the precedent of brother-sister marriage within the royal family. Mama huaca had great power (huaca is the word for supernatural power); she was a good warrior and once during the long journey killed off a whole attacking horde single-handed. Mama ipa qora was a plant giver. The name of the fourth was Mama rawa.

Mamaea or Mammaea (ma.mē'ą), Julia. b. at Emesa, Syria; d. 235 A.D. Wife of Gessius Marcianus, and the mother of Alexander Severus. She was the first cousin of Caracalla and the aunt of Heliogabalus. She was killed with Alexander by mutinous soldiers Maman Colibri (mą.mäñ ko.lē.brē). Play (1905) by Henry Bataille on the theme of adultery. It is considered Bataille's masterpiece.

Mamaroneck (mą.mar'ō.nek). Village in SE New York, in Westchester County, on Long Island Sound: a northeastern residential suburb of New York City. It was settled by the English c1650. Pop. 15,016 (1950).

Mambetto (mäm.bet'ō). See Mangbetu.

Mambrino (mäm.brē'nō). Pagan king in an old romance, Innamoramento di Rinaldo, antedating Ariosto's Orlando Furioso. He is killed by Rinaldo. No mention is made in this romance of his helmet, but in Orlando Furioso Rinaldo is said to have won it. It is the same helmet so frequently mentioned in Don Quixote, made of pure gold and rendering its wearer invisible. Don Quixote took possession of a barber's basin which he conceived to be the helmet of King Mambrino.

Mamelucos (mu.mę.lō'kös). Name given by the Jesuits of Paraguay to bands of Brazilian (São Paulo) slave-hunters who, in the 17th century, attacked their missions, carrying off thousands of Indians. Some of the Jesuit writers erroneously described the Mamelucos as an independent race, forming what they called the "Mameluco Republic," a mistake which was copied by various English historians.

Mamelukes (mam'ę.löks). Corps of cavalry formerly existing in Egypt, whose chiefs were long the sovereign rulers of the country. They originated with a body of Mingrelians, Turks, and other slaves, who were sold by Genghis Khan to the Egyptian sultan in the 13th century. About 1251 they established their government in Egypt by making one of their own number sultan. Their government was overthrown by Selim I of Turkey in 1517, but they formed part of the Egyptian army until 1811, when Mehemet Ali destroyed most of them by a general massacre.

Mamers (mä.mer). Town in W France, in the department of Sarthe, ab. 24 mi. NE of Le Mans. The Church of Notre-Dame dates from the 15th century. 5,407 (1946).

Mamers (mä'mėrz). Ancient Italian (Oscan) name of the god Mars. He was worshiped originally as a god of the fields, with fertility associations.

Mamertine Prison (mam'ėr.tīn). Name given to the Carcer Tullianum, the oldest prison in Rome, situated on the E slope of the Capitoline Hill. Its erection was attributed to Ancus Marcius (fourth king of Rome, 640–616 B.C.), and it was originally built over a well. The name Mamertinus was given to it in medieval times. According to a tradition, Saint Peter and Saint Paul were imprisoned here. The Tullianum consists of a large oblong upper and a small underground circular chamber, built at different periods. Jugurtha, Lentulus, and others met death in this prison.

Mamertines (mam'ėr.tīnz). In ancient history, a band of Campanian mercenaries who became rulers of Messina c282 B.C. Their request for aid from the Romans and Carthaginians (caused by an attack from Hiero of Syracuse) brought about the first Punic War, 264 B.C.

Mamertus (mą.mėr'tus), Saint. d. c475. Bishop of Vienne (462). He engaged in a dispute with Pope Saint Hilary over the privileges of the see of Arles (463), and consecrated a bishop for a see no longer subordinate to Vienne. He subsequently submitted to the Pope's decision.

Mames (mä'mās). See Mam.

Mamiani della Rovere (mä.myä'nē del'lä rō'vā.rā), Count Terenzio. b. at Pesaro, Italy, c1799; d. at Rome, May 21, 1885. Italian philosopher, poet, and statesman in the papal and later in the Italian service. He was minister of the interior to Pope Pius IX in 1848, and minister of foreign affairs for a short time in the same year. He served as professor of philosophy (1857–60) at Turin, and in 1860 as minister of public instruction under Cavour. His works include Rinnovamento della filosofia antica italiana (Revival of the Ancient Italian Philosophy, 1834), Dialoghi di scienza prima (1846), Confessioni d'un metafisico (1865), and others.

Mamilia gens (mą.mil'i.ą). Roman plebeian gens, comprising the families Limetanus, Turrinus, and Vitulus.

Mamilius (mą.mil'i.us). In Shakespeare's play The Winter's Tale, a young prince; the son of Leontes and Hermione.

Mamison (mä.mē.zôn'). Pass in the U.S.S.R., in the Caucasus Mountains, ab. 85 mi. NW of Tiflis. It is traversed by a military road constructed in the 19th century. Elevation, ab. 9,280 ft.

Mammaea (ma.mē'a), Julia. See Mamaea, Julia.

Mammola (mäm'mō.lä). Town and commune in S Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Calabria, in the province of Reggio di Calabria, NE of Reggio di Calabria. It is an agricultural commune. Pop. of commune, 10,426 (1936); of town, 7,021 (1936).

Mammon (mam'ọn). Aramaic word used once in the New Testament as a personification of riches and worldliness, or the god of this world; hence, the personification of avarice; cupidity personified.

Mammon, Cave of. Dwelling place of Mammon, who personifies greed, described in the second book of Edmund Spenser's Faerie Queene.

Mammon, Sir Epicure. In Ben Jonson's The Alchemist, a worldly sensualist finally gulled by his own rapacity.

Mammoth Cave National Park. National Park in W central Kentucky, ab. 135 mi. by road S of Louisville, established in 1936. The cave was discovered in 1799, and has long been one of the great tourist attractions of the eastern U.S. More than 175 mi. of passageways have been charted, and the spectacular rock formations, the underground Echo River, and the Bottomless Pit are well-known features. The overall length of the cave is more than 4 mi. Area of park, ab. 79 sq. mi.

Mammoth Hot Springs. Locality in NW Wyoming, in Yellowstone National Park, just S of the main N entrance to the park. There are ab. 70 hot springs which have made curious rock formations of deposited minerals. The headquarters of the park and a large hotel are located here.

Mamoré (mä.mō.rā'). [Sometimes called Guapay or Río Grande in its upper course.] River in C and N Bolivia, forming a part of the Bolivian-Brazilian border in its lower course. It flows generally N to join the Beni, forming the Madeira River. Length, ab. 1,100 mi., of which ab. 800 are navigable.

Mamprusi (mäm.prō'sē). [Also, Mampuru (-pōr'ō).] Sudanic-speaking people of W Africa, inhabiting the N part of the Northern Territories of the Gold Coast, and N Togoland. Their language is known as Mampurule and is related to that of the Dagomba. Their population is estimated at ab. 60,000 (based on A. W. Cardinall, The Gold Coast, 1931). They are ruled by a hereditary king known as Na. They have exogamous patrilineal clans. They practice hoe agriculture, and their principal foods are yams, millet, sorghum, and maize. They are non-Mohammedan.

Mamre (mam′rē). In Old Testament geography, a place in Palestine, probably near Hebron.

Mamry (mäm′ri). [German, Mauer.] Lake in the województwo (province) of Olsztyń, NE Poland, until 1945 in the German province of East Prussia. Area, ab. 40 sq. mi.

Mams (mamz). See Mam.

Mamun (mä.mön′), al-. [Also: al-Mamon, al-Ma-moun; original name, Abdullah.] b. 786; d. in Asia Minor, 833. Seventh Abbasside caliph of Baghdad (813–833); a younger son of Harun al-Rashid. He fought for control against his elder brother, al-Amin, until the latter's death, when he succeeded to the caliphate. His reign alternated between periods of peace and wars against the Byzantine Empire, and revolts within the area controlled by the Abbassides. He was a rationalist whose heterodox beliefs caused internal disturbances which he suppressed with severity. He was a patron of literature, art, and science.

Man (män). Indochinese for Yao.

Man (man), Calf of. See Calf of Man.

Man (mäⁿ), Henri de. b. 1885—. Belgian sociologist. His writings are devoted to social subjects; he is a member of the Socialist Party.

Man (man), Isle of. [Ancient and medieval Latin, Monapia, Mona, Eubonia; Manx, Mannin or Vannin.] Island in the Irish Sea, one of the British Isles, ab. 17 mi. S of Scotland, and nearly equidistant from England and Ireland. The Isle of Man forms an independent administrative unit of the British Isles, administered by a governor (appointed by the Crown) and a legislature, under its own laws. The C part is mountainous, the highest point, Snaefell, rising to 2,034 ft. English is generally spoken, and the native Manx (a Gaelic language) has nearly disappeared. The earliest known inhabitants were Celtic tribes. The island was ruled by Norsemen from the 9th to the 13th century, was annexed to Scotland by Alexander III, and was afterward ruled by various kings. It was ruled by the Stanley (Derby) family from the beginning of the 15th century to 1735, when it passed to the Murrays, dukes of Atholl. In 1765 the British government acquired most of the royal rights of the Atholls, the last rights falling to the crown in 1829. Capital, Douglas; length, ab. 32 mi.; area, ab. 221 sq. mi.; pop. 55,213 (1951).

Manaar or Manar (mą.när′). See Mannar.

Manabí (mä.nä.bē′). Province in W Ecuador, bordering on the Pacific. Capital, Portoviejo; area, ab. 7,306 sq. mi.; pop. 331,153 (est. 1944).

Man About Town, The. Collection of short stories by A. P. Herbert, published in 1923.

Manabozho (man.ą.bō′zhō). [Also, Nanabozho.] In North American Algonquian Indian mythology (especially central Algonquian) a creator, culture hero, and trickster.

Manacicas (mä.nä.sē′käs). See Manasi.

Manacor (mä.nä.kōr′). Town in the Balearic Islands, Spain, in the interior of the island of Majorca, ab. 30 mi. E of Palma: leather-goods and pottery factories; wine is exported. It is a resort noted for the nearby underground lakes and stalactite caves. There is a 13th-century palace and a local museum. 19,060 (1940).

Manado (mä:nä′dō). See Menado.

Man Against the Sky, The. Poem in blank verse by Edwin Arlington Robinson, the title piece of a collection published in 1916.

Managua (mä.nä′gwä). Department in W Nicaragua, bounded on the S by the Pacific Ocean. Capital, Managua; area, ab. 1,332 sq. mi.; pop. 162,455 (1950).

Managua. City in SW Nicaragua, capital of Nicaragua and of Managua department, on the S shore of Lake Managua. It is the chief commercial center of the country, and has small textile and consumer-goods industries. The city is an important market center for coffee, cattle, and dye woods. Managua was almost totally destroyed by an earthquake in 1931, and ab. 2,000 persons were killed. 107,444 (1950).

Managua, Lake. [Spanish, Lago de Managua.] Lake in W Nicaragua draining by the Titipapa River into Lake Nicaragua. Length, ab. 38 mi.; area, ab. 386 sq. mi.; elevation, ab. 155 ft.; greatest depth, ab. 200 ft.

Manama or Manamah (mä.nä′mą). [Also, Menama.] Capital city and main seaport of Bahrein, off E central Arabia, located on the NE corner of Bahrein island. It exports large quantities of crude oil. 28,000 (est. 1948).

Man and Superman. Play by George Bernard Shaw, published in 1903.

Manannan mac Lir (man.ą.nan′ mak lēr′). In Old Irish mythology, the god of the sea, son of Ler (the sea itself), and lord of the Isle of Man. He possessed a magic coracle which swept over the sea, wonderful white horses, a cap of invisibility, and an inexhaustible pig forever roasting on the spit, however much was eaten from it. It was he who established the Tuatha De Danann (the divine race of Ireland) safe in the hills and mounds of Ireland and gave them the Feast of Age, which kept them young and immortal. He dwelt on an elysian island in the western ocean called Land Under Wave, Land of Promise, and other names, where there was neither age nor death. His Brythonic counterpart is Manawyddan fab Llyr.

Manaos (mä.nä′ōs). Tribe of South American Indians occupying a region north of the Amazon and along the lower Rio Negro in Brazil. They belong to the Arawakan linguistic stock, and their language, called Manao, is classified as belonging to a division of the Rio Negro group, of the Northern Amazon subfamily of Arawakan languages.

Manáos (mą.nous′). See Manaus.

Mañara (mä.nyä′rä), Don Juan de. See Don Juan de Mañara.

Manasarowar Lake (man″ą.są.rō′ąr). [Also, Manasa Lake (man′ą.są).] Lake in SW Tibet, near the meeting of the borders of Tibet, the Union of India, and Nepal: one of the sources of the Sutlej River. Circumference, ab. 65 mi.

Manasi (mä.nä.sē′). [Also, Manacicas.] Extinct tribe of South American Indians, probably (but not certainly) a Chiquitoan tribe, formerly occupying a region in NE Bolivia between the Chaco desert, the Paraguay River, and the Río Grande. They were first discovered by Jesuit missionaries in 1704, and then had some 50 villages. They spoke a language classified as the Manasi dialect of the Chiquitoan language. This dialect was abandoned after contact with the Jesuits for the more popular and widespread Tao dialect of Chiquitoan.

Manasquan (man′ą.skwän). Borough in E New Jersey, in Monmouth County, on the Atlantic Coast ab. 8 mi. S of Asbury Park: summer resort and residential community. 3,178 (1950).

"Manassa Mauler" (mą.nas′ą). Epithet of Dempsey, Jack.

Manassas (mą.nas′ąs). Town in N Virginia, county seat of Prince William County, ab. 31 mi. SW of Washington, D.C.: trading center for an agricultural area. The battles of Bull Run (fought E of Manassas along the stream of that name) were called battles of Manassas by the Confederates. 1,804 (1950).

Manassas, First Battle of. See under Bull Run.

Manassas, Second Battle of. See under Bull Run.

Manasseh (mą.nas′ę). [Also, Manasses (mą.nas′ēz).] In the Bible, the eldest of the sons of the patriarch Joseph, and eponym of the tribe holding territory north of Ephraim. Gen. xli. 51.

Manasseh. One of the ten tribes of the Hebrews, dwelling partly E of the Jordan and partly W of the Jordan and N of Ephraim. Num. i. 10.

Manasseh. [Greek, Manasses (mą.nas′ēz).] fl. 7th century B.C. King of the Judah (c697–c642 B.C.); son of Hezekiah. He reigned as an Assyrian vassal and apparently spent some time in prison at Babylon. The apocryphal Prayer of Manasses purports to have been written while he was captive. 2 Kings, xxi.

Manasseh ben Israel (ben. iz′rā.ęl). [Full name, Manasseh ben Joseph ben Israel.] b. in Portugal, 1604; d. at Middelburg, Netherlands, Nov. 20, 1657. Jewish theologian and statesman. He was a rabbi at Amsterdam, where he established (1626) a Hebrew press. After the death of Charles I he sought to terminate the legal exclusion of the Jews from England which had existed since the reign of Edward I. Cromwell appointed an assembly of lawyers and divines to consider his petition.

In December, 1655, the legal prohibition was removed. Among his written works is the Conciliador (1632), a harmony of the Old Testament.

Manatee (man.ạ.tē′, man′ạ.tē). Former town in W central Florida, in Manatee County, S of Tampa. It was a resort with a fishing port. The town was annexed by Bradenton. 4,499 (1950).

Manatí (mä.nä.tē′). City in N Puerto Rico, on the Manatí River ab. 25 mi. W of San Juan. 10,092 (1950).

Manatí River. [Spanish, Río Grande de Manatí.] River in N Puerto Rico, flowing NW to the Caribbean Sea. Length, ab. 50 mi.

Man-Aung (män′oung′). See Cheduba.

Manaus (mạ.nous′). [Also: Manáos; former name, Barra do Rio Negro.] Capital and principal city of the state of Amazonas, in N Brazil, on the Rio Negro near its mouth on the Amazon: chief port in the C part of the Amazon system. It has rubber, brewing, and soap industries. It was founded in 1660 and rose to prominence between c1880 and 1910 during the rubber "boom" in the Amazon region. It has a magnificent opera house dating from this era. 110,678 (1950).

Manawyddan fab Llyr (man.ạ.wu′dạn fab lēr). See under Manannan mac Lir.

Manayunk (man′ạ.yungk). Part of the city of Philadelphia, on the Schuylkill River (which was called Manayunk by the Indians).

Manbhum (män′bōm). District in Bihar, Union of India, ab. 150 mi. NW of Calcutta. This area has large reserves of coal and limestone quarries; the chief crops are rice, maize, and linseed. Capital, Purulia; area, ab. 4,131 sq. mi.; pop. 1,547,559 (1951).

Mancera (män.thā′rä), Marquis of. Title of Toledo Molina y Salazar, Antonio Sebastián de.

Mancha (män′chä), La. See La Mancha.

Manchac Post (man′chak). See Bute, Fort.

Manche (mänsh). [Also, La Manche.] Department in NW France, bounded by Calvados and Orne on the E, Mayenne and Ille-et-Vilaine on the S, and the English Channel on the W, N, and NE. It has the shape of a peninsula, and has rocky coasts, picturesque towns, and Celtic and medieval monuments. The monastery of Mont-St.-Michel, situated on a granite rock in the bay of the same name, is famous among artists and tourists. In the early Middle Ages, the region was contested by Bretons and Normans, but it went to the crown of France. In World War II, Allied invasion armies debarked on the coast of the department, between St.-Marcouf and Les Veys, on June 6, 1944, and the ensuing battles with German forces caused widespread destruction. The chief agricultural products are grain, potatoes, and apples. The department has distilleries, dairies, fisheries, and food-processing industries. Cherbourg is a naval station and a commercial port. Capital, St.-Lô; area, ab. 2,475 sq. mi.; pop. 435,432 (1946).

Manche, La. French name of the English Channel.

Manchester (man′ches.tẹr; -chẹs-). Town in N Connecticut, in Hartford County, ab. 7 mi. E of Hartford: manufactures of silk. 34,116 (1950).

Manchester. [Sometimes called Cottonopolis; Latin, Mancunium.] City and county borough, inland seaport, coal-mining center, and manufacturing town in NW England, in Lancashire, situated on the rivers Irk, Irwell, and Medford, and on the Manchester Ship Canal, ab. 30 mi. E of Liverpool, ab. 183 mi. NW of London by rail. It forms a continuous town with Salford on the opposite bank of the river Irwell. Manchester ranks as the fifth port in the British Isles, importing iron ore and nonferrous metals and ores, petroleum (for the many refineries along the Ship Canal), raw cotton and wool, foodstuffs, and other items. It exports cotton and woolen manufactures (being the marketing center for the cotton industry), and various machinery manufactures. The port of Manchester includes the banks of the Manchester Ship Canal from its terminal docks at Manchester and Salford to its outfall at Eastham. The Ship Canal is 36 mi. long, 120 ft. wide, nearly 28 ft. deep, and has five locks. Manchester is the chief industrial center in Lancashire, having had a long history of manufacture beginning with woolen manufactures in the 14th century, followed by linen manufactures in the 16th century and cotton manufactures in the 17th century. By 1770 the cotton industry had overtaken the woolen industry in importance. Now, however, there are few mills, the city being rather a warehousing and distributing center for the industry. It still has an important linen industry and has manufactures of silk, mixed cloths, knitwear, clothing (especially women's wear), and rubber rainwear. Manchester is the center of one of the world's greatest engineering districts, producing all kinds of heavy machinery (locomotives and cotton-textile machinery, for example). It also has automobile and aircraft manufactures, as well as extensive ferrous and nonferrous metals industries. Other industries include flour milling and biscuit manufactures. It is an important center for the manufacture of heavy electrical equipment and generators. A mere village in the 16th century, it developed rapidly during the last half of the 18th century, was a leading center of the reform agitation in the early part of the 19th century (the scene of the "Peterloo massacre" in 1819), and became the center of the anti-corn-law and free-trade movements under the lead of Richard Cobden and John Bright. The center of the city suffered heavy damage from bombing in World War II. Area of city, ab. 42½ sq. mi.; pop. 703,175 (1951), area of Manchester metropolitan area, ab. 380 sq. mi.; pop. 2,421,011 (1951).

Manchester. City in W Georgia, in Talbot and Meriwether counties: railroad shops and textile mills. 4,036 (1950).

Manchester. [Former name, Burrington.] City in E Iowa, county seat of Delaware County: trading center for a dairy-farming area. 3,987 (1950).

Manchester. [Former name, Derryfield.] City in S New Hampshire, a county seat (with Nashua) of Hillsborough County, on the Merrimack River ab. 16 mi. SE of Concord: largest city of the state. Its manufactures include cotton textiles, machinery, electrical equipment, cigars, and shoes. It was incorporated as Derryfield in 1751; its name was changed to Manchester (in honor of the English city) in 1810; and it became a city in 1846. It is the seat of St. Anselm's College. Pop. of city, 82,732 (1950); of urbanized area, 84,918 (1950).

Manchester, Dukes and Earls of. Titles held by various members of the Montagu family.

Manchester New College. College at Oxford, England, founded originally at London in the interest of the Unitarians.

"Manchester Poet." See Swain, Charles.

Manchester Ship Canal. Canal in NW England, in Lancashire and Cheshire, connecting Manchester with the river Mersey at Eastham. The canal is navigable to ocean-going vessels and there are extensive docks and industrial developments all along its banks. It was opened May 21, 1894. Length, ab. 36 mi.; minimum depth, ab. 28 ft.; bottom width, ab. 120 ft.

Manchukuo (män′chö′kwō′). See under Manchuria.

Manchuria (man.chö′ri.ạ). [Chinese, Tung-pei, meaning "The Northeast"; also called Northeastern Provinces; official name (since 1949), Northeast Administrative Area.] Name given to the NE section of China. A former dependency of China, it was later divided into three provinces, Liaoning, Kirin, and Heilungkiang, which were placed on an equal footing with the other provinces of the republic. A broad fertile lowland occupies the C part of Manchuria, extending from the Gulf of Liaotung NE to the Amur River, and including the valleys of the Liao and Sungari rivers. On either side of this lowland are tracts of hill and mountain country; the W hills are dry and grass-covered, but the region to the E is humid and extensively forested. The climate is continental, with severely cold but dry winters, and hot, humid summers. Manchuria has rich mineral resources, including iron ore and coal (which have furnished the basis of a modern iron and steel industry), gold, and numerous other minerals. Agriculture is the chief occupation, however, and crops of soybeans, millet, kaoliang, wheat, maize, and vegetables are grown. Manchuria was a sparsely populated region inhabited by Manchu and Mongol tribes until the late 19th century. The opening up of railroads made possible the modern flood of immigration (chiefly from N China) which settled Manchuria in the first three decades of the 20th century; the population is now predominantly of Chinese origin. Manchuria was occupied by Russia as a result of the Boxer uprising in 1900, but was restored to China by the provisions of the treaty of Portsmouth (Sept. 5, 1905). By the treaty of Dec. 22, 1905, between China and Japan, the lease of the S part of the Liaotung Peninsula (Kwantung) was transferred from Russia to Japan. The treaty also provided for various railway concessions and the opening of a number of Manchurian ports and cities to foreign trade. On Sept. 18, 1931, hostilities began at Mukden between the Chinese garrison and Japanese forces of the special railway zone. This incident led to the Japanese occupation of Manchuria, and the setting up of the puppet state of Manchukuo, a move never recognized by the U.S. government. Manchukuo was subdivided into 19 provinces, and was controlled by the Japanese until the end of World War I. During this period industrialization continued, and several new railroad lines were built, as well as two large hydroelectric developments. In 1945 Manchuria was invaded and occupied briefly by Russian forces, and then transferred to Chinese sovereignty. In 1945 the Chinese Nationalist government redivided Manchuria into nine provinces: Antung, Hei'ungkiang, Hokiang, Hsingan, Kirin, Liaoning, Liaopei, Nunkiang, and Sungkiang. After considerable warfare, the territory was taken (1948) by the Chinese Communists, who organized Manchuria into an administrative area with six provinces: Liaotung, Liaosi, Jehol, Kirin, Sungkiang, and Heilungkiang. The W and NW parts were annexed to the Inner Mongolian Autonomous Region, and Jehol was included with Manchuria. Capital, Mukden; area, ab. 342,000 sq. mi.; pop. 41,570,678 (1950).

Manchus (man'chöz, man.chöz'). People whose original home was in Manchuria, related to the Tungus. Their script, borrowed in part from the Mongols, was devised in 1599. They ruled China as the Ch'ing (or Manchu) dynasty from 1644 to 1911. The language is still spoken by a small percentage of the population of N Manchuria, but they no longer maintain a separate identity either in Manchuria or in China proper.

Mancini (män.chē'nē), Antonio. b. at Rome, Nov. 14, 1852; d. 1930. Italian genre, portrait, and landscape painter. A list of his works includes Poor Girl, Sick Child, Woman Reflecting, Flower Merchant, Nude Boy, The Fan, and The Perfume of Flowers.

Mancini, Hortense. [Title, Duchesse de Mazarin.] b. at Rome, c1646; d. at Chelsea (now part of London), 1699. Sister of Laure and Olympe Mancini, noted at the court of Charles II. She was the most beautiful and intelligent of Cardinal Mazarin's nieces, and he received many offers for her hand. Among her lovers were Charles II of England (not then king), Turenne, Pedro II, the future king of Portugal, Charles of Lorraine, and others. He finally married her to the Marquis de La Meilleraye, who took the name and arms of Mazarin. Her husband treated her with such gloomy severity that she sought refuge from his jealousy in England, where she engaged in a liaison with Charles II.

Mancini, Laura Beatrice Oliva. b. at Naples, Italy, 1823; d. at Florence, July 17, 1869. Italian poet; wife of Pasquale Stanislao Mancini. She was known for her patriotic poems.

Mancini, Laure. [Title, Duchesse de Mercœur.] b. at Rome, 1635; d. at Paris, Feb. 8, 1657. Niece of Cardinal Mazarin, and mother of Louis Joseph, Duc de Vendôme; sister of Hortense and Olympe Mancini.

Mancini, Olympe. [Titles: Comtesse de Soissons and Princesse de Carignan.] b. c1639; d. at Brussels, 1708. Sister of Laure and Hortense Mancini, and mistress of Louis XIV. She was the wife of Prince Eugène Maurice (of Savoie-Carignan) and mother of Prince Eugene, Austrian general. Her intrigues led her into criminal attachments, and when she became involved in the sensational trials of the poisoners, she fled to the Netherlands.

Mancini, Pasquale Stanislao. b. at Castel-Baronia, near Ariano, Italy, March 17, 1817; d. at Rome, Dec. 26, 1888. Italian statesman and jurist. He was minister of public instruction (March, 1862), minister of justice and worship (1876–78), and minister of foreign affairs (1881–85). He was a liberal and one of the anticlerical party who helped in the passage of the bill (1862) to end capital punishment, extended freedom of the press, and eliminated imprisonment for debt. He negotiated the Triple Alliance but attempted to maintain an understanding with Great Britain.

Manciple's Tale (man'si.plz), The. One of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales. It is partly from Ovid's Metamorphoses, being the story of how the crow, once white, was turned black for telling Phoebus Apollo of the adultery of Coronis.

Manco (mäng'kō). [Called Manco Inca, Inca Manco, Manco Inca Yupanqui.] b. c1500; assassinated 1544. Son of the Inca Huaina Capac of Peru, and brother of Huáscar. After the death of Atahualpa and Huáscar he was recognized by Pizarro (November, 1533) as the rightful sovereign of Peru (according to European ideas), and was crowned at Cusco; but he had no real power, and was virtually a prisoner. In April, 1536, he escaped, raised an army, and besieged Cusco and other Spanish strongholds. Finally defeated in 1537, he retired to the mountains of Vilcabamba, whence he kept up a predatory warfare. He was killed by followers of the younger Almagro who had taken refuge with him.

Manco Capac (or Ccapac) (kä'päk). In Inca mythology and legend, one of four brothers who traveled across Peru seeking fertile land for the people. Of the four, Manco Capac alone (with his four sisters named Mama) finished the journey, founded the city of Cusco, and established the Inca empire. Manco Capac married his sister Mama occlo, and their son, Sinchi Roca, was the first ruler of the Inca empire. Sinchi Roca is believed to have been a historical personage. Another story is that a human pair (of whom the male was named Manco Capac) were created by the Sun on an island in Lake Titicaca; to them the Sun gave a golden rod, saying to establish a city in whatever place the rod sank into the earth. The rod sank into the earth at the site of the present city of Cusco.

Mandaeans (man.dē'ąnz). [Also: Christians of Saint John, Mendaites, Nasoreans, Sabians.] Very ancient religious body, still found, though its members are few, in the S part of Irak, Iran, and Asia Minor. The religion of the Mandaeans is a kind of Gnosticism retaining Parsee, Jewish, Christian, and Moslem elements. They worship as divine beings a number of personifications, especially of the attributes or names of God.

Mandalay (man.dą.lā', man'dą.lā). [Also, Mandelay.] City in C Burma, the second largest city in the Union of Burma, situated near the Irrawaddy River, ab. 475 mi. E of Calcutta, India. In the days of the Burma kings (1860–85) it thrived as the capital, but now its trade is declining, though the silk-manufacturing industry is still of some importance. It was founded in 1856, and contains the royal palace. During World War II it was occupied by the Japanese from May, 1942, until its recapture by British forces in March, 1945. Much of the city was destroyed during the Japanese attack in 1942. Pop. 163,537 (1941).

Mandan (man'dan). North American Indian tribe formerly inhabiting parts of North Dakota, related culturally to the Missouri, Hidatsa, and Arikara Indians, and speaking a Siouan language. Only about 400 Mandan Indians survive on a reservation in North Dakota.

Mandan. City in C North Dakota, county seat of Morton County, at the confluence of the Heart and Missouri rivers: trade center for a dry-farming area. It is a shipping point for wheat, butter, and livestock. Named for the Mandan Indians, it was incorporated as a city in 1883. Pop. 7,298 (1950).

Mandane (man'dān). Mother of Cyrus. According to Herodotus she was the daughter of Astyages, king of Media, and wife of Cambyses, a Persian noble.

Mandarin (man'dą.rin). In China, formerly a civil or military official and also the language commonly used by such officials and by educated persons, which was the dialect spoken in the region centering about the capital, Peiping. The word derives, through Chinese Pidgin English, from the Portuguese mandar ("to command").

Mande (män'dā). [Also, Mandingo (man.ding'gō).] Subgroup of the Sudanic language family of W Africa, composed of Mande-Tan, or Northern Mande, and Mande-Fu, or Southern Mande. The Mande-Tan languages include those of the Bambara, Diula, Fulanke, Kagoro, Kason, Kono, Kuranko, Malinke, Sarakole, Vai, Wasulu, and Yarse. The Mande-Fu languages include those of the Dan, Dialonke, Gagu, Gbande, Gbunde, Guro, Kpelle, Loko, Lomo, Mano, Mende, Samo, and Susu.

Mandeb (man'deb), Bab el. See Bab el Mandeb.

Mandel (mäⁿ.del), Georges. [Original name, Louis Georges Rothschild; also, Jéroboam Rothschild.] b. at Châtou, Seine-et-Oise, France, June 5, 1885; shot to death in Fontainebleau Forest, Seine-et-Marne, France, July 7, 1944. French political leader and journalist, arrested (June, 1940) by the Pétain government because of his vigorous opposition to the armistice with Germany. He was murdered by Vichy militiamen a month after the Allied landings in Normandy. A disciple of Georges Clemenceau, he was on the staff of the latter's newspapers, L'Aurore and L'Homme Libre. A conservative deputy (1919–40), he was minister of posts (1934), minister of colonies (1936–40), and minister of interior in the Reynaud cabinet (1940).

Mandelay (man.dę.lā', man'dę.lā). See Mandalay.

Manderson (man'dėr.son), Charles Frederick. b. at Philadelphia, Feb. 9, 1837; d. at sea, Sept. 28, 1911. American politician and lawyer. He was elected (1883) to the U.S. Senate, and was president (1900 et seq.) of the American Bar Association.

Mandeville (man'dę.vil), Viscount. See Montagu, Sir Henry.

Mandeville, Bernard. b. at Dordrecht, Netherlands, c1670; d. at London, Jan. 21, 1733. English writer. He took his degree in medicine at Leiden in 1691, and settled at London. In 1714 he published his Enquiry into the Origin of Moral Virtue, with notes, under the title The Fable of the Bees, or Private Vices, Public Benefits. This work, a revision of his The Grumbling Hive, or Knaves Turn'd Honest (1705), aroused a great storm of controversy because of the thesis of the author that all that is called virtue is a delusion and that actually selfishness is responsible for all human advances. The book was pronounced a nuisance by the grand jury of Middlesex in 1723. His other works are Treatise of Hypochondriack and Hysteric Passions (1711), Free Thoughts on Religion (1720), and A Modern Defense of Public News (1740).

Mandeville, Geoffrey de. [Title, 1st Earl of Essex.] d. at Mildenhill, Suffolk, England, in September, 1144. English rebel baron. As constable (c1130–43) of the Tower of London, he gained power and property by betraying both Queen Matilda and King Stephen in turn. Deprived (1143) of his property and rights by King Stephen, he took refuge in the Fens, raiding Cambridge and smaller towns. He was fatally wounded during an attack on the king's fortification at Burwell.

Mandeville, Sir John. [Also, Maundevylle.] Reputed writer of a 14th-century book of travels. The author calls himself Jehan de Mandeville, or John Maundevylle, knight of St. Aubin or St. Albans, England, and says that, starting on Michaelmas day, 1322 (or 1332), he visited Turkey, Armenia, Tartary, Persia, Syria, Arabia, Egypt, Libya, Ethiopia, Chaldea, Amazonia, and India. The book is, however, a compilation intended as a guide to pilgrims to the Holy Land, based upon William of Boldensele (1336) and Friar Odoric of Pordenone (1330). It is full of wild travelers' tales, marvels, and folkloric events; the phoenix and people with their heads beneath their shoulders appear along with accounts of the Pyramids and other actualities. The original was in French, and the oldest manuscript is in that language, dated 1371. The English version was made in the early part of the 15th century by an unknown hand. The manuscripts are numerous. It is now believed that the author was a physician of Liége known as John of Burgundy or John With the Beard (Jehan à la Barbe), exiled for some reason from England, who died in 1372. Another theory attributes the work to Jean d'Outremeuse, a writer of Liége.

Mandeville or Magnavilla, William de. [Titles: 3rd Earl of Essex, Earl or Count of Aumâle.] d. at Rouen, France, Nov. 14, 1189. English baron; son of Geoffrey de Mandeville. In 1177 he went on a crusade with Philip, Count of Flanders. In 1189 he accompanied Henry II in his flight from Le Mans, and later served under Richard I.

Manding (man.ding'). See Malinke.

Mandingo (man.ding'gō). See also Malinke and Mande.

Mandingo. [Also: Mandenga (mäⁿ.deng'gä), Mandinka (mäⁿ.ding'kä).] West African name used variously to refer to: (1) the Mande-speaking peoples as a group, (2) the Mande-speaking Malinke people of French Sudan and Sénégal, or (3) others of the Mande-speaking people of W Africa.

Mandinke (mäⁿ.ding'kā). See Malinke.

Mandja (mäⁿ'jä). See Manjia.

Mandla (mund'lą). [Also, Mundlah.] District in Madhya Pradesh, Union of India, ab. 60 mi. NE of Jubbulpore. The main crops are wheat, oil seeds, silk, and millet. Area, ab. 5,115 sq. mi.; pop. 547,620 (1951).

Mandricardo (mäⁿ.drē.kär'dō). Son of Agrican in Boiardo's and Ariosto's Orlando romances. He laid siege to Albracca for the love of Angelica, and was slain by Orlando. He was noted for his pride and cruelty.

Mandu (mun'dö). [Also: Mandugarh (mun'dö.gur), Mandogarh (mun'dō.gur).] Ruined fortress city in Madhya Pradesh, Union of India, ab. 40 mi. SW of Indore. It was the Moslem capital of Malwa from 1387 until the fall of the kingdom in 1562.

Mandubii (man.dū'bi.ī). Ancient people who lived in what is now central France, north of the Aedui. Their chief town, Alesia (today Alise-St.-Reine), was captured by Caesar in 52 B.C.

Manduria (mäⁿ.dö'ryä). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Taranto, situated on the Salentina peninsula, E of Taranto. The town has some remains of its pre-Roman walls. It was destroyed by the Saracens in the 10th century and rebuilt under the name of Castelnuovo; c1700 it adopted again the name which it had carried in ancient times. It has a Romanesque cathedral, the elegant Palazzo Imperiali, dating from 1719, and a local museum. Pop. of commune, 19,594 (1936); of town, 17,415 (1936).

Manén (mä.nān'), Juan. b. at Barcelona, Spain, March 14, 1883—. Spanish violinist and composer. Among his compositions are the operas Giovanna di Napoli (1903) and Nerón y Acté (1928). He has also composed piano pieces, chamber music, and orchestral works.

Manes (mā'nēz). [Also: Mani, Manichaeus.] b. c216; d. c276. Founder of Manichaeism. The only source of information about him that is comparatively credible is the Mohammedan tradition. He received a careful education from his father, Futak, at Ctesiphon. Futak connected himself later with the sect of the Moghtasilah, or "Baptists," in S Babylonia, which had absorbed Christian elements, and thus made his son acquainted with different forms of religion. At the age of 25 or 30 Manes began to proclaim his new religion at the court of Shapur I. He undertook long journeys into Transoxiana, W China, and S as far as India, and sent forth disciples in the interest of his faith. Returning to the Persian capital in the last years of Shapur I (c270), he gained adherents even at court, but was at last imprisoned and put to flight through the hostility of the Magians on whom the king was dependent. Shapur's successor Ormizd seems to have been more favorable, but Bahram I abandoned Manes to the Magians and had him crucified (c276 A.D.). Manes composed a number of works and epistles, which were known to the Mohammedan historians but are now lost. The Fihrist reckons seven principal works, six in Syriac and one in Persian. The name of the Persian work is not given in the extant form of the Fihrist, but it is conjectured that it may have been the Artang or "Holy Gospel," of which mention is made in the Acta Archelai and elsewhere among western writers. They are a chief source of the western tradition as to Manes, but, besides being of entirely uncertain authorship and date, bear upon their face marks indicating that they are only a polemic treatise put on literary grounds in the form of an alleged debate. They have the authority of a historical novel, not that of a history.

Manet (mä.ne), Édouard. b. at Paris, 1833; d. there, April 30, 1883. French genre painter, pupil of Couture. He was the founder and leader of the impressionist school. His paintings Boy with a Sword (1860) and Girl with a Parrot are in the Metropolitan Museum, New York.

Manetho (man'e.thō). fl. c250 B.C. Egyptian historian and priest. He was a native of Sebennytus, in Lower Egypt. He wrote a history of Egypt in Greek, fragments only of which are extant. His tables on the dynasties of Egypt have proved extremely useful despite their inaccuracies.

Manette (ma.net'), Doctor Alexander. In Charles Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities, a French physician who was imprisoned for 18 years.

Manette, Lucie. In Charles Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities, the daughter of Doctor Alexander Manette, and the wife of Charles Darnay.

Maney (mā'ni), George Earl. b. at Franklin, Tenn., Aug. 24, 1826; d. at Washington, D.C., Feb. 9, 1901. American diplomat and soldier. He served as minister to Colombia (1881–82), Bolivia (1882–89), and Paraguay and Uruguay (1889–94).

Manfred (man'fred). b. c1232; killed at the battle of Benevento, Italy, Feb. 26, 1266. King of Sicily (1258–66); an illegitimate son of the emperor Frederick II. He was prince of Tarentum and regent till the accession of Conrad IV in 1252, became regent for Conradin in 1254, and was crowned king in 1258. Papal support for the Ghibellines was lacking, however, and Manfred was excommunicated. He defeated the Guelphs in 1260 but was defeated and slain at Benevento by Charles of Anjou, Guelph claimant of the Sicilian throne.

Manfred. Prince of Otranto, the principal character in Horace Walpole's Castle of Otranto.

Manfred. Dramatic poem by Byron, published in 1817. It was so called from the name of its hero, Manfred, who in Byron's own words is "a kind of magician who suffers from a half-unexplained remorse." He lives in a castle among the Alps, and is substantially alone throughout the piece. Schumann wrote music for this drama and adapted it for the stage himself; it was first produced by Liszt at Weimar in 1852.

Manfredonia (man.frẹ.dō'ni.ạ; Italian, män.frā.dô'nyä). Town and commune in SE Italy, in the compartimento (region) of Apulia, in the province of Foggia, situated on the Gulf of Manfredonia, NW of Bari. The town, NE of the site of ancient Sipontum, was founded by Manfred, king of Sicily, son of the emperor Frederick II, in 1258; the castle dates from that time; erected by Manfred, it was completed by Charles of Anjou. The port, for a long time used only as a fishing port, is now improved. The town is the seat of an archbishop. Some damage was suffered during World War II by some buildings of tourist interest, but repairs have been completed or are being carried out. Pop. of commune, 20,960 (1936); of town, 18,787 (1936).

Manfredonia, Gulf of. [Italian, Golfo di Manfredonia; Latin, Sinus Urias.] Indentation of the E coast of S Italy, E of Manfredonia.

Mangaia (mäng.ä'yä). See under Cook Islands.

Mangalore (mang.gạ.lōr'). [Also, Mangalur (mang.gạ.lōr').] Seaport, capital of Kanara district, Madras, Union of India, situated on the W coast ab. 440 mi. SE of Bombay. It is a tidal port, served chiefly by backwater communication with the hinterland; pepper, tea, coffee, rice, salt fish, and cashew nuts are exported. Mangalore was an important commercial town in the Middle Ages. A factory was established here by the Portuguese in 1554, and was destroyed (allegedly at the instigation of the Dutch) by natives and Arabs in 1596. The Portuguese, however, reestablished their trading privileges, and remained until the British took over. In 1763 the town was captured by the sultan of Mysore, and British attempts to establish a foothold were defeated by Tipu Sahib in 1784. In 1799 it finally became British. 117,083 (1951).

Mangalore, Treaty of. Peace concluded (1784) between the British in India and Tipu Sahib, on the basis of a mutual restitution of conquests.

Mangan (mang'gạn), James Clarence. b. at Dublin, May 1, 1803; d. June 20, 1849. Irish poet. His chief works are German Anthology (1849), Poets and Poetry of Munster (1849), and Romances and Ballads of Ireland (1850). His best-known poems, such as Dark Rosaleen and O'Hussey's Ode to the Maguire, are close adaptations of Old Irish originals.

Manganga (män.gäng'gä). See Nyanja.

Mangareva (mäng.ä.rā'vä). See under Gambier Islands.

Mangbetu (mäng.bā'tö). [Also: Mambetto, Mombattou, Monbutu; French, Mangbettou (mäṅ.be.tö).] Sudanic-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting an area S of the Uele River in NE Belgian Congo. Their population is estimated at ab. 1,500,000 (by J. Halkin, Les Ababua, 1911). They were once ruled by an autocratic king, but today they are divided into numerous subgroups ruled by independent hereditary chiefs. They have patrilineal clans. The Mangbetu practice hoe agriculture, and their principal food is the banana.

Mangerai (mäng.ėr.ī'). See Flores, Indonesia.

Mangi (män'jē) or Mangu (mäng'gö). Country of Asia, described by Marco Polo. It is supposed to be the same as S China.

Mangin (mäṅ.zhaṅ), Charles Marie Emmanuel. b. at Sarrebourg, France, July 6, 1866; d. at Paris, May 12, 1925. French army commander, best known for his leadership of the successful assaults on Forts Vaux and Douaumont during the battle of Verdun (1916). He held command of the French Foreign Legion and colonial troops during World War I, commanded the French 10th Army during the second battle of the Marne (July, 1918), was appointed (1919) commander of the French army of occupation in the Rhineland, and was named (1921) a member of the superior war council and inspector general of colonial troops. Before World War I he served (1912–13) in Morocco with Lyautey. He had been on active colonial service since 1889.

Mangione (man.jō'nē), Jerre. b. at Rochester, N.Y., March 20, 1909—. American journalist and novelist. He is the author of Mount Allegro (1943), The Ship and the Flame (1948), and Reunion in Sicily (1950).

Mango (mäng'gō). See Ano.

Mangoio (mäng.gō'yō). See Binda.

Mangotsfield (mang'gọts.fēld). Urban district in W England, in Gloucestershire, ab. 123 mi. W of London by rail: a suburban area NE of Bristol. 17,871 (1951).

Mangu (mäng'gö). See Mangi.

Mangues (män'gās). Extinct tribe of Meso-American Indians of Nicaragua, formerly occupying the region between Lake Managua and the Pacific. Their language, Mangue, embraces two dialects and belongs to the Chorotega group of the Meso-American division of Central American Indian languages. One small group of Mangue-speaking Indians was reported in Costa Rica. J. A. Mason's new classification places Mangue in this same relationship in the Macro-Otomanguean phylum.

Mangum (mang'gum). City in SW Oklahoma, county seat of Greer County: marketing center of an agricultural district producing wheat, cotton, and livestock. Prior to 1896, it was under the jurisdiction of Texas. 4,271 (1950).

Mangum, Willie Person. b. in Orange County, N.C., May 10, 1792; d. at Red Mountain, N.C., Sept. 7, 1861. American Whig politician. He was U.S. senator from North Carolina (1831–36 and 1840–53).

Mangyan (mäng'yän) or Manguianes (mäng.gyä'nās). General name given to a number of distinct pagan tribes occupying the interior of Mindoro, Philippine Islands. Some of them have preserved a script of Indian origin, which they write on slips of bamboo.

Manhasset (man.has'ẹt). Unincorporated community in SE New York, in Nassau County, on Long Island Sound: residential community. 5,099 (1940).

Manhattan (man.hat'ạn). Tribe of North American Indians, formerly inhabiting Manhattan island and the area northward. They belonged to the Algonquian linguistic stock, and were members of the Wappinger Confederacy.

Manhattan. City in E Kansas, county seat of Riley County, on the Kansas River: seat of Kansas State College. It is a shipping point for wheat, poultry, and livestock. 19,056 (1950).

Manhattan. Borough of the city of New York, coextensive with New York County. It comprises the island of Manhattan, adjacent smaller islands (Governors, Ellis, Bedloe's, Welfare, Wards, and Randall's islands), and a small tract on the mainland on the N side of the Harlem River. Manhattan is the commercial and transportation center of the city of New York. It has port terminals, piers, warehouses, factories, and business and financial quarters. Lower Manhattan is the greatest center of finance and banking in the U.S. and the seat of the New York Stock Exchange. The chief commercial center, midtown Manhattan, has grown in the area served by the two chief railroad terminals, the Pennsylvania and Grand Central stations. North of the midtown area, Manhattan is occupied chiefly by residential apartment buildings. In the C part of the island is Central Park (area, ab. 1.3 sq. mi.), the principal park of the borough. Manhattan island was bought from the Indians (traditionally, for merchandise worth $24) by the Dutch trader Peter Minuit in 1626. The city of Nieuw Amsterdam grew at the S tip of the island around a fort established by the Dutch. In 1664 the settlement passed to the British, who renamed it New York. Area, ab. 22 sq. mi.; pop. 1,960,101 (1950).

Principal Buildings. Manhattan's numerous museums include the Museum of the American Indian, the Frick Museum, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the New York Museum of Science and Industry, the Museum of the City of New York, the American Museum of Natural History and the allied Hayden Planetarium, the Whitney Museum of American Art, and the Museum of Modern Art. Among the other important cultural institutions are the main building of the New York Public Library, containing more than six million reference items; the Metropolitan Opera House, one of the world's major opera houses; Town Hall and Carnegie Hall, both famous concert halls; the City Center, municipally-owned hall presenting drama, opera, and ballet; Radio City Music Hall, the world's largest indoor theater. Noted also as an educational center, Manhattan is the seat of Hunter College of the City of New York (municipal), Columbia University (including Columbia College, Barnard College, New York Post-Graduate Medical School, Teachers College, and the New York School of Social Work), Cooper Union, Cornell University Medical College (associated with New York Hospital), Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart, New York University (including Washington Square College); such special schools as the Art Students League, Juilliard School of Music, Parsons School of Design, Biblical Seminary in New York, General Theological Seminary, Jewish Theological Seminary of America, National Bible Institute, Union Theological Seminary, and many others. Manhattan's many places of worship include historic Trinity Church (in one of the world's wealthiest Protestant Episcopal parishes), chartered 1697, built (1705) on land granted by Queen Anne, its present structure dating from 1846; the churchyard cemetery contains the graves of Alexander Hamilton, Albert Gallatin, Robert Fulton, and other figures of U.S. history. Not far from it is Saint Paul's Chapel of Trinity Church Parish, oldest (1764) church building in Manhattan, attended by George Washington. Saint Mark's in the Bouwerie was built (1660) on the farm of Governor Peter Stuyvesant, who is buried in the graveyard, as is Commodore Matthew C. Perry; the church was rebuilt in 1799. The Cathedral of Saint John the Divine, in use but under construction since 1892, is slated to be the world's largest Gothic cathedral. The Riverside Church, of which Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick was the first pastor and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the chief financial backer, is known for its liberal religious outlook as well as its recreational and social service units housed in the tower, which also contains the 72-bell Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial carillon (largest in the world). Saint Patrick's Cathedral, in Gothic Revival style, is modeled after the cathedral of Cologne. Temple Emanu-El, New York City's oldest Reformed synagogue, is believed to be the largest modern synagogue ever constructed. Other well-known places of worship are Grace Church, Saint George's (of which J. P. Morgan, Sr., was a warden), Saint Thomas, the Broadway Tabernacle, the Marble Collegiate Church, the Community Church, the Madison Avenue Church, and Christ Church. World famous as the tallest building in the world is the Empire State Building (1,250 ft.). Other famous buildings located in Manhattan are the Chrysler Building (1,048 ft.), second tallest building in the world; the McGraw Hill Building; the permanent headquarters of the United Nations, erected on land (valued at 8,500,000 dollars) donated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The buildings of the New York Times and the Daily News are also noteworthy; other important daily newspapers published in the borough are the New York Herald Tribune, Journal-American, World-Telegram and Sun, Post, and Mirror.

Manhattan. Island in SE New York, in New York City, the principal portion of the borough of Manhattan. Manhattan is bounded on the W by the Hudson (here called the North River), on the E by the East River, and on the NE by the Harlem River. One bridge (George Washington), two vehicular tunnels (Holland and Lincoln), and three railway tunnels traverse the Hudson, linking Manhattan with New Jersey; four bridges, two vehicular tunnels, and numerous rail and subway tunnels traverse the East River between Manhattan and Long Island; the Harlem River is crossed by more than a dozen bridges. Area, ab. 21 sq. mi.; pop. 1,942,257 (1950).

Manhattan Beach. City in S California, in Los Angeles County, S of Los Angeles: residential suburb and seaside resort. In the decade between the last two U.S. censuses its population more than doubled. 6,398 (1940), 17,330 (1950).

Manhattan District. [Also, Manhattan Project.] Code name applied to the section of the U.S. army engineers detailed, during World War II, to work on the development of the atomic bomb. It was established Aug. 13, 1942, and its work was officially called, for security reasons, "development of substitute materials" (DSM). The commanding officer, in charge of coördinating work separated geographically by thousands of miles (for example, at Hanford, Washington and at Oak Ridge, Tennessee) was Brigadier (later Major) General Leslie R. Groves.

Manhattan Transfer. Novel by John Dos Passos, published in 1925.

Manheim (mān'hīm). See also Mannheim.

Manheim (man'hīm). Borough in SE Pennsylvania, in Lancaster County, in an agricultural area. Founded (1762) by Henry W. Stiegel, it was noted for the manufacture of fine glassware. An annual rose festival is held in June. 4,246 (1950).

Maní (mä.nē'). Ruined place in Yucatán, Mexico, ab. 45 mi. S of Mérida. According to Indian accounts it was settled by the Mayas, under the Totul Xiu chiefs, after the abandonenmt of Mayapan. The last chief submitted to the Spaniards in 1541.

Mani (mä'nē) or Manichaeus (man.i.kē'us). See Manes.

Mania (mā'ni.ạ, mān'yạ). In Roman religion, the goddess of the dead, called Mother or Grandmother of Ghosts. Woolen effigies of men and women were offered to her at the Compitalia (crossroads festival for the dead) in the hopes that she would accept them in place of living persons. These effigies themselves were called maniae, as were also certain loaves and cakes made in human form and eaten at a similar festival at Aricia, near Rome. Mania has been referred to by various Latin writers as the mother of the Lares.

Manica and Sofala (mạ.nē'kạ; sō.fä'lạ). Province in C and W Mozambique, SE Africa, comprising the districts of Beira and Tete. Until 1942 this area was under the rule and control of the Mozambique Company. Capital, Beira; area, ab. 60,000 sq. mi.; pop. 434,328 (1945).

Manicheans or Manichaeans (man.i.kē'ạnz). Followers of Manes. Manicheism was the old Babylonian religion of nature, modified by Christian and Persian elements, elevated into a gnosis, and subjecting human life to stringent regulation. According to Manes, a realm of light and a realm of darkness have always been opposed to each other. In the visible world both are mingled. The object of the world is to free the light from the intermingled darkness. Christ was sent for this end, but the apostles misrepresented his doctrine. This Manes was sent to restore. The object of Manichean ethics was to purify the elements of light and attain freedom from those of darkness: hence the three seals, those of the mouth, the hand, and the bosom. The first forbids unclean food, such as wine and the flesh of animals; the second, any traffic in things involving the elements of darkness; the third, every gratification of sexual desire, even marriage being forbidden. There was a rigorous system of fasts, Sunday being regularly and Monday generally so observed. The Manichean prayed four times a day, preceding each prayer by ablution, and turning toward the sun, the moon, or the north as the seat of light. The prayers were addressed to the God of light, to the whole kingdom of light, to the angels, and to Manes. The rigidity of the system was mitigated by distinguishing between the elect or perfect (perfect Manicheans) and the catechumeni or auditores (the secular Manicheans). For the latter the stringency of the requirements was somewhat relaxed. The church had in all five gradations:

(1) the teachers, comprising Manes and his successors; (2) the administrators, bishops; (3) the elders, presbyters; (4) the electi; and (5) the auditores. The worship was simple, and consisted of prayers, hymns, and ceremonies of adoration. Manicheism first gained a firm footing in Persia, Mesopotamia, and Transoxiana. The seat of its pope was for centuries at Babylon, and then at Samarkand. It penetrated the Roman Empire in the reign of Probus (c280 A.D.), and spread rapidly after 330, finding its most numerous adherents in North Africa, Augustine being an auditor for nine years. Traces of Manicheism are found in the history of the Roman Catholic Church until the 13th century.

Manigault (man'i.gō), Arthur Middleton. b. at Charleston, S.C., Oct. 26, 1824; d. at South Island, S.C., Aug. 15, 1886. American Confederate soldier.

Manihiki Islands (mä.nē.hē'kē). Group of small coral atolls or islands in the central Pacific, between the Marquesas and Union Islands. They belong to New Zealand and are administered as part of the Cook Islands. Area, ab. 2 sq. mi.; pop. 435 (1945).

Manila (mą.nil'ą). [Also, Manilla.] Capital of the Philippine Islands, in Luzon at the mouth of the Pasig River, on the E side of Manila Bay. It possesses excellent dock facilities and is the chief port for the Philippines. Hemp, cigars, coffee, sugar, and other products are exported; the leading manufacture is cigars. It contains a cathedral and a university. Manila was founded by the Spaniards in 1571, was taken by the English in 1762, was captured by U.S. forces Aug. 13, 1898, and has several times been devastated by earthquakes. The Spanish fleet was destroyed by a U.S. squadron under Commodore Dewey off Cavite, near Manila, May 1, 1898. Battles with the Philippine insurgents, in which the American troops were victorious, occurred near Manila in 1899. The city was devastated by bombs and land fighting during the battles between the Japanese and the Americans during World War II. Pop. of city, 623,492 (1939), 983,906 (1948); pop. of metropolitan area, 1,472,060 (1948).

Manila Bay. Inlet of the South China Sea, indenting SW Luzon, Philippine Islands. It was the scene of the victory of Commodore George Dewey over the Spanish fleet on May 1, 1898. Manila is located on the E shore of the bay, at the mouth of the Pasig River. Length, ab. 36 mi.; greatest width, ab. 26 mi.

Manilian Law (mą.nil'i.ąn). In Roman history, a law proposed by the tribune Gaius Manilius in 66 B.C., granting to Pompey extraordinary powers in the East, including the command of the Mithridatic War. It was supported by Cicero in his oration Pro lege Manilia (For the Manilian Law).

Manilius (mą.nil'i.us), Gaius (or Caius). fl. in the first half of the 1st century B.C. Roman tribune (66 B.C.), proposer of the Manilian Law.

Manin (mä.nēn'), Daniele. b. at Venice, May 13, 1804; d. at Paris, Sept. 22, 1857. Italian patriot. He was the leader of the revolution which broke out against Austria at Venice in 1848, and in the same year was chosen president of the Republic of St. Mark proclaimed by the insurgents. The city was, however, compelled to surrender to the Austrians in 1849 after a heroic resistance, and he spent the rest of his life in exile at Paris.

Man in the Iron Mask. d. Nov. 19, 1703. French prisoner of state, in the 17th–18th centuries, whose identity remains unknown to this day. He was buried in the St. Paul Cemetery, at Paris, under the name of Marchioly, undoubtedly a false name, and was described in the church register as "aged about 45." When he went from one prison to another, he wore a heavy black velvet mask, and romantic imagination has transformed this into the more exciting and dramatic iron (the touch was originally added by Voltaire). According to the various theories put forth, some wilder than others, he was: (1) Louis, Count of Vermandois, an illegitimate son of Louis XIV, (2) an illegitimate son of Anne of Austria, which would make him Louis's natural elder brother, (3) a twin brother of Louis XIV, (4) the Duke of Beaufort, (5) the Duke of Monmouth, (6) Nicholas Fouquet, agent of Cardinal Mazarin, and embezzler, (7) Count Ercole Mattioli, a Mantuan, (8) Eustache Dauger, a valet, (9) the Duke of Buckingham, (10) a son of Oliver Cromwell, (11) a son of Charles II, (12) Molière himself, and (13) the ringleader, his name being unknown, of a plot to murder Louis XIV. There are three facts in the case and three documents: they are the date on which a prisoner wearing a black mask was brought to the Bastille, the date of his death, and his burial the next day; the papers record his arrival at the prison, his death, and his funeral.

Manion (man'yon), Robert James. b. at Pembroke, Ontario, Canada, Nov. 19, 1881; d. at Ottawa, July 2, 1943. Canadian physician and politician. He was a member (1917–35) of the Canadian House of Commons, and Conservative Party leader (1938–40). Author of A Surgeon in Arms and other books.

Manipur (mu.ni.pör'). [Also, Mannipur.] State in E Union of India, on the border of Burma: forest products, including teakwood. A serious uprising against the British occurred here in 1891. During World War II the state was invaded (1944) by Japanese forces from Burma, who were repulsed by British and Indian troops. Capital, Manipur; area, ab. 8,628 sq. mi.; pop. 577,635 (1951).

Manisa (mä.nē.sä'). Il (province or vilayet) in W Turkey, bordering on the Aegean Sea, NE of Izmir: a rich farming area raising wheat, cotton, tobacco, olives, grapes, and figs. It is crossed by two railroad lines and several important caravan trails. Capital, Manisa; area, ab. 5,346 sq. mi.; pop. 519,319 (1950).

Manisa. [Also: Manissa; ancient name, Magnesia, often called Magnesia ad Sipylum.] City in W Turkey, in the region of Lydia, capital of Manisa il (province or vilayet), on the Gediz (ancient Hermus) River, ab. 20 mi. NE of Izmir (Smyrna): textile factories; chromium ore and foodstuffs. Here in 190 B.C. the Romans under Scipio Asiaticus defeated Antiochus the Great. Pop. ab. 37,000.

Manisees (man'i.sēz). American Indian name of Block Island.

Manistee (man.is.tē', man'is.tē). City in N Lower Michigan, on Lake Michigan, at the mouth of the Manistee River, county seat of Manistee County: shipping center for fruit, and resort trade center. It was formerly an important lumbering town, and has a salt industry, based on underground deposits. 8,642 (1950).

Manistee River. River in Michigan, flowing into Lake Michigan at Manistee. Length, ab. 140 mi.

Manistique (man.is.tēk', man'is.tēk). City in the C part of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, on Lake Michigan, county seat of Schoolcraft County: shipping and commercial fishing; manufactures of lumber and paper. 5,086 (1950).

Manitoba (man.i.tō'bą). Province of Canada. It is bounded by Saskatchewan on the W, Keewatin district of the Northwest Territories on the N, Hudson Bay on the NE, Ontario on the E, and the states of North Dakota and Minnesota on the S. Most of Manitoba, including all of the N, N central, and NE parts, lies in the Laurentian Shield, a rocky, forested area which is thinly inhabited, and produces timber, pulp wood, and mineral products. The flat, fertile agricultural lands of the province are in the S and SW parts, and contain most of the population. The major crop is spring wheat, most of which moves by rail through Winnipeg to Port Arthur, and thence by lake freighter to E Canada, whence it is exported to Europe. A part of the crop moves in summer to Port Churchill, the rail terminus on Hudson Bay, and is shipped directly to Europe via the northern route which is open from July to October. Manitoba is governed by a lieutenant governor and a legislative assembly of 58 elected for five years, and is represented in the Dominion Parliament at Ottawa by six senators and 16 members of Parliament. The inhabitants are of mixed origin, including British, French Canadians, Russian Mennonites, and many other European nationalities. Manitoba was a part of the Hudson's Bay Company's territory. It was settled in 1812, and in its early days was known as the Red River Settlement. It entered the Dominion of Canada in 1870. The Riél insurrection occurred in 1869–70. In 1885 the Canadian Pacific Railroad was finished; the Winnipeg yards of this line are among the largest in the world. By federal act of 1912, an area of 178,100 sq. mi. was taken from the Northwest Territories and added to Manitoba. Capital, Winnipeg; area, 246,512 sq. mi. (including 26,789 sq. mi. of inland water); pop. 776,541 (1951).

Manitoba, Lake. Lake in Canada, in the province of Manitoba, SW of Lake Winnipeg, into which it discharges. Length, ab. 130 mi.; elevation, ab. 813 ft.; area, ab. 1,817 sq. mi.

Manitou (man'i.tō). [Also, Manitu.] Term having various forms and meanings among all the various tribes of North American Algonquian Indians. The idea of its being a generic term for "supernatural power" has now been discarded by most anthropologists. It always has a supernatural connotation, however, and is applied to various specific supernatural beings, the creator, specific named gods, culture heroes, thunder, and others. In some localities it is associated also with certain objects which seemed supernatural to the Indians when they first encountered them, such as guns, trains, and the like.

Manitoulin Island (man.i.tō'lin). Large island of Ontario, Canada, in Lake Huron, forming part of the divide between Lake Huron and Georgian Bay. It forms the major part of Manitoulin County. Length, ab. 80 mi.; area, ab. 1,068 sq. mi.

Manitou Springs (man'i.tō). [Former name, Manitou.] Town in C Colorado, in El Paso County, at the foot of Pikes Peak. It is a resort noted for its mineral springs, and for nearby scenic formations including the Cave of the Winds and the Garden of the Gods. 2,580 (1950).

Manitowoc (man'i.tō.wok''). City in E Wisconsin, county seat of Manitowoc County, on Lake Michigan ab. 76 mi. N of Milwaukee: shipyards and aluminum ware, cement, tire, condensed milk, brewing, machinery, clothing, and metal furniture industries. 27,598 (1950).

Maniu (mä'nyö), Iuliu. b. in Transylvania, Austria-Hungary, 1873—. Rumanian statesman, head of the National Peasant Party, prime minister (1928-30, 1932–33). He was a member of the Hungarian parliament and active in the Transylvanian nationalist movement before World War I. He reëntered political life after World War II as deputy prime minister (1944–45), and was sentenced (1947) to life imprisonment by the Communist regime.

Manizales (mä.nē.sä'lās). City in W Colombia, capital of Caldas department: trade center for coffee. Elevation, ab. 7,065 ft.; pop. 94,826 (1951).

Manjia (män'jē.ä). [Also, Mandja.] Sudanic-speaking people of C Africa, inhabiting an area in C French Equatorial Africa extending ab. 200 mi. N from Bangui. Their population is estimated at ab. 25,000 (by F. Gaud, Les Mandja, 1941). They are ruled by a number of independent chiefs, and they have exogamous patrilineal clans. The Manjia practice hoe agriculture. Their principal food is cassava.

Mankato (man.kā'tō). City in S Minnesota, county seat of Blue Earth County, on the Minnesota River ab. 70 mi. SW of St. Paul: marketing and shipping point for hogs, poultry, and dairy products; manufactures include bricks, cement, leather goods, brooms, and boxes. It is the seat of a state teachers college and of Bethany Lutheran College. The name of the city means "blue earth" in the Sioux language. 18,809 (1950).

Manley (man'li), John. b. c1734; d. Feb. 12, 1793. American naval officer who made (1775) the first sizable capture of the Revolutionary War, the brigantine Nancy. He was commander (1776 et seq.) of the fleet on the flagship Hancock, and was captured and imprisoned (1777–78). He captured (1783) the Baille.

Manley, Joseph Homan. b. at Bangor, Me., Oct. 13, 1842; d. Feb. 7, 1905. American politician, chairman (1896–1904) of the Republican national committee.

Manley, Mary de la Rivière. b. on Jersey or on Guernsey, Channel Islands, c1663; d. July 11, 1724. English novelist, dramatist, and political pamphleteer. On May 26, 1709, she published Secret Memoirs and Manners of Several Persons of Quality of both Sexes, from the New Atalantis, usually known as The New Atalantis, devoted entirely to intrigue and scandal, attacking especially the Whig politicos then under the fire of Swift and others. She was arrested (Oct. 29, 1709), for libel and discharged on Feb. 13, 1710. In 1711 she succeeded Swift as editor of the Examiner. She also published Memoirs of Europe (1710), The Power of Love, in Seven Novels (1720), and others. She worked as a pamphleteer in the Tory cause. She died at the house of Barber, a printer, with whom she had lived for some years.

Manlius Capitolinus (man'li.us kap''i.tō.lī'nus), Marcus. d. 384 B.C. Deliverer of the Capitol at Rome from the Gauls. He was a patrician by birth, and was consul in 392. According to tradition, he was aroused by the cackling of geese one night when the Gauls, who were besieging the Capitol under Brennus in 390, attempted to surprise the fortress; collecting a handful of men, Manlius repelled the attack. To this circumstance the origin of his surname Capitolinus is commonly ascribed, although it was also borne by his father and had already acquired the force of a family name in his gens. In 385 he began to champion the cause of the plebeians against the patricians, with a view to making himself tyrant of Rome, and in the following year was arrested by the dictator Camillus. He was tried in the Poetelinian grove, instead of on the Campus Martius, which commanded a view of the Capitol which he had saved and which might have stirred emotion in his behalf, and was sentenced to be thrown from the Tarpeian rock.

Manlius Imperiosus Torquatus (im.pir.i.ō'sus tôr.kwā'tus), Titus. fl. 4th century B.C. Roman hero. He was elected military tribune in 362 B.C., and in 361 served under the dictator Titus Quintius Pennus against the Gauls. During this campaign he slew a gigantic Gaul in single combat in the presence of the two armies, and despoiled him of a chain (torques), which he placed around his own neck (whence the surname Torquatus). He was appointed dictator in 353 and again in 349, and was consul in 347, 344, and 340. During his third consulship, while engaged with his colleague Publius Decius Mus in a campaign against the Latins, he put to death his own son, who, contrary to orders, had fought and killed in single combat an enemy from the opposing army.

Manlius Torquatus (tôr.kwā'tus), Titus. d. 202 B.C. Roman general. He was consul in 235 and 224, and dictator in 208. During his first consulship he conquered the Sardinians, after whose subjugation the Romans enjoyed a brief period of universal peace, the temple of Janus being closed for the first time since the reign of Numa Pompilius, at the very beginning of Roman history. He opposed the ransom of the prisoners taken by Hannibal at Cannae in 216, and gained a decisive victory over the Carthaginians in Sardinia in 215.

Manlius Vulso (vul'sō), Gnaeus (or Cnaeus). fl. 2nd century B.C. Roman consul in 189 B.C. He defeated the Galatians in Asia Minor.

Manly (man'li). Municipality in SE Australia, in New South Wales, on the Pacific Ocean: a part of the metropolitan area of Sydney, noted as a seashore resort. 33,455 (1947).

Manly. In Ben Jonson's The Devil is an Ass, a young gallant, the friend of Wittipol.

Manly. The "plain dealer" in William Wycherley's play of that name.

Manly. In John Vanbrugh and Colley Cibber's The Provoked Husband, a man of worldly good sense.

Manly, Basil. b. near Pittsboro, Chatham County, N.C., Jan. 29, 1793; d. at Greenville, S.C., Dec. 21, 1868. American Baptist clergyman and educator, chaplain at the inauguration (1861) of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy.

Manly, Charles Matthews. b. at Staunton, Va., April 24, 1876; d. Oct. 15, 1927. American aeronautical engineer; brother of John Matthews Manly. He developed a five-cylinder, 52-horsepower, 125-pound water-cooled engine, forerunner of the engine commonly used today. He was associated with Samuel P. Langley in the construction of a large airplane, and patented (1902) a hydraulic speed-change device known as the Manly drive.

Manly, John Matthews. b. in Sumter County, Ala., Sept. 2, 1865; d. April 2, 1940. American educator and Chaucerian scholar; brother of Charles Matthews Manly. He was professor and head (1898–1933) of the English department at the University of Chicago. Editor of Macbeth (1896), Specimens of the Pre-Shakespearean Drama (1897), English Prose and Poetry (1916), and Chaucer (1928); coauthor of A Manual for Writers (1914), The Writer's Index (1923), and The Text of the Canterbury Tales (1940); author of Some New Light on Chaucer (1926) and Chaucer and the Rhetoricians (1926).

Mann (man), Sir Donald D. b. at Acton, Ontario, Canada, 1853; d. at Toronto, Nov. 11, 1934. Canadian railroad builder. He formed (1886) a partnership with William Mackenzie in a railway-building firm, helped to develop the Canadian Northern Railway, which was later absorbed by the Canadian National Railways, and built (c1909 et seq.) branch lines in Alberta and Saskatchewan and completed the line from Yellowhead Pass to Vancouver.

Mann (män), Erika. b. at Munich, Germany, 1905—. German writer and actress; sister of Klaus Mann and wife of W. H. Auden.

Mann, Fritz Karl. b. at Berlin, Dec. 10, 1883—. German political economist. Author of Der Marschall Vauban und die Volkswirtschaftslehre des Absolutismus (Marshal Vauban and the Political Economy of Absolutism, 1914).

Mann, Heinrich. b. at Lübeck, Germany, March 27, 1871; d. at Los Angeles, Calif., March 12, 1950. German novelist; elder brother of Thomas Mann. He concerned himself in his works with the degeneracy of society, as in Professor Unrat (1905), made famous in the film (The Blue Angel) by Emil Jannings and Marlene Dietrich, and also in his first novel, a caricature of the Berlin rich (Im Schlaraffenland, 1900). It is behind the abysmal immorality portrayed in Die kleine Stadt (1909), and the bootlicking of Der Untertan (1918). The last named is one of three novels (including also Die Armen, 1917, and Der Kopf, 1925) that show his social and political leanings. He wrote two historical novels on Henry of Navarre (1935, 1938), and also a play (Madame Legros, 1913) on the French Revolution.

Mann (man), Henry J. Original name of Montague, Henry James.

Mann, Sir Horace. b. 1701; d. at Florence, Italy, Nov. 6, 1786. English diplomat. In 1740 he became minister to the court of Florence, which post he retained until his death. His principal duty was to watch the Old Pretender (James Edward Stuart). He is chiefly known from his correspondence (1741–86) with Horace Walpole.

Mann, Horace. b. at Franklin, Mass., May 4, 1796; d. at Yellow Springs, Ohio, Aug. 2, 1859. American educator. Actively interested in most of the major reform movements of his time, he is remembered primarily for his reorganization of the Massachusetts school system and for his popularization of the cause of better common schools. From a devout mother, and out of a harsh childhood experience of poverty and physical labor that taxed his frail body, he early acquired habits of industry, a belief in the utility of knowledge, and a moral earnestness that were to remain dominant characteristics throughout his life. Overcoming the handicap of meager schooling, he entered Brown University in 1816 and was graduated with honors three years later. After studying law, he practiced successfully from 1823 to 1837. From 1827 to 1837 he was a member of the Massachusetts legislature, serving during the last two years as president of the state senate. In 1837 he turned his back on a lucrative law practice and a promising political career to become, at considerable financial sacrifice, the first secretary of the newly created state board of education, serving in this capacity until 1848. During these years, largely as a result of his influence, Massachusetts lengthened the minimum school year to six months; more than doubled teachers' salaries and appropriations for public education; created state normal schools; enriched the elementary curriculum; adopted better methods of teaching; and established more than 50 new high schools. Many of the reforms that he advocated were adaptations of European theories and practices, particularly German, and in 1843 he spent five months in Europe studying the school systems of half a dozen countries. Even more important than the specific reforms, however, was the new spirit he infused into education. His crusade for greater equality of opportunity stemmed from his faith in education as an instrument of social amelioration and as a means by which each individual could realize the richest possible personal life. A master publicist, Mann was the first educator to popularize the money value of education. He organized teachers' conventions and institutes, traveled constantly, personally carrying the message of better schools to the most remote villages of the state, and in 1838 founded and for ten years edited the Common School Journal. His famous annual reports, outstanding educational documents that he wrote with the fervor of a crusader, were influential far beyond the boundaries of Massachusetts. In 1848 he was elected to Congress as a Whig representative, succeeding John Quincy Adams and serving for four years. In 1852, after being defeated as the Free Soil candidate for the governorship of Massachusetts, he accepted the presidency of Antioch College at Yellow Springs, Ohio, a position that he held until his death.

Mann, James Robert. b. near Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 20, 1856; d. Nov. 30, 1922. American politician. He served (1897–1922) as a Republican congressman from Illinois, and was instrumental in the passage of the Mann Act (1910), regulating the white-slave traffic, the Pure Food and Drugs Act (1906), and the Mann-Elkins Act (1910) for regulation of railroad rates.

Mann (män), Klaus. b. at Munich, Germany, 1907; suicide at Cannes, France, May 21, 1949. German author and anthologist who followed his father, Thomas Mann, into exile in the U.S. in 1936. He became a naturalized American citizen in 1943 and served in the U.S. Army during World War II as a correspondent (1942–45) for Stars and Stripes. With his sister, Erika Mann, he wrote Escape to Life (1939) and The Other Germany (1940). He was coeditor (with Hermann Kesten) of Heart of Europe (1948), an anthology of European writers. In New York he founded and edited the postwar magazine Decision. His independent publications (The Fifth Child, Pathetic Symphony, and others) are largely autobiographical.

Mann (man), Louis. b. at New York, April 20, 1865; d. Feb. 15, 1931. American actor, noted for his Jewish, French, and German dialect parts. He costarred (1918–20) with Sam Bernard in Friendly Enemies.

Mann, Matthew Derbyshire. b. at Utica, N.Y., July 12, 1845; d. at Buffalo, N.Y., March 3, 1921. American gynecologist. Author of Manual of Prescription Writing (1879).

Mann (män), Thomas. b. at Lübeck, Germany, June 6, 1875—. German novelist; brother of Heinrich Mann and father of Erika and Klaus Mann. His father's family, portrayed in Mann's first work, Buddenbrooks (1901), were merchants in the old Hanseatic town of Lübeck. The contrast of bourgeois solidity and artistic temperament has formed a theme in much of Mann's writing. His other novels are Königliche Hoheit (1909; Eng. trans., Royal Highness, 1916); Der Zauberberg (1924; Eng. trans., The Magic Mountain, 1927), the book that made the author known in America; Lotte in Weimar (1939; Eng. trans., The Beloved Returns, 1940); the four novels about the Biblical Joseph, Die Geschichten Jaakobs (1933), Der junge Joseph (1934), Joseph in Ägypten (1936), and Joseph der Ernährer (1943); Doktor Faustus (1947), and Der Erwählte (1951; Eng. trans., The Holy Sinner, 1951). Mann's many short stories, notably Tonio Kröger (1903), Tristan (1903), and Der Tod in Venedig (1913), are often considered to give his artistic talent better expression than his novels. He has taken an interest in the politics of his day with such works as Betrachtungen eines Unpolitischen (1918), in which he supported the cause of imperial Germany in World War I, and with The Coming Victory of Democracy (1938) and This Peace (1938), in which he aligned himself with the democracies against Nazi totalitarianism. He emigrated from Germany in 1933, came to the U.S. in 1938, and became an American citizen in 1940. He received the Nobel prize for literature in 1929.

Mann (man), Tom. b. at Foleshille, Warwickshire, England, April 15, 1856; d. at Grassington, Yorkshire, England, March 13, 1941. English labor leader and agitator. Employed (1867–70) in the mines, he became an apprentice engineer (1870–77) at Birmingham and a journeyman engineer (1877 et seq.) at London. He joined (1881) the Amalgamated Society of Engineers and served (1918–21) as their general secretary. He joined (1885) the Socialist Party. He led (1889) the London dock strike, was jailed for agitation among British troops (1912) and for leading a hunger march (1932–33). He was unsuccessful in four campaigns for the House of Commons.

Mann (man; German, män), William Julius. b. at Stuttgart, Germany, May 29, 1819; d. at Boston, June 20, 1892. American Lutheran clergyman and teacher. Author of Die Ansiedler in Amerika (1845), Lutheranism in America (1857), Heilbotschaft (1881), and Life and Times of Henry Melchior Mühlenberg (1887).

Mann Act (man). Act of the U.S. Congress passed in 1910 for the purpose of suppressing the interstate transportation of women or girls for immoral purposes. It was aimed chiefly at outlawing the white-slave traffic. This federal law, deriving its powers from the commerce clause of the Constitution, was upheld by the Supreme Court in Hoke v. U.S. (1912) and Caminetti v. U.S. (1916).

Mannar (ma.när'). [Also: Manaar, Manar.] Small island NW of Ceylon, at the E end of Adam's Bridge.

Mannar, Gulf of. [Also, Gulf of Manaar (or Manar).] Arm of the Indian Ocean, partly enclosed by Ceylon, the southern extremity of the Union of India, and the chain of islands connecting them (Adam's Bridge). Length, ab. 120 mi.; width, ab. 120 mi.

Mannerheim (män'er.hām; Anglicized, man'ér.hīm), Gustaf. [Full name, Baron Karl Gustaf Emil Mannerheim.] b. at Villnäs, Finland, June 4, 1867; d. at Lausanne, Switzerland, Jan. 27, 1951. Finnish army commander and political leader, who played a leading role in hostilities against Russia during World Wars I (after collapse of the czarist regime) and II. He served (1918–19) as supreme commander and regent in Finland after the declaration of independence from Russia, and commanded the Finnish forces during the campaigns of 1939–40 and 1941–44. He was also president (1944–46) of Finland during World War II. He served (1882–1917) in the Russian forces, rising to the rank of lieutenant general and command of a cavalry corps. He retired (1919–31) to private life, served (1931–39) as chairman of the national defense commission, and was appointed field marshal (1933) and marshal of Finland (1942).

Manners (man'érz), Charles. [Title, 4th Duke of Rutland.] b. March 15, 1754; d. at Dublin, Oct. 24, 1787. English statesman; eldest son of John Manners (1721–70), Marquis of Granby. He became member of Parliament for the University of Cambridge in 1774. In 1775 he protested against the taxation of the American colonies. On Feb. 11, 1784, he was appointed lord lieutenant of Ireland. He advocated the legislative union of Ireland with England.

Manners, Charles. [Stage name of Southcote Mansergh.] b. at London, Dec. 27, 1857; d. at Dublin, May 3, 1935. English operatic bass. With his wife, Fanny Moody, he formed (1897) the Moody-Manners Opera Company, which toured the provinces.

Manners, Lady Diana. Maiden name of Cooper, Lady Diana Duff.

Manners, John. [Titles: 9th Earl and 1st Duke of Rutland, Marquis of Granby.] b. at Boughton, Northamptonshire, England, May 29, 1638; d. at Belvoir, England, Jan. 10, 1711. English nobleman. He was a member of Parliament (1661–79), was appointed (1677) lord lieutenant of Leicestershire, and was dismissed (1687) for political reasons. He raised forces in Nottinghamshire during the revolution to aid William of Orange (William III), and was restored (1689 and 1706) to his post as lord lieutenant of Leicestershire.

Manners, John. [Title, Marquis of Granby.] b. Aug. 2, 1721; d. at Scarborough, Yorkshire, England, Oct. 18, 1770. English general. In 1759 he became a lieutenant general, serving at Minden (Aug. 1, 1759), and was commander in chief of the British contingent in Germany from Aug. 14, 1759. He fought with great bravery at Warburg (July 31, 1760), at Villingshausen (July 15, 1761), at Gravenstein (June 24, 1762), and at Homburg (Aug. 6, 1762). His portrait was twice painted by Reynolds.

Manners, John James Robert. [Title: 7th Duke of Rutland; called Lord John Manners.] b. Dec. 13, 1818; d. Aug. 4, 1906. English Conservative politician. He was commissioner of works (1852, 1858–59, and 1866–68), postmaster-general (1874–80 and 1885–86), and chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster (1886–92). He was one of the leaders of the "Young England" movement. He published England's Trust, and Other Poems (1841), Notes on a Cruise in Scotch Waters (1850), and others.

Manners-Sutton (-sut'on), Charles. b. Feb. 14, 1755; d. at Lambeth, London, July 21, 1828. Archbishop of Canterbury. He was bishop of Norwich in 1792, and archbishop of Canterbury from 1805 to 1828.

Manners-Sutton, Charles. [Title, 1st Viscount Canterbury.] b. Jan. 29, 1780; d. at London, July 21, 1845. English Tory politician. He served (1806–35) as member of Parliament, became (1809) judge advocate-general and privy councilor, and was speaker (1817–35) of the House of Commons.

Manners-Sutton, John Henry Thomas. [Title, 3rd Viscount Canterbury.] b. at London, May 27, 1814; d. there, June 23, 1877. English colonial governor; son of Charles Manners-Sutton (1780–1845). He was a member of Parliament (1841–47), lieutenant governor (1854–61) of New Brunswick, governor (1864–66) of Trinidad, and governor (1866–73) of Victoria.

Manners-Sutton, Thomas. [Title, 1st Baron Manners.] b. Feb. 24, 1756; d. at London, May 31, 1842. English lord chancellor of Ireland. He was solicitor general (1802), and lord chancellor (1807–27) of Ireland. He was active (1820) in the divorce proceedings against Queen Caroline.

Mannes (man'ęs), Clara. Married name of Damrosch, Clara.

Mannes, David. b. at New York, Feb. 16, 1866—. American violinist and conductor. He founded (1904) the Symphony Club of New York, founded (1912) the Music School Settlement for Colored People, and opened (1916) and directed with his wife, Clara Damrosch Mannes, the David Mannes Music School. He conducted for many years the concerts at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

Mannheim (man'hīm; German, män'hīm). Former administrative district in N Baden, Germany. Area, ab. 1,364 sq. mi.; pop. 707,303 (1925).

Mannheim. [Also, Manheim.] City in S Germany, in the Land (state) of Württemberg-Baden, American Zone, formerly in Baden, situated at the junction of the Neckar and Rhine rivers, ab. 44 mi. S of Frankfort on the Main: important river transit port, particularly for lumber, grain, coal, and iron. It has machinery, automobile, chemical, paper, cigar, flour, rubber, lumber, precision instrument, leather, and textile industries. The harbor, started in 1834, is second only to the one at Duisburg-Hamborn among West German river ports; the facilities of Mannheim and of Ludwigshafen form a unit. 211,614 (1946), 245,634 (1950).

History. Mannheim was merely a village until the establishment of Castle Friedrichsburg by Prince-Elector Frederick IV in 1606. The castle town soon attracted numerous French Huguenots and Protestant refugees from the Netherlands, was destroyed by the French in 1689, and rebuilt in the 18th century. The city was a leader in the development of German musical and theatrical life in this period; Schiller's Die Räuber was first played here in 1782. The modern commercial development began in the early 19th century. Mannheim was one of the chief seats of the national-liberal as well as of the republican movement in 1848–49, and remained sympathetic to progressive political and educational currents throughout the 19th and first half of the 20th centuries. It was frequently bombed in World War II. The American Third Army, under General George Patton, crossed the Rhine on March 23, 1945, and the city was occupied on March 30, 1945. The population decreased in the period 1939–46 by 25.7 percent.

Mannheim (män'hīm), Karl. b. 1893; d. 1947. German social philosopher and political sociologist. His early studies sought to examine the relation between modes of existence and intellectual life. His later interests focused on the problem of achieving harmony in a mass society. His important works were Ideologie und Utopie (1929, Eng. trans., Ideology and Utopia, 1936) and Mensch und Gesellschaft im Zeitalter des Umbaus (1935; Eng. trans., Man and Society in an Age of Reconstruction, 1940).

Mannin (man'in), Ethel (Edith). b. at London, Oct. 11, 1900—. English novelist and journalist. Author of Martha (1923), Hunger of the Sea (1924), Sounding Brass (1925), Crescendo (1929), Ragged Banners (1931), Men are Unwise (1934), The Pure Flame (1936), Rose and Stock (1938), Jake (1940), The Dark Forest (1946), Comrade, O Comrade (1947), and Bavarian Story (1950).

Manning (man'ing). Town in E central South Carolina, county seat of Clarendon County, ab. 50 mi. SE of Columbia; lumber and dairy products. 2,775 (1950).

Manning, Anne. b. at London, Feb. 17, 1807; d. at Tunbridge Wells, Kent, England, Sept. 14, 1879. English historical novelist. Among her more than 50 volumes are The Maiden and Married Life of Mistress Mary Powell, afterwards Mistress Milton (1849) and The Household of Sir Thomas More (1860), both originally published as serials. Her first work was A Sister's Gift (1826); her last, An Idyll of the Alps (1876). Stories from the History of Italy (1831) was the only one to appear under her name, all the others being issued as by "the author of Mary Powell."

Manning, Daniel. b. at Albany, N.Y., May 16, 1831; d. there, Dec. 24, 1887. American politician, secretary of the treasury (1885–87) in Cleveland's first administration.

Manning, Henry Edward. b. at Totteridge, Hertfordshire, England, July 15, 1808; d. at Westminster, London, Jan. 14, 1892. English cardinal. He was the youngest son of William Manning, a West India merchant. He entered Harrow in 1822, and Balliol College, Oxford, in 1827, where Charles Wordsworth was his tutor and William E. Gladstone an associate. He was made a fellow of Merton, Oxford, in 1832, and was ordained rector of Woollavington-cum-Graffham in 1833. He was married Nov. 7, 1833, and his wife died July 24, 1837. In the succeeding years, Manning became one of the prominent members of the Oxford movement. In 1840 he was created archdeacon of Chichester. He took no part in the secession (1845) of W. G. Ward and John Henry Newman, but continued a leader of the High-Church party until 1848. In May, 1848, he visited Rome, and on his return found himself in opposition to the established church. In April, 1850, he resigned his archdeaconry, and on June 14, 1851, was ordained a priest of the Roman Catholic Church. In 1854 he was made D.D. by Pope Pius IX, and installed as superior of the Congregation of the Oblates of Saint Charles at Bayswater (March 31, 1857). On April 30, 1865, he succeeded Cardinal Nicholas Wiseman as archbishop of Westminster, and was created cardinal March 31, 1875. Manning was a militant Roman Catholic and in the forefront of the struggle to obtain amelioration of the condition of workingmen; he was a principal supporter of the liberal movement that was climaxed by the encyclical Rerum novarum (1891) of Pope Leo XIII. He likewise supported to the full the dogma of papal infallibility enunciated in 1870, which many of his colleagues felt to be a premature statement. He was the author of Unity of the Church (1842), Temporal Mission of the Holy Ghost (1865), Temporal Power of the Pope (1866), England and Christendom (1867), and others.

